It was also an important day in Peter Dawson's life. He had no suspicion that within a mere two years he would become one of the most popular singers for a new-fangled squeaky toy, known as a phonograph when it played wax cylinders, and as a gramophone when it spun flat discs.

He didn't suspect, either, that already living in London was a charming young lady, Annette Noble, who had been growing into womanhood while he was leaving his boyhood behind in Australia, and that, even before he made his first record, "Nan" Noble would have become his wife.

Nan came from a gifted family. Her brother, Tom, was a recording expert, and her sister, Yolande, was a talented comedienne. Some of her Edison and Columbia records were sold in the States.

But when he first saw England at the age of 20, Peter Dawson wasn't thinking of either marriage or record making.

IV. Early Days in England

The Dawson brothers arrived in London on Derby Day as the British people were celebrating the end of the Boer War. They took lodgings in Kennington, on the main road to Epsom, the racing center, and Peter spent his first six months of London there.

Each week he paid seven shillings and sixpence (about $1.88 in American money at the 1902 exchange rate) for a spotlessly clean bed-sitting room. The price included breakfast each morning and free use of the piano.

Hoping to make an imposing appearance when he called on Santley, Peter went to the Elephant and Castle and bought a tail coat, striped trousers, a braided waistcoat, a shining top hat, and a pair of tan shoes. The first song he sang for Santley, who was both impressed and astonished by his appearance, was "O Ruddier than the Cherry," from Handel's Avis and Galatea—

Peter Dawson as he looked almost 60 years ago.

Peter Dawson as a member of the Adelaide Choral Society, Christmas, 1901.

an air which he always liked to sing because he considered it his "lucky song."

Santley told him he had an excellent voice, but it would be some time before he could be accepted as a pupil. Sir Charles suggested that Peter study with F. L. Bamford, in Glasgow, Scotland, then return to him.

So the young basso went to stay with his uncle Captain James Dawson, owner of a fleet of sailing ships. His Glasgow cousins soon took him to a shop and had him buy everyday attire more in keeping with the dour Scotch environment.

Dawson describes Bamford as a fine teacher. After six months of hard study, which included opera, oratorio, and classic songs, he was ready to return to London and again seek Santley's aid. This time Sir Charles was ready to accept him, at a guinea ($5.25) a week. He made excellent progress and Santley arranged for him to take part in a concert tour of the West of England in which Madame Emma Albani and Santley also participated.

Much of Dawson's spare time in London he spent at the Royal Opera House in Covent Garden. Most of these visits were made in company with a friend, Leonard Young, who was an enthusiast for fine music.

Although Dawson enjoyed the opera, it did not impress him as a way of life that he wanted to follow. He says it struck him as being, for most singers, too much work and too little pay. However, he did make some operatic appearances during his career, including one in Die Meistersinger, with an English cast and Hans Richter conducting. He was inclined to believe Charpentier's "Louise," was his favorite opera.

V. Marriage—More Recitals and Concerts

After six months in Kennington, Peter Dawson moved to Ealing Common — and met his future wife. "Nan" was the daughter of Thomas J. Noble, Sr., for 25 years manager of the Alhambra Theater in Leicester Square. Then he operated the Ealing Theater under his own management, and Dawson met his daughter. They were married 18 months later.

Mrs. Dawson, like her sister, was an accomplished singer, with a fine soprano voice. She had sung, under the professional name of Annette George, in London and many of the large provincial towns. After the marriage she joined Peter in recitals throughout the British Empire.

Within a few years they had toured together in England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, and India. Nan gave up professional singing in 1925 after being gravely injured in a motor car accident.

For a time after their marriage the young pair experienced hard times. Peter wasn't making a living by his concert work and his father insisted, after he had studied for two years, that he return home and go to work in the canning factory.

In the hope of making him come back to Australia, old Mr. Dawson reduced or stopped the allowance he had been sending his deep-voiced son. But Nan insisted that Peter continue his musical career, and he kept on singing, even though money was slow coming in.

Dawson recalls he was paid seven shillings and sixpence (the same price he was charged a week for room and breakfast in Kennington) for his first appearance in England. He sang at a concert in a church in Burdett Road, Stepney, using such time-honored bass songs as "I Fear No foe," "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," "The Bandolero," and "Long Ago in Alcala."

He was 22 when he made the series of public appearances, already mentioned, with Albani and Santley. Their first concert was given in the Guildhall at Plymouth, the town from which the Pilgrim Fath-

G. O. MORAN
Box 83, Lodi, Wis.

FOR SALE

Jean De Reske - Leiser	5.00
Minstrel in France - Lauder	2.50
My Wife and I - Homer	5.00
You're Only Human Once - Moore	2.50
My Life - Calve	5.00
Music Goes Round - Galsburg	5.00
Musical Memories - Upton	5.00
Blapham - Quaker Singers Recollections	3.00
Song of My Life - Y. Guilbert	5.00
My Musical Life - Damrosch	3.00
Jenny Lind - Maude	3.00
Handel, Streetfield	3.00
Mozart, Davenport	3.00
Grand Opera in America - Lahee	3.00
Famous Violinists - Lahee	3.00
Reign of Patti - Klein	5.00
Marchesi and Music - Marchesi	3.50
Schumann Heink - Lawton	5.00
Song of Motley - Slezak	5.00

RECORD CATALOGS

H.M.V. 1915	10.00
H.M.V. 1910 to 1911	10.00
Edison 1924	5.00
Edison 1928	3.00
Victor 1910	10.00
Pathe 1920	10.00
Victor 1913	3.00
Victor 1914	3.00
Columbia 1928	3.00
Victor Supplements Between 1915 - 1925, each	75c

I AM INTERESTED IN OFFERS ON THE FOLLOWING DIAMOND DISCS:

Jose Mojica, 82343 N
Muzio - 82287 N
MELIS 82050 VG
HENSEL 82081 VG
OLITZKA 80728 N
DE CISNEROS 82519 VG
MUZIO - LAURENTI 82247 N
Urius - 82250 N
Muzio - 82320 N
Zenatello - 82294 - N
Anselmi - 83018 VVG
Muzio - 82267 N
Anselmi - 83008 VVG
Zenatello - 83052 VF
Urius - 83033 VG
Bonci - 83023 VVG
Yaw - 82049 VVG
Delia - 83019 VVG
Zenatello - 82288 N
Carolina Lazzari - 83079 VVG
Carolina Lazzari - 82129 N
Edison Diamond Disc Lowboy Machine. Perfect condition. Buyer picks up.	25.00 Jax

Please mention HOBBIES when replying to advertisements.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- * COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- * VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- * INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- * FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- * "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York
tfx

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders repinned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825

OPERA NEWS WANTED

Issue One, Volume One
First Issue of Opera News

ROBERT BISHOP
160 Columbia Heights
Brooklyn, N. Y.

UL 5-9756

ELECTRIFY

PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my26p

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8.
(Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All Advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

J. E. Hough, "The Lancashire Laddie," who headed the Edison Bell Co., gave Peter Dawson his start as a recording artist.

ers had sailed nearly 300 years earlier for America.

The critics' reviews of the concert gave him encouragement. One, speaking of Dawson, said:

"The refreshing clearness of his diction, after so much incoherence from so many of today's singers, was most pleasing. This young man has a good future before him. His phrasing in the difficult 'Hybrias the Cretan' was a revelation in its perfection."

Although Dawson received only two guineas a concert, after having previously been paid seven guineas to sing at a musical event in Glasgow, he considered that the publicity and experience made up for the low pay. Later he sang for a good many musical societies at what were known as "smoking concerts," in which the nicotine-tainted atmosphere didn't help keep a singer's vocal chords at concert pitch. Santley advised him to accept the engagements for the sake of the money and experience, but not to smoke and drink with the audience.

Yet, judging from an interview with Dawson which W. S. Meadmore published in the September, 1935, Gramophone, Santley's practice didn't precisely accord with his preaching.

"Sometimes Santley would say: 'What are you doing tonight?' and invite me to dinner. Afterwards he would pass me his fierce black Spanish cigars. It took a strong stomach to tackle one of them! But I could smoke anything in those days. Until I was married I used to puff away at coarse Irish twist, but my wife could not endure the smell of it in the house. So Irish twist had to go."

Later, Dawson smoked little, if at all, and in the matter of alcohol he was virtually a tee-totaler.

Meadmore's article contains some interesting reminiscences of Dawson's early days from which I extract:

"We stood in his sitting room, looking into a garden jolly with summer flowers and beautifully kept. Erect in every border, like a regiment of soldiers, were rugosa standards, victims of Peter Dawson's passion for budding roses. He is an ardent gardener. But then he is ardent about most things he does. And skillful! Painting, for example. There is something more than the amateur in his oils—mostly landscapes—and there was a little piece of a tree against a wall that it would have given me great pleasure to hang on one of my walls."

"In those (Australian) days," he said, "I was a master plumber—had a certificate for it. Also I was a lead worker, a gas fitter, a champion swimmer—I won a five mile race for boys under 16—I could drive a steam-roller or a steam-engine or any make of car, and I was a horse breaker. I loved horses and have missed them since I left Australia. When I was a boy I milked six cows every morning, and I could make butter, plow and scythe. But when I was a boy my great enthusiasm was for boxing; my ambition was to be a prize fighter. My brother, a well-known Australian boxer, gave me my first lessons, and the old-time fighter, Jack Evans, polished me up. When I was 19 I won the amateur boxing championship of Adelaide."

"The South African war had just come to its long-drawn-out end; peace had been declared the very day on which I arrived in London. I walked out of Fenchurch Street Station in all the glory of a top-hat worn for the first time, but had not got many yards before it was snatched from my head and thrown high in the air. I never saw it again. Men and women were dancing in the street; most of that night I was turning the handle of a barrel organ."

"In 1926, Dixon Rider, the Canadian singer, said to me that it was about time I did something worthy of my voice—I should give a series of West End song recitals. So for three years I studied German lieder with him. When I thought I was ready I gave four recitals at the Wigmore Hall and a further four at the Aeolian. Of course I lost money on the venture, but it was worth it. I'd rather sing those songs than any other, and I enjoyed those recitals immensely. When in 1931 I was touring Australia with Mark Hambourg, it was obvious I could not sing tripe while he was playing classical music, and I venture to think that the songs I did sing during that trip would have been worthy of any singer."

"I've sung in oratorio, opera, at concerts, and in the music halls. To say nothing of making gramophone records"

MISC. MUSIC WANTED

HARRY BELLAFONTE material: records, pictures, articles, paper music, whatever you have. All letters answered. Request this material pertain to the time before he hit fame. — Mary Belle Smith, 2717 Hampshire Blvd., Huntington Beach, Calif. d3446

XAVIER CUGAT material wanted. Want to hear from other Cugat collectors. Would like to buy or trade Cugat music on transcriptions or tapes. — Bob Ackerly, 713 San Jude Ave., Palo Alto, Calif. d1662

MISC. MUSIC FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Over 100 antique phonographs and radios. Illustrated list $1, refunded on first order. — Miller's, 1017 Westgate Rd., Troy, Ohio. ja4886

REPRODUCER REPAIRING of all kinds. Have a supply of the original Edison Styluses and can install them in your reproducers. Send stamp for brochure on reproducers. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. mh3825

ANY & EVERYTHING OLD in music. — Frank Bailey, Route 3, South Haven, Mich. ja1401

and broadcasting. I've toured Australia and New Zealand seven times, South Africa thrice, and I've also sung in India, Burma, the Straits Settlements and China and Japan. In South Africa I was billed as "The King of Record Makers: Over Two Million Records." I was told that a Zulu chief was very keen to meet me; but when he did he was terribly disappointed. Somehow or other he had got into his head that I had two million wives!

"One trip to Australia, on a P. & O. liner, the purser came up to me and said, 'Suite all right, Mr. Dawson?' Fine, I said. 'Got something much better for you.' He showed me a most palatial suite, and I changed over. A few days later he remarked: 'Do you know, Mr. Dawson, we sell more of your whisky up and down the line than any other brand.' When I told him I was only Dawson the singer and not the Dawson of whisky fame, his face was like the fire-proof curtain coming down at a theater!"

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy and sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. my6637

SHEET MUSIC, 1900 and up. Over 800. Send for free list. All $1 each. — Ric Verdi Antiques, 854 Taunton Ave., East Providence, Rhode Island. d6867

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3161 High, Denver 5, Colo. s12698

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

CYLINDER PHONOS. Concert, Grand, Triumphs, etc. Cylinder records, also 5" records. Reproducers, recorders, and parts. Many horns, large, small, flowered. Early Disc phonographs, Berliner, Zonaphone, Victor, etc. German Disc music boxes. All items in perfect condition, from my collection. — Neumann, Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale 4, Calif. mh3257

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

FOR SALE: Approximately 60 antique radios, phonographs, reproducers from $7.50 to $350. Illustrated list only 50c. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate, Troy, Ohio. mh3023

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ja3426

CYLINDER & DISC horn type phonographs, records, catalogs, horns, reproducers, roller organs, Hurdy Gurdys, player pianos bought, sold, exchanged, repaired. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond 31, Va. ja6468

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books. $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ja3694

WANTED: Excelsior, Eclipse, Bijou & other Edison cylinder phonographs, reproducers, parts. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate Road, Troy, Ohio. mh3272

VI. The Turning Point

While Peter's career was still uncertain, a Russian singing specialist, Professor Kantorez, told the young basso he could teach him how to extend his voice. Dawson placed himself under the professor's guidance, and Kantorez changed him from a basso profundo into a bass-baritone, able to sing four notes higher than he had ever before accomplished.

Kantorez insisted he could give the youngster a still greater range and turn him into "the finest tenor of the age," but Dawson refused, fearing that if he became a tenor he would lose his middle register. However, he said he would always be grateful to the Russian who assured him at parting he was so well trained in voice production techniques that he would still be singing well at 90. "For those interested," Dawson writes in 'Fifty Years of Song,' "my range is Eb to top A. Before the Kantorez episode it was Eb to D."

The turning point in the singer's career came when his father had stopped his allowance and he was without money. Then he received a visit from a man whom he describes as "a charming bearded gentleman"—James E. Hough, managing director of the Edison Bell Phonograph Co.

Mr. Hough asked Dawson to come to the Edison Bell studios in the Euston Buildings in Northwest Lon-

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

ANYTHING IN QUANTITY. Amounts of 25 or more. Old or otherwise. Merchandise must be in good saleable condition. Anything from A to Z. Items must be all the same, but not necessarily the same age. All letters answered. State amount, condition and price in first letter. — Antique Phonograph Service, c/o Lloyd Whitlock, 114 State St., Brewer, Maine. mh3829

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

ATTENTION: Cylinder and disc phonographs. All makes and models. Sold and repaired. Repairs done on all machines. Have in stock original parts for all machines, including main springs and reproducers. Reproducers bought, sold and repaired. Large list of phonographs for sale sent for stamp. Special, sturdy replacement floor horn stands, modern, $5 each. — Antique Phonograph Service, 114 State, Brewer, Maine. mh3069

MELODEONS FOR SALE

BEAUTIFUL RESTORED Instruments. Also buy and repair; reasonable. — C. Lamper, C-Sharp Hobby Shop, 1365 Bristol, N.W., Grand Rapids, Mich. au120821

PIANOS &amp; ROLLS

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1519 California St., San Francisco, Calif. f3804

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Antique musical instruments, write full description to Hal Lynn, 13210 Shaker Square, Cleveland 20, Ohio. ap12069

ORGANS AND MELODEONS bought, sold, traded. — Scott Brobston, 433 E. Center St., Nazareth, Pa. ja3422

Coin Operated Banjo Wanted. — P. M. Connelly, 710 Washington Blvd., Oak Park, Ill. mh3213

WILL BUY a Vega "Whyte Laydie" 5-string banjo, or other good make. — N. Howard, 43 West 32nd St., New York, N. Y. ja1291

NEW ROLLS and repair supplies (belows cloth, tubing, leather) available for all types of automatic pianos. — Durrell Armstrong, Player Piano Co., 222 S. Vassar, Wichita 8, Kans. ap124661

VOCALSTYLE piano rolls badly needed: "Mr. Jelly Lord" and "Tom Cat Blues." — Montgomery, 722 Spring, Ann Arbor, Mich. d122511

Wanted: Syrian-Arabic player piano rolls. — Ray Fortier, Farmington, N. H. mh6825

WANTED: Welte-Mignon, Deluxe, Duo-Art, and regular rolls. List titles and prices. — A. H. Giragosian, 603 So. Walter Reed Dr., Arlington 4, Va. sl22741

PLAYER-PIANO ROLLS bought-sold; Duo-Art and organ rolls wanted. — Old Salzburg, 1645 Wisconsin, Washington 7, D.C. mh6675

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n126351

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only, and cannot tell you where to sell them. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

RECORDINGS NEEDED, will pay high price: "Clarinetki," Johnny Dodds; "Prohibition Has Done Me Wrong," Jimmy Rodgers; WPA-Glenn Miller. Please contact: Alda Favia-Artsay, 50 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N.Y. tfx

SEEKING TOSCININI 78's on Victrola, HMV, Brunswick, Victor, V-Discs. — Weaver, 4406 Clay Ave., Houston 23, Texas. ap6445

RECORDS FOR SALE

OVER 100,000 hard - to - get records, 1903 to LP. — Jack's Record Cellar, 400 Haight St., San Francisco 17, Calif. d126121

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 208 W. 80th St., New York 24, N.Y. ja128862

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. je120061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. ap3276

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. mh3084

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N.Y. ja3618

FOR SALE: Hundreds of disc and cylinder records, many types of early phonographs, 25c for lists. Also "Evolution of the Phonograph," by Walter Welch and Oliver Reed, a complete history of the phonograph, 576 pages, regular price $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. mh3836

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. f6306

I SEE HUNDREDS of records every day. Let's hear your needs. — Ted's Second Hand Store, 1123 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. (Stamp please). mh3253

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. Collections bought as well as sold. Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. mh3065

FOR SALE: Edison cylinder record, 4 min. "The Farmer & Business Man" by Theodore Roosevelt, 100 Edison records and player. Records are 50 - 60 years old. Mosby Floral Co., 818 12th St., Tell City, Ind. mh3065

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York City 3, N. Y. je6084

COLLECTOR'S ITEMS: 78's to lps - Publisher: The Record Finder. — Jazz Man Record Shop, 2689 West Pico, Los Angeles, Calif. au124661

78 rpm GOLDEN-AGE vocals, rare operatics, orchestral and instrumental records, old catalogs, photos of singers - all may be found on our monthly lists. Also large selection of imported European LPs. — Ross, Court & Co., 324 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. mh60821

THOUSANDS OF RECORDS. Auction lists now available. Please specify artists or type of records desired. . . Jazz & Blues, Hillbilly, Personalities, Banjos, etc. Cond. guaranteed. Fast service. Send to — Records, 122 Crescent Ave., Woodbury, N. J. mh3445

F.R.P. RE-ISSUES of famous singers. Send for free list and name of nearest dealer. — Famous Records of the Past, 2060 First Ave., New York 29, N. Y. ap128271

I BUY, SELL, TRADE 12" & 16" radio transcriptions, all types. — Paul Scriven, Niles, Ohio. mh3522

TRY MARCONI'S for rare 78's. Serving collectors for 46 years. Original stock records of operatic, orchestral, popular and jazz. Also cut out lps. Send for operatic catalog, 25c. — Marconi Brothers, 864 Lexington Ave., New York City 21, N. Y. ja3676 don and take a voice test. In his most impressive graveyard tones, the 22-year-old basso agreed and sped home, he says in his book, to tell the glad tidings to Nan.

Meadmore's previously quoted article in The Gramophone, however, has him saying: "I married, on nothing, Annette George, a soprano with a lovely voice who sang in musical comedy and pantomime. We spent our honeymoon at Brighton on five pounds presented to me by my father-in-law. It was a week-end honeymoon, for I was married on a Saturday; on the Monday I was back in town recording for Edison Bell."

Dawson's own account, we may assume, should be more reliable than what Meadmore recollected his saying in the interview. At any rate, Peter relates, he discovered next morning he didn't have enough money to pay his fare to the Edison Bell headquarters!

(To be continued)

CORRECTIONS IN BIRTHS AND DEATHS DIRECTORY

Despite the most painstaking efforts of the HOBBIES editorial staff and myself, a few errors slipped into the December article giving the birth and death dates of pioneer recording artists.

The worst, perhaps, was printing Jules Levy's birth year as 1858 when it should have been 1838. Marie Dressler's first name was given as Maria; Marguerita Sylva became Marguerite; Darius Lyons was called Daius, and in one place New Orleans was spelled New Orelans. If there were any others, I haven't caught them, and, after all, this wasn't many for such a long list.

—Jim Walsh

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 29)

oletto' at the Metropolitan and Proves Himself a First-Rate Artist: The woeful scarcity of good operatic tenors makes the advent of every new one an event of especial importance. For this reason the performance of 'Rigoletto' on Friday evening of last week is worthy of more than passing mention.

"It introduced to the American audiences the Russian tenor, Smirnov, who, as MUSICAL AMERICA readers will remember has already a firmly grounded reputation in Europe. That he is going to set this city agog cannot yet be asserted with the utmost degree of definiteness, but, on the other hand, he will undoubtedly prove the most serviceable lyric tenor the Metropolitan has possessed since the departure of Bonci from that institution. There was a good-sized audience to receive him and he had every reason to be satisfied with the amount of applause that rewarded the results of his efforts in the role of the Duke.

"Mr. Smirnov is in many respects a first-rate artist. His voice is of lyrical sweetness and is smooth and even in quality. His phrasing is admirable and his breath control astonishing. Few tenors of late years have been gifted with such a capacious pair of lungs, and it is with the most consummate ease that the singer is able to sustain phrases of almost unbelievable length. His desire to put this facility to the utmost use results at times in the practice of prolonging high notes far beyond their written value. His intonation was almost constantly true, and he is fully alive to the value of dynamic shading.

"There is one matter, however, which needs correction in Mr. Smirnov's work. He is addicted to the use of the effeminate 'white voice,' a thing which is doubly unpleasant coming from an individual of such manly and handsome presence and bearing. Musical taste in this country is strongly opposed to this vocal quality."

A great deal more remains to be told about this celebrated artist of Old Russia; the story of his life and career, and perhaps some anecdotes. But these will be in my review of another Smirnov LP which,

I understand, is coming out in the near future.

Meanwhile, here are the correct dates of his birth and death, which I got from his widow, whom I had the pleasure of meeting recently. Dmitri Alekseyevitch Smirnov was born in Moscow in 1882. The charming lady could not recall the full date: "It was so long ago," she said.

As to his demise—the whole city of Riga, where the famous tenor was deeply admired to the end of his long and colorful artistic life, mourned him on April 27, 1944. And with his passing, another star ceased to brighten the operatic constellation of the Golden Age.

LIGHTNER MUSEUM HIGHLIGHTED

"The Houghton Line," well-edited and most interesting organ of the E. F. Houghton & Company, Philadelphia, Pa., frequently espouses the cause of hobbies. In the June issue, 1961, Douglas C. Miner of the staff of The Houghton Line reported on his visit to the Lightner Museum of Hobbies, St. Augustine, Fla. Mr. Miner commented: "If you do not have a hobby when you go in, you will get an idea for one before you come out. Two floors of a big Spanish architecture building house everything from buttons to mustache cups, umbrellas, match clips, coins, stamps, phonographs, automobiles, dishes and what have you. Some 50,000 tourists visit the museum yearly. Its management is under a Board of Trustees which includes prominent citizens and city officials interested in history, of which St. Augustine has plenty."

ONCE MORE

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year TO THE GREAT BIG HOBBIES FAMILY

NIPPER, lying on a Pathe phonograph made in France, is taking care to leave an open box of candy for Santa Claus.

Here Nipper is joined by his brunette hero, ROGER. Nips is sitting on a letter they have written to Santa. They have just turned from peering wistfully into the snow-clad outdoors for a glimpse of St. Nick.

Judging by his loving, almost worshipful, expression, PETEY thinks his record collector friend, Albert Via, of South Boston, Va., is Santa in disguise.

Sweet-faced GRAY is keeping a bright look-out for the red-clad old gentleman with the big bag of presents for good cats. Gray is good the year around — Not just at Christmas time.

PERCY, the Pitiful Persian, was crippled, nameless, homeless and friendless, until he timidly came up the hill during last winter's cold, snowy weather. For weeks he hid beneath the porch at 225 North Maple St., Vinton, Va. Now he's one of the family and for the first time in his life expects Santa to leave something for him.

From Roger, Gray, Nipper, Petey and Jim Walsh — and, for the first time, from Percy, the Pitiful Persian. (P.S. Aroma, the Friendly Polecat, and Mike and Ike, the portly 'possums, who live harmoniously together somewhere beneath the house, extend their greetings, too.)

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Peter Dawson

PART II

By JIM WALSH

I. At Edison Bell

Nan Dawson saved her aspiring but penniless husband from calamity when he ruefully told her he had an invitation to make test recordings for Edison Bell but didn't have the money to pay his fare to Mr. Hough's London studios.

The young wife remembered she had played the Fairy Queen in a pantomime a year or so previously, and had used pennies to keep her long silk hose attached to the bottom of the Queen's corsage. Inside her trunk she found six pennies twisted into the top of the stockings. Those pennies paid her husband's way to Edisonia.

The first song Dawson sang into what he called "the little funnel" was "Long Ago in Alcalá." He said he could never forget the shock as someone laid a hand on his shoulder and pushed him closer to, or farther from the horn. And he said the experience of hearing the playback remained vivid all his life.

Edison Bell's musical director, Edward Hesse, told him afterwards his face was a study; that he sat open-mouthed and astonished as the record started, but showed clearly before it ended that he thought he was listening to good singing.

The Edison Bell recording expert, Russell Hunting, was an American whose life story was told in HOBBIES from November, 1944, through February, 1945. Hunting told Hough that Dawson's voice was "too powerful and very difficult to record" without blasting. Hough replied it could be properly recorded by using a less sensitive diaphragm. He asked Dawson to return for another trial.

As Dawson left the office he heard Hough say to Hesse: "I think his voice is a winner." (Edison Bell later made a disc record called the Winner).

Dawson walked the eight miles to Ealing, impatient to relate the morning's happenings to Annette. I like to imagine him striding briskly along, meditating on the possibilities of becoming regularly employed as a recording artist.

On Peter's next visit, Hunting brought out a different recording horn and made him sing the entire song, so he would know where the heavy notes that caused blast might occur. While the test record was being made Hunting himself stood beside Dawson and pushed him back and forth as the nature of the music indicated.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

This time there was virtually no playback blast. And Peter gave a long breath of relief when Hunting said, "Yeah, that's it." Then, in a louder tone: "You've got a darned good voice."

The record which had just been made was not intended for sale. Hesse decided Dawson's first commercial cylinder should be "Navajo," a combination Indian-Negro song contrived by two Americans, Harry Williams and Egbert Van Alstyne. A year later they were to write possibly the greatest song hit of all time, "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," which Dawson recorded for Edison Bell.

Hunting maintained Dawson's name must be changed for record use. He doesn't seem to have mentioned the possibility of the basso's becoming confused with the purveyor of Peter Dawson whisky, but he said something about it being too common a name in the States and insisted a given name other than Peter was necessary. So it was decided to borrow the first name of Dawson's music-loving friend, Leonard Young, and Dawson's fledgling records came out as by Leonard Dawson.

Before long, however, Hough insisted that since Dawson was becoming well-known as a concert artist it was bad business not to use his real name. So Leonard Dawson was retired in favor of Peter. The singer said he could still recall the thrill he felt when Harry Bluff, a comedian who served as Edison Bell announcer, intoned: "The Bandolero," sung by Peter Dawson. Edison Bell record!

At first Dawson was paid five shillings a round—slightly more than American companies ordinarily had paid beginning recorders. Edison Bell apparently had not begun making cylinders by the moulded process in 1904, for Dawson said he had to sing songs over and over to make the masters from which duplicated copies were supplied.

When Billy Williams' first comedy record for Edison, "John, John, Put Your Trousers On," swept England like an epidemic, Dawson was engaged, under the name of Hector Grant, to sing it for Edison Bell. For five consecutive days he started singing about "John" at 10 a.m., kept it up until 1 p.m., had lunch, started again at 2:15 and worked through until 5.

For this he received 75 golden sovereigns, worth almost $400 by the values of those days and between $1,500 and $2,000 today. When he reached home he told Nan he was a "budding Rockefeller" and dumped the money down on a table.

Hector Grant, alias Peter Dawson, as a Scottish comedian in 1906.

They both were very happy. And the next day, this was early in 1907, they went to an auction sale and bought the first furniture they could call their own—a bed, wardrobe, washstand, and dressing table, which cost a grand total of $50.

Peter must have had a good time during his tyro recording for Edison Bell. Mr. Hough's hired help were a colorful crew whose idiosyncrasies provided ample scope for Dawson's good-naturedly satirical drawings that soon covered the studio walls.

Among them were Ernest Pike, a robust-voiced tenor whose father was the baker at the Royal Family's Sandringham palace. Perhaps because of his father's influence, Pike sang on a number of occasions before King Edward and the other members of the Family. The honor went somewhat to Pike's head, much to the delight of Dawson, who became Pike's recording partner and sang hundreds of duets with him. We shall hear more of Ernest Pike, who died in 1936.

Another Edison-Bell artist, whom Dawson probably knew, was Pipe-Major Henry Forsyth, bagpipe player for the King. A photo taken about the time Dawson's recording career began shows Forsyth striding along, sounding his pipes, followed by the four children of the Prince of Wales, who became King George V.

Two future kings are in the picture—Edward, now the Duke of Windsor, and George, destined to be loved as George VI. Princess Mary, and Henry, Duke of Gloucester, also are there.

Then there was Dawson's fellow Australian, Albert Whelan, the music hall comedian who was one of the first performers to record excerpts from Dickens' books. Whelan always appeared on the stage in evening attire, and began and closed his act by whistling "The Jolly Fellows Waltz." Some of his records began and ended the same way.

Around 1905, English Columbia used the slogan, "There's Talent In Every Columbia Record," and their advertisements showed Whelan's face, wearing a broad grin, peering from the top of a Columbia cylinder record box. Whelan continued active in music hall and vaudeville until well into his 80's, although he lost a leg in his later years.

He died in London Sunday, February 20, 1961, aged 85. His fellow Australian, Percy Grainger, the noted pianist and composer, died in New York the following day.

Surely it was fun to be young, making a good living. And to know and play pranks on Pike, Whelan, Harry Bluff, Stanley Kirkby, and the other once-famous artists who performed for Edison Bell.

II. Edison and Other Recordings

I learned long ago most performers are less than 100 per cent accurate when they try to recollect details of their recording careers. Hence it is no wonder that Peter Dawson, though undoubtedly meaning to set down everything just as it happened, not infrequently mixed up dates and other things after relating his first experiences recording for Edison Bell.

Of course, the reader may take the attitude the Negro preacher adopted concerning Robert G. Ingersoll's lecture, "Some Mistakes of Moses:" "All I got to say is, Moses was there when it happened but Mr. Ingersoll wasn't."

It may be argued that Peter Dawson was bound to know more about when, where, and how he made his records than a man living in Virginia, who has never been to England, or seen the inside of a British recording studio. But such an argument would be misleading, for it

PLAYER PIANO TREASURY

The greatest collection ever assembled of material on the history of the mechanical piano in America. Over 250 pages of old ads, catalog pages, and text.

Price $10 ppd.,
satisfaction guaranteed.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 Stratford Drive
Vestal 2, New York fp

WANTED

FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.).
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York
tfx

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING cylinders retuned, casses repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (FE 8-1506) Puham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825
tfo

OPERA NEWS WANTED

Issue One, Volume One
First Issue of Opera News

ROBERT BISHOP
160 Columbia Heights
Brooklyn, N. Y.
UL 6-9756
fp

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS
YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Leo Silent Suction Unit
EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE
write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.
my24p

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

Top—left

Peter Dawson around 1904, when his career was just beginning and he was recording as "Leonard Dawson."

Top—right

Sir Louis Sterling, who became the head of the great EMI recorded music "combine" in Great Britain, was one of Peter Dawson's employers in the early days of the great bass-baritone's phonograph career.

is possible to trace Dawson's recording career through the Talking Machine News and other periodicals and find out where his recollections varied from the published facts.

In correcting any unintentional misstatements by Mr. Dawson, I shall not do so in a critical spirit, since he was one of my greatest musical admirations, but in the cause of historical accuracy.

The basso said he began making records for Edison and other companies about the time he sang all those Edison Bell cylinders of "John, John, Put Your Trousers On," but he had been doing so for sometime before.

At the Edison studios he met a young Irish tenor, who was just beginning a career as a professional singer and who told Peter he wasn't charging enough for his recording services. The tenor, who wasn't paid much for his first records, either, was John McCormack.

Concerning the Edison cylinders, Dawson commented:

"The Edison records sold at a higher price than the others, and they were worth the price. They did not alter their price, when, about this time, another company started making a record which they put on sale for ninepence! That was threepence cheaper than the Edison Bell, and sixpence less than the Edison. . . .

"The Edison Company . . . asked me to sing for them exclusively, and put my fee up to three guineas minimum. The Thomas Edison Company was far more advanced technically in their recording, and took infinitely more pains in securing the best combination of recording diaphragm and funnel for different voices. Only when the best result was found in various tests did they start to make the master records."

Those who know the legendary slave-driving methods of Edison's American recording technicians will smile sympathetically at that statement. Both here and abroad Edison spared no pains to get the best possible results, even though the artists might be exhausted before the actual recording began.

Musical purists will exclaim with some justice that it's a pity the Edison people were not as careful in their choice of the material they recorded as they were in making sure that whatever was recorded came out right. Dawson's fee of three guineas seems small, since most Edison artists of that period in the States were paid $40 a recording.

Dawson went on to say that the Sterling Record Company was the one which introduced the ninepence record, and mentioned that the firm was headed by Louis Sterling. He did not refer to Russell Hunting's partnership with Sterling. The firm at first was known as the Russell Hunting Record Co., and made Sterling records. Later it was called Sterling & Hunting.

Dawson described Louis Sterling, who grew up on New York's East Side and was of Russian immigrant Jewish parentage, as "a short, dark, rather small man with an American accent, who at first sight did not impress me as a man capable of fighting companies like the two I have mentioned"—Edison and Edison Bell. But, Dawson said, as he grew to know Sterling better he appreciated the drive, determination, and strong personality hidden behind his frail physique. Dawson said Sterling failed to make a success of his cylinder record because the cylinder was on its way out and was being supplanted by the disc.

Many years later, because of his services to the Empire, plain Louis Sterling became Sir Louis Sterling and was many times a millionaire, despite having given huge sums to charity, when he died in London June 3, 1958, at the age of 79. Long before that time he had become head of the English Columbia Co. and, much later, of E.M.I., the "combine" which makes H.M.V., Columbia, Parlophone and Regal-Zone phone records for sale throughout the British Empire.

Dawson said that the temporary success of Sterling in bringing out a record for ninepence caused Edison to offer him the exclusive contract which he accepted.

Dawson's next step forward, he said, was in making disc records for two American brothers, Fred and Will Gaisberg, who had come to England as recording experts for His Master's Voice. Meanwhile, he had recorded for a few other companies, including Nicole.

Their recording expert was Arthur Brooks, "who shortly afterwards became the chief recording manager for the powerful Columbia Company. . . . The manager of the Columbia was the little American who had tried to revivify cylinder records by selling them at ninepence each—Louis Sterling."

Dawson said the Gaisbergs persuaded him to sign an exclusive H.M.V. contract in 1906, for a minimum of 25 pounds ($125) a year. It seems incredible that the young singer would accept a contract with such a paltry guarantee even though H.M.V. paid him, he said, 72 pounds that year.

After all, he made a little more than 72 pounds in five days, singing "John, John" for Edison Bell! But he said, the 72 pounds seemed to him like "a lot of money," and he considered it merely a supplement to concert work. The "John, John" singing was done after the supposedly exclusive H.M.V. contract was signed.

Terming that first one-year contract the first of many with H.M.V., Dawson said he had not sung for any other company since 1906. By 1908, he added H.M.V. was beginning to advertise his records in a fairly big way, and by 1909 he was receiving letters from his native Australia telling him his cylinders and discs were highly popular there.

"I did not realize," he said, "that my records had been 'hailed' in the Australian press, and that I was being acclaimed a star in my own country until I arrived there for my first return visit with Amy Castle's company. . . . The contract I made with H.M.V. was for one pound and one shilling for each solo; 10 shillings, sixpence for each duet or quartet."

Again one wonders: Why did Peter sign an "exclusive" contract for one-third of what Edison would pay him. It seems, according to some accounts, that H.M.V. offered to give him his choice of a flat rate per record, or a shilling royalty on the sale of each, and, with what hindsight now makes appear poor judgment, he settled for the flat fee. But how was a striving young singer to know his records would become so popular?

III. Corrections and Emendations

Mr. Dawson was mistaken when he said Edison never reduced the price of its cylinders from a shilling and sixpence to exactly a shilling. True, Edison had sued the Talking Machine News for hinting, without saying so outright, that the price of its records was coming down, but that price was cut to a shilling on July 1, 1907.

Sterling did not introduce the ninepenny cylinder. As long as the Sterling record was made, its price was a shilling. In December, 1905, for instance, the makers advertised:

"We take this method of assuring dealers in Sterling records that there will be no change in price. . . . When the Sterling records were first introduced to the British public they were at once recognized as THE BEST SHILLING RECORD ON THE MARKET."

The Sterling business grew steadily until Edison cut prices. Then they were unable to compete on equal terms with Edison's higher quality. The Edison price reduction, not any triumphant sweep of the disc, bankrupted the Russell Hunting Record Co., Ltd.

The Star record, made by the Phonograph Exchange Co., of Norwich, appears to have been the first cylinder offered for ninepence, as early as 1904. It is suspected of having been dubbed from Edison and other well-known brands.

The first important manufacturer to cut the price of two-minute cylinders to ninepence was Pathé, which did so on most of its catalog in July, 1906, but left cylinders by Caruso, Lauder, and other celebrities at a shilling. Pathé was then about to begin making discs and soon abandoned the cylinder trade in England.

An effort also was made to market for ninepence the Rex cylinder, which had been made by the company that turned out Lambert Indestructibles. On October 1, 1907, Edison Bell announced dealers would allow threepence for each old record turned in on the purchase of a new one. That in effect brought the price down to ninepence.

On October 15, the Premier Co. advertised the new Clarion cylinder at that low price, and Edison Bell followed suit on November 15. In April, 1908, Edison Bell announced a New Process improved cylinder that would sell for a shilling, but Mr. Hough's firm soon afterward began concentrating on making discs and virtually gave up the "rollers."

Despite all the price cuts, and Sterling and Hunting's having gone bankrupt, superior quality caused nearly all the remaining cylinder business to go to the Edison shilling record, especially after the 4-minute Amberol was introduced late in 1908.

The first mention I find of a Dawson record for any company is in the September, 1904, Talking Machine News. Old Mr. Hough had a quaint custom of devoting a full page ad to "Up-to-Date Dealers' Criticisms," in which he honestly quoted unfavorable, as well as commendatory, pronouncements on Edison Bell records.

A dealer in Reading, England, said:

"Mr. Leonard Dawson sings 'To My First Love' with feeling and expression and not, as some of the Yankee artists sing records, which sounds to me like 'sawing wood.' His is a pleasing voice and he is certainly an addition to your clever staff."

I have been unable to find a reference at this period to a "Leonard" Dawson record of "Navajo," which our hero said is the first song he recorded for Hough's company.

In October, 1904, Hough quoted an unfavorable comment:

"One most respected dealer condemns No. 6384, 'because he cannot sing.' Poor Leonard Dawson! . . . This artist has had the honor of singing twice within the last few weeks at the Queen's Hall Promenade Concerts."

A Dawson record of "Navajo" does, however, pop up in the Gramophone (H.M.V.) list for October, 1904. It was 7-inch, single-faced, No. 2-2479. And it is plainly listed as by Peter Dawson, while Edison Bell was still calling him Leonard. Obviously, then, Dawson began making H.M.V. disc records almost as soon as he started doing cylinders for Edison Bell, instead of beginning his disc career considerably later, as he seemed to think.

Almost certainly, the Gramophone & Typewriter, Ltd., as it was known in those days, was the first disc company for which Dawson made records. It is equally obvious that his Gramophone work began well-nigh concurrently with his first singing for Edison Bell.

Russell Hunting, in fact, who was soon to leave Edison Bell to become the head of the Russell Hunting Record Co., "tipped" Fred Gaisberg that Dawson was a singer of exceptional promise. That led to Dawson's making his first discs. Apparently, he also recorded for Nicole at about the same time, but that firm went out of business shortly afterwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dawson with Niedzielsky during South African tour, 1935.

Louis Sterling certainly was not with Columbia at the time Dawson sang for the semi-flexible Nicole discs. Sterling was at that time manager of the British Zonophone Co., which was shortly afterwards acquired by Gramophone. He was to be a partner in the Russell Hunting Co. and afterwards to bring out Rena discs, pressed from Columbia masters, before consolidating Rena with Columbia and rising to the top among Columbia's executives.

Pipe-Major Henry Forsyth was a popular Edison Bell artist when Peter Dawson began making records. Here the official piper to the King of England is leading a "march" of the children of King George V and Queen Mary.

—Nash Photo

Dawson's memory deceived him when he said he made no records for any company other than H. M. V. (Gramophone) from the time he signed a contract in 1906. Of course, he may not have included his Zonophone discs, since they were controlled by H. M. V., but what of his many cylinders for Edison and other companies? Actually, he made Edison records as long as the company maintained an English recording laboratory. He could not have made his many four-minute Amberols, which were not introduced until late 1908, if he had been exclusive to H. M. V. since 1906.

Conceivably, he meant he was exclusive to discs, but H. M. V. let him go on making cylinders, which were not considered strong competition. Under a similar arrangement, Billy Murray was exclusive in this country to Victor (and Zonophone) discs, but had a joint contract that permitted him to sing for Edison cylinders.

The first Edison—don't confuse them with Edison Bell!—cylinders I have seen mentioned by Peter Dawson came out in January, 1906. They were the Scotch comic song, "Foo the Noo" (13396), sung by Dawson under the name of Hector Grant and described by the Talking Machine News as "suggestive of Harry Lauder at his best," and 13383, of which the T.M.N. said, "Peter Dawson's deep bass voice is heard to advantage in 'Tomorrow Will Be Friday.'"

If Dawson did sign an exclusive cylinder contract with Edison, it must have been in effect only a short time for he made records during the next few years for nearly all the English cylinder manufacturers. Many of them appeared for several years after 1906. Almost the only prominent company operating in England before 1910, for which he seems not to have recorded, was Columbia.

IV. The Advent of Hector Grant

In 1906, Dawson said, he realized he had to find some means of supplementing his income during the summer months when he had virtually no concert work. So he became an imitator of Harry Lauder, who then was rising to the height of his acclaim as one of the most popular music hall comedians in British history.

As Dawson recalled it, he was in the Gramophone Co. studios one day when he gave an imitation of Lauder singing "I Love a Lassie." Fred Gaisberg asked him if he could sing more songs in Scottish dialect. Amused, Dawson replied that he was Scotch by descent and that he could sing any Scot's song with the correct accent.

A little later, according to Dawson's recollection, Gaisberg asked him if he would like to record some of Lauder's songs under an assumed name for the Zon-o-phone label.

After being assured that nobody would suspect from the sound of the record that the singer was Peter Dawson, he agreed, and decided to use the alias of Hector Grant for the Lauder impersonations.

The sale of the Scotch records was so great that he even wrote some songs of his own (among them, "Lassie, Dinna Sigh for Me," which he recorded as the mysterious Mr. Grant. It had a bigger sale than any of the Lauder songs he recorded.

Then our versatile friend Peter got the bright idea of making some money by appearing in the music halls as the Scotch comedian, "Hector Grant." He decided that if he wore a wig, false side whiskers, and bushy eyebrows, and spoke, and sang with a thick Scotch accent no one would ken he was Peter Dawson.

His father-in-law arranged an audition for him with Frank Allen, operator of the Oxford Music Hall. Dawson told Allen he had come down from Scotland for the audition, and that statement wasn't questioned. After he had sung "Lassie" at 11 o'clock he was told to be on hand, made up, to go on the stage at 4 o'clock that afternoon.

His "turn" was a great success. He sang at both the Oxford and Canterbury music halls and then was engaged at the Coliseum in Glasgow at $75 per week.

When the 12-weeks tour was concluded, Allen offered him a contract for 48 weeks at $125 per week, then, being told the offer couldn't be accepted, raised it to $200. Peter had to explain that he had only been "putting on an act," that his name was really Peter Dawson, that he had ambitions for a career as a concert singer and felt he could not have that career if he kept doing music hall work.

Allen replied that his offer would still hold good in the future if the basso-comedian changed his mind. Almost a quarter of a century later, in 1930, he had another successful round of music hall engagements—but not as Hector Grant.

Pete, however, was not yet done with Grant. The Gramophone Co. asked him to make a short tour with some other recording artists. During the first half of the program he was to appear as Peter Dawson and in the second half as Hector Grant. He did, and apparently no

(Continued on page 56)

MISC. MUSIC FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Over 100 antique phonographs and radios. Illustrated list $1, refunded on first order. — Miller's, 1017 Westgate Rd., Troy, Ohio. ja8486

REPRODUCER REPAIRING of all kinds. Have a supply of the original Edison Styluses and can install them in your reproducers. Send stamp for brochure on reproducers. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. mh3825

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy and sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. my6637

SHEET MUSIC, 1900 and up. Over 300. Send for free list. All $1 each. — Ric Verdi Antiques, 864 Taunton Ave., East Providence, Rhode Island. d6867

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colo. s13698

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

CYLINDER PHONOS. Concert, Grand, Triumphs, etc. Cylinder records, also 5" records. Reproducers, recorders, and parts. Many horns, large, small, flowered. Early Disc phonographs, Berliner, Zonophone, Victor, etc. German Disc music boxes. All items in perfect condition, from my collection. — Neumann, Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale 4, Calif. mh3257

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

FOR SALE: Approximately 60 antique radios, phonographs, reproducers from $7.50 to $350. Illustrated list only 50c. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate, Troy, Ohio. mh3023

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3426

CYLINDER & DISC horn type phonographs, records, catalogs, horns, reproducers, roller organs, Hurdy Gurdys, player pianos bought, sold, exchanged, repaired. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond 31, Va. jly6463

ATTENTION: Cylinder and disc phonographs. All makes and models. Sold and repaired. Repairs done on all machines. Have in stock original parts for all machines, including main springs and reproducers. Reproducers bought, sold and repaired. Large list of phonographs for sale sent for stamp. Special, sturdy replacement floor horn stands, modern, $5 each. — Antique Phonograph Service, 114 State, Brewer, Maine. mh3069

EARLY COLUMBIA Graphophone and parts catalog, circa 1905, 40 pages of cylinder, coin-slot and early disc Graphophones. Well illustrated with pictures, machines, parts, supplies and with prices. This will help to identify many of the early machines. Reprinted from the original that I have. Well printed on book grade paper with clear pictures. Postpaid $2. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap34201

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books. $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3694

WANTED: Excelsior, Eclipse, Bijou & other Edison cylinder phonographs, reproducers, parts. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate Road, Troy, Ohio. mh3272

ATTENTION: I will pay $8 for cylinder reproducers, both Edison and Columbia, list what you have. Any amount wanted, all letters answered. — Antique Phonograph Service, 114 State, Brewer, Maine. ap3464

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 31)

teachers. Neither did the American prima donna tell of the following interesting incident quoted by Mr. Eby:

"What might have been one of the best records of my career was one I never made. Alma Gluck and I were to record the Letter Duet from 'Le Nozze;' the date and hour were set; we had rehearsed and felt we would be successful. Then Zimmie (Efrem Zimbalist, the violinist, and Gluck's husband) decided since Alma had previously recorded it with Marcella Sembrich, we would be unfair to rival the version with the elder soprano. We never made that record and I, for one, was disappointed."

True, Gluck did make Che soave Zeffiretto with Sembrich (after Eames?!), but the disc remained unpublished. Just the same, it is a pity that "Zimmie" prevented the two sopranos from carrying out their plan. Knowing how they both sang, the loss is indeed to be sincerely deplored.

An odd comment caught my eye in the Ponselle chapter:

"Many record collectors have wondered why there are no recordings of Ponselle and Caruso."

It's difficult to conceive there may be people interested in operatic records who don't know that Caruso died in 1921, and Ponselle didn't start recording for Victor until December, 1923. But reading on about Rosa, we learn that she, like the rest of us mortals, has problems on her hands:

"Servants are a major one. She does not keep them long, probably underpays them, at times demands too much, and at other times spoils them with expansive praise and liberties. She claims they steal from her, abuse her good nature and gossip about her and her activities."

I should have that kind of troubles! As to the latter complaint—it brings out the delicate matter of gossiping. When done in private, I myself am not averse to lending a willing ear.

But to me, "tongue-wagging" is never important enough to be reported in print, at least while the subject of criticism is alive and may be hurt by the reference. Some performers condone daring publicity about their lives, but the majority prefer to keep the intimate details to themselves.

Should my own book ever become a reality, I'll diligently sit up nights proof-reading the copy. But if, after my screening out all the errors, the printer still fluffs—so help me, I'll molder de bum! Among the bobbles, here, I loved the one about Rosa who, like poor me, is constantly fighting the battle of the bulge:

"One thrilling descending glissando or a mellifluous octave indicates that Rosa—the ever-present turning fork in hand—is somewhere in the vicinity.

That's a way to reduce? Undoubtedly the author meant tuning fork. Oh yes, the name of De Luca's second wife (in the photo) was Giulia, not Eva. Then, there are the misspelled Italian names and titles, in addition to the questionable grammar in "Rondo alla Vellutato" and "Tempo di Furioso." But cheer up, I have yet to come upon a book free of mistakes, and surely it would be presumptuous to hope that mine will be an exception.

What with all the literature about singers, it has become increasingly trying to write about them without incurring the risk of being repetitious. With fresh material on hand, and by touching up the old with his verby, informal style, Mr. Eby has succeeded in presenting his favorite stars in a new light, and with added appeal to the reader.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

one ever suspected Dawson and Grant were the same man.

I have read stories saying Lauder was furious at having his entire phonograph repertoire duplicated by the elusive Hector Grant and swore to kill him if he ever found out who he was. A variant has him meeting Dawson, expressing his hatred for Grant, announcing his intention of having Hector's heart's blood and receiving Peter's crocodile sympathy.

I have also read Lauder discovered Dawson was the mysterious record maker and on meeting him growled: "So ye're the so-and-so that's been imitating my records? Well, I'll say one thing for ye—ye have a dom'd fine voice."

Dawson's version was different. He said Lauder was always an artist whom he especially admired and that he happened to be making an H. M. V. record on a day when Harry was also present. It must have been in 1920, for the popular Scotch comedian mentioned to him the occasion was his 50th birthday. Suddenly he asked Fred Gaisberg: "Did ye no ken a chap by the name of Hector Grant? He had a grrrand voice. He must have been killed in the war."

Fred grinned and said: "Didn't you know, Harry, that Hector Grant was Peter?"

Harry shot back: "Nah, nah, ye canna tell me that. I saw him in Glasgie. Yon was a much older man. And, besides, I've come doon to make records, an' no tae argue nonsense." He stalked away, convinced Gaisberg and Dawson were trying to play a joke on him.

Several times afterward, Peter tried to convince Harry he actually was Hector Grant, but Lauder always refused to believe it. One thing seems evident: Lauder had no flaming desire to kill Grant or he could have taken the necessary assassination steps when he saw his imitator on the stage at "Glasgie."

No doubt Lauder was fair-minded enough to admit to himself that though the other comedian might be only an imitator he had a finer voice than had fallen to Lauder's own lot. In later years Harry's records were issued under both the H. M. V. and Zon-o-phone labels, and those by "Grant" were deleted.

Probably Mr. Dawson was correct in saying that the idea of having him record Scotch songs under an assumed name came first to Fred Gaisberg. However, the Talking Machine News mentions Grant's name for the first time in listing the already mentioned 1906 Edison cylinder.

It does not appear again until March, 1906, when Percy Henry Levy issued a record of "I Love a Lassie" on his Imperial cylinders, which were copied from original Edison recordings. The first Hector Grant recording on Zon-o-phone was issued April 1, 1906—a 7-inch single-faced version of "I Love a Lassie."

"Grant" showed up again in the Zono list for June with two Lauder songs: "Fou the Noo" (3701) and "She's Ma Daisy" (3702), both 10-inch. From this time the name becomes fairly common in the lists of several recording companies, but judging from the evidence of the printed page, Dawson was "Hector Grant" for Edison before he used the name for Zonophone.

(To be continued)

(Continued from page 25)

RALPH H. MANN ASSOCIATES

74. Very Nice OVAL WALNUT FRAME. Original Gilt Liner. Mat & Photo. Frame Nicely Grooved. 12x10 1/2". It's 1 1/4" thick $6.50.
75. One of The Ordinary Framed MOUNT. Brilliant Colors of Wild Flowers & Ferns. Embroidered with "Home Sweet Home" which Frame A Delightful Gothic Victorian Cottage. Original Gold Edge Liner. 12 1/2 x 25 1/2". $12.
76. Fine PRIMITIVE ROLLING PIN. Unusual Fat Knobs. Few Worm Holes. This is Advertised Only because of Its FINE DESIGN & Great Age. 17 1/2" long. $7.50.
77. PRANG LITHOGRAPH. Extremely Life Like Floral Panel of Poppies, Daisies & Wheat. Signed. "A. E. HARDY". Copyright 1877. Rectangular. Hangs Vertically in Original Black & Gold Liners & Ebonized Frames. Beautiful Original Condition Throughout. 32" long. 12 1/2" wide. $12.
78. PRANG LITHOGRAPH. Matches Above. Picture of Pink, White, Lavender & Blue Entwined Morning Glories. Same Artist. Beautiful Original Condition. $12.
79. Large All COPPER Container with Sloping Top with Cover & Handles. Spigot on Bottom. Mkd., "MASON'S". Two Gallon Size. Fine Condition. 10 1/2" dia., 18" high. Terrific for Lamp or Usable As Is. $18.
80. Adorable Old Hand Carved WASH TUB. Nice Detail Shows Staves & Hoops. Only 2" dia., 13 1/4" high. $4.50.

WRITE WANTS. Thousands of Jewelry Items from Estate Liquidations. Please Include Sufficient Postage & Insurance. We Offer A Complete Prompt Search Service To All Our Customers.

fc

RHENA L. HINZ

613 Gordon St. Reading, Pa.

- |  |       |        |
|--|-------|--------|
| Pnld. Forget-me-not jam jar                              | ----- | $7.50 |
| Cabbage Rose compote bottom 9"                           | ----- | 10.00  |
| 6 "Rail Fence Band" goblets, clear.                      | each  | 2.50   |
| Block & Fan celery                                       | ----- | 5.00   |
| 3 7" "Farm Scene" plates, brown & white,                 | ----- |        |
| each   | ----- | 2.50   |
| Clear glass "Tomato" butter dish, RWL                    | ----- |        |
| VG plate 7 1/2"  | ----- | 6.50   |
| Folding hat rack, walnut with porcelain knobs, 10 points | ----- | 7.50   |

fc

Peter Dawson

PART III

By JIM WALSH

I. More Early Recordings

Peter Dawson's Edison Bell cylinder of "Thy Beaming Eyes" was listed in the Talking Machine News for October, 1904, with the title misprinted as "Thy Dreaming Eyes."

A careless error occurred the same month when Zonophone's 10-inch record of "Bid Me To Love" was mentioned as being by "Percy Dawson." "Bid Me To Love" (bass) as sung by Mr. Percy Dawson makes a first-class record and is exactly suited to that gentleman's voice.

Peter Dawson was represented in the November, 1904, Gramophone records with a 10-inch version of Rubens' "When the Stars Were Young." Among other distinguished artists in that month's offerings were Mary Garden, Andrew Black, Stanley Kirkby, Edith Helena, Wilkie Bard, Harry Lauder, and Florrie Forde. Who in this country has heard the Lauder record, "I Took the Prize?" It takes the prize, among his records, for obscurity.

In spite of still being recording chief for Edison Bell, Russell Hunting was making Gramophone records for his old friend, Fred Gaisberg, whom he had known before they both left the United States. He did one of his famous monologs, "Casey as a Magistrate," and with the assistance of another American—the animal imitator, Gilbert Girard recorded "A Visit to the Menagerie," and "Auction Sale of a Bird and Animal Shop."

In time Peter Dawson was to take part in similar records for a firm which, in 1904, had not begun operations. Hunting and Girard likewise teamed up for Edison Bell with a children's record, "Nursery Rhymes No. 3."

Also, in 1904, "Lennard" (another T.M.N. misspelling!) Dawson was responsible for four Edison Bell cylinders, including "Navajo," which, he says, was the first record he made to be sold. The others were "Jolly Fine Company," "Goodbye, My Lady Love, (written by the recently dead American vaudeville personality, Joe Howard), and "The Message of the Violet." The News said: "All these are well rendered."

In December the magazine mentioned that the Granville Manufacturing Co., an Edison Bell dealer, had displayed a "musical menu" in its window. The first item, representing the soup course, was Teddy Morse's great hit, "Blue Bell," sung by "L. Dawson."

That same month Dawson sang a 7-inch Gramophone disc of "Calvary," and there were eight 7-inch offerings of Irish songs by John McCormack, who was two years younger than Dawson. The Gramophone ad spelled his name as McCormick.

A month later Dawson sang Harry Von Tilzer's big hit, "Down at the Old Bull and Bush," as it was called in England. It was known in the United States as "Under the Anheuser Bush." Dawson recorded this beery panegyric for both Zonophone and Gramophone, and the T.M.N. said, "he does this popular song full justice." The title of Dawson's Edison Bell cylinder for March, 1905, "In Zanzibar," suggests it was not of concert caliber.

About this time there was an intriguing mention of Ernest Pike, the tenor who became Dawson's principal duet partner:

"Mr. Ernest Pike, the well known tenor, who is under contract to sing exclusively for the Gramophone Co., has had two royal commands to appear before the King and Queen during their visit to the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire at Chatsworth. The Duke and Duchess possess a gramophone, which is constantly in use."

It was probably then that the good-natured "joshing" of "King Edward's favorite tenor" began. By this time "Leonard Dawson" had vanished and the cylinders were being issued under the singer's legal name. Late in 1904, however, Edison Bell had sent dealers a poster showing the faces of 80 of Mr. Hough's artists, and the basso's first name was given as Leonard.

Fifty-six years ago an American evangelistic singer, A. L. Alexander, was exhilarating England by his enthusiastic rendition of "The Glory Song," also known as "Oh, That Will Be Glory For Me." In making a Gramophone disc of this "hallelujah hymn," Alexander was assisted by a quintet consisting of Arthur Gilbert and the Gramophone Quartet—Pike, first tenor; Wilfred Virgo, second tenor; Stanley Kirkby, baritone; and Dawson, bass.

The Talking Machine News reports Alexander was so impressed with their singing "he invited the quartet to come with him to the Albert Hall and sing 'The Glory Song' with him on the platform." It is not recorded whether the ensemble accepted. The quartet was also called the Minster Singers on Gramophone records and they probably were the Meister Singers for Edison Bell.

P. G. Hurst, the learned English authority on historical records, mentioned in The Gramophone for July, 1942, that Gramophone issued a "thrilling version" of the Faust Finale, with Alice Esty as soprano, John Harrison, tenor, and Dawson, bass. It was listed in December, 1905.

II. Words with Madame Melba

Dawson sang on occasion in support of some of the Gramophone Company's most puffed-up personalities. One was his fellow Australian, Nellie Melba, who may have been the most temperamental and high-handed of all opera stars.

Melba's maiden name was Helen Mitchell. She married Charles Porter Armstrong but didn't stay with him long. Then she became the spoiled, arrogant "first lady" of opera. Some say she thought herself a cut or two above the angels. At times her language was viciously sharp.

Peter Dawson stood in no awe of Nellie Melba, or anyone, or anything. Fred Gaisberg, in his book, "The Music Goes Round," recalls that Dawson was one of a group which helped Melba to record a song which Gaisberg calls "My Old Kentucky Home," but which was really "Old Folks at Home."

This probably was the occasion on which Pike, still seeing visions because of being called King Edward's favorite tenor, tried to converse with the prima donna, only to be squelched with: "Oh, shut up! You're just one of the bloody chorus!" This unfeeling characterization hurt Pike badly.

On another occasion, Melba was so contemptuous in her attitude toward the recording orchestra that G. W. Byng, its conductor, who also conducted at the Alhambra Theater, exclaimed, "Really, this woman behaves as if we were scum! I've a good mind to walk out!" The musicians called Melba "Madame Sweet and Low," meaning she had a sweet voice but was careless in her talk.

John McCormack would take none of her temperamental outbursts. One morning, when they were supposed to record duets, she scolded him: "You're late again, you young bad-word!"

He shouted back: "Mind your own business, you interfering old bad-word!" McCormack walked out and refused ever to sing with Melba again.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

When she had her encounter with Dawson, the young basso gave her, according to Gaisberg, a look of studied irreverence. Furiously she turned on him saying, "You're from Australia?"

"Yes, Madame Melba," he replied.

"What city?" demanded Melba, who had taken her stage name from her native city of Melbourne.

When he said, "Adelaide," she came out with a sharp remark about the city.

I imagine Peter was taken aback for perhaps 20 seconds. I wish that instead of calling her "Madame Melba" he had replied, "Yes, Mrs. Armstrong." But, I suspect, the atmosphere of H.M.V.'s recording studio would have been ablaze with temperament.

Although it has nothing to do with Peter Dawson, I find a certain amusement in the fact that an American diva, Geraldine Farrar, made a record of "My Old Kentucky Home," assisted by a male quartet, just as Melba had done with "Old Folks at Home."

On October 4, 1909, Miss Farrar, at the Victor studios in Camden, recorded two "takes" of the Foster song, aided by a quartet composed of Harry Macdonough and Reed Miller, tenors; Reinald Werrenrath, baritone, and Frank C. Stanley, bass. On October 6 they came back and made two more "takes." The fourth was given the catalog number 87029, but was never placed on the market. On October 4 the same ensemble also recorded two versions of "The Star Spangled Banner," which languished unissued.

It seems safe to say Miss Farrar was more courteous to the four accomplished gentlemen who blended their voices with hers than Madame Melba was to the Gramophone Quartet. And it's interesting to note that at the time the Farrar-quartet records were made, Victor had not issued any solos by Reed Miller—also that the quartet consisted of two popular duet teams. Stanley and Macdonough sang many duets together, as did Miller and Werrenrath.

Dawson himself tells of the time a stagehand incensed Melba. She chewed Australian "wattle gum" to clear her throat before going on stage. One night the uncouth stagehand removed the gum and substituted a chew of tobacco. When the diva's teeth clamped down and she realized what had happened, all Gehenna broke loose. She insisted that the entire backstage personnel be fired.

Dawson, as I said, credits the deplorable deed to a stagehand, but if Peter Dawson happened to be back stage that night I'd be far from surprised to learn a young Australian man with a booming bass voice was responsible for the outrage.

Speaking of Australia, it's remarkable how singers and entertainers born in that country dominated early English record lists out of proportion to their numbers. Besides Dawson there were Albert Whelan and that most popular of British recording comedians, Billy Williams. Alfred Charmion and his wife, Violet Cooke, who recorded chimes and organ records under the name of Lyster and Cooke, were Australians. Mr. Charmion, until recently, was living in Belpre, Ohio, and operating a furniture repair shop. He may still be there.

Among opera and concert singers there were Melba and Elizabeth Parkina, and later, Elsa Stralia and Florence Austral—both Elsa and Florence used a shortened form of Australia for their stage names. No doubt there were a good many others who do not occur to me at the moment.

Gaisberg says Harry Lauder never forgave Peter Dawson for making the Hector Grant records—in contrast to Dawson's own statement that Lauder wouldn't believe he sang them. Gaisberg also says Dawson "riled" Lauder more than once with mimicry and general horseplay.

"Chaliapin was furious," Gaisberg adds, "when, at a Trade Conference held in Eastbourne, Peter followed him on the platform before hundreds of gramophone dealers, and, imitating the Russian's mannerisms of waving his arms and striding along, smiled sweetly and announced in broken English in a deep voice, 'Number Forty-Five,' and, after a pause, waved to the pianist to carry on."

Dawson himself recalls another funny happening involving Chalia-

ORGAN CONSOLE FOR SALE

Magnificent walnut hand-carved pipe organ console (2 manual) complete with matching walnut bench and foot pedals. Pictures available.

LARRY L. BELLES, Exec. Director
Iowa Wesleyan College Mt. Pleasant, Iowa
app

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE
write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my26p

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &
Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

358 THE TALKING MACHINE NEWS

SOME ARTISTES

DAVID BRIGGS, IRAN ALGERIA, THOMAS REID, ALEXANDER PRINCE, FLORENCE FORGE, GEORGE ROBERT, GILBERT GRANT, G.H. ELIOTT, FRED JAMES, MADAME BELL (2)

LILLIAN BOREEN, ARTHUR LEONARD, EDITH TAYLOR, ALBERT PEARCE, OLLIE DARLEY, ALMA JONES, LOUIS BRADFORD, M.M. WHITCH, ALFRED GALEY, WILLIAM HARTLEY

ALFRED HICKS, HARRY BLUFF, W.F. FRANK, PETE HAMPTON, ARTHUR GROWER, VICTOR OFFERMAN, PHIL EVANS, JOLIE MACKAY, PAT CALEY, ELMER SHAND

GEORGE LASHWOOD, PHIL RAY, ARTHUR REECE, MARGARET PARKER, DONALD KIRK, LEO DRYDEN, ELSIE STEINMAN, HAMILTON HILL

ERNE CHESTER, MAUDE MYRTON, PETER WILSON, FRANK MARTEL, CHARLES BRADY, CHARLES CARTER, BURT SHEPARD, WILLIAM LYNN, STANLEY KIRBY, LEONARD PAINSON

J.H. SCOTLAND, ERIC FARR, PIPER HILL, MARY MATHIAS, E. BROWNE, LILLIAN BRYANT, LEAFORE, RUSSELL HUNTING

WHO MAKE

EDISON BELL RECORDS.

We will forward large pictures (32 by 20 in gilt and black) of which this page is a miniature, to all dealers who write at once to 39, Charing Cross Road, stating the number they will undertake to frame and display.

pin. Peter was standing on a small stool, singing across Chaliapin's shoulder into the horn, when the recorder gently pushed him forward, unmindful of his precarious perch. Overbalanced he fell and grabbed Chaliapin.

When Dawson picked himself off the floor he found he was holding the big Russian's watch and chain. Then, in Russian, Chaliapin said: "You don't have to go to all that trouble to get the time. I would have told you if you had asked."

One of the cornet players laughed so hard he fell off his high chair and was knocked out for 10 seconds. His colleagues counted him out in mock prize-fight style, not realizing he was actually unconscious.

III. More Early Records

In June, 1905, the Talking Machine News praised Dawson's Zonophone record of "Calvary." In July, his Edison Bell cylinder of "Ding, Dong, Bell" ("sometimes entitled 'Mad Willie,'" was described as "a very good record, though the theme is rather mournful; the bells are sweet and clear. 'The Diver,' also by P. Dawson, is very good."

A 1904 Edison Bell advertisement showing photos of 60 popular recording artists. Peter Dawson is the last man on the fifth row. Jim Walsh has filled in all the artists' names, except for a few on which the print was blurred. From left to right:

I don't find Dawson's name again until November, when another Edison Bell cylinder was reviewed: "Dawson excels himself in 'The Good Rhine Wine'; this record is particularly good."

For Zonophone he sang, "At the Bottom of the Deep Blue Sea." H.M.V. announced two new Dawson discs, "The Gallants of England" and "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind." Of the latter the ad said: "Mr. Dawson's deep tones come out splendidly, and the result is a perfect artistic performance of a fine song."

The following month, Dawson had another Gramophone record, "True Till Death."

The Edison Bell Christmas list offered the first duet record in which I have observed Dawson appearing. He and Wilfred Virgo sang "Excelsior." Dawson also had a solo, "Simon, the Cellarer."

His Edison cylinders for January, 1906 (one under the alias of Hector Grant) have already been mentioned, and there was a reference to another Edison cylinder, "The Redemption," "an impressive sacred song . . . ably rendered in Peter Dawson's rich bass voice."

Then comes another mention of Hector Grant: "I Love a Lassie," by Hector Grant, is so successful that we would like to hear more records by him." It was this Edison cylinder which the Imperial Company duplicated.

In February, Dawson sang for Edison Bell, the American Civil War song, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," "a song specially suited to his bass voice." For Edison he did what I believe was his first recorded duet with a woman, "Ashore." She was the contralto, Esther Cadman, whose first name is wrongly given by the T.M.N. as Ethel. The write-up said:

"'Ashore' is deserving of special mention. This . . . is the first duet made by these two artistes which has come under our notice. Each voice is a perfect complement of the other, and, judged by the success of this, we hope to meet with other duets by these two singers."

There was another Edison record by "Grant": "Tickle, Geordie" is an excellent imitation of Harry Lauder at his best." In April he sang "I Love a Lassie" for Zonophone.

In May, Dawson and Virgo, who died in Toronto, Canada, March 5, 1951, aged 80, performed "The Moon Hath Raised Her Lamp Above" for Edison Bell. Two other "Grant" records for Zonophone, issued in June, were mentioned last month.

In July, Dawson's own composition, "Lassie, Dinna Sigh for Me," made its appearance with "Tickle, Geordie" for Edison Bell, and both were sung by "Hector Grant." For Zonophone he also did "Tickle Geordie" and another Lauder number, "Safest of the Family." They were described as "typical of Scotch humour" and the laughter in "Geordie" was said to be infectious.

Dawson had four 10-inch discs in the September, 1906, Zono list. The Talking Machine News praised them lavishly:

"Peter Dawson excels himself this month with his bass songs. The records are distinct and full-volumed with a purity of tone seldom heard in a bass singer. 'The West's Asleep' is a delightful song and, like 'Bantry Bay' and 'The Memory of the Dead,' is far removed from the general run of songs. 'The Singer Was Irish' is both popular and pathetic, and may be recommended to the many admirers of this song as a first-class record."

IV. Jim White Enters the Record Business

Now we come to a cylinder record, the White, which Dawson sang for but doesn't mention in his book.

James H. White was a monologist who had made records for Edison in the U.S.A. He was one of the 42 Edison artists in a group photo taken in 1900 which has been shown in HOBBIES. When Edison decided to seek a share of the British record business, White went abroad as English manager.

After a stint with the Edison Company, he left it and went into the record business on his own hook, making the White cylinder—named, of course, for himself.

Apparently, White's knowledge of Edison recording methods helped him get excellent results. The London correspondent of the Talking Machine World, which had been established in New York in 1905, reported in the issue for August 15, 1906:

"I found Mr. White busily engaged in personally supervising recording. . . . Among certain newly recorded selections I had the pleasure of listening to 'Ashore' and 'The Moon Has Raised Her Lamp Above,' both excellent duets by Peter Dawson and Tom Childs, and was particularly impressed by the magnificent blending and natural tone qualities obtained. There was absolutely no blasting or metallic ring."

White's initial T.M.N. ad, in the September 1 issue, said the first list of the new cylinders would be available September 15. The numbers began at 100, and the list contained records by Dawson under three names, including a new one. "Nancy Lee," No. 104, was by Peter Dawson; 105, "Sound Advice," by Hector Grant; 111, "It's a Different Girl Again," by Will Danby and Chorus; and 112, "Sister," by Dawson.

The new name was Will Danby, and that reminds me of another lapse of memory in Mr. Dawson's book. He says he made records under the name of Frank Danby, but he didn't. "Frank Danby" was a pseudonym used by a feminine English novelist, whose real name has escaped me.

When Dawson called himself Danby it was always Will Danby. For comedy, he also used another name, Will Strong. Apparently, "Will Danby" made his first appearance on White records.

The basso turned out comedy records for White of a type that he had not done for any other company. In the October list he was back with his own song, which seems to have been one of his favorites, "Lassie, Dinna Sigh for Me." It was No. 118. On 122 he sang "There's a Man in Manitoba." On 126 he and Arthur Gilbert teamed in a "comic descriptive record," "Let Me Sing."

And now listen to this. He and Alf Holt, an American bird and animal imitator, who had made records with Len Spencer before going to England, where he died in 1924, combined their talents in two sketches which Spencer had written. On 129 Holt and Dawson were heard in "A Barn Yard Serenade," and on 130 in "The Punch and Judy Show."

It certainly requires an effort of the imagination to conceive of Peter Dawson tackling Len Spencer's familiar roles, but he had the versatility and humor to do it successfully.

Hearing a playback of a 1912 recording of a Gilbert and Sullivan opera. Left:

Standing, Conductor, George W. Byng. Seated: Bessie Jones, Violet Essex, Sarah Jones, Harold Wilde, and Robert Radford.

Standing: Derek Oldham, Walter Glynne, Ernest Pike, Edna Thornton, Peter Dawson, Edward Halland, George Baker, and Nellie Walker.

The October 15 T.M.N. refers to the first duet I have noticed by Dawson and Ernest Pike—a pretty song, "In the Valley Where the Bluebirds Sing," made for Zonophone. Dawson also had a solo, "A Nation Once Again." It was said to be "well worth hearing, for this singer has a dignified yet hearty manner, and his tone is natural." On a 7-inch record "Hector Grant" sang "Jean McNeill."

In that same issue Edison Bell announced a series of "extra-long" cylinders. The first, No. 10,000, was a Lauder song, "We Parted On The Shore," by a deep-voiced gentleman using an assumed name whose initials were H. G. And Dawson sang and Holt whistled, "Beautiful Birds, Sing On."

When the News reviewed the first batch of White records readers were told:

"In 'The Punch and Judy Show,' by Alf Holt and Peter Dawson, one hears the whole of the comedy tragedy of Punch and Judy from the hurling of the baby out the window to the execution of Punch. 'There's a Man in Manitoba' and 'The Boys' Brigade' are by Peter Dawson. These are full volumed, hearty songs in which the words are as distinct as in a recitation. . . . 'Let Me Sing' is a descriptive comic duet by Arthur Gilbert and Hector Grant. As one would have expected from two such skilled artists, this record is a finished specimen of humour. . . . 'Lassie, Dinna Sigh for Me,' sung by Hector Grant, is reproduced in a pleasant, taking manner."

Another list of White records was announced November 15. They included 135, "We Parted on the Shore" (Hector Grant); 140, "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie" (Will Danby); 142, "Cheer Up, Mary" (Peter Dawson); and 144, "Jingles, Jokes and Rhymes," by Gilbert and Grant.

The Zono list contained two Dawson solos, "Clare's Dragoons" and "Goodbye, Little Sister" — "these are given in clear, powerful tones and are well above the average of bass records."

The enterprising Gramophone Co. told the public in the same issue it had recorded a relatively complete set of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" — the first of several such collections in which Dawson took part. He joined Amy Augarde in a duet of "Miya Sama," described as "a real Japanese air." As a solo, Peter did "A More Humane Mikado."

The catalog description said:

"The song is an excellent bit of social satire, and Peter Dawson gives it that touch of diabolical humor usually associated with this part."

He, Miss Augarde, and a chorus sang "The Criminal Cried," and he probably was a member of the Sullivan Operatic Party, which rendered "See How the Fates Their Gifts Allot" and several other concerted numbers. Finally, Dawson and Amy Augarde had a third duet, "There is Beauty in the Bellow of the Blast."

For the December list, Edison Bell gave Dawson his chance to render the raging hit of the year, although it was rather old by that time, having swept the United States more than a year before. Reviewing the new cylinder, the T. M. N. said:

"Peter Dawson's full rich bass voice is well heard in 'In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree.' The birds singing in the tree, which one hears here and there, add much to the charm of the record."

Dawson's "Apple Tree" became a best seller in Australia and New Zealand as well as in Great Britain.

For that same December list Zonophone either found Pike and Dawson in a devout mood, although Pike usually drank half a dozen bottles of stout during a recording session, or tried to induce one. At least the pair sang six hymns together — "God Be With You," "I Am Praying for You," "I Love to Tell the Story," "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning," "I Need Thee Every Hour," and "Shall We Meet Beyond the River?"

Readers were told: "These sacred duets are rendered in a fresh and artistic manner, and are first-class specimens of strong yet sweet male voices singing in unison."

(To be continued)

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy and sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. my6637

SHEET MUSIC, 1900 and up. Over 300. Send for free list. All $1 each. — Ric Verdi Antiques, 864 Taunton Ave., East Providence, Rhode Island. d6867

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colo. s12698

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books, $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3694

WANTED: Excelsior, Eclipse, Bijou & other Edison cylinder phonographs, reproducers, parts. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate Road, Troy, Ohio. mh3272

ATTENTION: I will pay $8 for cylinder reproducers, both Edison and Columbia, list what you have. Any amount wanted, all letters answered. — Antique Phonograph Service, 114 State, Brewer, Maine. ap3464

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3426

CYLINDER PHONOS. Concert, Grand, Triumphs, etc. Cylinder records, also 5" records. Reproducers, recorders, and parts. Many horns, large, small, flowered. Early disc phonographs, Berliner, Zonophone, Victor, etc. German disc music boxes. All items in perfect condition, from my collection. — Neumann Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale 4, Calif. mh3257

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

FOR SALE: Approximately 60 antique radios, phonographs, reproducers from $7.50 to $350. Illustrated list only 50c. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate, Troy, Ohio. mh3023

CYLINDER & DISC horn type phonographs, records, catalogs, horns, reproducers, roller organs, Hurdy Gurdys, player pianos bought, sold, exchanged, repaired. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond 31, Va. jly6468

ATTENTION: Cylinder and disc phonographs. All makes and models. Sold and repaired. Repairs done on all machines. Have in stock original parts for all machines, including main springs and reproducers. Reproducers bought, sold and repaired. Large list of phonographs for sale sent for stamp. Special, sturdy replacement floor horn stands, modern, $5 each. — Antique Phonograph Service, 114 State, Brewer, Maine. mh3069

EARLY COLUMBIA Graphophone and parts catalog, circa 1905, 40 pages of cylinder, coin-slot and early disc Graphophones. Well illustrated with pictures, machines, parts, supplies and with prices. This will help to identify many of the early machines. Reprinted from the original that I have. Well printed on book grade paper with clear pictures. Postpaid $2. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap34201

MISC. MUSIC WANTED

WANTED: Rolls for Regina Mandolin Orchestra. Also 14" discs for Euphonla music box. — Frank Bright, Fayette, Iowa. mh1441

MISC. MUSIC FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Over 100 antique phonographs and radios. Illustrated list $1, refunded on first order. — Miller's, 1017 Westgate Rd., Troy, Ohio. mh6486

REPRODUCER REPAIRING of all kinds. Have a supply of the original Edison styluses and can install them in your reproducers. Send stamp for brochure on reproducers — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. mh3825

NICKELODEONS FOR SALE

SEEBURG Nickelodeon and 50 rolls. All in good condition, in original boxes. — G. T. Merriken, 2141 Briggs Chaney Rd., Silver Spring, Md. mh1871

PIANOS & ROLLS

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1519 California St., San Francisco, Calif. my3804

Wanted: Syrian-Arabic player piano rolls. — Ray Fortier, Farmington, N. H. ap6826

NEW ROLLS and repair supplies (belows cloth, tubing, leather) available for all types of automatic pianos. — Durrell Armstrong, Player Piano Co., 222 S. Vassar, Wichita 8, Kans. my124661

WANTED: Welte-Mignon, Deluxe, Duo-Art, and regular rolls. List titles and prices. — A. H. Giragosian, 603 So. Walter Reed Dr., Arlington 4, Va. ol22741

PLAYER-PIANO ROLLS bought-sold; Duo-Art and organ rolls wanted. — Old Salzburg, 1645 Wisconsin, Washington 7, D. C. ap6676

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. d126351

CUSTOM ROLLS made to order for 38-note players; any tune from sheet music, etc. Details, reservations from Old Salzburg, 1645 Wisconsin, Washington 7, D. C. ap3863

Chicago Antiques Exposition and Hobby Fair

with FABULOUS COLLECTIONS from all over the country at the CONRAD HILTON HOTEL

May 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, Inc.

CHARLES MARSTON, Show Manager

Sponsored by HOBBIES Magazine, 1006 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago 5, Ill.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Peter Dawson

Part IV

By JIM WALSH

I. A Busy Year

1907 was perhaps Peter Dawson's busiest year as a recording artist.

As 1906 gave way to its successor, the jovial basso recorded "A Gude New Year" on an Edison Bell cylinder, using his now familiar assumed name of Hector Grant. In the January Zonophone list, again as Grant, he sang two more Harry Lauder numbers, "John Mackay" and "A Trip to Inverary."

Dawson's February Zonophone choice was a jolly American composition of 1869, "Little Brown Jug," which Sigmund Spaeth calls "that greatest of all drinking songs." Dawson had the help of an enthusiastic male chorus.

That same month, as Grant, he was in the Edison list with an odd title, "The Tobacconist's Dummy." Also in February he sang for Edison Bell, this time in his proper person, a ballad, "Glorious Devon," described as "a fine English robust song."

I don't believe I have previously mentioned Sterling cylinders by Dawson. In Sterling's March first issue, however, Dawson was present, singing "Bonnie Jean."

The hard-working young man from the Antipodes was prominent in the March Zonophone list. Here are some Talking Machine News quotes:

"Ernest Pike and Peter Dawson make an impressive duet of 'Lead, Kindly Light.' The tenor and bass voices harmonize and contrast in splendid style and the effect is heightened by the organ accompaniment. . . . Peter Dawson is at his best with 'Clementine,' a bass solo with chorus. . . ."

"Hector Grant, who is an adept at singing songs in the Harry Lauder style, makes four rollicking records: 'John, John, Put Your Trousers On' and 'The Referee,' which tells of the singer's experience in the football field. 'Callagan' is full of amusing quips and turns, and 'Jean McNeal' is a lively song with a catchy chorus."

On March 15, the British Sonogram Co. announced its first list of double faced Sovereign discs. These were oddly coupled in the naive belief that a person who bought, for example, a record with a comic song on one side would want, by way of variety, a classical violin solo or an excerpt from a symphony on the other.

Actually, of course, a man who bought a record for the sake of a comic song on one side would prefer more humor on the other. Many of the Sovereign records were made from matrices of the defunct Nicole brand. Said the News:

"Peter Dawson, the well known bass singer, sings 'Eileen Alannah' and sings it well: the delicate voice nuances toward the end of the song have a sweet and telling effect. On the other side is the rousing, patriotic 'Viscount Nelson March,' by the British Imperial Band."

"Another stirring military selection is 'The King of England March,' by the British Imperial Band. On the other side is Longfellow's 'I Stood on the Bridge,' an excellent bass solo by Peter Dawson."

Obviously, a firm with such a poor grasp of the average record buyer's psychology wasn't long for this world. British Sonogram was bankrupt within a few months.

The April Talking Machine News contained a puzzling statement:

"We have it on the authority of the General Phonograph Co. that Peter Dawson is henceforth to sing exclusively for them. Arthur Gilbert, Hector Grant, Will Danby and Johnny Wakefield are also on their exclusive list."

General was Jim White's firm. We have already pondered Dawson's statement that he made no records for any company except H. M. V. after 1906, also that Edison signed him to an exclusive cylinder contract.

Now here we have the General Phonograph Co. making the apparently unfounded statement that he had become exclusive to White cylinders. Since Dawson, Grant, and Danby were the same man, Arthur Gilbert and Johnny Wakefield probably also wore the same clothes.

In April, Peter had two unusual titles for Zono: "The Place Where the Old Horse Died" and "Wrap Me Up in My Old Stable Jacket."

Under the Will Danby alias, he joined his sister-in-law, Yolande Noble, in recording a comic sketch for White: "The First Quarrel" graphically portrays the homecoming of 'hubbie' after a late night at the Alhambra to see the 'Zig-Zags.' The record is particularly clear and distinct.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Hector Grant bobbed up again in the May British Zonophone list:

"Hector Grant makes four records. He has never done anything better than 'I Wish I Had Someone to Love Me,' which, for its rich Scottish accent, its shrewd humor, and the quaint mannerisms of the singer, is a master-piece. A rousing song is 'Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boys Are Marching.' By the same singer are 'Arrah Wanna' and Dougal's 'New Aladdin,' both of which are given with gusto."

A new White record list contained a Peter Dawson solo whose title seems to me one of the most haunting and stirring to the imagination of any I have ever read: "Where the North Road Leaves the Minster City." I have never heard this song but I should like to. Dawson and Walter Hyde also sang "Excelsior" as a duet.

In the Gramophone Company's June list, Dawson took part in a special series of recordings from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." Two records were needed for him and Madame Eleanor Jones-Hudson to sing "What Have I To Do With Thee?" Dawson and "Choir" rendered "Call Him Louder," and Dawson, Carrie Tubb, and Choir were heard in "O Lord, Thou Hast Overthrown."

The September list of White cylinders contained Dawson as three men in one. As Hector Grant he sang "Rob Roy MacIntosh;" as Will Danby he was heard in "Following the Ladies," and as Peter Dawson he sang "The Same Old Church." Other White records, issued a month or so later, included "The Regimental Pet," "Calvary," and "Where the Ebb-Tide Flows," by Dawson, and "Swing Me Higher," by Danby.

In November, Dawson's brother-in-law, Tom Noble, was featured in an Edison Bell advertisement, which revealed incidentally that Edison Bell cylinders had been reduced to ninepence:

"The Edison Bell have added to their staff Mr. T. J. Noble, who has been one of the experts of the National Co., Ltd., at their British and some of their continental recording laboratories. Although the Edison Bell record is reduced in price it is manifest the Company do not intend the quality to suffer, but to keep up their usual vigorous policy to please the multitude of their admirers and supporters."

Dawson contributed three records to Edison's December, 1907, list. One was "The Singer Was Irish." He and Walter Hyde sang "Sweet Christmas Bells" and Peter represented himself to be the world's best loved Christmas character in "That's Why I'm Santa Claus."

As 1907 closed, he had two more Edison Bell cylinders, "Rob Roy Mc-

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

Intosh" and the American ballad sensation, "Honey Boy."

For Zonophone he, as Hector Grant, joined "Herbert Payne" (Ernest Pike), Frank Miller, and Johnny Wakefield in a sketch, "Christmas Eve in the Barracks." It included "songs and patter and loud cheers . . . The festivities end with a toast to the King and Queen and the National Anthem."

II. Recording in 1908

As 1908 opened, still another purveyor of wax cylinders issued a January list of records selling for ninepence each. This was the Premier Manufacturing Co., whose brand name was Clarion.

Although the cylinder market was declining and the White record was about to disappear, Premier met with fair success and remained in business until about the time electrically recorded discs were introduced. It made both discs and cylinders until its plant was destroyed by fire in the 1920's.

By that time Premier, aside from Edison, was the only maker of cylinder records left in either the United States or England, and was probably the only company in the world that went on making wax cylinders after Edison discontinued them in 1912.

Dawson sang "The Blind Boy and the Thrush" in Clarion's first list. The T. M. N. described it as "A good record . . . a pathetic song about a little blind boy who asks the bird why he must leave him, and with a touch of sorrow requests the thrush to return in the summer time. 'When You're Tired of Roaming' is another admirable bird song sung by Peter Dawson in pure, even tone."

Dawson took part in two unusual records which Zonophone announced in January. One was "Consider the Lilies of the Field," sung as a duet by himself and Pike, with a mixed sextet in the chorus. Of the other record, the T. M. N. said:

"That well known ballad, 'The Song That Reached My Heart,' is harmoniously sung by a sextet which includes Peter Dawson, Herbert Payne, and Miss May Loveday. It has an orchestral accompaniment and is a fine example of concerted singing."

Edison Bell recognized Dawson's growing popularity when it bought the cover of the February 1 Talking Machine News. The center of the page was occupied with a photo of "Mr. Peter Dawson."

The March 1 issue showed Dawson had begun using on Edison Bell cylinders an assortment of names like those he had tried out on Jim White's brand. Under his own name he sang "Daddy."

As Hector Grant he reverted to Scotch accent in "You Are Still My Highland Laddie," and as Will Danby he was heard in "Tickle Me, Timothy." He was also Will Danby in the comic skit, "Their First Quarrel," which he recorded with "Miss Dora Whittaker."

Since he and his sister-in-law had already recorded their skit for White records, I think it is safe to assume Miss Whitaker was really

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capital

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

136c

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING — cylinders repinned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed. Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) — Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825

tfc

3 COLLECTOR SPECIAL BUYS

Roch's Player Piano Scrapbook (pictures & diagrams on all mechanicals $3); 3 Sons, Old Music Shop (all types instruments pictured & appraised, as is $1.25); Burton's Blue Book Hollywood Musicals (all songs & people with available recordings $5.50). Save ½; all 3 for $4.75 postpaid. Also new catalog of 60 other limited edition books direct from publisher while they last. Stamp please.

CENTURY HOUSE, Watkins Glen, N. Y.

apc

ORGAN CONSOLE FOR SALE

Magnificent walnut hand-carved pipe organ console (2 manual) complete with matching walnut bench and foot pedals. Pictures available.

LARRY L. BELLES, Exec. Director
Iowa Wesleyan College Mt. Pleasant, Iowa

app

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- * COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- * VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- * INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- * FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.).
- * "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

60 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

tfx

Yolande Noble — especially since Miss Noble sang for Edison Bell.

In April, 1908, Dawson was heard in two solos for Edison Bell — "Always" (not, of course, the later Irving Berlin song), and "The Bedouin Love Song." Will Danby and Miss D. Whittaker contributed a descriptive sketch, "Waltz Me, Bill." Judging by the description, it bore an affinity to those which Ada Jones and Len Spencer were recording in the States: "An episode at a dance, introducing song and conversation while the couple are waltzing."

The mid-May Edison Bell list contained an elaborate version of "The Village Blacksmith," sung by Dawson, which occupied two cylinders. These records were made by a "new process" (possibly meaning they were gold moulded) and sold for a shilling instead of ninepence.

In June, Edison Bell, realizing how fast it was losing ground in the cylinder competition with Edison, began making disc records as well as cylinders. The Edison Bell line grew to contain both lateral and vertical cut discs as well as the wax "rollers."

The late Joe Belmont, one of the greatest of whistlers, said "Beautiful Bird, Sing On" was the most popular record he ever made. In August, Dawson sang it on an Edison Bell cylinder, with whistling by Al S. Holt. On page 277 of the September T. M. N. there was a mention of a solo Edison Bell cylinder by Yolande Noble, "Who'd Like to Pay for My Holiday?" And on page 278, replying to a correspondent, the editor said:

"We are ourselves not quite certain that Mr. Peter Dawson has not made a record of 'The Wolf.' His disc record of this fine song is excellent, and he should certainly be heard in it on the cylinder as well."

A new brand of disc record was announced in October: "Twins," so called, apparently, because it was double-faced, and records playing on both sides were still a rarity. "Hector Grant" sang on one of the Twins two popular tunes of the day: "Meet Me, Jenny, When the Sun Goes Down" and "If Those Lips Could Only Speak."

Perhaps the exclusive contract Dawson says he had with H. M. V. didn't prevent his making discs for other companies under an assumed name. After a brief career, the Twins record was bought by H.M.V. and combined with Zonophone.

I had believed Peter Dawson didn't make any Pathe records, but have discovered I was wrong. He had a 10-inch, double-face disc in Pathe's December 1908, list: "That Old Sunny Window" and "Bonnie Jean."

It may be that the "exclusive" Gramophone contract didn't forbid his making hill-and-dale discs under his own name! Ernest Pike had several records in that December Pathe supplement.

I would willingly wager a trifle that Dawson didn't remember a song he recorded for the July, 1909, Edison list, "When the Little Birds Forgot Their Sweetest Tune." The Talking Machine News said:

"Peter Dawson, who has earned (sic) such a reputation as a soloist, well surpasses himself in this tuneful number. His enunciation is unrivalled."

III. First Australian Tour

We have now reached the time when, after seven exciting and successful years in England, Peter Dawson decided to join the late Amy Castles' concert company in a tour of Australia. He says he went through a wretched time before sailing because he couldn't take Nan, his wife, with him.

But she insisted, "When you sing in Australia you'll be a big success. Then you can make arrangements to take your own company the next time, and I shall be with you." She planned to study with Professor Kantorez, the Russian who had changed her husband's voice from a basso-profundo to a bass-baritone.

The trip to Australia was made on the Orient liner, Otway. Peter recalls that he was almost wild with excitement as the boat neared Adelaide. He was overcome with emotion as he saw his father, mother, and many other relatives waiting on the quay. He could see his mother, tears in her eyes, smiling up at him.

Then, when he reached the bottom of the gangplank, he was somewhat taken aback, but pleased, to be surrounded by a crowd of newspaper reporters and photographers. It was a complete and wonderful surprise to the young chap of 27.

In the train, his father warned him that a bigger welcome was waiting him at the Adelaide passenger station and he would do well to have some appropriate remarks ready. On his leaving the train, the Mayor of Adelaide greeted him and welcomed him to his home town. After returning thanks, Peter was greeted by hundreds of other citizens, many of them old friends, who included his former music master, C. J. Stevens.

From the station, Peter Dawson was taken to the Adelaide Choral Society's rehearsal hall, where the assembled Society gave him a heart-warming reception. Sir Josiah Simon delivered a speech of welcome and the Society sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

When the party went to Melbourne, Peter's success became greater with each concert. He knew that he was in exceptionally good voice and attributed that to not smoking or drinking, but later decided the climate was the chief improvement factor.

He always found, he said, that his voice was clearer, easier and more resonant in Australia than in Britain, yet, oddly enough, his records made in England are better than the Australian ones. Several times he was compelled to remake in England records he had ordinarily sung in Australia, because the originals were not satisfactory.

As he remarked, recording is a tricky business. His brother-in-law, Tom Noble, told him that when he first joined the Edison Bell Company as recording manager, a recording room was fitted up to duplicate Thomas A. Edison's facilities at West Orange, New Jersey.

The room was the same size as Edison's, designed with the same material, the same horns and the same diaphragms. The wax recording cylinders were kept at the same temperature, but still the tone of the records produced under these conditions was inferior to Edison's. ("The Old Man" had probably kept a few secrets to himself!)

After giving several recitals in his home town of Adelaide and being received with unstinted enthusiasm, the young bass-baritone and the other members of the Castles' party left for England in February, 1910. Dawson had been an unqualified success as a concert singer, but since he was paid only 22 pounds a week, he did not make his fortune. He took part in 81 concerts — many of them given in the roughest and most isolated sections of Australia — within a span of 20 weeks.

IV. A 1911 Interview

Peter returned home to find that Nan, through study with Professor Kantorez, had greatly improved her voice and singing style. He himself resumed study with the Russian wizard, because he had decided to go in for grand opera and thought he and Nan might present condensed or "potted" versions of some of the favorite operas on another trip to Australia.

The December, 1910, issue of the Talking Machine News showed Dawson's photo on the front cover (but not as an Edison Bell ad this time), and on page 9 there was a paragraph which bore directly on the opera ambitions I have just mentioned:

"Mr. Peter Dawson, who is now study-

The Talking Machine News featured Dawson in its December, 1910, issue.

Peter Dawson in 1910, ready for a concert engagement.

ing to sing grand opera under Professor Kantorez, is the subject of the portrait on our front cover. He is undoubtedly one of the most prolific record artists living. It is now some years since the artiste was first persuaded by Mr. C. J. Stephens, of the Adelaide Choral Society, to take up vocalism as a profession.

"His next stepping stone to fame was reached when he won the Ballarat Musical Competition prize. This incident in the life of the vocalist happened about nine years ago, which fact argues that Mr. Peter Dawson is even now but a young man. In common with Dick Whittington and many another adventurous spirit, he had an impetuous desire to come to London.

"He came, and, like Caesar, he saw and conquered. It was under Mr. J. E. Hough that he first made his acquaintance with recording; since then he has freely contributed to most of the leading makers' lists."

About this time the Talking Machine News asked readers to take part in a contest to choose Britain's most popular recording artists. Dawson came in second.

It must have been some satisfaction to Ernest Pike that he, the "favorite tenor" of King Edward, who had recently died, took first place. Harry Lauder was third, Billy Williams fourth and a dozen others finished in this order: Florrie Forde, Will Evans, Harry Fay, Stanley Kirkby, Harry Dearth, Harry Thornton, John McCormack, Fred Vernon, Billy Whitlock, Edna Thornton, and Evan Williams.

In February, 1911, The Talking Machine News published a long interview with the basso under the heading of "Mr. Peter Dawson: At Home and on the Gramophone (His Master's Voice) and Edison Cylinder." (By this time Dawson does appear to have become exclusive to H. M. V. for discs and to Edison for cylinders.) The article is much too long to be quoted in full, but I feel it is worth while to reproduce some of the more interesting sections:

"It is a far cry from Adelaide, in Australia, to Mill Hill, on the other side of Harrow, but the voice of the singer is not restricted by distance. Nowadays the talking machine has made the tones emanating from the vocal chords of a celebrity as familiar in Peru as they may be in Peckham.

"I was thinking over little matters of that kind as the train drew rapidly out of London into the clearer breathing-space of historic Harrow and the district beyond. My destination was Mill Hill, a charming locality where our genial basso has made his residence. The bell was answered by a neat Phyllis in cap and apron.

"Yes," she said, in reply to my inquiry, 'Mr. Dawson is at home. If you don't mind going round by the side, you will find him in the garden.'

"I presently descried a rather short, well set-up, clean-shaven figure, clad in a colored shirt, turned-up trousers, and a wide sombrero, hard at work among some young apple trees. His hands were protected by a pair of huge garden gloves, and a bright bandanna was knotted carelessly about his neck. The figure was the exact type of the Antipodean bush-whacker, and I thought to myself that Mr. Peter Dawson employed a most picturesque looking gardener.

"Can you tell me where I can see Mr. Dawson?" I asked.

"He is at your service, sir," replied the representative of the Southern hemisphere in a full, round basso, at the same time doffing his sombrero.

"I beg your pardon," I remarked. 'I had no idea I was addressing the eminent basso profundo.'

"Yes, it's a nice garden." He went on, in response to a remark of mine, 'You see, gardening is my particular hobby now — gardening, and fowls, and a game of billiards if it's wet. Come and see my fowls. Look at Father Peter there! Isn't he a grand old chanticleer? Wakes me up every morning regularly at four o'clock, starting on G natural. No flats or sharps about him.'

"Eight years ago the budding basso set his foot in the Mother Country for the first time.

"Those were the palmy days of the Edison Bell Company. James E. Hough, the manager, always on the lookout for talent, tried his voice, and immediately clinched a bargain by handing him a check for 15 pounds. Peter, poor chap, was so overcome by his first stroke of success, after the dark and dreary time of waiting, that he almost broke down. That gleam of sunshine was the turning point in Peter Dawson's career. Although he was not then making his fortune, his voice as a recorder was worth a regular income to him, and upon the strength of it he married.

"About that time Mr. Dawson fell into the hands of an unscrupulous man, who, taking advantage of his inexperience, treated him very shabbily. He had his revenge, however.

"Some time afterwards he was again approached by this party. 'Would you mind making some more records for us?' he was asked.

"I will do so with pleasure," was his reply, 'providing you pay me my price. My price now is 50 pounds down and 10 pounds per song.' To his intense astonishment he received next day a check for 50 pounds, with an agreement to pay him the sum demanded for every record. When his contract with this firm terminated, he began to sing for the Edison and Gramophone companies.

"Presently his heart gave a mighty bound, and his pulses thrilled with delight. Miss Amy Castles had projected a nine months' tour through Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, and he was asked to join her. It was the opportunity he had longed for. He was going home in triumph to the old folk, to the chums of his boyhood, to the familiar scenes of the land of his birth.

"The tour proved to be a veritable triumphal procession. Everywhere they were received with open arms, and away back in the bush townships people rode scores of miles to hear them. In these remote places their voices had heralded their approach long before their actual arrival, for there is scarcely a homestead in the back settlements which does not possess its gramophone.

Edison Bell featured Peter Dawson in an advertisement on the Talking Machine News cover for February, 1908.

"Peter Dawson was astonished at the knowledge which the kindly up-country folk displayed of his favorite songs. When he stepped on the platform he would be greeted with a big-voiced shout of 'Good old Pete! You're the boy! Give us 'Drinking!' Give us 'Shade of the Old Apple Tree!' and such like.

"At one little town, a big, burly bush-whacker, with a great black beard, strode into the hotel and insisted upon seeing the singer. 'I want to see Peter Dawson,' he cried in a voice that shook the rafters.

"I went up to him," says Peter, 'and he towered above me as a gum tree towers above a wattle. 'Excuse me,' I remarked, 'I am Peter Dawson.' He glared at me as if I had been a lamb with three tails or some other natural history monstrosity.

"You?" he exclaimed. 'You, Peter Dawson? Well, I'm d-d! I always thought Peter Dawson was a thunderin' big good-lookin' chap!'

"Having finished our cheerful repast, my kindly host begged me to excuse him for a little while as he had to get into his evening warpaint for a concert in Queen's Hall. It seemed to me that five minutes could scarcely have elapsed before down came Dawson in immaculate evening dress. What a transformation it was!"

The remainder of the article was taken up with a discussion of some of the records Dawson had made as Gramophone discs and Edison cylinders, and a verdict was pronounced that the needle-cut discs were good but the cylinders were better. Of special interest is the comment on his Edison Amberol of "The Bandolero," which was so popular in Dawson's version that Edison issued it in this country as a Blue Amberol as well as a wax Amberol cylinder. The reviewer said:

"I listened entranced. I had heard, of course, dozens of my friend's records, both disc and cylinder, but never anything quite so good as this. It was the real, genuine voice of the consummate artist. There was no subsidiary sound. The notes rolled forth with all Dawson's tremendous volume, rich and true as from the human throat."

Although the Talking Machine News ordinarily was anything but friendly to Thomas A. Edison and his products, its writer could not withhold this tribute to the superior excellence of Edison recording. Even today "The Bandolero" remains a brilliant piece of sound depiction.

There are a few inaccuracies in the article. Like W. S. Meadmore's already quoted interview, it says Dawson married on the strength of his Edison Bell recording engagement, whereas the singer himself says he already had a wife when he came to J. E. Hough's attention. Dawson does not mention Hough's giving him a "retainer" check for 15 pounds — and we are left wondering what firm received its come-uppance after having treated him shabbily.

(To be continued)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 31)

by Victor, and is an example of impassioned restraint. "Le Roi d'Ys" flows smoothly, as it should; and what can one do to make La donne e mobile sound different?

Now remain the duets, and the Spanish pieces with Brahms among them. There is no need to even mention any of the latter. Fleta was a Spaniard, the style was native to him, and one can almost hear his heart beat inside his throat in the music to which he was born.

And about the duets—on Fleta's part are all tops: Bori, unquestionably, is a worthy match in Parlemoi de ma mere. But Austral, although an excellent artist in her own right, is dominated by Fleta's vivid vocal personality.

In conclusion, it must be noted that, while the recording is fine, a bit more care with the pitch of some of the selections would not have been amiss.

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy and sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 18, Calif. my6837

SHEET MUSIC, 1900 and up. Over 800. Send for free list. All $1 each.—Rio Verdi Antiques, 854 Taunton Ave., East Providence, Rhode Island. d6867

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colo. s12698

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books. $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3694

ATTENTION: I will pay $8 for cylinder reproducers, both Edison and Columbia, list what you have. Any amount wanted, all letters answered. — Antique Phonograph Service, 114 State, Brewer, Maine. ap3464

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8. (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All Advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

MISC. MUSIC FOR SALE

REPRODUCER REPAIRING of all kinds. Have a supply of the original Edison styluses and can install them in your reproducers. Send stamp for brochure on reproducers — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. je3826

PIANOS & ROLLS

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1519 California St., San Francisco, Calif. my3804

Wanted: Syrian-Arabic player piano rolls. — Ray Fortier, Farmington, N. H. ap6826

NEW ROLLS and repair supplies (bellows cloth, tubing, leather) available for all types of automatic pianos. — Durrell Armstrong, Player Piano Co., 222 S. Vassar, Wichita 8, Kans. my124661

WANTED: Welte-Mignon, Deluxe, Duo-Art, and regular rolls. List titles and prices.—A. H. Giragosian, 603 So. Walter Reed Dr., Arlington 4, Va. ol22741

PLAYER-PIANO ROLLS bought-sold; Duo-Art and organ rolls wanted. — Old Salzburg, 1645 Wisconsin, Washington 7, D. C. ap6676

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. d126351

CUSTOM ROLLS made to order for 88-note players; any tune from sheet music, etc. Details, reservations from Old Salzburg, 1645 Wisconsin, Washington 7, D.C. ap3863

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3426

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each.—Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

CYLINDER & DISC horn type phonographs, records, catalogs, horns, reproducers, roller organs, Hurdy Gurdys, player pianos bought, sold, exchanged, repaired. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond 31, Va. jly6468

EARLY COLUMBIA Graphophone and parts catalog, circa 1905, 40 pages of cylinder, coin-slot and early disc Graphophones. Well illustrated with pictures, machines, parts, supplies and with prices. This will help to identify many of the early machines. Reprinted from the original that I have. Well printed on book grade paper with clear pictures. Postpaid $2. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap34201

MISC. MUSIC WANTED

Mills, Virtuoso Rolls with some familiar tunes. Quote price, condition and name of tune. — P. M. Connelly, 710 Washington Blvd., Oak Park, Ill. je3255

PIANOS FOR SALE

1 SQUARE GRAND PIANO made by Emerson of Boston. In good condition. Solid ebony. Write to: Mrs. Roy Marshall, Sheldon, Ill. ap3042

STEINWAY Duo-Art Pianola, electric, 6 foot, 6 inch grand, serial No. C-4539. Originally purchased, ca. 1927; pianola rebuilt, ca. 1940. Near perfect condition; rarely used. Performs all pianola functions. Mahogany case, generally shiny, some checking, no scratches. Local concert pianists call tone and action excellent. Accompanying brocade velvet mahogany bench and mahogany piano roll console. Over 100 rolls, popular and classical, including two by Paderewski. Altogether a very rare item.—Arthur Lee Homan, 13 Elmgrove Ave., Troy, N. Y. je38421

FOR SALE: Albert Weber New York square grand piano. Civil War era. Beautiful veneer wood. Has 77 keys. Generally good condition except some notes do not play. Best offer takes. You pay shipping. Picture 20c to possible buyer. —Mrs. A. Deutsch, Hurleyville, N. Y. ap1253

MUSIC BOX DISCS FOR SALE

Mira music box discs, 18 1/2", $3. 15 1/2" $2.50. 9 5/16" $1. plus postage. Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. ap3654

MELODEONS FOR SALE

MELODEONS FOR SALE. Also expert melodeon and reed organ repairing. Reasonable. — C. Lamper, C-Sharp Hobby Shop, 1365 Bristol, N.W., Grand Rapids, Mich. au120821

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

Coin Operated Banjo Wanted. — P. M. Connelly, 710 Washington Blvd., Oak Park, Ill. je3213

WANTED TO BUY: Seeburg Eagle nickelodeon. Also type "G" rolls.—Thomas Glomstead, 1324 W. Second St., Appleton, Wis. je3042

WANTED: Over the shoulder band and other antique musical instruments. — W. A. Holloway, 1547 N. Dearborn Parkway, Chicago 10, Ill. my3061

WANTED: Antique musical instruments, write full description to Hal Lynn, 18210 Shaker Square, Cleveland 20, Ohio. ap12069

NEW ROLLS and repair supplies (bellows cloth, tubing, leather) available for all types of automatic pianos. — Durrell Armstrong, Player Piano Co., 222 S. Vassar, Wichita 8, Kans. ap124661

WANTED: Seeburg orchestrion with pipes. — Jess Howard, Valley Mills, Tex. ap3061

VOCALSTYLE piano rolls badly needed: "Mr. Jelly Lord" and "Tom Cat Blues." — Montgomery, 722 Spring, Ann Arbor, Mich. d122511

WANTED: Welte - Mignon, Deluxe, Duo-Art, and regular rolls. List titles and prices. — A. H. Giragosian, 603 So. Walter Reed Dr., Arlington 4, Va. s122741

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. ni26351

Wanted: High grade guitars, banjos, mandolins, violin bows showing maker's name, lutes, balalaikas, domras. Write details including price desired. — Violin Studio, 195 So. Prospect, Spencerport, New York. ap3846

Peter Dawson

PART V

By JIM WALSH

I. 1911 to 1914

During the three years that remained before World War I began, Peter Dawson added steadily to his Gramophone, Zonophone, and Edison lists.

His February, 1911, Gramophone record was an unusual choice, "The Oddfellow's Song," in praise of a well known fraternal order. In the same month, the Talking Machine News came about as close as it ever did to giving him an unfavorable review, in describing his Zonophone record, "The Charmed Cup:"

"It hurts us to say so, but we must confess that we have heard Mr. Peter Dawson in much better voice than he is on this record. We cannot give a better reason than that the song seems unsuited to him.

"Many of our readers, who are unacquainted with Mr. Dawson's grand vocalism, may not agree with us in this outspoken criticism. It is perfectly true that the song is remarkably well sung, but it does not reach Dawsonian heights.

"Had it been a lesser man at a recording horn we might have pronounced this to be a fine achievement, but we look for so much from Mr. Dawson that we cannot, in justice, refrain from speaking our mind. Still, as we say, the record is a good one and will delight whenever placed upon the machine."

To my thinking, this is hardly an "outspoken criticism." Those poor reviewers! How they did hedge and qualify their opinions when they wrote anything they feared might give offense to an advertiser!

In May, 1911, the T. M. N. presented the results of another popularity contest. This time Dawson came third, behind Harry Lauder and Billy Williams. Stanley Kirkby had moved up to fourth, and the former Number 1 man, Ernest Pike, had dropped to fifth. Then, in order, followed Florrie Forde, Harry Fay, John McCormack, Harry Dearth, Enrico Caruso, Clara Butt, and Madame Melba.

Also in May, Dawson paid tribute to Britain's new ruler, George V, on an Edison Amberol cylinder, "Hail! King George." In July there was a puzzling statement that both Dawson and Pike were exclusive to Zonophone for disc records. The comment on his double-faced Zono record, "Young Tom o' Devon," and "Glorious Devon," is entertaining:

"It is a far cry from Adelaide in South Australia to the fair county of Devon, yet our good friend, Mr. Peter Dawson, has contrived to transport himself across the intervening expanse of ocean without losing a hair. He tells us the story of young Tom and that fickle jade, Nancy, who lost the Devon lad's hand if not his heart, with infinite relish.

"There is a sly humor in Mr. Dawson's rendering which is quite refreshing. Then he sings to us in another style on the back of the disc of 'Glorious Devon,' which he describes as the yeast of which to make old England's bread."

Entertaining, too, is this description of a Zono record of "Little Annie Rooney," and "The Old Cuckoo Clock," by the Zonophone Concert Party, in the September, 1911, issue:

"... In the former a rich bass voice and in the latter a tuneful tenor voice sing the verses, while a quartet supplies the choruses. We would not mind staking our last ha'penny, so to speak, that the bass voice is that of Peter Dawson and the tenor voice that of Ernest Pike.

"The Zono Concert Party are skilled harmony singers, and these records are excellent specimens of what they can do. ... Two charmingly concerted numbers."

In November, Dawson had a Zono record of "The Ringers," coupled with a setting of a poem, "The Ivy Green," which Dickens introduced in "Pickwick Papers." The effects of his operatic studies probably were revealed in a four-minute Edison Amberol cylinder of "The Toreador Song" from "Carmen" which appeared, sung in English, the following month.

Dawson's 1912 recordings were many and varied. For Zono-Twins he sang several duets with a highly regarded concert soprano, Madame Eleanor Jones-Hudson. Two Zonophones from the standard bass repertoire were "A Hundred Fathoms Deep," and "The Mighty Deep." The T. M. N. proclaimed:

"... no more perfect records of male voice duets has (sic) ever been issued than those on record A73 in the Zonophone September list. Mr. Ernest Pike and Mr. Peter Dawson give a full rendering of 'Tenor and Baritone' and 'Albion, On Thy Fertile Plains.'"

Elsewhere, the magazine pronounced this disc:

"... another perfect record in every detail, intonation faultless and the blending of these fine voices being a positive joy. Surely no finer specimens of the recording art can be procured than these exquisite duets."

Zonophone issued two Dawson solos in October, "The Lowland

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Sea," and "Where the Ebbtide Flows," and the praise in the monthly supplement was as unrestrained as that in the News:

"Notwithstanding the demands made on his time by concert engagements in London and almost every town in the Kingdom, the most perfect voiced of contemporary Bassos never disappoints his Zonophone audience by absence from our lists. His present contributions are outstanding examples of the singing of a great artist at his very best."

A new record company had been formed, the National Gramophone Co., Ltd., which began to manufacture a fine-grooved, hill-and-dale disc that used a steel needle and could play for more than eight minutes on one 12-inch side.

Dawson did not record for it, but in October his sister-in-law, Yolande Noble, had four Marathon titles: "Let's All Go Into the Ballroom," "Joshua-ah," "Jenny McGregor," and "Keep Quite Close to the Railings."

The recording system used on the Marathon records was known as the Packman cut and was invented by D. J. Packman, who had been a recording expert for Clarion cylinders. Marathon records were excellent and probably would have been a success if their development had not been stopped by the first World War.

The gentleman who had asked some time before for a cylinder record of Dawson singing "The Wolf" should have been happy when Edison issued an Amberol version in October, 1912. Toward the end of the year, H. M. V. pressed a single-faced edition of "The Floral Dance," which Dawson said was his most popular record. The T. M. N. said:

"With a catchy accompaniment, and sung in a rollicking style, Mr. Peter Dawson makes the most of the upper notes in this contagious song of Cornwall. The popular recording basso displays quite a youthful brightness and freshness. ..."

There was no reason why the popular recording basso should not have sounded "youthful and bright." He was only 30 in 1912. A Zonophone record of "The Floral Dance," coupled with "The Admiral's Yarn," came out in April, 1913.

In that same month, Dawson's revered teacher, Sir Charles Santley, though past his prime, was represented by a Columbia disc containing his singing of "To Anthea," and "The Rosary."

Dawson's first Edison Blue Amberol cylinder was announced for February, 1913. I can't keep from laughing at the Talking Machine News' over-serious description of Dawson's Blue Amberol of an old-fashioned "sob" song, "The Volunteer Organist," which appeared a month later:

"The glorious, expressive voice of this eminent artist is heard in all its grandeur and dramatic force in this number. The true rendition of the deep sentiment demanded by the song may be gathered from the story it tells.

"The worthy village preacher of the day is perplexed by finding a substitute for his organist, who is ill in bed; he begs of someone to volunteer. . . . A ragged, decrepit man—a Rip Van Winkle—slowly rises, and with resolute step wends his way to the organ and plays a voluntary.

"Plaintive and soul-stirring melodies follow; in these the poor human dervish tells the story of his own ill-fortuned life. The service closes; the volunteer organist has disappeared. Mr. Dawson's rendition of the song increases his high reputation as an exponent of the highest phase of lyric art."

The review of Dawson's Zonophone record of "The Bellsinger," and "The Village Blacksmith," must be quoted for humor's sake:

"If we could instruct the scholarly musical Pagan responsible for the orchestration of the above titles, we would like to point out to him that there are certain portions of church music in which the bells need not appear.

Mr. Dawson's fine rendering of 'The Village Blacksmith' has to contend with this state of affairs, for in the well-known song we hear the familiar lines, as follows: 'He hears the parson pray and preach; he hears his daughter's voice (clang) singing in the village choir, and it makes his heart rejoice (clang)'.

"Apart from this, it is a fine record and a beautiful song, and the fact that the bells are legitimately used, with splendid effect, in the song where the old bellsinger tells of his pride in his work, makes the introduction aforementioned all the more prominent."

The news that Dawson had begun another tour of Australia was contained in the T. M. N. for May, 1913, when his Zono record of "A Dinder Courtship," and "The Blue Dragons," received attention:

"Mr. Dawson . . . is on his way to Australia, we believe, and our cousins down under will be sure to give him the welcome he so fully deserves."

Again in September, when his Zono duets with Ernest Pike of "Before the Battle," and "The Two Beggars," were up for consideration:

"The great Peter Dawson of our talking machine world is at present doing a starring tour in the land of his birth, but despite the difference of time and space between Australia and here, we are still under the pleasing charms of his voice."

II. Recording in War Times

When war began in August, 1914, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dawson and their concert company were in Goulburn, New South Wales. Their Australian tour had been highly successful. They had done equally well in New Zealand, a country with which Peter fell in love, which he frequently revisited, and where he said he would like to "settle down."

During the New Zealand tour he became acquainted with the native Maoris and learned something of their music. This resulted a quarter of a century later in one of his most popular records, the fascinating Maori song about the lissome girl dangling a "tiny ball on end of string."

During the rainy season, Dawson was asked if he would take part in a concert the Maoris were organizing to build an English church in Wairoa. He agreed, and after the concert the Maoris presented him with gifts.

The climax was reached when a beautiful brown girl removed her grass skirt and handed it to him as a keepsake. Although disconcerted for a moment, Peter recovered—and no doubt he was gratified he had

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capital

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

t36c

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed. Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1508) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825

tfo

ELECTRIFY

PLAYER PIANOS PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Leo Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my26p

3 COLLECTOR SPECIAL BUYS

Roehl's Player Piano Scrapbook (pictures & diagrams on all mechanicals $3); 3 Sons, Old Music Shop (all types instruments pictured & appraised, as is $1.25); Burton's Blue Book Hollywood Musicals (all songs & people with available recordings $5.50). Save 1/2; all 3 for $4.75 postpaid. Also new catalog of 60 other limited edition books direct from publisher while they last. Stamp please.

CENTURY HOUSE, Watkins Glen, N. Y.
apo

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

tfx

met a girl so unselfishly generous as to be willing to give him the very skirt off her back!

Not long afterward he appeared before a thousand Maoris and for the first time sang "Waiata Poi" (the "ball and string" song) in their own tongue. As a special surprise he also sang "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" in Maori.

But on August 4, 1914, that was all in the background and the world's greatest war up to that time was under way. For a while business remained good, but as war casualties mounted it fell off, and, both in New Zealand, which was visited a second time, and Australia, the concerts were given at a heavy loss.

Then a music hall impresario, H. D. MacKintosh, offered Dawson a tour of Australian variety halls. Business was excellent, and he recouped his concert losses.

The Dawson party then went to South Africa, for six weeks in the music halls, before returning to England. Arrived in London, Peter called on the High Commissioner for Australia, and asked his advice about going into military service.

The Commissioner said there was plenty of good war work to be done in England without joining the Army. And Peter was soon busy helping to raise money for War Loan and War Comfort funds.

Meanwhile, his Gramophone and Zonophone records continued to appear, but Edison had abandoned English recording activities. There is to me, an amusing expression in the Talking Machine News' December, 1914, review of Dawson's Zono record of "Devon for Me," and "Onaway, Awake, Beloved."

"If it were not a fact that Peter Dawson hails from 'Down Under,' we should put him down as a Devonian. There are several songs of the West Country in which his rich, strident voice seems to revel, and here is another. When we say that the great gramophone favourite artiste is at his best in both these titles, we are but doing fair justice."

This probably is one of the few times in musical history that "strident" has been used as an adjective of praise when referring to voice quality.

There is nothing half-hearted about the commendation of Dawson's H. M. V. record, "Thou'rt Passing Hence, My Brother," in February, 1915:

"... Of two brothers, one is lying at death's door, while the other addresses the dying man. . . . The brother who is speaking charges the other to take with him a message to heaven to their white-haired father, and to their gentle mother."

"Peter Dawson has magnificently seized the situation, and in strong, resonant, appealing tones he expresses the pathos of the selection in a dramatic manner. The colour of the situation is heightened by the introduction of chimes and an organ obbligato, which latter is masterfully played by Mr. Stanley Roper, famous for his recitals on that monarch of instruments."

I find no mention of Dawson in the Talking Machine News for 1916, but he said in "Fifty Years of Song" that he recorded 40 songs in six weeks, from October 13 to November 23, 1916. I do not have the 1917 issues before December, but records by Dawson were reviewed regularly in 1918, although he appears to have left England late in 1917 to go to Australia and join his homeland's army.

In December there were a number of references to his Zonophone record of "Where the Black-Eyed Susans Grow," and "Down Where the Swanee River Flows," which he sang under the alias of Will Strong. In one mention the magazine did not hint at his identity:

"There is a singer whose name has appeared a good deal of late on Zonophone, who is worthy of far more than a passing notice, although he may not sing the very highest class of song. We refer to Mr. Will Strong, who is the happy possessor of a full, rich, and powerful baritone. . . ."

But, reviewing "Strong's" record of "My Home in the U.S.A.," and "Down Where They Sing the Dear Old Songs," the T. M. N. pointedly commented:

"'Strong baritone'—decidedly so. With a voice singularly in consonance with that of another 'strong baritone' who has recently departed from these shores."

Dawson must have recorded a great many "standard" numbers to be issued during his absence, for his records continued to appear almost every month during that fateful year, 1918, when it seemed doubtful that Britain could survive.

III. On War Duty—

Return to the Canning Factory

As the war dragged on, Peter Dawson decided he could no longer content himself with singing for soldiers or doing other work of "social significance." He felt he had to become one of the fighting force. So he made up his mind to return to his native land and join the Australian Army.

After a short tour of South Africa, he made another tour, at the request of the Australian government, for war loan purposes. Then he became a soldier. This is what the Adelaide Herald said about his enlisting:

"The news that Mr. Peter Dawson, the noted singer, has enlisted, was received regretfully and yet with a certain amount of pleasure by the people of Adelaide. They will miss Peter Dawson, singer and artiste to his finger-tips, but are proud to know he will help represent them at the front."

"Mr. Dawson enlisted at Market Square last evening."

"The announcement was received with cheers. Mr. Dawson was one of the speakers, and he reported phases of the war as he had seen it in England, where he used to visit the hospitals and sing for the wounded."

"After a spirited appeal Mr. Dawson delighted his audience by singing a little soldier song which cheerily predicts that the sunshine will bring through the dark clouds."

Apparently determined to convince the people of Australia that Dawson's enlistment was no propaganda or publicity stunt, the Infantry, in which he had become a foot soldier, showed him no favors.

Fifteen years after he had first arrived in England to begin a musical career, the brilliance of which must have surprised even himself, 35-year-old Private Peter was assigned to latrine duty. After that he peeled potatoes.

Then he was asked to help in a recruiting drive. This took in some of the more primitive parts of Australia and resulted in enlisting 1,500 men.

Late in 1918, Dawson left Australia for France as a Battalion Orderly Sergeant in the Seventh Division of the Queensland Infantry, but just as the ship was approaching the Panama Canal, word was received over the ship's wireless that the war was over. Many of the men aboard the vessel were disgusted — or said they were — at the prospect of being cheated out of fighting!

After Dawson was granted his honorable discharge, the concert business seemed, for a time, to go to pieces, and he did something which today he can't explain — abandoned his musical career and joined his brothers in operating the factory. Never, probably, did a great musician make a decision less in harmony with his natural impulses.

It could not have been reasonably expected that an artist used to the applause of large audiences and whose records had won him worldwide acclaim would remain long satisfied with the monotonous round of a canning factory, a boiler factory, or any other kind of factory.

After six months of what to him was an unbearably dull life, Peter sent a cablegram to his housekeeper in London, with instructions for her to transmit him the following wire, purporting to be from the Gramophone Company and intended to deceive his business men brothers:

"Return to England immediately stop. Now war is over must hold you to contract stop. Please cable urgently stop Gramophone Company."

The message came back in six hours and, although Peter's brothers argued at first that the Gramophone Company couldn't hold him to any such agreement, they saw the folly of trying to dissuade him and consented to his going back.

Then, the day after the cable arrived, Dawson was offered a six-week singing engagement in Melbourne at $425 a week. This was followed almost immediately by a request for him to accept a 12-week Southern African tour at $375.

He had lost most of his capital as a result of the war, so these offers were extremely welcome. He played the six weeks in Australia, then headed for England by way of South Africa, where the 12 weeks stretched into 20 at an increase in salary.

IV. Back in England —

More Recording and Concerts

Dawson's first engagement in London, after his return, was at Albert Hall, where he sang in Luisa Tetrazzini's farewell concert. During the next year, besides resuming his regular schedule of making H. M. V. records, he gave concerts all over Britain.

This way of life continued until 1925. Then came the terrible accident in which Mrs. Dawson was so seriously injured she was permanently crippled and it was believed at first she had no chance of living.

Peter and Nan were driving from Glasgow to Newark one Saturday afternoon when their car was in a collision about seven miles from Leeds. The machine turned turtle and skidded 20 yards upside down before it stopped.

Peter was not seriously hurt, but Nan suffered several broken ribs, deep lacerations of one leg, a broken left shoulder, and her head was almost scalped. A few days later gangrene was discovered in the leg and it was saved only by a daring operation.

Naturally, the hospital bills and all the special treatment Mrs. Dawson required struck Peter a crippling financial blow, but his resourceful brother-in-law came to the rescue. Tom Noble persuaded the Gramophone Company to give Peter a special $20,000 bonus for "past services rendered," and that took care of the money worries.

After Peter's second Australian tour, Tom had talked the Company into giving Dawson better terms—a three-year contract at a minimum guarantee of $4,000 a year. However both he and Peter realized the basso still was not getting the sort of income he should have from his records.

Some time later a five per cent royalty on the sale of records was added and was still in effect when Peter wrote his book. But before this was done the retainer had been moved up another notch, to $6,000 a year.

With this guarantee and the royalties, Dawson began to enjoy the handsome income to which he was entitled from his recordings, aside from his concert work.

Incidentally, Peter said Tom Noble, when he was only 18, was an Edison Bell recording superintendent. He had also worked for Edison, and later, under Russell Hunting, was assistant Pathe recording supervisor throughout Europe.

Eventually, Mr. Noble decided he'd had all he wanted of the phonograph and record business and became the managing art editor of the largest group of newspapers in Great Britain—a position he held many years, until he retired.

While I am discussing Peter Dawson's recording arrangements, I should like to question his estimate of the number of his records that have been sold. I do not contend that he exaggerated his sales totals; rather, that he must have woefully underestimated them, according to my calculations.

He said that when "Fifty Years of Song" was written he had recorded about 3,500 numbers and that the

From top to bottom, left to right
Top left

Peter Dawson, who was a composer as well as a singer, at the piano 30 years or so ago.

Bottom left

Peter Dawson, taken in 1920 when recording at the H.M.V. studios. (Note the old-time recording funnel behind Mr. Dawson's back.)

Right

Peter Dawson's recordings are steadily being reissued in England. These recent issues were sent to Jim Walsh by one of his English record collecting friends, Joe V. J. Cramp of Braintree, Essex.

total sales of his discs and cylinders had reached 13,000,000.

Divide 13,000,000 by 3,500 and, if your figures are like mine, you will get an average sales of considerably less than 5,000 copies per record. To say that the average Dawson record sold only 3,500 or 4,000 copies appears ridiculous.

Even in the fledgling days of the phonograph industry, a 5,000 sale was considered the "break even point." Any figure below that represented a loss.

In view of Dawson's vast popularity (he himself said that many of his records sold in the hundreds of thousands), there must be something radically wrong with a 13,000,-000 estimate, or one twice that.

Even conceding that many of his records were double-faced, with both sides by himself, the total still seems far too low. Many American performers of the Dawson period, such as Billy Murray, Henry Burr, Ada Jones, and Collins and Harlan, would not have considered 13,000,000 an especially good sales figure for just one year.

V. H. M. V.'s Handy Man

During the five years between his return to England and the advent of electric recording, Dawson served as a sort of "handy man" for H. M. V., taking on all sorts of assignments, just as, in this country, Billy Murray had done for Victor, and for instance, he made a set of three 10-inch physical culture records, which were issued without his name.

What could contrast more completely with these spoken physical culture exercises than the Six Australian Bush Songs, which were offered late in 1923? The Talking Machine News critic's review in the December issue was enthusiastic:

"If any singer ought to be able to render these fine songs, it is Mr. Peter Dawson, who was Australian born, and has seen life in the wilds in those youthful days of his before he came to England to place himself under the tuition of the great Sir Charles Santley. . . .

"These are really Australian-made songs from an Australian composer (W. G. James) and we must hail his work as first class. The last two are especially stirring. Good old Peter never sang better."

Well off the beaten path, too, was the February, 1924, record of "The Lament of Shah Jehan," composed by Landon Ronald, an H. M. V. pianist and orchestra conductor for many years:

"... Peter Dawson has a splendid subject for the exercise of his vocal powers. The Shah Jehan . . . was the great Eastern potentate who built the Taj Mahal, the most magnificent tomb in all the world, to the memory of his dead wife.

"The song is one of the finest that Landon Ronald has yet given us. . . . Few singers could give it with such effect as Mr. Dawson."

Another recorded novelty was offered in May, 1924. On a 12-inch record, the Right Hon. W. F. Massey, premier of New Zealand, gave "An Address on the British Empire," on one side, while on the other Peter sang "God Save New Zealand."

No doubt as he recorded the song about the country which he deeply loved, the basso's thoughts went back to his concert tours, his friends the Maoris and the bronzed beauty who went skirtless that he might have a memento of his visit. The T. M. N. said:

"This strikes us as a special record, issued for New Zealanders, but it would apply equally as well to the whole empire. The Right Hon. W. F. Massey makes . . . a thoroughly patriotic speech uttered in dignified tones capable of stirring the most faint hearted.

"On the other side is what may be called the New Zealand National Anthem, sung by Peter Dawson. . . . It has rather a hymn-like tune, but makes a good chorus. . . ."

In the September, 1924, issue of The Gramophone it is interesting to find the veteran critic, Herman Klein, calling Dawson's the best English-sung record of the Pagliacci Prologue. He says, "I like the strong accent and bold diction of the singer."

With the first issue of electrically recorded discs only a few months in the future, the April, 1925, T. M. N. contained what nowadays would be called a "rave review" of an out of the ordinary record. On it Dawson and Robert Radford sang two bass duets: "The Lord is a Man of War," from "Israel in Egypt," and "Sound, Sound the Trumpet," from "Puritani." The critique was unqualifiedly enthusiastic:

"Never have we heard in oratorio such a rendering of 'The Lord is a Man of War' as upon this record. The effect is electrical. The two fine voices are gloriously matched and the weight is balanced until the end.

"It is not often we hear a duet for two basses, and such basses. Were we to search the world through it is doubtful if we could find their compeers. Both understand the management of the voice in singing the music of the old composer, and that is a rarity among modern vocalists.

"On the other side is another grand duet splendidly sung. . . . We have never listened to it half so well delivered as by the two consummate artists who have recorded it upon this disc. . . ."

On the same page was this review of two Dawson solos, "Some Crimson Rose," and "Here's to the Good Old Days."

"After his fine work in duet with Robert Radford, Peter Dawson obliges us with two solos. The first is not in his usual virile style, though his versatility is such that he can infuse almost as much tenderness into his tones as strength and power.

"The second gives him in his more robust and vigorous mood. It suits him better than the other."

Dawson's records were still appearing on Zonophone, while these unusual contributions were being made to the H. M. V. list. In September, for instance, he had a Zono record of "Bells of the Sea," and "Beyond the Sunset," and in November, "Sleepy Hollow Tune," and "The Song of the Homeward Bound."

Apparently, his more distinctive offerings were reserved for the Gramophone label. The cheaper Zonophones carried his interpretations of popular and semi-popular songs.

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy and sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. my8637

SHEET MUSIC, 1900 and up. Over 300. Send for free list. All $1 each.—Rio Verdi Antiques, 854 Taunton Ave., East Providence, Rhode Island. d6867

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colo. s12698

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

Chordaphon table model zither music box, 13 steel discs. Collectors item. — A. Nickels, 1054 La Mesa Pl., Fullerton, Calif. jly3403

MISC. MUSIC FOR SALE

REPRODUCER REPAIRING of all kinds. Have a supply of the original Edison styluses and can install them in your reproducers. Send stamp for brochure on reproducers—Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. j63825

NOTICE: Will be on vacation the month of May. Open for business on June 1st. All orders and correspondence will be taken care of on my return. Thanking you. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. my1882

PIANOS & ROLLS

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1519 California St., San Francisco, Calif. my3804

"A FRIEND INDEED"

That's what your collector friends will call you when they receive the gift card from us informing them that you have subscribed for HOBBIES in their name.

Each issue they receive will remind them of your friendship, because HOBBIES is a practical gift that will give them more pleasure in collecting.

Fill out the blank below and mail it with your remittance of $3.50 to HOBBIES, 1006 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago 5, Illinois.

Please send a gift subscription to:

Name.....

Address.....

My name and address is:

.....
 .....
 .....
 .....

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Peter Dawson

Part VI

By JIM WALSH

I. Early Electric Recordings

The year 1925 remained vivid in Peter Dawson's mind, I suspect, for two reasons. One was the traffic accident in which Mrs. Dawson was so painfully crippled she gave up her concert career.

The other was the advent of electrical recording, which made it possible for the basso to sing with more ease and to use the tremendous volume of his full voice. His popularity among British record buyers had been great, of course before microphonic techniques came into use, but it became even greater after the horn method had been scrapped.

One of the most noteworthy of Dawson's early electric recordings is the 12-inch version of the Pagliacci Prologue, which was issued in May, 1926. It replaced the earlier acoustic disc, which Herman Klein had said was the best available interpretation in English. Both sides of the record were required for the complete rendition, concerning which the Talking Machine News said:

"Peter Dawson is one of the finest interpreters of the famous Prologue in English that we know. This is not the first time we have heard him sing the great solo on a record.

"If we mistake not, it is rather a favorite of his, and we are not surprised, for it gives him magnificent scope for his dramatic power, manly voice, and knowledge of musical color. A fine record."

Equally complimentary were the remarks in June on his 10-inch coupling of "The Gay Highway" and "The Vagabond."

"Our famous bass-baritone, Peter Dawson, is in fine form, but when, may we ask, is this incomparable singer out of form? He is one of the most uniform artists that we know, and one of the most versatile."

In the August issue, Peter contributed a letter to the editor in which he criticized the carelessness of radio singers who did not pronounce their words clearly. This was written some five years before Dawson himself began broadcasting, in 1931, but the letter shows he was already considering the problems of clean enunciation as affected by wireless transmission:

"... It may appear incredible, but it is a fact that there are wireless singers today who actually do not trouble about the words of the songs they sing. They think of the voice, of how they can arrange for a particular effect, and the result of all this posturing is quite disastrous for the unhappy listener-in.

"Nerves are another frequent cause of failure. I myself do not broadcast, but in my gramophone work I sing into a microphone, and I am never nervous there, unless I have been away for a time, and then I take perhaps an hour before I get into my stride.

"Most wireless singers, on the other hand, do get a fit of nerves when they remember the millions who are listening to them, and that makes them go for a song with too much voice.

"Now, economy in voice is the greatest asset of a wireless artist. A whisper is heard where a shout would become a blur, and the singer from whom the listener-in hears every word is the one who sings quietly at the microphone mouth."

"Yours faithfully,
"Peter Dawson."

This letter exhibits the careful, intelligent study which Peter Dawson had given to every phase of singing. He realized that, although the microphone made it possible for him to "split the ears of the groundlings," it also made it unnecessary to adopt the shouting style of singing which many artists had been obliged to use if they were to be adequately recorded through the horn.

In June, 1927, another Dawson record was given what might be termed a "rave" review:

"Peter Dawson has made many gramophone records of outstanding quality, but he can never have excelled his renderings of Schubert's 'The Erl King' and Tchaikovsky's 'Don Juan Serenade.'"

"The former song is perhaps the best dramatic ballad ever written, and Mr. Dawson sings it in a way which thrills. The Tchaikovsky, with its lighter subject, is in pleasing contrast."

The February, 1928 T.M.N. contained a note from Dawson, accompanied by a reproduction of his signature, congratulating the editor, Arthur Payne, on the magazine's having attained its 25th anniversary. The title by that time had been changed to The Gramophone and Talking Machine News. Peter used a bit of the Scotch vernacular in his greetings:

"10, Evelyn Grove, Ealing Common, London, W. 5.

"January 26th, 1928

"Dear Arthur Payne: Hearty congratulations for this the 25th year of the publication of Gramophone and Talking Machine News. 'Lang may yer lum reek.'

"With every good wish for continued prosperity from one of the old contemptibles.

"Yours sincerely,
Peter Dawson."

Another complimentary review was published in March, concerning Dawson's rendition of "Two Old Tramps" and "Captain Stratton's Fancy."

"In the bucolic sentiment of Peter Warlock's breezy 'Captain Stratton's Fancy,' Peter Dawson's fine sturdy methods and downright force of expression are especially well suited, and his rendering of this air is full of bluff heartiness.

"The number on the reverse side is of a more conventional type, but his reading lends it interest and character. As is invariably the case with this fine artist, his recording is splendidly clear

Crank - Pump - Play
a million dollar collection of restored
musical antiques at the

DEANSBORO MUSICAL MUSEUM

DEANSBORO, N. Y.

(14 Miles South of Utica)

Open every day 10 to 7

Color Photo for stamped envelope.

auc

and natural, and the record is certain of a widespread demand."

Examples of such laudatory critiques of Dawson's earlier electric recordings might be multiplied indefinitely, but enough have been quoted to show that Peter Dawson's prestige was great as the 1920's gave way to the 1930's.

He may have been, on the basis of his recorded performances, the most popular singer in the world. Had he been as well known in North America as he was in the remainder of the globe, his Number One rating could hardly be questioned.

II. Decline in the Record Business

The depression of October, 1929, caused the sale of phonographs and records in the United States to drop so sharply that a new all-time low was reached in 1932. Record sales that year probably were not 10 per cent of what they had been three years before.

I remember being in a small coal-mine town in Tazewell County, Va., in 1932, and feeling astonished when I saw a sign on a drug store window: "All the new records, 75 cents. Needles, 10 cents a package."

That sign seemed like something out of a past life. All the dealers in my home town of Marion, Va., had given up trying to sell records, and it appeared almost incredible that there still were people who were buying them.

Great Britain was several years later than the States in experiencing a deep decline in record sales, and the drop never was so catastrophic there as it was here. Nevertheless, the trend eventually occurred throughout the British Empire.

Peter Dawson recalled that he was in South Africa during 1934, when the biggest record dealer, McKay & Co., had tied up its stock of discs in "bargain bundles" and was offering them at a few cents each.

And in 1935, Louis Sterling, chairman of the British gramophone "combine," told Dawson the sale of records had fallen off so badly the Company was altering its facilities to manufacture chiefly radio sets. It also turned out some household appliances.

Of course, the record business afterwards came back stronger than it had been. But the 1930's were dark days for manufacturers — and for recording artists.

In a desperate effort to stimulate business, the British companies turned more and more to recording novelties and had their artists undertake assignments off the beaten track. As usual, they showed real enterprise and ingenuity. The Britisher who was still buying records had his pick of a wealth of variety.

However, in the popular records field the American companies produced largely for admirers of crooners or for connoisseurs of the hot jazz and swing bands.

There is a wry amusement in going through The Gramophone from 1934 until the beginning of World War II and noting the off-beat things Dawson was called on to do. Of

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

"... well written and often explosively funny ..."

—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

t36c

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed. Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

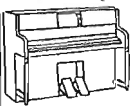

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1508) Pelham, N.Y.

Specialists since 1825

tfo

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my36p

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clockmakers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

tfr

course he remade many of his acoustic records. In December, 1934, H. M. V. offered an electric version of the most popular of all:

"Peter Dawson has re-recorded 'The Floral Dance,' by Katie Moss, and Al-litsen's 'The Lute Player.' . . . The original record must have sold in thousands, and this new one is magnificent. "This has always been the classic performance of 'The Floral Dance,' while Mr. Dawson's sheer artistry in 'The Lute Player' is overwhelming. Two superb songs, gloriously recorded and magnificently sung."

In April, 1935, the search for novelties was on, and Dawson sang a duet with himself. In so doing he was following the example of Silas Leachman, an American comedian who, in the 1890's, not only recorded duets on cylinders, but on occasion took all four parts of a male quartet:

"Peter Dawson sings the fourth Coleridge-Taylor, the salty 'Sons of the Sea,' backed by a duet with himself, Sergeant's 'Watchman, What of the Night?'"

In December, obviously for the holiday trade, there was a "platter" of "Peter Dawson's Christmas Party."

"Peter Dawson springs a party on H.M.V. C2805. His friends include a famous comedian, and the song, 'The Gendarmes,' as well as some popular hits—new departure for Mr. Dawson. Incidentally, the record lets out the secret as to the composer of 'Boots' and the identity of J. P. McCall."

(In "Fifty Years of Song" Dawson revealed that he published compositions under the assumed names of J. P. McCall, Peter Allison, Evelyn Byrd, Denton Toms, Charles Webber, Arnold Flint, Gilbert Munday, Geoffrey Baxter, and Alison Miller, but in more recent years had dropped all except McCall.)

A year later, in December, 1936, again with the festive season in mind, Peter offered a special record for children:

"Now for the kiddies (and grown-ups, too) a really happy-go-lucky record, 'Uncle Peter's Christmas Party,' with Peter Dawson in a most charming and intimate mood. The children taking part sound full of gaiety and will no doubt spread their high spirits. A spontaneous, happy disc."

By June, 1936, the basso was singing the current popular tunes:

"Peter Dawson . . . records another popular hit in 'There'll Be No South' from the film, 'The Music Goes 'Round.' On the back is an echo of 'Trees' in 'I See a Tree,' by Hodges."

"I do not believe Mr. Dawson could make a dull record if he tried."

One month later, Dawson had entered the pseudo-Western or hillbilly field, undoubtedly not to his complete pleasure:

"The Wild West has already threatened this department, and there is an easy conquest this month with Peter Dawson singing 'Rolling Along' from the film, 'The Music Goes 'Round,' and 'Load the Covered Wagon.'"

"The former is an immediate hit of the rhythmic variety, but even Mr. Dawson is unable to make much of the Wagon. P. D. has for long been the reviewer's solace, but I hope that he is not going to end his career with nothing better than a succession of 'vocal refrains.'"

There must have been rumors that Dawson was thinking of giving up his busy career, for in August The Gramophone said:

"We learn from an evening paper that Peter Dawson has no intention of retiring. This is good news, and to celebrate it we can enjoy his recording of 'The Shepherd Boy's Song.' On the back is a song called 'A Song for You and Me.'"

The reviewer was in a deprecatory mood in September:

"As for Peter Dawson. I can only say how sorry I am that he should have fallen for the hill-billy. His songs this month are 'Covered Wagon Lullaby' and 'Empty Saddles,' both from the film, 'Rhythm on the Range.' 'Empty Saddles' is the better, being somewhat out of the rut, and Mr. Dawson makes a huge success of it."

Peter himself said he received hundreds of letters abusing him for singing such songs, but consoled himself with the knowledge that they were selling well by 1936 standards. In October, he presented two numbers from his standard repertory:

"There is a splendid record from Peter Dawson, who emerges unscathed from his sojourn on the prairie. His dramatic powers are fully exploited in two poems by Kipling, the famous 'Mother O' Mine,' by Tours, and 'Danny Deever,' by Damosoh. . . . I shall look forward to more records like this."

Our Australian friend made a return to the land of the hillbillies, or at least of the cowboys, in December:

"Peter Dawson prepares us for the Coronation with a song especially written for the occasion by Ord Hamilton called 'Song of the Grateful Heart.' Here is hope. On the reverse is 'There's a Bride Hanging on the Wall,' by Carson Robison, the pioneer of the hill-billy. Here is despair."

The coronation, of course, was that of King George VI, whose brother, now the Duke of Windsor, had abdicated. The event was obviously the inspiration for Dawson's record in April, 1937:

"Mr. Dawson finds his true form in a glorious medley of patriotic songs: 'Britain's Heritage,' with chorus and orchestra. . . . Here we have 'Hearts of Oak,' 'The Old Brigade,' 'Lads in Navy Blue,' 'Here's a Health Unto His Majesty,' 'Rule Britannia,' 'Soldiers of the King,' 'Private Tommy Atkins,' 'British Grenadiers' and 'Red, White and Blue,' and all magnificently sung, played and recorded."

Peter sang one of his own "McCall" songs in September:

"Peter Dawson presents a new song of his own, called 'Fret-Foot' . . . which is about ships, and a little known song by Cadman . . . 'Builder' is highly effective, especially so in the hands of Mr. Dawson."

In November, 1938, there is this eulogistic comment:

"Peter Dawson, who disappeared last month for the first time within living memory has come back into the fold and once more shows how gramophone records should be made. His record of 'Bless This House,' with organ accompaniment, is a masterpiece of natural recording. . . . On the other side is 'Poor Man's Garden.'"

In January, 1939, with the beginning of the war only a few months away:

"I am happy to welcome a recording of (Geoffrey) O'Hara's fine song, 'There is No Death.' It is surprising that this is not better known for here is a tone picture of immortality unadulterated by individual desire."

"Here is no pious hope, no selfish wish, nor any maudlin sentiment. Peter Dawson declaims this fact of life with due solemnity, yet touched with 'holv gaiety.' . . . On the back of this record is the singer's own 'The Lord is King.'"

Dawson's record for April, 1939, was something of so difficult a nature that the reviewer confessed he couldn't make out what it was about, but still liked it:

"It is something of an event that, in deciding to record music worthy of his voice, Peter Dawson should have chosen a song by (Sir Arnold) Bax. 'Rann of Exile' is a difficult song, both to sing and to understand."

"I myself do not understand it, but that is precisely the reason why such a song should be bought and studied. Every bit of Bax that finds its way onto wax contributes to an understanding of this fine thinker, and hastens the recognition of one of the most distinguished artists of our time."

"But this record will sell because it also contains one of the few songs of a man who is loved wherever music is revered. Elgar's 'Speak, Music!' is not only easy to understand; it is a lovely song."

"I hope that this fine record is an indication that Mr. Dawson is reverting to the practice of those far-off days when he recorded good music, which included not a few first recordings."

I imagine it would be interesting to compare the sales figures for "Rann of Exile" with those for "There's an Empty Saddle!"

Dawson's record for August, 1939, combined a very old song with one relatively new, and both excellent of their kind:

"Peter Dawson sings 'Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes,' but this is not available at the time of writing. However, I can recommend the other side of this record, which contains Haydn Wood's 'Roses of Picardy,' with organ accompaniment."

"This is almost thrilling, and shows that Mr. Dawson can still knock 'em cold when he likes. Records like this will be treasured for years and with good reason."

And then came World War II.

III. More Patriotic Services

When the second World War began, Peter was in Australia on a concert tour, as he had been at the beginning of the first. Once more the musical business came almost to a standstill, and the singer was too old for active military service.

So he agreed to join his brother's firm of Messrs T. Dawson and Sons, as "Number 1 Handshake," at a salary of $60 a week. His duties were to pay "courtesy" calls on prospective customers and government officials who would be interested in buying tin containers for food stuffs, tins for oil-drums, and the like. After a while Dawson obtained more orders than the Company could turn out.

Then, in 1942, the New Zealand government had him fly to his "dream country" for a four-weeks tour to aid a campaign for a War Loan of $75,000,000. The money was raised within two weeks, after which he returned to his hand-shaking performances and helped raise money for Australian War Loans, Comfort Funds, and Food for Britain parcels. He was also active in recruitment programs.

Australia's greatest bass-baritone did not entirely give up recording because of the stress of patriotic duties and his absence from England. The September, 1946, Gramophone contained a list of records made "Down Under" during the war period.

One was a double-faced H. M. V.

Peter Dawson recording in a special studio erected at the Ideal Home Exhibition in 1926.

by Dawson, "The Lord is My Shepherd" and "God Make Me Kind." He may have contributed others during his long stay in his homeland. As soon as he returned to England after the War's end he took up where he had left off and once more recorded frequently.

IV. "Waltzing Matilda" and "Waiata Poi"

A disc which may turn out to be the most lastingly popular of all Dawson's records (it has certainly been his biggest seller in the States) came into wide acclaim while he was in Australia, although it had been recorded a few years before.

It was a 10-inch H. M. V. coupling of "Waltzing Matilda," which may be considered the unofficial Australian national anthem, and the captivating Maori song which he had first sung a quarter of a century before, "Waiata Poi," better known nowadays as "Tiny Ball on End of String."

When it was issued in England in September, 1938, the Gramophone reviewer, Roger Wimbush, showed an almost unbelievable obtuseness in not recognizing the disc's remarkable qualities. He gave it about as close to an unfavorable description as Dawson ever got in Gramophone write-ups:

"Peter Dawson comes next, not so much for any intrinsic interest in his songs, but because the label of the record bears the name of Dr. Thomas Wood, one of the most vital if least known influences in music today.

"Dr Wood's professional life is divided among three loves—music, the sea, and Oxford. . . . His books are a delight, and any who heard his recent series of broadcasts, given under the heading, 'Waltzing Matilda,' will be interested in his arrangement of the song of that name here given by Mr. Dawson.

"Knowing nothing of Australian life, I cannot comment on the song; still less can I tell you anything about its companion except that it is called 'Waiata Poi,' is written by a man called Hill, and is exceedingly noisy on this record. The general racket is not mitigated by the exuberance of the chorus."

In December, 1941, H. M. V., for some reason, reissued "Waltzing Matilda" under a new number, with Dawson singing "The Winding Road" on the B side. The original combination was retained in the catalog, however, and was the better seller.

It was the coupling of the Australian bushranger ballad and the Maori number which RCA Victor made available to the American public on Red Seal disc 10-1025, after the two songs' fame had become world-wide.

Peter Hugh Reed's review in the American Music Lover for November, 1942, is especially interesting because it explains some of the strange Australian slang that has puzzled American hearers of "Waltzing Matilda." He also quotes from a second, and more complimentary, Gramophone review which I have not seen:

"It was Richard Dyer-Bennett who first introduced the 19th century Australian Bush Song, 'The Swagman' or 'Waltzing Matilda' to the American public. Dyer-Bennett, it will be recalled, includes this song in his Keynote album. . .

"Matilda, according to Bennett, is no girl, but rather a nickname for the stick of the swagman, or hobo. The hobo captures a jambuck or young lamb while waiting by the billabong (a puddle in a dried up river bed), and in turn is pursued by a stockman and troopers. The swagman jumps into the billabong, and thereafter his ghost can be heard singing the familiar refrain of 'Waltzing Matilda.'"

"There is an irresistible lilt to this song" and a certain nostalgic quality which makes it instantly appealing. As for the other song, it is a tuneful tale about a Maori maiden, written in a familiar occidental ballad style.

"Peter Dawson has long been a singer highly beloved by the English, and understandably so, for he has the same gift of putting a song across that John McCormack possesses. Dawson's singing belies his years in this record. . .

"What The Gramophone said about his 'Waltzing Matilda' can be repeated here: 'He has never made a record more full of the healthy, robust I-sing-because-I-like-it spirit of which he is still the master. 'Waltzing Matilda' is a popular Australian Bush Song, the equivalent of the hill-billy, and is a piece of infectious nonsense sung to a swinging tune."

"Rather reluctantly we admit Dawson makes more of this song than did Dyer-Bennett. We urge readers to hear this recording: maybe after a time one will grow tired of the tune, but in the meantime we believe there is considerable pleasure to be derived from it. The recording here is first-rate."

American soldiers who mingled with Australian troops appear to have been a big factor in making "Waltzing Matilda" popular in the States. The Victor record sold thousands of copies — the only Dawson disc that had a large circulation in this country.

A fairly late photo of Peter Dawson sent to Jim Walsh by Tom Noble.
—From the collection of the author

Around 1925, however, when Victor was trying to stimulate its dwindling business by importing European records to special order, many of Dawson's H. M. V. productions were made available to American buyers.

V. Random Recollections

I have a feeling of relief as I near the end of this extended series. Through no fault of my subject but rather because of the length and richness of Peter Dawson's career, it has been one of the most difficult themes I have ever undertaken and struggled to keep within reasonable bounds.

The actual writing began a year ago last January, although most of the reference materials had been assembled long before. Four installments and a part of the fifth were written before pressure of other matters made it necessary to abandon the project for a considerable time.

Then the little man with the strident voice whom I mentioned in the first installment began nagging me to return to duty. I did, but found it hard, after a lapse of months, to weave the threads of my story together into a smoothly flowing narrative. Because of that difficulty, many pages have been rewritten half a dozen times.

But now, I gratefully see the end approaching. Since Dawson's outstanding records after his return to England in the 1940's have already been mentioned, I feel I can best conclude by giving a few of his random recollections of his recording career, followed by a tribute from his friend, the late Fred Gaisberg.

Peter recalled that when he was giving recitals in Ireland during the Sinn Fein troubles, absent-mindedness nearly caused him to run the risk of being lynched. One night, after responding to many encores, he told his accompanist, Hubert

Peter Dawson's photo was on the cover of the November, 1930, HMV Australian supplement.

PETER DAWSON parting with regret from his dogs when leaving for Australia, 1935.

Barth, to signify that the recital was over by playing 'God Save the King.'

Barth started to the piano, but luckily recalled in time what was likely to happen if a group of irascible Irish were "insulted" by the British national anthem. He merely bowed to the audience.

Dawson himself realized the danger that had been averted when he saw what Barth did.

Peter believed that one of the most important steps in the art of recording occurred in 1912 when, with George W. Byng conducting, H. M. V. recorded the Gilbert and Sullivan operas virtually in their entirety.

Besides himself, the artists who took part were Bessie Jones, Violet Essex, Gladys Jones, Nellie Walker, Edna Thornton, Robert Radford, Harold Wilde, George Baker (who still sings in recorded G. and S. productions), Edward Halland, Ernest Pike, Walter Glynne, and Derek Oldham.

On one occasion, at about the same period, Dawson had what he termed "a narrow escape from a nasty accident" while a group was recording a dramatic production, "The Wreck of a Troopship."

The assistant recorder was using a huge hammer to strike a sheet of tin to produce effects intended to duplicate the distant rumble of thunder. He hit so hard he pulled the sheet loose from its ceiling fastening, and the whole thing, including the heavy hook, fell on Peter. If the iron bolt had struck his head it might have been "curtains." Fortunately, it hit him only on the shoulder.

During that same session a mechanic was arranging an electric light, which depended on a counterweight to achieve varying heights, when it also fell — and struck Our Hero.

He said that after the session was over he discovered his head was ornamented with a large knot.

He also recalled an incident centering around Harry Lauder, who must have been almost as difficult as Nellie Melba to work with. Lauder thought the flute player wasn't following the score, and told him twice, "I want you to play only what's written."

On the third occasion Lauder shouted, "I want you to play only what is in the music, and nothing more." This time the orchestra played the melody, and the flutist solemnly moved his fingers over the keys but didn't breathe a note.

Lauder said, "Thank you, that is exactly how I like it," and then wondered why the orchestra laughed. When he found out what had happened he became much provoked and gave orders that the flute manipulator should never play with him again.

Dawson's fellow Australian, the comedian Albert Whelan, has been mentioned in an earlier installment. Whelan normally had a baritone voice, but he was also able to sing treble. When H. M. V. was about to record a series of choir records, Whelan applied for the part of treble singer, was accepted after a test, and sang falsetto in 20 hymn records.

The basso said that of the 3,500 songs he recorded, he probably enjoyed singing only about five per cent, or 175. Records he especially liked to make were: Stanford's "Songs of the Sea," "The Lute Player," "Largo al Factotum," and several Kipling poems set to music ("Mandalay Scena," which Dawson recorded in stereo, was his own setting of four scenes from "On the Road to Mandalay").

He listed also "The Floral Dance," "The Kerry Dance," "The Song of the Flea," "Pagliacci Prolog," "Lover in Damascus," and "I am a Roamer." And he included the Maori Song, "because I could let myself go in the true Maori fashion."

He had many favorite hymns, besides "Little Prayer I Love," "Bless This House," "I Heard a Forest Praying," and "None But the Weary Heart."

He said: "I have never taken my recording lightly. Every song I recorded received my full attention and study. In short, I never 'pigged' my work, however unimportant the song may have been."

Dawson was proud of knowing that King George V had an excellent selection of his records, and Winston Churchill is said to have one of the finest Dawson collections.

Dawson was pleased when the crotchety Sir Thomas Beecham said he knew of no other baritone who could equal Dawson in singing Handel's music.

And in 1951, interviewed by the Melbourne Herald, Dawson summed up the accomplishments and potentialities of recorded music in this paragraph:

"Few musicians who can think straight and are not musical Pharisees can fail to admit that... today reproduction has been made almost perfect by electric processes, which have enabled the song and the music of the great geniuses to be preserved for posterity; deathless, imperishable, for ever able to teach students and to charm audiences. To overlook this grand achievement of mechanical progress is to write oneself a fool."

In a lighter vein, an Australian HOBBIES reader has sent me a clipping from a 1956 newspaper, showing Dawson with his face registering displeasure as he listened to an American record of Frankie Laine's "On the Road to Mandalay." The veteran basso was quoted as saying it was

(Continued on page 56)

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy and sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. au3863

SHEET MUSIC, 1900 and up. Over 300. Send for free list. All $1 each. — Rio Verdi Antiques, 854 Taunton Ave., East Providence, Rhode Island. d6867

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colo. s12698

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

Chordaphon table model zither music box, 13 steel discs. Collectors item. — A. Nickels, 1054 La Mesa Pl., Fullerton, Calif. jly3403

MISC. MUSIC FOR SALE

REPRODUCER REPAIRING of all kinds. Have a supply of the original Edison styluses and can install them in your reproducers. Send stamp for brochure on reproducers — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. je3825

NOTICE: Will be on vacation the month of May. Open for business on June 1st. All orders and correspondence will be taken care of on my return. Thanking you. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. my1882

PIANOS & ROLLS

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1519 California St., San Francisco, Calif. au3804

MISC. MUSIC WANTED

Mills, Virtuoso Rolls with some familiar tunes. Quote price, condition and name of tune. — P. M. Connelly, 710 Washington Blvd., Oak Park, Ill. je3255

PIANOS FOR SALE

STEINWAY Duo-Art Planola, electric, 6 foot, 6 inch grand, serial No. C-4539. Originally purchased, ca. 1927; planola rebuilt, ca. 1940. Near perfect condition; rarely used. Performs all planola functions. Mahogany case, generally shiny, some checking, no scratches. Local concert pianists call tone and action excellent. Accompanying brocade velvet mahogany bench and mahogany piano roll console. Over 100 rolls, popular and classical, including two by Paderewski. Altogether a very rare item. — Arthur Lee Homan, 13 Elmgrove Ave., Troy, N. Y. je38421

PETER DAWSON

(Continued from page 36)

the last time he'd listen to that record.

As a loyal Virginian, I'd like to hear his opinion of Laine's interpretation of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" in which the words and tune, I think, are garbled. I consider it an unfortunate record of Virginia's state song, and I imagine Dawson would agree.

VI. Fred Gaisberg's Tribute

In January, 1949, after Peter Dawson had temporarily returned to Australia, following an extended English stay, his old friend, Fred Gaisberg paid him a tribute in The Gramophone. In part he said:

"Dawson, like his great master, Charles Santley, in the past, continues to produce beautiful music with his voice as the years roll on, to the amazement of everyone. The good master started him in the right direction and that is the reason Peter still is able to give recitals with a fresh and youthful voice after 45 years of career.

"He recorded for the H.M.V. November supplement two of his old favorites, 'There is a Green Hill Far Away' and 'Nazareth,' with another Dawson (Herbert) at the organ. There was the same pathos and throb in the voice that had made the tears well up in thousands of eyes.

"At 20 years of age, in the autumn of 1902, Peter Dawson arrived in England. To keep the pot boiling, Dawson accepted all and sundry engagements, smokers, seaside concert parties, and phonograph recording.

"Russell Hunting, then recording engineer for Edison Bell, immediately spotted the record-making possibilities of this youngster's voice and gave me the tip. Within a few weeks I had him making popular, comic and serious ballads, oratorio and opera arias, Gilbert and Sullivan, solos, duets, trios, quartets, chorus, etc. His weekly cheque amounted to anything from 30 to 50 pounds, and this continued year in and year out.

"The velvety quality of his well-produced voice, his ability to throw pathos, tears, laughter and drama into it, his quickness at reading, musicianship and contagious good humor, made him a recorder's dream come true. At one time the gramophone catalog listed 212 solo titles of Dawson's, not counting the concerted works he took part in.

"Peter and his life-long companion and wife, Nan, sailed for Australia on the Orchideson Tuesday December 14, but on the Friday before, at the Savoy Hotel, he was guest of honor at a cocktail party presided over by Sir Ernest Fisk, managing director of the E.M.I.

"The occasion was a God-speed and the presentation of the latest H.M.V. gramophone, known as Model 2000, indeed a beautiful machine that nearly took Peter's breath away, but more precious still was a gift of an original spring-motor gramophone of 1898 as used in the 'His Master's Voice' picture.

"This captured Peter's heart and he announced that the old relic should accompany him to Australia and the beautiful new gramophone should remain in England until he returned.

"The 30 or so guests present were all friends and colleagues of long standing, and each was required to sign a remembrance plaque for Peter. The climax was when the good-natured Peter sang that evergreen favorite which his voice has made known the world over, 'The Kerry Dance.' Surely there never was such a congenial and enjoyable party, thanks to the ever-youthful spirit of Dawson.

"He still had to sing one last gramophone session, and the following Saturday morning he turned up fresh as a daisy to record the old Scotch song, 'Turn Ye to Me,' and the Handel aria, 'Silent Worship.' I hope the records will be successful, as I will cherish them greatly."

Peter Dawson returned to England more than once after Gaisberg's article was written, but toward the last he decided to remain in his homeland. Nothing would have given me greater joy than to know him and to have had long talks about his recording days.

I hope, however, HOBBIES readers will read and enjoy these articles, which have at last come into being after a "process of incubation" extending over many years.

The End.

POSTSCRIPT. April 16, 1962. Since the foregoing was written months ago I have learned that Peter Dawson remarried after the death of his first wife. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mae Bedford Dawson, to whom I know all HOBBIES readers extend sympathy in her sad loss.

Meanwhile, Dawson records continue to be reissued in both England and Australia. In February, 1962, English HMV announced a 45 RPM containing two of the singer's most popular numbers, "The Floral Dance" and "A Bachelor Gay." And I have just received from Quentin Riggs an Australian record supplement for March listing a long-player, "The Boys of the Old Brigade," containing 18 selections, more than half of which are musical settings of Rudyard Kipling's poems.

—O—

I was pleased to see that The Gramophone's reviewer, in mentioning the February Dawson record, concurred in my belief that the basso's voice may have been, a generation ago, the best known in the world. The veteran critic, W. A. Chislett, said: "A single in the HMV 'Your Kind of Music' series will have nostalgic memories for older readers, for it brings back the voice of Peter Dawson, probably the most familiar voice in the world for the 30 years or so before the second World War, not even excepting that of Caruso. It is a particularly fitting memento of the man who had the longest and most versatile recording career of any singer. . . ." J.W.

OLD METALS

(Continued from page 43)

WOLVINIUS

A Carolingian enameler of the 9th century. An extant example of his work is an altar screen, the Pallotto of St. Ambrogio in Milan. Quite remarkable is the cloisonne ornament which frames the altar-piece.

WYNN, ROBERT

In accordance with trade practices of the 18th century, various techniques of enameling were generally guarded as personal secrets by master English enamellers. Valuable vocational knowledge was lost when an enameler died without leaving documentary instructions by which his craft could be continued.

Some of these valuable formulas were saved from oblivion, however, by a highly skilled and experienced enameler, Robert Wynn of Wellington Place, Vauxhall, London.

In 1817, Wynn disclosed to the Society of Arts a document containing formulas for making colored enamels such as had long been used for decorating the finest quality enamel box tops. The Society voted a monetary consideration to Wynn and placed specimens of the enamels in its repository.

WYSSENBACH, RUDOLPH

A 16th century pattern maker who worked in Zurich, Switzerland, an important center of the goldsmith's art. In 1549, Wyssenbach issued his rare pattern book of arabesques for goldsmiths and enamellers.

YANG TZ'U

Painted enamels on copper are generally known to the Chinese as yang tz'u (foreign porcelain), indicating the introduction of this enamel technique from abroad.

Enamels painted on porcelain, with the same range of colors, are known as yang ts'ai (foreign colors), the word "porcelain" being understood.

YARDLEY, JOHN (1770-1854)

Grandson of the first Wednesbury enameler, John Yardley was probably the last of the old English master enamellers. He abandoned the craft in 1840. His name was entered in the Directory of 1817 as an "enamel box and toy watch maker."

The toy watches were merely hollow cases, with hands and hours painted on the dials. Miners and iron-workers wore these watches, attached to great rattling chains of tinned wire, with their Sunday-best attire. Similar watches, about a foot in diameter, hung in taverns.

YARDLEY, SAMUEL I.

The first of the Wednesbury enamellers, and considered by some to have been responsible for introducing new mechanical methods of producing enamel mounts.

Samuel Yardley I developed a certain flamboyancy of color and pattern, and his enamels were characterized by a highly glazed finish.

YARDLEY, SAMUEL II.

A Wednesbury enameler, son of Samuel Yardley I, who was chiefly occupied in managing the business through the early years of the Napoleonic wars.

The Yardleys were successful in overcoming the war-time depression. They made boxes, buttons, brooches, and breast-plates for frilled shirt-fronts.

YORK HOUSE

Stephen Theodore Janssen, originator of Battersea enamels, acquired York House, formerly the London residence of the Archbishop of York, in 1753.

Battersea enamels were made at York House during a brief period of artistic brilliance.

Janssen was declared bankrupt in 1756.

YUAN ENAMELS

The theory that Chinese enamels were first made during the Yuan, or Mongolian dynasty is confirmed by the marks inscribed on certain extant examples. Among the earliest marks noted is that of the last emperor of the dynasty, Chih Cheng nien chih, "made in the period of Chih Cheng" (1341-1367).

YUNG CHENG

The enamelwork of Yung Cheng (1723-1735) is not unlike that of his predecessor, K'ang Hsi (1662-1722). Splendid sets of ritual vessels and altar-pieces were enameled in the best cloisonne style of the period, with symbolic designs of appropriate character.

These were placed in the great Lama Monastery Yung Ho Kung in Peking. One outstanding set consisted of an incense urn, pricket candlesticks, and a pair of flower vases, over 6 feet in height. These stood on carved marble pedestals.

ANNOUNCING

A series on OBSCURE METAL ARTS

of the 9th century B.C. to the 19th century A.D.—including Niello, Damascening, Pique, Tutenag and Pak-tong, Bidri and others.

By GRACE KALER

BINDERS For HOBBIES

The wealth of information contained in each issue of HOBBIES is too valuable to be thrown around with consequent danger of loss.

Holds 12 issues.

Price each $3.00

HOBBIES

1006 So. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

A REVISED SUPPLEMENTARY LIST OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS

By JIM WALSH

Long distance runners relish a breathing spell after winning a hard race.

Bearing that in mind, I usually give readers of Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists a "break" at the end of a protracted series, such as the one about Peter Dawson, which ended last month.

I expect to begin soon the life story of one of my favorite comedienne, which I am sure HOBBIES readers will find especially interesting, since much of it will be told in the gifted lady's own words.

The fact that I had, for years, feared her to be dead instead of, as she is, in vigorous health and completely active and alert, makes the prospect of the series all the more gratifying to me. For the time being I withhold my future subject's name.

Instead, I shall provide a "break" by returning to the subject I discussed last December, when I published an alphabetical list of the births and deaths of pioneer recording artists. Few things I have done during my many years with HOBBIES have attracted so much attention and won so much approval.

As I had expected, many readers found unavoidable errors and others filled in many missing details. Several dozen took the trouble to let me know where Marie Dressler and Joseph Jefferson died.

Although so many were helpful, I feel that I should express special thanks to Henry Y. Porter, of Reading, Mass., Ed Manning of London, Ontario, and Samuel Stark, of San Francisco.

Mr. Porter sent many names of artists missing from my list. And Mr. Stark, who probably has the largest file in existence of information concerning theatrical personalities, took the trouble to go through my entire list and let me know every instance in which his own compilation differed from mine.

He undoubtedly will find some differences of time and place when he compares this latest list with his, but, as I said in the December article, it is impossible to obtain absolutely accurate birthplaces, birth dates, and places and dates of deaths when writing about bygone musicians. Even the many reference books one may consult seldom agree.

At any rate, I have decided that it would be well to publish the supplementary, revised list which you are about to read. Because of space limitations, I omitted many artists, mostly famous operatic performers, from my December list. Geraldine Farrar, as an example, was not included because I thought it should be easy for the average person to learn when and where this distinguished diva, who is still happily with us, was born.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Other names were left out because of lack of information. I did not, I remember, give birth and death dates for one of the first women recording artists, Grace Spencer, because I didn't have them. Now, however, I have obtained the information I needed from her daughter, Mrs. Grace Wilson, of Miami Shores, Fla., and Grace Spencer takes her rightful place.

My omission of Olive Kline was a matter of concern to several correspondents, but although this exquisite soprano is one of my great enthusiasms I didn't know, and still don't when and where she was born. I have the impression her birth occurred in upstate New York and would guess she was born about 1888, but place and time are not guaranteed.

As I have indicated, this is intended primarily as a supplementary list, to include artists, mostly of operatic caliber, who were omitted in the December article. However, many about whom I have obtained additional information, or about whom I have discovered my preceding statements were erroneous, are included in the new list.

Wherever a name occurs in both lists it is because of additional information or to correct a preceding mistake. There is one exception.

The information I gave about one of the greatest American operatic tenors, Riccardo Martin, was correct, but I am repeating it to have an excuse for reproducing three excellent photos of Martin which were furnished me by the U. S. District Attorney in Roanoke, Va., Thomas B. Mason. My friend, Mr. Thomas, was a relative by marriage of the Kentucky-born singer. And I greatly appreciate the loan of these family photos from Mr. Mason for purposes of illustration.

I am using the same system of abbreviations in this latest list that I did in the former, with one addition. Following a few names I have written an "I," which means that the artist is still alive and living in whatever place name follows the I.

I hope this list will prove even more useful than the original one. And it may be that in another two or three years I can publish a still more comprehensive one, including not only all the names in these first two but others which will come to my attention later.

I promise to provide soon a list of all the HOBBIES articles I have written about recording artists since my department began in January,

Crank - Pump - Play
a million dollar
collection of restored
musical antiques at the

DEANSBORO MUSICAL MUSEUM
DEANSBORO, N. Y.

(14 Miles South of Utica)
Open every day 10 to 7

Color Photo for stamped envelope.

auc

Riccardo Martin as Johnson in the Puccini opera, "The Girl of the Golden West."

1942. I have many requests for this information, but it has become too burdensome to type individual lists, so I hope this printed one, which will be printed soon, will be preserved.

On this subject, I'd like to apologize to scores of readers whose letters I haven't been able to answer in recent months. My workaday duties have increased to such an extent that I no longer have time to carry on a regular correspondence with anybody.

Not only that, but I have been under doctor's orders for some time to "slow down" because of a stomach ailment that isn't exactly an ulcer but is about as worrisome as the real thing.

Many of my good friends—among them Glenn Crossett, Burns Katzenburg, Wilbur Leverett, Milford Fargo, Steve Gilman, Howard Weilmuenster, Bob Burwell, Harold Smith, and many others too numerous to identify—have been waiting more or less patiently half a year or more for me to write to them. Eventually I shall.

However, many other letters, especially those from people offering to sell me old records or wanting to know where old records can be sold, probably never will be answered—simply from lack of time.

Once more, let me reiterate what I say each month in my HOBBIES advertisements: Please do not send me lists of records and ask what I am willing to pay for them. I do not want to buy old records, except for a few Pathes by one of my favorite comedians, Gene Greene—and I don't want even them if I already have good copies of those same records. And I cannot tell anybody where to sell records. All I can do is suggest that instead of asking me, you write to the people who advertise in HOBBIES each month that they do want to sell records!

Here now is the revised supplementary list of births and deaths.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

138c

"... well written and often explosively funny ..."

—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

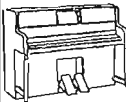

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PB 8-1808) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825

11c

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

my30p

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5. postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clockmakers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- * COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- * VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- * INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- * FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- * "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

17x

A DIRECTORY OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS

- ABOTT, BESSIE, b. Riverside, N.Y., 1878; d. New York, Feb. 7, 1919.
- ACKTE, AINO, b. Helsingfors, Apr. 23, 1876; d. Nummela, Aug. 8, 1944.
- ADAMS, BOB, (of "The Two Bobs"), d. Maidenhead, England, Feb. 29, 1948 (74).
- ADAMS, SUZANNE, b. Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 28, 1872; d. London, Feb. 5, 1953.
- ADKINS, MORTON, b. Cleveland, O., Oct. 31, 1877.
- ALBANI, EMMA, b. Chambley, Que., Nov. 1, 1852; d. London, Apr. 3, 1930.
- ALCOCK, MERLE, b. Andover, Mo., 1890.
- ALLIN, NORMAN, b. Ashton-Under-Lyne, Eng., Nov. 19, 1885.
- ALPERT, PAULINE, b. New York, 1912.
- ANDERSON, MARIAN, b. Philadelphia, Feb. 17, 1902.
- ANSELM, GIUSEPPE, b. Catania, Sicily, Nov. 16, 1876; d. Zoagli, Italy, May 27, 1929.
- ARDEN, CECIL, b. New York, Dec. 15, 1895.
- ATWELL, ROY, b. Syracuse, N. Y.; d. New York, Feb. 6, 1962 (83).
- AUSTRAL, FLORENCE, b. Melbourne, Apr. 26, 1894.
- AVERY, VAN, b. Chicago, ab. 1879; d. Jan. 4, 1937.
- BACHAUS, WILHELM, b. Leipzig, Mar. 26, 1884.
- BAILEY, MILDRED, b. near Spokane, Wash., 1903; d. Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Dec. 12, 1951.
- BAKER, CHARLES ALBERT, b. Akron, O., Dec. 27, 1883.
- BAKER, GEORGE, b. Birkenhead, Eng., Feb. 10, 1885; l. London.
- BAKLANOFF, GEORGES, b. St. Petersburg, Russia, Jan. 18, 1882; d. (?)
- BALL, ERNEST R., b. Cleveland, O., July 21, 1878; d. Santa Ana, Cal., May 3, 1927.
- BALL, RAE ELEANOR, b. Cleveland, O., ab. 1896.
- BARD, WILKIE, b. Manchester, Eng., 1874; d. Eng., May 5, 1944.
- BARDSLEY, JOHN, b. Fainworth, Lancashire, Eng., June 10, 1883; d. Eng., Apr. 6, 1916.
- BARRIENTOS, MARIA, b. Barcelona, March 10, 1884; d. Cibourge, Aug. 8, 1946.
- BARSTOW, VERA, b. Celina, O., June 3, 1893.
- BARTH, HANS, b. Leipzig, Germany, June 25, 1897; d. Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 8, 1956.
- BATES, THORPE, b. London, Feb. 11, 1883.
- BATTISTINI, MATTIA, b. Rome, Feb. 27, 1857; d. Rome, Nov. 7, 1928.
- BATTLE, REX, b. London, Jan. 4, 1895.
- BAYES, NORA, b. Milwaukee, Wis., 1880; d. Brooklyn, Mar. 19, 1928.
- BEARD, BILLY, b. Columbia, S. C., Sept. 1, 1879; d. Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 14, 1954.
- BEDDOE, DAN, b. Ameraman, Glamorgan, Wales, Mar. 16, 1863; d. New York, Dec. 26, 1937.
- BELL, DIGBY, b. Milwaukee, 1849; d. New York, June 20, 1917.
- BERNHARDT, SARAH, b. Paris, Oct. 22, 1845; d. Paris, Mar. 26, 1933.
- BERRY, WILLIAM HENRY (first recording artist interviewed when Talking Machine News was founded in 1903), b. London, Mar. 23, 1870; d. Herne Bay, Eng., May 2, 1951.
- BLAUVELT, LILLIAN, b. Brooklyn, Mar. 16, 1873; d. Pasadena, Cal., Aug. 29, 1947.
- BONINSEGNA, CELESTINA, b. Reggio Emilia, Italy, Feb. 26, 1877; d. Milan, Feb. 14, 1947.
- BORDONI, IRENE, b. Paris, Jan. 16, 1893; d. New York, Mar. 19, 1953.
- BORI, LUCREZIA, b. Valencia, Spain, Dec. 24, 1887; d. New York, May 14, 1960.
- BOURDON, ROSARIO, b. Longueuil, Que., Mar. 6, 1885; d. New York, Apr. 24, 1961.
- BROOKS, SHELTON, b. Amherstburg, Ont., May 4, 1886.
- BROWN, EDDY, b. Chicago, July 15, 1895.
- BURBECK, Frank, b. Boston, Dec. 30, 1857; d. New York, Feb. 20, 1930.
- BURNLEY, MRS. HARDIN (CURTIS BURNLEY), b. Spartanburg, S. C., May 21, 1880.
- BUTT, CLARA, b. Southwick, Sussex, Eng., Feb. 1, 1873; d. North Stoke, Oxon, Eng., Jan. 23, 1936.
- CAHILL, MARIE, b. Brooklyn, Feb. 7, 1870; d. New York, Aug. 23, 1933.
- CAMERON, GRACE, b. Aug. 1, 1879 (one source says Falls City, Neb.; another, Storm Lake, Iowa!)
- CAMPANARI, GIUSEPPE, b. Venice, Nov. 17, 1858; d. Milan, May 31, 1927.
- CAMPRELL, CRAIG, b. London, Ont., Oct. 18, 1878; l. New York.
- CARUS, EMMA, b. Berlin, Mar. 18, 1879; d. New York, Nov. 18, 1927.
- CASALS, PABLO, b. Vendrell, Catalonia, Spain, Dec. 30, 1876.
- CASE, CHARLEY, b. Lockport, N. Y., ab. 1858; d. New York, Nov. 27, 1918.
- CAVALIERI, LINA, b. Rome, Dec. 25, 1874; d. Florence, Feb. 8, 1944.
- CAWTHORN, JOSEPH, b. New York, Mar. 29, 1867; d. Beverly Hills, Cal., Jan. 21, 1949.
- CHALIAPIN, FEODOR, b. Kazan, Russia, Feb. 13, 1873; d. Paris, Apr. 12, 1938.
- CHAMPION, HARRY, d. London, Jan. 14, 1942 (76).
- CHANDLER, ANNA, d. Hollywood, Cal., 1957 (70).
- CHEVALIER, ALBERT, b. London, Mar. 21, 1861; d. July 10, 1923.
- CLAUSSEN, JULIA, b. Stockholm, Sweden, June 11, 1879.
- CLEMENT, EDMOND, b. Paris, Mar. 28, 1867; d. Nice, Feb. 23, 1928.
- CONNELL, HORATIO, b. Philadelphia, Mar. 15, 1876.
- CONSTANTINO, FLORENCIO, b. Bilbao, Spain, 1869; d. Mexico City, Nov. 19, 1919.
- CREATORE, GIUSEPPE, b. Naples, 1870; d. New York, Aug. 15, 1952 (82).
- CROPPER, ROY, b. Jamaica Plains, Mass., 1896; d. Miami, Fla., May 14, 1954.
- DAMROSCH, WALTER, b. Breslau, Germany, Jan. 30, 1862; d. New York, Dec. 22, 1950.
- DAVENPORT, EDGAR L., b. Boston, Feb. 7, 1862; d. July 26, 1918.
- DE KEREKJARTO, DUCI, d. Hollywood, Jan. 3, 1962 (61).
- DE LUCIA, FERNANDO, b. Naples, Oct. 11, 1860; d. Naples, Feb. 23, 1925.
- DE MURO, BERNARDO, b. Tempio, Sardinia, 1881; d. Rome, Oct. 27, 1955.
- DE SEGUROLA, ANDRES, b. Valencia, 1873; d. Barcelona, Jan. 23, 1953.
- DE VERE, CLEMENTINE, b. Paris, 1865; d. Mt. Vernon, N.Y., Jan. 19, 1954.
- DOCKSTADER, LEW, b. Hartford, Conn., Aug. 7, 1856; d. New York, Oct. 26, 1924.
- DONALDO, PAULINE, b. Montreal, Que., Mar. 5, 1884; l. Montreal.
- DRAPER, CHARLES, b. Odcombe, Somerset, Eng., 1863; d. London, Oct. 21, 1952.
- DRAPER, HAYDN, b. Penarth, Eng., Jan. 21, 1889; d. London, Nov. 6, 1934.
- DRESSLER, MARIE, b. Cobourg, Can., Nov. 9, 1869; d. Santa Barbara, Cal., July 28, 1934.
- DUDLEY, S. H., b. Greencastle, Ind., 1864; d. Los Angeles, June 6, 1947.
- EAMES, EMMA, b. Shanghai, China, Aug. 13, 1865; d. New York, June 13, 1952.
- EASTON, FLORENCE, b. Middlesbrough, Eng., Oct. 25, 1884; d. New York, Aug. 13, 1955.
- EVANS, WILL, b. London, May 29, 1875; d. London, Apr. 11, 1931.
- FARRAR, GERALDINE, b. Melrose, Mass., Feb. 28, 1882; l. Ridgefield, Conn.
- FAVOR, EDWARD M., b. New York; d. Brooklyn, Jan. 10, 1936 (79).
- FIELDS, LEW, b. New York, Jan. 1, 1867; d. New York, July 20, 1941.
- FINNEGAN, JOHN, b. Wilmington, Del., Dec. 25, 1878; d. New York, Apr. 12, 1940.
- FIRTH, W. FRANCIS, b. Auburn, N.Y., d. Windsor, Ont., Can., June 25, 1943 (76).
- FOX, LOIS, b. Austin, Tex., Jan. 17, 1886; d. (?)
- FRANKLIN, IRENE, b. St. Louis, Mo., June 13, 1876; d. Englewood, N. J., June 16, 1941.
- GALVANY, MARIA, b. Granada, Spain, 1874; d. Rio Janeiro, Nov. 2, 1949.
- GASKIN, GEORGE JEFFERSON, b. Belfast, Ireland, Feb. 16, 1863; d. New York, Dec. 21, 1920.
- GAUTHIER, EVE, b. Ottawa, Can., Sept. 20, 1885; d. New York, Dec. 26, 1958.
- GAY, MARIA, b. Barcelona, June 13, 1879; d. New York, July 29, 1943.
- GERVILLE-REACHE, JEANNE, b. Orthez, France, Mar. 26, 1882; d. New York, Jan. 5, 1915.
- GILBERT, CHARLES, b. Paris, Nov., 1866; d. New York, Oct. 12, 1910.
- GILLY, DINH, b. Algiers, July 19, 1877; d. London, May 19, 1940.
- GILSON, LOTTIE, b. 1867; d. New York, June 10, 1912.
- GODOWSKY, LEOPOLD, b. Wilna, Poland, Feb. 13, 1870; d. New York, Nov. 21, 1938.
- GOLDKETTE, JEAN, d. Santa Barbara, Cal., Mar. 24, 1962 (63).
- GOLDMAN, EDWIN FRANKO, b. Louisville, Ky., Jan. 1, 1878; d. New York, Feb. 21, 1958.
- GRAINGER, PERCY, b. Melbourne, July 8, 1882; d. White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 20, 1961.
- GREEN, BURT, d. 1922.
- GREET, SIR BEN, b. aboard a recruiting ship on Thames river, Eng., Sept. 24, 1857; d. London, May 17, 1936.
- HALEY, HARRY—see Burr, Henry.
- HAMBURG, BORIS, b. Vorenesk, Russia, Dec. 27, 1884; d. Toronto, Ont., Nov. 24, 1954.
- HAMLIN, GEORGE JOHN, b. Elgin, Ill., Sept. 20, 1868; d. Chicago, Jan. 11, 1923.
- HARVARD, SUE, b. Wales, ab. 1887.
- HAYES, ROLAND, b. Curryville, Ga., June 3, 1887.
- HILLIARD, ROBERT, b. New York, May 28, 1857; d. New York, June 6, 1927.
- HISLOP, JOSEPH, b. Edinburgh, Apr. 5, 1887.
- HITCHCOCK, RAYMOND, b. Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1865; d. Beverly Hills, Cal., Nov. 24, 1929.
- HOFMANN, JOSEF, b. Cracow, Poland, Jan. 20, 1876; d. Los Angeles, Feb. 16, 1957.
- HOLLMAN, JOSEF, b. Maestricht, Holland, Oct. 16, 1852; d. 1927.
- HOPPER, DE WOLF, b. New York, Mar. 30, 1858; d. Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 25, 1935.
- HOWARD, KATHLEEN, b. Clifton, Ont., d. Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 15, 1956 (77).
- IRWIN, MAY, b. Whitby, Ont., June 27, 1862; d. New York, Oct. 22, 1938.
- JACOBY, JOSEPHINE, b. New York, 1875; d. New York, Nov. 13, 1948.
- JANIS, ELSIE, b. Delaware, O., Mar. 16, 1889; d. Hollywood, Feb. 27, 1956.
- JEFFERSON, JOSEPH, b. Philadelphia, Feb. 20, 1928; d. West Palm Beach, Fla., Apr. 23, 1905.
- JOHNSON, EDWARD, b. Guelph, Ont., Aug. 22, 1878; d. Guelph, Apr. 20, 1959.

James Melton, favorite opera and concert tenor, was born in 1904 and died in 1961.

Riccardo Martin was an impressive "Faust" in Gounod's opera. —Photos courtesy of Thomas B. Mason, U.S. District Attorney, Roanoke, Va.

The famous American tenor, Riccardo Martin, was born in 1878 and died in 1952.

- JONES, ISHAM, b. Coalton, O., Jan. 31, 1894; d. Hollywood, Fla., Oct. 19, 1956.
 JOY, LEONARD W., d. New York, Nov. 21, 1961 (67).
 JUCH, EMMA, b. Vienna, July 4, 1861; d. New York, Mar. 6, 1939.
 KELLY, WALTER C., b. Mineville, N. Y., Oct. 29, 1873; d. Philadelphia, Jan. 6, 1939.
 KIMMEL, JOHN J., b. Brooklyn, Dec. 13, 1886; d. Brooklyn, Sept. 18, 1942.
 KNAPP, FRANK—see Burr, Henry.
 KNOWLES, R. G., b. Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 7, 1858; d. Eng., Jan. 1, 1919.
 KREISLER, FRITZ, b. Vienna, Feb. 2, 1875; d. New York, Jan. 29, 1962.
 KRONOLD, HANS, b. Krakau, Austria, July 23, 1873; d. New York, Jan. 10, 1922.
 KUBELIK, JAN, b. Michle, Bohemia, July 5, 1880; d. Prague, Dec. 5, 1940.
 LAMONT, FORREST, b. Athlestone, Can., Jan. 26, 1885.
 LASHANSKA, HULDA, b. New York, Mar. 15, 1893; d. (?).
 LAURENTI, MARIO, b. Verona, Italy, 1891; d. New York, Mar. 7, 1921.
 LAZARO, HIPOLITO, b. Barcelona 1889.
 LAZZARI, CAROLINA, b. Milford, Mass., Dec. 26, 1891; d. Stony Creek, Conn., Oct. 17, 1946.
 LAZZARI, VIRGILIO, b. Assisi, Italy, Apr. 20, 1888; d. Castel Gondolfo, Italy, Oct. 4, 1953.
 LEHMANN, LILLI, b. Wurzburg, Germany, Nov. 24, 1848; d. Berlin, May 17, 1929.
 LENIHAN, BURTON, b. Saginaw, Mich., ab. 1890.
 LENO DAN, b. London, 1860; d. Eng., Oct. 31, 1904.
 LEVY, JULES, b. London, Apr. 28, 1838; d. Chicago, Nov. 28, 1903.
 "LITTLE TICH," b. London, 1868; d. London, 1928.
 LLOYD, ALICE, b. London, Oct. 20, 1873; d. Banstead, Eng., Nov. 17, 1949.
 LLOYD, MARIE, b. London, Feb. 12, 1870; d. London, Oct. 7, 1922.
 LYNN, FELICE, b. Slater, Mo., 1891; d. Allentown, Pa., Sept. 1, 1935.
 MacDONALD, CHRISTIE, b. Pictou, Nova Scotia, Feb. 28, 1880; d. Westport, Conn.
 MacDONOUGH, HARRY, b. Hamilton, Ont., May 30, 1871; d. New York, Sept. 26, 1931.
 MacFARLANE, GEORGE, b. Kingston, Ont., 1877; d. Hollywood, Feb. 22, 1932.
 MACK, CHARLES E., b. White Cloud, Kan., 1888; d. auto accident, Mesa, Ariz., Jan. 11, 1934.
 MARDONES, JOSE, b. Pontechia, Spain, 1869; d. Madrid, May 4, 1932.
 MARSH, LUCY ISABELLE, b. Ithaca, N. Y., April 10, 1878; d. Providence, R. I., Jan. 20, 1956.
 MARTIN, RICCARDO, b. Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 18, 1878; d. New York, Aug. 12, 1952.
 MASON, EDITH, b. St. Louis, Mar. 22, 1893.
 MAXTED, STANLEY, b. Folkestone, Eng., 1895.
 MAYHEW, STELLA, b. Waynesburg, O.; d. New York, May 2, 1934 (ab. 60).
 McLEAN, QUENTIN, b. London, May 14, 1896, l. Toronto, Can.
 McQUHAE, ALLEN, b. Bray county, Wicklow, Ireland; d. Corpus Christi, Tex., July 3, 1960.
 MEADER, GEORGE FARNHAM, b. Minneapolis, July 6, 1888.
 MELTON, JAMES, b. Moultrie, Ga., Jan. 2, 1904; d. New York, Apr. 21, 1961.
 MOORE, GRACE, b. Slabtown, Tenn., Dec. 5, 1901; d. Copenhagen, Jan. 26, 1947.
 MORGAN, WILLIAM H. (REV.), b. Whiton Park, Eng., 1861; d. (?).
 MORINI, ERIKA, b. Vienna, Austria, May 26, 1906.
 MORRIS, ELIDA, b. Philadelphia, Nov. 12, 1886; l. Santa Barbara, Cal.
 MUNN, FRANK, b. Brooklyn, 1895; d. St. Alban's, Queens, N. Y., Oct. 2, 1953.
 MURATORE, LUCIEN, b. Marseilles, Aug. 28, 1876; d. Paris, July 16, 1954.
 NARELLE, MARIE, b. Combanning Station, Australia; d. Chipping Norton, Eng., Jan., 1941 (70).
 NASH, HEDDLE, b. Eng., June 14, 1896; d. London, Aug. 14, 1961.
 NORDICA, LILLIAN, b. Farmington, Me., Dec. 17, 1857; d. Batavia, Java, May 10, 1914.
 NORTH, FRANK, d. Red Bank, N. J., July 20, 1960 (89).
 NORWORTH, JACK, b. Philadelphia, Jan. 5, 1879; d. Laguna Beach, Cal., Sept. 1, 1959.
 OLITZKA, ROSA, b. Berlin, Sept. 6, 1873; d. Chicago, Sept. 29, 1949.
 OHMAN, PHIL, b. New Britain, Conn., Oct. 7, 1896; d. Santa Monica, Cal., Aug. 8, 1954.
 PADEREWSKI, IGNACE JAN, b. Kurylowka, Poland, Nov. 18, 1860; d. New York, June 28, 1941.
 PAVLOSKA, IRENE, b. St. Johns, Que.; d. Chicago, Feb. 12, 1962 (72).
 PERTILE, AURELIANO, b. Padua, Italy, Nov. 3, 1885; d. Milan, Jan. 11, 1952.
 PILZER, MAXIMILIAN, b. New York, Feb. 26, 1890; d. New York, May 30, 1958.
 PINZA, EZIO, b. Rome, May 18, 1892; d. Stamford, Conn., May 9, 1957.
 POWELL, MAUD, b. Peru, Ill., Aug. 22, 1868; d. Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 8, 1920.
 RACHMANINOFF, SERGEI, b. Onega, Novgorod, Russia, April 2, 1873; d. Beverly Hills, Cal., Mar. 28, 1943.
 RAISA, ROSA, b. Ballystock, Poland, May 23, 1893.
 RAPPOLD, MARIE, b. Brooklyn, ab. 1873; d. North Hollywood, May 12, 1957.
 RAYMOND, MAUD, d. Rockville Center, N. Y., May 10, 1961 (89).
 REA, VIRGINIA, b. Kentucky, ab. 1896; d. New York, July 7, 1941.
 REISMAN, LEO F., b. Boston, Oct. 11, 1897; d. New York, Dec. 18, 1961.
 RENAUD, MAURICE, b. Bordeaux, France, July 24, 1861; d. Paris, Oct. 16, 1933.
 RICHARDSON, FRANK, b. Philadelphia; d. Philadelphia, Jan. 30, 1962 (63).
 RIMINI, GIACOMO, b. Verona, Italy, Mar. 22, 1888; d. Chicago, Mar. 6, 1952.
 RING, BLANCHE, b. Boston, Apr. 24, 1872; d. Santa Monica, Cal., Jan. 13, 1961.
 ROMAN, MANUEL, b. Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 1, 1872.
 ROTHIER, LEON, b. Rheims, France, Dec. 26, 1874; d. New York, Dec. 6, 1951.
 SAMMARCO, MARIO, b. Palermo, Sicily, Dec. 13, 1873; d. Milan, Jan. 24, 1930.
 SANDERSON, JULIA, b. Springfield, Mass., Aug. 20, 1884.
 SCHUMANN, ELIZABETH, b. Merseberg, Germany, June 13, 1891; d. New York, Apr. 23, 1952.
 SEAGLE, OSCAR, b. Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 31, 1877; d. Dallas, Tex., Dec. 20, 1945.
 SEMBRICH, MARCELLA, b. Wiznisowcyk, Galicia, Feb. 15, 1858; d. New York, Jan. 11, 1935.
 SHEPHERD, BETSY LANE, b. Pennsylvania, ab. 1890; d. Queens, N. Y., Aug. 29, 1955.
 SHIELD, JEROME, b. Waseca, Minn., Oct. 2, 1898; d. Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Jan. 10, 1962.
 SHIELDS, ELLA, b. Baltimore, Sept. 26, 1879; d. Lancashire, Eng., Aug. 5, 1952.
 SILVER, MONROE, b. New York, Dec. 21, 1875; d. New York, May 3, 1947.
 SLEZAK, LEO, b. Schonberg, Moravia, Aug. 18, 1873; d. Eggen, Bavaria, June 1, 1946.
 SPENCER, GRACE (Mrs. Willard Foster Doolittle), b. Passaic, N. J., Nov. 6, 1872; d. New York, Aug. 13, 1952.
 SPENCER, JANET, b. Boston, 1874; d. Hollywood, May 19, 1948.

(Continued on next page)

SUPERVIA, CONCHITA, b. Barcelona, Dec. 8, 1899; d. London, Mar. 30, 1936.
 STRACCIARI, RICCARDO, b. Bologna, Italy, June 26, 1875; d. Rome, Oct. 10, 1955.
 SUNDELIUS, MARIE, b. Karlstad, Sweden, 1882; d. Boston, June 26, 1958.
 TATE, HARRY, b. Scotland, July 4, 1872; d. Eng., Feb. 14, 1940.
 THOMAS, JOHN CHARLES, b. Meyersdale, Pa., Sept. 6, 1891; d. Apple Valley, Cal., Dec. 13, 1960.
 THOMPSON, WILLIAM H., b. Liverpool, Eng., Oct. 28, 1869; d. Chicago, July 24, 1945.
 TIFFANY, MARIE, b. Chicago, ab. 1888; d. New York, Apr. 12, 1948.
 TILLEY, VESTA, b. Worcester, Eng., May 13, 1864; d. London, Sept. 16, 1952.
 TRENTINI, EMMA, b. Mantua, Italy, Apr. 10, 1885; d. Milan, Apr. 12, 1959.
 VALLIN, NINON, b. Montalieu-Vercin, Isere, France, Sept. 9, 1886; d. France, Nov. 22, 1961.
 VAN, BILLY B., b. Pottstown, Pa.; d. Newport, N. H., Nov. 16, 1952 (72).
 VAN, GUS, b. Brooklyn, Aug. 12, 1887.
 VANCE, CLARICE, b. Louisville, Ky., Mar. 14, 1871; d. Napa, Cal., Aug. 24, 1961.
 VAN HOOSE, ELLISON, b. Murfreesboro, Tenn., Aug. 18, 1868; d. Houston, Tex., Mar. 24, 1936.

VAN ROOY, ANTON, b. Rotterdam, Holland, Jan. 1, 1870; d. Munich, Nov. 28, 1932.
 VERLET, ALICE, b. Brussels, 1874; d. Brussels, 1930.
 VICTORIA, VESTA, b. Leeds, Eng., Nov. 26, 1873; d. London, Apr. 7, 1951.
 WALKER, EDYTH, b. Hopewell, N. Y., Mar. 27, 1870; d. New York, Feb. 19, 1950.
 WATEROUS, HERBERT L., b. Flint, Mich., Nov. 18, 1869; d. Woodstock, N. Y., Aug. 28, 1947.
 WESTON, AL H., d. Revere, Mass., Mar., 1946 (79).
 WHEATON, ANNA, b. Savannah, Ga.; d. Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 25, 1961 (65).
 WHITE, CAROLINA, b. Boston, 1886; d. Rome, Oct. 5, 1961.
 WILDER, MARSHALL P., b. Geneva, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1859; d. St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1, 1915.
 WILLIAMS, BERT, b. New Providence, Bahama Islands, Nov. 12, 1874; d. New York, Mar. 4, 1922.
 WILLIAMS, BRANSBY, b. Hackney, Eng., Aug. 14, 1870; d. London, Dec. 3, 1961.
 WITHERSPOON, HERBERT, b. Buffalo, July 27, 1873; d. New York, May 10, 1935.
 YSAYE, EUGEN, b. Liege, Belgium, July 16, 1858; d. Brussels, May 12, 1931.
 ZOELLNER, ANTOINETTE (of Zoellner String Quartet), d. Los Angeles, Mar. 11, 1962 (76).

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy and sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. au3863

SHEET MUSIC, 1900 and up. Over 300. Send for free list. All $1 each. — Ric Verdi Antiques, 854 Taunton Ave., East Providence, Rhode Island. d6867

America's beloved operatic soprano, Geraldine Farrar, recently observed her 80th birthday.

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colo. s12698

200 COPIES old sheet music. Hit songs, Ziegfeld Follies, Geo. M. Cohan, etc. Also have old books. — Harry W. Barber, Alder Creek, N. Y. jly1002

MISC. MUSIC WANTED

Mills, Virtuoso Rolls with some familiar tunes. Quote price, condition and name of tune. — P. M. Connelly, 710 Washington Blvd., Oak Park, Ill. s3255

WANTED: Jolson material - catalogs, playbills, programs, recordings, original sheet music covers with pictures of Jolson, any magazines with articles concerning Jolson. — L. L. Henegar, c/o Public Service Co., Lawton, Okla. s3084

WANTED: Encore Banjo rolls. Mandrel attachment for Edison Electric Class M phonograph. — Gene Ballard, 1819 W. 148th St., Gardena, Calif. jly1061

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Seeburg keyboard style nickelodeon with piano, mandolin, and flute pipes. Entire instrument including case and stained glass is in mint condition. A better performing instrument could not be found. Price, $875. — Douglas W. McGee, 532 Arrowhead Drive, Green Bay, Wis. s3276

GOLDEN AGE singers' photographs. Large group cabinet pictures (mostly Duponts). Excellent condition. None autographed. $1 each or less if bought in substantial quantity. Send for list if interested. — Henry Y. Porter, 276 Summer Ave., Reading, Mass. jly1253

PIANOS & ROLLS

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1519 California St., San Francisco, Calif. au3804

FOR SALE: Welte - Mignon Upright, Farrand; good condition; expression may need some touching up. — Leah Hall, 7102 Narcissus, Houston 17, Tex. jly3633

WANTED: Rolls made by Art Gillham on Duo-Art, Mel-O-Dee, and Vocalstyle. Also trade sheets and magazines mentioning Art Gillham. — George Blau, 2823 N. Rockwood Dr., Peoria, Ill. au3234

WANTED: Welte - Mignon, Deluxe, Duo-Art, and regular rolls. List titles and prices. — A. H. Giragosian, 603 So. Walter Reed Dr., Arlington 4, Va. o122741

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. d126351

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

HOW IT FELT TO MAKE RECORDS IN THE DAYS OF THE RECORDING HORN

By JIM WALSH

PART I

"When the orchestra is roaring all around you, and the sound of your voice is lost in the recording-horn so that you have to put your hands over your ears to hear yourself sing; when the song ends and a long minute of dead silence follows, during which the sound of your own heart beat sounds like the bombardment of Ypres . . . and then the operator smiles to the conductor, and the conductor smiles at you and tells you the record is one of the best you ever did—Oh boy, ain't it a grand and glorious feeling!"

—From James E. Richardson's "By the Way—" Department, in the Victor record supplement for October, 1918.

In these days of tape recorders with immediate playbacks, the sound of one's recorded voice is no longer a novelty, though usually a disconcerting experience on hearing it for the first time. But in the pioneer days of recording, when the conditions of record-making were so much more difficult than now, singing into that gaping, expressionless, but all too sensitive horn, constituted, even for experienced performers, a trying, and sometimes frightening adventure.

Because of this it seems to me it should be valuable, from a historical standpoint, to go back to those early days and quote what some of the artists said about their experiences.

Not back to the very earliest days, however, when cylinders were made several at a time, and then copied on a duplicating machine, or even to the succeeding gold moulded stage, when many moulds of the same selection had to be prepared before a sufficiently large quantity of cylinders could be manufactured.

The Edison Company usually made from 10 to 40 moulds of a Standard two-minute record, depending on its probable popularity. Edison's most popular singer, Billy Murray, told me he nearly always was called on to turn out master records for at least 40 moulds—which, with "rejects" and something going wrong with the recording, ordinarily meant singing each title considerably more than 40 times!

Instead, we'll pick up some comments by Maria Jeritza, the gorgeous Austrian operatic soprano, quoted in The Literary Digest for May 10, 1924, and note that she makes much the same kind of references as "Jim" Richardson to the "roaring" orchestra and the necessity of cupping hands to hear what one was singing.

However, this experience with surging orchestral sound seems to have been peculiar to artists who recorded for Victor, which was more insistent on a lavish background of accompaniment than were competing companies.

Thomas A. Edison, at the other extreme, argued that the orchestra should be heard just sufficiently to support the singer but not to make its presence obtrusive. Edison accompaniments, therefore, were "held down," which frequently resulted in the complaint that they were inadequate.

After Mr. Edison became too deaf in 1925 to continue "monitoring" the records, the orchestrations were greatly improved from the standpoint of those who like rich, sonorous accompaniments.

Also it should be mentioned that the hill-and-dale method of recording used by Edison allowed more "land" between the record grooves than did the lateral records; and it was not necessary for Edison artists to advance or withdraw their heads at various distances from the horn in order to avoid "blast" or overcutting of grooves.

Here is part of what the lovely blonde Jeritza said:

"When I journeyed out to the laboratories of the Company (Victor) for which I had agreed to make some opera records, I already knew one thing out of my previous experience: that I must try to sing just as naturally as I would on the stage.

"But when I arrived I knew that the only way I could do so would be to forget my surroundings completely, for my setting was anything but a stage-setting.

"First of all, the records were made in a small room, a room so small that the members of the little orchestra of 10 or 14 men which accompanied me had to sit close together, knee to knee. Then came the actual singing itself.

"With the orchestra so close to the singer the sound of the instruments is so overpowering that it drowns the voice, and I could not hear myself sing. This effect, of course, is never made when the record has been finished and perfected, and the orchestra has been 'toned down' so that the singer's voice stands out above it.

"But at the time it is very distracting. When the singer no longer can hear her own voice, she is at a loss; but I found myself able to overcome this difficulty by holding my hands over my ears, thus shutting out the orchestra. Once I did this, I knew what I was about and had no further trouble.

"Then there is the matter of adjusting your position, as you stand and sing; so that you are at exactly the right distance to the receiver. For deep register tones one comes closer, for high register tones one moves farther away. The receiving mechanism is a delicate one; if the singer produces a powerful high tone too near the machine, its pressure may easily break the receiver. Sudden pressure has to be avoided.

"The first record made is always an experimental one. It enables the singer to hear herself as she should not be, points out to her where she is at fault as regards her distances from the machine, and allows her to make the necessary corrections.

"The second recording already, as a rule, marks an advance. And, then, growing nearer perfection with each repetition, come a third, and a fourth, and as many more recordings as may be necessary to secure perfect results.

Crank - Pump - Play
a million dollar
collection of restored
musical antiques at the

DEANSBORO MUSICAL MUSEUM
DEANSBORO, N. Y.

(14 Miles South of Utica)
Open every day 10 to 7

Color Photo for stamped envelope.

auc

Maria Jeritza, glamorous Metropolitan Opera soprano, who described her experiences with the recording horn.

Richard Jose admitted he "shook like a frightened child" the first time he heard his recorded voice. This is the front page of a four-page folder which Victor issued to announce the great counter-tenor's first records in 1903. One was the first Victor record of "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

"... well written and often explosively funny ..."

—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

138c

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (FE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.

Specialists since 1825

tfo

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clockmakers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

ADDRESS CHANGE

Four to five weeks are necessary for the change of your subscription address.

Please state when the change becomes effective.

Please include your OLD address as well as the NEW.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.).
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

tfx

"One thing apt to be forgotten is that while the receiver is recording, the least sound, a word, a whisper, the noise of a movement, the dropping of a pin, is recorded together with the music. It is for this reason that only the artist herself and those otherwise directly concerned in making the record are allowed to be in the recording room. The precaution is a wise one.

"I remember that on one occasion I secured permission for a friend to accompany me, and watch me make a record. It was Senta's ballad from 'The Flying Dutchman' and my friend had watched with interest the gradual building up of the song into a really fine record.

"When I sang it for the last time, to make the final record, however, she forgot all about the rule of silence, and no sooner had the last note left my mouth than she cried out enthusiastically, 'Oh, you sang that beautifully!' The accompaniment had not yet come to an end, and sure enough, when the record was played this artless cry of 'Oh, you sang that beautifully!' rang out in the most comical way. Of course, the whole thing had to be done over again.

"And in spite of the soundproof walls of the recording room, certain noises, if they are high and shrill enough, manage to get in. I know that all recording came to an end when we neared 12 o'clock, since otherwise, whatever opera air I was singing, would have been punctuated by the sound of the factory whistles which everywhere announced the noon hour.

"There is a fairly certain way of telling whether your record of a song has turned out well, even though you have not heard it. As soon as the record has been made one takes a look at the impression through a microscope. The line of the impression reveals the truth; if the line is irregular, with numerous breaks, the record is worthless; but if the line is smooth and shows no breaks, then the record will be a good one."

Madame Jeritza's reference to the microscope reminds me of something in connection with Edison recordings. Most companies insisted on having three satisfactory masters made of each number. Usually, but not always, they worked from only the copy decided on as best and kept the others as spares.

Edison also made three masters, but almost invariably pressed from all. The masters were lettered A, B, and C, and many collectors have taken this to mean the order in which they were recorded. That is, A would have been sung or played first, B second, and C last.

Actually, the decision as to lettering was made by an expert with a microscope, Harry Getcliffe. The master record whose grooves seemed to him best formed was termed A; the runner-up, B, and the also-ran, C. Sometimes the interpretations on the Bs or Cs were preferable to the As.

Often Edison records would be remade after a time, and the new letterings were F. G. and H. (D and E were skipped). Still later, but not often, I might be skipped and there would be a new series of J. K. and L.

(I have an L of the Trovatore Anvil Chorus, by the New York Light Opera Company. And the system seems to have extended as far as M, N, and O, for a friend has told me of having an O version of "The Merry Widow Waltz," by the Peerless Orchestra).

II. Dick Jose's Experiences

One of the first famous recording artists to describe how he felt when singing into a baleful horn was that great counter-tenor, the late Richard José. Like many other performers, he said it was an agonizing experience.

In 1907 interviewed by Ashton Stevens of the San Francisco Examiner, José described recording as "the most secret thing in the world."

"You're locked all alone with the band in a big bare room. Your back is to the musicians and your face to a bleak, blank wall through which protrudes a solemn horn. Into this horn you sing. Not a soul is in sight.

"A bell rings—one. That is to get ready, for the receiving instrument is so sensitive that if you moved your sleeves against your coat the sound would register. Somebody outside presses the button—two.

"The band starts the prelude, then you sing, turning neither to the right nor left, always looking and singing into that protruding horn. And you can't even let out a breath after your last one; you must close your lips on it and wait for the little whirr within the horn to cease.

"When do you hear the result?

"In hardly no time. And if you are new to the game it nearly kills you. When I first heard my own voice I turned clammy all over and shook like a frightened child. I had to be quieted down before I could go on with the next ballad.

"No man knows what his own voice sounds like till he hears it reproduced by a machine: he can't know otherwise: his auditory apparatus is too closely mixed up with his voice machinery—he can't get the distance!"

III. George Hamlin Writes

If José had been a German, he might, on first hearing his played-back voice, have exclaimed "Mein Gott im Himmel!" — the awe-struck remark made by Thomas Edison's mechanic, John Kruesi, when Edison gave the first demonstration of his tin-foil phonograph and the crude device squeakily recited "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

In the Chicago Herald for October 3, 1915, one of the most esteemed concert tenors, the late George John Hamlin, wrote an account of his Victor record-making experiences:

"I have just spent a week in Camden, N. J., making new records and listening to myself sing — a strange sensation but a valuable one to a singer.

"Only a few years ago, I should say not more than 10 or 12, this great company possessed one little building in Camden, where everything in the line of records, machines, etc., was manufactured. Today the concern occupies buildings valued at several millions of dollars with others in the course of construction, and over 6,500 employees are engaged in the work.

"In preparing for the making of records, the first important question is, What shall I select? When half a dozen songs, more or less, have been decided upon after consultation with the director of the recording department, and dates have been agreed upon, the music is sent to the conductor of the orchestra.

"The records are made in a large room with little furnishing except seats or benches, some high, some low, on which the members of the orchestra sit, arranged in such a way that those in the rear are raised above those in front in order to allow the sound to reach the recording horns advantageously. These horns connect with the recording instrument in an adjoining room through a partition which entirely separates the two rooms.

"No one is admitted into the receiving room, and what takes place there is known only to the person in charge of that important part of the work. This person communicates with the conductor through a small window and by means of a "buzzer" signal.

"The singer stands about 12 inches from the recording horn and sings in the customary way — if he can, for it is no easy job. He must always bear in mind that when singing a very high or loud tone he must draw back slightly from the horn or the result will not be good.

First the song is tried over with the orchestra to settle the question of proper tempo, phrasing, etc., and then a test record is made which is at once played back from the recording machine to the singer. When all seems satisfactory, several records are made of each selection so that a choice can be made and the best of each retained. After the singer has recorded three or four songs he can feel he has done a good day's work.

"In making a record a great responsibility rests on every one concerned, on each member of the orchestra as well as on the singer, for the slightest slip or error, which in a public performance might never be noticed, is on a record indelibly stamped, never to be removed, and becomes more and more apparent and offensive with each rendition, rendering the record worthless.

"After the records have been made they must be thoroughly tested, and if faults appear the records are destroyed and new ones must be made. Those that appear artistically satisfactory and are accepted must go through several severe mechanical tests before they reach the market."

(TO BE CONTINUED)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 31)

C. casto fior is eloquent but a bit dispassionate for the longing it conveys. "Triste Aprile," a lovely romanza da camera, even got Scotti under its spell; ripples of emotion run through his words, as they also do in Tosti's equally appealing "Invano." The "Messaline" piece, of course, is sung entirely differently. It's romantic enough, but what invests it with grandeur are the effective sweeping phrases.

It is an odd thing to say, but Scotti's Neapolitan does not sound "real," neither in style nor dialect. First, the feeling of the Neapolitan song isn't there; and as for dialect, his often leans towards the classical Italian. "Luna Nova," a lilting barcarola, resembles a dirge the way he does it. In "Scetate," a serenade, the Neapolitan in him wakes up a bit while he's trying to wake up his sleeping beauty.

An interesting, well-balanced LP of a great Golden Age artist—one which I, myself, enjoyed listening to and am happy to recommend.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

HOW IT FELT TO MAKE RECORDS IN THE DAYS OF THE RECORDING HORN

By JIM WALSH

PART II

Especially observant readers will have detected in last month's section of this two-part story on pioneer days of recording, that Jeritza referred to the recording room as small, while Jose and Hamlin said it was large. Of course a number of rooms of different size and design were in use. None of the artists have said anything about the temperature of the recording rooms. Today's air conditioning was unknown in those days, and the atmosphere frequently became oppressive. This led many singers and orchestra members to work in their shirt sleeves.

IV. Alma Gluck's Recollections

Next we hear from that captivating Rumanian-born soprano, the late Alma Gluck, who wrote in Vanity Fair for October, 1916. Like Jeritza, she was embarrassed by a gushing bystander:

"I believe that the general public has no idea of how difficult it is to create a proper record of one's voice. I myself never realized—until I first sang for the records—how much I had always depended on my audience for its encouragement and support; how much the eyes and the facial expression of those who were near me in my concerts assisted me in my singing.

"Imagine yourself singing into a funnel, as it were (a pyramidal, not a cone-shaped funnel, by the way), with absolutely nothing to inspire you and a great deal to make you conscious of many purely mechanical details!

"There you stand, about a foot from the funnel, careful not to approach too near lest the tone of your voice be thick and muffled; careful, too, not to draw too far away from it lest your voice, in the reproduction, should sound thin or remote.

"And, every moment, you cannot but be painfully aware of how fatal it would be if you made the slightest slip or marred the matrix by any unpremeditated sound. Is it surprising, under these circumstances, that one should feel more nervous in making a record than while singing a song in opera, or on the concert stage?

"On the concert platform one can easily counteract the impression created by one's errors, calling in the assistance, if need be, of facial expression, or pose, or, on occasions, even of gesture.

"Not so when you are singing for the remorseless recording machine. With grim precision it registers every sound—a gentle clearing of the throat, for example, or a smacking of the lip between words, or, what is still worse, the smothered sneeze of a musician in the orchestra near by.

"Under such conditions, of course, you cannot be perfectly spontaneous. You have constantly to be thinking of tone, of breath, of diction, and of a variety of other things. But that is exactly why I consider singing for the machine the essence of bel canto.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

"An amusing experience that will serve as a case in point comes to mind at this moment. On a certain occasion my secretary received permission to be present while I was registering an operatic record. She was, nervously, just as much keyed up as I was, or the members of the orchestra.

"In fact, she could hardly wait until I had sung the last phrase successfully. 'That's fine,' she whispered excitedly while the final chord was still resounding in the little room.

"And, alas, an excellent record was spoiled—much to the annoyance of all concerned—by the fact that just as the song was ending my secretary could be heard remarking—in the record—that the song was 'fine.'

"One of the most touching letters I have lately received—and these letters come in a constant stream from unknown friends living as far away as New Zealand—was written by an old man who had lost his wife after many, many years of married happiness.

Artists who made Edison cylinder records in 1907. A full instrumental group is seen here playing a stirring march for the sole benefit of a phonograph. The large metal horn, the all-attentive ear of the instrument, shows in the center. Phonographs were often operated by small electric motors.

Notice that Number 9 is the versatile Albert Benzler, piano accompanist, and orchestra bells, and zylphone virtuoso, this time playing a violin!

Other identified persons are: 1. Edward Meeker, announcer. 2. William Tuson, clarinet. (3. unidentified). 4. Fred Rabenstein, general handy man. 5. Bill Weber, horn. 6. Eugene Rose, flute. 7. Eugene Jaudas, conductor. 10. Fred Burt, drummer. 11. H. E. Getcliffe, microscope expert. 12. Harvey Emmons, chimes. 13. Harry Voorhees. 14. George Werner. At Edison Laboratory, West Orange, N. J.

"It seems that she had sung many of the songs which I had recorded on the Victor, and the only thing that kept him from black despair was to summon the aid of the machine and hear his wife's favorites repeated over and over again.

"There is something peculiarly moving in the thought, brought home to me so often, that I am privileged to carry a certain degree of solace to the young and the old, to the strong and the weak, in such different parts of the world.

"One of the myriad pleasant acquaintances—by correspondence only—which the records have been the happy means of making for me, was a bedridden lady in the heart of Australia who—kind soul—had knitted a shawl for me because of gratitude for making her room, which had once been a prison to her, a bearable temple of music.

"Last Christmas I received the shawl which my bedridden and unseen old friend had made for me hundreds of miles from Melbourne in Australia. I never wear it without wondering anew at the distant and happy vistas of life which my records have been the means of revealing to me."

V. Making an Edison Instrumental Cylinder

Alma Gluck joined Jeritza in referring to a "small" room! To the gentlemen it was large; to the ladies, small!

So far only Victor artists have been quoted. I don't seem to find any descriptions written by Columbia staff members, so we may now move on to Edison. First, not an account by an Edison artist, but an article published in a 1907 Musical America, which described the method of making Edison instrumental cylinders:

"Step across the hall into the recording room, a room bare of furniture, ending in a wooden partition from the center of which projects a long, slender tube. Seated directly in front of this are three musicians, masters of their respective instruments, in fact, as the case happens, members of the Metropolitan Opera House Orchestra.

"On a platform, raised to about the level of a man's head, sits the harpist; at the base of the platform and close to it, the flutist; to the fore and behind him, the violinist. All three are huddled close together, so as to focus the body of tone, yet not so close as to interfere with the freedom of motion necessary.

"The relative positions, as to height and distance from the horn, of the various instruments, have been carefully measured and tested by experience. The artists are booked weeks ahead, just as if they were playing at an ordinary concert, only as we shall see, they have to be exceedingly generous with encores.

"The violin is not the ordinary wooden-bellied instrument we are accustomed to seeing, but is a bar of wood with strings, keys, and bridge, and an aluminum diaphragm and horn, the invention of a London musician.

"Step back of the wooden partition. There, on the other side of the aperture, is the end of the horn with the attached needle cutting its careful groove in the cylinder, from which fly glistening clouds of the most delicate wax filaments.

"A tiny electric light illumines the rotary path of the record, which is taken on completion of this stage to another revolving machine where fine camel-hair brushes remove any stray threads of the wax which may have adhered.

"The record is then taken into another 'room' and played to the 'critic,' who passes judgment upon the rendering from a musical point of view and also as regards its reception by the machine. While this is going on, the musicians are making another record of the same selection in the room with the wooden partition.

"This completed, they join the critic and pass upon the records; deciding, perhaps, that some tone ought to sound

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG

MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlay restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

f38c

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825

tfo

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clockmakers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

ADDRESS CHANGE

Four to five weeks are necessary for the change of your subscription address.

Please state when the change becomes effective.

Please include your OLD address as well as the NEW.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

tfr

EDISON PHONOGRAPH MONTHLY, NOVEMBER, 1914

187

From top to bottom, top: Lucien Muratore and Lina Cavalieri recording a duet for Pathe, probably about 1906. All Pathe sapphire ball discs were copied from 14-inch cylinders.

Bottom: Thomas Chalmers making an Edison record in 1914.

stronger, another less harsh, etc.; in this way finally making a record that is not only pronounced perfect by the musical critic, but by the record critic as well. The latter examines the finished cylinders with a microscope to see that they are exact in every detail."

VI. Canadian Tenor's Experiences

The three artists mentioned in the Musical America article were the Edison Venetian Trio—Eugene Jaudas, violin; Eugene Rose, flute; and Carl Schuetze, harp.

Now we come to the first description written by an Edison artist—the still living (as far as I know) Canadian tenor, Percy Redferne Hollinshead—in a 1914 Canadian Journal of Music. He called it "My First Attempt at Recording Before an Edison Phonograph," and his nervous reaction was almost identical to that of Jose:

"Two years ago I sang my first trial record and that event is inscribed indelibly in my mind. I cannot describe the uncanny feeling which pervaded my whole being when, after finishing the song required, I listened to the record in the 'rough' (as it is technically termed.)

"The very first note sent a chill down my spine, not unlike an electric shock—the sound of my own voice seemed eerie to me, so much so that the Recording Manager remarked on my sudden pallor, thinking I was going to faint.

"Having received notice that Mr. Edison desired to have a trial record made of my voice, I went to New York, and was introduced to the suavest and most courteous of managers, Mr. W. H. Miller. He escorted me into the 'trial' room, which seems to be so designed that the novice's voice shall be heard to the greatest disadvantage.

"It is a bare, barnlike room, devoid of furniture, almost forbidding in aspect, and not conducive to assurance in any singer. The recording machine was ensconced behind a wooden partition in one corner, the horn, or funnel, projecting into the room so as to absorb every sound.

"An assistant gave me a few instructive remarks about refraining from coughing or clearing the throat during the singing, since every sound is irreparably reproduced on the wax.

"With far less assurance and far more trepidation than I should have faced a large audience, I approached this ominous-looking funnel; and the pianist having played the introduction with what at first seemed a much too loud and staccato manipulation of the keyboard, I started Kingsley's 'A Farewell,' and managed to finish the songs without undue trouble.

"But terrible suspense gripped my heart as I followed the unsympathetic assistant into the next room to hear my new record. It did not please me, for I had cleared my throat nervously during the interlude between two verses. The record was condemned; and I had twice to sing it over before it was considered a perfect record. Then I left the smiling manager, whose reassurance failed to satisfy my fears.

"The trial was successful, however, for I received a commission to return to New York and sing master records of two favorite songs of mine. This time I had the assistance of the Edison Concert Orchestra, a splendid aggregation of some 15 first-class musicians, whose inspiration to the singer is incalculable.

"And this time I went into the chief recording room, in which conditions seemed much more favorable from an acoustic point of view. The orchestra was grouped about the recording machine on raised platforms, forming a crescent round me. The conductor, who stood on a raised dais, was very exact in his instructions to his men as to rhythm, light and shade, and attack.

"We commenced the song selected, a Spanish serenade, in which violin, flute, and castanets are orchestrally featured. This time it was much easier, and I experienced genuine pleasure in the beautiful accompaniment of musicians who were really in rapport with me.

"We were stopped several times by the conductor, who wished to correct faults or improve effects; but in an hour's time I had the satisfaction of knowing that I had had two master records passed by the formidable array of critics employed by the company.

"One had criticized articulation, another phrasing, another voice production and tone, while another watched the score very closely. I experienced a thrill of joy when the committee announced that my records had found favor, that the company desired to retain my services for several years and offered me an exclusive contract.

"I have found that several essentials are imperative to the singing of perfect records. In the first place, the production of tone of the singer must be free and open, absolutely devoid of throatiness. The forward nasal resonance, diaphragmatic breathing, flawless diction—all these are absolutely necessary.

"The successful singer of records must also remember that personality, or stage presence, which is so often such a big factor in the success of concert singers, is here not at all in evidence.

"The singer must depend on artistry of the very highest type. He must be sure his tone is brilliant, resonant, and withal sympathetic. With all these essentials, I see no reason why our concert singers should not find record making as pleasant and satisfying work as concert singing.

"In conclusion, I might say that if there is one vowel which should be avoided by the singer who would make a successful record, it is the 'e' vowel, sung tightly on the teeth so as produce a hard, piercing tone. If the singer will use the French 'e' or 'eh' instead, he will gain invariable success, provided, of course, he follows the dictates of 'bel canto.'"

VII. And, Last, Thomas Chalmers

The light and graceful Spanish song in which Hollinshead and the orchestra found themselves in perfect accord must have been the well-known serenade, "Lolita." Edison issued it by Hollinshead on a Blue Amberol cylinder, but it did not appear on the disc, although several of his other numbers did.

Finally, we come to Thomas Chalmers, who was one of Edison's stars during the entire Diamond Disc period, as well as an outstanding baritone for the Metropolitan Opera House. Through a misfortune, Chalmers lost his splendid voice years ago, but is still prominent as a character actor in Broadway productions.

Here are excerpts from an article he wrote for the August, 1914, Edison Phonograph Monthly:

"Many singers, if not all, have felt the particular variety of 'stage fright' that attacks one when making phonograph records. Although it diminishes as one continues to record successfully, it never wholly disappears. There is something about a recording-room—with the devouring horns that face a singer, and the feeling that the sins of commission and omission are never to be forgiven or even forgotten that is more demoralizing than the ordinary 'stage fright' of the theater.

"The unforgivable sin in a record is a 'frog' (slight break or huskiness), a thing which, in the theater, is almost imperceptible, but which, on the record, is a blemish that is fatal.

"It may be easily understood that hearing a singer sing the same song hundreds of times, and always hearing him break on the same spot, is enough to cause the average listener after a few hearings to hear only that one blemish and finish by hurling the record out the window and vow solemnly never to buy another record made by that singer.

"A very real and considerable difficulty in the making of records is that the singer does not hear his own voice in the same way that he hears it when singing in a large auditorium. You hear it—but differently. It is gathered into a horn and never comes back to you as it does under other conditions, a fact which is very disconcerting at first and always makes it difficult.

"You have to sing by 'feeling' alone and are denied the aid of your ears, which aid is very great, as every singer knows. I have sung in many acoustically bad auditoriums, but never in one as bad (from the singer's standpoint) as the recording-room.

"However, in spite of, or on account of, these difficulties (probably the latter) it is extremely interesting work. In these days, when there seems to be a general understanding of the educational and moral influence of music, let us give Mr. Edison the credit and thanks for the greatest work of all—the phonograph.

"In the last few years it has done more to make music a part of every man's life than all the opera houses, symphony orchestras, and musical organizations in the world.

"Recording is one of the greatest aids to a singer's diction. If more singers recorded in English there would be less talk of bad diction, for the primary requirement for a good record is that the text be understood, and unless a singer is able to sing the words distinctly he is useless from a phonograph standpoint.

"The sooner the general public are as critical as the phonograph public in this matter of diction, the better it will be for opera in English, for half of the value of opera or music drama lies in the audience understanding the dramatic value of the text. Without that comprehension it is not complete. When it is sung in a foreign tongue, or in the vernacular indistinctly delivered, it ceases to be music drama and becomes music and pantomime."

And so ends our series of quotations from men and women who sweated, toiled, suffered—but, above all, sang—to make the records of 40 to 60 years ago that an incalculable number of record collectors treasure today. The singers all admitted it was hard work. But if they could have been certain, as they struggled, that discs and cylinders bearing their voices would be treasured in many thousands of homes today, and for generations to come, they could not but have agreed with the last line of "Jim" (Richardson's whimsical paragraph):

"Ain't it a grand and glorious feeling!"

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only, and cannot tell you where to sell them. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

RECORDINGS NEEDED, will pay high price: "Clarinettski," Johnny Dodds; "Prohibition Has Done Me Wrong," Jimmy Rodgers; WPA-Glenn Miller. Please contact: Aida Pavla-Artsay, 50 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N. Y. tfx

SEEKING TOSCANINI 78's on Victrola, HMV, Brunswick, Victor, V-Discs. — Weaver, 4406 Clay Ave., Houston 23, Texas. o6445

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. s3023

WANTED: Records, Radio Transcriptions, Films, Photographs, etc. by Guy Lombardo, Sammy Kaye, Blue Barron, Art Kassel, Ink Spots, Jan Garber. Highest prices paid. — Paul Scriven, 238 West State, Niles, Ohio. o3084

ART GILLHAM records wanted: Columbia 297-D, Bluebird B-5454, and all of his recordings for Pathe, Gennett, and Okeh. Also want his recording under the name Barrelhouse Pete. — George Blau, 2823 N. Rockwood Dr., Peoria, Ill. n3825

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. s3084

CLOSE OUT SALE: Opera, vocal, dance and orchestra records, reasonable prices. Price list 10c. — Dave Spahn, 19 Alexander Ave., Bloomfield, N. J. n3863

RECORDS: "The Ballad of Davy Crockett," 78 rpm, signed by Burl Ives. Never played. Best offer. Album, 4 records, "Monon Centennial Music," issued in 1947, excellent condition. 78 rpm. Best offer. — T. H. Stockton, 4070 Rupley Place, Arlington, Calif. s1213

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. d6084

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N. Y. o3618

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought. The Record Album, 208 W. 80th St., New York 24, N. Y. f128862

Collector's Records, 78's, famous artists, orchestras, vocals, instrumentals, cross section of the past entertainers. Let us know your wants. — Hunt, P.O. Box 407, Chillicothe, Mo. f60021

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to LP.—Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. d126121

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid.—American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. jcl20061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. o6276

FOR SALE: Hundreds of disc and cylinder records, many types of early phonographs, 25c for list. Also "Evolution of the Phonograph," by Walter Welch and Oliver Reed, a complete history of the phonograph, 576 pages, regular price $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. o3886

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP.—ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. f6806

I SEE HUNDREDS of records every day. Let's hear your needs.—Ted's Second Hand Store, 1128 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. (Stamp please). s3253

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. Collections bought as well as sold. — Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. s3065

COLLECTOR'S ITEMS: 78s to lps - Publisher: The Record Finder. — Jazz Man Record Shop, 2689 West Pico, Los Angeles, Calif. s124661

JUST DISCOVERED: A rare original recording of Thomas A. Edison speaking to the American people. Gen. John J. Pershing speaks on the other side. Re-issued and available for $1 from — The Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. o3426

TRY MARCONI'S for rare 78's. Serving collectors for 48 years. Original stock records of operatic, orchestral, popular and jazz. Also cut out lps. Send for operatic catalog, 25c. — Marconi Bros., 864 Lexington Ave., New York City 21, N. Y. o62511

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

A DIRECTORY OF PIONEER RECORDING GROUPS

By JIM WALSH

Publication of this article will be the attainment of a goal I set myself many years ago.

Since I have been writing for Hobbies I have answered hundreds of letters asking for information concerning the members of the various vocal and instrumental groups that made records in the phonograph's pioneer days.

I have long wanted to publish an article that would give this information in brief but accurate form — partly because I believed it would keep me from having to answer so many letters after it appeared, and partly because no such article had ever seen print. Now I have completed my note taking and am glad to present the result.

Obviously, however, no list could very well give the personnel of every trio, quartet, etc., that has made records. Even so, I believe this compilation does include all the really important popular ensembles that recorded up to the beginning of the electric recording era and a few that came afterwards.

A number of "classical" groups — mostly those that played chamber music — also are included. But it should be said that this list does not attempt to include hill-billy organizations, for they do not come within the scope of this department. Neither, with one or two exceptions, does it take in dance groups.

In a few instances, where there was doubt as to the exact personnel of some group, I have made a "shrewd guess," but have made it clear that the identifications are not certain.

If a pioneer recording organization isn't listed alphabetically here, you may be sure it's because I have not obtained trustworthy information concerning it. But here is the list itself, which I hope, and believe, is the most comprehensive thing of its kind ever attempted.

AMERICAN QUARTET—An organization by this name appeared in the Victor catalog as early as 1901. But I have recently been astounded to learn that the Edison Male Quartet, consisting of John Bieling, Jere Mahoney, S. H. Dudley and William F. Hooley, called itself the American Quartet as early as 1898, before it took the Haydn Quartet name for use on disc records.

The late S. H. Dudley recalled the 1901 Victor quartet as being composed of himself as baritone; Albert Campbell, first tenor; W. T. Leahy, second tenor, and Hooley, bass. Some Victor Monarch records which have the American Quartet name on the label are announced as being by the Haydn Quartet.

The American Quartet name disappeared from the catalog after 1904, but was revived in 1909 for a new organization which became the most popular male group specializing in ragtime and comic songs. It originally consisted of Bieling, Billy Murray, Steve Porter, and Hooley. On Edison cylinders, it was known as the Premier Quartet.

Bieling was succeeded in 1914 by John Young. When Hooley died in 1918, the ensemble became Young, Murray, Porter, and Donald Chalmers. It free-lanced during 1919 and 1920, and appeared on various brands of records as the American, Premier, Premier-American, and Murray Quartets — the latter name apparently restricted to one Aeolian-Vocalion record.

When Murray signed an exclusive Victor contract late in 1920, the American became identical with the Peerless Quartet except that Murray sang the lead instead of Henry Burr. Other members were Campbell, John Meyer, and Frank Croxton. The last American Quartet record, "Alabama Bound," appeared in 1925.

Meanwhile, Edison retained the right to the Premier Quartet name, and all Premier Quartet records, after Murray became exclusive to Victor, were made by the Harmonizers Quartet.

AMERICAN SINGERS (1927 into the 1930's) — Originally Charles Harrison, first tenor; Redferne Hollinshead, second tenor; Vernon Archibald, baritone; Frank Croxton, bass. After a year or so Hollinshead was succeeded by Lambert Murphy.

AMPHION QUARTET — See Harmonizers.

APOLLO QUARTET OF BOSTON (Edison, 1916)—William Whittaker, Lyman Hemenway, John Smallman, Alexander Logan.

APOLLO TRIO — See Crescent Trio.

ARKANSAS TRIO — (Edison, 1924) — Vernon Dalhart, Ed Smalle, John Call (banjo).

AVON COMEDY FOUR (Victor and Emerson, 1916; Columbia, 1918) — Joe Smith, Irving Kaufman, Harry Goodwin, Charles Dale. Kaufman later was succeeded by Eddie Miller, and Arthur Fields was a member for a brief period.

BETHEL JUBILEE QUARTET (Victor, 1923)—A. C. Brogdon, H. S. Allen, J. C. Eubanks, T. H. Wiseman.

BIG FOUR QUARTET (Edison cylinders, 1900) — Byron G. Harlan, Joe Natus, Arthur Collins, A. D. Madeira.

BISON CITY QUARTET (New Jersey cylinders, 1892)—Charles C. Miller, Ben R. Cook, Harry C. West, Lester L. Pike.

BOUDINI BROTHERS (Pathe, ab. 1913)—Phil and Dan Boudini.

BROADWAY QUARTET (Columbia, 1916) — See Columbia Stellar Quartet.

BROADWAY QUARTET (Vocalion, 1922) — See Criterion Quartet.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

BRUNSWICK MALE QUARTET (Columbia, 1911)—Audrey Hackett, Arthur Clough, Harry Wieting, A. Duncan Cornwall.

CHAUTAUQUA PREACHERS QUARTET (Columbia, 1916)—John Wesley Holland, Fay Arnold Moon, Charles A. Gage, Charles Alfred Briggs.

CHERNIAVSKY TRIO (Edison) — Mischel Cherniavsky, violin; Leo, 'cello; Jan, piano.

COLONIAL QUARTET—See Rambler Minstrel Co.

COLUMBIA DOUBLE QUARTET — COLUMBIA OCTETTE (1915) — The monthly supplements did not identify the members of this organization, so only a guess can be hazarded. However, as the only two important male quartets singing for Columbia at this period were the Columbia Stellar Quartet and the Peerless, it is likely that the Double Quartet, or Octette, was a combination of the two.

COLUMBIA LADIES QUARTET (1913) — Grace Kerns, Louise MacMahon, Mildred Potter, Clara Moister.

COLUMBIA MALE QUARTET—When this group was formed in the 1890's it consisted of Albert Campbell, first tenor; J. K. Reynard, second tenor; Joe Belmont, baritone; and Joe Majors, bass.

In 1902 or 1903, young Henry Burr was substituted for Reynard. Other singers who were in it later included Arthur Collins, Steve Porter, George Gaskin, Frank C. Stanley and "Big Tom" Daniels.

In 1906 it became the Peerless Quartet, which see for further details. The Quartet then began to make records for all companies, but Columbia continued to use the Columbia Quartet name for several years and did not call the ensemble the Peerless until August, 1912. Even then, some Peerless records were issued for years afterwards as by the Columbia Quartet.

COLUMBIA MIXED QUARTET (1913) — Grace Kerns, Mildred Potter, Charles Harrison, Frank Croxton.

COLUMBIA SEXTET (1902)—This was a group which recorded "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden," from "Floradora." It consisted of Harlan, Belmont, Stanley, and three girls from the original Floradora Sextette — nobody seems to know which three.

COLUMBIA STELLAR QUARTET (1914)—Originally Charles Harrison, John Barnes Wells, Andrea Sarto, and Frank Croxton. After a couple of records, Wells was succeeded by Henry Burr.

Soon afterward, Reed Miller took Burr's place. Harrison, Miller, Sarto, and Croxton made nearly all the succeeding records, although Lewis James occasionally sang in the place of Miller, and Billy Jones seems to have sung the lead in at least one of their 1922 records.

Under the name of the Broadway Quartet, the group sang lighter numbers for Columbia. As the Stellar Quartet, they made records in the early 1920's for Aeolian-Vocalion and possibly other companies.

COUNTRY HARMONIZERS (Pathe and Actuelle, 1922)—See Harmonizers.

CRESCENT TRIO (1920) — Charles Hart, Lewis James, Elliott Shaw. On Pathe and Actuelle records they were also called the Apollo Trio and the Orpheus Trio.

CRITERION QUARTET—Made records in 1905 and for a year or two afterwards for several companies, including Edison, Columbia, Zonophone, and Leeds. Members were Robert R. Rainey, William A. Washburn, Reinwald Werrenrath (the organizer), and Walter A. Downie.

By 1916 the Quartet had become John Young, Horatio Rensch, George W. Reardon, and Donald Chalmers. In 1921, Frank Mellor, the only living member of the quartet unless Rensch is still alive, had become second tenor. It was also known as the Aeolian Male Quartet and as the Broadway Quartet on Vocalion records, and as the Strand Quartet on Brunswick. In the late 1920's it became a staff attraction of the Roxy Theater in New York and for several years afterward was better known as the Roxy Quartet.

CROXTON (FRANK) QUARTET (1912)—Agnes Kimball, Nevada Van Der Veer, Reed Miller, and Frank Croxton. On one or more Gennett records around 1918, it consisted of Inez Barbour, probably Nevada Van Der Veer, Henry Burr, and Croxton.

CROXTON TRIO (Okeh, 1918) — Inez Barbour, Henry Burr, Frank Croxton. DANN TRIO (Edison and Brunswick, 1921)—Blanche L. Dann, violin; M. Felicie Dann, cornet; Rosalynd J. Davis, piano.

DIAMOND FOUR (Berliner, about 1896) — Albert Campbell, James Kent Reynard, Steve Porter, Will C. Jones. EDISON COMIC OPERA COMPANY (1910) — John Young, Steve Porter, Edith Chapman, Edna Stearns, Cornelia Marvin.

EDISON MALE QUARTET — Organized about 1894 to make soft brown wax cylinders. Original members were Roger Harding, J. K. Reynard, S. H. Dudley, and William F. Hooley.

By 1896 Harding had been succeeded by John Bieling and Reynard by Jere Mahoney. Three or four years later Harry Macdonough took Mahoney's place. The quartet then began to make disc records as the Haydn Quartet (which see for further details).

EDISON MIXED QUARTET (1906) — Florence Hinkle, Mary Porter Mitchell, John Young, and Frederick Wheeler. By 1909 Margaret Keyes had become contralto in place of Miss Mitchell.

EDISON MIXED SEXTET — I do not know who the six artists were in the first Edison recording of the Floradora Sestet. A group that remade it included Corinne Morgan, Ada Jones, Grace Nelson, George Seymour Lenox, Bob Roberts and Frank C. Stanley.

EDISON MIXED TRIO — See Metropolitan Trio.

EDISON SEXTET—Recorded the Lucia Sestet in 1908 for the initial issue of Amberol cylinders) — Marie Stoddart, Margaret Keyes, John Young, George M. Stricklett, Frederick Wheeler, and George Bemus.

EDISON VENETIAN TRIO (1906) — Eugene Jaudas, violin; Eugene Rose, flute; Charles Schuetze, harp.

ELECTRIC CITY FOUR (Edison Blue Amberol, 1921) — George Weaver, Jenkin Jones, Martin Size, Joseph Wetter.

ELMAN STRING QUARTET (Victor, 1916)—Mischa Elman, and Messrs. Bak, Rissland, and Nagel of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

ELSHUCO TRIO (Brunswick, 1920) — Elias Breeskin, violin; Willem Willeke, cello, and Amello Giorni, piano.

EMPIRE VAUDEVILLE COMPANY (Edison, 1907)—Performers varied according to individual needs. Most records included Edward Meeker and the Premier Quartet. This group, with Vess L. Ossman, made the "Laughing Song" record in 1917.

Others, who sometimes were included, were Billy Golden, Albert Campbell, Al Bernard, and Ada Jones. One cylinder, "Casting Bread Upon the Waters", although listed as being by the Empire Vaudeville Company, was by Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Favor and Steve Porter.

The Empire group was an outgrowth of the earlier Edison Vaudeville Company, whose members were Byron G. Harlan, Billy Murray, and Steve Porter, with Edward Meeker occasionally added. Murray, Harlan, and Porter were also the original Victor Vaudeville Company.

EVEREADY MIXED QUARTET (Late 1920's) — Beulah Gaylord Young, Rose Bryant, Charles Harrison, Wilfred Glenn.

FIFTH AVENUE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH CHOIR (Edison cylinders, ab. 1910) — Mary Hissam de Moss, Cornelia Marvin, Edward Strong, Frederic Martin.

FISK UNIVERSITY JUBILEE QUARTET — Began to make Victor records in 1910. Members at that time were J. W. Work, N. W. Ryder, the Rev.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought Sold Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlay restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

136c

"... well written and often explosively funny ..."
—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders repinned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed. Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (FR 8-1546) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1925

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clockmakers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1008 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

HERE ARE YOUR "MUSIC MUSTS"

Collectors & dealers swear by Burton's recorded listings, etc., in B.B. Hollywood & B.B. Broadway Musicals, each $5.50. Just out is a new Vol. I (1778-1910) of his Blue Book, Encyclopedia Popular Music, $10. All 3 this month $16.50, postpaid. Roeh's Player Piano Scrapbook is $3. Freeman's Melody Lingers On (50 years of song covers with some music) $6, and The Three Sons Old Music Shop is almost out of print at $2; all three at $8.50 on first come basis. CENTURY HOUSE PUBLISHERS, Watkins Glen, N. Y.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.)
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

13c

This group of photos appeared in The Voice of the Victor after the four members of the Peerless Quartet, together with Billy Murray, the most popular recording comedian, had signed an exclusive Victor contract in 1920.

The Criterion Quartet personnel changed from time to time. In 1916 it consisted of Horatio Rench, second tenor; John Young, first tenor; George W. Reardon, baritone (looking over Young's shoulder), and Donald Chalmers, bass.

J. A. Myers, and A. G. King. Shortly afterward King was succeeded by L. P. O'Hara.

The quartet made a series of Edison Amberol cylinders in 1912, just before the Blue Amberols were introduced. They were not taken into the Blue Amberol list, and, since they were on sale only a few months, are scarce.

The group then consisted of John W. Work; Roland W. Hayes, the distinguished tenor who recently gave a recital commemorating his 75th birthday; O'Hara; and Charles Wesley. A few Jubilee Quartet records were issued on Edison Diamond Discs under the name of the Southern Four.

FLONZALEY QUARTET—Began making Victor records in 1918. Adolfo Betti was first violin; Alfred Pochon, second violin; Ugo Ara, viola, and Ivan d'Archeambeau, cello. Ara was called into military service during World War I and was replaced by Louis Bailly.

FOUR ARISTOCRATS (Victor and Edison, 1927) — Fred Weber, Bert Bennett, Ed Lewis, Tom Miller.

FROLICKERS, THE (Edison, 1926) — Arthur Hall, John Ryan, Ed Smalle.

GRAMOPHONE QUARTET (England, ab. 1906) — Ernest Pike, Wilfred Virgo, Stanley Kirkby, Peter Dawson. They also made Gramophone records as the Minster Singers and probably were the Meister Singers on Edison Bell cylinders.

HARMONIZERS QUARTET — Began making records in 1920. — Charles Hart, Billy Jones, Steve Porter, Harry Donaghy. Donaghy told me their first was "Oh By Jingo," for Edison. It was listed under the name of the Premier Quartet. (See American Quartet for explanation.)

It also made Brunswick records as the Amphion and Great White Way Quartets, and sang at least one Pathe Actuelle as the Country Harmonizers. Probably it was called other names on minor brands.

HARMONY FOUR (Edison, 1917) — Gladys Rice, John Young, George Wilton Ballard, and Donald Chalmers.

HAWAIIAN TRIO (Ab. 1918) — Helen Louise (Mrs. Frank Ferrara), Frank Ferrara, and Irene Greenus.

HAYDEN (HAYDN) QUARTET — The early history of this ensemble has been told under the Edison Male Quartet. However, I have recently learned that the Edison Quartet called itself the AMERICAN QUARTET on disc records before it took the Hayden name, and that the first Hayden Quartet on records was made up of Fred Rycroft, Charles Belling, S. H. Dudley, and William F. Hooley.

Although this group was known as the Hayden Quartet in 1899, on Victor records the quartet composed of John Bieling, Harry Macdonough, Dudley, and Hooley was called the Hayden until 1913, when the spelling was changed. Dudley was sometimes too busy in later years as assistant manager of the Victor Artist and Repertoire Department to sing in the Quartet, so his place was taken on occasion by Reinald Werrenrath.

The Hayden Quartet disbanded in 1914 when Bieling had throat trouble and quit, to become a salesman for a Victor jobber. Its place was largely taken by the Orpheus Quartet, in which Macdonough and Hooley sang.

HEIDELBERG QUINTET (1912) — Same as the American or Premier Quartet (Bieling, Murray, Porter, and Hooley), with the addition of the counter-tenor, Will Oakland.

HOMESTEAD TRIO (Edison, 1917) — Gladys Rice, Betsy Lane Shepherd, Amy Ellerman. In 1921 Miss Rice was succeeded by Elizabeth Spencer.

IMPERIAL QUARTET OF CHICAGO (Victor, 1916) — Wallace Moody, C. R. Wood, Ben Q. Tufts, Oliver Johnson.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION QUARTET (Edison cylinders, 1912) — Paul J. Gilbert, P. H. Metcalf, C. M. Keeler, Edward W. Peck.

INVINCIBLE MALE QUARTET (INVINCIBLE FOUR) — On Edison cylinders, about 1904. Byron G. Harlan, George Seymour Lenox, Arthur Collins, and Frank C. Stanley. On Columbia records of the same period Lenox's place is taken by Albert Campbell. Some Peerless Quartet records were issued on Pathe sapphire discs as by the Invincible Four.

KALTENBORN STRING QUARTET (Edison cylinders, ab. 1912) — Frank Kaltenborn, first violin; Herman Kuhn, second violin; Max Barr, viola; Max Droge, cello.

KAUFMAN BROTHERS (Edison and others, 1916) — Phil and Jack Kaufman.

KNICKERBOCKER QUARTET (Edison, 1909-1915) — When first organized to replace the Edison Male Quartet, which had become exclusive to Victor, the members were John Young, George M. Stricklett, Frederick Wheeler, and Gus Reed.

After the Diamond Discs were introduced it ceased to have a set membership, but Young and Wheeler were usually included. Other singers who filled in on occasion included Reinald Werrenrath, William F. Hooley, Royal Fish, Harvey Hindermeyer, Robert D. Armour, and John Finnegan.

KNICKERBOCKER QUARTET (Columbia, 1916) — Had no connection with the Edison organization of the same name. Members: George Eldred, Lewis James, William Morgan, Glenn Howard.

KNICKERBOCKER QUINTET — Made a two-minute Edison cylinder issued in 1905: Parvin Witte, Charles H. Bates, Geoffroy O'Hara, Walter C. White, and Leon Parmett.

LOTUS QUARTET (Edison two-minute cylinders, ab. 1904) — George Seymour Lenox, George M. Stricklett, Charles Lewis, Frank C. Stanley.

LOUISIANA FIVE (Ab. 1918) — This pioneer jazz group consisted of Al Nunez, clarinet; Joe Cawley, piano; Charlie Panely, trombone; Carl Burger, banjo; and Anton Leda, drums.

LYRIC QUARTET (Victor, 1906-1918) — Originally consisted of Eliss Stevenson, Corinne Morgan, Harry Macdonough, and Frank C. Stanley. After Stanley died in 1910, Macdonough remained, but Misses Stevenson and Morgan were dropped and Reinald Werrenrath was substituted for Stanley.

For a time Olive Kline was soprano and Marguerite Dunlap, contralto, but Miss Kline says Miss Dunlap was succeeded by Elsie Baker, and the Quartet remained Kline, Baker, Macdonough, and Werrenrath for the remainder of his active life.

LYRIC TRIO (original Lyric Trio) — Began making Edison cylinders about 1898, with Estella Louise Mann, soprano; John Havens, tenor, and William F. Hooley, bass. It also recorded for Miss Mann's short-lived Lyric Record Co.

By 1901 it had begun recording for Victor, but the personnel now was Grace Spencer, Harry Macdonough, and Hooley.

In 1914-15 Columbia issued records by Will Oakland, Albert Campbell, and Henry Burr and called them the Lyric Trio, but they, of course, were not successors to the much earlier group of the same name.

MANHANSETT QUARTET — One of the first (if not the first), male quartets to make records under its own name. An 1890 list of Edison "phonograms" contains two male quartet selections, but neither the organization nor its members are identified.

By 1892, the Manhansett Quartet was making cylinders for the New Jersey Record Co. at Newark. Its members then were George J. Gaskin, Gilbert

Girard, Joe Riley, and a bass named Evans, whose first name is not given in the 1892 catalog.

A couple of years later the Quartet was John Bieling, Gaskin, Joe Riley, and Jim Cherry. Still later, Walter Snow succeeded Cherry. The break-up of the Manhansett resulted in the formation of the Edison Male Quartet.

Left, top:

A 1910 collection of photos of the ensemble which was called the Premier Quartet on Edison cylinders and the American on Victor discs.

Right, top:

This photograph of the Shannon Four was taken about 1919. Left to right: Charles Hart, first tenor; Lewis James, second tenor; Wilfred Glenn, bass; Elliott Shaw, baritone. All except James are still alive.

—Courtesy of the author

These four singers made records from 1899 to 1914 as the Edison Male Quartet on Edison cylinders, and as the Haydn, or Hayden Quartet on Victor discs.

MANHATTAN LADIES QUARTET (Edison cylinder, ab. 1912)—Irene Cummings, Mabel Meade Davis, Annie Laurie McCorkle, Anne Winkoop.

MANHATTAN QUARTET—A German-American organization that made Victor and Edison records for more than a decade, beginning ab. 1912. Arthur Hall was one of the singers, but I have not learned the others' names.

MANHATTAN TRIO (Edison cylinders)—See Metropolitan Trio.

MEISTER SINGERS—See Gramophone Quartet.

MEADE (OLIVE) QUARTET (Edison cylinders ab. 1912)—Olive Meade, first violin; Vera Fonaroff, second violin; Gladys North, viola; Lillian Littledales, cello.

MELODY THREE (Late 1920's)—Also made records as the Men About Town for various companies: Jack Parker, Will Donaldson, Phil Duey.

MENDELSSOHN MIXED QUARTET (Edison cylinders, ab. 1904)—Edith Chapman, Corinne Morgan, George Morgan Stricklett, Frank C. Stanley.

MERRYMAKERS—See The Revelers.

METROPOLITAN ENTERTAINERS (Edison, 1926)—Elizabeth Spencer, Chas. Harrison, Ernest Hare.

METROPOLITAN MIXED TRIO (Edison two-minute cylinders, ab. 1904)—Corinne Morgan, George S. Lenox, Frank C. Stanley. A few years later the Trio began to make records for other companies, and was then Elise Stevenson, Henry Burr, and Stanley. One of the latter group's Edison cylinders was listed as by the Manhattan Trio.

METROPOLITAN QUARTET (Edison cylinders, ab. 1908)—Florence Hinkle, Margaret Keyes, John Young, and Frederick Wheeler. With the introduction of the Diamond Discs, no set personnel was maintained but artists who happened to be available on a recording date were used. Young and Wheeler were usually included, and Elizabeth Spencer was most often the soprano. Mary Jordan was among the contraltos.

MILLER'S (POLK) OLD SOUTH QUARTET — Polk Miller, a Richmond, Va., druggist and Confederate veteran, toured extensively with a quartet of Negro men. Edison issued several cylinders by them in 1910, but the only Quartet member whose name was given was the bass, James L. Stamper.

A group called the Old South Quartet, which probably included some of Miller's original singers, made electrically recorded QRS records. Some of the titles duplicated those on the Edison cylinders.

MINSTER SINGERS—See Gramophone Quartet.

MONTAUK TRIO (Edison, 1924)—Walter Wooley, piano; Henry L. Taylor, banjo; Stanley Brooks, saxophone.

MOONLIGHT TRIO (Edison, 1918) — Gladys Rice, George Wilton Ballard, Donald Chalmers.

MURRAY QUARTET (Aeolian-Vocalion, 1919)—See American Quartet.

MURRAY'S TRIO (Victor, 1927)—Billy Murray, Carl Mathieu, Monroe Silver.

NATIONAL MALE QUARTET (Edison, 1924) — Clarence Da Silva, Lloyd Wiley, Harry Jockin, Harry Donaghy. By 1926 Da Silva and Wiley had been replaced by Arthur Hall and John Ryan.

NEW YORKERS (Edison, 1929)—Shope, Preston (first names not given), Ed Smalle, Colin O'More, Harry Donaghy.

NEW YORK TRIO (Edison, 1923) — Louis Edlin, violin; Cornelius Van Vliet, cello; Clarence Adler, piano.

OAKLAND QUARTET (Edison and U.S. Everlasting cylinders, ab. 1912)—The late Will Oakland said he had no recollection of this Quartet, but the members probably were Oakland, John Biel-ing, Steve Porter, and William F. Hooley. With Billy Murray added they would have been the Heidelberg Quintet.

OLIVETTI TROUBADOURS (Edison cylinders, ab. 1910)—Michael Banner, violin; Roy H. Butin, guitar.

ORIGINAL PIANO TRIO (Edison, 1922)—George Dilworth, Edgar Fairchild, Herbert Clahr.

ORPHEUS QUARTET (Victor, 1911-1918)—Lambert Murphy, Harry Macdonough, Reinald Werrenrath, William F. Hooley. Also made records as the Victor Male Quartet.

OSSMAN-DUDLEY TRIO (Various companies, 1906)—Vess L. Ossman, banjo; Audley Dudley, mandolin; George F. Dudley, harp-guitar.

PALACE TRIO (Victor and other companies, 1920)—Rudy Wiedoeft, saxophone; Mario Perry, accordion; J. Russell Robinson, piano.

PEERLESS QUARTET (All companies, 1906)—This organization, probably the most popular and longest lived male quartet in phonograph history, began as an off-shoot of the Columbia Male Quartet (which see).

One Columbia Quartet group consisted of Albert Campbell, Henry Burr, Steve Porter, and "Big Tom" Daniels. When Frank C. Stanley took charge of the ensemble in 1906, he succeeded Daniels and for a short time the Peerless was Campbell, Burr, Porter, and Stanley.

Then Arthur Collins took Porter's place. Stanley died in December, 1910, and Henry Burr, who became manager, engaged John H. Meyer in Stanley's place. The Peerless remained Campbell, Burr, Collins, and Meyer until 1918 when Collins left and was succeeded by Frank Croxton.

There was no further change until late in 1925 when Burr, whose relations had become strained with the other three members, ousted them and replaced them with Carl Mathieu, Stanley Baughman, and James Stanley. That organization remained intact until the Quartet disbanded in 1928.

The Peerless also made records as the Columbia Quartet, the Invincible Four, the Peerless Minstrels, the U. S. Minstrels, the Victor Minstrel Co., the Victor Vaudeville Co., and in England, some of its Columbia records were listed as being by Prince's Male Quartet, probably as a tribute to Charles A. Prince, musical director of Columbia's American recording laboratory.

Virtually all Indestructible cylinders by the Peerless appeared merely as by "Quartet," with no prefix being given. When Peerless records were issued on off-brands made by Columbia, the name was changed to the Standard Quartet, the Harmony Quartet, etc., to correspond with the record brand name.

PEERLESS TRIO (Indestructible cylinders, 1907-08)—Billy Murray, Byron G. Harlan, Steve Porter. Same as Victor Vaudeville Co.

PHILHARMONIC STRING QUARTET (Edison, 1928) — Scipione Guild, first violin; Arthur Lichstein, second violin; Oswaldo Mazzucchi, cello; Leon E. Barzin, viola.

PREMIER QUARTET (Premier-American Quartet)—See American Quartet.

RADIO ACES (RADIO IMPs) (late 1920's)—Gerald Underhill Macy and Ed Smalle.

RADIO FRANKS (Brunswick, 1924)—Frank Wright and Frank Bessinger. Wright was succeeded a few years later by Frank White, and the duet team made (Continued on page 47)

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only, and cannot tell you where to sell them. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amherola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

RECORDINGS NEEDED, will pay high price: "Clartnietki," Johnny Dodds; "Prohibition Has Done Me Wrong," Jimmy Rodgers; WPA-Glenn Miller. Please contact: Alda Favia-Artsay, 60 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N. Y. tfx

SEEKING TOSCANINI 78's on Victor, HMV, Brunswick, Victor, V-Discs. — Weaver, 4406 Clay Ave., Houston 28, Texas. o6445

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. d3063

WANTED: Records, Radio Transcriptions, Films, Photographs, etc. by Guy Lombardo, Sammy Kaye, Blue Barron, Art Kassel, Ink Spots, Jan Garber. Highest prices paid. — Paul Scriven, 238 West State, Niles, Ohio. o3084

ART GILLHAM records wanted: Columbia 297-D, Bluebird B-5454, and all of his recordings for Pathe, Gennett, and Okeh. Also want his recording under the name Barrelhouse Pete. — George Blau, 2823 N. Rockwood Dr., Peoria, Ill. n3825

RECORDS WANTED by the following artists: Creatore, H. M. Grenadler Guards, Victor Band, Band of Chiel, Paul Whiteman, Will Glahe, Dorsey Brothers. — Nicholas Rutan, 235 Kent Rd., Ardmore, Pa. o1232

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. d3084

CLOSE OUT SALE: Opera, vocal, dance and orchestra records, reasonable prices. Price list 10c. — Dave Spahn, 19 Alexander Ave., Bloomfield, N. J. n3863

NEW MUSIC BOX RELEASE: AB-5 "Golden Music Box Favorites" 26 nostalgic familiar airs, Robin Adair, Home Sweet Home, Mocking Bird, Silver Threads, and several Stephen Foster's, etc., from rare old music boxes on 12" Hi-Fi $3.98 pp. pd. — Bornand Music Box Co., 139 4th Ave., Pelham, New York. n3027

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broad-casts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. d6084

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N. Y. o3618

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought. The Record Album, 208 W. 80th St., New York 24, N. Y. f128862

Collector's Records, 78's, famous artists, orchestras, vocals, instrumentals, cross section of the past entertainers. Let us know your wants. — Hunt, P.O. Box 407, Chillicothe, Mo. f60021

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to LP. — Jack's Record Cellar, 264 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. d126121

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. je120061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. o6276

FOR SALE: Hundreds of disc and cylinder records, many types of early phonographs, 25c for list. Also "Evolution of the Phonograph," by Walter Welch and Oliver Reed, a complete history of the phonograph, 576 pages, regular price $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. o3886

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. f6806

I SEE HUNDREDS of records every day. Let's hear your needs. — Ted's Second Hand Store, 1128 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. (Stamp please). d3253

JUST DISCOVERED: A rare original recording of Thomas A. Edison speaking to the American people. Gen. John J. Pershing speaks on the other side. Re-issued and available for $1 from — The Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. o3426

TRY MARCONI'S for rare 78's. Serving collectors for 46 years. Original stock records of operatic, orchestral, popular and jazz. Also cut out lp's. Send for operatic catalog, 25c. — Marconi Bros, 864 Lexington Ave., New York City 21, N. Y. o62511

HAVE ACCESS to 1,000,000 78's. Send wants. — Cather, 314 Windsor Dr. Birmingham 9, Ala. o169

OLD RECORDS many collector's items, 78's and later. New stock and adding. Thousands on hand all types and labels. Send lists of your needs, specify details. — S&G Sales, Rt. 4, Box 696, Tallahassee, Fla. d3026

DISC RECORDS, send for list. No cylinders. — Charles Moore, Dept. H-3, Brownville, N. Y. o1401

78rpm GOLDEN AGE vocals, rare operatics, orchestral and instrumental records, old catalogs, photos of singers - all may be found on our regular monthly lists. Also large selection of imported European LP's. — Ross, Court & Co., 3244 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. mh66121

59 minutes away from the correct time at the moment.

The quarter-hour chiming clocks of more recent vintage, most of which were made in Germany, will tell you what quarter it is between the hours, but you will have no idea of the hour until the hour is reached and struck. This type of clock cannot be made to repeat. To do so would throw the whole chiming and striking sequence out of line.

We know, of course, that there are minute repeater watches that will strike the correct time down to the last minute. These are highly desirable and not easy to find. When they are found they are apt to be pretty expensive. Quarter-hour repeaters are a bit easier to find and are, also, highly desirable.

APPRAISAL FEE

"What is My Clock or Watch Worth?"

Send picture and brief description of clock or watch to L. W. Slaughter, 201 East Lancaster Ave., Shillington, Pa., asking my fee. I will estimate the time and work involved and notify you of my charge. Be sure to write for Appraisal Service Fee.—L.W.S.

CLOCKS WANTED

WANTED by collector: Old or unusual clocks, for cash. — W. Harding, 9314 Walden, Silver Spring, Md.

Jly124201

REPAIRS

DIAL PAINTING. Refinishing of early American clock dials done by hand. Painted dials only. Stencilled clock pillars and splats restored to look like original. Early American clock tablets painted by hand. Send stamp for details. — Vandervort's, 308 Bertley, Moberly, Mo.

d120652

SPECIAL SERVICE, hand painted clock tablets for clocks and mirrors. Clock dials restored and reproduced. Replacement of missing parts. Design and construction consultant on mirrors and clocks. Guaranteed service since 1921. — H. G. Berks, 163 East 92nd St., New York 28, N.Y. Le. 4-2765. Jai28862

METAL DIALS reproduced in standard sizes, choice of white or off white enamel background, choice of various colored spandrels in flower or figure design, send self-addressed stamped envelope for price and order instructions to: R. J. Ziebell, 360 Cumberland Rd., South Orange, N.J.

d3027

WHERE TO GET:

- Practical Self - Training Kit Incl. book for clock & watch repairing (easy to learn - no physical limitations - no prior mechanical experience needed). Please write for details.
- Complete repair service for all antique and modern clocks, watches, music boxes, mechanical birds, barometers, cameras, binoculars, all scopes, light meters, hearing aids, at trade prices.
- Three latest all-inclusive catalogs (193 pages) showing all precision tools, materials, equipment, movements, books for clock and watchmakers, etc. Tools for handcrafters, opticians, metal workers, silversmiths, school shops, etc. Send $1.50 for all catalogs to be applied to your initial order.

MODERN TECHNICAL SUPPLY CO.

Dept. HOB-9

55 W. 42nd St., New York 36, N. Y. tfo

A DIRECTORY OF PIONEER RECORDING GROUPS

(Continued from page 36)

records for several companies.

RAMBLER MINSTREL COMPANY (ab. 1906)—Byron G. Harlan, Billy Murray, Arthur Collins, Steve Porter. Also made Zonophone records as the Colonial and Zonophone Quartets and made some of the Victor Minstrel Company records.

RECORD BOYS (Various companies, ab. 1926)—Al Bernard, tenor comedian;

Custom built wheels and parts for French clocks, German clocks, antique, grandfather clocks and wood wheel Terry clocks. Music boxes rebuilt. We have one of the best equipped shops in the South. Free estimates, all work guaranteed.

B. W. SETZER

4534 29th St., N.W. Washington, D.C. tfo

THE SWISS WATCH

By Eugene Jaquet and Alfred Chapuis The English Edition of this famous book formally offered at $30.00. 190 full page photographs in color and black and white. NOW $15.00 postpaid. New List describing this and 200 other Books on Clocks and Watches sent for Stamp.

ADAMS BROWN COMPANY
Epping, New Hampshire tfo

CLOCK & COLLECTORS BOOKS

Dreppards American Clocks .....$5.95
Palmer's Book of American Clocks 8.75
Horolovar 400 day Clock Repairs .. 3.95
DeCarle's Clock & Watch Repairing 7.95
Belknap's Milk Glass ..... 6.00
Metz Early Amer. Pattern Glass .. 7.00
MacSwiggan's Fairy Lamps ..... 6.50
Kovel: Dictionary of Marks on Pottery & Porcelain ..... 3.00
Kovel: Directory of Marks on American Silver, Pewter & Silver Plate 5.95
Hertz: Handbook of American Toys 3.95
Nutting: Furniture Book ..... 12.50
Andrews: Shaker Furniture ..... 2.00
Ickis: Quilt-making & Collecting .. 2.00

ZELLNER'S BOOK SERVICE

Wind Gap, Penna. tfo

No. 767

No. 834

No. 767 - Very large, French traveling 8-day watch in solid sterling silver case and sterling silver carrying case. Good jeweled lever movement. Running.
No. 834 - Rare ¼-hour repeater fusee and verge watch by John Stanton, London, circa 1692. Thick case of pierced silver. Strikes on a bell. Running.

I have many rare clocks and watches for collectors. A hand-typed copy of the clock list, or the watch list, will be sent out on your promise to return. I will buy and sell ANTIQUE ONLY clocks and watches.

Expert appraisal service on a reasonable fee basis.

Repairs and restorations to ANTIQUE ONLY clocks and watches.

L. W. Slaughter

(By Appointment Only)

201 E. Lancaster Ave., Shillington, Pa. ox

Frank Kamplain, yodler, and Sam H. Stept, piano. Later, the group was Kamplain, Tom Ford, and Lew Cobey.

REVELERS, THE—Began with Victor in 1925 as an outgrowth of the Shannon Four (which see). At first the personnel was Franklyn Baur, Lewis James, Elliott Shaw, and Wilfred Glenn, with Ed Smalls as pianist-arranger.

A few years later Frank Black succeeded Smalls. James and Glenn remained with the Revelers until the group's dissolution around 1940, but Shaw was in ill health for a time and gave way to Phil Duey. Keeping first tenors was a problem. Among those who succeeded Baur were Charles Harrison, Frank Parker, Robert Simmons, and James Melton.

The Revelers made records for Columbia as the Singing Sophomores and for Brunswick as the Gaiety Musical Comedy Chorus and the Merrymakers. Very likely they sang for smaller companies under various names, and for old-fashioned quartet work they continued to call themselves the Shannon Quartet.

Wilfred Glenn, who now lives in Charlottesville, Va., reorganized the Revelers about 15 years ago with none of the original members except himself, but the group made no records and was not long active in concert work.

ROBISON (CARSON) TRIO (Late 1920's)—Carson Robison, Frank Luther, Phil Crow.

SCHUBERT TRIO (Victor, 1907)—Elise Stevenson, Harry Macdonough, Frank C. Stanley.

SHANNON FOUR (SHANNON QUARTET)—Began with Victor in 1917, with Charles Hart, Harvey Hindermeyer, Elliott Shaw, and Wilfred Glenn. In 1918 Hindermeyer was succeeded by Lewis James.

Hart left to study opera in Germany about the time the Shannon Four (which changed its name to the Shannon Quartet in 1923) was being transformed into the Revelers (which see), and there was a long succession of top tenors.

The Shannons appeared under many names, including the Acme Male Quartet (Pathé), Campus Glee Club (Cameo), Cathedral Quartet (Emerson), Hudson Male Quartet (Pathé), Liberty Quartet (Emerson), Lyric Male Quartet (Edison and Harmony), and Peerless Four (Okeh and Gennett.)

SINGING SOPHOMORES — See Revelers.

SIX BROWN BROTHERS—These were originally the Five Brown Brothers, and, as such, made U. S. Everlasting records around 1912. The original five were Alec, William, Vern, Fred, and Tom Brown. When a sixth member was added to the Saxophone Sextet and the name was changed to the Six Brown Brothers, the new man was Harry Finkelstein, not related to the others.

SOUTHERN FOUR — See Fisk Jubilee Quartet.

SPENCER (LEN) TRIO—Began making cylinders about 1897. Usual members were Len Spencer, Billy Golden (who did yodling as well as blackface comedy) and Steve Porter.

George P. Watson and George W. Johnson may also have participated at times, and a now forgotten blackface comedian, Billy Williams (not the English comedian of the same name) was occasionally called in. When some of the Trio's Columbia records were remade on discs years later, Billy Murray took part.

STERLING TRIO (Virtually all companies, 1916 to 1920, then exclusive to Victor, 1920-25)—Albert Campbell, Henry Burr, John H. Meyer. A Sterling Trio on a 1926 Gennett record may have been Campbell, Henry Moeller, and Meyer.

STEVENS TRIO (Edison, 1922)—Several combinations which always included Ernest L. Stevens as pianist-leader. Charles J. Murray sometimes played a saxophone, as did a man named Thrall. M. Aron was usually the banjoist. As an additional feature, John Sorin gave Chinese block "interpolations" on some records.

STRAND QUARTET — See Criterion Quartet.

TAYLOR TRIO (Various brands, ab. 1914)—One combination consisted of Albert W. Taylor, cello; Alexander Hackel, violin, and William E. Berge, piano. Another was Taylor; Alexander Drasein, adorned with red roses.

(Continued on page 55)

These original creations were designed and made by Victoria Broadbent, International artist-designer, formerly of London, England, widow of John Howard Broadbent, noted scientist and United States Naval officer, class of 1925. During the past four years one of Mrs. Broadbent's hobbies has been designing original hat creations for horses.

Equine hats from these collections have been donated by the Easter Week Festival Committee to many distinguished horse enthusiasts, among which are President and Mrs. Kennedy, their little daughter Caroline for her pony "Macaroni," Governor Farris Bryant of Florida, together with many T. V. notables including Arthur Godfrey and Allen Young. The Horses' Hat Salon of the Lightner Museum, in addition to tremendous local interest, has recently been the subject of T. V. and radio feature programs, and other wide press coverage.

Included in this salon exhibit is a beautiful float showing a sculptured statue of "St. Francis of Assisi." In keeping with his love of nature, the grouping includes birds, animals and flowers in natural setting. This float was one of the outstanding units in the 1962 Easter Festival Parade in St. Augustine, and is now part of the permanent exhibits in the Lightner Museum. The float was the work of Mrs. Marie Ford, the well known designer of historical and religious creations in many fields, of New York and Florida.

The thousands who have visited the Salon in the Lightner Museum manifest the increasing interest that this glamorous exhibit has inspired. It is felt that this feature illustrates in reality how interesting, educational, and pleasing a hobby can become.

MIDDLEBOROUGH, MASS., HISTORICAL MUSEUM

In early June, Middleboro, Mass., celebrated its 300th birthday in a most fitting way. It opened a two-building museum. The buildings are two 1820 mill houses.

The success of the project is due to the fine work of the citizens of Middleboro. For 38 years one room in the local library was given over to the relics of the city's past.

The most popular exhibit in the collections is the Tom Thumb memorabilia. The famous midget was labelled General Tom Thumb by P. T. Barnum. Thumb married Lavinia Bump of Middleboro. The collection contains hundreds of the many possessions that made their home after their circus career, as well as gowns and dresses and gifts from famous people who honored them on their visits throughout the world.

A wing on one of the buildings recreates a country store of the 19th century. The store has original counters, bins, barrels and merchandise.

There is also a small room devoted to the tools and products of the Bay State Straw Works, once a local industry that supplied women's hats throughout the country.

Other early American industries represented are: cobbler's shop, blacksmith shop. There are exhibits covering whaling, spinning and lighting to mention a few.

A DIRECTORY OF PIONEER RECORDING GROUPS

(Continued from page 47)

violin; and Oscar W. Friberg, piano. "THAT GIRL" QUARTET (Victor, Edison, U. S. Everlasting, ab. 1910) — Harriett Keys, Allie Thomas, Precis Thompson, Helen Summers.

THREE KAUFIELDS (Emerson, 1919) — Irving and Jack Kaufman and Arthur Fields.

TOLLEFSEN TRIO (Victor and Edison, ab. 1912) — Mme. Schnabel-Tollefson, piano; Paul Kefer, 'cello; Carl H. Tollefson, violin.

TRIO DE LUTECE (Columbia, ab. 1915) — George Barrere, flute; Carlos Salzedo, harp; Paul Kefer, 'cello.

"TWO BLACK CROWS" (Columbia, 1927) — George Moran and Charles E. Mack.

"TWO DARK KNIGHTS" (Edison, 1927) — Victor Fleming and Phil Cook.

"TWO KAUFIELDS" (Emerson, 1919) — Arthur Fields and either Irving or Jack Kaufman.

UNIVERSAL QUARTET (Zonophone, ab. 1905) — This may be a group with which Geoffrey O'Hara remembers making Zonophone records, but the identification is not certain. O'Hara was first tenor in the group with which he sang; Reinald Werrenrath was baritone, and Walter MacPherson, bass. O'Hara remembers the lead tenor only as "Skutty" Somebody.

VAN EPS TRIO (Victor and Edison, 1913, afterwards all companies) — The first Victor record by the Trio, "Florida Rag," was by Fred Van Eps and his brother, William, playing banjos, and Felix Arndt, piano. The second banjo was soon dropped for a drum played by Eddie King.

In 1916 Frank Banta became the pianist, and in 1917 King's drumming gave way to the saxophone of Nathan Giantz. With Joe Green's xylophone added, the group was known as the Van Eps Quartet or the Van Eps Specialty Four.

VASSAR GIRLS QUARTET (Edison cylinder, ab. 1910) — Katherine Armstrong, Lovira Taft, Florence Fiske, E. Eleanor Patterson.

VICTOR LADIES QUARTET (Ab. 1915) — Probably Elizabeth Wheeler, Olive Kline, Elsie Baker, and Marguerite Dunlap.

VICTOR LIGHT OPERA CO. (Victor Opera Company) (Ab. 1909) — With an ensemble this size, the personnel necessarily changed almost with each recording. A 1912 Victor catalog shows photos of the following as members: Harriett Keys, Reinald Werrenrath, S. H. Dudley, Elsie Baker, William Wheeler, Elizabeth Wheeler, John Bieling, Steve Porter, Walter B. Rogers (conductor), Elise Stevenson, Harry Macdonough, John Barnes Wells, Ada Jones, Billy Murray, George Carre, Marguerite Dunlap, Frederick Gunster, Lucy Isabelle Marsh, William F. Hooley, and Inez Barbour. In later years Olive Kline was a prominent member, and the members of the Lyric and Orpheus Quartets and Revelers were frequently used.

VICTOR MALE QUARTET — See Orpheus Quartet.

VICTOR MINSTRELS — Membership varied over the years. Len Spencer and the Hayden Quartet were included in some of the very early offerings. Afterwards, the group known as the Rambler Minstrels on other brands of records, made a good many.

Most of the minstrels listed by names of states — "Virginia Minstrels," "North Carolina Minstrels," etc. — were by the Peerless Quartet. The last Victor Min-

WANTED

OLD AUTO LAMPS, horns, books, old cars, etc., wanted. — D. D. Way, 11 Eastwood Ct., Oakland, Calif. n6675

OLD AUTO ITEMS WANTED: Brass auto lamps, bulb horns, radiator mascots and ornaments in metal and glass, radiator name plates and emblems, Pennsylvania license plates, old auto books and show-room catalogs, service manuals, Royal Doulton china: Plates, cups, saucers and pitchers; any pieces with old auto pictures. Early toy autos and toy cap pistols. — A. J. Kovesleski, 331 Adams Ave., Scranton 3, Pa. Phone 1-717-DL 2-1963. a3

WANTED: Antique bicycles, tires, catalogs, parts. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond, Va. a3802

SELDEN Truck and Car Co. Want any literature pertaining thereto. — Selden Antique Shop, Hollywood, Miss. a3042

WANTED: Early automotive literature 1900 - 1930. Sales catalogs, instruction manuals, handbooks, auto company stock certificates, pictures, trade magazines, etc. Any autos, chassis, engines, parts or accessories 1900-1920. Description and price please. — Obsolescence, Westerville, Ohio. d3

FOR SALE

PERIOD CLOTHING - Godey to 1935 - current 80 page list 35c. — Ballard's Antiques, R.R. 1, Ladoga, Indiana. o4063

strels record, "Victor Minstrels of 1929," included Billy Murray, Henry Burr, Frank Crumit, James Stanley, and a singing group called The Cavaliers.

VICTOR OPERA SEXTET — A 1915 record of the "Lucia Sextet" by this group was made by Olive Kline, Marguerite Dunlap, Lambert Murphy, Harry Macdonough, Reinald Werrenrath, and Wilfred Glenn. An earlier version in 1911 had been made by Lucy Marsh, Miss Dunlap, William Wheeler, Macdonough, Werrenrath, and Hooley.

VICTOR VAUDEVILLE COMPANY (Ab. 1908) — Byron G. Harlan, Billy Murray, Steve Porter. A 1917 record, combining "Court Scene in Carolina" and "Darktown Campmeetin' Experiences," labeled as by the Victor Vaudeville Co., was made by the Peerless Quartet.

VIENNA QUARTET — Ludwig Schonberger, piano; Licco I. Liggy, violin; Otto Krist, 'cello; Jacques Grunberg, violin.

WEARY WILLIE TRIO (Edison, 1916) — Billy Murray, Edward Meeker, Donald Chalmers.

"WE GIRLS" QUARTET (Edison, 1918) — Gladys Rice, Betsy Lane Shepherd, Marlon Evelyn Cox, Amy Ellerman.

WHITNEY BROTHERS QUARTET (Victor and Edison, 1908) — Alvin, Edwin M., William and Yale Whitney.

WIEDOEFT - WADSWORTH QUARTET (Victor and Edison, 1920) — Rudy Wiedoeft and Wheeler Wadsworth, saxophones; J. Russell Robinson and Harry Akst, pianos.

ZONOPHONE QUARTET — Same as the Rambler Minstrel Company: Byron G. Harlan, Billy Murray, Arthur Collins, and Steve Porter. This group made a number of records which were listed in several editions of the Zonophone catalog as being by the Colonial Quartet. In June, 1906, the Colonial name was dropped and the records were re-labeled as being by the Zonophone Quartet.

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8.

(Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All Advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

PERFORMERS WHO USED MORE THAN ONE NAME

By JIM WALSH

A few months ago one of my record collector friends, Mr. C. L. Quick, of House Springs, Mo., gave me a surprise. He said that pupils in a public school near his home had been given an assignment to study back issues of Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists and compile a list of performers who recorded under more than one name.

Mr. Quick sent me a list put together by one student, who evidently had depended largely on my article, "Performers Who 'Doubled Up,'" in HOBBIES for May, 1944. Reading that list caused me to smile wryly, for I detected a number of mistakes I had made when I did my own research 18 years or more ago. I still am puzzled as to why school children should receive such an assignment as the one I have just mentioned, but learning of it strengthened a desire I have had for several years to compile another longer, more comprehensive and, I hope, more accurate list.

That I have now done, at the expense of more research and effort than a person who hasn't tackled such a job would readily believe. Even so, I make no claim that this list contains anything like a complete list of all the assumed names used by recording artists in the acoustic and early electric recording days. Nobody could ever piece together an absolutely complete listing or be certain that it was entirely accurate. Obscure record brands, such as Grey Gull, Radiex, Globe and Madison, present the researcher with an especially baffling problem, because their recording was bad and, unless the singer was one like Arthur Fields, with unmistakable mannerisms, it is often impossible to identify the artist by listening alone. All that can be done then is to say that, for instance, Franklyn Baur "possibly" or "probably" was Ben Litchfield, but leave the matter open to doubt.

Before going farther, I should like to clear away some inadvertent errors that were made in the May, 1944, article, even though I imagine only a comparatively small percentage of HOBBIES readers have saved that issue.

I said the late Sam Ash might have been Will C. Robbins. I still don't know who Robbins was, but he wasn't Sam Ash.

I also said George Alexander probably never recorded under any other name. I know now he was Arthur Clifford on Edison cylinders.

Harry Bluff and Billy Whitlock were not the same man, and Thomas Chalmers was not Lawrence E. Gilbert. There was a baritone singer by the latter name whose style resembled Chalmers'. Irving and Jack Kaufman did not make Yiddish records under the names of Gus and Jay Goldstein, and Corinne Morgan was not Grace Nelson. Miss Nelson was a New York church choir singer, Grace Hornby.

M. J. O'Connell was not the late Billy Watkins, who was a vaudeville singer. It is doubtful that Elise Stevenson was "Miss Walton" on a couple of Victor records. The Victor office files don't identify Miss Walton, however. Herbert Stuart was not Frank Croxton, as I suspected, but was Albert Wiederhold. This was told to me by Charles Harrison, who sang duets with "Stuart."

And John Barnes Wells was not De Los Becker, who was a well known church and concert singer and is still living in New York, or was a couple of years ago.

As for the new list, I have not tried to cross-index it completely, because that would take too much space. Only where a performer was about as well known under one name as another have I made a cross-reference. For instance, John Young was as well known under the assumed name of Harry Anthony as under his real name, so I have listed both Anthony and Young. On the other hand, I have not cross-listed the dozens of names used by Vernon Dalhart.

Where a name appears in parentheses immediately following the alphabetical listing, the enclosed name is the person's legal one. As an example, "BURR, HENRY (Harry McClaskey)," means that Burr's real name was Harry McClaskey. In many instances, where artists used comparatively unknown assumed names, I have placed in parentheses the brand of record on which it was used.

That seems about all the explanation necessary to understand the listings. But I should like to refer for a moment to last month's article which gave the names of the members of various pioneer recording organizations and make it clearer that there were sometimes temporary substitutions in even the best known and most solidly established groups. For instance, Harry Macdonough sang the lead in the Victor record of "On the Banks of the Wabash," by the American Quartet, in the place of Billy Murray. Walter Van Brunt also took Murray's place in a few American Quartet and Heidelberg Quintet records, and Walter B. Rogers substituted for Steve Porter in one of the Quartet's Victor versions of "Casey Jones."

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

I mentioned in the article that Reinald Werrenrath sometimes sang baritone in the Hayden Quartet in the place of S. H. Dudley. The only Peerless Quartet record I know of in which Henry Burr does not sing is an Edison cylinder of "Characteristic Negro Medley." Billy Murray took Burr's place in that one — I suppose because his style of singing was better adapted to such a number than Burr's. And in the Edison Amberol cylinder of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," the noted soprano, Inez Barbour, assisted the Premier Quartet, but was given no credit for her work. All of which just goes to show there are exceptions to all rules — and all recording ensembles!

Now, here is the revised and enlarged list of performers who sang or played under more than one name:

ALCOCK, MERLE—Merle Tillotson.
ALEXANDER, GEORGE (Clifford Alexander Wiley)—Arthur Clifford (Edison cylinders). Possibly Atwood Twitchell on Zonophone.
ANTHONY, HARRY—See Young, John.
ARDEN, VICTOR, and WADSWORTH, WHEELER — Bennett Brothers (Lyric).
AUSTIN, GENE (Gene Lucas) — Charles Keene. Austin and George Reaneau made Edison records as "The Blue Ridge Duo."
BACON, Fred J. — Ernie Anderson (Edison).
BAKER, ELSIE—Elsie West Baker, Edna Brown, Nora Watson, Mabel West.
BALLARD, GEORGE WILTON — George Wilton.
BAUR, FRANKLYN — possibly Ben Litchfield (Grey Gull).
BENZLER, ALBERT — probably Albert Henry (Columbia).
BERNARD, AL — John Bennett (Madison), Jack Clare (Pathe), "Skeeter" Sims (Regal), "Uncle Joe," (Romeo). He and J. Russell Robinson were "The Dixie Stars." The name of John Bennett was also used for other singers.
BESSINGER, FRANK, and WHITE, FRANK—Radio Franks.
BESSINGER, FRANK, and WRIGHT, FRANK — Radio Franks.
BIELING, JOHN — said he made Columbia cylinders in the 1890's under the name of Livingston.
BOUDINI BROTHERS — Brown and Edwards (Lyric).
BROWN, EDNA — See Baker, Elsie.
BROX SISTERS — Wainwright Sisters (Edison).

BURR, HENRY (Harry H. McClaskey) — Alfred Alexander (Pathe), Harry Barr (Harmony), Harry Haley (Cameo), Irving Gillette, Frank Knapp (Harmony and Velvet Tone), Harry McClaskey, Shamus McClaskey (Emerson).

CAMPBELL, ALBERT — A. C. Campbell (Berliner), Frank Howard (Zonophone), Frank Webster (Pathe). Campbell and Henry Burr made some records which were issued in the Scala Record catalog in England as being by "Bellwood and Burr." During his 1926-27 partnership with Jack Kaufman they appeared on Madison records as "Collins & Reynolds" and "Wheeler and Morse."

CARSON, MARY — Kathleen Kingston (Edison).

CHAPMAN, EDITH — Miss Chappell (Edison cylinders), Edith Chapman Gould.

CLARK, HELEN — Sallie Collins (Edison), Emma Johnson (Edison), May Meredith (Columbia), Grace Woods (Edison). She may also have been Ruth Lenox on Okeh, Pathe and other brands.

COLLINS, ARTHUR — is said to have made an indestructible cylinder of "When You're All Dressed Up and No Place to Go" under the name of Hawley.

COOK, PHIL — "Phil and Jerry," "The Radio Chef."

CORRELL and GOSDEN — "Amos and Andy," "Sam 'n' Henry."

COYLE, EDGAR — Arthur Reeve.

COX, MARION EVELYN — probably Marion Crawford on Pathe.

CRAVER, AL — See Dalhart, Vernon.

CROXTON, FRANK — probably Franklin Careau on Emerson.

DADMUN, ROYAL — Ralph Crane, Bruce Wallace.

DALHART, VERNON (Marion Try Slaughter) — Probably no one will ever succeed in compiling an absolutely complete and accurate list of the names used by Dalhart, especially after he began making hill-billy records. I cannot vouch that all the names that follow are correct, but they have been submitted by persons who have made a study of Dalhart recordings — James Ahern, Mack Allen, Wolfe Ballard, Jeff Calhoun, Jess Calhoun, Jimmy Cannon, Ed Clifford, Al Cramer, Al Craver, James Cummings, Charles Dalton, Vernon Dell, Joseph Elliott, Frank Evans, Jep Fuller, David Harris, Harry Harris, Lou Hayes, Joe Kincaid, Fred King, Hugh Latimer, Tobe Little, "Lone Star Ranger," Bob Massey, Guy Massey, Billy McAlee, George McLaughlin, Warren Mitchell, Dick Morse, "Mr. X.," Sam Peters (English Regal), Harry Raymond, Henry Scott, Josephus Smith, Cliff Stewart, Edward Stone, Billy Stuart, Will Terry, Allen Turner, Sid Turner, Bill Vernon, Billy Vernon, Herbert Vernon, Will Vernon, "Vel Veteran," Tom Watson, Bob White, Robert White, Walter Whitlock, George Woods. Several of these names — Frank Evans, David Harris, "Lone Star Ranger," "Mr. X.," Cliff Stewart and "Vel Veteran" — were also used for other singers on off-brand records. Dalhart and Ed Smalle made an Edison record as the Arkansas Trio, with John Cali playing the banjo. They were also the Windy City Duo on Genett, and sang on Pathe and Perfect records as Mitchell and White. Dalhart and Carson Robison made duet records as Jeff Calhoun and Bob Andrews, Mack Allen and Gil Parker, Wolfe Ballard and Claude Samuels, the Cramer Brothers, Evans and Clarke, the Jones Brothers (on Australian Panochord), Sam Peters and Harry Jones (English Regal), and Al Craver and Charlie Wells. With the addition of Adelyne Hood, they were the Jewel Trio, the Oriole Trio and the Regal Rascals.

DAWSON, PETER (Peter Smith Dawson) — Will Danby, Leonard Dawson, Hector Grant, Will Strong.

DE GOGORZA, EMILIO — M. Fernand, M. Francisco, Carlos Francisco, E. Francisco, Ed Franklin (a name also used on Zonophone for other singers), Herbert Goddard.

DEIRO, GUIDO — Carlo Pampini (Cameo).

DEIRO, PIETRO — Pietro.

DE LEATH, VAUGHAN (Lenora Vonderlieth) — Angelina De Marco, Gloria Geer.

DIXON, RAYMOND — See Murphy, Lambert.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.
Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG

MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlay restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new &

Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Washington 7, D. C.

Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS

3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

t36c

"... well written and often explosively funny ..."
—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders repinned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornard Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N. Y.
Specialists since 1825

tfo

Attention... ANTIQUE DEALERS!

Do you shy away from collections of coins and paper money? Avail yourself of our service. We will travel anywhere in the U.S. to assist you in valuing and disposing of collections, estates or anything numismatic. FEEL FREE TO CONTACT US ANY TIME. The service is gratis and may mean considerable profit to you. Write or phone... Charles French of...

FRENCH'S

7 FIRST ST., TROY, N. Y.
PHONE AS 2-3131

Coin Dealers and Auctioneers for Nearly Thirty Years. tfx

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.)
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

tfx

DOUGLAS, FRED (an English comedian, said to have used more other names than any other British recording artist) — Among his 33 or more "aliases" are P. W. Ramsey, Fred Murray, Frank Terry, Harry Vernon, Frank Greene, Charles Vernon, Fred Barney, Tom Gilbert, Stewart Morton and Harry Glenn. In duets he was one of the Barney Brothers, the Two Gilberts, Barney and Buck, Fred and Harry, and the Two Duggies — his partner under the latter name being his son, Leslie Douglas. These names were used in recording for the larger companies. He used many others in singing for minor firms.

DOWNEY, MORTON — James Morton (Edison Diamond Disc).

DUDLEY, S. H. (Samuel Holland Rous) — Frank Kernell.

DUPREZ, FRED — I have not heard any of the Zonophone records made by a comedian, Fred Lambert, but judging by the titles I suspect that they were the work of Fred Duprez.

EMMONS, HARVEY — Henry Nesbit.

FAVOR, EDWARD M. — Made cylinders in the 1890's as Edward Le Fevre.

FERARA, FRANK — Palakiki Ferraira (probably his right name).

FIELDS, ARTHUR (Abe Finkelstein) — One of the more prolific recorders under many names: Jim Andrews, Donald Baker, Andy Britt, Arthur Baldwin, D. Bud Bernie, Eugene Buckley, Harry Crane, Charles Dale, Walter H. Dale, George French, Henry Gray, Larry Holton, Jimmy Kern, Henry King, William Lewis, Arthur Mack, Jack Martin, Arthur Meadows, "Mr. X," Walter Norton, Padric O'Brien, Jimmy Ryan, Arthur Seelig, John Sloane, Fred Stone, Bob Thomas (a name more often used by Ernest Hare), "Vel Veteran," Robert Wood. With a woman whom I can't identify Fields sang a duet on a Romeo record as "Gent and Wheeler." He also appeared, probably with Fred Hall, in groups called the Hometowners and the Lumberjacks. I suspect the foregoing list is far from complete.

FREER, MARCIA — Margaret A. Freer (probably her real name).

GARY, SID — Al Foster.

GENE AND GLENN — Gene Carroll and Glenn Rowell.

GILLETTE, IRVING — See Burr, Henry.

GILLHAM, ART — "The Whispering Pianist."

GLENN, WILFRED — Marion Green (Lyric).

HACKETT, CHARLES — Edwin Dale.

HALL, ARTHUR — Adolph J. Hahl (his real name) Howard Lewis (Black Swan), Cliff Stewart (Domino). He, John Ryan and Ed Smalle were the Frolickers on Edison records.

HALL, FRED — "Old Pop Collins" (Edison).

HALL, WENDELL — "Radio Red."

HANSHAW, ANNETTE — Dot Dare, Gay Ellis, Patsy Young.

HARE, ERNEST — Another with enough assumed names to populate a village. This list is representative, but most likely not complete — Wallace Daniels, Arthur Grant, "Mr. Hare" (on children's records), David Harris, Henry Jones, Robert Judson, Walter Leslie, Frank Mann, Curt Phillips, "Radio Joe," Roy Roberts, Ernie Spencer, Bob Thomas, John Thomas, "Uncle Ernest" (children's records). For information about Jones and Hare duets, see Jones, Billy.

HARLAN, BYRON G. (George Byron Harlan) — Cyrus Pippins (Edison cylinder), "Deacon Treadway" (Pathe), Bert Terry (Actuelle).

HARRISON, JAMES F. — See Wheeler, Frederick J.

HARRISON, SAM — Harrison Latimer.

HARRISON, CHARLES (Charles William Harrison) — Billy Burton, Hugh Donovan, Hugo Donivetti, Charles Hilton, William Rundle (Actuelle).

HART, CHARLES — Harry Curtis, George Gordon, Henry Jordan, James Jordan, Charles Warren, Arthur Wilson.

HARVEY, MORTON — Herbert Morley, Gene Rogers.

HEINRICH, JULIA — Julia Henry.

HEMUS, PERCY — Charles Gordon.

HILLEBRAND, FRED — Charles Foster (Regal).

HINDERMYER, HARVEY — Harvey Wilson, Harvey Wilson Hindermyer.

Hindermyer and Earle Tuckerman were the "Gold Dust Twins" on an Edison record.

HOWE, ROBERT — Kenneth Walters, Harold Wood.

HUNTING, RUSSELL — Michael Casey.

JACKSON, THOMAS — William Jackson.

JAMES, LEWIS — Robert Bruce (Pathe and Emerson), Charles Cinway (Actuelle), Harold Harvey, Robert Lewis (Columbia), "Uncle Lewis" (Kiddie), Bruce Wallace (Okeh). Royal Dadmun also called himself Bruce Wallace on a Victor record.

JONES, BILLY (William Reese Jones) — Another of the outstanding users of lots of names. Here is a representative listing: Harry Blake, Billy de Rex, Ugeso Gargolo, Eugene Harold, David Harris, William Johnson, "Mr. Jones" (on children's records), Reese Jones, Willy Jones, Tom Moore, Dennis O'Malley, Wm. Rees, Wm. Reese, Victor Roberts, Melvin Strong, Bertram Smith, Bob Thompson, "Uncle Billy" (on children's records), Billy West, William West, Carlton Williams, Frank Williams. Several of these names were used on Pathe and Actuelle records. Frank Williams, on Cameo, was the same name that Dan W. Quinn had used on Columbia years before. Jones and Ernest Hare made duet records for off-brands under such names as The Happiness Boys, Lewis James and John Marron, Lyons and Hellman, the Radio Kings and the Romeo Boys. They unmistakably took part in one Cameo record labeled "Tuning In With Ruby Norton."

KAISER, MARIE — Marie de Kyzer.

KAPLAN, DAVE — Dave Landis.

KAUFMAN, IRVING — Another of the prolific users of many names. Irving says that when he used to start for a recording engagement, his wife would ask: "Well, whom are you going to be today—George Beaver, Frank Harris or Who?" and he would reply, "What do you care, as long as the check is made out to Irving Kaufman?" — George Beaver, George Bronson, Frank Christy, Billy Clarke, Charles Dickson, Frank Harris, John Holmes, Henry Irving, Sidney Mitchell, Happy Jim Parsons, Jack Shea, Harry Smith, Noel Taylor.

KAUFMAN, JACK — Jack Dalton, Happy Martin, "Weary Willie" (Actuelle). Irving and Jack Kaufman made duet records as "Dooley and Shea," Billy Clarke and Burt Green, and Irvings and Jackson.

KENNEDY, WILLIAM A. — Probably William Bonner on Edison.

KERNS, GRACE — Katherine Clark; possibly also Miriam Clark.

KIMMEL, JOHN J. — John J. Kimmel (Edison cylinders).

KIRKABY, ED — Eddie Kirk.

KIRKBY, STANLEY — Charles Holland, John Morgan.

KLINF, OLIVE — Alice Green.

LAYMAN, ZORA — Zora.

LENNOX, ELIZABETH — Louise Ferrell, Louise Terrell, Emily Earle (Brunswick).

LUTHER, FRANK (Francis Luther Crow) — Bud Billings, Frank Evans, Francis Evans, Francis Luther, Bud Thompson, Frank Tuttle. Luther and Carson Robison recorded duets under such names as the Black Brothers, Jimson Brothers, Bud and Joe Billings, and Joe Adams and James Clark. Luther may also have been Pete Wiggins on Okeh records.

MacDONOUGH, HARRY (John Scantlebury Macdonald) — Harry Macdonald, Ralph Raymond.

MacMAHON, LOUISE — Grace Nash.

MACY, GERALD — G. Underhill Macy.

MARSH, LUCY ISABELLE — Anna Howard.

MARVIN, FRANK — Ray Ball (Jewel), "Lazy Larry" (Romeo), Frankie Marvin, Jimmie Price (Romeo), Frankie Wallace (Edison and other brands), "Weary Willie" (Perfect), George White (Okeh).

MARVIN, JOHNNY — "Honey Duke and His Uke." (Harmony), Jimmie May (National Music Lovers), John Marvin (Okeh).

McCLASKEY, HARRY — See Burr, Henry.

McDONALD, EDITH — Edith McDonald Carpenter.

McMICHEN, CLAYTON — Bob Nichols.

MEADOR, GEORGE — Grant Stephens.

MEYER, JOHN H. — John Myers,

John Wilbur. With Henry Moeller, Meyer made duet records as Myers and Fairbank and Harlan and Roberts.

MIDDLETON, ARTHUR — Edward Allen, Eduard Middlestadt.

MILLER, BOB — Bob Ferguson.

MILLER, REED — Henry Pinckney (Emerson), James Reed.

MOELLER, HENRY — Henry Fairbank.

MORGAN, CORINNE — Corinne Morgan Welsh (her real name, on an Emerson record).

MUNN, FRANK — Paul Oliver.

MURPHY, LAMBERT — Raymond Dixon.

MURRAY, BILLY (William Thomas Murray) — Dan Hughey, William Murray, Cy Pitkin, Murray and Walter Scanlan made duets on off-brand records as "Saunders and White."

MURRAY, PETE — Peter Murray (his real name).

NELSON, EDDIE — Ben Linn.

NELSON, ESTHER (Mrs. Charles Hart) — Jane Nielson (Okeh).

O'MORE, COLIN — Arthur Burns, James Harrod, George Wilson.

PARKER, J. DONALD (Horace Ruwe) — "Happy Jack," Jack Parker.

PHILLIPS, JOSEPH A. — Franklyn Kent (Okeh), Harry Lawrence (Rex), Justice Lewis (Pathe), Joe Phillips (Okeh).

PIERCE, BOB — "Old King Cole."

PIKE, ERNEST — Herbert Payne, Herbert Perry.

PRINCE, CHARLES A. — Charles Adams.

QUINN, DAN W. — (Frank Williams), Columbia.

RADIO FRANKS — See Bessinger & Wright and Bessinger & White.

REA, VIRGINIA — Olive Palmer.

RICE, GLADYS — Bettinga Bergere, Rachel Grant, Victoria Marsden.

ROBISON, CARSON — Joe Billings, Charlie Wells. See also Vernon Dalhart and Frank Luther for information about Robison duet names.

RYAN, JOHN — Jack Rhan.

SARTO, ANDREA — Edgar Hall, James Hall, Edgar Stoddard.

SCANLAN, WALTER — See Van Brunt, Walter.

SHAW, ELLIOTT — Edward Burke (Regal), Thomas Edwards (National Music Lovers), Frank Sterling (Pathe), James Jordan (Okeh). Probably also Turner Roe (Pathe).

SPENCER, LEONARD GARFIELD — Len Spencer, Leonard G. Spencer, Garry Allen, Larry Leonard.

STACKS, TOM — Tom Howard (Edison).

STANLEY, FRANK C. (William Stanley Grinstead) — H. C. Parker (English Columbia), George S. Williams (banjo records for Edison in 1898-99 "coon" songs sung for Harms, Kaiser and Hagen). He probably also was William Fredericks on Columbia.

STEVENSON, ELISE — Alice C. Stevenson, Elise Wood.

STEWART, CAL (Calvin Edward Stewart) — "Uncle Josh."

STUART, HERBERT — See Albert Wiederhold.

THORNE, JOHN — Billy Desmond, Marcus Browning.

TIFFANY, MARIE — Betty Barrett (Edison Blue Amberol).

VAN BRUNT, WALTER (Walter John Van Brunt) — John O'Brien (Romeo), Walter Scanlan, Herbert Scott (English Columbia). Van Brunt may also have been Carl Ely on Indestructible cylinders.

VAN EPS, FRED — Edward Boynton (Pathe).

VERLET, ALICE — "Madame X" (Pathe).

WADSWORTH, F. WHEELER — Fred W. Wadsworth. He also made in 1918 a Pathe record as Frank Wadsworth with a piano accompaniment by the late Jean Goldkette.

WELLS, JOHN BARNES — William Barnes.

WERRENATH, REINALD — Edward Hamilton (Victor). An unidentified tenor who also used the name of Edward Hamilton made Puritan records.

WHEELER, ELIZABETH — Jane Kenyon.

WHEELER, FREDERICK J. — James F. Harrison.

WHEELER, WILLIAM — Probably Paul Hardy on Actuelle records.

"WHISPERING PIANIST" — See Gillham, Art.

WHITE, JOSEPH M. — "Silver Masked

Left to right:
ADOLPH J. HAH, one of the most popular free-lance recording artists of the 1920's, was better known as Arthur Hall.
BEULAH GAYLORD YOUNG today is Mrs. Charles Harrison. She was also known on records as Molly Ames.

CHARLES HARRISON, one of the most popular tenors in phonograph history, also made records as Hugh Donovan and Billy Burton.

HELEN CLARK (MRS. EVAN CAMERON), shown here, giving an Edison "tone test" in 1916, made Edison records under at least four names.

Tenor," Joe White, J. Malachy White.
WHITLOCK, BILLY — "Madame Paula," Dudley Roy.
WIEDERHOLD, ALBERT — Herbert Stuart.
WILLIAMS, EVAN — Henry Evans, William T. Evans.
WILLIAMS, IRENE — Irene Audrey (Brunswick).
WINSCH, LOUIS J. — George Burnside (Crescent), Joe Remington (Pathe), Harry Williams (Lyric). He probably also was George Prescott (Pathe).
YOUNG, BEULAH GAYLORD (Mrs. Charles Harrison) — Molly Ames (Columbia).
YOUNG, JOHN—Harry Anthony, Jack Young (Gennett Art-Tone).

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books, $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. n3426

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victor and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ja3846

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each.—Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

FORTY antique phonographs. List 25c, with pictures 50c. Prices reduced again. Some nice banks for sale or trade. — Miller's, 1017 Westgate Rd., Troy, Ohio. n3483

ATTENTION: Antique phonographs, cylinder & disc. All makes, models. Repaired, bought, sold. Almost everything in stock to repair any make or model. Phonographs completely overhauled, cases refinished. Parts duplicated with original parts. Cylinder and disc records for sale. Reproducers repaired. Many complete, like new, cylinder and disc. Phonographs for sale. All workmanship, phonographs guaranteed. Phonographs for sale sheet, 10c. Phonographs parts price sheet, 10c. — Lexington House, c/o Lloyd Whitlock, 114 State Street, Brewer, Maine. ja3811

Vol. II No. 9

THE PHONOSCOPE

13

Talent Employed for Making Records

Miss Estella Mann

Our great show is the picture of Miss Estella Mann, who is a very talented singer and a very successful record artist.

She is the only lady who has successfully recorded songs and ballads by the old masters. She has an extensive catalogue of grand songs, including, among others, the old-time songs of the South, which she sings perfectly with spirit and grace and unusual power. This will be fully understood when it is known that Miss Mann is a graduate of the College of Music of Columbia, where she was a pupil of the eminent master, Eugene Frost. Miss Mann's voice is a soprano, and she has a range of two octaves and a half, singing from low to high. This is a very rare talent, and it is a great honor for her to be chosen to sing for the Lyric Phonograph Company. She is a very talented singer and a very successful record artist.

Joseph Weber

Mr. Joseph Weber, whose record appearances are a singer of German songs. Mr. Weber, as his name implies, is of German descent, being possessed of a remarkably well-trained baritone voice. He is a most master of his art, and his records have a fine, round tone that is always sought after by buyers who want and who know good records when they hear them. Mr. Weber sang with the great famous Glimmer at Manhattan Beach for three successive seasons. He has also been with the famous Thompson, the late Victor and they and a long list of other well-known singers.

Mr. Weber is singing his German songs for the Lyric Phonograph Company exclusively, who have just received a large order for his records. Success to him.

Original Lyric Trio

As will be seen by comparing the two photos on the above-out to the other on this page Miss Mann, Mr. Havens and Mr. Hooley are the three soloists who make up the Original Lyric Trio. These people have been wonderfully successful in their record making. Singing, as they do, selections from the concert numbers from both grand and comic operas, they are beyond the place on the ladder of fame, where they must to face competition. In fact, the Lyric is the only trio in the market having a lady member, which lends more value to their records. They are busy now, day and night, filling large orders.

Jack Simonds

We present herewith a character picture of Mr. Jack Simonds. This gentleman is a new comer in the phonograph world and is making a big picture. He is a very funny and witty story teller under the title of "Muckety." He writes all his stories and is rapidly coming to the front in his line. He does not confine himself to Irish stories, but tells some in "Muckety" dialect. Mr. Simonds, like most of the phonograph artists, is a graduate from the stage. He has been with all kinds of companies, operatic, dramatic and vaudeville. His last engagement was with W. S. Hart, playing in the "Bells," the "Lady of Lyons," "Man in the Iron Mask," etc., where he acquired a liking for "Shakespearean" readings. He has studied in this line and is now a splendid reader. He also reads from Whitcomb Riley's poems. Mr. Simonds is making records exclusively for the Lyric Phonograph Company.

John Havens

The accompanying picture is a speaking likeness of Mr. John Havens, a well known and popular singer of tenor solo records. Mr. Havens has been very busy making a long list of his records for a number of years and has made a good many friends in that time. Many of these are great home phonograph and take great pleasure in having his records, so that they can hear Jack, as he is called by his friends, sing his favorite songs. Mr. Havens has a keen conception for comedy and sings comic and comic songs in a very pleasing manner. His friends, however, are not his only customers for he is kept busy night and day filling orders for his records. Mr. Havens is manager of the Lyric Phonograph Company.

Mr. Hooley, who is a very well known to lovers of good records to need an introduction from us. Mr. Hooley is a soloist at St. Francis Xavier's Church, where he has been for years. He has studied under the best teachers the country affords and as a result is possessed of an elegant voice, full and rich in tone. He says that he is greatly in love with the phonograph business and that, no doubt, has a good deal to do with the splendid quality of his records.

His catalogue is very large, containing the best numbers of the great masters and selections from grand and comic operas. Mr. Hooley has Irish heritage and sings Irish songs and ballads as only a singer then favored can.

Early in November Lee Spencer's Greater New York Musicals will open in Orange, N. J., under the management and proprietorship of the genial "Len." The roster of the company embraces many artists prominent in the talking-machine business. Among others are the Diamond Comedy Four, Billy Golden, comedian; Vera L. Channing, comedienne; Steve Hunter, in illustrated songs; Roger Hurling, tenor balladist; the Three "Burr" Brothers, musical experts; the Wizard, Gopher; Frederick Rose, descriptive vocalist; the Greater New York Quartette and in conclusion Golden, comedian; and Hurling in their great plantation act entitled, "In front of the old cabin door." We predict crowded houses and a successful trip for the boys.

A photo of the Original Lyric Trio was reproduced on page 13 of the September, 1898, Phonoscope. Members were John Havens, tenor; Estella Louise Mann, soprano, and William F. Hooley, bass. Miss Mann, whose life story appeared in the April, 1952, HOBBIES, organized the Trio and owned the Lyric Record Co. A few months after this picture was taken, Havens, who was business manager of the Company, entered other work, and Harry Macdonough took his place. When Miss Mann gave up phonograph work to return to her home in Indiana, the Lyric Trio became Grace Spencer, soprano; Macdonough and Hooley.

Left: A 1927 recording scene in Okeh's New York laboratory. The singer (center) is Irving Kaufman, who made records under many different names. From left to right, others are:

Charles L. Hibbard, chief recording engineer; William A. Timm, manager of the foreign record department; Peter Decker, assistant recording engineer; Tom Rockwell, recording manager; Rube Bloom, composer and pianist; Bob Stephens, harmonist; Andy San-nella, saxophone player; Justin Ring, music supervisor; Alex B. Johnson, editor of the Phonograph Monthly Review, and Al Taylor, assistant to the engineers.

Right: JOHN YOUNG, at the left in this picture, was equally well known under the assumed name of Harry Anthony. He is with Grace Spencer and Eugene Rose. All are now dead.

MELODEONS FOR SALE

MELODEONS FOR SALE. Also expert melodeon and reed organ repairing. Reasonable. — C. Lamper, C-Sharp Hobby Shop, 1365 Bristol, N.W., Grand Rapids 4, Mich. d3023

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. d3234

MIRA, Polyphone, Kalliope, Regina, Stello, etc. Send diameter wanted for complete list and prices. — Bornand, 139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y. n1061

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only, and cannot tell you where to sell them. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vin-ton, Va. tfx

RECORDINGS NEEDED, will pay high price: "Clarinettski," Johnny Dodds; "Prohibition Has Done Me Wrong," Jimmy Rodgers; WPA-Glenn Miller. Please contact: Aida Favia-Artsay, 60 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N. Y. tfx

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. d3063

WANTED: Records, Radio Transcriptions, Films, Photographs, etc. by Guy Lombardo, Sammy Kaye, Blue Barron, Art Kassel, Ink Spots, Jan Garber. Highest prices paid. — Paul Scriven, 238 West State, Niles, Ohio. ja3034

ART GILLHAM records wanted: Columbia 297-D, Bluebird B-5454, and all of his recordings for Pathe, Gennett, and Okeh. Also want his recording under the name Barrelhouse Pete. — George Blau, 2823 N. Rockwood Dr., Peoria, Ill. n3826

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. d3084

CLOSE OUT SALE: Opera, vocal, dance and orchestra records, reasonable prices. Price list 10c. — Dave Spahn, 19 Alexander Ave., Bloomfield, N. J. n3863

NEW MUSIC BOX RELEASE: AB-5 "Golden Music Box Favorites" 26 nostalgic familiar airs, Robin Adair, Home Sweet Home, Mocking Bird, Silver Threads, and several Stephen Foster's, etc., from rare old music boxes on 12" Hi-Fi $3.98 pp. pd. — Bornand Music Box Co., 139 4th Ave., Pelham, New York. n3027

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. d6084

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N. Y. ja3297

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought. The Record Album, 208 W. 80th St., New York 24, N. Y. f128862

Collector's Records, 78's, famous artists, orchestras, vocals, instrumentals, cross section of the past entertainers. Let us know your wants. — Hunt, P.O. Box 407, Chillicothe, Mo. f60021

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to LP.—Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. d126121

MUSIC BOX RECORDINGS made from finest collection, 12" Hi-Fi. AB-3 Christmas Music Box, RCB-4 Music Box Waltzes, AB-5 Golden Music Box Favorites. $3.98 each. — Bornand, 139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y. n1272

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid.—American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. ja120061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. ap6276

FOR SALE: Hundreds of disc and cylinder records, many types of early phonographs, 25c for list. Also "Evolution of the Phonograph," by Walter Welch and Oliver Reed, a complete history of the phonograph, 576 pages, regular price $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. n3886

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP.—ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. f6806

I SEE HUNDREDS of records every day. Let's hear your needs.—Ted's Second Hand Store, 1128 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. (Stamp please). d3258

OUT OF PRINT RECORDS: Operatic, show business, personalities, instrumental solos, speech, etc. Write for free list of artists you collect - Caruso, Galli-Curci, Melba, Jolson, etc. Also Thomas Edison speaking to the American people. Re-issued recording send $1. — Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. ja3027

TRY MARCONI'S for rare 78's. Serving collectors for 46 years. Original stock records of operatic, orchestral, popular and jazz. Also cut out lp's. Send for operatic catalog, 25c. — Marconi Bros., 864 Lexington Ave., New York City 21, N. Y. ap66121

OLD RECORDS many collector's items, 78's and later. New stock and adding. Thousands on hand all types and labels. Send lists of your needs, specify details. — S&G Sales, Rt. 4, Box 696, Tallahassee, Fla. d3028

78rpm GOLDEN AGE vocals, rare operatics, orchestral and instrumental records, old catalogs, photos of singers - all may be found on our regular monthly lists. Also large selection of imported European LP's. — Ross, Court & Co., 3244 Yonge St., Toronto, Canada. mh66121

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. Collections bought as well as sold. — Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. ja3065

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

MORE JOTTINGS FROM "THE PHONOSCOPE"

By JIM WALSH

In HOBBIES for April, 1955, I told of spending several happy hours in the Library of Congress, making notes from "The Phonoscope," a talking machine trade paper for 1896 through 1899.

The magazine was founded by Russell Hunting, recording expert and originator of the once world-famous "Casey" series of humorous talking records, and it was edited by him during most of its life.

I explained that my brief stay in Washington had allowed me time to read only part of the volume, and said that whenever I had another opportunity I should return to the Library and complete my note taking.

That opportunity didn't arrive until Friday, June 15, 1962, when I boarded a train in Roanoke, Va., and rode to Washington to meet my friend, Miss Doris Minards, of London, Eng., assistant secretary of the Dickens Fellowship, and a group of other Dickensians. They had come to the States for the first annual conference of the Fellowship ever held on this side of the Atlantic.

My train was an hour and a half late, and when I arrived at Hotel Washington, where the group were staying, the room clerk told me they had waited until 1:30 p.m. for me, hoping I could go with them for a tour of Mount Vernon. As it was, they had gone and wouldn't be back until about 7:30.

Being unexpectedly "stuck" in Washington for several hours with nothing to do, I thought of the Library of Congress and that volume of "The Phonoscope." So I hailed a cab and was soon in the Library's Music Division.

There I introduced myself to Donald L. Leavitt, head of the recorded music section, and received a cordial welcome. Don said my HOBBIES writings, like those of my brilliant colleague, Aida Favia-Artsay were valuable in his work and he would be delighted to help me in any way.

After he had shown me the recorded music section and the Library's collection of record catalogs, he obtained the "Phonoscope" volume for me, and I set almost feverishly to work. Reading at top speed, I hastily scribbled notes in Speedwriting, and glanced every two or three minutes at the clock.

Resuming where I had left off years before, I made my last note precisely at 7 o'clock. Then I flagged down another cab, was driven to the hotel and had a delightful evening with the charming Miss Minards, who has been one of my dearest friends by correspondence for many years.

Beginning with the July, 1898, Phonoscope, the Norcross Phonograph Co. offered 179 brown wax cylinders played by the Metropolitan Band and directed by Signor G. Pelaso. The cost to dealers was $10 a dozen or 75 cents each "in barrel lots."

In those days records could be ordered by the barrel and the purchaser had to take whatever the manufacturer sent him.

The Phonoscope's first mention of the basso, Frank C. Stanley, who was to become one of the most famous pioneer recording artists, turned up in August, 1898:

"Frank C. Stanley, a new aspirant for laurels in the phonograph world, has made a good start. We understand that Mr. Norcross has secured 45 master records out of 75 and, considering this is only the second effort, his work will not be in vain."

It was also announced that another basso, William F. Hooley, had taken the place of Roger Harding as the manager of the Excelsior Phonograph Co.

Nearly every issue had something about the prodigious Len Spencer, undoubtedly the greatest recording artist of that era. This time "Casey" revealed that Len had been robbed of a gold watch and chain which he had left on a horn rack while making Columbia cylinders. Leonard Garfield Spencer had been called downstairs to speak to a lady friend and the robbery was committed while he was gone.

On page 8 of the September, 1898, issue was a story about the late Fred Hager being awarded a gold medal offered by The Phonoscope for making "the most creditable" violin record.

Page 13 featured an article about Estella Louise Mann, whose Lyric Record Co. was the first founded and operated by a woman. There were photos of Miss Mann; the Original Lyric Trio, consisting of her, John Havens, and "Bill" Hooley; Joseph Weber, and Jack Simonds, an Irish comedian who was recording

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

"his famous Mulcahey stories." (I wonder if anybody today has one or more Simonds records.)

I found the following item of exceptional interest:

"Early in November, Len Spencer's Greater New York Minstrels will open in Orange, N.J., under the management and proprietorship of the genial Len."

"Performers include the Diamond Comedy Four; Billy Golden, comedian; Vess L. Ossman, banjoist; Steve Porter, illustrated songs; Roger Harding, tenor balladist; the Three Murray Brothers, musical experts; the Wizard Goldin; Frederick Rose, descriptive vocalist; the Greater New York Quartet, and in conclusion, Golden, Spencer, and Harding in their great plantation act entitled 'In Front of the Old Cabin Door.'"

Another item said that the Greater New York Quartet, composed of Harding, Jones, Porter, and Hargrave, "are furnishing the campaign songs through the State this fall. They are seasoned singers and make a sure hit."

What a treat the patrons of Spencer's Greater New York Minstrels should have had! However, the Three Murray Brothers did not include Billy Murray, who was then living in the West.

"The Wizard Goldin" probably was Horace Goldin, who had a magic act that included pretending to saw a woman in two. Many years later, George L. Thompson made an Okeh record based on the "sawing" illusion.

Frederick Rose must have been the Frederic Rose, who made Edison cylinders for a couple of years, beginning in 1908.

Golden, Spencer, and Harding were one of the variants of the Spencer Trio, which made several records of "In Front of the Old Cabin Door." The Jones in the quartet was Will C. Jones, who had also been a member of the Diamond Four, but I know nothing of Hargrave, the basso.

Len Spencer always seemed to be having trouble. The September issue told of his riding in a cab when the horse became frightened "and dashed up Broadway at frightful speed. The driver was thrown to the ground, terribly injured, and the cab smashed against a cable car. Len crawled out from under the cab, wearing the same old smile. After brushing a few splinters off his coat, he remarked, 'Who got up this party?'"

The article added that Len said he was going to write a song called "Stop Throwing Cars at Your Honey Boy."

I have been puzzled nearly all my life as to the identity of a baritone, Atwood Twitchell, a soloist for Zonophone records in the early 1900's. Of late years I have thought it likely he was Clifford Wiley, who sang under the name of George Alexander. The September, 1898, Phonoscope makes it appear likely, however, Twitchell was singing under his real name:

"Mr. Atwood Twitchell is one of the new phonograph singers whom Harms, Kaiser and Hagen have introduced and made an impression on lovers of the instrument. Mr. Twitchell possesses a high, clear baritone voice and his musical education is superb.

"In a recent interview with Mr. John Kaiser he submitted a letter from Vice President Hobart which read as follows: 'Gentlemen, your records received and I was very much pleased with the same, especially those by Atwood Twitchell.'"

Garrett Hobart was vice president in the McKinley administration. John Kaiser, who made some of the "Casey" records after Russell Huntington went to England, later became Zonophone recording director. He was an uncle of our present-day piano-playing genius, Frank Banta.

It is still possible that Atwood Twitchell, whose recorded voice sounds greatly like Alexander's, was an assumed name, but perhaps he was a well-known singer under his own legal cognomen.

The October, 1898, issue revealed that George J. Gaskin, then singing for Columbia cylinders, was warbling "Break the News to Mother" 36 times a week to fill the demand for masters. He was singing "She Was Bred in Old Kentucky," 20 times, "On the Banks of the Wabash," 30, and Paul Dresser's latest, "Sweet Savannah," 15 times a week.

In November, Cal Stewart, already famous for his "Uncle Josh" records, received this flattering comment: "Cal Stewart is the most popular man among his fellow artists,

HERE ARE YOUR "MUSIC MUSTS"

Collectors & dealers swear by Burton's recorded listings, etc., in B.B. Hollywood & B.B. Broadway Musicals, each $5.50. Just out is a new Vol. 1 (1776-1910) of his Blue Book Encyclopedia Popular Music, $10. All 3 this month $15.50, postpaid. Roach's Player Piano Scrapbook is $3. Freeman's Melody Lingers On (50 years of song covers with some music) $6, and The Three Sons Old Music Shop is almost out of print at $2; all three at $8.50 on first come basis. CENTURY HOUSE PUBLISHERS, Watkins Glen, N. Y.

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clockmakers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

Route 3, Norwell, Mass.

Tel. OLdfield 9-2221

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW ESPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought	Sold	Repaired
---------------	-------------	-----------------

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.      D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Washington 7, D. C.      Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded.

THE VESTAL PRESS
3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

138c

"... well written and often explosively funny ..."

—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1508) Pelham, N. Y.
Specialists since 1825

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.)
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY
50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

Jim Walsh was astonished to learn from an 1899 Phonoscope that this Quartet was known as the American before it took the Haydn Quartet name. Members were John Bieling, Jere Mahoney, S. H. Dudley, and William F. Hooley.

and we know of no one who gets a better word from all."

The Phonoscope published a number of amusing stories Stewart had told about his experiences and several of his original poems which I didn't have time to copy.

The December issue had an ad of the "artistic whistling solos" by John Yorke AtLee. Two dozen were of whistling alone and eight were singing with whistling refrains. The ad, apparently inserted by AtLee himself, said the records could be supplied by all companies, and gave his permanent address as in care of the Phonoscope.

A brief item said the "talent" of the Columbia Phonograph Co. had presented recording expert Victor H. Emerson with a handsome gold watch. Dan W. Quinn made the presentation. The facetious thought occurs: Did they swipe Len Spencer's watch and present it to Emerson?

It was also said that a song writer, Fred Hylands, "has published his 'Darky Volunteer,' and dedicated it to Vess L. Ossman, 'the foremost banjoist in the country.'"

January, 1899, brought some surprising news about AtLee, who "has undertaken the management of the phonograph department of the Duston-Smith Piano Co., Charleston, S.C., and is confident of doing a big business."

In February, readers were told that "the home office of Len Spencer's Minstrels has moved to its spacious new rooms at 33 West 27th Street, where Manager Harry Yeager is keeping busy booking this popular attraction."

Speaking of the Phonoscope's readers, it is a sobering thought that all its "latest news" (though the magazine stayed two or three months behind its publication date) was addressed to men and women who are now dead. Few original readers of the Phonoscope of more than 60 years ago can still be alive. A man who was 20 in 1898 would be 84 now.

Moving up to March, 1899, I almost toppled from my chair when I discovered that John Bieling, Jere Mahoney, S. H. Dudley, and W. F. Hooley, who were then making records as the Edison Male Quartet, were also known as the American Quartet, rather than as the Haydn Quartet, which they were called later on Victor records.

In all my reading about the American Quartet, and in conversations or correspondence with Bieling and Dudley, I had never heard of this group being called by that name. As I have often said, no matter how much one knows about the pioneer phonograph days, there is always something new and surprising to learn. The field is inexhaustible.

In April, it was announced that Harms, Kaiser, and Hagen's list of artists included Fred Hager, Albert Campbell, Hooley, George S. Williams, Quinn, the New York Symphony Orchestra, the Imperial Quartet, Ralph Raymond, Edward M. Favor, Atwood Twitchell, and a now completely unknown name, Robert J. Webb.

This is the first indication I have found that Frank Stanley made vocal records under the assumed name of George S. Williams, although he played the banjo for Edison cylinders in that disguise.

Harry Macdonough told me many years ago he had made a few records under the name of Ralph Raymond, but this was the first time I had learned what company he made them for.

I have just discovered that I overlooked a few February notes. And, by the way, October, 1898, was the last issue edited by Hunting, who left immediately afterward to work in England. The new editor was Emil Imandt.

Going back to February, 1899, I learned that "Fred Hylands, Roger Harding, and Steve Porter are the enterprising young men who have recently organized a song publishing company under the name of the Knickerbocker Music Publishing Co. We wish them success in their new venture."

William F. Hooley, Jr., once remarked that his father used to say, "Steve always had an angle," meaning Porter was always looking for some new way to make money. In one way or another, the versatile Steve made it, and he died a wealthy man from the sale of the Portophone, a hearing aid he invented. But his music publishing house didn't last long.

The firm making "Giant Tone" standard size cylinders, which were supposed to give as much volume as the large concert type, announced that their artists included Diamond and Curry, banjo duettists; John Hazel, cornet; Hooley; Arthur Collins, "coon songs" (the first mention I found of Collins); William H. De Wick, mandolin solos; Campbell, Hager, and Pierre Leo, "clarinet solos."

Some rather astonishing news was given about Len Spencer in April, 1899:

"Len Spencer is trying to acquire avoirdupois on a milk diet of 10 quarts daily, which he brings in with him from his country place. As Len weighs 210 already, he has great hopes of getting into Fred Hyland's 250 pound class before the summer is over."

Also in April: "Mr. Vess L. Ossman, banjoist, is doing his specialty in the orchestra at the Manhattan Theater, New York, after the second act of 'Madame Fifi,' having been engaged there since the opening, and is making a big hit."

Another item said: "Len Spencer and Harry Yeager have joined the forces of the Knickerbocker Music Publishing Co., and the firm hereafter will be known as Hylands, Spencer and Yeager."

Harding and Porter seem to have declared themselves out of music publishing in short order.

Porter had another "angle" by May: "Mr. Steve Porter is manufacturing and selling stereoscopic picture machines."

There was an anecdote about the time Cal Stewart, as an engineer, drove a train that took an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupe to fill an engagement. When the actor playing Phineas Fletcher could not perform, Cal took over the part. In his early life he had been an actor, railroad man, and almost everything else.

I found the first mention of the famous French firm of Pathe Freres in June, 1899:

"F. M. Prescott has received samples of original grand, or concert, records made by Pathe Freres of Paris. They are operatic selections in French rendered by Melchissadeuc of the Paris Opera."

"For volume and clearness of tone and artistic finish they excel any records we have ever heard. Finally, they are sold in very artistic boxes. Mr. Prescott has the complete repertoire of all records, both large and small, made by Pathe Freres."

And what a surprise the following was!

"The Hayden Quartet, consisting of Messrs. Fred Rycrofe, first tenor; Charles Belling, second tenor; S. H. Dudley, baritone, and William F. Hooley, basso, are at present receiving more engagements than they can possibly attend to. They have been very busy recently making records for the Gramophone Co. in Philadelphia, Pa."

Never had I heard from any source that singers named Rycrofe and Belling had at one time been members of the Hayden Quartet. And this was the first publication issued before 1913 in which I had ever seen the Quartet's name spelled as Hayden instead of Haydn. Again I nearly fell from my chair. A thought has suddenly occurred—could Charles Belling have been a misprint for John Bielings? It probably was. But the mystery of Rycrofe remains.

In July, 1899, the Phonoscope said:

"Miss Anna Barthold has accepted another engagement with the Sign of the Cross Co. This lady has become very popular as a phonograph singer, having sung for most of the foremost concerns, but as there was not enough work in this particular line to keep her busy she decided to join the company another season."

The editor added that Miss Barthold's services would still be available to any record company wanting them. Long lists of records by this now forgotten contralto were published. Seven by her were listed in the 1899 Edison catalog, but all were cut out the following year.

Still in July, the editor remarked that "one of the most progressive phonograph companies of New York City is Reed, Dawson and Co."

This firm was said to employ the best available talent, including Stewart, Billy Golden, Campbell, Quinn, Ossman, George Schweinfest (piccolo), Hooley, Dudley, C. H. H.

Booth (piano), Signor Peluso, T. H. Reed (violin), Harry Chambers (cornet)—this probably should have been W. Paris Chambers.

Also included were Charles P. Lowe (xylophone), George P. Watson (yodler), A. D. Madeira (basso), Billy Heins (comic songs), George S. Williams (Frank C. Stanley, comic songs), Stanley, Harry Macdonald (Harry Macdonough), Mahoney, A. C. Sweet (cornet), Leo A. Zimmerman (trombone), H. von der Heide ('cello), the Lyric Trio, Original American Quartet, the Metropolitan Band, Reed's Orchestra, Estella Mann, Jessie Ollivier, Miss Fields and Miss Worthington. (Who can they have been?)

"The popular Irish comedian, Joseph R. Gannon, has been engaged to make the celebrated Michael Casey series and is appointed manager of the New York office."

With Russell Hunting out of the country, other comedians were stealing his "Casey" character rights. And what has become of all those Reed and Dawson cylinders?

E. T. Paull, a composer of descriptive instrumental pieces, such as "Napoleon's Last Charge" and "The Burning of Rome," had moved from Richmond, Va., to New York, and was operating both a music publishing house and a cylinder record studio.

J. Aldrich Libbey, whose singing of "After the Ball" in vaudeville had made it one of the greatest all-time hits, was making records for Paull.

In August, Reed, Dawson & Co., who were at 74 Cortland St., New York, and 516 Broad St., Newark, were advertising that "T. Herbert Reed makes the only successful violin records—loud, clear and distinct." (What about that gold medal Fred Hager had won?) A photo of Mr. Reed, with his violin, was shown.

There was a reference in September to "a ruddy faced young man" with a German appearance who made his living principally by singing yodel songs for the phonograph. This probably was the late George P. Watson.

The Columbia Co. came in for some severe criticism:

"We note that the names of the various talent employed by the Columbia Phonograph Co. have been omitted in a recent catalog issued by them. In the case of one prominent artist whom we have in-

(Continued on page 37)

From left to right, top to bottom:

Top:

An early photo of Vess L. Ossman who was The Banjo King of the 1890's. The small cylinder phonograph was a popular means of home entertainment in the days of The Phonoscope. This painting, by the Italian artist, Mazzini, was often used in Edison advertising.

Bottom:

Fred Hager, who won a gold medal awarded by The Phonoscope for making the best violin record. His inseparable companion and accompanist, Justin Ring (Justus Ringleben) is at the piano. Hager is dead, but Ring, aged 86, lives in Hollywood, Fla. This picture was taken about 1899.

Frederic Rose, tenor ballad singer, was a member of Len Spencer's 1899 Greater New York Minstrels.

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD SHEET MUSIC, all kinds, etudes, metronomes, etc., organ books. Write wants. — Frank Bailey, Route 3, South Haven, Mich. d1251

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

VOCALSTYLE piano rolls badly needed. "Mr. Jelly Lord" and "Tom Cat Blues." — Montgomery, 722 Spring, Ann Arbor, Mich. d122511

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120061

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

ROTARY VALVE ALTO $50; trombone $45, both $85. Tater Bug mandolin, Weyman, flat back, 12-string, each $35; all in top condition. 15 old violins, all in top restored condition, new strings with rehired bows and cases, $30 each. Silver cornet $15. Brass trumpet $18. All old and in top playing condition. Photos available at 20c. — L. Watson, 501 S. Pershing, York, Pa. d1405

PIANOS & ROLLS

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1519 California St., San Francisco, Calif. f3483

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. d126351

ORGANS FOR SALE

PIPE ORGANS WANTED, and for sale! Organs - new, used, parts, music. — Alden Miller, 3212 34th Ave. South, Minneapolis 6, Minnesota. f3023

VIOLINS FOR SALE

VIOLIN. Bears inscription "Jacobus Stainer in abam prope Oerupontum 1796." Tiger maple. Black wood carrying case. Nice condition. Make an offer. — Stonebraker's Antiques, Clearfield, Pa. d1002 interviewed, he informed us that the adoption of their new policy is a flagrant violation of the company's contract.

"Much unfavorable comment has been expressed in general. Perhaps the Columbia people do not realize the fact that they employ the best talent available in this particular branch of their business. "This change in the catalog creates a vast amount of dissatisfaction among them. Such names as Spencer, Gaskin, Quinn, Porter, Myers, Cal Stewart, etc. have heretofore been featured in their printing matter."

Notwithstanding this sensible criticism, Columbia continued to omit the names of artists from its catalogs through 1906, and thereby made the research efforts of such specialists as the late Dr. Duane Deakins that much more difficult.

The August issue mentioned a yodeling record, "Sweet Rose," by Watson; and I was not edified to see Dan Quinn listed as singing a "Ragtime Hymn." That sounds like a forerunner of the attitude of some present-day "liberal" preachers who have jazz recitals as part of their church services.

There was a photo of C. H. H. Booth, who played piano accompaniments on records for several companies. He had thick dark hair and a curling mustache, and was described as a prominent Brooklyn organist who had made some "magnificent piano solos for Messrs. Reed, Dawson & Co."

Pathe Freres was termed the leading European talking machine firm, and the following information was given about an inimitable and apparently indefatigable comedian:

"Steve Porter finds the hard work of singing eight hours for the Columbia Phonograph Co. and putting in eight hours at the Empire Picture Machine Co. so exhausting that pure country air is needed to keep him in good health and wind, so he has purchased a beautiful country place at Dyker Heights, where he can spend the few leisure moments he has in the quiet and peaceful game of golf."

Wonder what became of that country place? It wasn't long before Steve had joined Russell Hunting in England. He even lived a while in India before returning to the States. John Havens probably didn't appreciate one of the references in the following:

"The Lyric Phonograph Co. have returned to their old home, 114 West 34th St. . . . Mr. J. C. Havens, tenor, who has been the general manager for the above firm, has severed his connection to enable him to embark in another business."

"Mr. Harry Macdonough, the well known tenor, has been engaged to sing with the Trio, and no doubt they will make a better record than heretofore."

"Miss Estella Louise Mann deserves credit for the manner in which she has clung to her business as many difficulties have confronted her in the past. This lady possesses a nerve which is seldom seen in the opposite sex. We are confident of her success in the future. She deserves the hearty support of the entire phonograph trade."

A paragraph in another issue quoted Miss Mann's brother, William J. Mann, who had been assisting her, as saying he'd had enough of the phonograph business and was going back to railroading. Miss Mann's father, also a railroad man, was said to be very proud of his daughter and her records.

Advertisements in several issues featured Lyric records by Miss Mann with violin obligatos by Ernest F. Erdmann. Duets by her and Havens were mentioned in November, 1899. In that same issue readers learned:

"Mr. English, well known in early Edison phonograph laboratory work, has taken charge of the new laboratory of the Universal Talking Machine Co. on 24th Street, and is manufacturing a full line of flat disc indestructible records such as the Berliner Gramophone record. The new company expects to have a full line of records on the market shortly."

"Mr. Orville La Dow is said to be the president and financial backer of the Universal Talking Machine Co., and is largely interested in other talking machine enterprises, being secretary and

(Continued on page 53)

JEWELRY

JEWELRY WANTED

DIAMONDS, OLD GOLD, COINS, watches, stickpins, rings, earrings, etc., regardless of condition. Highest prices paid. Prompt replies. Send by registered mail to: Edward G. Wilson, 1802 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. je12439

ANTIQUE AND MODERN JEWELRY from all over the world, bought and sold. Inquiries solicited. — Kenneth R. Park, 31 West St., Boston, Mass. (Est. 1844). je126351

MISCELLANEOUS JEWELRY

STICKPIN COLLECTORS! Let's get together! — P. O. Box 104, Dolton, Ill. d6023

JEWELRY FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Antiques and semi-antiques, gold-filled, silver, etc., 10 articles for $6. Assortment includes lockets, charms, pins, rings, etc. Good value. — St. Louis Refining Co., 1115 Holland Bldg., St. Louis 1, Mo. my68801

BEAUTIFUL JEWELRY from our vast gold-buying, rings, pins, chains, etc. 10 pieces for $5. Better grade pieces. 10 for $10. — B. Lowe, Holland Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. f3464

FOR SALE: Beautiful antique brooch made from Sir Isaac Newton's shoe buckle. In our family over 250 years. Best offer takes, if reasonable. — Dorothy Hansen, 2533 Cherry St., Bellingham, Wash. d1042

STAINED GLASS fused into brilliant stones of many hues. All hand fired and mounted on durable gold finish. Cuff links and tie tack $5; small pendant and earrings $5; bracelet and earrings $10; 2½" pendant with leather thong, very unusual, real conversation piece $6; earrings to match large pendant or cuff links $3. Matching pieces must be ordered at the same time as all firings are different. Allow several weeks. Postage and tax included in price. State color preference. — Glass Jewels by Downs, R.D. 2, Dillsburg, Pa. d32931

FOR SALE: Old clear crystal intaglios ½" square. For use in making earrings, charms or lavaliers. Price $1 a dozen. — Gladys Morabito, 372 William St., Stoneham, Mass. ja3234

CAMEO. 14K w. gold diamond necklace, $50. — Hillcrest Antiques, 411 Waverly Place, Lakeland, Fla. d1021

Coral, Cameos, Antique Jewelry Cameos Our Specialty Concetta Palma

5418 WEST FULTON
Chicago, Illinois
(Mail Order Only)

Carrying on the business of the late
GENNARO RUSSO of Naples, Italy.
and Chicago, Illinois.

tfc

Who Were Currier and Ives?

Why are Currier & Ives lithograph prints widely collected?
Their prints are a picture record of America of their day—1835-95.

Why are some prints marked N. Currier, others Currier & Ives?
Nathaniel Currier began prints, 1835; James Merritt Ives joined him, 1859.

Why are Currier & Ives lithograph prints so costly today?
They have been extensively collected, so are rare. Many of them are wanted by many collectors. Rarity and demand push up price.

What are some favorite Currier & Ives lithograph print subjects?
American Country Life, especially Winter Scenes. Westerns, with Indians, trappers, or cowboys. Sports, especially horse racing, hunting. Women, especially showing styles, home interiors. Great Americans. Mississippi River Steam-boats. Clipper Ships. Naval Ships. Battles. Railroads. Flowers & Fruits. Comics. Others.

What are some things collectors watch for in lithograph prints?
American subjects. Fine condition—clean, untorn, unstained; full margins. Preferably unfaded, though a little "aging" or "mellowing" of colors is allowed by some. Many prefer hand painted.

What are LITHOGRAPH PRINTS? HOW ARE THEY MADE? See CHAPTER 49 HOBBIES
GENERAL BOOK ON ANTIQUES AND COLLECTORS ITEMS IN 50 FIELDS

THE WORLD of ANTIQUE ARTS

By Orille Bourassa Rhoades of HOBBIES staff

ORDER YOUR COPY TODAY

Send $7.50 to HOBBIES Magazine, 1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 5, Ill.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 37)

general manager of the National Gramophone Corporation of this city."

Universal soon began to issue Zonophone records. In another place La Dow was severely criticized for starting a new company while still on the payroll of Emile Berliner's Gramophone firm. Editorial comment on disc records was invariably scornful.

Retracing our steps to September, an advertisement indicated the Concert Phonograph Record Co. was operated by the E. T. Paull Music Co., already mentioned.

One of their singers, Charles Clinton Clark (and who today has ever heard of him?) was described as "without any exception the best coon song singer that ever attempted to sing into a phonograph." (They must not have heard of Arthur Collins, whose recording career was just beginning.) "We have the original Casey series of master talking records made by Joseph R. Gannon."

In addition, there were piano solos of Mr. Paull playing his own compositions.

In October, the trade learned that "Pathe Freres are now selling a new Graphophone modeled after the Gem phonograph, with improvements and using a phonograph reproducer."

Also: "T. W. Hager, the well-known leader and violinist who won the gold medal presented by the Phonoscope Publishing Co. at the Pittsburgh exposition, recently issued a neat card to display in the windows of phonograph dealers.

"Word comes to us from London that Russell Hunting has charge of the record making department of the Edison Bell Consolidated Phonograph Co., Ltd., of London. We congratulate his employers on obtaining the services of so able a man as Mr. Hunting is in that line."

Len Spencer was in the news again, this time as an inventor:

"'A Picture No Artist Can Paint' . . . has been selected on the list to be adapted to the newly patented Song Illustrator. This new machine, designed by Mr. Len Spencer and owned by him, is a slot device requiring a nickel to operate, and simultaneously with the reproduction of the song by graphophone, the 23 electrically illuminated views follow in succession before the eye. The model is complete and is a credit to the Capps Manufacturing Co. of New Jersey, who made it."

There was also a mention that a Dane (Paulsen) had invented a method of recording magnetically on wire.

The December, 1899, issue was the last in the volume and, so far as I know, the final number of the Phonoscope. Harms, Kaiser and Hagen, of 18 East 24th St., New York, were offering, as special features, records by Joe Natus (I wish I had known of them when I wrote my 1961 HOBBIES article about Natus) and the Imperial Quartet. I have since learned, too, that Natus made Edison cylinders before 1895. One was "Waiting By the Sea."

The Bettini Co., first to specialize in records by opera stars, was offering cylinders by Ancona, Calve, Plancon, Sembrich, Van Dyck, Sarah Bernhardt, Ritter Sommelthal, Mme. Rejane, Tomasso Salvini, Eleanora Duse, Ellen Terry, Mark Twain, John Drew, Nat C. Goodwin and Henry E. Dixey.

J. Aldrich Libbey was making Lyric records for Miss Mann.

Today, Bettini records are among the hardest to find.

I also examined the Phonograph Record, published in Chicago, for August, 1896, but it had almost nothing about the phonograph. The Hall Music Co. was offering a long list of solo cylinders with piano accompaniment by Miss Jessie Olivier. Among the titles were "McKinley is the Man," "Democracy's Lament," and "Cuba's Appeal."

There was a quotation from the "Edison Phonographic News" in which a Graphophone (the instrument made by Columbia) was said, when compared to an Edison phonograph, to bear the same relationship that a toy tool chest did to a regular carpenter or mechanic's outfit!

Elida Morris, the famous comedienne, appears very happy in this photo taken in her early stage days.

SIX COMEDIENNES

ELIDA MORRIS

PART I

By JIM WALSH

I. "Angel Eyes"

During the years that I have written for HOBBIES, some remarkably heart-warming things have happened, but I believe the most wonderful occurred on the afternoon of Saturday, December 30, 1961.

The unexpected and almost unbelievable event which I am about to describe could not have been better timed. At first sight it appeared I had only received an envelope with a California postmark, addressed in a large and vigorous hand.

However, when I read the letter inside that envelope I was swept from a mood of horrible depression to one of extreme elation, which brought to a happy ending one of the most mis-

ELIDA MORRIS APPROVES

"Santa Barbara,
September 13, 1962.

"Honestly, Jim, your efforts are priceless. Your 'human interest' inserts go beyond describing. The story, I'm sure, will go over immeasurably. . . . 'Angel Eyes,' your lovely cat, intrigued me. I'd forgotten what Willie Solar looked like. I do remember his successful 'Aba Daba' number. He was a clever comedian. . . . I'm very proud and happy the way the story reads. . . . Good luck. Bless you.

"Sincerely,
ELIDA."

erable days I had ever spent. Now I must relate briefly the story of little "Angel Eyes."

As readers who look for my New Year's greeting in each January HOBBIES may suspect, I love cats better than anything else in the world. So when I learned that a beautiful gray-and-brown, golden-eyed kitten was virtually under sentence of death, I knew I must save it or suffer torments.

The kitten, a seemingly homeless waif, had timidly appeared at the building in which I work during a period of bitter cold weather and begun sleeping in the lobby to keep from freezing.

After a few days someone decreed that it could not be allowed to remain and ordered that it be put to sleep. I could not bear the thought of that.

The little fellow was one of the prettiest, sweetest, and most gentle natured creatures I had ever seen, and its large, golden-colored eyes gave it an angelic expression.

At first I had called it "Brownie" when I stopped to speak to it in passing by. Then I changed to "Golden Eyes."

Finally, what seemed to be the perfect name occurred to me and I dubbed it "Angel Eyes" from the title of the first Victor record made by one of my favorite comediennesses, Elida Morris.

Her version of "Angel Eyes" was a duet with my beloved old friend, the late Billy Murray, and every time I spoke to Angel Eyes, the kitten, I wished once more that I could find out something about Elida Morris.

I had been seeking information concerning her for more years than I have been writing for HOBBIES, but all my efforts had failed. Several sources had told me she was believed to be dead (some said she might have settled down in England and died there), but no one had positive information.

I knew that I couldn't add Angel Eyes to my famous cat family of Roger, Gray, Nipper, Petey, and Percy, or at least I thought I couldn't. They all, with the possible exception of the ever-friendly Petey, life miserable for a little fellow too small to defend himself.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

But I decided I would take Angel Eyes to the animal shelter operated by the Roanoke Valley Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, leave some money to pay for his food, and ask the SPCA to find him a good home.

Above everything else, I would have it understood that he was not to lose his life, no matter what happened. Already I dearly loved that gentle little bundle of fur and was grieved at the thought of giving him away instead of keeping him for myself.

On the night of December 28th, Angel Eyes had been ejected from the lobby, when the front door was locked. I found him shivering outside the door, picked him up, stroked him, talked gently to him and held him close while I walked to a bus stop.

He squirmed and was uneasy at first, but after I entered the bus he snuggled up against me trustfully and purred all the way until we reached Vinton. I then hurried up the hill to my home, hoping that none of my cats had come to meet me and I could slip Angel Eyes in unobserved.

That was not to be. I had gone only a few feet when I heard wails of greeting from Roger and Percy. Percy, who a year before had been the starving Pitiful Persian, saw the kitten, but didn't seem to object.

Roger, however, who considers himself the head of my cat family and is conceded that position by the oth-

E. Carpenter,
"Companion Organ"
Mfg. about 1850.
Perfect playing condition,
26½x32½" high.

$300.00

Original stenciling.
Crating extra.

E. Menelaus
Blockton, Iowa.
jax

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS
Particularly the following:

- * COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- * VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- * INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- * FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- * "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

"... well written and often explosively funny..." Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

THE VESTAL PRESS

—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press 3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

f36c

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825

tfc

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

Route 3, Norwell, Mass.

Tel. OLdfield 9-2221

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

tfc

ers, was furious. He spat at the kitten several times and angrily refused to eat his supper.

I decided to put Angel Eyes in a storage house on my back lawn, so he would at least be protected from the cold wind. I gave him a plate of food and took him another the next morning.

He ate little, but remained there, gentle and uncomplaining, for 24 hours. But on Friday night I decided the unheated building was too cold for him, so I carried him to my bedroom and turned on the electric blanket.

I was determined that he should sleep warm one night before I took him to the shelter the next morning. Little Nipper, who usually sleeps with me, joined me in giving up our regular bed, and we went into another room.

Saturday morning, when I again fed Angel Eyes, he turned the full glory of his wonderful golden eyes upon me in touching gratitude, and I felt myself choking, at the thought of giving him up.

As he sat on my bed, I took a color photo of him, which I hope can be reproduced.

Although I didn't know it, I was about to come down with the flu, and when that ailment starts working on me my nerves go to pieces and I am likely to have uncontrollable weeping spells.

Two of my dearest friends, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Keffer, took us to the shelter in their car. All the way, little Angel Eyes nestled against me, showing no signs of being afraid of a car, as most cats are when they take their first ride.

He purred only a little, but seemed happy as long as he was with me.

Even after we reached the shelter and a girl had placed him in a little cage, he did not meow, but his eyes looked sad.

As I saw scores of dogs and cats, confined to cages, waiting for someone to give them homes, I knew that after a few days, if no homes had been found, they would be put to sleep. I especially remember a large mother cat, with a half dozen kittens that were mostly yellow, all in one large cage.

I made a $5 contribution to buy food for Angel Eyes, and signed a paper turning him over to the custody of the SPCA. On the paper I printed in capital letters, "Not to Be Put to Death Under Any Circumstances."

Then, as we turned to go and I saw poor Angel Eyes still sitting, uncomplaining in his cage, and not making a sound. With the words choking me, I said "I'm just going to leave you here a week. If they haven't found you a good home by next Saturday, I'm going to take you back, even if the other cats don't want you!"

For hours I thought constantly of those poor caged cats and dogs, waiting wistfully for somebody to "adopt" them, and especially of Angel Eyes.

I was in the depths of despondency whenever I imagined him, sitting in that little cage, uncomplainingly grieving for me. That is why I was in such a sorrowful mood when I went to the Vinton post office and I badly needed something to bring me out of my emotional upheaval.

II. A Wonderful Letter

As I walked the few blocks between my home and the post office, I thought of the Directory of (recording artists') Births and Deaths I had published in the December HOBBIES. And I wondered, as I had done thousands of times before, if Elida Morris, the vaudeville and musical comedy star whose records had always captivated me, were still alive.

I had long considered her to have more "sex appeal" in her voice than any other woman I had ever heard sing. I had often imagined her standing, charmingly gowned, before the footlights.

She would sing "Stop! Stop! Stop! (Come Over and Love Me Some More)" or "Kiss Me, My Honey, Kiss Me," in such an irresistible way that the management would need a screen between her and the men in the audience to keep them from trying to take her at her word.

I had included her in the Directory, with a guess that she was born about 1888, and had used a question mark to indicate I didn't know whether she was still alive.

My desire for more information was so great I had frequently reflected that if I could hear from only one artist in that Directory I would choose Elida Morris. As I have already said, my search for information concerning the winsome comedienne had been carried on for many years.

Ever since I have conducted this HOBBIES department I have wanted to write about her, but had many a time despaired of ever gaining the knowledge needed to do such a subject justice.

However, I had overlooked few possibilities. Not many months before I had ordered photostats of all the New York Public Library's newspaper clippings concerning her. Some day, I hoped, they might prove useful.

MERRY CHRISTMAS and a A HAPPY NEW YEAR From Roger, Percy, Nipper, and Jim Walsh!

ROGER knows Santa Claus likes to visit cats who are useful as well as good, so he has been working at putting stacks of unfilled records into place.

PERCY (no longer The Pitiful, but now the Pampered, Persian) has become tired of waiting for Santa, and packed his suitcase to go look for him. But first he's tired and will take a little rest.

NIPPER also is impatient for Christmas, and is about to try to speed it up by calling Santa on the phone.

PETEX (Right, above), 1957-July, 1962, was loved by everyone who knew him, because he loved everyone. Before he went into the impenetrable shadows, he had been looking out the window, eagerly hoping for Santa Claus.

GRAY (Right, below), sweetest and best of cats, probably was born in 1953. He broke our hearts by leaving us forever on September 11, 1962. Always hoping to be useful, he was trying here to help put records away at our home, 225 North Maple St., Vinton, Va. —JIM WALSH

IN DEVOTED MEMORY TO PETEX and GRAY, who have left us to live where it is always Christmas! Eternal peace to you UNDERSTANDING FRIENDS. As long as any of us who knew and loved you survive, the memory of you will be a blessing and a fragrant benediction. We also mourn the loss, but cherish the remembrance of Little Angel Eyes and Mike. The 'Possum.

I opened Box 476 and took out an envelope. It was addressed in a large, distinctively individual handwriting, was postmarked Santa Barbara, Calif., and had been forwarded to me by HOBBIES.

There was no return address, but after I had settled down in a booth in the Dogwood restaurant and was waiting for my supper, I saw that the stationery bore the imprinted name of Elida Morris Cooper.

For perhaps a split second the significance of that name didn't dawn on me. Then all at once I realized that, by an amazing coincidence, I had received a letter from the very lady about whom I had been thinking.

My heart seemed to miss several beats. Then I felt the formerly despondent expression leave my face—and a smile almost cracked it in two.

I had excitedly read only a paragraph before I perceived that Elida Morris, whom I had so often been told was dead, was a living lady of candor and honesty.

She had written to tell me that my HOBBIES listing made her appear two years younger than she actually was! But now I shall share that, to me, historic letter with you:

"Elida Morris Cooper
"1232 North Nopal St.
"Santa Barbara, Calif.
"Dec. 22, 1961

"Dear Sir:

"In your December issue of HOBBIES Magazine I find my name, Elida Morris. To correct the date of birth, I was born in 1886, November 12th.

"I am very alive and just finished playing 'Higa Jiga' (my lines are in Japanese) in 'The Teahouse of the August Moon'; the play before that, the lead in 'The Matchmaker,' as 'Mrs. Levi.' We, the Alhacama Players, with Dr. Frank Fowler our director, put on some dandy shows! — four a year at the Lobero Theater.

"As to records, I really wish I could find some of mine. It was the late Billy Murray who introduced me in that field, and Ada Jones was a most popular recording artist.

"It seemed good to see all those names again. You did a wonderful job in compiling all those names. I did Victor, Edison, Brunswick, Pathe (when playing in London), all lost in storage. It was while playing the Keith Orpheum Circuits (22 years on their books) that I was a recording artist.

"I just heard from Sophie Tucker again. Her Christmas card is tops! Wonderful woman!

"I'm really flattered that someone has been inquiring about me and my records.

"Sincerely,

"Elida Morris (Cooper).

"Twenty-four years married, widow of Lt. Col. Norwood Raymond Cooper (13 years), Army Air Force Intelligence Officer. Merry Christmas! Happy New Year!"

It would be impossible to exaggerate the elation I felt at receiving this letter from the fine artiste whom I had feared for more than 20 years was no longer of this world. Gone, for the time being, was the grief about Angel Eyes and the misery I had been feeling from oncoming symptoms of the flu.

As I walked rapidly home, I recalled that when Billy Murray and his pal (my pal, too!), Jimmy Martindale, visited me in Johnson City, Tenn., in October, 1938, I asked Billy Elida Morris in the heyday of her vaudeville career, when she "Played the Palace."

Elida Morris, photographed in 1960, in her garden at Santa Barbara, Calif.

if he knew what had become of Elida Morris.

He didn't, but he did admirably remember her as an attractive brunette girl with a charming personality and an excellent voice for both recording and stage work. He had some idea she had retired after living in England for several years.

As soon as I reached home, I went straight to my typewriter and wrote a four-page letter to Elida Morris, which went to her an hour afterward by air mail, special delivery.

I told her how much her records had meant to me, how hard I had tried to find out something about her, and how her letter, coming like manna from heaven, had lifted me out of the dumps. I also asked how she happened to see the HOBBIES article.

The next day, Sunday, I sent a follow-up, telling her that when I started the imaginary Walsh Talking Machine Company in a pencil tablet at the age of 10, she was the first woman who "recorded" for my mythical company.

Walsh record No. 3 contained her version of "Home, Sweet Home" (a song she would not have been likely to record), combined with Arthur Clough's tenor singing of "A Little Bunch of Shamrocks," not a very suitable coupling!

Some time later I sent the almost illegible first page of that time-worn "catalog" so she could see her name in my childish scrawl. (By the way, does any reader know anything about Arthur Clough? I'd like to learn whether he is still alive!)

I told Mrs. Cooper in my first letter that I would gladly send her a taped copy of all her records in my collection.

I also mentioned how I had been eager to write her life's story for HOBBIES and asked that she send me some photographs and further information about herself—a request that was soon fulfilled in good measure, especially after she received a questionnaire asking loads of questions.

A few nights later, feeling somewhat better, I gave my newly found friend, Elida, a real surprise. I called up "Information" at the Santa Barbara telephone exchange and requested Mrs. Elida Morris Cooper's number.

Hardly more than a minute later, I had dialed that number and heard the voice of Elida Morris saying, "Hello."

I then told her she was talking with Jim Walsh in Vinton, Va., and she said, after a cordial greeting, in a voice that was sweet and musical, that she was taking down her Christmas decorations when the phone rang.

After some more conversation, I put her 1910 Victor record of "You'll Come Back"—one she sang with Billy Murray on the hi-fi, and Elida Morris, in her home in California, 3,000 miles away from where the record was being played, heard her voice coming from a disc she had made 51 years before.

Nearly a year later, on the morning of November 12, 1962, I again phoned to her. This time I sang "Happy Birthday to You" as a greeting to Elida on her 76th birthday.

In the days that followed, our friendship by correspondence flourished. It was not long before I had all the information needed to write this long-anticipated series.

But what, you may be wondering, became of little Angel Eyes? Did the SPCA find him a good home, or did I bring him back to my own home at the end of the week and make him the sixth member of my cat family? I have dreaded reaching this point, for the remainder of the story of the loving golden-eyed little beauty is so tragic, I can hardly bear to think about it.

On Tuesday morning, following that visit to the SPCA, I was in bed with "Angel Eyes," the golden-eyed kitten who was named for Elida Morris' first Victor record.

This photo of the youthful Elida Morris accompanied the announcement of her first Victor record, "Angel Eyes," in the August, 1910, Victor supplement.

a fully developed case of flu. I was writing in my diary and had just reaffirmed my determination to give Angel Eyes a home if he were still in the animal shelter that week-end when the phone rang.

The caller was Mr. Childress, of the SPCA. He said "The kitten you left with us Saturday is mighty sick, with a temperature of 104. It came down with distemper yesterday, and I don't think it can possibly live more than a couple of hours."

He then asked me what he should do. They couldn't keep Angel Eyes in the shelter he said, because of the danger of giving distemper to the other cats. Even if I took him home, he probably would be dead before I could get there. No Veterinary hospital would accept him, because of the danger to other animals. So, since I had written that he was not to be put to death under any circumstances, what should he do?

There I was, flat on my back, too ill to go to the shelter even if there were any chance of removing Angel Eyes and saving his life. But finally I said that since he was so ill he couldn't live I would give permission for him to be put to sleep.

Now I understood why Angel Eyes had seemed so abnormally meek and unresisting, no matter what happened to him. He must have been taking the distemper for several days, no doubt from the exposure he had undergone, and had felt so bad he had offered no resistance to anything, not even to being left in a cage in a strange place full of other cats and dogs.

And, by one of the cruelest quirks of fate, I, who had said that he must not lose his life, no matter what the circumstances, was compelled to give the word that brought his innocent existence to an end.

Some time later, I learned that the "waif" hadn't been homeless, after all. He belonged to a blind couple who lived a few blocks from where I work.

They had been obliged to leave town for several days and had been unable, before they left, to find Angel Eyes, who had wandered beyond reach of their voices. So, not being able to get into his home, he had taken to sleeping in the lobby, with the results that I have detailed.

I still grieve as I think of how circumstances conspired to end his life when he should have been somebody's cherished pet for years to come. But as long as I live I shall treasure the memory of the little brown kitten with the loveliest cat eyes I have ever seen and one of the sweetest dispositions I have ever known.

I've told this because I felt that the story of his brief life belonged with that of Elida Morris, whose first Victor record gave the unfortunate mite the name by which he was known during the few days in which I tried, to no avail, to save him from death.

How many times I have awakened at night, begun thinking mournfully of that luckless little bundle of fur, and found myself haunted by the last lines of the chorus of Elida Morris' "Angel Eyes" song:

"The stars that shine up in the Southern sky,
They remind me of you, Angel Eyes!"

III. Rejoicing Among Record Collectors

When the flu tapered off and I began to recover my strength, I searched for a letter George Clarence Jell, the former head of Columbia's artist and repertoire department, had written me in the 1930's. It was in reply to an inquiry of mine for information about Elida Morris. The help Mr. Jell was able to give me was slight:

"Elida Morris pronounced her first name with the long 'i' as in 'hide.' She was a small, dark girl, very petite and attractive. The last time I saw her, I imagine, was about 1912. I have not the least idea what ultimately became of her."

Actually, Mr. Jell must have seen Elida on a number of occasions in 1914 and 1915, for she made Columbia records in those years.

I also wrote to a few of my fellow record collectors, whom I knew to be admirers of Elida Morris, telling them the good, if hardly believable news, that I had received a letter from her. One was Quentin Riggs, who is now working for the U. S. State Department in Sydney, Australia.

Quentin had visited me in September, 1961, before reporting to his (Continued on page 53)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 31)

please give me their addresses so that I might be able to look into the possibility of buying records from them?

When I read such fine articles as yours in HOBBIES Magazine, on Historical Records, I realize why not only historical recordings but also back issues of HOBBIES are considered truly collectors' items.

Very respectfully,
Francis S. Jackuboski
S/Sgt. AF6/58555

Dear Sergeant Jackuboski:

Thanks a lot for the nice letter. Glad to hear from you and to oblige, for your benefit and, perhaps, that of others seeking this information.

The Siena address:

Siena Records
P.O. Box 91
Boston 12, Mass.

The IRCC address (collectors please note the change):

International Record Collectors' Club
P.O. Box 1811
Bridgeport 1, Conn.

Most sincere wishes for good health, and may your hobby continue to be a source of enjoyment.

Yours sincerely,
Aida Favia-Artsay

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books, $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3694

WANTED: Old cylinder phonographs and records. Disc phonographs with outside horns. Cylinder reproducers. Hand roller organs. Want any amount large or small. — Neumann Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale 4, Calif. my6829

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ja3864

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each.—Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

ATTENTION: Antique phonographs, cylinder & disc. All makes, models. Repaired, bought, sold. Almost everything in stock to repair any make or model. Phonographs completely overhauled, cases refinished. Parts duplicated with original parts. Cylinder and disc records for sale. Reproducers repaired. Many complete, like new, cylinder and disc. Phonographs for sale. All workmanship, phonographs guaranteed. Phonographs for sale sheet, 10c. Phonographs parts price sheet, 10c. Lexington House, c/o Lloyd Whitlock, 114 State Street, Brewer, Maine. ja34811

BELLS

(Continued from page 51)

of the death of HOBBIES' good friend in England, Ernest Morris. Over a period of years Mr. Morris had contributed a number of interesting articles for our column and was widely recognized as an outstanding collector and author on the subject of bells. His last book, Tinnabula, dealing as it does with small bells, remains a favorite with collectors.

—O—

Mrs. C. C. Parker of Oklahoma sends us an interesting account about the finding of a 600-year-old Spanish mission bell.

According to the discovery, as reported in the Wichita Falls Times, the bell was found while a crew was laying a pipeline in California.

The men found the ruins of an old adobe village, and in the rooms was the discarded bell, grimy from long years of neglect.

No amount of research has revealed what became of the people who once lived in this village, nor how or when or where they acquired the bell. Cast around its sides, however, are these words SAN JOSE-RUECA POR NOSOTROS, and the date August 9, 1356.

—O—

Several collectors have reported acquiring rare and heretofore unavailable Tibetan bells through friends in India. The Tibetan Lamas, now refugees from Communism, are pouring into India by all routes.

Many of them are forced to sell their most valued possessions in order to eat and live. Almost always a Buddhist handbell is among those cherished treasures the Lamas have carried with them as they fled.

Or sometimes it is a beloved set of animal bells, as in the case of the pair of mule bells recently acquired by Mrs. Lee Cody and her son, of Illinois. These particular crotals were worn on the lead mules which a band of refugees rode as they fled into Nepal.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

Australian assignment, and had played through my Morris collection. One of her records, the 1912 Victor of "Play Me a Good Old-Fashioned Melody," he had emphatically pronounced a masterpiece.

It did not take him long to write a reply, saying he felt like turning handsprings at learning Miss Morris was living and in good health. During his visit he and I had speculated on whether she was still around and had agreed in hoping she was.

Quentin also immediately wrote to her and asked for an autographed photo, which he received. In a letter dated January 20, 1962, he wrote:

"Have you heard from Elida Morris again? When I got your letter telling me that she was alive I wrote to her and told her how much I have enjoyed her records. It's really amazing how you came to get in touch with her. Isn't it? Almost a miracle!"

Quentin will return to the States on leave next fall and is hoping to stop in California and go to Santa Barbara to meet the singer whose records have given him so much pleasure over the years.

Another enthusiastic correspondent was Allen Debus, whose name is familiar to HOBBIES readers. He said:

"The 'location' of Elida Morris is good news indeed. As I have written you in the past, I share your enthusiasm for her records. I have one duplicate record by her which I just wrote and offered her.

"I have always been intrigued about the note you put in your article about Bob Roberts years ago of the duet by her and Roberts on Rex. I certainly would like to turn that up. . . . I think 'I've Got Your Number' is the best title by her that I have ever located—a very fine 'conversational duet' indeed.

"I also share your enthusiasm for 'You'll Come Back.' . . . As you can tell, I am delighted to know that she is still alive and well."

Allen not only sent Mrs. Cooper his duplicate record of "Stop! Stop! Stop!" (it seems to turn up oftener than any of her others), but also made a tape recording of "I've Got Your Number," her indestructible cylinder duet with Walter Van Brunt, for both her and me.

David Kemp of Shinglehouse, Pa., wrote:

"I have some records by Miss Morris. She is all that you say, and I, too, am thrilled to hear she is still alive and well. I hope to write to her today."

Jimmy Martindale, who was Billy Murray's most intimate friend for many years, was in Tucson, Ariz., with Ruth, his wife, when he received my letter announcing Elida Morris had been found. He promptly replied:

"Indeed I am pleasantly surprised to learn of Elida Morris. How did you manage to contact her in the first place? If we motor to the coast I should like to look her up, if you would send me her address."

It is a pity that illness kept Mr. and Mrs. Martindale from driving to California, for I know they would have enjoyed meeting the charmingly alert and vigorous Elida. And I am sure it would have pleased her to know the pal of her old friend Billy, who probably gave more fellow artists a start at recording than any other singer.

As for myself, I have never been to California, but how I wish it were possible to tear myself away from my job in Virginia and go to Santa Barbara, to meet the lady whom I admire so much and feel I know so well through correspondence!

IV. More Letters from Elida

On January 3, I received a 14-page reply to my first letter to Mrs. Cooper, from which I shall quote the more important passages:

"Your splendid letter did arrive New Year's Eve, while I was waiting for a long distance call from my niece in Philadelphia. Both came almost at the same time. Your love for cats is wonderful and I've never been without a dog!

"Now to tell you a few, I hope, interesting moments that occurred during the years you thought I had gone to the Great Beyond.

(Continued on page 54)

JEWELRY

JEWELRY WANTED

DIAMONDS, OLD GOLD COINS, watches, stickpins, rings, earrings, etc., regardless of condition. Highest prices paid. Prompt replies. Send by registered mail to: Edward G. Wilson, 1802 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa. je12439

ANTIQUE AND MODERN JEWELRY from all over the world, bought and sold. Inquiries solicited. — Kenneth R. Park, 31 West St., Boston, Mass. (Est. 1844). je126351

JEWELRY FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Antiques and semi-antiques, gold-filled, silver, etc., 10 articles for $6. Assortment includes lockets, charms, pins, rings, etc. Good value. — St. Louis Refining Co., 1115 Holland Bldg., St. Louis 1, Mo. my68801

BEAUTIFUL JEWELRY from our vast gold-buying, rings, pins, chains, etc. 10 pieces for $5. Better grade pieces. 10 for $10. — B. Lowe, Holland Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. j63634

FOR SALE: Old clear crystal intaglios 1/2" square. For use in making earrings, charms or lavaliers. Price $1 a dozen. — Gladys Morabito, 372 William St., Stoneham, Mass. ja3234

TERRIFIC CLOSEOUTS (per doz.) - Earrings $1.50; Bracelets $2.75; Necklaces $2.75; Pins $2; Rings $1.26 (assorted). Include postage. — Boxer, GPO, Box 975-H, Brooklyn 1, N.Y. ja3863

Coral, Cameos, Antique Jewelry Cameos Our Specialty Concetta Palma

5418 WEST FULTON

Chicago, Illinois

(Mail Order Only)

Carrying on the business of the late
GENNARO RUSSO of Naples, Italy,
and Chicago, Illinois.

tfc

OLD VEHICLES WANTED

OLD AUTO LAMPS, horns, books, old cars, etc., wanted.—D. D. Way, 11 Eastwood Ct., Oakland, Calif. je6445

OLD AUTO ITEMS WANTED: Brass auto lamps, bulb horns, radiator mascots and ornaments in metal and glass. radiator name plates and emblems, Pennsylvania license plates, old auto books and show-room catalogs, service manuals. Royal Doulton china: Plates, cups, saucers and pitchers; any pieces with old auto pictures. Early toy autos and toy cap pistols. — A. J. Kovesleski, 331 Adams Ave., Scranton 3, Pa. Phone 1-717-DI. 2-1963. f3

WANTED: Antique bicycles, tires, catalogs, parts. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond, Va. ja3802

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 53)

"Why so many thought I passed on in England was because I played over there six months of the year after I starred at the London Hippodrome in 'Hello, Ragtime,' for Sir Albert de Courville, when Ethel Levey was taken ill. A five year contract was given me, and it was six months there, six months here, and the salary rose each year. Max Hart was my agent-manager.

"During those five years I played South Africa, Ireland, France, Scotland, London and the provinces, billed as 'The American Comedienne.' During 1916-17, J. J. Shubert had me at the Winter Garden in New York City for 'The Passing Shows.'

"It was at the Palace Theater, Chicago, in the show called 'World of Pleasure,' that J. J. had me introduce the song, 'Pretty Baby,' still heard today. Through the success of that song (14 encores opening night) J. J. brought me into the Winter Garden and had me do a song called 'Sweet and Pretty,' and four others.

"Well, I married Ray Cooper in 1923, when I was 36. He went to Detroit, Mich. He was connected with the Detroit Board of Commerce Aviation Division. My interests divided.

"I formed the Women's Aeronautical Association. It is international today. The famous Ninety-Niners (all women) were some of the charter members, and pulled out for themselves. Amelia Earhart was a charter member.

"Mr. Cooper put on the first air show in Detroit, and air tours. The shows were called 'Commercial Airplane Reliability Tours' in 1925-26. Eddie Stinson, Schlee and Brock, Hawks and oh! so many famous flyers were on our tours.

"Jim Ray, who flew the first autogyro for Harold Pitcairn, his backer, took me up Lake St. Clair, the first woman ever in an autogyro.

"As Col. Cooper was so occupied in his field, I studied voice with Thaddeus Wronski in Detroit. (We lived in Detroit 10 years.) He had the Detroit Civic Opera Co., and brought all the stars from the 'Met.' He had me do the Dawn Fairy solo in 'Hansel and Gretel,' my first grand opera appearance.

"Then we were next in Washington, D.C., four and a half years. The Colonel was in uniform and in the Pentagon building, then head of the National Aeronautical Association, with offices in Dupont Circle.

When they asked if there were those who could help during War days I wanted to do something, so out of seven different things they told me I could do they picked me to put on shows for the camps.

"My stationery was labeled 'Volunteer Camp Shows, Elida Morris Cooper, Director.' I handled 330 people. I had my radio program — the artists had to go on my radio program before I would allow them to go on my camp shows—and I have the highest citations for those shows.

"New York sent for me, and some of the artists went overseas, as the U.S.O. wanted them. I knew what to do through knowing how Max Hart ran his office.

"I was treated royally. Mrs. Roosevelt came to several shows and one in the White House, too, for the 'Guard.' Publicity was enormous. One night in July I had seven shows to put on. The Government would send the buses for the performers.

"We'll jump now to when Col. Cooper had a stroke. We went to Los Angeles, then Sherman Oaks, then Encino, where I was soloist for two years in the newly formed Episcopal Church in Edward Everett Horton's 'barn' on his estate.

He and his mother and sister were members. The Colonel got well and went back into uniform, then back to Washington, D.C. Another air show in Detroit. Then West again to Spokane, Wash.

"The Colonel was in uniform at his desk in Galena Airport when again stricken. That was serious, so the Government sent us here to Santa Barbara (a more even climate) in 1944, and we found this house. He lived four and a half years longer here, and died in 1948.

"I live alone, but during these widowed years I have been co-founder of the 300-member Santa Barbara Choral Society and co-organizer of 'The Romanies,' with the late John Charles Thomas. I was featured soloist doing Victor Herbert's 'Romany Life,' with a wonderful group of over 100 voices.

"I am now doing comedy roles in most comedy shows with the Alhacama Players for Dr. Frank Fowler, director, at the famous Lobero Theater here.

"Have also just been made 'soloist emeritus' after all these years in church choirs.

"I studied Italian with Armando Januzzi while in Washington, D.C., doing excerpts from 'La Traviata' and 'La Forza del Destino.'

"I like your idea of having my records dubbed onto tape. Please do! Yes, I did play the Roanoke Theater — remember it well.

"The HOBBIES was loaned to my sister, a patient in General Hospital. They got it first, before the news stands. She saw my name and pointed it out to me. The hospital has written me up since, in their publication as a morale booster for Sister.

"Her name is Laura Bryde, a beautiful seamstress. She sews for all the patients, nurses, and herself, makes beautiful dolls and toys for their bazaars, sells them and puts the money in the hospital fund. She loves HOBBIES. They let her have the December issue for a Christmas gift. Strange how things come about!

"I know I have some pictures for you, so keep up your good work and believe me,

"Most sincerely,
"Elida Morris Cooper."

Within a few days I did receive several photos, including two of Mrs. Cooper as she looked in her vaudeville heyday and one, taken in her garden only two or three years ago, on which she hardly looks to be 40, much less in her 70's. They have been submitted for illustration with this installment.

Considering our Heroine's prominence, first as a comedienne, then as a pioneer woman aviator and, finally, as a supervisor of service personnel shows during World War II, it seems almost incredible that I should have had so much trouble getting in touch with her.

I am deeply grateful to whomever it was at the hospital that unconsciously served as an instrument of fate by giving Mrs. Bryde that December HOBBIES.

Next month Elida Morris will relate a detailed account of her early life and professional career.

(To be continued.)

OLD METALS

(Continued from page 49)

An entry under the same heading appears every succeeding year, with the exception of four years, until 1779, when the amount of tutenag imported was only slightly more than 71 hundredweight.

Unknown is the date when tutenag was first produced in the East. Although it has been extracted in the 20th century in vast quantities in various parts of the world, it is a comparatively modern product in the Western Hemisphere.

Miscellaneous Antiques

The first smelting in Europe occurred in England about 1730, and by 1743 the output was about 200 tons annually.

Brass has always been the most useful alloy known to man, and the increase in its production was significant when zinc became obtainable in a pure state.

With the older method of combining zinc ore with copper, it was not possible to measure precise proportions of the metals, as some calamine was naturally richer in zinc than other, and its content was not certain before smelting. The result is apparent in the varying color of early 18th century brass-work.

Thus it is understood that tutenag was the term given to zinc when imported into Europe from China and the East Indies. It is also seen that it was a metal of considerable commercial importance, especially in the second half of the 18th century.

Although tutenag forms only about one-fourth of the metallic compound paktong, this alloy was frequently incorrectly referred to as tutenag.

Paktong, lighter in color than the usual copper and zinc alloy, is sometimes almost silver-white, with a splendid satin finish.

(This study will be concluded in the February issue)

(Turn to page 55
for first part of ad)

RALPH H. MANN ASSOCIATES South Street, Halifax, Mass.

84. Iron TOY CARPENTERS PLANE in working condition. It is 4x1", $4.50.
85. Old TOLE HOUSE BANK. Worn, original paint and decoration. Similar one may be seen in KETTEL'S PINE FURNITURE, Pge. 200. It is 3x2" x 4", $9.
86. Primitive WOOD CARVING OF 18th CENTURY HORSE. It is 3½x3", $6.50.
87. Old IRON STILL BANK FORM OF SITTING PUPPY with Bee on his side. Ribbon & bow. A cutie. It is 4x4½". Original condition. $8.50.
88. Unusual MECHANICAL BANK. H & H Registering BEE HIVE BANK, Pat. 1888. Brass & Iron in the Form of a HEMP BEE HIVE. Original paper label. Has window with registering gauge. Much detail with BEES, FLOWERS, ETC. It is 6½x5½", $22.
89. Old TOY CAP PISTOL. Nickel on iron. Mkd. "VOLUNTEER". It is 5½" long. Original cond. $9.
90. Early IRON PISTOL. No working parts & open handle. It is 5" long. $9.50.
91. Iron cap pistol. THE CHINESE MUST GO! Pat. 1878. The early one. One leg of one figure of the back figure is missing. Otherwise fine. It is 4½x5". The Chinese mouth fires the cap when he is kicked by the back figure. $30.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS

WRITE WANTS. NO APPROVALS. Please include sufficient postage & insurance. We offer a complete search service to all our customers.

Please mention HOBBIES when
replying to advertisements.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

I. Elida Hears Her Records

On January 9, 1962, Elida Morris Cooper wrote another letter to say she was sending me some photographs.

"I bought the January HOBBIES today," she said, "and, sure enough, your picture and cat family are splendid, also the one with Mr. Riggs. I think that when people love animals, they really stay younger and never look their real age.

"I'm told I do not, but I'm beginning to 'crack' now and then—never steadily but now and then! The papers here have written me up the last two years about being 'remarkable' because of my years. As long as I can make them laugh I don't care!"

The vivacious comedienne also men-

SIX COMEDIENNES

ELIDA MORRIS

PART II

By JIM WALSH

tioned that Earl Cooper, a famous automobile racer, is her brother-in-law and lives in Atwater, Calif.

With a touch of sadness, she deplored the fact that so many of her theatrical contemporaries are no longer living: "Dear me, so many have gone it's startling. Competition was enormous, wasn't it? We all worked very hard."

And, referring to my having all her Victor and Columbia records, she said: "Finding someone who really has my records is 'sumthin'! I am eagerly awaiting them on tape."

By January 31, she had received the promised tape, containing copies of all the Elida Morris records in my collection, and a few days later I was made happy when I read this letter:

"I'm so excited I can hardly write this! I just can't tell you how happy I am over this tape. I went to the Bennett Music Co. Mr. Bennett said, 'Indeed, you can hear it on our recorder.'

"I was stunned. I wept, I laughed and was completely overjoyed, and it was splendid to hear your real Southern accent in between each recording.

"So many little tricks in some of those records I had forgotten I did, and I do love the one with Billy Murray of 'You'll Come Back.' 'Stop, Stop, Stop!'

was always my favorite. They all were such a surprise to me I could hardly speak. 'Kiss Me, My Honey' is clear and good, too. I'm glad there are so many and it was real sporting of you.

"It's my aim now to record my voice of today and compare the untrained voice of the same person. I'll vocalize steadily for a couple of weeks and see how it sounds. Diction, I thought, was splendid.

"Now to answer some questions. Yes, indeed, I knew Helen Trix and her sister. Helen entertained me in London when I played the Hippodrome. Her pretty sister married over there. We had a delightful visit. I think she was right in claiming you looked like 'a leading man.'

"A letter came today from your friend in Park Forest, Ill., Allen G. Debus. Mr. Debus said he has a duplicate of 'Stop, Stop' and I could have it if I wish. Isn't that dandy of him? You're a good soul to spread the word, Jim.

"I'm hitting on all high tonight. What a grand day!! I'd better take some hot milk and go to bed. I'll never sleep if I don't. Try it some night with a dash of cayenne—Col. Cooper's prescription. It really works. Good night and God bless you! ELIDA."

As a follow-up, Quentin Riggs reported last March 1 from far Australia:

"The day she wrote to me, Elida Morris received the tape from you of her recordings, and she was certainly delighted about it! It's a wonderful thing that you were able to discover her whereabouts and that she now knows how much her records, made half a century ago, are still played and enjoyed by so many people."

The Victor record of "Stop! Stop! Stop!" which Allen Debus sent to Mrs. Cooper has a comic number by Nat Wills, "Song of the English Chappie," on its reverse. In one of her letters she referred to "the Tramp Comedian": "Remember how he made his entrance? In tramp costume he came rolling down to the footlights out of the backdrop. Sensational."

She also asked: "Didn't I do some records for Emerson? Seems I did. Mr. Emerson died, I know, years ago. I don't remember 'I've Got Your Number,' with Walter Van Brunt (Scanlan), but it's wonderful you have it."

I didn't have it, until Al Debus was kind enough to send taped dubbings to both Elida and me.

In another paragraph she said: "Speaking of our mutual friends, I remember Walter Van Brunt very well, and Wolfie Gilbert. Clarice Vance was married to Mose Gumble, manager of J. H. Remick Music Co., if I recall. And of course Marie Cahill, Marie Dressler and oh! so many more."

On March 6, the comedienne wrote to me again. She listed the comedians whom she had played opposite as De Wolf Hopper, Clifton Crawford, Ed

Wynn, Johnny Stanley, Joe Keno, Lew Hearn and Willie Solar, "all tops."

I was especially interested in her mention of the pint-sized Willie Solar, because I met him in 1949 when he appeared in Roanoke with a troupe headed by the late Will Oakland, which gave entertainments in Veterans' Hospitals.

II. Elida Morris' Story of Her Life

Early in March, Elida Morris Cooper was almost flooded out of her home, but she didn't let that interfere long with giving me the information I asked for in an elaborate questionnaire.

After searching through a large assortment of boxes and other containers, she remarked: "Funny how you keep things. I found a yellow sheet of paper handed me one day when someone on the bill was most unkind, and it reads: 'No one can throw a stone high enough to reach a star.' It's yellow with age, and made me think."

And now, after more than 20 years of wishing, I know enough about Elida Morris to write the story of her life. I can refer to the 27-page letter she wrote me, giving exactly the information needed.

Part of the time I shall tell that story in my own words. But I shall frequently quote directly from my dear new-found friend's own lively phrasing and vivid characterization.

Elida Morris was the daughter of William Steven Morris and Elida Louisa Mertz. Both were born in America.

For many years Elida's father was a foreman over several compositors in the Philadelphia printing establishment of Allen, Lane and Scott. She had an elder sister, Clara, and an older brother, Walter, who died two years ago.

One sister, mentioned in last month's article, is still living. She is 71 years of age, five years younger than Mrs. Cooper, and, as has already been told, her name is Laura Bryde. "I have a grave for sister and me," Mrs. Cooper says, "in Northwood Cemetery, Philadelphia. It is plot 531."

Elida was born November 12, 1886, in the Morris home at Randolph and Thompson streets, Philadelphia. In her stage days her hair was dark brown, nearly black. She weighed about 118 pounds and her height was 5 feet 2 inches. How well suited she would have been to sing the old-time song hit, "Five Foot Two, Eyes of Blue"! She has blue-gray eyes.

Now we'll let Elida reminisce:

"Mother always dressed us three girls alike. We attended Sunday school at a Philadelphia Methodist church. Father promoted my abilities during the years between 8 and 14. I sang at different churches and German halls, and he gave me my first single concert and debut at the Philadelphia Academy of Music, billing me as 'Elida.' My voice then was a 'boy soprano.'

"The name Elida is the name of an old war vessel at the bottom of the sea. Mother had a sister named Elida who died early. When Mother was born she looked so much like that sister that Grandmother Mertz named Mother the same. Hence my name. I have a namesake niece, Elida Hess, in Philadelphia. "After Father promoted me so far, one Sunday we three girls attended Sunday school, and the teacher said to me, 'Is that one of the dresses you kick up your legs in?' (She didn't approve of my public appearances, it seems.) So I came home crying and told Father, who never allowed us to go back to that church.

A 1913 photo of Elida Morris in dancing costume during her vaudeville days.
—Photo by Apeda, New York

III. Black-Face Minstrel Days

"Then a Mrs. Ramsey in Philadelphia formed a minstrel show. I was an 'end man.' There were six girls and three boys. The late Frank Tinney (Ziegfeld Follies star) and his brother, now a lawyer, I believe, in Philadelphia, were in our minstrels off and on.

"We became popular and would appear on Young's Old Pier (afterwards the New Pier) in Atlantic City, N.J., and the Trent theater, in Trenton, N.J.

"The last time in Atlantic City we were on the bill with Tim McMahon and Edythe Chappell, his wife, who had a corking comedy act. They'd sit on a suitcase (after being supposed to have missed their train) and argue.

"Tim McMahon had another act called 'The Watermelon Girls.' He sought the lady who managed our minstrels and said he wanted only the girls and would take us to New York. My former partner, Lillian Mills, whom you asked about, was with McMahon's Watermelon Girls at the time.

All our parents agreed and we were on the Keith Circuit at once. We, the minstrels, would open the show. McMahon and Chappell were about fourth on the bill, and our Watermelon Girls act with Tim and Edythe closed the show.

"That went on a couple of years and our salaries were sent home to our

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought Sold Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

"... well written and often explosively funny..." Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

THE VESTAL PRESS

—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press 3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

138c

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.

Specialists since 1825

tfo

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

Route 3, Norwell, Mass.

Tel. Oldfield 9-2221

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

134

parents, minus our 'American plan' hotel money ($1 to $1.25 a day), and we had to buy our own silk stockings, although in black face.

"Tim drank heavily, and we girls became scared. We all wanted to go home. We did!"

Here I cease quoting from Elida's memoirs for a moment to remark that she may possibly be the only woman in all stage history who graduated from doing black-face minstrel work, and singing Negro dialect songs, to afterwards appearing in grand opera.

That puts her in the same class with the famous tenor, Evan Williams, who sang "After the Ball" in a minstrel show in the early 1890's, but was afterwards renowned for his concert and oratorio appearances.

IV. "The Minstrel Girls"

Miss Mills, who was 8 years older than Elida and had a young son, asked Miss Morris' parents to let their daughter do an act with her. They agreed on condition that the older woman would serve as a chaperon as well as a singing partner.

They stayed together seven years. Both did blackface, with Morris as the end man and Mills (in sepia make-up) as the interlocutor. Says Elida: "We were known as 'The Minstrel Girls' and were to get big money had we stayed together always on the Keith and Proctor circuits. Oh yes, we played Tony Pastor's, where Burt Green, who married Irene Franklin, was the piano player."

After Miss Mills remarried, Elida had a writer put together a new act for her. It was called "Salvation Mirandy," after a cartoon of the early 1900's. Elida recalls:

"My black-face 'Salvation Mirandy' act was booked at the Trent theater in Trenton. After the first appearance the manager came back and said, 'Miss Morris, do you have an evening gown?'"

"I said, 'yes.'"

"He said, 'Put it on tonight and do your whole act in white face. The Salvation Army doesn't approve of your costume and material.' (Most of the act was Negro suffragette material.) So I obeyed, and it was a knockout—success on and on that season."

"One day Johnny Stanley, clown comedian, came into the office of Max Hart, my agent, and needed a partner. We did 'The Water Boy and the Actress' a season and were very successful. His domestic difficulties broke that up."

"Next was the late Joe Keno, Mitzi Green's father. We had a hotel scene with a dancing finish. It was a great success, but he was so abusive that we split after six months."

"Alone again. I had two colored writers—Henry Creamer and Turner Layton, who became famous as popular song writers—prepare a Negro skit, and Blanche Merrill wrote the other songs."

"In the meantime, I sat in Max Hart's office till 6 o'clock one night. Then in rushed the manager of the Alhambra theater, saying: 'Max, I need an act for tonight. The English Jew, in second, won't appear on Yom Kippur.'"

"Max said, 'Elida says she has an act.'"

"The man said, 'Well, if she can do as well alone as she did with Johnny Stanley, I'll take a chance with her.'"

"I was there at 7 p.m., baggage and all, and it was wonderful. I received $125 for those six days. From then on it was 22 years on the Keith, then the Keith-Orpheum books."

V. Elida Invades England

Mrs. Cooper recalls that a British booking agent, the late Ernest Edelstein, booked her for 10 weeks in England while she was playing in 1913 at Hammerstein's theater, 42nd and Broadway.

While she was appearing at the Victoria Palace in London, Ethel Levy, who had been married to George M. Cohan, was taken ill. She was starring at the London Hippodrome in "Hello, Ragtime."

Willie Solar, one of the three star comedians in the show, told the manager, Mr. De Courville (now Sir Albert De Courville), about Elida. That night he and others associated with "Hello, Ragtime" came to see her act and she was engaged in Miss Levy's place. She recalls that this kept her plenty busy:

"The following week I was playing Sir Alfred Butt's beautiful Palace Theater, and I had 20 minutes to change my dress and make-up in a cab and appear at 9 p.m. in the show at the London Hippodrome."

"That was the year American acts flooded England, and a funny thing on the bill at Butt's Palace was the first appearance of the big Ziegfeld star, Frank Tinney, who had been in the olio and minstrel show when we were all very young in Philadelphia. He was a sensation in England, too."

Among those taking part in "Hello, Ragtime" were the man and woman comedy team of Lew Hearn and Bonita, who made some H. M. V. records of songs and skits from the production. Stanley Lupino, father of Ida Lupino, was another member.

Elida had scenes with all the comedians. After her appearance in the revue ended, she went on tour in "Ocean Waves" and "Fiddle-dee-dee," co-starring with Solar.

For several years she was booked for six months in England and six months in America. Her weekly salary, which at first was $200, grew to $750, in addition to first class boat fares. She starred in South Africa, England, Scotland, Ireland, and France.

VI. First Recording Experiences

Records by Elida Morris first appeared in 1910. They were made while she was appearing in American theaters, although she says she made some for Pathe and perhaps other companies while abroad. Billy Murray saw her perform at a theater in either New York or Brooklyn and caused her to be engaged by the Victor Company. Billy lived in Brooklyn at that time, so it most likely was a Brooklyn house.

The comedienne recalls that when she was playing a theater in the Midwest, a music store had her photographed with the Victor dog. "That picture," she says, "was lost in storage with many other treasures years ago. I would sell my records after my matinee performance." She continues:

"I remember very distinctly it was at the Alhambra or Percy Williams' Colonial Theater that my voice felt so tired for my matinee after I had been recording all morning. I made five quick changes of costume in my 20 minute act—one for each number."

"When I first heard my voice played back I was never pleased, as I was a perfectionist in diction, so recording a number once or twice was never enough for me. The voice sounded O.K., though."

"Most people thought I was a Southern girl because I had the accent through studying the Negro. Creamer and Layton, the two colored gentlemen who wrote my closing material, claimed a salary each week I played, the same as Blanche Merrill did."

VII. Experiences Aboard Ship and Abroad

I have always contended our charming friend Elida is a soprano, although Columbia called her a contralto and Victor dodged the issue by labeling her a comedienne. Regardless of voice quality, she has some interesting things to tell of her experiences abroad:

"I first went to Europe in 1913 and last played abroad in 1921."

"Arriving in London the first time for Christmas, the sun shone, and as everybody told me it seldom shone, I followed it, no matter where it went, all around Buckingham Palace."

"I lived at the Cecil Hotel on the

Elida Morris in a charming pose taken by a Seattle photographer during her vaudeville days.
—Photo by Erna Best Nelson, Spokane

An especially attractive photo of Elida Morris in dancing costume when she was a top-flight vaudeville star. —Photo by Franklin Studio, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Strand, and the day I was to open at the Alhambra. I took a taxi. The driver knew I was new in the country, and he drove me all around town to get to the theater, only two blocks away from my hotel.

"Even though I had a 10-week contract in my possession I still had to go on that stage and do my entire act before those managers and an empty theater to claim the star place on the bill!"

"Going over on the Oceanic that first time, I was standing by the rail to say goodbye to my father. I was weeping.

"A man in morning dress and top hat (oh yes!) tapped me on the shoulder and said, 'Why are you crying?'"

"I replied, 'You would, too, if you were leaving your parents for the first time.'

"He turned to a man whom he knew and said, 'Hello, Sir Stanley.' They took me to lunch (I was always at the captain's table), and those two men entertained me royally all the way across.

"When we landed police immediately put handcuffs on Sir Stanley—? Why, I never knew, but the two men were supposed to be brothers-in-law. Naturally, I never answered the other man's phone calls in London. His name was Count—something—both names phony, I guess.

"Ireland was marvelous, especially Dublin. I had met a Canadian lieutenant on the ship. He was going to Paris, then Dublin. He was connected with the principal Dublin newspaper, and he had lunches and dinners all planned for me with 'the powers that be,' 15 and 20 each time. You see, this was during World War I and everyone was still in uniform.

"In Paris, at the Alhambra, a beautiful theater, a group of American soldiers came opening night. I took them all over and had a big party in the Hotel Moderne, where I was staying, on Place Republique.

"The 'gallery gods' at the Paris Alhambra didn't understand English and they would sometimes get noisy, but when I went into my eccentric dance at the finish they were wonderful. I was there four weeks.

"When playing Brighton (by the sea), England, I saw many armless and legless men in wheel chairs. I asked a few if they were ever allowed to see our show.

"When they said no, I sent my salary over to the hospital and that night down the aisles came all those wheel chairs, and the sight of those men nearly floored me. I choked and they yelled to one another, 'Is that her?'"

"I sang 'The Rose of No Man's Land,' and you can imagine the shouting: 'She's the one red rose the soldier knows.

She's the work of the Master's hand.

'Mid the war's great curse

Stands the Red Cross nurse—

She's the Rose of No Man's Land!"

"When playing London one year I lived at the Victoria Hotel on Trafalgar Square. I gathered all my American performer friends to a dinner party. We were to be in the special private dinner-and-party room.

"To our surprise, we were changed to another room because standing in the foyer were eight men (past 50, I'm sure) and in the center stood the Prince of Wales! He looked so young (and played nervously with his tie) among the elder dignitaries.

"We were compensated for the changing of the dining room by being allowed to shake hands with the Prince, today the Duke of Windsor. That made quite a hit with my friends and raised my 'social standing.' No kidding! The girls were elated and the dinner was fine.

VIII. Trials and Triumphs in South Africa

"South Africa! Now there is something! I was supposed to be in Capetown for two weeks, but after I played one they immediately sent me on to Johannesburg.

"Boy, what a city and wonderful people! There is quite an American colony. I left London on the Balmoral Castle, and it seemed there was something arranged every half hour for the 18-day trip.

"Here is something I almost forgot to mention. On entering Capetown I hailed an open car to take me to the hotel. We had gone two blocks when an old man, with his horse and cart, pulled out of an alley. He beat the horse, and the horse jumped head and feet first into my car. I can still hear the people on the sidewalk scream, but I was O.K. Some entrance!

"I met the family who owned the Brackpan gold mine in Benoni, South Africa. When I arrived in Johannesburg the temperature was 90 degrees, and I stood in front of the Carleton Hotel aghast. Christmas decorations in all the windows and 90 degrees!

"I was always billed as 'The American Comedienne.' My opening night was sensational. Over the footlights a small powder-puff container was thrown to me containing a beautiful ruby.

"When I came out the stage door six young men in dinner jackets raised me up on their shoulders and carried me to the Carleton, where a magnificent banquet was arranged in my honor. Oh, so many guests—quite a few from the ship—and many dignitaries. The reception everywhere was glorious.

"The family who owned the gold mine in Benoni gave me a beautiful party when I played there and took me through the mine, down the shaft, with the Kaffirs—South African Negroes. I saw how much gold was extracted in one working day and how they examined the workers when leaving the mine.

"After playing there a month I was presented with two unwashed rocks of gold, one containing a beautiful onyx (unheard of). I was also given two papers from the government, allowing me to take them out of the country.

"In Durban, Natal, a seashore town, the rickshaw drivers scared me to death with their crazy headgear. One day, when playing the Criterion, I had to get home quickly. I ran the two blocks and those men all ran after me!

"Something like that happened in London. I had bought two beautiful feathers for my hat, and a windstorm came up on my way home. The feathers stood up and I ran up the stairs to the lobby, only to be followed by a crowd.

"The manager had to quiet them and send them on their way. They thought it was some stunt. The poor kids thought my high-button shoes were extraordinary, too. Theirs had wooden soles.

"Getting back to Africa, I then played Wolfentien, a German settlement. I received a germ and had an abscess in my throat, which a doctor had to lance. I was ill there two weeks. The instrument the doctor used broke in half just as he started to lance the abscess.

"The hotel help consisted of little pigmies. Under the influence of the medicine, I would chase them from my room so I could sleep, and they'd yell and become frightened—but it seemed I was more frightened than they.

When in Durban I was wooed by the son of a sugar merchant and plantation owner, who wanted me to marry and remain there. But I thought it was too far away from home!

"I always handled the ship's concerts and performed in them on my voyages. Many celebrities were going over then, so it wasn't so hard. I had eight voyages to, and from New York City.

"The year 1921 or 1922, Harry Green and his wife, Bunny Granville, and six other Americans, joined me in going to Germany just for fun, and fun it was! We all stayed at the Adlon Hotel on the Frederick Strasse in beautiful Berlin.

"That is where the high wall has been built by Mr. Khrushchev. We all returned to London after visiting Leipzig and Dresden. I took the ship home. Father had passed away."

IX. What Foreign Papers Said

Proof of the hit that Elida Morris made in South Africa may be found in this review by "Gadabout" in the Johannesburg Sunday Times for November 28, 1920:

"Elida Morris, who, with the customary modesty of the music hall, describes herself as 'IT,' is a top-liner and undoubtedly deserves this pride of place. She is an American and can only be described as a real 'live wire.' She is a whirlwind in pink.

"She bursts into negro dialect songs, old and new, but with a vigor and vim that is absolutely irresistible. She gives an imitation of an American Negress who has just been 'thrown down' by Christmas Johnson, and gesture and intonation are alike perfect.

"She is of the temperamental type of entertainer and on her opening night her magnetism and forcefulness were apparent in every way. By snapping of the fingers, by unobtrusive lolling, and by other curious signs, she communicated her time to the orchestra and showed how keen was her zest."

It's a long way from Johannesburg not only to Tipperary but to Dublin, Ireland. Yet this excerpt from Dublin Sport for April 30, 1921, shows Elida making the same sort of hit among the Irish that she had in South Africa:

"Now and again a star of outstanding brilliance in the theatrical world shines in Dublin. We discovered one this week at the Royal; and if Elida Morris is not the rage of this continent in the very near future, vaudeville audiences don't know much.

"This little girl is American through and through, and as fine an artist as I have seen and heard. . . I can only describe her as the essence of all that is best in the work of Hilda Glyder and Elsie Janis.

"But, recollect, Elida has qualities which Hilda and Elsie do not possess. She is full of drama, comedy and vocal distinction—and she is a good looker.

"It is remarkable how Dublin audiences recognize the goods. This week they were just moderate in their applause of the turns preceding Elida Morris. When she came along they went wild and didn't want to let her go. What a reception she will get on her return visit!"

X. Married Life and Aviation

I had asked Mrs. Cooper how she met her husband and her reply revealed that their romance began with a chance meeting in which she narrowly escaped putting out one of his eyes. Since he didn't lose it, I imagine it was love at first sight on Col. Cooper's part, out of both eyes. But theirs was no hasty courtship. As Elida relates, they didn't marry until 12 years after their first meeting:

"I was playing the Orpheum in New Orleans. On the way to my hotel it was pouring rain, and I slipped and fell, nearly putting the Colonel's eye out with my umbrella.

"He picked me up and took me to my hotel. He had just landed with a pilot. That was in 1911. I didn't marry him until 1923.

"He was retired by the Government, and they sent us here to Santa Barbara in 1944—a more even climate for those who have had strokes, of which the third one took him away.

"He is buried at Sawtelle in the Colunburium, a beautiful crescent-shaped building. On the door, where his ashes rest, are his name and record. A wonderful man! A fine soldier!"

Here are some more of Elida Morris Cooper's recollections of her aviation experiences:

"After our marriage, we went to Detroit. We were there one year, when he connected with the Chamber of Commerce, and he had the Aviation Division and several assistants.

Elida Morris Cooper's beautiful home at 1232 North Nopal Street, Santa Barbara.

"He managed the first aircraft show for Henry Ford in Detroit and it was an enormous success. The building was so huge, the doors so enlarged, that a plane could go through without dismantling. After that, in 1926-27-28, the Colonel managed the Commercial Airplane Reliability tours which included nearly every important city in America.

"I flew a total distance of over 12,000 miles in two years with only one forced landing. In 1928 I was in the air every day for 28 consecutive days, covering two or three cities a day, from New York to San Francisco and back.

"In between those years in Detroit I formed the Women's Aeronautical Association, with Mrs. Orre Heald Blackmore (a lady who had formed many, many women's organizations) as president. Never being a club woman, I took up studying parliamentary law with the late Emma Fox for three years.

"All these members were wives, sisters, mothers, etc., of flyers and those interested in our future. Amelia Earhart was an honorary member. There were several hundred members. It became international.

"Out of it was formed the famous 'Ninety-Niners' of today. Amelia was their president. All women pilots! I have two lovely photos of Amelia Earhart with her planes. She was always in our aircraft shows, displaying equipment and answering questions."

XI. And, Finally, Good Advice From a Great Lady

One of the many things I asked Elida in my questionnaire, and I cannot thank her sufficiently for the patience and painstaking effort she devoted to answering all my queries was, "How did you feel when you saw your name listed in HOBBIES?"

I shall quote her reply, together with the sound philosophy, based on more than 75 years of sane living, with which she ended her response:

"I had heard 'Mrs. Cooper' for so many years that I had to look twice to see my maiden name, Elida Morris. I was startled, but happy, because I immediately corrected the date of birth, and it has brought me many new friends who have my records.

"It seems almost incredible after more than 50 years that I had to look twice to see my maiden name, Elida Morris. I was startled, but happy, because I immediately corrected the date of birth, and it has brought me many new friends who have my records.

"Playing these character comedy roles and hearing audiences laugh is marvelous compensation. Giving radio appearances and so on keeps me looking and feeling younger than I am, I guess.

"Don't humor loneliness, and try to keep out of that rocking chair. Turn on that radio; play your records. Move about as much as you can, make new friends, but don't lose sight of the old friends.

"Don't try the 'Twist.' What a 'honey' that is for chiropractors and brace manufacturers! I have a brace from away back. Had to use it three years because I slipped on my polished floor in Washington, D.C. But I'm fine now—there are no polished floors in my Santa Barbara home!"

* * *

Next month, Elida Morris' recordings will be discussed in detail.

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3846

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each.—Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books, $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3694

WANTED: Old cylinder phonographs and records. Disc phonographs with outside horns. Cylinder reproducers. Hand roller organs. Want any amount large or small. — Neumann Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale 4, Calif. my6829

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

SIX COMEDIENNES

ELIDA MORRIS

PART III

By JIM WALSH

I. A Variety Review

Elida Morris was only 23 when she made her first records in 1910 at the solicitation of Billy Murray, who was not only the most popular phonograph comedian, but always knew a good recording voice when he heard one.

The girlish Miss Morris, of course, was already a theatrical veteran, with more than a decade of experience in Negro minstrel work and vaudeville.

A couple of references to her in the publications of that era are worth attention. The Brooklyn Daily Eagle for May 3, 1910, contained a picture of the comedienne, whose first record for Columbia appeared a month later. With the cut was the following comment:

"Miss Elida Morris, of the team of singers and dancers, Stanley and Morris, who will be seen at the Orpheum this week in their amusing skit, 'The Actress and the Water Boy,' is this season making her first appearance in white-face, after a 14 year career on the stage as a Negro minstrel miss.

"Miss Morris' theatrical debut was made as end man with Tim McMahon's Minstrel Misses, a well-known act in vaudeville, and since then she has appeared with the act known as Mills and Morris, 'the two minstrel girls.'

"Frequent inquiries from friends and acquaintances as to why she persisted in concealing her pretty features behind cork finally resulted in Miss Morris forsaking the Negro minstrel art and entering into a partnership with Johnny Stanley."

The observant reader will note slight discrepancies between this account of why Elida began working in "whiteface" and her own version published last month. Obviously, the comedienne herself knows best how it happened.

Also going back to 1910 is a "Variety" review of Elida's act as a "single" after she and Stanley ended their partnership. The reviewer, who signed himself "Fred," followed the well established Variety policy of praising the good parts of a performance, but pointing out things that he thought could be improved:

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

"ELIDA MORRIS, Singing Comedienne. 14 Mins.; One. Colonial. Exhibiting two points highly essential to the success of the artist in vaudeville, but yet rarely found, Elida Morris made a favorable impression on the Monday night audience at the Colonial.

"The dual gifts this little comedienne has are personality and a voice. Her repertoire includes several numbers that have long since perished at the hands of the illustrated song singers, but to atone there was her most charming manner of presenting them.

"During the 14 minutes she wears four dainty costumes, the first of which did not harmonize well. It was a pretty pink frock with shoes and stockings to match, but whoever told her to wear a lace coat trimmed with green over it should be taken out and shot at sunrise. The three complete changes Miss Morris makes are done in record time and help the act considerably.

"Her voice is a soprano of rare timbre to be found in vaudeville and she shows it off to excellent advantage in the opening song. The second number is a Negro song, likewise delivered in good style. A bit of 'song plugging' was indulged in for the third song, which could easily be dropped.

"Her closing number, in a boy's costume, is a bit too slow, she employing extra dance music after the second chorus. A good lively number, with chorus music suitable for her dance steps would be more desirable. The act is one that will prove pleasing on any program through Miss Morris' personality and voice alone."

The following, from The Billboard, apparently was a later criticism:

"ELIDA MORRIS. Reviewed Monday afternoon, June 30, at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theater, New York.

"An artiste whose work is a delight and whose talent in character roles augurs a bright future for her . . .

From left to right:

Lt. Col. Norwood Raymond Cooper, deceased husband of Elida Morris Cooper, (with his brother Earl Cooper, famous auto racer at left side of picture).

Elida Morris as "Violetta" in the Verdi opera, "Traviata."

Elida Morris as Mrs. McCreavy in "First Lady."

—Photo by Antonios Zamouzakis, Hollywood, Calif.

Miss Morris' opening is in the imaginative character of the Goddess of Broadway, who sits on her throne above the white-lit street and gazes down upon its victors and its spoils.

"She sings a song typical of the spirit of Broadway, with its sin and its broken hearts, sketching a picture of the great playground and the game played there in which few are winners. In the final scene Miss Morris is at her best.

"She typifies a 'painted rose' in singing the song of the same name before a scene which supposedly depicts the girl's boarding house. Sitting on the steps in front of the house, in a tired and weary attitude, Miss Morris gives an admirable as well as a touching performance."

This act was written by Blanche Merrill.

II. First Recordings

Elida Morris has told us that Billy Murray saw her vaudeville act and arranged for her to make records for Victor. However, her first recording seems to have been done for Columbia; at least her Columbia disc of "You'll Come Back" appeared in the supplement for June, 1910.

Files of the RCA-Victor Artist and Repertoire Department show that she and Murray recorded this George W. Meyer number on May 16, 1910, but it was not issued until November. The Morris and Murray duet of "Angel Eyes" is listed only as having been made in May, but it and "You'll Come Back" probably were recorded at the same session.

Columbia was lavish in its praise of Elida's interpretation of "You'll Come Back" (A826) which had Arthur Collins singing a Henry Lodge composition, "Temptation Rag" for its companion:

"Another of Meyer and Drislane's very recent productions, and a Negro song of decided originality and interest, rendered by a new singer whose remarkable talent for this kind of work raises her interpretation to the plane of high art.

"There is nothing we can say for Miss Morris that will be half so convincing as to hear just a few lines of this record. We venture to say that style such as hers in the singing of the present day Negro songs has never before been recorded.

"The song itself concerns the fortunes of Henrietta and Alexander, two Negro

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.

PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

"... well written and often explosively funny ..."

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

THE VESTAL PRESS

—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press 3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

t38c

Antique

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.

Specialists since 1825

tfo

MUSIC BOXES

From March 25 to April 25 I will not be available to answer any mail or do any work on music boxes, etc.

After April 25, I will again be at your service.

GEORGE A. BIDDEN
Barrington, Rhode Island

apc

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

Route 3, Norwell, Mass.

Tel. Oldfield 9-2221

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

FOR SALE

Hallett & Davis square grand piano. Rosewood case in perfect playing condition. WRITE.

ROY D. GRAVES

102 High St.

Greenfield, Mass.

mhp

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

tfo

OUR FIRST RECORD... A COLLECTORS ITEM!

30 minutes of old time favorites

Recorded from the famous Music Box collection at the

FRONTIER VILLAGE MUSEUM

Lake Stevens, Washington

33½ rpm - $2.25, includes postage to anywhere. mhc

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1008 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

people at the moment when the latter has declared his unalterable determination to leave without bothering about the formality of coming back.

"Henrietta has had experience, however, and assures him that he will return, when maybe he will find her waiting for him, and then again maybe he won't. This is decidedly one of the best things in our June list. Don't miss it."

Alexander, as the name of the "hero" of a song about Negroes, was used in "You'll Come Back" a year before Irving Berlin produced "Alexander's Ragtime Band." The name, however, had become something of a tradition. Harry Von Tilzer had written a big hit called "Alexander" in 1904, and there probably were earlier examples of its being used.

"Angel Eyes," the first Victor record in which Elida Morris took part, was announced in August, 1910, as a duet between her and Billy Murray. The comedienne and comedian had much in common. Both had done Negro minstrel work—Billy was a member of Al G. Field's minstrels for several years—and both were known as "eccentric dancers" as well as singers.

Victor must have felt that "Angel Eyes," which has such a poignant appeal to me because of the golden-eyed kitten to whom I gave that name, was able to stand alone without having another song on the other side, for it was issued as single-faced record 5782:

"The First Morris-Murray Record. 'Angel Eyes' (Kendis-Paley). An interesting August novelty is the first of a series of duets by a new Victor combination. It is easy to see why Miss Morris is such a success in vaudeville, when we listen to her sing this little Negro song. She pictures the lazy, drawing Southern Negro to perfection.

"This new Victor singer is well supported by Mr. Murray, whose facility of adapting himself to any kind of song is well-known. A most entertaining little number, the odd harmony in the chorus being quite effective."

The reference to Billy's "supporting" Elida in "Angel Eyes" is accurate. She sings the verse and first chorus alone. Billy then takes up the second chorus with his soprano friend harmonizing an obbligato. It is a charming record. A photo of Miss Morris was included with the write-up.

Rather oddly, both Victor and Columbia withheld their next Elida Morris records until November, 1910. Probably they preferred not to offer them during the dull summer season when record sales were slow.

This time, Victor presented the Morris and Murray duet version of "You'll Come Back," combined on record 16653 with an uproarious Negro minstrel comedy sketch, "J'inin' the Church," by Billy Golden and Joe Hughes. The write-up said:

"The new Morris-Murray combination, which made a success with 'Angel Eyes' in the August supplement, now gives us a new number, also with a Negro flavor, affording Miss Morris another opportunity to reveal her cleverness in this kind of work."

Morris and Murray seemed off to an auspicious start, but "Angel Eyes" and "You'll Come Back" are the only duets Victor ever issued by them. A pity, I think, because their styles were well suited to each other and they should have become an extremely popular team.

Elida's record of "Kiss Me, My Honey, Kiss Me" (a song hit for which Irving Berlin wrote the words and Ted Snyder the music) led the November Columbia supplement. The number was A906, and it was combined with "Come Along, My Mandy," sung by Ada Jones and Walter Van Brunt. The supplement commentary praised both the song and the singer:

"The publishers of this song herald it as the greatest sentimental song success ever introduced in America, and it is evident to all who have heard it that it is a popular number of altogether extraordinary merit. The refrain is destined to be one of the airs that everyone sings or whistles.

"Miss Morris, who made a decided hit in our June list with 'You'll Come Back,' has been appropriately selected to do this number for us in her own engaging manner."

In my opinion, "engaging manner" is putting it mildly. The sex appeal drips from Elida's honeyed lips in this number in a manner that no present day woman singer is likely to equal. As rendered by Elida Morris, "Kiss Me" might be the song that seductive siren, Circe, sang to the Grecian hero, Ulysses!

Columbia seemed to keep a bit ahead of Victor in issuing Elida Morris numbers. "Kiss Me" appeared a month later in the Victor list on record 16807. The B side was occupied by Ada Jones and Billy Murray, singing an irresistible bit of ragtime, "The Belle of the Barbers' Ball." The comment was rather perfunctory:

"Two up-to-date popular songs given by three talented singers. The remarkable values given by the Victor in its double-faced list has occasioned much favorable comment, and this combination is a good example of the quality and amount of entertainment which is being furnished."

I had overlooked the fact that a two-minute Indestructible cylinder of "You'll Come Back" was listed in the October, 1910, Columbia supplement. Although these cylinders were manufactured by the Indestructible Record Company of Albany, N. Y., Columbia was Indestructible's sales agent and sold them under the Columbia name.

The description of the cylinder, 1414, was the same as that which had appeared in June for the Columbia disc. The cylinder description, however, was surrounded by a "box," to indicate it was considered the most important Indestructible record of the month.

"Kiss Me" appeared in December, on cylinder 1439, and again the previous disc catalog description was copied.

January, 1911, brought a Victor record (16687) that was probably the greatest favorite of all Elida Morris' solo offerings. It was one of Irving Berlin's earliest hits, "Stop! Stop! Stop! (Come Over and Love Me Some More.)" Nat M. Wills held down the reverse side with "Song of the English Chappie:"

"Miss Morris has made many new friends among Victor patrons by her clever presentation of Negro songs; and her January record will increase the number, as her impersonation of the Negro lady who said 'stop' but didn't mean it, is the best thing she has yet done."

This time Victor swept ahead of Columbia, whose "Stop! Stop! Stop!" record didn't come out until February. It was A953. Arthur Collins sang "Lovie Joe" on the other side. Unfortunately, I don't have the February, 1911, Columbia supplement and am unable to quote what it said about the record.

Elida Morris did not appear in the Columbia list again until June, 1914. In fact, she must have been traveling virtually all the time for the next year or more, for her next Victor record was not announced until April, 1912. It was one of her best, but did not sell well and stayed in the catalog only a year.

The titles, on 17048, were "Play Me a Good Old-Fashioned Melody" (the interpretation that Quentin Riggs and I agree in considering a masterpiece) and "The Trolley Car

From left to right:

Elida Morris as Mrs. Watty, a shoplifter turned salvationist, in "The Corn is Green." This is one of her best comedy roles.

Elida Morris Cooper and her 13-year-old faithful Airedale dog, Roxie, photographed in the garden in January, 1962.

Swing." Catalog Editor Sam Rous said:

"Admirers of this popular comedienne will note with pleasure that she has returned from her long Western vaudeville tour and given the Victor two new humorous songs. Miss Morris has a style all her own, and her rendering of certain types of popular songs is inimitable."

The supplement comment was graced by a new photo of Miss Morris, taken by "Marsden, of Seattle," showing her wearing a striking stage costume. A month later, on 17061 the comedienne sang a charming number, "If Every Star Was a Little Pickaninny."

For companions she had Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan, vocalizing "Lady Angelina." The supplement said: "Miss Morris gives the little Negro song in the attractive style which she has made all her own."

Apparently, Elida made only one more record for Victor. J. F. Hetherington, of the RCA-Victor Consumer Services department, has checked the files and found no evidence of any unissued Morris records.

Her final Victor offering, 17430, "Happy Little Country Girl," another Irving Berlin song, appeared in November, 1913. On side B the Peerless Quartet harmonized, "Good-Bye, Summer! So Long, Fall! Hello, Winter Time!" The popular records of that month had no supplement description.

Incidentally, Mr. Hetherington says the Victor records of "Kiss Me" and "Stop! Stop! Stop!" were made in September, 1910; "Play Me a Good Old-Fashioned Melody" and "Trolley Car Swing" and "If Every Star Was a Little Pickaninny" in January, 1912, and "Happy Little Country Girl" in July, 1913.

I should have mentioned earlier that an Indestructible cylinder of "Stop! Stop! Stop!" (1414) was issued shortly after the Columbia disc. Elida Morris' four-minute duet with Walter Van Brunt, 3191, "I've Got Your Number," appeared in the February, 1911, list.

III. Pathes and Later Columbias

When Pathé, then the leading phonograph company of the European continent, opened an American branch in 1914, its first slender catalog contained an 11½ inch record by Elida Morris, "You're Here and I'm Here" and "All He Does Is Follow Them Around."

The singer says she made Pathé records abroad, but this one, B5030, appears to have been recorded in America, for the B prefix was given to the numbers of discs by American artists. On the other hand, it may have been made in England and placed in the American list because of Miss Morris' nationality.

It stayed in the catalog only about a year, which makes it appear plausible that it was taken from imported matrices and was discontinued, like the Gene Greene records, after no more were available. It is a scarce record, and I have never found a copy.

From top to bottom:

The Romany Chorus on the patio of Elida Morris Cooper's home, Santa Barbara, Calif. The late John Charles Thomas, famous baritone, organized and managed the group.

The Romany Chorus presenting a Victor Herbert operetta on Station KEYT, Santa Barbara, Calif. Elida Morris, at the extreme left of the front row, sang "Romany Life."

The name of Elida Morris does not appear in the Pathé catalog dated September, 1916, but there are two records by her in the 1918 list. One is a solo, "Florabella," on 20081. Its "platter mate" is "You're the Girl," a duet by Roselle Martin, soprano, and Gordon MacHughes, baritone.

On 20088 Miss Morris and that most prolific of duet singers, Henry Burr, harmonized in "Bachelor Girl and Boy." Its companion was an English importation, Jack Charman, "The Versatile Comedian," singing "Hello, Little Miss U. S. A." This record gave our comedienne friend the distinction of having made duets with the two most popular male phonograph singers of 40 to 50 years ago—Billy Murray and Henry Burr.

After an absence of three years, Elida returned to the Columbia lists in 1914. Her reappearance began in June with A1523, "If I Had Someone At Home Like You." The other side offered "Everybody Loves My Girl," sung by the Peerless Quartet.

The supplement referred to the lady's contribution as "another brand new ragtime number, recorded by Miss Elida Morris, a singer whose work has always been favored by the Columbia clientele." Oddly, the record was described as a "soprano solo," whereas Elida was called a contralto on the Columbia labels. To my ears she was always a soprano.

What I consider the least attractive of the Morris records was issued by Columbia in September on A1564. It is a rather slow, draggy affair, "Some Day You'll Know Who Loves You." Again the Peerless Quartet occupied the reverse with "Don't Go Away."

The description said, "Elida Morris . . . reappears in our list after a most successful season in vaudeville with a ballad that will revive her reputation as one of the best record-makers available."

Miss Morris' October offering was excellent. It was "The Little Things that Count." Once more, on A1581, she was chaperoned by the Peerless Quartet, who sang "Keep Your Eye On Uncle Sammy." The catalog editor remarked that the Morris side "is one of the cleverest bits of sentimental ragtime we have had in many months."

November brought a double-barrel treat for Elida Morris fans, because she occupied both sides of record A1592, singing two catchy songs that were among the season's hits, George W. Meyer's "The High Cost Of Loving" and Irving Berlin's "I Want To Go Back To Michigan," which Columbia, for no clear reason, called "I Want To Go Back To The Farm." This coupling led the monthly Columbia list.

Elida Morris was heard from one more time, and for the last time, in a Columbia list after more than a year's absence. In October, 1915 on A1801, she and the late Sam Ash sang "Hello Frisco!" from "The Follies of 1915." This side traveled in double harness with "Come Back, Dixie," sung by Billy Burton and Herbert Stuart, who were really Charles Harrison and Albert Wiederhold.

By the time these 1914-15 records were issued, Columbia had ceased to be sales agent for Indestructible cylinders, but Miss Morris recorded two of her Columbia numbers for the Albany firm. One was "The High Cost Of Loving," on two-minute cylinder 1520. "I Want To Go Back To Michigan" received four-minute treatment on 3339.

This concludes my review of Elida Morris records, about which I have definite knowledge. Our Santa Barbara song bird says she thinks she made records for Emerson, Edison, and Brunswick, but I have not been able to trace any. My collection of Emerson catalogs is incomplete, but her name does not appear in those I have. It is not in any Edison catalog, which may mean that she made tests that were not issued. And I have never seen it in a Brunswick list.

Many years ago, my old friend, Osborne H. Parker, of San Francisco, wrote me that he had a Rex sapphire record on which Elida Morris and Bob Roberts sang a duet. I am not sure of the title, but it seems to me it was "Yummy Yum," or something like that.

There is no record I would be happier to find. Since I have no Rex catalogs, it may well be that she sang other numbers for that firm whose headquarters was in her Philadelphia birthplace.

IV. More Press Clippings

Since we have just been discussing Elida Morris' last Columbia record, which was issued in October, 1915, this seems a good place to take a "breathing spell" and consider an article about her which appeared in the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Journal for October 30, that same year.

"Elida Morris Writing Her Name In Big Letters At The Palace — Elida Morris, the dynamic little singing comedienne, is writing her name in blazing letters at the New Palace this week in one of the best single turns seen at the Keith house this season.

"This happy little breeze blows onto the stage and fairly frolics through a gay assortment of lively song numbers enhanced by some graceful and gingery dancing. She is pretty and she is graceful, besides possessing a singing voice of decided charm. She is scoring and is doing it on a bill of unusual pretension."

V. Elida's "Lucky Shoe Heel"

I wonder if Elida Morris Cooper remembers the interview with her that was published in the Boston Herald for November 3, 1912. It was one in which, if the reporter quoted her correctly, she frankly admitted to being superstitious and having a "lucky shoe heel layer" as a mascot. In part, the interview ran:

"In the opinion of Miss Elida Morris, the dainty comedienne who is known throughout the West as the Vesta Tilley of America, performers and gamblers are the most superstitious people in the world. This young artist is the charming actress to whom Beerbohm Tree, the great English actor, said: 'Young lady, you make a better boy than some men I have seen on the stage.'"

"Miss Morris is of a superstitious nature herself, and asserts that more than 90 per cent of the performers on the stage, and especially in vaudeville, believe in mental telepathy, only they call it 'hunches.' She will visit Boston this week and will appear at the National Theater in one of the most delightful character impersonations ever presented by any one woman.

"In discussing her ideas on the 'hunches' of performers, Miss Morris said:

"You will probably think it silly of me to tell you that a section of heel from an old shoe of mine is my 'lucky piece.' When I first started in vaudeville I went to New York looking for a position. I had been refused by manager after manager until it seemed as if I just must give up.

"One Friday afternoon — it was not the 13th — I went to a manager and he refused me. As I started downstairs — I was too nervous to wait for the elevator — I lost the top layer of a shoe's heel.

"I started back to find it, and as I went into the office the manager caught sight of me and yelled: 'Say, Miss Morris, just the girl I have been looking for. Come right in. Make yourself comfortable.' And only five minutes before," had he yelled, "Nothing doing today."

"I learned that a producer had called him for a 'type.' I happened to be that type. In 20 minutes I had signed contracts. I always carry that little piece of heel in my purse.

"Here is another example. I was playing on a bill with a sharpshooter. One of the bullets rebounded and struck my pocketbook. The lead became lodged in the piece of heel and did not pass through to my body. There are many who would call this a coincidence. I don't know what to call it, and until someone shows me different I am strong for that little section of shoe leather."

VI. Bringing Everything Up-to-Date

The story of Elida Morris Cooper's long and brilliant career has now been told virtually in its entirety. I think it would be well to conclude, however, with excerpts from newspaper discussions of some of her more recent singing and "show biz" activities, which prove that after more than 60 years before the footlights "The Siren of Santa Barbara" is still capable of swaying an audience any way she likes.

Here, for instance, is a comment from a Santa Barbara critic concerning her part in a production of "First Lady," given by the Allied Theater Group in the Alhacama Theater:

"Elida Morris Cooper, who has a gift for broad farce, was ideally cast as Mrs. Louella McCreavy, the leader of five million clubwomen of the Women's Peace, Purity and Patriotism League. She played it for all it was worth—which

(Continued on page 92)

MISC. MUSIC WANTED

PIANO ROLLS, Ampico, Duo-Art, all others. Highest prices. I pay shipping. No lists required. — Box 596, Bellevue, Nebr. mh1251

MISC. MUSIC FOR SALE

BEAUTIFUL Columbia Concert Grand phonograph, 1900 model. Plays 5" cylinders and 2½" cyl. Roll top walnut cabinet. $299. Description and picture 50c. — Miller's, 1017 Westgate Road, Troy, Ohio. mh1422

FOR SALE or trade for old coins, original history of jazz in 12 records. One book dated 1912 title "Victor Book of the Opera," containing stories of 70 grand operas, 300 illustrations, description of 700 Victor opera records. 375 pages. — J. A. Green, 620 Villa Crest, Macon, Ga. mh1433

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books, $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. my3694

WANTED: Old cylinder phonographs and records. Disc phonographs with outside horns. Cylinder reproducers. Hand roller organs. Want any amount large or small. — Neumann Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale 4, Calif. my6329

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3346

CYLINDER PHONOGRAPHS, outside horn disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold. Record list 75c each. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap120821

REPRODUCER REPAIRING a specialty and have all types of reproducers for sale. Also, have a supply of the original Edison styluses (needle) and can install them in your reproducers. Send stamp for brochure on reproducers. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. my3276

EDISON cylinder phono. Model H. 4 min. play, horn old asphaltum paint. New diamond stylus in reproducer. Excellent condition. Dozen records $50. Crating, cartage extra. — The Chateau Antiques, Ascutney, Vt. mh1422

THOS. EDISON PHONOGRAPH

Edison's original "tin foil" phonograph made in 1878. Duplicate in Smithsonian Institution, also Edison Lab. National Monument, Orange, N. J. Valued at $500 for insurance. Best offer takes. Can be seen at

HORSTMAN & MYER

68 No. York Rd., Willow Grove, Pa. mhp

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

is a great deal—and nearly stopped the show."

Writing in the Santa Barbara Star, Will Harvey said this about her part in a revived old-time melodrama, "Under the Gaslight," presented in 1952:

"Elida Morris Cooper was the spark-plug. Her voice was as sweet and clear at times as a 20-year-old's, and her ad lib, 'There's still plenty of life in this old gal' was a vast understatement. She sang 'I Want a Man,' and probably could have had her choice of any of those present."

When the Repertory Theater presented Emlyn Williams' noted play, "The Corn Is Green," the reviewer said:

"Elida Morris Cooper, revelling in the rich comedy role of Mrs. Watty, shop-lifter turned salvationist, threatened to steal the show whenever the author gave her opportunity. One degree more of broadness would have been too much, but she stayed just within the bounds of balanced ensemble and still tickled the audience's risibilities."

Ronald D. Scofield reviewed the Alhecama Players' production of "The Matchmaker," by Thornton Wilder, in the Santa Barbara News-Press for November 6, 1958, and gave warm praise to the veteran comedienne:

"Elida Morris Cooper soars to a pinnacle of fey artistry as the Irish Mrs. Levi. Mrs. Cooper is a past master of roguish, earthy and stylistic comedy, and she brings her skill to bear on this part—with a characterization that is delightful."

(To be concluded in the April issue)

OBITUARY

CLARA WARP JENSEN

Clara Warp Jensen, who with her husband, T. C. Jensen, managed the Harold Warp Pioneer Village at Minden, Nebr., passed away on December 23. Mrs. Jensen was a sister of Harold Warp of Chicago who founded the well known museum.

We quote from the obituary notice of this remarkably energetic and capable woman in the Minden Courier.

"When she was asked to begin collecting items to make up the Harold Warp Pioneer Village, she put her boundless energy into the task. These trips, which she so thoroughly enjoyed, added many more friends throughout the nation.

"As co-manager of Pioneer Village, her responsibilities became greater, but she could still take time for a friendly chat with visitors who came to the Village. Those who met her carried away a warm feeling that often made their visit to the museum the most memorable part of their trip.

"She lived with great and infectious energy, whether the day was spent in the office, or with her husband purchasing articles for the Village, painting china, or lunching with visitors. She enjoyed every moment of it. Clara will be remembered most for her boundless energy and sincere love for individuals.

Left to mourn her passing are her husband; four sons, Vearl, Stanley, Omar and Donald; one daughter, Elaine Howland; 23 grand children; two sisters, Lena Johnson, Minnie Christensen; two brothers, John and Harold Warp, Chicago, Ill.; and a host of friends.

Harold Warp's Pioneer Village has had wonderful success and growth, much of which can be credited to the loyalty and devotion of his sister and her husband.

Twenty thousand historic items in 20 buildings, covering two city blocks make up this repository of authentic Americana. It is located on U. S. 6 and U. S. 34 at Minden, Nebr., which is 130 miles west of Lincoln.

—O—

JOSEPH F. DOWNING

Word has been received of the passing of Joseph F. Downing, one time well-known antique, book, curio and coin and stamp dealer of Mulberry Street, Hartford, Conn., who died on January 12 in Belfast, Me., to which place he retired after many years in Hartford, Conn.

Friends and customers of Mr. Downing in his Mulberry Street (and later his "Tunnel" Building) store in Hartford will recall his long career in that city. Formerly of Holyoke and Springfield, Mass. Mr. Downing went to Hartford in the Twenties. Continuing his regular trade as an evening shift typesetter at a Hartford paper, he established his coin, stamp, curio and rare book business in the Thirties. He made several important discoveries, one of which was the long-lost oil portrait sketch of Gertrude Bell by John Singer Sargent (the "uncrowned queen of Arabia" and a contemporary of Lawrence of Arabia). This painting was sold to Lowell Thomas.* Downing also came across one or two Thomas Sully paintings which later found their way into the hands of museums or wealthy collectors.

*E. D. Collins, a contributor to HOBBIES, saw the painting in Downing's shop and made the arrangements for its sale to Thomas.

THE BLIZZARD MEN AND LADIES OF 1888

On March 12, 1888, the country was gripped by one of the first blizzards of history. On March 8, 1963, members of The Blizzard Men and Ladies of 1888, will hold their 34th annual luncheon at the Hotel Statler, New York City, to perpetuate the memory of the occasion.

Historian of the club is R. W. G. Vail of the New York Historical Society. The Society has a sizeable collection of pictures and memorabilia relating to the big storm.

Clarence Edward Heller, officer of the society, is a contributor-friend of HOBBIES.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

ANTIQUES FOR SALE

Free Egyptian Antiquity Catalog annotated illustrations of genuine: Shawabti (from ancient Egyptian tombs), $15-$25; terra-cotta oil lamps (from ancient Palestine), $5, $10, and up; bronze age weapons, $3 - $100; prehistoric flints, $1; Egyptian scarabs, $10-$25; Coptic textiles, $5-$20; Graeco - Roman figurines, $10-$50; inscribed papyrus, $5-$15; Roman Imperial bronze coins, $3, silver $5. Unusual collectors gift, genuine 1,000-year-old inscribed papyrus sealed in magnifying glass paperweight, $10. Send post card to: Dept. H-3, Aladdin House, 520 5th Ave., New York 36, N. Y. mh16501

STRING of sleigh bells $6.50. Nice old lock and key $2. Oval shadow box with wreath $8.50. Round piano stool $7. Brass eagle nut cracker $3.50. Six fancy chairs, weave cane seats $30. 5 bottle castor, pattern glass bottles, needs replating $14. Empire one drawer night stand $10. Nickel plated alcohol burner chafing dish $9. Pine one drawer wash stand with towel racks, good condition $11.50. — Edward Sheppard, Catskill, N. Y. mh1006

CHINESE embroidered shawl, silk crepe, basic color creamy white, all over embroidery with the "Forbidden Stitch," standard size, with deep beautiful fringe, museum quality, mint condition, $100. Also two old Japanese priest robes, one green brocade; the other lighter shades, each $50. — Marie Grogan, Room 1000, Marshall Field Annex Bldg., 25 East Washington, Chicago, Ill. mh1044

BACK NUMBER MAGAZINES FOR SALE

THE CHATAUQUAN, 1877, $1.25 ea.; Scientific American, 1896-1897, 60c each; WW 1 Leslie's, 1917-1919, 50c each; Old favorite magazines, 1896-1914, our choice, 4 for $1. All good. Postpaid. — House of Memories, Woodville, Wis. mh1082

BOOKS WANTED

WANTED: Books on book illustrators. State price. — Jack Holt, R. 3, Waverly, Ohio. my3291

CANADIANA, such as Bartlett's Canadian Scenery, Canadian Illustrated News, Hunter's Ottawa Scenery & Eastern Townships, Heriot's Travels in the Canadas, Smyth's Sketches in the Canadas, Grant's Picturesque Canada, county atlases, etc. — Specialty Book Concern, Box 293, Oakville, Ont., Canada. my3426

BOOK MATCHES & ALBUMS

UNUSED book matches. 300 different collector items, $5 postpaid and insured. — Book Matches, 914 W. St. Charles, Brownsville, Texas. #126121

Exclusive matchbook covers. Famous Las Vegas casinos, Palm Springs, Hollywood nightclubs, etc. 25 new assorted $1. — Exclusive Collectors, Box 21, Lytle Creek, Calif. my3084

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by

JIM WALSH

Clarice Vance

By JIM WALSH

SIX COMEDIENNES

ELIDA MORRIS

PART IV

By JIM WALSH

Finally, coming up to November 5, 1961, a News-Press writer said this, in describing the Alhecama Players' production of "The Teahouse of the August Moon:"

"Back in the role of Higa Jiga is Elida Morris Cooper, who has a theatrical record as long as an arm. Her thespian career began at the age of 14 as Eva in 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' and includes multifarious singing and dramatic roles.

"She is co-founder of the Santa Barbara Choral Society, has played in four Fiesta Bowl shows, and has served with the Alhecama Players almost since their inception."

Comedy, however, is only one phase of this remarkably gifted lady's abilities. When the Santa Barbara Choral Society gave a Christmas concert on December 21, 1948, she was one of the principal soloists, singing Tschai-kowsky's "Legende" and Reger's "The Virgin's Cradle Song." (What a contrast with "Stop! Stop! Stop!" and "Kiss Me, My Honey!") And when the Music Society of Santa Barbara presented the Mendelssohn oratorio, "Elijah," the reviewer said:

"The brilliant and clear voice of Elida Morris Cooper showed to full advantage in the famous aria, 'What Have I to Do With Thee?' and in the equally famous duet between The Widow and Elijah (Donald Sykes.)"

Some years ago Radio Station KTMS presented our versatile friend in a series of Holy Week programs of sacred songs. As another evidence of versatility (although surely no more really can be needed), Elida for several months wrote a department, "Broadway Silhouette," for the Encino News. All this makes one wonder if there is anything Elida Morris hasn't done—or can't do!

VII. And, Finally—

I am writing the final pages of this series on September 8, 1962, while still trying to recover from a long bout of illness. And I am sorry to say that Elida Morris has had her share of hard luck during the past few months. I quote from her letter of August 9:

"Dear Jim: Do you think you have 'de miseries?' Well, you're not alone, so we can at least be sympathetic with one another. On July 14th I went to bed and turned over on my left side to turn off the bedside lamp, and it tottered and fell off the table. I went to grab it, lost my balance, and my weight (135 pounds) landed on my left forearm and broke both bones.

"I slid on the floor to the telephone and called a taxi and had him take me to the emergency room of St. Francis' Hospital. My arm is in a cast and will be for six weeks, and there will be three months of exercises — physiotherapy — after that. I am in great pain when I don't take the pain capsules. I manipulate the fingers madly all day long.

"Friends have been wonderful. My sister comes every day to keep the house in order and gets my dinner for me."

The ailing Elida had, however, one consolation. Her beloved 13-year-old airedale dog, Roxie, which had undergone an operation for cataracts and other troubles, appeared to have regained his health. But in a later note, dated August 25, she wrote:

"Hello, Jim. My arm has been terrific. Anyway, the cast is moving a little and on September 14th he (the doctor) is supposed to take the cast off. Here's hoping, Jim! What it will look like no one knows until then. Now the hand is peeling and is swollen. The cast had to be tight. It was a very bad break. I exercise my fingers 15 minutes every hour or they'll go stiff. I have to lead Roxie to his food dish now. All senses are affected."

In spite of all her troubles, there is a characteristically bright and optimistic attitude in the letter's concluding sentences:

"Friends have been wonderful to me, Jim. I don't know how to return it. One big party when I am entirely well, with all ladies, I guess. Get well, Jim, and keep me posted. Sincerely, Elida."

Well, this installment cannot appear before April — 7 months from now at the earliest. I hope by that time both Elida Morris and I will be back in top form, and that she will have rejoined the Alhecama Players and again be entertaining large audiences with more of her inimitable characterizations. I wish I could be there to see them.

And I hope my dear friend, Elida, whom I had feared dead for many years before she gave me one of the thrills of a lifetime by so unexpectedly writing to me, will like this necessarily inadequate account of her remarkable career.

Her records have given me so much pleasure over so long a time, that I am deeply grateful I have been able to achieve my ambition of more than 20 years standing to pay her an earnest and sincere tribute in print.

Maybe, in another quarter of a century, I shall be able to write a supplementary article, telling how Elida Morris Cooper, at the age of 100, is still laying 'em in the aisles!

(The End)

(NOTE: This article is dedicated to two of my old friends who are veteran record collectors and admirers of Clarice Vance—Charles M. Sniffin of White Plains, N.Y., and Allen G. Debus, of Park Forest, Ill. Even before I began contributing to HOBBIES, Charlie Sniffin was urging me to gather information about Clarice Vance and to write an article about her.)

A quarter of a century is a long time to wait, but I hope this article will please him, even though the information it contains is not so complete as I would like. Al Debus also has long wanted a biographical sketch of Clarice Vance. I especially appreciate his kindness in lending sheet music covers on which photographs of Miss Vance are shown.)

I. A Hard to Trace Lady

When I fulfilled my long-deferred ambition to tell the life story of Elida Morris, I related the efforts I had made to learn something of the great comedienne's life after she ceased recording, only to be balked at every turn.

There seemed abundant reason to believe the vivacious singer of "Stop! Stop! Stop!" and "Kiss Me, My Honey, Kiss Me" was no longer alive. Then came the delightful thrill of a letter from Elida Morris Cooper, penned in the firmest, most vigorous hand, and I was at length able to chronicle her career.

To a considerable extent the same thing has been true of Clarice Vance. Year after year I tried to learn something about what had happened to her, but met, if anything, with less success than I had in pursuing Elida Morris.

Then, when I had almost given up hope, a clue to the information I needed came from a totally unexpected source. I am sorry to say, however, that it was not in a letter from the lady who was for years one of the brightest vaudeville stars.

Even now, as I prepare to tell as much as I can concerning Clarice Vance, there are gaps in my information which I probably shall never be able to fill.

I know nothing of what she did for nearly 40 years, beginning in 1913. However, enough information is available for me to write an account of her life, with a climax that I would never have dreamed of before learning the facts.

II. Clarice Vance Marries Mose Gumble

When I met my childhood hero, Billy Murray, in 1938, I asked him if he knew what had become of Clarice Vance. Billy, who had been inactive as a recording artist for several years, wasn't keeping in close touch with the theatrical world, and he didn't know.

He remembered the once famous comedienne as a tall, heavily-built woman who had been married to "Mose" Gumble, professional manager of the Remick song publishing firm, but said he believed they were divorced.

A few years later, still trying to trace Miss Vance, I wrote to her former husband, who is now dead, asking if he could give me her address and any other information having to do with her later years. In reply I received a friendly, but brief note, saying it looked as if I already knew "more about Miss Vance than anybody else," but telling me nothing.

Then, in 1960, I was lucky enough to obtain a photostatic copy of an article which was published in an unidentified New York paper for December 17, 1904, giving an account of the marriage of the singer and the song writer. It was written in a style of old-fashioned humor which I shall condense:

"Ragtime Artists in Lifelong Duet . . . Moses Gumble and Clarice Vance Think Each Other's Music Good Enough For Steady Diet . . . Wedded in Indianapolis.

"Won't you fondle me? Won't you fondle me?
Throw your arms around me in dat lovin' way."

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replated, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Palham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825 tfo

MUSIC BOXES
From March 25 to April 25 I will not be available to answer any mail or do any work on music boxes, etc.
After April 25, I will again be at your service.
GEORGE A. BIDDEN
Barrington, Rhode Island apo

WANTED
FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION
RECORDS
of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS
Particularly the following:
★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T. etc.
★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.
Also old record catalogs.
AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY
50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York tfx

"As Moses Edwin Gumble, the ragtime virtuoso, poured forth these strains to Clarice Estelle Vance, the ragtime diva, a few days ago, it was quite evident to those in the know that there would be something doing soon in the line of orange blossoms.

"On Thursday afternoon Moses hid himself to Indianapolis, where the fair Clarice was filling a $300 a week engagement, and without further parley slipped the golden hoop upon her digit.

"It is perhaps superfluous to state that Moses Edwin Gumble holds a very enviable position in the field of ragtime players in the community. . . . It is also a well known fact that Clarice Estelle Vance knows a great deal about singing a dialect song, and some vaudeville managers have gone so far as to bill her as the 'Queen of the Ragtime Orioles.'

"That two such individuals should eventually meet their affinity in each other's personality was a foregone conclusion, and it came to pass when Moses touched the 'chord' in the refrain of the song as quoted.

"Miss Clarice Vance has been on the vaudeville stage about five years. She is known in private life as Clara Ella Black. She began her successful career at the Howard Atheneum, and, as an interpreter of Negro melodies and dialect ditties, has few equals.

"A delegation of New York musical celebrities, consisting of James O'Dea, Ira Miller, Charles Daniels, the composer of 'Hiawatha,' E. Van Alstyne, the author of 'Navajo,' Bert Cooper, Ed Carney, Fred Belcher, Ed Laska, Jerome and Schwartz, composer of 'Bedelia,' and others who went with Mr. Gumble to the Hoosier city to act as 'best men,' and incidentally to see that the fair Clarice did not escape, are expected to return with the happy couple to Gotham tomorrow evening."

Judging by the facetious style, in which the probably now long gone newsman appears to be smacking his lips at his scintillating humor, that story must have come from either the New York World or the Tele- graph, which specialized in theatrical and racing news.

It should have been an impressive sight when those music business "luminaries" descended from the train with Mr. Gumble and subsequently vouchsafed him their moral support as he stood before the altar with—dare I use the unknown writer's favorite phrase once more—"the fair Clarice."

Now that I think of it, I obtained from the Clerk of Court's office in Indianapolis a copy of the marriage record, which makes it seem unlikely that Clarice and Mose said their vows before an altar. They were married December 7, 1904 by William C. Smock, a justice of the peace. She gave her name as Clara Ella Black.

III. Clarice Vance's First Records

"The Southern Singer," as Clarice Vance was known in vaudeville, had been married only a few months when she made what I take to have been her first record. It was an Edison two-minute cylinder, issued in August, 1905.

The song was "Mariar," one perhaps more closely associated with her than any other. The words were by Harry Williams, who ordinarily wrote lyrics to music composed by Egbert Van Alstyne. Miss Vance's husband, Mose Gumble, wrote the music, and who knows? The success of the song may have had something to do with their romance and marriage.

The New Phonogram thus described the cylinder, 9051:

"This record introduces to the phono-

OLD SALZBURG
MUSIC BOXES

Bought	Sold	Repaired
Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.
Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.
The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes
Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol
1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.	D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Washington 7, D. C.	Hudson 3-4553

- Antique Dealers
- Collectors
- Students of Americana

All need this fine reference book on automatic pianos, orchestrions, calliopes, and many other unusual automatic instruments.

251 pages — Over 500 illustrations — Cloth bound.
PRICE $10.00 POSTPAID

" . . . well written and often explosively funny . . . "

Satisfaction Guaranteed or Money Refunded

THE VESTAL PRESS
—Binghamton (N.Y.) Press 3533 STRATFORD — VESTAL 2, N.Y.

t38c

Illustrated from the collection of Allen Debus.

graph public a new singer in the person of Miss Vance, who is one of the most widely known artists in vaudeville. She is a top line feature in all vaudeville theaters, and is one of their most popular performers. Her work is always finished and never boisterous.

"While this record is not as loud as many others, we feel sure that it will find many admirers. The record shows Miss Vance in one of her big successes, and the song is given in her characteristic style. 'Mariar' is a farmer's serenade."

Miss Vance appeared again in the Edison list for February, 1906. This was the only other record which Edison issued by her, and I doubt that she made cylinders for any other company. Again, The New Phonogram:

"9214 'Save Your Money 'Cause De Winter Am Comin' On.' . . . This is a dialect song of the real comic variety, and in the hands of Miss Vance is unusually so. The general opinion of all who have heard Miss Vance's latest effort is that it is superior in every point of interest to 'Mariar,' which we listed last August. . . . Raymond Teal and Hal Godfrey are its writers."

Possibly "Save Your Money" was superior to "Mariar," but it fell into complete obscurity and hardly anybody remembers it now, while there are still thousands of venerable old-time vaudeville patrons who can recall "Mariar" and the way Clarice Vance sang it.

IV. Victor Records

After this apparently unsuccessful experience with Edison, Clarice Vance, so far as I know, made no more records until she was engaged by Victor, late in 1906. According to the Victor files, she recorded three numbers in November, 1906—"If Anybody Wants to Meet a Jonah, Shake Hands With Me," "He's a 'Cousin of Mine'" (one of her historic hits), and "I'd Rather Two-Step Than Waltz, Bill." The first two were issued in January, 1907, as 4930, and 4931, respectively, and the third in June, as 5118.

The Victor supplement for January, 1907, contained a photo of "The Southern Singer," showing her to be tall, with dark hair and a broad smile. It was accompanied by the following eulogistic comment:

"One of the greatest favorites of the vaudeville stage today is Clarice Vance. Unassuming, quiet, dignified, and clever; possessed of a droll humor and a sly method of expression that are simply irresistible, she is in a class by herself with her clear-cut delivery of popular dialect songs."

"Singers who depend on mouthing and shouting for their measure of success should study Miss Vance's methods to their profit. She chooses her songs with care and then gets their good points before the audience in a thoroughly clever er fashion. If there is a laugh in a song it is sure to come out when she sings or talks it as the point demands."

"Miss Vance has made us two records which are an absolute reproduction of her voice and droll mannerisms. Both songs are new and most clever and the records thoroughly delightful ones."

The reference to the quiet manner in which Miss Vance sang, and the subtle manner in which she interpreted humor, was well taken.

Play her record of "He's a Cousin of Mine" in the same room with the phonograph and it seems perhaps a little lacking in volume. But go into another room and listen and, because of her masterly method of voice projection, it seems equally distinct and even a little louder. She had an extremely pleasant, feminine type of voice, bearing little resemblance to the sounds made by some of the stentorian women "dialect shouters."

The description just quoted was retained, in a shortened and modified form, in Victor catalogs for many years.

In June, 1907, Victor announced three Vance numbers—the already mentioned "I'd Rather Two-Step, Than Waltz, Bill;" 5119, "Yo' Eyes Are Open, But You're Sound Asleep" (both 10-inch), and, on 5120, an 8-inch version of "Mariar." The supplement said:

"Miss Vance's Victor records have delighted thousands of her admirers, who voiced only praise for the opportunity of hearing their favorite vaudeville artist at any time. Here are three more of Miss Vance's new hits . . . which will be greatly enjoyed, all being very amusing songs, and rendered in this artist's delightfully humorous manner."

There was an interval of four months before another Clarice Vance record was issued. It was the one destined to remain, as a double-faced disc, in the Victor catalog longer than any other, 5253, "I'm Wise," which had been recorded in August.

It was offered for sale in November. The supplement description was accompanied by a photo of Miss Vance, looking thoughtful, with one hand to her face:

"The announcement of a new record by Miss Vance will be very gratifying to those who have enjoyed her amusing 'Cousin of Mine' and 'I'd Rather Two-Step.' Here is a very quaint and funny little song, and you may be sure that this favorite singer brings out all its good points in the quiet and artistic manner familiar to her audiences."

In December, 1907, another record, which had been sung in August, was issued. It was 5278, "Handle Me With Care." Unfortunately, I lack the December supplement.

One of Clarice's big hits, which she had recorded in January, 1908, was issued in April—Harry Williams and Egbert Van Alstyne's classic "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark." Once more the supplement is quoted:

"The announcement of a new record by Miss Vance will be pleasant news to the many admirers of this popular singer and comedienne. We are sure that none of those who possess her irresistible 'He's a Cousin of Mine' (and many thousands of these have been sold) will fail to get this new Williams-Van Alstyne number. It is a very amusing song (as everyone who has heard the Murray record knows), and the record is the finest Miss Vance has yet made."

The back cover of the May, 1908, Victor supplement shows the still-living Geraldine Farrar listening to a record being played by a talking machine with a large horn, and laughing as if she is being thoroughly entertained. There is this paragraph of explanation:

"Miss Farrar kindly consented to pose in the attitude of listening to her new records, with which she was much pleased. Her highly amused expression in the photograph shown, however, is inspired by a record of Clarice Vance's 'I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark,' and her enjoyment is quite evident."

I was interested to read, in an old issue of The Voice of the Victor, that the duet record of the now classic Indian song, "Red Wing," by S. H. Dudley and Harry Macdonough, was the biggest selling Victor record for 1908.

The runner-up was Billy Murray's "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark." This makes it appear likely that if the sale of the comic song had not been divided between the Murray and Vance versions, but had been confined to one, it would have beaten "Red Wing."

Both the comedian and the comedienne's interpretations are extremely good, but the Murray proved the more popular. It was taken over into the double-faced list, where, coupled with another Williams-Van Alstyne number, "I Used to be Afraid to Go Home in the Dark," it remained for years. Miss Vance's version did not receive double-face status.

Another Vance record, which had been sung in January, 1908, appeared in May: 5374, "That Friend of Mine," which also was written by Williams and Van Alstyne:

"Miss Vance is always happy in her choice of songs and invariably picks winners. Her 'I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark' is enjoying a tremendous success and is surpassing in popularity even the famous 'Cousin of Mine.' Here is her latest and it is a good one."

A year passed before Clarice Vance again visited the Victor studios, in January, 1909. The engagement resulted in what I consider one of her best records in spite of its ungrammatical title, 5675, "Love Me Like I Like to be Loved."

It is extremely catchy and lilting, but, although it later appeared in double-face, it seems rather difficult to find as compared to some of her others. The April, 1909, supplement said:

"A New Vance Record . . . A new record by this artist is a welcome announcement, as she invariably sings her numbers with droll humor and a method of expression which is simply irresistible."

"All the disc-record work of this favorite singer of popular songs will in future be confined to Victor records, thus insuring a faithful reproduction of her catchy and amusing style."

I have often puzzled over that second paragraph. If Clarice Vance made any disc records other than Victors, I have not in all my years of research found any mention of them.

Even more oddly, she never made any more Victor records—none, at least, that were issued—after that January, 1909, recording date. Yet the statement that her future disc work would be restricted to Victor continued to appear in the catalog for several years. Since her records so obviously were popular, I wonder what happened that no more came out.

There were still, however, a few more Vance records to be offered. In August, 1909, one of those which had been recorded in January was issued. It was "Good-Bye to Johnnie," which I consider among her best. Supplement Editor Sam Rous said:

"Miss Vance's Newest Success. 5710, 'Good-bye to Johnnie.' Miss Vance here impersonates, in her inimitable way, the flirt who finally decides to settle down, and bids farewell to Johnnie, Freddy, Harry, and the rest of the 'boys.' Nothing that this favorite artist has so far recorded, possibly excepting the famous 'Cousin,' can equal this amusing song."

June, 1909, brought the last of Clarice Vance's records. It was the first by her in double-face form. On the A side of 16295 she sang a 10-inch version, her favorite, "Mariar." Reversing the record, one found another Williams and Van Alstyne hit (how those boys were turning them out in those days!), "It Looks Like a Big Night Tonight." The supplement was enthusiastic:

"Here is indeed a bargain—two of Miss Vance's current successes on one double-faced record—the convivial 'Big Night Tonight'; and that perennial favorite, 'Mariar,' which the public always insists on hearing each season."

"Mariar" is a delightful record. The last part when the singer gives a clever imitation of someone in the throes of uncontrollable laughter, is especially good. There is some tricky double rhyming by Harry Williams in the words of the refrain:

"Mariar, Mariar, you've set my heart on fire:

It's you I most desire of all the gals around!

Oh, Mariar, riar, riar, of your love I'll never tire,
For there's not a higher flier than Mariar in this town."

And that, according to a search of the Victor archives, was the last Clarice Vance record. However, in November, 1910, "Good-Bye to Johnnie" was combined with "Fol the Rol Lol," by Edward M. Favor, on record 16672, and "Love Me Like I Like to be Loved" teamed up, on 16802, with "Oh, You Kid," by Ada Jones and Billy Murray.

Finally, in March, 1913, "I'm Wise," which had been highly popular in single-face, joined forces on record 17253 with the equally popular "Frog Song," by May Irwin.

V. Why Clarice Became a Comedienne

A few months before she made her last records, The Hippodrome News for March 25, 1908, published an interview with "The Southern Singer" in which she said there was nothing except "character roles" or comedy a woman of her height and breadth could do on the stage:

"Miss Vance Says Nature Was Wrong To Make Her So Big . . . Clarice Vance is sorry that nature made her so tall and so heavy."

"When interviewed in her dressing-room at the Hippodrome the other day she said: 'I happened to fall into my particular line of work, and have made good at it, I suppose, because the managers continue to engage me and the audiences applaud my work. But singing a few dialect songs is not the highest ambition of any person on the stage."

CLARICE VANCE

Illustrated from the sheet music collection of Allen Debus.

"Away back in the distant past (when Julia Marlowe was plain Sarah Frost) and some of the prominent actors of the present day were unheard of, I thought I might develop into a prominent actress myself. In those days I did not sing—some of the critics say I have never sung in my life—but in those days I didn't even try. I was a plain character woman, and did all the things that character women do."

"Then the other people progressed and became famous. I was too big to play a leading part. Imagine a man making love to me on the stage. It would have been hilariously funny."

"Well, I could have kept on playing character parts. But what is there for a character woman? She starts as one and ends as one, and if she isn't so poor that they have to give her a benefit in her old age, after she has spent 30 years on the stage, the most she gets out of it at death is a few posies and a paragraph in the newspapers."

"I decided that I couldn't afford to waste my time at that line of work, so I branched out, and . . . have been singing dialect songs. How long is it? Oh, it's years and years and years, 79 of them, I believe. It's long enough, so I am ready for a vacation. I don't care if I don't sing on the stage again, after my engagement is over at the Hippodrome, for the next two years."

"If I'd have been a sweet little thing, they would have been paying two dollars to see me and my name would have been printed in big letters on the bill-boards—maybe. As Shaw says, you never can tell. But you can make a pretty sure guess when an actoreen is six feet tall and quite wide."

VI. More Reminiscences

A bit of background information concerning Clarice Vance's career was published in an interview with her which appeared in the Terre Haute (Ind.) Tribune for April 30, 1913. This is the most "recent" clipping I have been able to obtain about the statuesque comedienne, and seemingly was published not long before she was divorced:

"It was Jimmy Thornton who first announced me as 'the Southern Singer,' said Clarice Vance, while waiting for her turn to go on at the Varieties. 'You know I was the with the James and Bonnie Thornton Variety Company when that organization played the houses now given over entirely to burlesque.

"There was this much justification for the distinction. I was born in Louisville, and I used to make a specialty of Southern songs. Mr. Thornton wanted me to black up, too. And I did, until I had almost worn my face off removing burnt cork after performances.

"Since the vogue of polite vaudeville, I have traipsed the country pretty thoroughly—that is, I have played all the large cities, but I am splitting a week for the first time in my life. No, never have known what it was to play a town for less than a week before.

"But I almost made a one-night stand out of London—dear old London. When I went over to sing at the Palace, my husband, Mose Gumble, went along. He was even more nervous than I was in the opening night.

"When 30 musicians began to play at once, I thought my voice would be lost in the volume of sound. But they heard me and liked my songs, and I stayed at the Palace for 27 weeks. . . . I was the first of the dialect shouting ladies to do the halls in London, but I have only played in one, at that, the Palace.

"Yes, I am singing one of my husband's songs, 'Mariar.' Mose wrote that the year we were married, which means it's eight years old. Whenever I run out of new material I revive it and it always goes. . . ."

In the New York Dramatic Mirror for January 30, 1909, Miss Vance discussed her professional standards. She said she never sang suggestive songs, and that when she received sheet music with indelicate references she gave such songs to her husband for cigar lighters.

She further said the songs she sang were invariably clean, funny in theme, but never vulgar—"such as, for instance, those which I am now singing: 'It Looks Like a Big Night Tonight,' 'Good-Bye to Johnnie,' 'Mariar,' 'I Used to be Afraid to Come Home in the Dark,' and similar ditties." She then emphasized:

"I thoroughly despise the singer who 'peddles' songs. In other words, there are a number of singers who go from publisher to publisher in the endeavor to get the best price for singing certain songs to the exclusion of others. This eliminates many good songs and forces lots of poor ones on the long suffering public.

"And, by the way, speaking of suggestive songs, why, any one with the most ordinary ability can sing that sort of stuff. It doesn't take ability to do that—or personality. It only takes a little nerve and a lack of modesty."

The newspaper stories I have just quoted exhaust my fund of information about Clarice Vance in her younger years. After 1913, her name, aside from being in Victor record catalogs, seems to disappear. I have not been able to find any newspaper references to her of later date than the Terre Haute Tribune interview.

I did, however, discover the following reference to the comedienne in the late Joe Laurie, Jr.'s book, "Vaudeville"—but I am not sure what a "mirror dress" was, or is:

"Clarice Vance had the first mirror dress. Mindel Kingston (World & Kingston) wore a cloak with mirrors in Follies of 1910. Miss Vance sued.

"Miss Kingston claimed her father invented it over 40 years before (1870), that mirror dresses were the natural evolution from a mirror held in the hand against a spotlight for flirtation numbers. Miss Vance won, by proving there were no spotlights in those days."

And in "Show Biz: From Vaude to Video," by Abel Green and Laurie,

Miss Vance is mentioned as one of the "queens of the dialect shouting craze" in the heyday of vaudeville. Her name leads the list.

Others included May Irwin, Elizabeth Murray, and the still active Sophie Tucker and Blossom Seeley. But, as I have already indicated, Clarice Vance was not a "dialect shouter." Her style was quiet, subdued and refined and had no exuberant quality.

VII. More Efforts to Trace Clarice

The Victor catalogs added to the bafflement I felt as I tried for years to learn what had become of Miss Vance. For instance, the January, 1908, edition, which listed seven single-faced records by the comedienne, began by saying: "One of the greatest favorites of the vaudeville stage today is Clarice Vance," a statement originally made in the January, 1907, supplement.

When the first completely alphabetical record catalog was issued in January, 1912, the number of Vance records stood at eight—"Good-Bye to Johnnie," "He's a Cousin of Mine," "I'd Rather Two-Step," "I'm Wise," "It Looks Like a Big Night" (coupled with "Mariar"), "Love Me Like I Like to be Loved," and "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark."

In the December, 1912, catalog, only five were still listed. The once vastly popular "He's a Cousin of Mine," "I'm Afraid to Come Home" and "I'd Rather Two-Step" had been dropped. Yet the statement was still made that Miss Vance was "one of the greatest favorites of the vaudeville stage today."

By October, 1914, only two Vance records remained, "Good-Bye to Johnnie" and "I'm Wise." "Johnnie" was discontinued in 1920, and the sole remaining Clarice Vance record, "I'm Wise," was cut out of the 1923 catalog.

In the May, 1917, catalog, the statement that Miss Vance was one of the greatest vaudeville favorites "today" was changed to: "one of the greatest favorites the vaudeville stage ever knew is Clarice Vance." The wording stayed that way as long as the brief commentary was retained.

But what is one to make of it? Probably most readers would take a statement that "Clarice Vance was one of the greatest favorites the vaudeville stage has ever known" to mean that she had retired. But using "ever knew" instead of "has ever known" could easily give the impression that she had died, because it placed her so definitely in the past.

Had Clarice Vance retired from vaudeville when that 1917 catalog was printed? I wish I knew—but I don't. I do know the wording led me to think for many years that more than likely she was dead.

After I obtained photostats of all the material about Clarice Vance in the files of the Theatrical Division of the New York Public Library, I resumed the research I had carried on intermittently for years. The

From top to bottom:
First and middle pictures:

Three photos of Clarice Vance produced from the Victor Record Supplements of January, 1907; April, 1909; and November, 1907.

Bottom picture:

This amusing picture of the opera star, Geraldine Farrar, enjoying Clarice Vance's record of "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark," appeared in the Victor record list for May, 1908.

Terre Haute interview told me one thing I hadn't known, that the singer was born in Louisville, Ky.

Accordingly, I wrote to the reference department of the Louisville Courier-Journal and asked if their "morgue" contained anything about Clarice Vance or Clara Ella Black. The librarian, Ralph Shoemaker, replied that he could find no mention of either name.

I also wrote a letter to the editor, which was published in a Sunday (Continued on page 68)

MISC. MUSIC WANTED

PIANO ROLLS, all kinds. Highest prices. No lists required. — Bill Stewart, Box 596, Bellevue 1, Nebr. ap1821

THE FIELDSTONE PORCH

46 Oakdale Road, Glenbrook (Stamford), Conn. - DAVIS 3-3039
 CECILY and GERRY PHILPOT
 Mail order or appointment preferred.

Ingredients for new type ad — new, temperamental camera to wife for Christmas, "new" (old) Spinnet piano which serves as backdrop — and A W A Y W E G O . . . Hope it will help you get a better idea of the pieces we're offering. Photographer is pretty temperamental, too . . .

L. R. Back Row

1. AMBERINA PITCHER, applied amber handle, coin spot  $8\frac{1}{4}$ ". \$98.
2. M.O.P. PITCHER, D.Q., applied reeded camphor handle; blue/white 9". $225.
3. AMBERINA PITCHER, appl. amber handle, sq. mouth,  $7\frac{1}{4}$ ". \$83.

Middle Row

1. CUT VELVET BOWL, butter-scotch color. 5". $74.
2. AMBERINA PITCHER, appl. amber handle, red to smoky amber honeycomb, 5". $87.
3. Cut velvet, shiny, pink,  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ". \$55.
4. L. C. TIFFANY, FAVORITE SWEETMEAT JAR, silver rim & cover, handle. Moving the hdl. opens rim! Gold with green leaves.  $5\frac{7}{8}$ " inc. handle. \$125.

Bottom Row

1. MT. WASH. MELON RIBBED SUGAR, salmon to yellow - daisy decor. Embossed silver top. 3". $28.
2. RAINBOW SATIN BASKET. Pink, yellow, bluish-white body. Appl. camphor lover's knot hdl.  $6\frac{1}{2}$ " top of handle. \$110.
3. M.O.P. CELERY, blue/white D.Q. tricorn shape. Appl. frosted edge.  $7\frac{1}{2}$ " in silver holder. \$148.
4. TIFFANY, signed vase. White with multicolored swirls. Sig. LCT #010610. 6". $165.
5. MOP DQ TUMBLER, blue/white. Decorated with flying bird in white enamel wheat stalks,  $3\frac{3}{4}$ ". \$140.

19th Century and Nouveau art glass. Colored photos, 50c, refunded. Merch. guaranteed old & proof unless otherwise noted. Transportation extra. apc

IMPORTANT NEW BOOK

PRESSED GLASS SALT DISHES of the LACY PERIOD 1825-1850

465 LACY SALTS - FULLY ILLUSTRATED - ACTUAL SIZE

Price Per Copy $15.00

L. W. & D. B. NEAL
 1712 Rittenhouse Square
 Philadelphia 3, Pa.

s63c

ROBERT I. CAMPBELL

409 Oak St. Columbus 15, Ohio
 CA 8-2309

Rookwood vase 9" h., slender neck, jonquills, brown background $27.50.
 Rookwood bookends 5x5", standing crows against leaf and berry background, pair $35.
 Other Rookwood, write for photos.
 Carnival sugar & creamer, blue, grape, bronze, iridescent, marked N, set $27.50.
 Signed Galle faience wall vase 9x9", shape of flower, butterfly and flowers decor. $85.
 Peleton 14" vase, amethyst, iridescent. $37.50.
 Weller Sicard, Dickensware, Weller clock case, pitchers, vases, write.
 Transportation extra.

app

PFISTERS ANTIQUES

607 S.W. 1st Ave. Telephone 437-4290
 Austin, Minnesota
 Write specific wants

1. Brass banquet lamp, red satin ball shade.
2. Scroll foot clear gl. lamp, Millard.
3. Star & Thumbprint (old Moon & Star). Clear font, Marble base lamp. See K-8, page 72.
4. Extra large pink overlay hat, 4 fluted scallops, about 35 yrs. old.
5. Foxy Grandpa, bisque, Celery China boats.
6. 2 Maldens blush wines.
7. 4 sunk Daisy tumblers, Kamm.

app

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

issue of the Courier-Journal, asking if anyone who had known "Clara Ella Black or her family could give me some information concerning her early years in Louisville."

No one responded except a man who wrote that he knew nothing of Clarice Vance, but wondered if I were related to a popular song writer named Mabel Walsh. He said he had written the words of some songs and would like to get Miss Walsh to set them to music—but he made it clear he wasn't willing to pay her anything for supplying the tunes. Since I had never heard of Mabel Walsh, I was unable to help him.

(To be continued)

HELEN SORENSEN

R.F.D. 1, Box 541

Middleboro, Mass.

Goblets, Diagonal Band, $4.50. Ashman $5.50.
 Sauces, 6. D.&B. Cloverleaf 5" ca. $2.25 - 3
 Kentucky footed, 1 has chip, lot $6. Artichoke $3.50.
 Blue Basketweave, Milk Pitcher $14.
 Haviland Princess Pattern, covered Veg.  $8\frac{1}{2}$ x12 \$9.50. Scalloped serving dish 8", \$5.50.
 2 Frog Plates,  $7\frac{1}{2}$ ". 1 Muselman, other Fishing, each \$3.50, German mark.
 Colored Water Pitchers, Emerald Green Memphis $14. Amber Oaken Bucket $18.
 2 Champion, Lemonade Tumblers, ea. $3.
 Compotes, Melrose 8" $5.50. Jersey Swirl 10" $7.50, need covers.
 Custard Glass Tumblers, N. Mapleleaf, Intaglio, ea. $5.50.
 Majolica green & brown Cuspidor Fleur de Lys around base, $6.

Transportation extra.

apc

COPPER LAMP ANTIQUES

558 3rd Ave. No. Troy, N. Y.

1. Pair of flat Base Milk Glass Lamps, raised floral enameled decoration  $5\frac{1}{2}$ " high, have a pair of elongated Tam O' Shanter M. Glass shades  $8\frac{1}{2}$ " hl., which were with the above Bases when I found them, but no rings to hold shade, so complete price for four pcs. 40.00
2. Painting of basket of peaches on canvas by J. or T. Chrysler in Original Gold fr. C. 1890. Very well done -- 35.00
3. Scenic Oil Painting on Art Board, wide gold leaf fr. Some scenes on fr. 10" wide - 6" hl. Mountain in background. Small figure in foreground. Nice for small area 12.00
4. 8 Touraine Flow Blue  $8\frac{1}{2}$ " Plates, all perfect. \$2.75 each or all for 20.00
5. Coralene decorated vase. Shading from Pink to White on Amber legs  $8\frac{1}{2}$ " hl. As near perfect as I've ever seen. Color shot of same 60c. 125.00

Stamp for reply. Shipping Extra.

apc

WENDELL'S ANTIQUE STUDIO

Dodge Center Minnesota

Kings Crown spooner, $6.50.
 M.O.P. Dia. Q. large rose vase -----135.00
 Water Lily M.G. Syrup, top missing $15.
 5" M.G. Double C plate $3.50.
 7" Single Row FGMN M.G. plate $3.50.
 Draped Bead M.G. Cov. sugar $12.50.
 Bavarian Ranson pattern 8 -  $8\frac{1}{2}$ " plates \$15.
 10 6" plates $12.50.
 Large meat platter, $7.50.
 Kindly include sufficient for P.P. and Ins.

apc

WALKER'S ANTIQUES

408 E. Locust Street
 Davenport, Iowa

Pewter Ice Cream Moulds
 Assorted Designs, $3 each.
 Santa Stork $5 each.
 Quantity discount to Dealers.

Transportation extra.

apc

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Clarice Vance

PART II
(Continued from April issue)
VII A

By JIM WALSH

A letter to the Frederic J. Haskin Information Bureau brought no results. Then I enlisted the aid of Abel Green, the editor of Variety, who said he thought Ben Bloom could help me, since Bloom had known all the old-time vaudeville stars.

On December 13, 1960, Mr. Bloom, who operates the Ben Bloom Music Corporation at 1619 Broadway, New York City, wrote me that he recalled Clarice Vance's name and had a rather vague impression that she did a "red hot mama" act, something like Sophie Tucker's. That, of course, was an error. He suggested that I write to Melville Morris, who had been an assistant to Mose Gumble and played the piano during rehearsals at Remick's for most of the women stars of the old vaudeville era.

I received a cordial reply from Mr. Morris. He, by the way, is the Mel Morris who directed the Piccadilly Players dance orchestra that made Diamond Discs in the last year or two of the Edison Company's record activities. He said he had known Miss Vance very well and was her pianist on club dates. Then he added:

"I was also Mose Gumble's assistant at the Remick Music Publishing Co. I know that Clarice and Mose divorced in 1913 or '14. She got stuck on a young pianist, whom I think she married, and had him play for her in vaudeville. After that I lost track of her."

The Actors' Equity Association informed me there was nothing in its files concerning Clarice Vance or Clara Ella Black.

VIII. The Pitiful Truth

And then, after I had virtually given up hope of solving the mystery that surrounded the last half of Clarice Vance's life, the key came in an unexpected way. Early in September, 1961, I was astounded to see the following two-sentence death notice in Variety's "Final Curtain" department:

"Clarice Vance, vaudeville singer, died August 24 in Napa, Cal., of cancer. She was married at one time to the late Mose Gumble, vet music man with Remick."

So the once vastly popular comedienne had been alive all those years during which I had been trying vainly to learn enough to write a HOBBIES article about her! I at once wrote to Abel Green, asking him the source of the item. He replied that it was sent in by Sam Stark, a San Francisco specialist in theatrical history.

I wrote to Mr. Stark, who has since become a cherished friend, and begged for any additional information he could supply. I also asked the Napa newspaper for copies of the issue with Miss Vance's death notice, and sent for a photostat of her death certificate.

Meanwhile, in a succeeding issue of Variety, a letter from Sam Stark was published, headed "What 'Burial by the Actors' Fund' Means." Clarice Vance was not mentioned by name, but after having read the preceding death notice I had no trouble detecting whom he referred to.

I am sure my friend Sam will not object to my reprinting most of his letter. The pathos it contains is heartbreaking:

"... As a theater historian for 25 years I have read thousands of obituaries, of which so many ended with 'Burial by the Actors' Fund.' This became such a stock phrase that I paid it little heed. That is, until last week, when I received a telephone call asking me for some data on an actress who had died at the State Hospital. . . .

"It seemed a routine assignment until I spoke with the hospital director. He explained to me that the only information he had of the deceased was her name, the year of her birth and her profession, because when she entered the institution in 1951 she was in an advanced stage of senility. . . .

"This poor soul didn't know the month or day of her birth; nor where; or whether she had been married or the songs she had sung. She only knew her name, her age, and that she was an actress. . . .

"I gave the director her biographical data and it was considerable, because she had been a star in her day. He told me she left no estate, there were no known survivors, and that he had contacted Actors' Equity to know what funeral arrangements would be made. Today a telegram arrived at the State Hospital reading, 'Actors' Fund has instructed local funeral home at Napa, Cal., to arrange for funeral and burial.' . . .

"So today, for me, 'Burial by the Actors' Fund' is no longer a stock phrase. It's a benediction and a beautiful sentiment. It means, 'Farewell, old-timer, God bless you and may your soul rest in peace. Thank you for your songs, thank you for your laughter and tears, thank you for your lively step, and thank you especially for the twinkle that you gave to us who are left here on this earth.'"

And that is the tragic story of the last earthly days of Clarice Vance. The once happy and prosperous comedienne had quit playing "character woman" roles because "if she isn't so poor that they have to give her a benefit in her old age . . . the most she gets out of it at death is a few posies and a paragraph in the newspaper." She ended her days in an insane asylum, reduced by extreme old age to a state of hardly more than vegetation. No one played a benefit for her, her death brought only a one-paragraph four-line notice in Variety, and her funeral cost; were paid by a charitable Actors' Fund.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

As Shakespeare said, "The pity is too deep for tears."

IX. In Conclusion

There is little more that I can tell about Clarice Vance. Portions of her life are still a mystery.

If she married a young pianist, who was he and what became of him? How many years had she lived in California? What did she do after she was no longer a vaudeville star? Perhaps she played "bit parts" or character roles in the films—but she lived in San Francisco, not Hollywood. What caused her to be committed to the State Hospital in Napa county?

These and many more tantalizing
(Continued on page 59)

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders repinned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1566) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825 tfo

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES
$5, postpaid
242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.
Published by
HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

WANTED
FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION
RECORDS
of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS
Particularly the following:
★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RE-CORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels
★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE
labels
★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE
CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zono-
phone.
★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODE-
ON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.
Also old record catalogs.
AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY
50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York
tfx

Six Comediennes

JOSIE SADLER

Third of the Six

By JIM WALSH

PART I

I. A Preliminary Apology

Painstaking writers hesitate to publish biographies marred by loose ends and unanswered questions.

Hence, I have been, and still am, reluctant to print the relatively little I know concerning the once-famous German dialect actress, Josie Sadler. Despite earnest research efforts, much of her life story remains in obscurity or total darkness.

However, she is one of a trio of comediennes—the others are Elida Morris and Clarice Vance—about whom I have longed for many years to write. So I shall venture into type, in the hope that this article will elicit supplementary information from some source now unknown to me.

In the beginning, I face certain handicaps. I know that Josie Sadler was born in New York City, but I do not know in what year. Circumstantial evidence appears to put her into the same age group as Clarice Vance, who was 90 when she died in 1961. That makes it seem almost certain Miss Sadler is dead, but I have not been able to obtain any documentary evidence that she is.

Years ago, Charlie Sniffin, of White Plains, N. Y., in urging me to write about both Clarice Vance and Josie Sadler, wrote that he worked at one time with a nephew of Miss Sadler's, and the nephew told him "Aunt Josie died around 1933 or 1934."

I had the New York Bureau of Public Health check the city death records from 1930 through 1936, but nothing was found concerning Josephine Geddes—to use her latest known married name.

Sam Stark the San Francisco expert on everything associated with theatrical personalities, clings to a hope that the buxom comedienne yet lives. On September 14, 1961, he wrote:

"I still hold that Josie Sadler is alive, as I have fairly complete files on everyone and have for years scanned the obits in Variety, Billboard, New York Times, New York Star and The Stage (England)."

"I spoke with Georgie Caine around 1952 about Josie, as they were in 'Peggy from Paris' together, and she, too, thought Josie was still alive. I have been watching for obits with Josie's real name, Josephine Rauscher. Now, Georgia Caine is at the Motion Picture Home in Woodland Hills, California."

By saying Miss Sadler's real name was Rauscher, I suppose Mr. Stark means that was her maiden name. I believe she was married more than once. And, as I have already said, I think she was a Mrs. Geddes when the latest newspaper item I have in which she is mentioned, was published in 1920. Actors' Equity reports its files show nothing about her after 1923.

I do at least have adequate knowledge of Josie Sadler's Victor, Columbia, and Edison recordings, and shall now proceed with this biographical sketch, while apologizing for its limitations. Further information concerning the plump lady with the broad "Dutch" accent will be welcomed.

II. Josie Sadler's Stage Career

Not long ago I obtained a publicity hand-out concerning Josie Sadler, which was prepared by "the Leslie Newspaper and Magazine Syndicate, supplying newspapers and magazines with dramatic and motion picture news, interviews, and biographies, and photographs."

The typewritten document is not dated, but internal evidence appears

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1645 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

PLAYER PIANOS AND BAND ORGANS

Books and Catalogs and Technical Data Reprints

Story of the violano virtuoso (31 p.)	3.00
North Tonawanda Band organ-catalog (28 p.)	3.00
Duo-Art grand tubing chart, 1925 model	1.00
Wette Liconsee tubing chart	2.00
Care & tuning, Wurlitzer band organs	2.00
Ampico Grand Tubing Print	2.00
Artisan Band Organ Instruction Sheet	1.00
Violano-Virtuoso Tubing Chart	1.00

Player Piano Treasury - History of the Player Piano in America, 530 illus.	10.00
Rebuilding the Player Piano. Watch This Ad for Publication Date. All items sold with a money-back guarantee of satisfaction by . . .

THE VESTAL PRESS
3533 Stratford Drive
Vestal 2, New York

tfc

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15 1/4" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

u

From top to bottom, left to right:

Scenes from "Josie's Declaration of Independence," one of a series of Vitagraph films in which Josie Sadler was featured. This picture was made in 1914.

Josie Sadler was famous for her comic songs in German dialect. She was a bright star of musical comedy and vaudeville for many years.

This photo of Josie Sadler is reproduced from the Victor record supplement for March, 1909.

Emma Carus, the once famous "Female Baritone," appeared with Josie Sadler in several stage productions. In 1904 Miss Carus made two Columbia discs, which nowadays are almost impossible to find.

to place it around 1917-18. Although little of the information it contains is sufficiently explicit, it gives a list of all the productions in which Miss Sadler had appeared up to the time it was prepared, and also tells the names of the other members of the casts.

In utilizing this information, I shall mention all recording artists who were in companies with Miss Sadler, as well as other men and women whose names today are still remembered. Many names no longer of interest, however, I shall omit.

From this "poop sheet" it appears that Josie Sadler was born in New York to a French mother and a German father. She was educated in New York and Germany, which no doubt helped her acquire her mastery of the vaudeville German dialect.

Josie—I continue to rely on the publicity material for subsequent statements—first was seen on the stage at the age of 9, taking part in Tony Pastor's "Nursery Rhymes" production. Tony Pastor was the great vaudeville impresario of the 1880's and '90's. Unfortunately, we are not told in what year "Nursery Rhymes" was staged.

"Mr. Pastor noticed little Josie at her play and took a fancy to her, shortly thereafter asking her mother to let Josie take part in his 'Nursery Rhymes,' to which she consented.

"After four or five months with Mr. Pastor, Josie continued her education until the age of 15, when she joined the original 'Erminie' chorus, under Rudolph Aronson's management, later appearing in his 'La Marquise' and 'Madelon.'

"John Russell was traveling manager of these companies, and Miss Sadler's work in the chorus was so good that he gave her a small part in Donnelly and Girard's 'Natural Gas,' in which also appeared Mark Sullivan, Willie Collier, May and Flo Irwin, May Kelso, and others."

Here a bit of speculation may be indulged in. Jacobowski's operetta, "Erminie," was produced for the first time on November 9, 1885, in London. Its initial production in this country was a year or so later—say, late in 1886 or early in 1887.

If Josie Sadler was in the chorus of the original company at the age of 15, she must have been born about 1871, which would make her 91 years of age were she alive today. This figure probably is not far wrong, for she was old enough to have a grown son in 1920.

Surely the Mark Sullivan who appeared in "Natural Gas" was not the late political expert! But May Kelso must have been the contralto who made records listed in the Edison two-minute cylinder catalog from 1899 to 1901. Some were duets with the late John Bieling.

After "Natural Gas," Miss Sadler was given a part in "The City Directory," another play written by John Russell. This was followed by a short run of still another Russell production, "Easy Street."

"Russell then put on 'Miss McGinty,' and in this Miss Sadler appeared for a short season with Fay Templeton, Fred Lennox, and Sidney Drew. Her next engagement was with Henry Dixey in revivals of 'The Mascot' and 'Patience.' She then appeared with him in 'Mr. Dobbs of Chicago,' which was short-lived."

We are now coming to the time (unfortunately no years are mentioned in this "release") when Miss Sadler began to be recognized as a distinctive comedienne:

"Miss Sadler then created the original Dutch girl of the American stage in 'Prince Pro Tem,' under the management of R. M. Fields at the Boston Museum.

"This play was by R. A. Barnett, author of '1492,' and in the part of 'Wild Rosie of Yucatan,' Miss Sadler sang the song, 'Oh, If I Could Only get a Decent Sleep,' which she wrote herself, making a wonderful hit. . . In this production Miss Sadler starred with Fred Lennox."

Josie soon afterward married Lennox. There is nothing available to show how long the marriage lasted, or whether it ended with divorce or his death. She traveled with him as he starred in "Princess Bonnie."

Next, she accepted an engagement under William Harris' management in "Good Mr. Best." In this she played "Gretchen Slowe"—a part she grew to love. Julius Witmark, Annie Yeamans and Sam Marion were other members of the cast.

So was R. A. Roberts. Could the latter have been Robert A. ("Ragtime Bob") Roberts, whose disc and cylinder records were so popular for a decade beginning in 1902?

Miss Sadler played the part of "Little Jemima," a cockney role, in E. E. Rice's "Monte Carlo" at the Herald Square Theater, New York. Marie Cahill and Marguerita Sylva were also in the cast.

"She (Josie Sadler) then went with 'Brown's In Town,' at the Bijou Theater. . . In this play Miss Sadler took the part of 'Freda Von Hollenbeck.' Her next engagement was in 'Catherine,' at Weber & Fields' Theater.

"This play was a burlesque, and Fay Templeton had the part of 'Catherine,' Miss Sadler taking the part of the sister—a part which she loved and made a great hit in.

"The cast in this production was practically the same as that in 'Helter Skelter' and 'Hurly Burly,' in which Miss Sadler next appeared, the members being Joe Weber, Lew Fields, David Warfield, . . . Peter F. Dailey, John T. Kelly, Fay Templeton, and Frankie Bailey."

"Broadway to Tokio," at the New York Theater, came next. Music of this play was by Reginald De Koven and A. Baldwin Sloane. Otis Harlan, May Kelso, and Fay Templeton were among those in the cast.

Miss Sadler then moved to "The Supper Club" on the New York Roof Garden. Besides herself, the cast included Donald Brian, Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Ada Lewis and George Fuller Golden.

Miss Sadler remained at the New York Theater for "The Hall of Fame," staged by Ned Wayburn. Among the performers were Charles H. Prince (this is not likely to have been Charles A. Prince, the musical director for Columbia records!), Marie Dressler, Mabelle Gilman, and Ada Lewis.

Another member was Emma Carus, "The Female Baritone," who is said to have been the first vaudeville artist to sing "Alexander's Ragtime Band" in 1911.

As long ago as 1904, Miss Carus had made two 10-inch Columbia records which seem to be among the scarcest of discs. One was 1763, "In Zanzibar," which she had sung in "The Medal and the Maid." She was assisted by a group of girls who had joined voices with her in the stage production. The other was 1765, "Navajo," the first big hit written by Harry Williams and Egbert Van Alstyne.

These two records were issued in April, 1904. Probably Miss Carus also made one which was to have been numbered 1764, but apparently no record with that number went on sale.

In view of the difficulty of recording women's voices in those days, "In Zanzibar," with its chorus of "harmonizing" females, probably didn't come out very well. It had been discontinued when the January, 1906, Columbia catalog was issued.

I have never seen an Emma Carus record. Nor do I recall ever hearing of anybody having one. Yet there must still be a few copies in hiding somewhere.

Miss Sadler then joined "The Silver Slipper" company, still at the Broadway Theater. She played the part of "Jimmer," a cockney, and was also the Duchess of Devonshire. She was featured in this with Sam Bernard and Edna Wallace Hopper.

Now we come to "Peggy from Paris," which Mr. Stark mentioned in telling of his talk with Georgia Caine. This comedy was written by George Ade and was a Henry W. Savage production:

"In this Miss Sadler appeared in one of her greatest parts, that of 'Sophie Blotz,' in which she sang the song, 'Henny,' which she wrote herself and later sang for the Victor Phonograph Company (Sic!)"

According to the press release, Georgia Caine was not a member of the original cast, but joined it later. Fred Lennox, to whom Miss Sadler presumably was still married, was another member. The dark-haired, winsome Josie was with "Peggy from Paris" for two years and four months.

If she made a Victor record of "Henny" it was not issued. However, in her first Victor record, "What's the Use of Working?" one verse and refrain is devoted to a character named Henny, who is supposed to be her brother, with a fine eye for anatomical art.

After a short season with "The Woggle-Bug," under Shubert management, in Chicago, the comedienne joined "Comin' Thro' the Rye." In this she had the principal part.

Her next engagement was with "The Galloper," written by Richard Harding Davis. Among her fellow artists were Edgar L. Davenport and Raymond Hitchcock. This play later was turned into a musical comedy, starring Hitchcock, with the name changed to "The Yankee Tourist."

Miss Sadler next appeared in "The Girl From Paris" at the Manhattan Beach Casino. Another performer was Trixie Friganza. This was followed by a dramatization of Upton Sinclair's novel, "The Jungle." "This play," we are told, "proved to be too morbid in character, and was not a success."

Josie then went into vaudeville, but ended her engagement to join William Harris and Frank McKee's production of Oscar Straus' operetta, "A Waltz Dream," at the Broadway Theater. "In this she had the part of 'Fifi,' the bass drum player, and enjoyed herself thoroughly." Charles A. Bigelow was the leading man. Among his pleasant duties was that of kissing "Fifi" — otherwise Josie Sadler.

Her next appearance was in "A Mimic World." Among her associates was Roy Atwell, who died only last year, well into his 80's, and Vernon Castle. She then rejoined "A Waltz Dream" for a season on the road.

III. Josie Sadler's First Records

By my calculations, we have now arrived at approximately the period when Josie Sadler's first records were made, so I'll temporarily interrupt the somewhat monotonous recapitulation of her stage appearances. She and Charles Bigelow were featured performers in the 1908 production of "A Waltz Dream," and that is the year when her records began to come out.

Apparently, Columbia was the first company to engage Josie Sadler for recorded comedy work. Indications are that she first appeared on single-faced discs, which were taken into the double-faced compilation when the company began to make double-discs in the fall of 1908.

I have Columbia supplements up to August, 1908, but they mention no Sadler records. Yet the first double-faced catalog for 1909 has a handful.

Too, I have single-faced record 3901, on which she sings "Come and Hear the Orchestra." The label says it was arranged by the Columbia band and orchestra director, Charles A. Prince. This record must have been made a month or two before the double-faced type was introduced.

I can trace only four Columbia records by Josie Sadler. I have three, and they are dully recorded, with little in them to cause a surge of Sadler popularity among the record buyers of 1908-09.

"Come and Hear the Orchestra" was coupled on A582 with "I've Lost My Heart But I Don't Care," sung by James F. Harrison (Frederick Wheeler), baritone. The Sadler side is an imitation of "Under the Anheuser Bush." The orchestra imitates various instruments while Josie invites her boy friend to join her in drinking "lots of good beer."

On A581, Josie sings a lively Dutch dialect number, "I'd Like to Make a Smash Mit You." It has an incongruous pairing, Frank C. Stanley and Henry Burr harmonizing a doleful ballad, "I'm Starving for One Sight of You."

The Sadler song on A604, "One Good Turn Deserves Another," is dull, with no tune to speak of. The recording is bad and the result strikes me as unattractive. But the other side is a "honey" — Bob Roberts singing a lively dialect ditty, "I Ain't Had No Lovin' in a Long Time," with a freshness and vivacity peculiarly his own.

I do not have A596, "A Little German Trouble," which was issued in December, 1908, combined with Elise Stevenson and Frank C. Stanley singing "It's Up to You to Do the Rest," from "Madame Sherry." The title suggests it is the same thing as the Victor "Hilda Loses Her Job."

This was a short-lived record, cut out by the time the 1911 Columbia catalog appeared. All the others were discontinued after 1912. And those four are all the Columbia records by Josie Sadler that I can trace.

IV. Josie's Victor Records

When we leave the Columbia records and consider Josie Sadler's Victors, we come to better things. The recording shows considerable improvement, and the voice emerges as a clear and sweet soprano of limited range.

Miss Sadler's first Victor record was announced in March, 1909. It was accompanied by a full-length photograph, showing her to have a width comparable to that of Clarice Vance, but she did not equal Clarice's 6-foot height. The record, 5669, was "What's the Use of Working?" and the supplement said:

"This popular comedienne is repeating the success she made last year in her impersonation of Fifi, the bass drummer, in 'A Waltz Dream,' and her droll dialect and amusing songs are features of the production."

"We have induced Miss Sadler to sing for the Victor one of her best numbers—an 'awful foolish song,' as she expresses it, about the disinclination of 'father' to perform any manual labor. It is a quaint performance, and Miss Sadler's naive comments between verses are most amusing."

The record really is entertaining. "Father's" reluctance to work, of course, had already been described, to better advantage, in "Everybody Works But Father." Miss Sadler's song attributes "the old man's" aversion for honest toil to his inability to get a job in a brewery where he could drink all the contents.

The second stanza is funnier. It describes the slumberless existence of her brother, Henny, who has married a tattooed woman in the sideshow and stays awake all night looking at the pictures. Asked why he doesn't seek his rest, he replies "Vot's der use of sleeping?" and pronounces the tattooings to be "as good as any bargain matinee."

After singing the second refrain, Josie says, "Did you ever hear such a foolish song as this? Vait a minute! I got a funnier verse!" She then sings one which ends, "Laugh and the world laughs with you; snore and you sleep alone!" The Victor archives indicate this record was sung in December, 1908.

Apparently Miss Sadler's next Victor engagement was in April, 1909, when she sang two numbers, 5702, "He Falls for the Ladies Every Time" (a song that is peculiarly identified with her), and 5719, "Come and Hear the Orchestra," which she had already done for Columbia. "He Falls for the Ladies" was issued in July, with this comment:

"Miss Sadler, whose quaint song about the uselessness of things in general has been much enjoyed by those who have heard it, now gives us another number in that same fearful, and wonderful dialect which no one could ever imitate successfully. The song, which tells of a fond wife who is so worried about her susceptible husband that she consults a doctor on the subject, is a most amusing one."

"Come and Hear the Orchestra" appeared a month later.

In June, 1909, the comedienne revisited the Victor studios and made three or four more records. One, a laughable ditty called "Heinie Waltzed Round On His Hickory Limb," appeared in October, on single-faced disc 5729.

Although Victor had angrily begun following Columbia's example of issuing double-faced records before the first Josie Sadler contributions appeared, it apparently thought her fame as a musical comedy and vaudeville star justified restricting her offerings to the single-sided 60-cent discs. The supplement said:

"Josie Sadler's quaint records are gaining in popularity each month, her dialect being pronounced the most amusing of its kind."

"Here is another funny record, giving a graphic description of Heinie's skill in waltzing with his wooden leg. You not only can hear Miss Sadler describe this, but you can hear Heinie himself thumping the floor with his off leg and shutting with his good one!"

December, 1909, brought what was probably Josie Sadler's biggest selling Victor record, "Hilda Loses Her Job." It appeared as single-faced 5749, but in November, 1910, was combined on 16783 with "Tipperary," sung by Billy Murray.

As a double-faced record, "Hilda" stayed in the Victor catalog longer than any other by Josie Sadler, not being discontinued until 1923, but it is fairly likely that the Murray side (which was not "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary") did most to make it a consistent seller. At the beginning of the record, a man—presumably Len Spencer—takes the part of a policeman.

Catalog Editor Sam Rous wrote:

"The opening scene is a three-corner argument between a policeman, Hilda, and her late mistress. However, the field is soon cleared of all the combatants except Hilda, who remains in possession and tells us all about it in a very funny monolog, in the course of which the servant problem is thoroughly discussed."

"Her speaking voice finally gives out and she sings the rest. This is one of Miss Sadler's most amusing specialties, and that is saying quite a lot."

When I played "Hilda" after not having heard it for years I found it contained several good laughs. Hilda explained that her mistress fired her because she had caught her (Hilda) walking in the park with her (the mistress') husband, "and she said she wouldn't have a girl that kept such bad company." Hilda also explained she left her previous job because she couldn't stand her mistress' cooking. It is a clever monolog.

In February, 1910, Josie was represented by the catchy song she had sung for Columbia more than a year before. "I'd Like to Make a Smash Mit You." It was on single-faced record 5762. We read:

"Miss Sadler is becoming a favorite with Victor owners, as her songs are very funny without containing any objectionable features whatever. This one is especially amusing, with its interpolated remarks in that celebrated Sadler dialect."

Despite the statement about her becoming a favorite with Victor buyers, the company issued only one more Josie Sadler record. And it was the first to be offered in the beginning as a double-faced disc. In June, 1910, on record 16486, she sang "Beerland," a praise of malt beverages. Ada Jones and the American Quartet held down the other side with "Nora Malone."

In November, 1910, "He Falls for the Ladies Every Time" was coupled with "Somebody Lied," by Eddie Morton, on 16784. And that was the last appearance of Josie Sadler in a Victor list.

By the time the May, 1914, record catalog was printed only the double-faced offerings of "Hilda" and "He Falls for the Ladies" remained. My guess is that most Sadler records had no better than fair sales—partly because there was too much sameness in the type of comedy and partly because many listeners found the German dialect hard to understand. (Continued next month)

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

MUSIC BOXES for sale: Swiss, size  $8\frac{1}{2} \times 10\frac{1}{2} \times 19$ ", plays 10 tunes, has bells and butterflies, nice tone, dark red cabinet, nice condition, \$150. Swiss, size  $10\frac{1}{2} \times 13\frac{1}{2} \times 24\frac{1}{2}$ ", is the organ type, plays nice, but bellows leaks air, several inlays in this nice cabinet, 6 tunes, \$250. Swiss, size  $13\frac{1}{2} \times 16\frac{1}{2} \times 30\frac{1}{2}$ ", organ and mandolina singing bird, several inlays, but needs refinishing, plays nice, \$250. Olympia 15 $\frac{3}{4}$ " disc music box and record cabinet, completely hand carved oak, 10 records, very fine condition and tone, \$250. Olympia 15 $\frac{3}{4}$ " disc music box, 5 records, nice carved oak cabinet, plays fair, \$110. Stella 17 $\frac{1}{4}$ " disc music box, nice carved oak cabinet, record drawer, 8 records, plays fair to good, \$150. Criterion music box No. 5, 15 $\frac{3}{4}$ " disc, 10 records, beautiful mahogany cabinet, wonderful tone, \$195. Another beautiful Criterion, No. 4, \$195. Imperial Symphonion, 10 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ " discs, very beautiful tone and fine mahogany cabinet, \$225. Regina 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ ", 10 records, nice, \$225. Regina 21", 10 records, outstanding in quality of tone, fine red toned walnut, \$450. Swiss music box, organ doesn't work, beautiful inlays in cabinet but needs some work and refinishing, 10x  $10\frac{1}{2} \times 28$ ", plays nice, \$135. Send M.O. Include \$5 per, for crating. Send express, collect for charges. — Floyd Everhart, 3300 Germantown St., Dayton 18, Ohio. my18461

SWISS MUSIC BOXES, new list of rare collector's items; list of books on music boxes, also article on the repinning of Swiss music box cylinders. — Bor-nand's, 139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. je3694

FOR SALE: Rare oak music box, with drawer for cylinders, on matching table. Swiss exhibit at Chicago World's Fair, 1893. All original mechanism in perfect condition. $1,250. Contact — Mrs. Willard Larson, 10415 Strong Ave., Whittier, Calif. my1882

ANTIQUE Euphonia music box. Oak case, 18x11x16". Separate oak stand, 17x17x26". 14 15" zinc playing discs. $700 complete. Photos on request.—P. B. Graef, 7740 Cecilia Ave., Downey, Calif. my1462

CHICAGO ANTIQUES EXPOSITION

April 28 - May 2

in the Exhibition Hall of the CONRAD HILTON

Sponsored by
HOBBIES Magazine
Charles Marston,
Show Manager

Page 59

Missing

of this technique in table service can be viewed in the Rockwell collection.

With the rise in popularity during the post World War I period for fine colored glass items, a large portion of the Steuben output was devoted to items in this category, i.e., a complete service would consist of plates, berry bowls, wine glasses, water goblets, and a series of bowls and candlesticks.

The Rockwell collection is unique in that there is complete representation of every color made by Frederick Carder. All are very pleasingly displayed and intermixed with other Steuben wares. The display cabinets are the very ones formerly used in the Corning Steuben showroom.

The rarest colors are the Gold Purple and Gold Ruby. Gold Ruby is a very intense shade of red, acquiring its color from a gold solution. Gold Purple was made from a base of Gold Ruby, with the addition of cobalt, to achieve the proper shade.

It is in the medium of color that Steuben colored crystal achieves its prominence. All are rich, vivid, and yet retain a delicate softness unmatched by any other ware.

It would be almost impossible to give a run down on color description of the various Steuben items made. From a list supplied by Mr. Carder there are 58 colors itemized, and he is certain there were more.

It is interesting to note from the display of colored crystal Steuben items that some are cut, some engraved, some etched, some sculptured, and others enameled.

Frederick Carder was not only a perfectionist, but he had a most keen insight into buying habits of the public. Quality merchandise, attractively varied, produced a continual favorable reaction on the part of consumers.

As one talks with Mr. Rockwell the idea forms that Carder was Steuben. He designed, created, administered, merchandised, developed, experimented, and most importantly, excelled, at each and every phase.

Considering the prolific productivity of this plant, as exemplified by the Rockwell collection, Mr. Carder supplied an important clue. As a particular color was developed, a shape was designed to best show this color to full beauty. This procedure took usually a year. In some instances about two years.

As the color and form finalized into an acceptable mode, production then began. With few exceptions, no one Steuben colored crystal product was ever on the market for more than two years.

Blues and greens, the perennial favorites, were modified several times, accounting for more that are apparently available. However, as was pointed out, they are a bit lighter or darker; and the shapes were varied with each year.

Actually, Mr. Carder was inspired to do this as a result of demand from certain well-to-do ladies. Each wanted a particular set, in a definite color, appropriately trimmed and would special order this on the condition that no other set like it be made again.

Mr. Carder did many such special orders. He laughingly admits that it took all his wits to do so.

In view of this, it is quite difficult to make any blanket statement as to the rarity of any specific Steuben item. In fact, here, as in no other glass, it can be safely said that each item is a rarity unto itself.

Bob Rockwell unhesitatingly admits that he is spurred on to collect more Steuben by the delight Mr. Carder displays when he brings a new find for him to see.

"Actually," states Bob, "I look upon the collection as a tribute to Mr. Carder, a fine man, great glassworker, friend, and civic leader. I think it only fitting that the display is here in Corning, home of Steuben. The fact that Mr. Carder enjoys it makes the whole idea really doubly enjoyable."

In speaking with Mr. Carder about the prominence his glass is achieving among collectors today, he states that from the standpoint of personal satisfaction, these current years are the best of his entire career.

The Rockwell collection of Steuben, hallmark of Frederick Carder's creative genius, has added greatly to this feeling of Mr. Carder. But more importantly, it is a tribute to him, and will offer enjoyment for all time to come, for any, from all walks of life, who care to see it and remember that it was part of our heritage and growth.

Thus, two men from diverse beginnings, through the intricate and mysterious paths of chance, each in his own way, has made history live, not for the moment, but for all time.

CLARICE VANCE

(Continued from page 32)

questions are not likely to be answered now.

Naturally, since the hospital authorities had so little information, the death certificate gives little additional help. Her first name is misspelled as Clarise and the time of her death is given as 6:10 p.m., August 24, 1961. Her birth date is written as March 14, 1875, but Sam Stark has established that she was really born in 1871, which means she was 90 years of age when death mercifully ended her sufferings.

Her occupation is given as "actress," followed by "dialect shouter"—a term I would rather not have seen on a death certificate, since it is both unflattering and inaccurate. She had lived in San Francisco before entering the hospital, but how long I don't know. Burial took place August 30 in the St. Helena Public Cemetery.

The cause of death is given as cancer of the left breast, and she was also suffering from "psychosis with cerebral arteriosclerosis."

The death notice in the Napa Register for Wednesday, August 30, 1961, also misspells the singer's name as "Clarise," and calls her a jazz singer, which of course she wasn't. It does, however, say that she did film work:

"Private funeral services were held today at Claffey and Rota Funeral Home for Clarice Vance, well-known Southern jazz singer of bygone days. Miss Vance, who died in a local hospital last Thursday, was active both on the stage and in movies from 1904 until her retirement in 1950 . . . She remained active until her health failed and spent the last few years of her life in the hospital.

"Miss Vance was a member of the San Francisco Theatrical Society, the Actors National Equity Association and the Actors Fund of America. . ."

If it is true that the comedienne continued active until 1950, why has it been almost impossible to obtain information about her last years? She of course, was a stage favorite for years before 1904. And Sam Stark says none of the old actors living in San Francisco have any recollection of Miss Vance's having lived there.

I wish I knew that an occasional ray of sunshine entered into the darkened mind of the once gay and sparkling actress, during those 10 dreadful years when she was tortured by agonies physical and mental. I wish she could have known, in some lucid moments, that she was not entirely forgotten; that thousands of collectors treasure the records she made more than 50 years ago.

Most of all, I wish she could have known that a man in Virginia had been trying for many years to learn enough about her to write an article paying a perhaps inadequate, but wholly admiring tribute to her achievements in the days when she was "Clarice Vance, the Southern Songbird." I think such knowledge would have given her some moments of happiness.

(The End)

THE BARCO ROUND SANDER II (Patented)

SANDS CHAIR RUNGS EASILY

Drill attachment sands round objects previously sanded only by hand — chair rungs, dowels, wheel spokes, railings, formed tubular objects impossible to place in lathe. Hook on solid nylon body allows belt to open and close around surface to be sanded. Oilite bronze bearings— $\frac{1}{4}$ " straight line cam action. Uses 1" sandpaper strips — up to 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ " dia. capacity. \$3.95 ppd.

P. L. BAHR CO.

Box 246, Vienna 1, Ohio

d63c

LET US KNOW IF YOU'RE MOVING

- So that there will be no interruption in your subscription, please give us 5 weeks advance notice.
- Please state OLD and NEW address, and date you will be at new address.
- Send your notice to:

Circulation Department
HOBBIES Magazine

1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 5, Ill.

FAVORITE Recording ARTISTS

Six Comediennes

JOSIE SADLER

(Continued from the May Issue)

Third of the Six

By JIM WALSH

V. Josie's Edison Cylinders

Most of Josie Sadler's Victor records had been made before she began singing for Edison's two-minute Standard cylinders and the four-minute Amberols. Her first, Edison Standard, 10179, "He Falls for the Ladies Every Time," was announced in August, 1909.

The New Phonogram said:

"This selection serves to introduce another well-known vaudeville artist to the phonograph public. Miss Sadler sings in German dialect. For her first record, Miss Sadler has chosen the above selection sung by her in the musical comedy, 'The Music World.'"

Another stock Sadler number was offered that same month in the Amberol list. On 184 she sang "Come and Hear the Orchestra."

"A comic waltz song in Dutch dialect, in which Miss Sadler gives on our record a clever reproduction of one of the acts in which she appears on the stage. Various instruments in the orchestra are featured during the song."

In September, 1909, "Lena From Germany," on two-minute cylinder 10198, got only a brief mention:

"Another vaudeville specialty by this clever singer in German dialect. Miss Sadler has 'caught on' and bids fair to be one of our most popular artists."

The Edison records by Miss Sadler were issued in such rapid succession one suspects they were made at one engagement. In October, on 10229, she dusted off "One Good Turn Deserves another."

"A comic waltz song in German dialect. The title is the exclamation of Wilhelmina as she dances with Heinie Schmidt."

The next two-minute Sadler cylinder came forth in December. It was 10267, "BL-ND and P-G," and seems not to have been in dialect:

"A clever and popular 'hit' of the 'kid' style, in which Mamie Warner explains to Buddie Horner the original and unique spelling she gave to the words, 'blind pig,' at the spelling bee in school."

"Buddie, being in love with Mamie, agrees that her spelling is correct, for 'blind pig' has no eyes. The air is pretty and Miss Sadler's rendition clever, her enunciation being remarkably clear and distinct."

There was a considerable interval before Edison offered another Josie Sadler record, but in June, 1910, her second four-minute Amberol, 438, "The German Fifth," was in evidence:

"A vaudeville specialty by another artist whose reappearance in our lists will be greeted as that of a long lost friend. In this record Miss Sadler manages to combine an amazing amount of entertainment which well sustains her high standing as a German dialect artist."

"A comic march song, some wooden shoe dancing, a funny dialog with an unfriendly orchestra, and, lastly, an imitation of Heinie, the captain of the 'German 5th,' giving his commands, are included in the record."

Josie's last Edison cylinder, the two-minute 10420, "How Can You Love Such a Man?" was announced in September, 1910:

"In her inimitable dialect the popular German comedienne registers an awful complaint about the laggardly love-making of her best fellow. Asked whether she preferred a book or a kiss for Christmas she told him she couldn't read. Next day he sent a teacher around to the house!"

"She cites several more instances equally as deplorable. 'How can you luff such a man as has got solid ifory on top?' is her pathetic query. Next to her superior character work the distinguishing feature of Miss Sadler's records is her delightfully distinct enunciation."

I wonder if Irving Berlin remembers writing the words of that long-forgotten German dialect comic song to the music of Ted Snyder.

I have now exhausted the list of her Columbia, Victor, and Edison offerings and may return to the interrupted account of her theatrical career. All the Edisons were discontinued when the Blue Amberol cylinder was introduced in the fall of 1912.

VI. More Theatrical Engagements—Starring in Movies

After completing her road tour in "A Waltz Dream," Miss Sadler had a pleasant engagement with Lew Fields in "The Jolly Bachelors" at the Broadway Theater. Also in the cast were Emma Carus, Stella Mayhew, Billy Taylor, John T. Kelly, and Joe Welch.

She then joined "The Bachelor Girls" at the Globe Theater. Mae Murray, later to be a movie star, was one of her associates. Afterwards, she appeared in "Over the River," with Eddie Foy and Lillian Lorraine.

Next followed an engagement in the Ziegfeld "Follies of 1912." Star performers included Leon Errol, Harry Watson, Jr., Bert Williams, and Ray Samuels.

On leaving the Follies, Josie switched to another type of entertainment. She signed a contract with the Vitagraph Company, then the foremost producer of motion pictures, and for nearly two years was featured in one- and two-reel comedies. I presume the films were made at Vitagraph's Fort Lee, N. J., studios.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Since Josie's voice could not be heard she would not be called on to sing, so I imagine the pictures were slapstick comedy of the type of "Tillie's Punctured Romance," in which Marie Dressler starred. I have a publicity booklet, "Vitagraph Life Portrayals," in which two Josie Sadler films are described, with illustrations.

A one-reel picture, "Josie's Declaration of Independence," must have been meant to catch the 1914 Fourth of July trade. Miss Sadler and Billy Quirk were the featured players. Josie took the role of a maid who had many "run-ins" with the Marshe family for whom she worked, but always won out.

Much the same idea is being used today in the "Hazel" television series starring Shirley Booth. There was also a "special feature in two parts," "Josie's Coney Island Nightmare."

The publicity release from which I have been quoting went into considerable detail about Josie's film exploits:

"She was featured in 'Omens and Oracles,' the Josie series; 'The Slavey's Sacrifice,' with Norma Talmadge; 'Setting the Styles,' with John Bunny; 'Doctor Polly,' with Lillian Walker; 'When Women Go On the Warpath,' with Clara Kimball Young, Rose Tapley, and Sidney Drew.

"Also in 'The Regiment of Two,' with Harry Morey, Sidney Drew, Edith Storey and Rose Tapley; 'The Rival Undertakers,' 'The Midget's Revenge,' with Norma Talmadge; 'Matrimonial Maneuvers,' with Maurice Costello; 'Father and Son,' with Courtney Foote. She was further featured in 'The Coming of Gretchen,' with James Lackaye; 'The Song Bird of the North,' with Anita Stewart; 'The Forgotten Latchkey,' with Harry Morey and Anita Stewart; 'Betty in the Lion's Den,' with Clara Kimball Young and Darwin Karr; 'The Honorable Algernon,' with Hughie Mack and Norma Talmadge.

"And in 'Flaming Hearts,' 'Wanted a House,' with Billy Shea; 'John Tobin's Sweetheart,' 'When Glasses Are Not Glasses,' 'Our Fairy Play,' 'Made in Sweden,' 'The Feudists,' 'Bunny Backslides,' and many others.

"She then went with the World Film Company for one feature, 'What Happened to Jones.'

"She then took a well-earned rest. Her next appearance was at the Cort Theater in 'The Blue Envelope.' She is now appearing in vaudeville with her own sketch, 'Moving Pictures,' which is making a great hit."

The final paragraph tells us:

"Her recreation is cooking, and her fellow artists can testify to its quality and the many new dishes she has invented. She has a wonderful collection of autographed photographs, given to her by her professional brethren and sisters, which she holds very dear."

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought Sold Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1628 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Washington 7, D. C.

Hudson 3-4553

REBUILDING THE PLAYER PIANO

By LARRY GIVENS

★ Now you can get that old piano in good shape, and really enjoy it again!

★ Rebuilding the reed organ also included in this fine 170 page, hard-bound book. 43 illustrations. Only $6.95.

The first book of its type ever offered.

Sold with a money-back guarantee by

THE VESTAL PRESS, 3533 Stratford, Vestal 2, N. Y.

tfc

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING - cylinders replanned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired.
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Palham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825

tfc

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15 1/2" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

tfc

VII. Josie as a Business Woman

We now come to the latest bit of information I have concerning Josie Sadler—though not to the end of her life, if she is really dead. It is a feature story by Helen Rhodes which appeared in the New York Daily Mail for July 9, 1920, under the heading: "Josie Sadler, Favorite Comedienne of Her Day, Forsook Stage for Business and Loves New Job."

Sub-heads are: "Actress of 'Peggy From Paris' Now Keeps Books and Operates Own Plant," and "Theater Taught Me to Know Human Nature, Invaluable in Business," Declares Player." I shall quote the more important parts:

"What's become of Josie Sadler? Whenever theater goers get together and start reminiscing, Josie Sadler comes in for her share of the discussion. The favorite comedienne of her day, rich in talent and humor, idolized by her public—why did she forsake the stage?"

"Josie Sadler left the stage two years ago to go into business—a business as far removed from the life of an actress as could possibly be imagined. She conducts an electrical laboratory—her husband's which she took over at his death. And the name, Josephine S. Geddes, signed perhaps to your own bill for electrical repairs, is none other than that of the famous Josie Sadler.

"When she took over her husband's business, she knew not the first thing about it. Her mind was not scientifically trained and she loathed the mathematics and figures generally.

"She had never known any business in all her life but the theatrical; she had been on the stage since she made her first appearance at the age of 9 with Flo and May Irwin in Tony Pastor's 'Nursery Rhymes.'

"However, she came down to her husband's office in Front street, a neighborhood that reeks of coffee and hides, and established herself. Today she is a highly successful business woman, managing a large force of men and women, with her son, William Geddes, who, like his mother, gave up the stage to enter business as her assistant.

"I found her in her office early this morning, her business waist and skirt enveloped in a huge apron. Josie Sadler has not changed. She has the same ready smile, the same sympathetic humor that endeared her to New York in the old days. And to the stage she ascribes her success in business.

"The stage," says Josie Sadler, 'is the most wonderful institution in the world. It taught me to know people and to judge them quickly. It taught me resourcefulness, perseverance—in fact everything I know.

"By knowing thoroughly the character one portrays, one comes to know people thoroughly. This the stage did for me. The technical knowledge and skill at figures I learned myself, and now I keep a set of books.

"The people who had worked here with my husband were kind to me and helpful; they told me things I needed to know. And there were a few good friends of my husband's who helped me. For the rest, I worked it out myself by merely applying common sense and my sense of humor.

"And what helped me most, I believe, was that same sense of humor. I can always see the ludicrous side of things, no matter how bad they may be. The folks around here used to take this place as a most serious matter; then I came along and laughed at them, and I've got them all laughing now, too."

"She has, indeed. She manages her office, it seems to me, just as if it were a comedy, and she the stage manager. She is down at her office every day, sometimes as early as 8:30. When the business was new to her she got down earlier. Sometimes she works until 6 or 7.

"Far from finding the length of the business day wearing,' she says, 'I find it easier than theatrical hours. We work earlier in the day, but we don't work Saturdays, and Saturday is the big day in the theatrical business.'

"We don't have matinees on holidays here. And in this business I can have a settled home, which I love better than anything on earth. Do you know what I do all day Sundays? Cook!

"Sunday is my day in the kitchen. I rise early and get into a bungalow apron, put my hair up into a little knot and begin the day with a waffle breakfast and all the fixings. Then when that's over, I start to get dinner, another huge affair with a couple of desserts. Sunday afternoons I get out my machine, as I make all my own clothes."

Truly, an industrious lady was Josie Sadler! I wonder how long she continued to operate the electrical supply company and to spend her Sundays cooking and sewing.

As I conclude an admittedly incomplete biographical sketch, two thoughts occur to me: Josie Sadler may have had only one husband. It may be that Fred Lennox was a stage name and that her husband's real name was Geddes. Perhaps he quit the stage in order to go into business.

And Josie Sadler's appearance with May and Flo Irwin in Tony Pastor's "Nursery Rhymes" had to be somewhere between 1876, when the Irwin sisters joined the show, and 1883, when they left. Say, at a guess, Josie joined in 1881 at the age of 9. That would make her 90 years old today.

Whatever her age may be, in the very remote possibility that she is yet alive, she was a fine comedienne and apparently a lovable woman. I am glad that her voice still survives on records.

The End

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

tfx

RECORDS FOR SALE

CROSBY 78's, approx. 500. Includes test, picture labels. In albums. Private collection. Pkg. only. — M. Czap, $600 Wyoming, Detroit 4, Mich. Ph. WE 4-2603. jep

SIX COMEDIENNES MAY IRWIN

Fourth of the Six

By JIM WALSH

Fifty-six years ago Sumner W. Rose, a Biloxi Miss., dealer in Edison records, contributed a letter to the March 15, 1907, Talking Machine World. Mr. Rose was displeased because he couldn't understand the words of some of his cylinders. He singled out the reigning comedienne, Ada Jones, for special censure.

I hope my friend, Milford Fargo, the Ada Jones enthusiast, of Rochester, N.Y., will forgive my mentioning Mr. Rose's remarks.

The Mississippian allowed that Ada was good in such songs as "Keep a Little Cozy Corner in Your Heart for Me," but he couldn't see why she recorded dialect numbers. He said it was impossible to understand her when she sang such compositions as George M. Cohan's "Virginia Song," "If the Man in the Moon Were a Coon," and "Waiting at the Church."

One must wonder why a Mississippi man had any trouble with recorded Negro dialect. But Sumner Rose must have represented a small minority of record buyers. Ada Jones' Negro dialect songs were among her best sellers and probably more copies of "Waiting at the Church" were sold than of any other of her solo numbers.

Even so, it wasn't easy to turn out successful records in those days, as witness the following from the same issue:

"DIFFICULTIES IN MAKING RECORDS . . . Innumerable instances are known where singers who have been successful before the public are dire failures as record makers. The latest instance is that of May Irwin, whose Negro dialect songs have won her great popularity and a fortune.

"Recently she essayed reproducing one of her vocal hits on a record, but the results were so weak that rejection followed. Not more than 20 people make the rounds of the talking machine companies."

Later, I shall discuss May Irwin's recording failure. Now I take issue with the World's statement that only a score of persons regularly made records in 1907. True, recording was a specialized procedure and there were comparatively few men, and fewer women, who were experts, but the number of successful "popular" performers was far more than 20.

The Channell Studio for Photography at Orange, N. J., advertised in the March 15, 1907, T. M. W. that it could supply photos of these artists who sang or played for various companies, but mostly for Edison:

Ada Jones, Len Spencer, Arthur Collins, Byron G. Harlan, Harry Macdonough, Richard Jose, Frank C. Stanley, Billy Murray, Bob Roberts, Corinne Morgan, Mary Porter Mitchell, Marie Narelle, Daisy Boulais, Florence Hinkle, Marie Hoy, Edward M. Favor, Cal Stewart, Will F. Denny, Hans Kronold, Frank R. Seltzer, Fred W. Hager, John Hazel, Charles D'Almaine, Frank S. Mazziotta, Eugene A. Jaudas, John Kaiser, Billy

Golden, Edgar L. Davenport, Leo Zimmerman.

Also Frederick W. Ecke, Henry E. Nesbit, George Seymour Lenox, Irving Gillette, Albert Benzler, Fred Van Eps, Edward Meeker, Edward Barrow, Joe Belmont, John H. Bieling, S. H. Dudley, Eugene C. Rose, William Tuson, Andrew Keefe, James F. Harrison, Julian Rose, William F. Hooley, Steve Porter, Vess L. Ossman, William H. Thompson, "Tascott," Harry Anthony, the Edison Quartet, and the duet teams of Bieling and Macdonough, Collins and Harlan, Harlan and Stanley, Anthony and Harrison, and Jones and Spencer.

This list by no means included all the prominent "popular" recording artists of 1907. Since Channell's studios and the Edison recording facilities were in the same city the performers who had pictures taken there were mostly Edison artists. (Richard Jose was an exception.)

Those who didn't visit Orange were not likely to be photographed by Channell. Some years ago I called on Mr. Channell, who I believe has since died. He told me he had destroyed the negatives of those old photos, thinking them of no further value, only about a month before.

I learned one thing from that Channell ad — that Miss Hoy's first name was Marie. This lady, who made a few records as a duet partner of Harry Anthony, was referred to in the Edison catalogs only as "Miss Hoy," with her given name omitted.

Daisy Boulais was the mysterious soprano who assisted Harlan and Stanley in a few vaudeville sketches. Her photos seem to resemble those of Mrs. Frank C. Stanley, but Mrs. Stanley told me she had never heard of Miss Boulais. "Tascott" was a vaudeville comedian, who made just two records and never used his first name.

II. Mr. Edison's Birthday Party

Before undertaking the life story of May Irwin I shall evince an airy disregard of strict chronology by relating a few more interesting items I found in the Talking Machine World. Many record collectors are eager for miscellaneous information of this sort.

I learned that cylinder 9400, "The Lover and the Birds," a soprano solo by Florence Hinkle, was used at the Edison laboratory to test horns for "blasting." If no jarring sound came through while playing that record it was assumed nothing else would blast.

The Burke Talking Machine and Novelty Company of Brooklyn, successor to Burke and Rous, had made assignment to its creditors and was going out of business. The firm made an unbreakable cylinder, whose principles, perhaps, were incorporated into the Indestructible cylinder which appeared later that year. The firm had assets of $6,500 and liabilities of $4,200. The Rous who had been a partner was the brother of Sam Rous, better known on records as S. H. Dudley.

Blanche Ring was mentioned in a 1903 magazine article as a likely rival to May Irwin for the title of Queen of Comedy.

The Leeds and Catlin Company was making "Radium" cylinders, which Lionel Mapleson, the Metropolitan Opera librarian who used to hide back stage and record snatches of performances, declared to be the best records he had heard. Artists included J. W. Myers, Stanley, Harlan, Henry Burr, Collins, Jones, Spencer, Ossman, Steve Porter, Al Sweet and Edward F. Rubsam — hallowed names in the phonograph's popular pantheon.

Columbia planned to issue 500 "velvet-finish" records, with smoother surfaces than the ordinary kind, to sell for 75c instead of at the regular 60-cent price. These probably were the semi-flexible Marconi's.

On his 60th birthday, February 11, 1907, Thomas A. Edison had been honored with a dinner and entertainment at the Kroger auditorium in Newark. No operatic stars sang for Mr. Edison's pleasure. Instead, established Edison "talent" obliged — the Rambler Minstrels Quartet of Byron G. Harlan, Billy Murray, Arthur Collins and Steve Porter.

Eugene Jaudas, the orchestra conductor, was there, and so was song writer Henry Frantz — presumably as pianist. The quartet sang a parody on "Everybody Works But Father," which probably paid oblique tribute to Edison's long working hours. Collins and Harlan parodied "Arrah Wanna."

III. Mrs. Rover's Roving Rover

The most amusing item told of how Mrs. Grace E. Rover heard a high tenor voice coming out of a slot machine and recognized it as that of her estranged husband, Fred G. Rover. Fred had lived up to his last name by leaving the Rovers' once happy home. He had, in fact, become a charter member of the Rover Boys.

Meanwhile, he had made his only Edison cylinder. "Those Songs My Mother Used to Sing," and it was his tenor tribute to Mother's trilling which Mrs. Rover heard from the 1907 juke box. Immediately, the irate lady did some singing of her own and voiced her version of "The Alimony Blues."

Presumably with the help of the Edison recording staff, she succeeded in running down the rambling Rover, who had been a soloist at the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church in Brooklyn and a member of the Rialto Comedy Four. As a vaudevillian he made big money, $100 a week.

After Mrs. Rover had plaintively asked (in words foreshadowing a song that became popular half a dozen years later), "Have you seen my roving Rover?" the straying tenor was ordered to show cause why he should not be adjudged guilty of contempt of court.

IV. Early Career

May Irwin was a stage favorite long before the 20th century arrived — and Irwin was a stage name! The comedienne, of Scottish extraction, had the family name of Campbell.

Meanwhile, here is an interesting account of her before-1900 career and achievements, from "Famous Actresses," by Lewis C. Strang:

"May Irwin is a personality rather than an artist, an entertainer more than an actress. Her career has vacillated between the variety stage and the legitimate until at last she has become identified with that hybrid species of the theatrical amusement called farce-comedy.

"Miss Irwin is a famous fun maker; of jolly, rotund figure, and with a face that reflects the gaiety of nations, she is the personification of humor and careless mirth. . . Her good nature is infinite and her buoyancy of spirits irrepressible.

"Her good-fellowship is infectious, and she has a great facility for getting on intimate terms with her audience, making herself, for the time being, the personal friend of every man, woman, and child in the theater the instant that she appears on the stage; and hers is a whole-souled, generous friendship, even if on the verge of Bohemia.

"May Irwin was born (June 27, 1862) in Whitby, a little town in Ontario, Canada, about 20 miles from Toronto, and she lived there until she went on the stage. When she was only eight years old she was the soprano in the Episcopal church choir in her native village.

"Singing came naturally to me," she said. "My voice never had any cultivation. I harmonized as naturally as I talked, my voice was naturally placed, and I produced tones by the law breathing taught me, not by any other rule. All through my childhood I sang in all the cantatas and such folly that is a part of going to school."

"May and her sister Flora made their debut on the variety stage in Buffalo, N. Y., when they were little tots in short dresses. That was in December, 1875, and the salary they received was $30 a week. The first thing they sang was 'Sweet Genevieve.'

"Poor Flo was so nervous that after it was over she fainted away, and May had to sing the encore alone, which she did with all the assurance in the world.

"In fact, I do not believe May Irwin could faint if she tried.

"Engagements in variety theaters on a circuit that included Cleveland, St. Louis, and Cincinnati followed, and then the children did their first sketch, which was called 'On Board the Mary Jane.'

"Their third season found them at

A photo of May Irwin reproduced from the 1901 "Players' Blue Book."

Tony Pastor's in New York, and how that came about Miss Irwin tells as follows:

"We were appearing in Detroit. It was late in the season of 1876-77. We had been engaged for two weeks, and had been so successful that we stayed six. Tony Pastor's company was on tour, making, even in the cities, one night stands. On the day the company reached Detroit we had a matinee, and Pastor came to see us.

"He left town that night to go on to the next stand, and he wired back to us. 'Could you open in New York at my theater September 13th? Wire terms.'

"Could we? Weren't we just crazy to? Sister and I sat up all that night talking about it. We made our debut in New York, September 13, 1877—pretty good for two children. We stayed there seven years. We were engaged for $60 a week, and at the end of our connection there we were getting $80. It was a small salary compared with what is paid now, and I realized it was small then for what we did.

"Our first sketch was 'A Rural Stroll,' which we played for four years. I own that it was great training, for we had to keep our sketch right up to the times.

"In addition to my turn with Flo, I used to do the leads in the burlesque which always wound up the evening, and those burlesques were not written out. I used just to get instructions and go on and carry them out. It's great training, throws you on your own resources. Why, I played everything from babes in arms to decrepit old women."

"Then came the most remarkable event in Miss Irwin's theatrical experience, her jump from variety at Tony Pastor's to the classic atmosphere of Augustin Daly's temple of dramatic art. 'Oh, I was ambitious,' Miss Irwin declared, when asked how it happened, 'and in an ambitious person's career all advances seem like heavens.'

"Mrs. Gilbert and Miss Rehan used to come to Tony Pastor's very often, and finally we were playing in Chicago at one Theater while Daly's company was playing at Hooley's, and Richard Dorney came up to see me one day and asked me if I would like to join Daly's. The very next morning I met Mr. Daly by appointment and signed for three years.

"At the end of that time I re-engaged, but only stayed another year—four in all. It was very legitimate and delightful, but it was not profitable, and when an offer of three times my Daly salary came, just to do a single turn with the Boston Howard Athenaeum Star Specialty Company—well, I couldn't resist it.

"While with the Howard Athenaeum Company the Irwin Sisters, as May and Flo were billed, produced John J. McNally's first dramatic work, a sketch called 'Home Rule.' During the summer of 1888, Miss Irwin played on the Pacific Coast, acting Martha in Richard Golden's 'Jed Prouty' Company.

"Another year with the Howard Athenaeum Company followed, and then Miss Irwin became a member of Russell's 'The City Directory' Company, perhaps the finest farce company organization ever got together. In 1891 she (Continued on page 45)

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

SWISS MUSIC BOXES, new list of rare collector's items; list of books on music boxes, also article on the repinning of Swiss music box cylinders. — Bornand's, 139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. je3694

FOR SALE, 4 music boxes (large): Drum bell Paillard; double disc Symphonium with 48 discs; 3 cylinder Jacobs; 166-tooth Organo-Piccolo. All in excellent condition. — Mrs. A. W. Thurrow, R.R. 2, Box 115, Yorkville, Illinois. je1082

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books, $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. au3694

EDISON Cabinet Model C-19, SM-92912. Patent dates: Nov. 17, 1903; May 23, 1916. Plus 200 thick disc records. Best offer over $50. — Hensel, 354 Richmond Rd., Cleveland 24, Ohio. au3484

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victor and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. jly3846

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. s6468

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

PLAYER ENTHUSIAST'S DREAM: Electric upright player piano with Lowrey Organo attached. Automatic rewind and replay. Standard rolls. Fascinating tone combinations possible as player, or manually. Superb tone and condition. $350, or make offer! — Piano, Box 344, Pigeon Cove, Mass. au3426

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120061

Wanted: Welte, Deluxe, Duo-Art and Ampico rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 1619 California St., San Francisco, Calif. je3483

OLD player piano rolls for sale. Free list. Also send wants. — Paula Watson, 6653 Enright, St. Louis 30, Mo. au3023

MELODEONS FOR SALE

BEAUTIFUL rosewood melodeons. Also expert repair service. — C. Lamper, C-Sharp Hobby Shop, (New address 135 W. 10th, Holland, Mich.) Closed Sundays. je3483

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. je6046

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colorado. s12698

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

RECORDINGS NEEDED, will pay high price: "Clarinettski," Johnny Dodds; "Prohibition Has Done Me Wrong," Jimmy Rodgers; WPA-Glenn Miller. Please contact Alda Favia-Artsay, 50 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N. Y. tfx

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. au3882

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. je3084

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N.Y. je6806

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N. Y. jly3297

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought. The Record Album, 208 W. 80th St., New York 24, N.Y. f128862

MUSIC BOX RECORDINGS, the original authentic "Old Music Box Melodies" made from finest instruments: RCB-4 "Music Box Medley of Waltzes" and AB-5 "Golden Music Box Favorites," 26 selections on each of these fine 12" Hi-Fi records, $3.98 each postpaid. — Bornand's, 139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y. je3637

I SEE HUNDREDS of records every day. Let's hear your needs.—Ted's Second Hand Store, 1128 Ridge Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. (Stamp please). je3253

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to LP.—Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. d128801

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid.—American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. je120061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. o6407

Free Lists - 78's, cylinders, popular, operatic, instrumental. Reasonable prices, many rarities.—Soffer, 505 W. 122, New York 27, N. Y. jly3084

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP.—ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. au6407

FOR SALE: Hundreds of disc and cylinder records, many types of early phonographs, 25c for list. Also "Evolution of the Phonograph," by Walter Welch and Oliver Reed, a complete history of the phonograph, 576 pages, regular price $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. au3407

FOR SALE: Disc records, Caruso, McCormack, Tetrassini, Olitzka, Victor Light Opera Company, etc. Send 10c for list. Also Edison console combination radio and record player, walnut cabinet. — Monroe Sands, 303 E. Washington, Urbana, Ill. je3483

SEMI - MONTHLY mail auctions of classical vocal records. 10 years experience with regular listings. Tape and acetates of rare broadcast performances including unusual material of Callas, Corelli, Flagstad, Martinelli, Rysanek, Savaio, Bjorling, etc. — Georg Pluck, Waterloo Village, Grass Lake, Mich. je3046

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. jly3464

RARE record collectors: Send $1 (refundable first order) for lists of rare items, operatic or show biz. Send $1 for rare 1915 portrait of Al Jolson. Send $1 for rare record of Thomas Edison and Gen. Pershing speaking.—Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. au3426

RARE RECORDS at mail auction: The Arthur E. Knight collection will be sold in a series of special auctions. Send for list at once to avoid missing a single one. Contains countless superb items and some almost never encountered in public sales. A group of very high calibre. — Georg Pluck, Waterloo Village, Grass Lake, Mich. jly3088

MISCELLANEOUS

NOTICE: Will be on vacation the month of May. Open for business on June 1st. All orders and correspondence will be taken care of on my return. Thanking you. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. je3675

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL FULLY GUARANTEED 1000'S IN USE write to LEE MUSIC MFG. CO. Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

WANTED

Antique Penny Banks and Toys of Good Quality

Also Toy Catalogs
Correspondence invited and given prompt attention.

F. L. BALL

984 Memorial Drive Cambridge 38, Mass. 02140

We are accepting orders for

REPAIR SERVICE

on
MECHANICAL
BANKS and TOYS
We Also Buy Old Banks

GEORGE W. BAUER

P. O. Box 145

Pottstown,

Pa.

MECHANICAL BANK BOOKLET

A new booklet useful to both dealer and collector. Complete listings and new grading system. In seven parts covering the complete field of American, foreign, semi-mechanical, patterns, recasts, fakes, and variations.

NOW AVAILABLE

PRICE $2

F. H. GRIFFITH

P.O. Box 10644, Pittsburgh 35, Pa. 15236

TOYS WANTED

ILLUSTRATED Catalog, 82 typical old toys & prices I pay. Catalog $1 refunded on purchase of toy for my collection. — Lawrence Altman Antiques, Toys & Bells of the World, 4703 McPherson Ave., St. Louis 8, Mo. au12432

OLD IRON TOYS: Especially want Royal Circus giraffe cage wagon, must have large cast iron giraffe in wagon. Circus band wagon, any kind but the Overland. Also want other old cast iron toys. Will pay extra good price. I am no dealer. Ives iron coal car No. 189. Large Ives one-horse horse reel. Weeden live steam fire engine. Camel pulling chariot. — A. H. Mundis, 731 Wallace St., York, Penna. je68422

EARLY TOYS, toy catalogs. High grade cast iron horse drawn carriages, wagons and all types of rigs, unusual and elaborate. Nickel plated horse drawn fire pumpers. Live steam toys, bell toys and cap shooters. Bought and sold. — Lloyd Ralston, 1192 Youngstown Rd. S.E., Warren, Ohio. au3407

MECHANICAL BANKS*WANTED

Especially the more Scarce Banks

FRANK LAUGHLIN

1134 E. Douglas

Wichita, Kansas
au36c

MECHANICAL ANTIQUES*WANTED

Need old electric train passenger cars, Ives No. 241 to No. 249 or any combination. Also Lionel No. 412 to No. 416, brown or green. — Bert Race, 199 Orange St., Albany, New York. jly128862

Early Electric Bulbs wanted. Bulbs must have bases different from those in use today, or be marked Tantalum, Tungsten, or Meridian. — G. R. Brown, 1128 Riverdale Ave., Calgary, Alberta, Canada. je3027

STILL BANKS*WANTED

ANIMAL BANKS in old original condition, singles or small collections. Describe fully, price. — Sidney Partridge, Marlboro, N. H. au3882

BANKS WANTED

Want old toy electric trains, trolleys, street cars. Especially want Ives Locos No. 3245, 1134, 1764, 1694. Also Boucher or Voltamp. — Bert Race, 199 Orange St., Albany, N.Y. Tel. HO 5-0761, except Sundays. my122703

PLEASE NOTE my mechanical bank display ad in this section, listing various wants. — F. H. Griffith, P.O. Box 10644, Pittsburgh 35, Pa. tfx

OLD mechanical and still banks, toys describe, state price, condition. — Scofield's, Box 457, Ridgefield, Conn. f1206s

IRON & TIN TOYS wanted: All types of horse drawn cast iron and large tin toys, including Royal circus wagons and horse drawn trolleys, animated toy cap pistols, all types of steam operated toys, old mechanical banks, early autos, early iron and tin trains. — A. J. Kovaleski, 331 Adams Ave., Scranton 3, Pa. Phone 1-717 - DI 2-1963. jly3864

OLD mechanical and still banks, collections bought. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate, Troy, Ohio. f12238

MECHANICAL BANKS FOR SALE

HAVE nice selection of still banks and few mechanicals. Please enclose stamp for list. — A. Hotze, 9326 McKenzie Rd., Afton 23, Mo. s12804

PRIVATE collection 26 mechanicals and many stills. List furnished. Stamp please. — Ware's Antiques, Clifton Forge, Va. jly3652

PENNY PINEAPPLE mechanical coin banks. Brochure and prices. — High, Dept. H-5, 1219 Girard, Wyomissing, Pa. s3042

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 37)

joined Charles Frohman's forces, appearing with Henry Miller in 'The Junior Partner,' and after that in a burlesque called 'The Poet and the Puppets.'

"It was in this burlesque that she introduced to the public the famous song, 'After the Ball.' At an after-theater supper in her room she heard Alexander Martinetti pick out the air on a guitar. The melody pleased her, and she had him write it down and fit some words to it.

"Mr. Frohman was opposed to her singing a sentimental song in a burlesque, but he yielded to persuasion and let her try it. The song was a great hit.

"After 'The Poet and the Puppets,' Miss Irwin became associated with Peter F. Dailey in McNally's farce, 'The Country Sport.' For the last three seasons she has starred, producing first Mr. McNally's farce-comedy, 'The Widow Jones,' and incidentally making herself famous through her Negro dialect songs and the broad humor and great unctious that she puts into 'ragtime,' that latter-day syncopated musical freak, whose father is the old-time Negro minstrel.

"Her first 'ragtime' was 'The Bully,' in which she made great sport by bringing a little colored boy on the stage with her. Miss Irwin says the way to learn to sing 'ragtime' is to study the Negro.

"I heard during one of my summer vacations," she continued, "some particularly catchy music sung by Negroes working at the hotel where I was stopping. The idea occurred to me to try it myself. I did try it, and I failed.

"After successive failures I decided to find out from headquarters how it was sung, and I gave a reception to that colored musical talent. That was the best social investment I ever made. By keeping everlastingly at it, I finally discovered that the ragtime was obtained, not by the voice, but by the instrument.

"With the Negroes it had been the result of the use of the 'thumbstring' on the banjo, by thrumming in which

(Continued on page 49)

MECHANICAL BANKS & TOY PISTOLS

ESPECIALLY WANT MECHANICAL BANKS:

- |  |                               |
|--|-------------------------------|
| ● BOWERY BANK                            | ● MUSICAL SAVING BANK         |
| ● ROYAL TRICK ELEPHANT (Tin)             | (You pay—I play)              |
| ● WIMBLEDON                              | ● PREACHER IN THE PULPIT      |
| ● BOWLING ALLEY BANK                     | ● TARGET                      |
| ● RED RIDING HOOD                        | ● RIVAL                       |
| ● FOOTBALL (Colored man kicks ball)      | ● SMYTH X-RAY                 |
| ● SCHLEY BOTTLING UP CERVEZA             | ● BRITISH LION (Tin)          |
| ● PRESTO (Penny changes to quarter)      | ● TOAD IN DEN (Tin)           |
| ● JAPANESE BALL TOSSEY (Tin wind-up)     | ● PERFECTION REGISTERING BANK |
| ● SEOOT TEAT HAT BANK                    | ● GIANT IN TOWER              |
| ● TOMMY BANK (Prono, Soldier Shoots Gun) | ● DAREY FISHERMAN             |
| ● BULL & BEAR BANK                       | ● FROG ON ARCHER TRACK (Tin)  |
| ● COASTING BANK                          | ● TIME LOCK SAVING            |
|  | ● CLOWN (Bust)                |
|  | ● SNAKE & FROG IN POND (Tin)  |
|  | ● WINNER SAVINGS (Tin)        |

PISTOLS:

- |                                |                               |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| ● CAMERA                       | ● TWO DOGS ON BENCH           |
| ● DOLPHIN                      | ● OSCAR WILDE BOMB            |
| ● TORPEDO Shooter              | ● TAMMANY PISTOL (Tiger Head) |
| ● HUMPTY, DUMPTY (Three heads) |                               |
| ● SAILING SHIP                 |                               |

Also want Cast Iron horse drawn carriages, animated bell ringing pull toys, old toy automobiles and old catalogs showing banks and toy pistols.

F. H. GRIFFITH

P.O. Box 10644 Pittsburgh 35, Pa. 15236

BUTTONS FOR SALE

TEN UNUSED CALICOES \$1.50;  $\frac{1}{2}$ " Calicoes 35c each. Large Jewels \$1 each. Old glass, large pictures, inlays, Vermont Light Infantry, Vermont Militia. Approvals with references.—Mrs. T. B. Wakefield, 76 Greene St., Burlington, Vt. Je3445

ANTIQUE BUTTONS, direct European imports, collectors' items, 18th century buttons, pictorials, crests, dress earrings, sets cuff links.—Mrs. Margot Jacoby, 250 W. 94th St., New York 25, N. Y. au124431

BUTTON HOOK BOOK. Pictures, information, patents, $1.25.—Bertha Betensley, 5042 N. St. Louis Ave., Chicago 25, Ill. s128801

"WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON?" Roberts. New book on button collecting, with photographs, $3.25. "Uniform Buttons," priced, Johnson, $12.—Ruddell's, Box 461, Washington 4, D.C. jly3263

OLD BUTTONS. Various types and subjects. State wants. Approvals with references. Have a few "Indian Hunter," large and medium, Button Classics, page 247-3. And "Chinese Slaying Dragon," large, Nicholls 2896. Stamp please for information.—Rachel Price, 17 So. 8th, Stroudsburg, Pa. je3656

POKE BOXES, various priced buttons. Many rare types. Reasonable.—M. Shannon, 8 Compton St., Boston, Mass. n6306

75 BUTTONS, different types, all collectable, $1. p.p.—Mary Caskey, Box 215, Gloucester, N. J. jly12698

ASSORTMENT 25-50-100 for $1.10 plus bonus buttons. Approvals with reference. Also poke boxes.—Mrs. Ralph Radosh, 260 Sadonia Ave., Ferguson 35, Mo. jly3483

MODERN glass paperweight buttons by Theresa. Hand made. Sparkling colors. Custom designed. No two alike. 10 for $2 postpaid.—Theresa Rarig, 302 Rothsay, Minneapolis, Kansas. jly3004

Pipestone, rare and beautiful. 3 large buttons plus "The Legend of Pipestone," $2.—Museum, Keystone Rt. 255, Rapid City, S. Dak. my3405

OLD BUTTONS. 85 assorted, 75 vegetable ivory or 40 black glass, $1.—Mrs. Karl S. Gerstenlauer, Pleasant Valley Village, R.D. 2, Milton, Pa. je253

OLD BUTTONS. 100 assorted, some goofies, 1 picture for $1.—Mrs. Martin Dimery, 1235 No. Main, Fremont, Nebr. jly3882

ANTIQUE BUTTONS sent promptly on approval. One large picture button and 50 assorted old buttons, including 5 small picture buttons for $2.50. China, pearl, or black glass assortments, each button different and nice, 50 for $2. Imported rose paperweights, 50c each or 12 for $1 (beautiful for bracelets). Closing out goofies at 5c each, 25 for $1, 50 for $2, or 100 for $4.—Minerva M. Miner, Sherburne, N. Y. jly34201

BUTTON BARGAINS, $1.25 each offer. 100 small in 8 different materials: 10 small and 1 large picture button; 20 china including calicoes; 12 calicoes; 15 realistic goofies including sets. Other buttons on approval for reference. Gooftie set items exchanged. Stamp appreciated.—Solberg, Route 2, Stone Lake, Wis. au3867

ANTIQUE button collection for sale. Appraised by reputable antique dealer. 7,500 buttons, many carded and all types. Includes large picture buttons and goofies. Priced $600. Will consider offer. For information write: Mrs. John H. Richards, 352 E. Allen St., Lancaster, Ohio. je1823

Number 10 is a "modern" button, one of a set which features typically American subjects: Indian, Statue of Liberty, etc. It was made in at least two sizes, and with both brass and silvered finish, c. 1935.

Number 12 is a "Goofy," c. 1940, and is made of modern plastic in various colors. There are other "Goofy" Indian heads, some profile and some full-face, and all in the usual range of "Goofy" colors.

Most of the remaining buttons are one-piece, convex, with incised designs.

Numbers 13 and 17, similar in design, are hand-made of copper. They have delicate designs and large, rather crude shanks.

Numbers 14 and 16 bear identical designs, but one is made of copper, the other of silver.

Number 15 is a ceramic button, slightly convex, with the "Thunderbird" hand-painted in brown. On the back is the word "Zia."

Numbers 18 and 21 are hand-made of copper, and are similar in type to 13 and 17.

Number 19 is of silver, one-piece, with turquoise inset, and a large, square-sided shank of copper. It was made by a Hopi craftsman, c. 1930.

Numbers 20 and 24 are also hand-fashioned of silver. Both have small copper shanks, that of 24 being double.

Numbers 22, 23, 25, and 27 are "Redskin Maid" buttons, designed for collectors and tourists. They are made of copper, but the same patterns are found on similar silvered buttons.

Number 25 is Indian-made from a silver coin of Mexico, the star being deeply incised over the original design.

The American Indian of tradition, like the "Old West," is gone for

BUTTON BRACELETS

We have some lovely bracelets made entirely of buttons. Each $9, plus 50c postage and insurance.

MORE BUTTON BRACELETS

1 bracelet made of modern & old Satsuma buttons. Write. 1 made of beautiful, small enamel buttons. Write. Or choose your own design, and we may be able to make it to suit a particular costume. What more stunning than a black glass bracelet for your black and white costume.

PICTORIAL BUTTONS

We have a wide variety of pictorial buttons. Our categories include moon, stars, birds, flowers, fish, animals, children, etc.

MARIE GROGAN

Room 1000

Marshall Field Annex Bldg.

25 E. Washington, Chicago, Ill. app

NICHOLLS BUTTON BOOKS

Supplement II and index ..... $2.75
Supplement III and index ..... 3.50
Both ordered at one time ..... 6.00

Order now. Supply limited.

Order from:

Mrs. FLORENCE N. APOSTLE

4806 Fitzhugh Ave.

Richmond 30, Virginia tfo ever, a victim of that "progress" which, while it gives with one hand, takes away with the other.

The warriors and hunters who once roamed over the country, bold and free, are peaceful citizens now. They have been forced to exchange their freedom for "security," and to barter their customs and their heritage for the white man's comforts and conveniences. But their relics and their craftsmanship remain; and the enduring memory of their past helps to obscure the tragedy of their subjugation.

Despite that subjugation, they are a permanent part of American life, and they will continue to influence it, if only through history and hobbies and the place-names they left behind them.

*I received this button and information about 20 years ago. The Daughters of the American Revolution continue to encourage Indian craftsmen, but whether or not their work is still sold under the auspices of the Worldwide Missions Handicrafts Society, I can't say.—D.F.B.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 45)

there was produced the effect of a weird chant. The fact that the Negroes are so successful in the singing of "rag-time" is because they have learned to sing to this very sort of an accompaniment.

"In the fall of 1897 Miss Irwin brought out 'The Swell Miss Fitzwell,' which she followed last season with another farce-comedy, 'Kate Kip, Buyer.'"

Thanks to Mr. Strang's article, we now have a very good account — which I condensed — of May Irwin's early theatrical days. A couple of "reinforcements," however, have occurred to me.

Miss Irwin's famous song, "The Bully," was prepared for her by a sports writer, Charles E. Trevathan, after he had passed by "Babe" Connor's notorious establishment in St. Louis, and heard someone singing unprintable words to the tune which he adapted for "The Bully Song."

From the same dive came the original unpurgated version of "Ta Ra Ra Boom De Re," which, in a cleaned-up form, became the hit to which the once-famous Lottie Collins nightly danced and high-kicked herself into exhaustion.

The late Otis Skinner recalled in his autobiography that he was a member of Miss Irwin's Company when she sang "The Bully" in "The Widow Jones." One night he decided to pester her by crouching high above the stage and joining in her rendition.

He said that as his voice began to blend, or conflict, with May's the portly comedienne was perplexed. She kept rolling her eyes upward, trying to detect the source of the sound, while she moved back and forth across the stage. If I remember right, she never did find out where it came from.

I once had a beautiful copy of Miss Irwin's 12-inch Victor record of "The
(Continued on page 56)

DAVID RUBENSTEIN
526 Main St. Rockland, Maine

Illustrated from our large collection of FIGUREHEADS

We also have a sizeable collection of eagles, ships bells, ship pictures, and actually most everything pertaining to ships.

In the furniture line, we have maple, pine, cherry and mahogany—one of the largest collections in the state.

We have an unusual collection of Lowestoft, all kinds of glassware and china, hooked rugs, etc.

Our shop is now open for the season. You're invited.

Jep

ANTIQUE HUNTING IN CANADA?

Get the New 1963

CANADIAN ANTIQUE DEALERS DIRECTORY

A complete guide to shops in Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces.

$1.00 from

THE COUNTRY SHOP

281 Laurier Ave. West

Ottawa, Ontario, Canada

aup

NEW 17th EDITION 1964 GUIDE BOOK OF U. S. COINS (Whitman Red Book)

The most complete and authoritative book published and a "must" for every coin collector. Ready about June 15.

Price $1.75

THOMPSON'S BOOK STORE

Dept. H

35 W. Market Street

York, Pennsylvania

JLyp

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 49)

"Bully Song," but in a weak moment traded it to Charles Sniffin of White Plains, N. Y. (Aside to Mr. Sniffin: I'm sorry I did, Charlie, for I never have been able to find another copy.)

"The Bully," in a somewhat modified form, has become a hill-billy classic, "The Bully of the Town." Probably the best version ever recorded of the original "Bully Song" was Vernon Dalhart's two-part interpretation on a hard to find Columbia double-faced record, 15302.

Strang also did not mention that in 1896 May Irwin had made a debut in the movies. For Thomas A. Edison she and the late John C. Rice enacted a scene of torrid (by Gay Nineties standards) love making called "The Kiss."

The ardent manner in which May and John pressed lips through 50 feet of film aroused wide-spread indignation and there were calls for censorship of those new-fangled, soul-destroying living pictures. Making the movie had meant hours of hard work for the supposedly amorous pair.

John C. Rice, incidentally, was a noted vaudeville performer, whose partner was his wife, using her maiden name of Sally Cohen. They were the parents of the charming soprano, Gladys Rice, who is still active in music and theatricals.

Miss Rice began recording for Edison in 1915 and became one of the most popular Edison artists under the names of Gladys Rice, Rachel Grant, and Bettina Bergere. Later, she recorded for virtually all other American companies, often as a singing partner of Billy Murray.

(To be continued in the July Issue)

FIX IT FOR KEEPS

DU PONT ®HOUSEHOLD
CEMENT

Please mention HOBBIES when
 replying to advertisements.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by

JIM WALSH

SIX COMEDIENNES

MAY IRWIN

Fourth of the Six

(Continued from the June Issue)

By JIM WALSH

V. "The Players' Blue Book"

In 1901 A. D. Storms compiled a volume called "The Players' Blue Book," which gave brief sketches of the day's theatrical personalities. Here is his account of May Irwin—and notice that Storms says May made her debut in Rochester, N. Y., while Strang placed it in Buffalo. That's just another example of the difficulties confronting the biographer, but Buffalo appears to be correct:

"A general favorite with theater goers, who has won her way to the top by hard work, is May Irwin, by birth a Canadian, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, of Whitby, Ontario, where May was born. . . .

"May made her professional debut, when but 13 years of age, at Rochester, N. Y., January 8, 1875. The next year she was under the management of Daniel Shelby, and the year following she, with her sister Flo, joined Tony Pastor's company, where they remained until 1883, doing short sketches and singing duets together. The four years following, she was with Augustin Daly's company, playing many roles with great success.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you" is a saying that can truly be applied to Miss Irwin, for who that has seen and heard her in such plays as 'Widow Jones,' 'Courtied Into Court,' 'Kate Kip,' 'Sister Mary,' or 'The Belle of Bridgeport,' has not laughed? Miss Irwin's latest success up to the present writing is 'Madge Smith, Attorney.'"

Bijou Theatre

Broadway and 30th Street.

RUDOLPH ARONSON, - - Manager.

NEW YORK, Sept 5th 1898

Howard M. Leitch Esq:
Dear Sir:

Yours received.
I want to a rule not to allow my photo to appear on title page. Except for songs I sing myself.
Thanking you for the compliment I remain
Yours truly
May Irwin

This letter was written by May Irwin when she was 26, refusing to let her photo appear on the title page of a song which she was not singing.

Sneaking again of "The Widow Jones," in which "The Bully" was featured, I had a letter a few years ago from a niece of Mr. Trevathan, asking my help in tracing recordings of some of his compositions.

VI. "The Coming Queen of Comedy"

By one of those coincidences that frequently crop up when I am writing for HOBBIES, since I began this sketch I have obtained Everybody's Magazine for June, 1903, in which James L. Ford had an informative article, "The Coming Queen of Comedy." In discussing the comediennes of 60 years ago, Ford devoted considerable attention to May Irwin and mentioned other women who were later to be heard on records.

I think it worth while to quote part of his article and shall take the liberty of occasionally transposing the order of sentences and paragraphs:

"The untimely death of Rosina Vokes in 1894 left the throne of humor vacant. It was not until May Irwin appeared in company with Peter F. Dailey in 'A Country Sport' that it became evident another really humorous star had appeared.

"By virtue of immediate popular recognition, Miss Irwin straightway came into the kingdom and demonstrated, by her marked individuality, her finished art, and her inexhaustible buoyancy and spirits, her fitness for the crown.

"From that time until last season Miss Irwin remained the one distinctively funny woman on the American scene. You might almost say she took the audience into her lap and talked to them like a big sister.

"Blanche Ring's popularity with what is called 'the Broadway public' is merely a matter of six month's growth. She is the breezy maiden who, at the opening of Mrs. Osborn's Play House, bounded into favor with a song, 'The Belle of Avenue A,' which she sang with infinite spirit and humor.

"It is to her credit that with her professional experience her stage work should be so free from vulgarity and offensive suggestion as it is. She is breezy, jolly, exuberant, and has an infectious laugh which never fails to put her on good terms with an audience.

"There is also Marie Dressler, a woman of undoubted humor who astonishes us now and then with some remarkably clever work, who sings Negro dialect songs admirably, and in some respects reminds one of May Irwin.

"Josie Sadler and Edna Aug are also deserving of mention in the category of humorists, and both have the knack of getting on confidential terms with their audiences.

"A candidate whose aspirations are undeniable is Marie Cahill. Miss Cahill is a graduate of the Hoyt farce comedy school, where she was known as a nimble and graceful dancer and a pleasing singer. She does not dance much now, but she sings Negro dialect songs.

"Although not in any way an imitator of Miss Irwin, who is, after all, imitable, Miss Cahill renders these ditties quite as effectively as did her predecessor. It is not her fault that people say as they leave the theater, 'She's a new May Irwin.'

"These admirers of Miss Cahill do not mean to intimate that she is unoriginal, but rather that she has a quality that the other possesses. It is true she is blonde and fat and wholesome-looking, and makes her audience laugh, but it takes something more than all that to place a woman on a throne which has been occupied by such women as I have named."

VII. An 1897 "Broadside"

Allen G. Debus, of Park Forest, Ill., who has graciously contributed to the illustrations for this series, has provided me with a 66-year-old "Sketch of May Irwin" from which I quote:

"Blest with a temper whose unclouded ray can make tomorrow cheerful as to-day" is the temper with which it has pleased Providence to endow May Irwin. She has not, so tradition says, been known to say an ill-natured thing about anyone except May Irwin. She bubbles over with good humor that is catching and puts everyone in her company on pleasant terms with himself and the rest of the world.

"Of Scotch descent, she is practically a citizeness of the United States, who, when she is not playing, delights to fish and boat among the Thousand Islands, where she owns a beautiful summer home.

"No woman in America sings Negro songs like May Irwin. In the first place her mellow voice adjusts itself admirably to the requirements of this class of music, and then the expression she puts into the songs, and, indeed, into everything she does—is the despair of all who try to imitate her.

"The popular mind has associated Miss Irwin so closely with the singing of these dialect songs, and the rendering of these melodies has come to be so generally accepted as the nearest approach to the real thing itself, that one is prepared to believe she made a life-long study of this subject. Certainly one is quite unprepared for the statement which she made in the course of an interesting chat one afternoon recently:

"I was born in Canada, and I never saw a colored man or woman till I came to the States, and I have not seen a great many since. I have never studied the Negro. I think any success that I may have with these songs is the result of intuition rather than anything else."

"The statement can be made, and with justice, too, that May Irwin has made popular more songs than anyone on the American stage today."

Attentive readers no doubt have observed another contradiction. This "broadside" quotes Miss Irwin as saying she had never studied Negroes, and that she sang negro dialect songs well merely through intuition. Yet an article previously mentioned credits her with believing "you have to study the Negro," and saying her attempts to interpret such numbers properly failed until she made a thorough analysis of the Negro personality.

VIII. May Irwin's Records

Let's go back to the Talking Machine World's statement that May Irwin had failed to make successful records. I have a poster given to me by a veteran Columbia executive, Walter Forbush, showing photographs of the "talent" employed by that Company in 1906 or 1907. In the lower right hand corner is a likeness of "Miss May Irwin."

Yet I have never seen an Irwin record listed in any Columbia catalog and apparently none was ever issued. It seems reasonable to assume the poster was prepared after May Irwin had agreed to make Columbia records, but before it had been discovered her voice could not be, or had not been, adequately recorded. That would account for the magazine item.

If Columbia didn't market records

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1628 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

REBUILDING THE PLAYER PIANO

By LARRY GIVENS

★ Now you can get that old piano in good shape, and really enjoy it again!

★ Rebuilding the reed organ also included in this fine 170 page, hard-bound book. 43 illustrations. Only $6.95.

The first book of its type ever offered.

Sold with a money-back guarantee by

THE VESTAL PRESS, 3533 Stratford, Vestal 2, N. Y.

tlc

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING — Cylinders repinned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N. Y.
Specialists since 1825 tlc

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF
MUSIC BOXES
$5, postpaid
242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.
Published by
HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15 1/4" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

tlc

MAY IRWIN'S
PHENOMENAL SUCCESS
AS FEATURED IN
"MRS. BLACK IS BACK."

May Irwin sheet music, courtesy Allen Debus.

by the comedienne, Victor soon afterward did. Only six titles were issued, and RCA Victor books indicate all were sung in May, 1907.

The exact days of recording aren't indicated, and perhaps they were turned out at a single session. That appears unlikely, however, considering the difficulty frequently experienced nearly 60 years ago in recording the feminine voice. I imagine Victor offered Miss Irwin a fee to make records of six of her most popular songs and this was decided to be adequate catalog representation.

After that series of performances before the horn in 1907 she appears never to have recorded again for anyone else. Of course, it is possible she had done some experimental cylinder recording in the 1890's, but I have never seen her name in the lists for those days.

Victor's first two May Irwin records were announced in the supplement for July, 1907. They were both single-faced, 12-inch. 31641, "Moses Andrew Jackson, Goodbye," and 31642, "The Bully." The following description was to appear, slightly modified, in the Victor catalog for years:

"This popular comedienne is so closely associated with good humor and droll fun that the mere mention of her name is usually a signal for mirth. She invariably keeps her audience in a laughing mood with her quaint witticisms and the inimitable way in which she sings her clever songs. Miss Irwin has agreed to make records exclusively for the Victor."

In succeeding yearly catalogs another sentence was added:

"The several records which this favorite entertainer has made for the Victor are delivered in the delightfully humorous manner which has made Miss Irwin famous as a fun maker."

I have never heard "Moses Andrew Jackson," but "The Bully" is not delivered in the raucous, strident style which might be suggested by the term "Negro dialect shout." The record is of good volume, but there is a certain refinement about Miss Irwin's singing of the number with its irresistible tune and reiteration of "when I walk that levee roun', roun', roun', I'm lookin' for that bully an' he must be foun'."

It is an artistic performance. One can understand why it was such a great success in the stage production of "The Widow Jones."

The remaining four Irwin records were rather oddly offered in August, 1907, at the height of "the dull summer season" for the sale of talking machines and records. A small photo of Miss Irwin appeared in the supplement with this commentary:

"To say that Miss Irwin's July records were a great success is putting it mildly indeed. The favorite comedienne's drolleries were laughed at by thousands of her admirers, who have been loudly calling for 'more.' Miss Irwin therefore consented to give us four more of her famous songs, which are now offered, with the prediction that they will be found to be most pleasing ones."

The July records were 5151, "Mat-ri-mony," 5156, "May Irwin's Frog Song," 5157, "Don't Argify," and 31648, "When You Ain't Got No Money You Needn't Come Around."

When the first list of Victor double-faced records was announced in November, 1908, "Don't Argify" was combined on 16058 with "You Splash Me and I'll Splash You," sung by the English comedienne, Alice Lloyd. In February, 1909, "The Bully" and "When You Ain't Got No Money" were "consolidated" on 35050. And in March, 1913, "May Irwin's Frog Song" was joined in holy wedlock with Clarice Vance's "I'm Wise" on 17253.

"Moses Andrew Jackson," one of the least successful of the records, had a short life. The January, 1910, catalog is the last in which I find it. The same sad fate occurred to the 10-inch "Mat-ri-mony." In double-faced form, the remaining four titles remained in the catalog through 1919.

Perhaps partly because of the popularity of its Clarice Vance coupling, the "Frog Song" proved the most durable of the Irwin records. It kept a place in the catalog until 1923.

After that the name of May Irwin disappeared from Victor lists. Even today thousands of old-timers fondly recall the song which began: "Way down yonder in Yappity-Yank a bullfrog jumped from bank to bank, 'cause he had nothing else to do."

"I am ashamed to recall that as a small boy listening to records in a Victor dealer's shop I tried that sad story of the frog who came to grief because of his vicious propensities, but declined to buy it on the ground: "She don't sing loud enough." The record is sung in an archly confidential style and the volume is not great, but the song is entertaining and deserves its once great popularity.

IX. Last Years

After more than four decades as a prime favorite of the theater, May Irwin retired. I have an amusing memory concerned with her later years. A controversy arose in New York as to whether the average theater seat was sufficiently roomy for obese patrons to occupy it in comfort.

Recalling that May Irwin was proverbially broad of beam, one newspaper sent a reporter to interview her and find out if she felt the typical facilities would suitably accommodate her. May and her husband took the interview as a great joke, and May even divulged her seat span.

I have forgotten what it was, but it was impressive, although her husband insisted she had understated the reality. The decision reached was that she could not comfortably ensconce herself in the average theatre chair.

May Irwin had an unusually happy life, and the well-being extended into her retirement. The one thing that strongly aroused her anger was cruelty to animals. She took legal steps against some theatrical "animal acts," in which she believed the performers to be badly treated.

There was never any fear of her experiencing poverty in her old age. Instead, she was a shrewd business woman. A few years before her death she sold a block of property she owned on Lexington Avenue, New York City, from 54th to 55th street, for a million dollars.

There was wide-spread sadness when it was learned May Irwin had died in New York on October 2, 1938. She was 76. From a death notice in the New York Times we learn:

"... It was the dream of every comedy actor to be with (Augustin) Daly. Miss Irwin stayed with his company four of the greatest years of her long career. Memorable were the names of those in the company with her. There were several Barrymores, John Drew and Otis Skinner, Ada Rehan and Edith Kingdon—she who married George Gould—David Belasco and Virginia Drehr, Mat Fielding, William Gilbert. . . .

"Hit tunes warbled from Miss Irwin's never slim throat. Among them were such master-pieces as 'Hear Dem Bells,' 'Mr. Johnson, Turn Me Loose,' the foolish 'Frog Song,' 'I Ain't Gonna Work No More,' and 'When You Ain't Got No Money You Needn't Come Around.' It was May Irwin's later boast that she never sang a risqué song or spoke a line that was off color.

"May Irwin was a daughter of Robert E. and Jane Draper Campbell. Her voice was untrained, but a beautiful natural one. Enrico Caruso once said she might go far as a real singer if she studied. Miss Irwin laughed. She said all the technique she needed was to 'take a deep breath and let her go!' To the theater-going public of her day it was enough.

"The climax of her life on the stage, she said, after her retirement to her farm at Clayton, N. Y., near the Thousand Islands, came when she gave what amounted to a 'command performance' before President Wilson in the dark days of the first World War.

"It happened because a press agent for Miss Irwin had published an open letter to Washington officialdom, saying that if the President and his Cabinet would just drop everything, come to her show and laugh, they would feel much better.

"May and her company were in Detroit when 'sources close to the President' telegraphed her, asking if she would come. Elated, the actress and her company cancelled their tour and hurried to Washington.

"There they presented 'No. 33 Washington Square,' Leroy Scott's rollicking comedy. President Wilson and his Cabinet attended. The next day Miss Irwin visited the White House, and the President jokingly made her Secretary of Laughter in his unofficial cabinet.

"When Miss Irwin retired to her farm, where years before she had gone with her ailing sister to find a cure for tuberculosis, she took pleasure in farm management and routine, especially in her blue-blooded cattle, which supplied milk for the neighborhood.

"There, during the long summers, she let life slip by, the advancing years unnoticed. On one occasion she said she did not recall her birthday and did not want to.

"In winter she came often to New York to attend the theater. To her, youth was a thing of the heart, the mind, the soul. Although she talked fondly of the old times, she hated to be thought an old-timer.

"Miss Irwin was married twice. Her first husband, Frederick W. Keller, of St. Louis, to whom she was married in 1878, died in 1886. In 1907 she was married to her manager, Kurt Elsfeldt. He retired from professional life several years ago to breed cattle on the St. Lawrence farm."

The beloved singer also had a winter home at Merritt Island, Fla.

And so, in the style of the old-time movie travelogues, we bid farewell to a gallant trouper, May Irwin, rejoicing that many copies of her records remain to prove her comedy was clean and that, despite the slow onslaught of the years, she remained always young in spirit.

(THE END)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 31)

together by the authors to present a complete picture of the Red Label Series."

Indeed, a work of this sort requires an endless amount of research, not saying anything about the headaches in straightening out the importune snags continuously harassing an author along the way.

This volume is another must in a serious collector's library. Now, let us hope that a catalog of the 10-inch DA Series will not take long in making its appearance.

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

SWISS MUSIC BOXES, new list of rare collectors' items; list of books on music boxes, also article on the repinning of Swiss music box cylinders. Showroom open mornings only during July and August. — Bornand's, 139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y. s3426

FOR SALE, 4 music boxes (large): Drum bell Paillard; double disc Symphonium with 48 discs; 3 cylinder Jacobs; 166-tooth Organo-Piccolo. All in excellent condition. — Mrs. A. W. Thunow, R.R. 2, Box 115, Yorkville, Illinois. jcl082

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder phonographs, old disc phonographs with outside horns. Old record catalogs, books, $7 and up for cylinder reproducers (part that holds the needle). — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. au3694

EDISON Cabinet Model C-19. SM-92912. Patent dates: Nov. 17, 1903; May 23, 1916. Plus 200 thick disc records. Best offer over $50. — Hensel, 354 Richmond Rd., Cleveland 24, Ohio. au3464

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 4109 Soquel Dr., Soquel, Calif. jly3846

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. s6468

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

ROLL OPERATED pianos and orchestrons by Seeburg, Wurlitzer, Mills, Coinola, Cremona, North Tonawanda, Peerless, etc. Also band organs. Condition unimportant. — Bowers, Knapp Rd., Vestal, N. Y. jly1002

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

PLAYER ENTHUSIAST'S DREAM: Electric upright player piano with Lowrey Organo attached. Automatic rewind and replay. Standard rolls. Fascinating tone combinations possible as player, or manually. Superb tone and condition. $850, or make offer! — Piano, Box 344, Pigeon Cove, Mass. au3426

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles 13, Calif. s3023

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 6, Colorado. s12698

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY
50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

MUSIC REFERENCE BOOKS

Collectors of old sheet music, records, rolls, etc., swear by these classics:

Burton: BLUE BOOK HOLLYWOOD MUSICALS (Available recordings also listed) $5.50; BLUE BOOK TUN PAN ALLEY IN GASLIGHT story, including musical scores, regularly $8.50; Freeman: THE MELODY LINGERS ON. (Hundreds of rare song sheet covers and song snatches for 50 years of popular song, a prime conversation piece) $6; Roehl's PLAYER PIANO SCRAPBOOK (Authoritative study of all mechanicals) $3. SPECIAL: All 4 books ¼ off—$16.50 postpaid. Sold direct only by publisher

CENTURY HOUSE & OLD VILLAGE MUSEUM
at Watkins Glen, N. Y.

(See our large ad, page 80, June HOBBIES) jlyc

Please mention HOBBIES when
replying to advertisements.

Cover of sheet music from the collection of Allen Debus.

SIX COMEDIENNES

Marion Harris

Fifth of the Six

By JIM WALSH

I. Obscure Early Years

Of the six comediennes under discussion in this series, some, like Elida Morris, had essentially happy lives. The lives of others ended in tragedy.

Marion Harris belongs to the tragic group. The shattering abrupt ending of her life while she was still comparatively young seems almost as appalling, in retrospect, as does Clarice Vance's spending her last days, hopelessly senile, in a mental institution. But Miss Harris' singing, like that of the earlier comedienne, had given pleasure, while she lived, to millions of admirers.

Even though Marion Harris, whose real name was Mary Ellen Harrison, is said to have come from a prominent Kentucky family, the details of her early life are obscure and hard to trace.

Years ago I read somewhere that she was a grandniece of Benjamin Harrison, the first American President to allow his voice to be recorded (by Berliner) on commercial records. I cannot now find the source of that statement. It may have appeared in The Voice of the Victor, but a search of my bound volumes has not turned it up.

A Columbia record catalog of 40 years ago said the comedienne was "a granddaughter of General Harrison of Civil War fame." This may have been a reference to President Harrison, who served in the War and in 1865 was brevetted a Brigadier General of Volunteers. But if so, which is right—grandniece or granddaughter?

After Marion Harris died on April 23, 1944, a newspaper article quoted her daughter as saying the singer's father had been a senator from Kentucky, but that statement is wrong. Kentucky has never had a Senator Harrison. Perhaps, Mary Ellen's father was a member of the House of Representatives or served in the Kentucky Legislature, but he was not a United States senator.

A few months ago I obtained from the New York City Department of Public Health a photostatic copy of Marion Harris' death certificate. I read it at breakfast in a restaurant, but must have lost it on the way home. I have never seen it since.

However, it disappointed me, for it told little I didn't know. And it repeated the erroneous statement newspapers had made that Miss Harris was only 38 when she died.

The name of Marion Harris' father was given as James Harrison. I have forgotten her mother's maiden name, but believe Mrs. Harrison was a native of Indiana.

A death notice in the New York Daily Mirror said Marion Harris was born in Henderson, Ky. "A descendant of President Harrison, she started her career after escaping from a convent, at 14." This may be supplemented by the following, in Variety:

"Miss Harris began her theatrical career by singing with colored slides that motion picture houses used to use, and it was in an obscure theater that the late Vernon Castle discovered her."

"She was brought to New York by Charles Dillingham and opened in the latter's star-studded production of 'Stop, Look and Listen,' which preemed at the Globe theater, now a film house. She later appeared in 'Ziegfeld's Midnight Frolic,' 'Yours Truly' and other successful musical shows."

"She later diverted to vaudeville, where she was highly popular for years, and toured the bigtime circuits, playing many repeats at the Palace, N. Y."

II. Victor Recording Artist

The foregoing scanty information brings us to the period when Marion Harris became a Victor recording artist.

In those days, Vernon and Mrs. Castle supervised the making of Victor dance records, so it is a reasonable speculation that when Castle discovered the vivacious girl in that "obscure theater," he suggested to Victor's artist and repertoire department that she was a good singer of popular songs and should become a well-liked recording artist.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Or perhaps she was engaged because of her success in "Stop, Look and Listen."

However that may have been, Marion Harris' Victor recording career began late in 1916 and continued approximately three years. Her last acoustically recorded Victor was issued in September, 1919. Nearly nine years later she made one electric Victor disc.

The first two Harris records were issued in the November, 1916, list. Like all the popular song records of that month, they were without individual comment. On 18133 she sang "I Ain't Got Nobody Much" (later usually known as "I Ain't Got Nobody"). It is today something of a popular classic. The other side was "Way Out Yonder in the Golden West," rousing rendered by the Avon Comedy Four.

Her second offering, on 18143, was "I'm Gonna Make Hay While the Sun Shines in Virginia." To help it to success, it had the most popular star of that era, Billy Murray, making everybody laugh by singing on the reverse side, "There's A Little Bit Of Bad In Every Good Little Girl."

Since I shall give at the end of this article the most complete list of Marion Harris records I have been able to prepare, I shall not mention them all in detail. For one thing, the monthly supplements in which the records appeared contained little quotable material and there are almost no personal references to the singer herself.

I may say, now, however, that "I Ain't Got Nobody" may have been her most popular Victor recording, although it possibly was beaten by the 1917 "They Go Wild, Simply Wild, Over Me," or the 1919 "After You're Gone" and "A Good Man Is Hard To Find."

And, in view of Miss Harris' later specialized fame as a singer of "blues" or songs with a bluish tinge, it is interesting that a February, 1917, record offered her interpretation of "The Paradise Blues"—the first song she had sung with "blues" in the title.

In June, 1917, Victor proved its good opinion of the young comedienne by pairing her in a duet with the king of all pioneer recording comedians, Billy Murray. They sang a Jerome Kern song, "I Wonder Why," from "Love o' Mike." And this apparently was the only recorded duet in which Marion Harris ever took part. With that exception, she was always a solo artist.

Another number with a blues flavor, "Everybody's Crazy 'Bout the Doggone Blues, But I'm Happy," was announced in May, 1918. The supplement description is amusing:

"This clever comedienne puts a new complexion on life; she even gives a new turn to the hoary old story of Jonah and the Whale. And the band, not to be behind, does its own little bit, the trombone taking an occasional slide up the scale accompanied by an assorted group of squeaks and clatters."

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought Sold Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1628 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.

Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.

Hudson 3-4553

REBUILDING THE PLAYER PIANO

By LARRY GIVENS

★ Now you can get that old piano in good shape, and really enjoy it again!

★ Rebuilding the reed organ also included in this fine 170 page, hard-bound book. 43 illustrations. Only $6.95.

The first book of its type ever offered.

Sold with a money-back guarantee by

THE VESTAL PRESS, 3533 Stratford, Vestal 2, N. Y.

11c

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING — Cylinders replanned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N. Y.
Specialists since 1825 tfo

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF
MUSIC BOXES
$5, postpaid
242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.
Published by
HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

15c

This picture of Marion Harris in the September 1918 Victor record catalog, had the sub-title: "Recent Portrait of a Very Popular Little Lady."

Marion Harris' photo appeared on the cover of the Brunswick record supplement for October, 1922, after she had signed an exclusive Brunswick contract.

The Harris record for October, 1918, "Good-Bye, Alexander; Good-Bye, Honey Boy," has added interest because its coupling, "When Uncle Joe Steps Into France," was the last Victor record the veteran comedians, Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan, ever made. Of the A side, the supplement said:

"Marion Harris sure has a way of her own of singing a song—at least she sings some of the time, but she talks through the music as often as not, catching up with the tune just when she feels like it."

Both sides must have amused all the hearers who were not too ill with "Spanish influenza" to see the funny side of anything.

Miss Harris seems to have been fond of songs by the Negro writers, Henry Creamer and Turner Layton. They wrote "Everybody's Crazy 'Bout the Doggone Blues" and "Good-Bye, Alexander," and were also responsible for "After You've Gone," issued in January, 1919.

This song, whose tune has a marked resemblance to that of "Peg o' My Heart," became instantly popular and is now a standard piece for dance bands. The supplement remarked:

"Marion Harris always manages to make the most of her songs, and she certainly gets all the longing there is into the word, 'away,' with her own inimitable Negro dialect. The song is that of a disconsolate lady of color who cannot bear to part with her sweetheart, and the music, in its yearning tenderness, coupled with the singer's clever skill, makes a very complete little picture of blighted affection that is not without an undercurrent of humor."

Only three more acoustic Marion Harris records were issued by Victor. "A Good Man Is Hard To Find" came out in May; "Jazz Baby" in July, and the last, "Take Me To The Land Of Jazz" in September. It is noteworthy because its mating, "I Ain't 'en Got 'en No Time To Have Thê Blues," was the first Victor duet record by Billy Murray and Ed Smalle.

Here is an interesting paragraph, which should have been quoted earlier, from the September, 1918, Victor supplement:

"Marion Harris had the unexpected pleasure of hearing the first of her new records at a picnic upon a mountain top in the far West. Learning that she had not yet heard the record, some friends took it and a Victrola along, by way of a surprise."

III. Marion Sings for Columbia

It isn't clear why Marion Harris and Victor ended their three-year association. Off-hand, I would think it might have been because Columbia offered her a better contract, but exactly a year elapsed between the appearance of the comedienne's final Victor record and her first Columbia.

When her initial Columbia records were announced, however, they were treated as an event. Page three of the September, 1920, Columbia Supplement was headed: "ANNOUNCING MARION HARRIS." This was followed by an enthusiastic commentary, in which for the first time emphasis was laid on her abilities as an interpreter of blues:

"The great constellation of vaudeville stars in the Columbia firmament has added one more of the first magnitude — Marion Harris.

"Marion Harris is the latest Exclusive Columbia Artist and one who brings to her records and artistry which has won love from all who have seen her, a personality which reflects in every note of her singing, a gift of interpretation and impersonation rarely equalled, and a voice—well, a voice which is simply Marion Harris and that's enough.

"Marion Harris is a Kentucky girl and a descendant of Benjamin Harrison. For the last six months she has charmed thousands of music-loving vaudeville fans and now come her exclusive Columbia records to charm more thousands.

"Since the advent of 'Blues' Miss Harris has risen to preeminent heights as a singer of this character of song. Her four opening Columbia announcements are all 'Blues' and, metaphorically speaking, they range all the way from Baby Blue, Plain Blue, and Indigo, to deep Ultramarine!"

Three of the four Harris songs for September had "Blues" in the title. They were "Left All Alone Again Blues," "The St. Louis Blues" (already regarded in 1920 as perhaps the greatest of all blues numbers),

(Continued on page 49)

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

SWISS MUSIC BOXES, new list of rare collectors' items; list of books on music boxes, also article on the repinning of Swiss music box cylinders. Showroom open mornings only during July and August. — Bornand's, 139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y. S3426

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS
Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

BUTTONS FOR SALE

ANTIQUE BUTTONS, direct European imports, collectors' items, 18th century buttons, pictorials, crests, dress earrings, sets cuff links. — Mrs. Margot Jacoby, 250 W. 94th St., New York 25, N. Y. aul24431

BUTTON HOOK BOOK. Pictures, information, patents, $1.25. — Bertha Betensley, 5042 N. St. Louis Ave., Chicago 25, Ill. sl28801

"WHO'S GOT THE BUTTON?" Roberts. New book on button collecting, with photographs, $3.25. "Uniform Buttons," priced, Johnson, $12. — Ruddell's, Box 461, Washington 4, D.C. jly3263

POKE BOXES, various priced buttons. Many rare types. Reasonable. — M. Shannon, 8 Compton St., Boston, Mass. n6306

75 BUTTONS, different types, all collectable, $1. p.p. — Mary Caskey, Box 215, Gloucester, N. J. jly12698

RECENTLY BOUGHT private collection. Approvals with reference. Also assortments 25-50-100 for $1.10 plus bonus buttons. — Mrs. Ralph Radosh, 260 Sadonia Ave., Ferguson 35, Mo. o3614

MODERN glass paperweight buttons by Theresa. Hand made. Sparkling colors. Custom designed. No two alike. 10 for $2 postpaid. — Theresa Rarig, 302 Rothsay, Minneapolis, Kansas. jly3004

OLD BUTTONS. 100 assorted, some goofies, 1 picture for $1. — Mrs. Martin Dimery, 1235 No. Main, Fremont, Nebr. jly3882

ANTIQUE BUTTONS sent promptly on approval. One large picture button and 50 assorted old buttons, including 5 small picture buttons for $2.50. China, pearl, or black glass assortments, each button different and nice, 50 for $2. Imported rose paperweights, 50c each or 12 for $1 (beautiful for bracelets). Closing out goofies at 5c each, 25 for $1, 50 for $2, or 100 for $4. — Minerva M. Miner, Sherburne, N. Y. jly34201

BUTTON BARGAINS, $1.25 each offer. 100 small in 3 different materials; 10 small and 1 large picture button; 20 china including calicos; 12 calicos; 15 realistic goofies including sets. Other buttons on approval for reference. Goofie set items exchanged. Stamp appreciated. — Solberg, Route 2, Stone Lake, Wis. au3367

SELLING my large collection of buttons. Have most all classifications. Approvals with reference. Also poke boxes and penny strings. — Mrs. Howard Wolff, 1844 Garland, Wichita 3, Kans. au1802

BUTTONS: All kinds. Approvals with references or state wants. Wanted for resale: Goofies (especially 2 hole Nursery Rhyme) also button books, state condition and price desired. — Roberta McKee, 408 East Green, Marshall, Mich. s3825

ANTIQUE BUTTONS sent promptly on approval. 50 old buttons, including 1 large and 5 small picture buttons $2.50, 6 small picture buttons, $1. 50 black glass, 50 chinas, 50 pearls or 50 goofies for $2. Imported rose paperweights, 50c ea.; 3 for $1; or 12 for $5. — Minerva M. Miner, Sherburne, N. Y. o3008

NICHOLLS BUTTON BOOKS

Supplement II and Index ..... $2.75
Supplement III and Index ..... 3.50
Both ordered at one time ..... 6.00

Order now. Supply limited.

Order from:

Mrs. FLORENCE N. APOSTLE
4806 Fitzhugh Ave.
Richmond 30, Virginia

concave brass with applied design. Reverse: "Eingtr. Muster."

5. The tree plays an important part in this Picture button: "Woodland Vows," taken from a painting by J. R. Beyschlag. Pressed brass.

6. Conventionalized tree on a brass "Paris Back." Reverse: "T.W. & W.M - Paris - Breveté."

7. Pine tree and Star: a design emblematic of Christmas and also of the state of Maine. Flat, pressed brass with loop shank. An Overall button.

8. Another Oriental scene, with distant buildings and appropriate trees in the foreground. Pressed brass.

9. Section of a tree, ornamented with flowers. Flat Light Metal with colored flowers and darker background.

10. Livery button with Oak (?) tree and motto ("Through") of the Hamilton Family. One-piece, convex, silver-plated. Reverse: "C. & H. Bullivant - Birmingham."

11. Section of an (unidentified) tree, which serves as background for two woodpeckers. Flat, bronze-finished brass.

12. Giant Cactus, on one-piece, convex copper. This button was converted from a token, made for use in an Arizona city.

13. Oriental scene: pewter Palm tree on tinted brass.

14. Torso of a tree, rendered in pressed brass.

15. Ruined temple with surrounding trees. Convex metal, found with both gilt and silver finish.

16. Livery button: tree stump with branches, the crest of the Balfour Family. One-piece, convex, gold-plated. Reverse: "Firmen & Sons - London."

17. The tree on this Clamp-back Overall button is small and crude, but since the words "Pine Tree" also appear, I think it qualifies as a Tree button. Concave steel.

18. Tree and fence. Tinted brass with nicolite border.

19. Cut-up sections of tree, horizontally arranged. Convex pressed brass.

20. Realistic log of Modern Plastic, with sterling silver axe.

21. Tree branches, rendered in Light Metal. Colored border.

Whatever their kind, whatever

LIKE UNUSUAL ART? Collect abstract whimsies! Fantasies of color, pattern, captured hand-fashioned lucite buttons. Shells, beads, paint, string, bits of nonsense, paperweight types button originals. Exciting designs, colors. Pleasurable collecting, for those admiring ingenuity no matter what era. Write today. Approvals. References. — Eleanor V. (Colangelo) Hazelum, 36 Emerson Ave., Brockton, Mass. s3238

FOR SALE: Antique buttons. Picture, sporting, flower, Biblical, story, animal, paperweights, others. All old. Write. — Mrs. Rose Berlin, R. 3, Box 74, Ocean Springs, Miss. o3004

HAND CRAFTED modern buttons, modern porcelain picture buttons, modern glass and paperweight buttons. All buttons custom made by Theresa. Name and stamp for complete listing. $2 for 26 samples labeled. — Theresa Rarig, 302 Rothsay, Minneapolis, Kansas. o3673 their location, and whatever the season, trees are always beautiful. Even on buttons, their strength and grace is obvious, and their importance manifest.

Joyce Kilmer's poem, "Trees," is widely known and quoted, but its message can never be overemphasized. For while men have succeeded in doing and making many wonderful things — some of them almost inconceivable — the fact remains that "only God can make a tree!"

*Drawings of some of these buttons have appeared before, in HOBBIES and "Button Parade." They show greater detail than photographs can convey.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 34)

and "The Homesickness Blues." The coupling of "Left All Alone" was "Nobody But Me."

You probably observed the eulogistic write-up referred to Marion Harris as a descendant of President Harrison, but didn't define the relationship. By way of added interest, the following from the 1922 Columbia catalog may be quoted:

"Marion Harris, who really is Mary Ellen Harrison, is a granddaughter of the late General Harrison of Civil War fame. When asked how she came to choose Negro songs for her type, Miss Harris guessed, 'It just came naturally.' "When you first get over stage fright your one instinctive thought is to please. In order to please you must do your best, and you usually do what comes naturally. So I just naturally started singing Southern dialect songs and the modern blues songs, which closely resemble the Negro folk songs."

As evidence of Columbia's pride in obtaining Marion Harris, a full page advertisement in a December, 1920, Saturday Evening Post prominently mentioned her as one of the top Columbia stars.

The titles of the records Miss Harris made during the two years she sang for Columbia speak for themselves so clearly there seems no need to discuss them individually, and the supplement remarks are usually too perfunctory to justify quotation.

It is worthy of note, however, that one of the records combines two great blues songs—"Beale Street Blues" and "The Memphis Blues." It is also noteworthy that the comedienne made both sides of all her Columbia records. She was never coupled with anyone else.

The same thing is true of the Brunswicks which she began making late in 1922.

I have a baffling half-recollection of hearing or reading that Marion Harris and the Columbia Saxophone Sextet made some personal appearances together as publicity for their records, and that she and the Shannon Four shared concerts under Columbia auspices. I asked Wilfred Glenn, the Shannon's basso and manager about this, but he replied: "We worked with so many artists I don't remember whether we ever gave concerts with Marion Harris."

(To be continued)

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

---

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

---

SIX COMEDIENNES

Marion Harris

Fifth of the Six

By JIM WALSH

(Continued)

IV. Brunswick Recordings

It is odd that Marion Harris recorded for the three leading makers of lateral-cut discs—Victor, Columbia, and Brunswick—one after the other. Her Brunswick association was the longest and perhaps the most successful of the three.

She left Columbia when it was facing bankruptcy and joined Brunswick as it was gaining the reputation of being the most alert and progressive American phonograph company.

Miss Harris' stage appearances must have grown steadily in popularity during the two years she made Columbia records, for Brunswick treated her engagement as sensational news.

Her photograph was published on the cover of the October, 1922, Brunswick supplement, and a "rave" notice appeared on page 6, under the heading, "Marion Harris, the Biggest Star in Vaudeville Today and Exclusive Brunswick artist."

"The most dazzling singing comedienne on the metropolitan stage today is Marion Harris, and this is her first recording since she became an exclusive Brunswick artist.

"In both these entertaining songs, 'My Cradle Melody' and 'I'm Just Wild About Harry' (from the big hit, 'Shuffle Along'), she shows her magic in interpretation. In a different kind of mesmerism and in a wonderful ability to make the other fellow 'get the point.'

"Miss Harris is a broadcaster of entertainment, of fun, of health and of happiness—better get tuned-in with her wave-length for her vibrations are reaching all over America."

How ironic those references to "entertainment, fun, health and happiness" seem in view of the way Marion Harris' last days were spent!

Another Harris record was issued the same month—"Sweet Indiana Home," and "Blue." In it, as well as in the one just reviewed, she was accompanied by Isham Jones' Orchestra, a sure indication that Brunswick considered her an acquisition out of the ordinary. When Al Jolson signed an exclusive Brunswick contract in 1924, the Jones Orchestra was assigned to accompany him.

Marion's record for January, 1923, combined two big hits of a rather unrefined order: "Aggravatin' Papa" and "Hot Lips." The supplement said:

"Marion Harris, the ever-applauded comedienne, is up to her habitual tricks of making the world laugh. Whether you are young or old your best medicine for what ails you is Miss Harris' singing about 'Aggravating Papa' and 'Hot Lips.' 'She's musical, witty, droll, whimsical and wholesome, and she carries her points and personality as surely in these song-scenes right through the phonograph horn as she does across the footlights on Broadway."

(How limping, rather than limpid, the writing of all other supplement annotators appears compared to the delightfully graceful prose of Victor's Jim Richardson!)

The complete Brunswick catalog for 1923 gave Marion Harris enthusiastic praise:

"A supreme artist in her own particular field is Marion Harris, vaudeville's darling, known from coast to coast as 'the Queen of Blues Singers.'

"Her voice has a sweetness and sympathy of deep appeal and her charming prettiness and good humor always bring the maximum of encores on the Keith Vaudeville Circuit, where she is a headliner.

"Marion Harris usually wins the house to the point of stopping the show and the popularity of her records may be judged by the fact that one of them broke all records for number of copies sold."

That last statement is puzzling. The reference must be to Brunswick records only, for no Marion Harris record for any company ever ranked with the all-time biggest sellers, much less breaking "all records for number of copies sold." Perhaps one

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING—Cylinders replanned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N. Y.
Specialists since 1825 tfo

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF
MUSIC BOXES
$5, postpaid
242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.
Published by
HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY
Successor
HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15 1/4" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

See your friends at the

CHICAGO ANTIQUES EXPOSITION & COLLECTORS' FAIR

Friday through Tuesday

In the exhibition hall of the CONRAD HILTON HOTEL

September 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 1963

Upwards of 150 exhibits from leading dealers all over the country. Who knows? You may find a choice old organ, melodeon, phonograph, music box or some one-of-a-kind instrument. Come browse and buy.

was the largest Brunswick seller up to that time, but which?

That 1923 catalog contains only five double-faced records by her. The most likely choice seems the "Aggravating Papa" and "Hot Lips" coupling. Possibly the prize winner may have been the combination of "Carolina in the Morning" and "Home-sick." But probably her duo of "Running Wild" and "You've Got to See Mama Every Night," issued later in 1923, outsold either of those.

The 1924 catalog changed the sketch about the comedienne:

"Marion Harris, the inimitable, enjoys the enviable position of being a reigning favorite in Keith's Vaudeville. Her great popularity is due to a magnetic personality added to a charming and fascinating voice which has a very deep appeal.

"As a singer with great emotional qualities, she is unsurpassed. Miss Harris is largely responsible for the rapidly increasing demand for popular vocal records.

"Her splendid Brunswick records of unusual, though artistic, interpretations are much called for by her many enthusiastic and exacting admirers."

The same descriptive matter was reproduced in the 1925 catalog, which contained 22 double-faced Marion Harris records. But by 1927, after electric recording had become standard, Brunswick seems to have lost some of its enthusiasm for its "blues" specialist and comedy song star.

All but five of the acoustic records had been dropped, and the "editorial comment" was gone. Three electric recordings were listed.

The acoustics which had survived the electrical holocaust were 2610, 2622, 2651, 2735, and 2747. The lowest numbered electrical was 2807, "Does My Sweetie Do—and How" and "I Can't Realize."

When the catalog listing all Brunswick records up to January 1, 1928, made its appearance, every one by Marion Harris was gone. What happened? The singer must have had a disagreement with Brunswick, for it doesn't seem likely her records would suddenly have lost so much popularity it was no longer worth while to offer any.

Meanwhile, after an absence of eight and one-half years, the comedienne returned to the Victor list in March, 1928, singing "Did You Mean It?" and "The Man I Love." The supplement comment was brief:

"Notice the return of Marion Harris; without being technically 'blues' songs these are as blue as the Monday tub, as blue as the ocean three days out. The first is from 'A Night in Spain,' in which she has been starring."

This was the last Victor record by Marion Harris. Her name remained absent from the Brunswick catalog until the depression year, 1930, when records had almost ceased to sell.

Then, if there had been differences between her and Brunswick, they apparently were reconciled. The catalog listing records up to December 1, 1930, has five by her, beginning with "Funny, Dear, What Love Can Do" and "Nobody's Using It Now" (4663), and ending with 4873, "Little White Lies" and "If I Could Be With You." Also included was an electrical remake of "Nobody's Sweetheart."

A thin supplementary catalog, listing records issued from December 1, 1930, to February 1, 1932 (business was so bad it wasn't worth while to print another complete new yearly catalog) had two more Harris records: 4972, "He's Not Worth Your Tears," and "My Man From Caroline," and 6016, "Blue Again" and "He's My Secret Passion."

The Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company was about to go out of the record business, although the Brunswick name was transferred to another firm, and, as far as my files indicate, these were the last records Marion Harris made for any American company. Her stage successes continued, but in the early 1930's she went to England.

Apparently the transfer to England was made in 1932, for in that year English Columbia issued records by her. I know of two, but there may have been more. In June, 1932, The Gramophone reviewed Columbia record DB 822:

"Marion Harris puts on her best baby voice for 'Is I In Love? I Is,' an epic of triteness, but made amusing by this singer, who never misses a point anywhere."

In July, the Gramophone critic said:

"Marion Harris . . . gets every ounce of meaning out of 'Gettin' Sentimental' and 'Spring is Here Again' (Columbia DB851.) Here is an artist who is a master—or mistress—of the recording art."

The next mention I have found of a Marion Harris record is in The Gramophone for May, 1934. It was Decca F 3954, and the review is rather unfavorable:

"As Marion Harris is reputed to be responsible for introducing 'One Morning in May' into this country one would have expected her record of it to be the shining example to all other singers of the best possible way to sing the song.

"I was disappointed, therefore, to find that it is not by any means the best I have heard and that I should buy the record for 'Oo-Oo-Ooh! Honey!' rather than for 'One Morning in May,' which she sings disjointedly and with very little of that grace and polish that usually accompanies everything this cabaret queen does."

Even more unfavorable was the October, 1934, review of her Decca record of "Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday" and "Singing the Blues."

"Something strange here. 'Singing the Blues' was the title made famous by Trumbauer's Orchestra some years ago, when it was attributed to him.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPLA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Bought

Sold

Repaired

Cases expertly refinished, inlays restored and retinted to original condition.

Free Estimates — All Work Fully Guaranteed.

The only shop south of New York specializing in new & Antique Music Boxes

Located in Historic old Georgetown in the Nation's Capitol

1628 Wisconsin Ave. N.W.
Washington 7, D. C.

D. Konvalinka, Prop.
Hudson 3-4553

"But the point is immaterial, for Miss Harris does not do it justice, whatever it is. Her voice is pitched too high for this style of singing, and some of her low notes verge on the extraordinary."

Gramophone indexes of succeeding years contain no mention of Marion Harris.

I have an old scrapbook clipping, dated October 11, which tells something of Marion Harris' theatrical activities while she was still in New York. I believe it must have appeared in 1930:

"Marion Harris has entered the cast of the 'Second Little Show' at the Royale Theater and will be featured with Al Trahan and Jay C. Flippen.

"She will sing a group of new songs written especially for her by three composers of current hits. Herman Hupfeld, who has already contributed 'Sing Something Simple' to the 'Little Show,' has written a 'blue' number which is called 'One More Night.'

"John Green and Edward Heyman, who are responsible for the popular English number, 'Body and Soul,' have turned out another for Miss Harris called 'Manikin.' Maurice Hamilton and Grace Henry, contributors to the first 'Little Show' score, have done one titled 'I Love to be Blue.'

"The 'Second Little Show' marks Miss Harris' first New York stage appearance in three years, most of which time has been spent in radio work, making records, and in pictures. She is still contracted to Paramount to make a few pictures of the type referred to as 'shorts.'"

I take it that the "shorts" Miss Harris made were "talkie" versions of typical vaudeville singing acts that were popular in the early days of sound films.

V. Tragic Last Days

As the 1930's gave way to the '40's the name of Marion Harris began to seem, to those who thought of her at all, like an echo out of the past.

Her records had disappeared from American catalogs; she was no longer seen in vaudeville or on the New York stage; and when her former admirers, who didn't know she was living in England, spoke of her it was probably to wonder whether she were still alive.

They did not suspect how tragic life had become for her since a second World War had begun to take a dreadful toll of the British Isles.

The sad story of the comedienne's last days came to a searing conclusion on the evening of April 23, 1944. Newspaper stories soon afterward revealed she had been burned to death in a New York hotel room.

Marion Harris was one of the unfortunate hundreds of men and women who died that year—and who die every year—from smoking in bed.

While death from a smoldering cigaret does not convey all the overpowering pathos of paralyzed Arthur Fields' being consumed by fire in the ruins of a Florida nursing home, the thought is still enough to cause a feeling of compassionate horror.

The following appeared in the New York Daily Mirror:

"Marion Harris, once Broadway headliner, who came here from London to escape the war, was found dead early yesterday in a charred hotel room bed, set afire by a cigaret she had been smoking.

"Registered at the hotel as Mrs. Marion Urry, her real identity was not known until Peggy Hopkins Joyce, who knew her when she was a Ziegfeld Midnight Frolics star, provided police with the information.

"Suffering from shock after Nazi bombs demolished her home in England, and physicians advised her to come here where she could obtain special foods, Miss Harris left her husband, Leonard Urry, actor, two months ago in London and entered Medical Center here on her arrival.

"She was discharged April 15, and took a room at the Hotel Le Marquis, 12 E. 31st St. From there she had got in touch with old friends, including Miss Joyce, and they had planned to have dinner together in a few days.

"When police and firemen arrived, the 38-year-old musical comedy actress, dancer, and blues singer was unconscious and badly burned. Inhalators could not revive her.

"She was a star of Gene Buck's 'Yours Truly,' toured the Keith vaudeville circuit for years, and her appearances at the Palace were considered events."

This article brings up the question of Marion Harris' age. She was certainly far more than 38. Twenty-eight years had passed since she made her first Victor record in 1916. This would mean, if 38 were correct, that her recording career began at the age of 10.

Even if she were only 20 when that first record appeared, she would have been 48 when she died in that hotel room. How ironic that shattered nerves caused her to flee the "blitz" in England only to suffer an agonizing fiery death in New York!

The New York Daily News termed Leonard Urry a "theatrical agent." It said the bombed-out home was in London and that Miss Harris had been treated at the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center. It added:

"Some time during the afternoon she talked with Miss Joyce. Then, apparently, she fell asleep while smoking a cigaret.

"The fire went undetected until around 6 p.m. when a guest in the hotel smelled smoke. Miss Harris died a few minutes after being removed from her room. Damage to the hotel was minor."

Variety's death notice provided the following information:

"Blonde and slender, Miss Harris' soft-voiced rendition of blues songs gained her nation-wide popularity.

"In the early 1930's she sang over a coast-to-coast radio network regularly and became known as 'The Little Girl With the Big Voice.' She also made many recordings, probably her best known being 'The Man I Love' and 'I Ain't Got Nobody.'"

VI. Marion Harris, Jr.

None of the death notices gave any information as to whether Marion Harris' parents were living or whether there were surviving brothers and sisters.

The singer was married three times. According to Variety: "Miss Harris was married in 1924 to Rush Hughes, son of Rupert Hughes, novelist and playwright. They had two children, Rush Jr., and Mary Ellen.

"Divorce ended the marriage in 1928. Miss Harris went to London about 10 years ago to appear in a show, and several years ago she was married to Urry."

In October, 1953, the name of Marion Harris appeared again in theatrical news, but this time the subject was the comedienne's daughter, who had adopted her mother's name for stage purposes, and was hoping for her own show business career.

An interview with her in the Sunday New York Mirror contained some questionable statements, such as the one already quoted about Marion Harrison's father having been a U.S. senator.

It also placed the scene of her death in the Waldorf-Astoria. And, most far-fetched of all, it said Miss Harris, in 1918, was a nude dancer in a New York musical comedy. By that year her career as a comedienne was well established and she was certainly not a nude, nor even a semi-nude, performer.

The article, as witness the following paragraph, said Marion ran away from home because her parents "for some reason" objected to her appearing undraped on the stage. As we have seen, one source said she left a convent at the age of 14 to go on the stage:

"'Mama,' said Junior, in an interview in her new apartment on New York's fashionable East Side, 'had to run away from home, because her family, for some reason, didn't approve of her appearing on the stage as a nude. Her father was a United States senator, and most of the family was in the diplomatic corps, so she changed her name from Mary Ellen Harrison to Marion Harris.'"

It is obvious, however, as witness the old Columbia catalogs, that the singer never concealed her real name, Mary Ellen Harrison. The article continues:

"Junior's father was Robert Williams, a Broadway and movie actor who was starred, along with Jean Harlow, in 'Platinum Blonde.'

"'When I was three years old,' said Marion Junior, 'Mother sent me to England with a governess, to be brought up there. She thought I should be raised in the culture of the Old World. The first time I came here, for six months, was in 1947, after I was released from the British Army, with which I served as an ambulance driver in North Africa and Egypt.'

"Junior had been trained as a dramatic actress at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts, in London, and she had played Shakespearian productions at Stratford, and in plays with Noel Coward. After the war she started singing in supper clubs.

"'I've been making as much as 500 pounds a week,' said Marion Junior, 'singing in such chic spots as the Colony, in London, but I came back to America because no matter how successful you are anywhere else, you're not really a success until you've had an American success.'

"Marion has been singing some of the same ballads her mother sang, such as 'Thanks for the Buggy Ride,' 'My Canary Has Circles Under His Eyes,' and others, for considerably less than 500 pounds a week, in her first American appearance at One Fifth Avenue. 'But it's a beginning,' says Junior. 'Maybe not the same beginning as Mother's, but as close to it as I can get.'"

According to Variety, "Junior" didn't want to use her mother's name and preferred to "make it on her own" as Marilyn Williams, but the management under which she was to appear in New York insisted on billing her as her mother's daughter.

Variety further said: "Miss Williams is English, having been born of an English father when Miss Harris played London. He was the late star's second husband." (This Marion Harris (inset) was Broadway's leading glamor girl in 1918; her daughter, Marion, Jr., right, is trying to follow in her footsteps.

—From the October 25, 1953, New York Sunday Mirror Magazine leaves it uncertain as to when she divorced Williams and married Urry.)

Variety also mentioned that another blonde girl was making night club appearances as Aileen Stanley Jr., but was not related to the famous comedienne, who had been her professional coach and permitted her to take the name.

I don't know what has become of either Marion Harris Jr., or "Aileen Stanley Jr.," whom I met at the 1948 John Bieling Day party in Hempstead, N. Y., but neither seems likely to become as successful as the distinguished ladies from whom they borrowed their stage names.

However, I can say with certainty that collectors who cherish the recordings of the original Marion Harris will keep her memory green for many years to come.

—0—

RECORDS BY MARION HARRIS (VICTOR, 1916-19)

- 18133 I Ain't Got Nobody Much; / Way Out Yonder in the Golden West (Avon Comedy Four)
- 18143 I'm Gonna Make Hay While the Sun Shines in Virginia; / There's a Little Bit of Bad in Every Good Little Girl (Billy Murray)
- 18152 My Syncopated Melody Man; / Paradise Blues
- 18185 Don't Leave Me, Daddy; / Come Along to Caroline (Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan)
- 18270 I Wonder Why (duet with Billy Murray); / Nesting Time in Flatbush (Ada Jones and Billy Murray)
- 18343 They Go Wild, Simply Wild, Over Me; / Some Sweet Day
- 18398 When I Hear That Jazz Band Play; / Lily of the Valley (Collins & Harlan)
- 18443 Everybody's Crazy 'Bout the Dog-

- gone Blues; / In the Land o' Yamo Yamo (Gus Van and Joe Schenk)
- 18482 There's a Little Lump of Sugar Down in Dixie; / Story Book Ball, (Murray)
- 18486 When Alexander Takes His Rag-time Band to France; / I'm Gonna Pin My Medal on the Girl I Left Behind (Peerless Quartet)
- 18492 Good-bye, Alexander; / When Uncle Joe Steps into France (Collins and Harlan)
- 18493 Mammy's Chocolate Soldier; / When You Sang "Hush-a-bye, Baby" to Me (Sterling Trio)
- 18509 After You've Gone; / I'm Glad I Can Make You Cry (Henry Burr)
- 18535 A Good Man is Hard to Find; / For Johnny and Me
- 18555 Jazz Baby; / Bring Back Those Wonderful Days (Arthur Fields)
- 18593 Take Me to the Land of Jazz; / I Ain't Got No Time to Have the Blues (Billy Murray and Ed Smalle)

VICTOR (1928)

- 21116 Man I Love; / Did You Mean It?

COLUMBIA (1920-1922)

- A2939 Everybody But Me; / Left All Alone Again Blues
- A2944 Homesickness Blues; / St. Louis Blues
- A2968 He Done Me Wrong; / Oh Judge, He Treats Me Mean
- A3300 I Told You So; / Sweet Mama, Papa's Getting Mad
- A3328 I'm a Jazz Vampire; / Never Let No One Man Worry Your Mind
- A3353 Grieving for You; / Yankee
- A3367 I'm Gonna Do It If I Like It; / Look for the Silver Lining
- A3371 I Ain't Got Nobody; / Where Is My Daddy Now Blues
- A3433 I Wonder Where My Sweet Daddy's Gone; / I'm Nobody's Baby
- A3457 I'm Looking for a Bluebird; / Sweet Cookie
- A3474 Beale Street Blues; / Memphis Blues
- A3555 Cuddle-Up Blues; / I Wonder Where He Went and When He's Coming Back Blues
- A3593 Poor Little Me; / Some Sunny Day

- A3604 Malinda Brown; / Maybe You Think You're Fooling Baby
- A3630 Fickle Flo; / Who'll Take My Place?
- A3646 Haunting Blues; / Nobody Lied When They Said I Cried About You
- A3659 Away Down South; / Send Back My Honeyman

BRUNSWICK (1922-1926)

- 2309 I'm Just Wild About Harry; / My Cradle Melody
- 2310 Sweet Indiana Home; / Blue
- 2318 Dixie Highway; / Brother-in-Law Dan
- 2329 Carolina in the Morning; / Homesick
- 2345 Aggravatin' Papa; / Hot Lips
- 2361 Mississippi Choo Choo; / Who Cares?
- 2370 I Gave You Up Just Before You Threw Me Down; / Rose of the Rio Grande
- 2395 I Ain't Got Nobody; / St. Louis Blues
- 2410 Runnin' Wild; / You've Got to See Mama Every Night
- 2421 Beside a Babbling Brook; / Dearest
- 2434 That Red-Head Gal; / Two-time Dan
- 2443 Waitin' for the Evenin' Mail; / Who's Sorry Now?
- 2458 Dirty Hands, Dirty Face; / Someone Else Walked Right In
- 2470 'Tain't Nuthin' Else; / I've Been Saving for a Rainy Day
- 2494 I've Got a Cross-Eyed Papa But He Looks Straight to Me; / Lovey Came Back
- 2513 Stealing to Virginia; / Your Mama's Gonna Slow You Down
- 2539 Before You Go; / Nashville Nightingale
- 2552 I Don't Want You to Cry Over Me; / St. Louis Gal
- 2610 It Had to Be You; / How Come You Do Me Like You Do?
- 2622 Jealous; / Hey Hey and Hee Hee
- 2651 There'll be Some Changes Made; / I Can't Get the One I Want
- 2672 Go, Emmaline; / Wanted-Someone to Love
- 2735 Somebody Loves Me; / Charleston Charlie

(Continued on page 34)

HOBBIES 20-YEAR LIST

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

1942-62 Articles

1942—Jan., Introduction; Mar., Edward M. Favor; Apr. through June, Billy Murray; July and Aug., John Bieling; Sept. and Oct., Albert Campbell; Nov. and Dec., Arthur Collins.

1943—Jan., Arthur Collins (concluded); Feb. and Mar., Byron G. Harlan; Apr. through June, Henry Burr; July and Oct., Steve Porter; Nov. and Dec., Harry MacDonough.

1944—Jan. and Feb., S. H. Dudley; Mar., William F. Hooley; Apr., Bob Roberts; May, Performers Who Used More Than One Name; June, Billy Golden; July, J. W. Myers; Aug., Some Minor Artists; Sept., George W. Johnson; Oct., George J. Gaskin; Nov. and Dec., Russell Hunting.

1945—Jan. and Feb., Russell Hunting (concluded); Mar. thru May, Dan W. Quinn; June, Are These the Supreme 15?; July through Sept., Harry Anthony and James F. Harrison (John Young and Frederick Wheeler); Oct. through Dec., Collectors Vote on the Supreme 15.

1946—Collectors Vote on the Supreme 15 (concluded); Feb. through Apr., Edward W. Meeker; May, More About S. H. Dudley; June through Dec., Ada Jones.

1947—Jan., Ada Jones (concluded); Feb., John Bieling Gives a Party; Mar. through Aug., Len Spencer; Sept., Sad News About S. H. Dudley; Oct. and Nov., Eugene C. Rose; Dec., "The Cheapest Talking Machine."

1948—Jan., John Bieling Gives Another Party; Feb., Gilbert Girard; Mar., Joe Belmont; Apr. and May, Grace Spencer; June, The Death of John Bieling; July, Frederic C. Freemantel; Aug., Reinald Werrenrath; Sept. through Nov., Vess L. Ossman; Dec., Another Memorable John Bieling Day.

1949—Jan. and Feb., Vess L. Ossman (concluded); Mar. thru Oct., Frank C. Stanley; Nov., Will Oakland; Dec., Notes from Early Victor Catalogs.

1950—Jan., Notes from Early Victor Catalogs (concluded); Feb., Billy Whitlock; Mar. through May, Richard Jose; June and July, Fred Duprez; Aug., Harry Lauder; Sept. and Oct., Bert Williams; Dec., The Best John Bieling Day.

1951—Jan. through Apr., Cal Stewart; May, Frank Coombs and William H. Thompson; June, Nat M. Wills; July, Manuel Romain; Aug. and Sept., Elizabeth Spencer; Oct., Charles Harrison and Beulah Gaylord Young (incomplete); Nov. and Dec., Walter Van Brunt (Walter Scanlan).

1952—Jan. and Feb., Walter Van Brunt (concluded); Mar., Charles Harrison and Beulah Gaylord Young (complete revision); Apr., Estella Louise Mann; May, First Ten Years of "Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists"; June and July, Albert Edmund Brown, Frederic Martin, and W. Francis Pirth; Aug., The Phonograph's 75th Anniversary; Sept. through Nov., Eddie Morton; Dec., Charles Adams Prince.

1953—Jan., Charles Adams Prince (concluded); Feb., George N. and Audley F. Dudley; Mar., Peter and Daniel Wyper and Alexander Prince; Apr. and May, More About the Early Days of the Phonograph; June through Aug., Arthur Fields; Sept. through Dec., Frank Crumit.

1954—Jan., Albert Benzler; Feb. and Mar., Albert Spalding; Apr. and May, Helen Trix; June and July, Ada Jones and the Shannon Four Give a Concert in Roanoke, Va.; Aug. and Sept., Guido and Pietro Deiro; Oct. and Nov., Pietro Frosini; Dec., More Early History of the Phonograph.

1955—Jan. through Mar., George O'Connor; Apr., Jottings from Old Catalogs; May and June, Ed Smalle; July and Aug., Silas Leachman; Sept., Vivian and Rosetta Duncan; Oct., Lewis James; Nov. and Dec., Morton Harvey.

1956—Jan. through Apr., Fred Van Eps; May, Murry K. Hill; June, The Champion Duet Singer (Henry Burr); July and Aug., Taurino Parvis; Sept. and Oct., George Alexander; Nov. and Dec., Mary Jordan.

1957—Jan., Sir George Robey; Feb. and Mar., Gene Austin; Apr. and May, The Record Makers Give a Concert in Pulaski, Va.; June and July, Gene Greene; Aug., Harvey Hindermeyer; Sept., Art Gillham; Oct., Edwin M. Whitney; Nov. and Dec., Charles D'Almaine.

1958—Charles D'Almaine (concluded), and Harry C. Browne; Feb., John J. Kimmel; Mar., Reed Miller; Apr., Vaughn De Leath; May, Billy Williams; June, Harry Tally and Harry Mayo; July through Oct., Len Spencer As His Daughter Ethel Lovingly Recalls Him; Nov., Ray Walker Recalls Entertaining Troops; Dec., Charles Hart.

1959—Charles Hart (concluded); Feb., Walter B. Rogers and Jules Levy; Mar. through Aug., Billy Jones and Ernest Hare; Sept. and Oct., Lambert Murphy; Nov., More About Charles D'Almaine and Taurino Parvis; Dec., John Yorke Atties and Dan Kelly.

1960—Jan., Polk Miller; Feb., Geoffrey O'Hara; Mar., Marguerite Farrell; Apr., George Wilton Ballard; May through Dec., Vernon Dalhart.

1961—Jan., Song Writers Who Made Records; Feb., Elise Stevenson; Mar. and Apr., Frank Croxton; May, June, and July, Harold Jarvis; Aug. and Sept., Elizabeth and William Wheeler; Oct. and Nov., Joe Natus and Will F. Denny; Dec., A Directory of Births and Deaths.

1962—Jan. through June, Peter Dawson.

MARION HARRIS

(Continued from page 33)

- 2747 Tea for Two;/The Blues Have Got Me
2784 I'll See You in My Dreams;/Why Couldn't It Be Poor Little Me?
2807 Does My Sweetie Do—and How!;/I Can't Realize 2836 When You and I Were Seventeen;/No One

BRUNSWICK (1931)

- 4663 Funny, Dear, What Love Can Do;/Nobody's Using It Now
4681 Nobody's Sweetheart;/My Fate is in Your Hands
4806 Wasn't It Nice?;/You Do Something to Me
4812 I Remember You From Somewhere;/Nobody Cares If I'm Blue
4873 Little White Lies;/If I Could Be With You

BRUNSWICK (1932)

- 4972 My Man From Caroline;/He's Not Worth Your Tears
6016 Blue Again;/He's My Secret Passion

ENGLISH COLUMBIA (1932)

- DB822 Is I In Love? I Is;/An Evening in Caroline
DB851 Gettin' Sentimental;/Spring is Here Again

ENGLISH DECCA (1934)

- F3954 One Morning in May;/Oo-Oo-Ooh! Honey
F5160 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday;/Singing the Blues

(The End)

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 460 North St., Greenwich, Conn. n3023

WANTED: Records, radio transcriptions, films, photographs, etc. by Guy Lombardo, Sammy Kaye, Blue Barron, Art Kassel, Ink Spots, Jan Garber. Highest prices paid. — Paul Scriven, 238 West State, Niles, Ohio. s3084

RECORDINGS, test pressings, and masters of Mario Chamlee and all related paper clippings. I will pay highest prices for any and all material. — Thomas O'Shaughnessy, Box 281, Rochester, Minn. Ja.6829

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8. (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All Advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. jly12407

ANY DISC RECORD of the 1894-1901 period wanted. — Bob Foote, 303 Unruh Ave., Philadelphia 11, Pa. o3272

TRANSCRIPTIONS, tapes, home-made recordings of Mark Warnow's orchestra and Hit Parade broadcasts 1939 to 1947. — Lyle Poole, 3041 Garlough Ave. S.W., Seattle 16, Wash. s3004

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. s3084

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. d6027

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N. Y. o3297

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. f128862

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

SIX COMEDIENNES

Aileen Stanley

Last of the Six

By JIM WALSH

This article is dedicated to a pair of veteran Aileen Stanley admirers—Burns Kattenberg of Bronxville, N.Y., and John W. Black of Wenonah, N.J.

I. Introductory

I wish I knew who first induced the lovely stage star, Aileen Stanley, to make records. The entire record collecting fraternity owes him or her a vote of thanks.

The question of how it happened that Aileen Stanley became a recording artist had never occurred to me until I began assembling notes for this sketch.

Then I noticed that at the beginning of 1920 there was not a record by her in any catalog, yet by the end of that year she was singing for nearly all the major American companies and many of the minor fry. But what caused such simultaneous recognition of the charming young lady's record making abilities?

Did Miss Stanley have an agent who decided her voice would record well and who successfully approached the various companies? Did a member of some firm's artist and repertoire department hear her in musical comedy and decide to give her a trial before the horn, after which other companies followed suit?

Or did Miss Stanley herself approach Victor, Pathé, Edison, and the rest? I don't know the answer. However, the fact that her offerings began to be issued by so many companies at about the same time makes it unlikely that one A. and R. man led the way and others followed.

Whatever the reason, I am glad 1920 added Aileen Stanley's name to the roster of active recording artists. She has been one of my special favorites for many years.

The former "Victrola Girl" is the last of the six comediennes in this series. She is also the youngest and one of the two still living. Elida Morris is the other.

Ever since I have conducted this department I have wanted to write about Aileen Stanley. Now, at last, I can pay this tribute to, and express my admiration of, the greatly gifted exponent of melody and laughter who was loved by millions of English-speaking people during her long career.

II. Early Years

My knowledge of Aileen Stanley's family background and early life is not extensive. The following is taken from an article which appeared in the Sunday Minneapolis Journal during one of Miss Stanley's visits to the Minnesota city:

"Aileen Stanley is English. Her family was prominent socially in England and her father died from the shock of losing his wealth. Her mother brought her two boys immediately to Chicago, where Aileen was born. She started singing when only three, and was on the stage at six, helping support her mother and brothers.

"She has won exceptional success in making records, has been given important parts in many noted revues, and is generally acknowledged to be one of the foremost entertainers in this country.

"Incidentally, her real name is Maude Elsie Muggridge, which wouldn't look well in lights; hence Aileen Stanley. Her brother Robert calls himself Stanley and is also on the stage."

That brings up another question: Who gave the singer the stage name of Aileen Stanley, by which she has remained so universally known?

Certainly, it fits her personality, and it is hard to imagine her being called anything else. The first name, by the way, is pronounced Aye-leen, not Al-leen or Eye-leen.

III. Victor, Gennett, and Edison Notes

It is odd that during the 10 years in which she was one of the most popular recording stars, Miss Stan-

Popular song of the day, Chili Bean, featured by Aileen Stanley.
—Courtesy Allen Debus

ley did not receive a biographical sketch in the yearly Victor catalog.

The long list of her records was not accompanied by any account of her career. When her first Victor disc was issued in November, 1920, however, the following comment appeared:

"Miss Aileen Stanley is a new Victor artist. She has been on the stage, intermittently, since she was 6 years old, and she confesses to 23. She has had, for all of her youth, some triumphant big years, her most recent success being in 'Silks and Satins.'"

I do not know the comedienne's birth date, but if she were 23 near the end of 1920, she most likely was born in 1897. An attractive photo was published with the write-up.

As a long-time admirer, I always think of Miss Stanley as looking like the pictures in those old Victor supplements. It is hard to realize time has not halted for her, and that she is now past 60.

The 1923 Gennett record catalog contributes this:

"In spite of her youth Aileen Stanley has had and is still enjoying an envious career in the musical world. She has been on stage scoring in the largest theaters since she was six years of age."

"At present she is only 24 and is now the principal comedienne in one of New York's musical successes of the present season."

"She possesses a beautiful, clear, full soprano voice and at the termination of the production in which she now appears will make a tour of the Keith Circuit."

The annotator must have meant "enviable" instead of "envious." Going by what the Victor supplement said, Aileen would have been 26, instead of 24, in 1923, but I suspect the sketch I have just quoted was written for an earlier Gennett catalog and the age was not changed when a new edition was issued. The production referred to probably was "Silks and Satins."

Considerably more information appeared in the Edison Phonograph Monthly for March, 1921, on which Miss Stanley's photograph graced the cover. The Edison article refers to the singer as a top vaudeville star, which makes it appear all the more likely the Gennett sketch was written in 1921, before she began to scintillate on the Keith Circuit.

Edison calls her "The Girl With The Personality," but I believe she was usually referred to as "The Personality Girl." A few years later, in American vaudeville she was "The Victrola Girl," and in Great Britain, "The Gramophone Girl."

I agree with Gennett that her voice is soprano, though it has some contralto range. Okeh called her a contralto, and Victor, except on one or two occasions, dodged the issue by terming her a comedienne.

Here is the Edison article:

"In the world of vaudeville, where she is regarded as a top-liner, Aileen Stanley is known as 'The Girl With The Personality.' It has taken her only a few years to achieve the distinction of being a vaudeville magnet."

"Watch her work, and you will be astonished at the apparent simplicity of her manner and method. Simple, unassuming, she faces huge audiences, and by a gesture or an intonation wins them."

"Miss Stanley hails from Chicago. When she was 7 years old, she did a team-act with her brother Bob, a few years older. It was not very long before the Orpheum Circuit claimed her."

"Billed for New York in due time, she won the big town within three months. Now producers are after her for her signature on contracts."

"In the summer of 1919, Miss Stanley was chosen by a committee of Chicago artists as the successful candidate in a contest to determine who was Chicago's prettiest bathing girl. Describing her at that time, the Chicago Herald-Examiner gave the following statistics:

"Height, 5 feet 8 inches; weight, 145 pounds; hazel eyes; chestnut brown hair; fair complexion."

"The singer is athletic. She gives credit to her two brothers for her mastery of outdoor sports."

"They are both athletes," says Miss Stanley.

"We were always chums. They taught me how to play ball. In fact, I can pitch and catch as well as most men. They also taught me to ride, motor, row, swim, golf and hunt. They took me along on all trips, and I got to be almost as proficient as they in outdoor sports."

"She omits to say anything about her singing, but others will do that for her. As they say in vaudeville, she can 'put over' a song—especially a character song—with the best of them."

I remember seeing an old issue of The Billboard published during the early 1920's, when Miss Stanley was known as "The Personality Girl." Each week the magazine printed a chart on which acts at the Palace

Convention of the MUSICAL BOX SOCIETY

October 5 & 6

in the

Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich.

Opening meeting for the public
Saturday Eve., October 5, 8 p.m.

in the Museum Auditorium

(The Musical Box Society is dedicated to perpetuating the art and craftsmanship of the old Swiss musical box makers.)

Membership includes musical box experts to owners of the smallest collection. This year's president is John Hoeltzel, 1013 Gordon St., Midland, Mich. op

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

tfx

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYLOR 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

Theater received a rating like those we used to get on our report cards.

Aileen Stanley was rated 100. The reviewer said her personality was so striking and her method of presenting her act so effective he could find nothing to criticize.

Of a somewhat later date, probably 1926, is the following Washington Post clipping, revealing that Aileen had returned from a triumphal visit to England with a desire to swim the English Channel:

"MADE A HIT IN ENGLAND. Aileen Stanley, Junoesque beauty, singer of songs for Victrola records, for vaudeville and for productions, recently returned from a truly sensational season in London, scoring particularly at the smart 'Kit Kat' club, will be the headline attraction at B. F. Keith's theater this week.

"New frocks and a new routine of songs, but the same engaging Aileen, a variety star who can be credited with world conquests. Where she hasn't appeared in person her records have represented her. She is known as 'the Victrola Girl.'

"Her latest London engagement was so successful that she is planning a return summer engagement. Singing is not all she is planning to do in England; she is preparing to make an attempt to swim the English Channel!

"Aileen once won a bathing beauty contest. It was in 1919, a contest conducted by the Chicago Herald-Examiner, which established her as 'Chicago's Most Beautiful Bathing Girl.'

"She is an exception to most bathing beauties, most of whom never go near the water, one who, in addition to looking beautiful in bathing attire, is an expert mermaid.

"I don't wish to appear boastful, says Miss Stanley, 'but I do think I can swim the Channel, and if I don't make it the first time I'll try again!'

"Miss Stanley has before jumped out of the spotlight to try some daring stunt. She is known as the first actress to have flown in an airplane. In 1920 she 'planed' from Chicago to Detroit to keep a vaudeville engagement."

Efforts to swim the English Channel were in vogue in those days, just as trying to take 50-mile hikes have been during 1963. (The hiking mania probably is at its peak as I write on Sunday, February 17th). But, as far as I know, Miss Stanley never did undertake to best the Channel. Gertrude Ederle tried, and succeeded.

IV. Brunswick, and Paramount

We may now begin to consider Aileen Stanley's records. I have puzzled about how to handle this part of the article, for the comedienne's discs and cylinders are too numerous to mention them all individually.

After consideration, I have decided that since she sang for several companies from 1920 through 1923, but apparently was exclusive to Victor after that, it will be best to dispose first of the recording she did for Pathé, Edison, and the others. That done, we may go into a detailed account of her Victor activities.

Research seems to indicate the first Aileen Stanley record issued by any company is Pathé 22407, which came out in October, 1920, one month before her first Victor. She sings both sides — "Ding-a-Ring-a-Ring" and "I'm a Jazz Vampire"—to piano accompaniment.

The name of the pianist is not given, but he may have been her stage accompanist, Bob Buttenuth, who also became her husband. I am sorry to say he died in 1961.

An undated supplement, but probably for May, 1921, says this, about another of her Pathé records:

"'You Ought to See My Baby' is no fond mamma's triumphal exhibit of her first-born, nor proud papa's boastful advertisement of his new-found happiness. 'In short, this baby — 'the neatest, cutest and sweetest baby of them all,' as the chorus ends it — is nothing more nor less than—But, on second thoughts, Aileen Stanley will tell you about it in her inimitable breezy way, so we may safely leave the secret to her wonderfully revealing powers."

Pathé began making Actuelle needle cut records in November, 1920, but "You Ought to See My Baby" is the only one I have been able to find listed in my incomplete files.

However, Burns Kattenberg says he has an Actuelle of her singing "I'm Nobody's Gal," "just as she did it in her vaudeville act. I can't remember the other side." This also has a piano accompaniment, probably by Buttenuth.

Aileen's one Brunswick recording combined her version of "The Broadway Blues," which she also sang for Victor, with "Chili Bean," by the late Fred Whitehouse, and was issued in December, 1920.

I have been told she considered her side to be badly recorded and asked Brunswick not to put it on sale. When it was marketed she refused to have any more dealings with the company.

Miss Stanley may have made several records for Paramount, but I have none of that company's listings and the only Paramount record by her I know of is one in my collection — "My Home Town is a One-Horse Town." It has a Charles Harrison ballad on its reverse.

(To be continued)

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathé discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathé records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. n3023

RECORDINGS, test pressings, and masters of Mario Chamlee and all related paper clippings. I will pay highest prices for any and all material. — Thomas O'Shaughnessy, Box 281, Rochester, Minn. Ja.6829

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. Jy12407

ANY DISC RECORD of the 1894-1901 period wanted. — Bob Foote, 303 Unruh Ave., Philadelphia 11, Pa. o3272

RECORDS WANTED: 2 minute Edison, gold, molded cylinder records, or Columbia, or any other brand, including Busy Bee cylinder records, Columbia, 5" oversize cylinder records. All must be in playing condition. Want certain styles of Edison and Columbia cylinder phonographs. Also want wooden organ rolls, in good condition. — Alton Vogel, Box 1210, Rockdale, Texas. o1234

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. d3084

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. d6027

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N. Y. o3297

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought.—The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. f128862

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $160? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid.—American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. ja120061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. o6407

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP.—ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. f6407

FOR SALE: Hundreds of disc and cylinder records, many types of early phonographs, 25c for list. Also "Evolution of the Phonograph," by Walter Welch and Oliver Reed, a complete history of the phonograph, 676 pages, regular price $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. n3407

RECORDS: free lists. 78's, cylinders, popular, classical. Reasonable prices. — Soffer, 657 W. 161st, New York 32, N.Y. n3804

1905 VICTOR Red Seal catalog, 16 pages reproduced by photo offset, $2. Request free lists of records. Mention artists you collect. One dollar refundable on first order. Also available rare 1915 photo of Al Jolson taken from old sheet music. Send $1 for photo and lists.—Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. n3848

CYLINDER RECORDS 50c each. Discs 25c and 50c each. Send for lists.—Gregory R. Reed, R.F.D. 4, Allentown 5, Pa. n3863

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8.

(Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All Advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

SIX COMEDIENNES

Aileen Stanley

Last of the Six

(Continued from the October Issue)

By JIM WALSH

This series is dedicated to a pair of veteran Aileen Stanley admirers—Burns Kattenberg of Bronxville, N.Y., and John W. Black of Wenonah, N.J.

V. Edison Discs and Cylinders
Really interesting material is reached when we come to Aileen Stanley's Edison Diamond Discs and Blue Amberol cylinders. I have all the discs. They are perfectly recorded and do the typically complete Edison justice to her voice and personality.

The first "My Little Bimbo Down on the Bamboo Isle," apparently was offered in December, 1920, a month after her Victor of the same song. It is coupled with what seems to be the last solo record Billy Murray made for Edison before signing his exclusive Victor contract.

Murray's song, "Chili Bean" (a successor to the greatest of all "nut songs," "Oh by Jingo," by the same writers, Lew Brown and Albert Von Tilzer), was introduced in "Silks and Satins," the stage production in which Miss Stanley had been appearing. She sang it in the show.

Her photo appeared on the "Chili Bean" sheet music cover, but I do not believe she made a record of that clever nonsense song.

"She Walks In Her Husband's Sleep" is an amusing Harry Von Tilzer song about a wise wife who knew how to get the best of her skinflint husband. She walked in his sleep, and her strolling led her to his pants pockets and wallet.

"Where Is My Daddy Now?" is typical of the blues songs of 1921. One of the most entertaining of Aileen's Edison records is "Scandinavia," which she sings irresistibly with a thick Swedish accent.

From the standpoint of melody, "Just A Week From Today" is probably the best of the comedienne's Edisons.

The envelope in which this record was packed says: "We are informed that this song is a favorite with both Aileen Stanley and her vaudeville audiences. It is a high class character song, the music of which was written by Bert Rule, and the words by Al Dubin and Paul Cunningham."

Burns Kattenberg, who almost certainly has more Aileen Stanley records than anyone else (he believes, 188 titles by her are stored away at his old home in Minneapolis), says "Just A Week From Today" is his favorite of all her Edisons.

He tells of an occasion on which Miss Stanley, who was then appearing at a theater in Minneapolis, visited his family.

The subject of Edison tone tests came up, and Aileen said she had never made one to determine whether the New Edison "re-created" her voice. Burns suggested that she try singing with the Edison record of "Just A Week From Today."

It had been several years since the Diamond Disc was issued, and the lovely lady didn't remember all the words. However, the record was placed on the red mahogany Chippendale Official Laboratory Model Edison, which Burns and I consider the most beautiful upright phonograph ever made.

After listening to the recording and refreshing her memory, Miss Stanley began singing with the phonograph. The Kattenberg family, at the other end of the room, were unable to tell when she was singing or when she had stopped and let the instrument carry on alone.

From that time, Burns had no doubts, if he had ever owned any, that the "tone tests" were everything Edison represented them to be.

The plaintive "I'm Nobody's Baby" was the Edison record which gave Kattenberg his first strong admiration of the singer. "Anna In In-

This song was a popular one in the repertoire of Aileen Stanley.
—Courtesy Allen Debus

diana" is as boisterously comic as "Nobody's Baby" is plaintive.

It tells the story of an Indiana farmer's love for a rustic girl who is so fat "she hides the farm when she sits down." Aileen makes the most of every humorous point.

"I'm Looking for a Bluebird" seems to have sold less than any of her other Edisons and is the only one hard to find today. "Boo-Hoo-Hoo" is a "weepy" serio-comic song. It came out early in 1922.

Then there was not another Edison record by Aileen Stanley until the last appeared in September, 1923. Her photo appeared on the cover of that month's record supplement. The song was "On the Isle of Wicki Wacki Woo," a catchy Walter Donaldson number, which, unlike most of that composer's songs, failed to win popularity.

The other side, "What You Was, You Used To Be," was sung by Helen Clark, erstwhile of the Metropolitan Opera, under the disguise of "Sally Collins."

Miss Stanley must have signed an exclusive Victor contract shortly after her last Edison record appeared.

There was no announcement of an exclusive signing, but, from late 1923 on, she made no more records for any American company except Victor.

All the Aileen Stanley Diamond Discs except two were dubbed onto Blue Amberols. The exceptions were "I'm Looking for a Bluebird," and "On the Isle." One of her numbers never appeared on the discs but was issued as a cylinder. It was "There's a Little Bit of Irish in All of Us."

VI. Aeolian-Vocalion Records

With the start of 1921, the comedienne's name began to appear in Aeolian-Vocalion supplements. The January issue said:

"Miss Aileen Stanley, a brand new Vocalion singer of popular songs, makes her bow to you this month. Miss Stanley has a unique little way all her own of singing jazz songs, so what more fitting than that she asks, 'What Cha Gonna Do When There Ain't No Jazz' in one of her first songs?"

"And its 'side-partner,' 'Look What You've Done With Your Doggone Dangerous Eyes,' is equally well done. There's a dash and go in Aileen Stanley's Vocalion numbers that account for her stage success in 'Silks and Satins,' in which she scored a big success."

I don't think Miss Stanley got especially good recording in this and her other Vocalion offerings.

Aeolian-Vocalion issued some superb hill and dale records for two years beginning in 1917, but after it switched to the lateral cut in March, 1920, the recording became dull and subdued, with a deficiency of overtones. The lateral records didn't have the sparkle and brilli-

BOB WILLS

Am interested in purchasing recordings of Bob Wills and His Texas Playboys on 78 r.p.m. recorded prior to 1950. These must be in good condition. Send list on other cowboy recordings prior to 1940. Enclose lowest cash price with each offer submitted.

CHAMBERS

P.O. Box 1079, Fort Smith, Ark.

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING—Cylinders repinned, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1508) Pelham, N. Y.
Specialists since 1925

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS
Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.)
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

742 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15 1/4" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House,
opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine

ance that had characterized those with vertical grooves.

The January Vocation supplement used the same picture of Aileen that had appeared two months earlier in the Victor list. In February, another photo was used, with this letter press:

"Aileen Stanley demonstrated in last month's record bulletin the unique ability with which she interprets novelty songs. Her singing of 'Sweet Mama, Your Papa's Getting Mad,' is the newest example of her fascinating style."

"By all means hear 'It's All Over Now,' the reverse recording by this clever comedienne . . . Miss Stanley doesn't keep you guessing as to a single word and the tune is unusually catchy."

In June, 1921, Aileen adorned the Vocation list with another double-faced offering:

"A double header of song hits are these two new numbers by Aileen Stanley. The lively 'I Was Born in Michigan' is sure to appeal not only to those from that state but from Maine to California as well."

"The entertaining Aileen sings her way surely into public favor in this up-to-the-minute recording of 'I'm Nobody's Baby.' There's something that 'gets' everybody in the clever half-talking way she puts over this novel song hit."

You will remember Miss Stanley also sang 'I'm Nobody's Baby' for Edison. The Vocation recording is not at all comparable to the Edison from the standpoint of first class portrayal of her voice.

In July, her Vocation selections were "Hortense," a "rube" song somewhat similar to "Anna in Indiana," and "Honey Rose." The bulletin said:

"She ain't good looking but she's got good sense—that's 'Hortense.' This is a most amusing rube love song. 'Honey Rose' is a Negro lullaby with a charming melody."

Vocation issued other Aileen Stanley records nearly every month through the remainder of 1921. Then a year elapsed before the next offering in December, 1922:

"Aileen Stanley, the popular comedienne, makes her Vocation reappearance after many months, in Irving Berlin's 'Homesick.' One would almost think he had Aileen in mind when he wrote the piece, so well adapted is her voice for singing it."

What appears to be Miss Stanley's last Vocation disc was issued toward the end of 1923. It was 14614, "I'm Going To Hop, Skip and Jump Into My Mammy's Arms," and "Louisiana."

VII. Gennett, Okeh, and Olympic

A brief sketch of the comedienne has already been quoted from a 1923 Gennett catalog. Listed in that catalog are eight songs by her (including four—"I Told You So," "I'm Missin' Mammy's Kissin'," "Emaline," and "I've Got the Red, White and Blue Blues"), that I cannot recall her singing for any other company.

It is possible that she made other Gennett records during 1923. But unfortunately, I don't have a catalog covering that year.

Aileen seems to have sung more consistently for Okeh, from 1921 through 1923, than for any other company except Victor. She infused a surprising amount of variety into her different lists, and apparently tried as far as possible to avoid singing the same songs for several companies.

Of course, there are exceptions. The songs on Okeh 4221, "Look What You've Done" and "What Cha Gonna Do When There Ain't No Jazz?" duplicate those on an Aeolian-Vocalion record already mentioned, but most of her other Okehs were sung for that firm alone.

"I've Got The Traveling 'Choo Choo' Blues" is an especially good one, and "My Man" on the reverse side gives it added value. I don't have her Okeh of "Oh, How He Lied To Me," but I'd like to hear the other side, to try to identify the members of the Okeh Star Trio.

Olympic probably is the most obscure company for which Miss Stanley recorded. She may have made more titles than the seven I am able to list.

Record 14111 was advertised in The Musical Courier for July 2, 1921, with the comment: "In A Little Front Parlor" will be on this record what it is on sheet music and music rolls, an unusually popular hit."

A month or two later, Olympic 14113 was advertised as containing two songs reproduced from the comedienne's vaudeville act:

"Miss Stanley is now a headliner in vaudeville, and is on one of her transcontinental tours."

"Before she left New York we had her make for Olympic discs an exact duplicate reproduction of her act in vaudeville, with piano accompaniment. These records are true to life, except for a vision of her charming self."

Her picture appeared at the top of the ad.

That completes my commentary on all the Stanley records, except the most important group—those she made for Victor.

(To be continued)

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphires, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfr

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. n3023

RECORDINGS, test pressings, and masters of Mario Chamee and all related paper clippings. I will pay highest prices for any and all material. — Thomas O'Shaughnessy, Box 281, Rochester, Minn. Ja.6329

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. Jly12407

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collector's items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. d3084

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A R G, 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. d6027

50 Years of old songs and popular favorites. Also band, instrumental and classical vocal records. Tell us your wants. Send for free lists. — David B. Heyman, 528 East 3rd St., Brooklyn 18, N. Y. o3297

Comprehensive Monthly Lists of 78's, including hundreds of unusual out-of-print and rare vocals mailed on request. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. f128862

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. jcl20061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. ap6407

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. f6407

FOR SALE: Hundreds of disc and cylinder records, many types of early phonographs, 25c for list. Also "Evolution of the Phonograph," by Walter Welch and Oliver Reed, a complete history of the phonograph, 578 pages, regular price $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. n3407

RECORDS: free lists. 78's, cylinders, popular, classical. Reasonable prices. — Soffer, 657 W. 161st, New York 32, N.Y. n3804

1905 VICTOR Red Seal catalog, 16 pages reproduced by photo offset, $2. Request free lists of records. Mention artists you collect. One dollar refundable on first order. Also available rare 1916 photo of Al Jolson taken from old sheet music. Send $1 for photo and lists. — Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. n3848

CYLINDER RECORDS 50c each. Discs 25c and 50c each. Send for lists. — Gregory R. Reed, R.F.D. 4, Allentown 6, Pa. n3863

SEND A STAMP for small monthly list of record bargains. — M. F. Bryan, Francis St., Danielson, Conn. d3272

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. (Formerly Ted's of Philadelphia.) d3844

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 3.

(Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All Advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

SIX COMEDIENNES Aileen Stanley

Last of the Six

(Continued from the November Issue)

By JIM WALSH

This series is dedicated to a pair of veteran Aileen Stanley admirers—Burns Kattenberg of Bronxville, N.Y., and John W. Black of Wenonah, N.J.

I. Electrical Recording

Although 1924 had been a bad year for the phonograph and record industry, most of 1925 was worse.

Victor, for which Aileen Stanley now recorded exclusively, was still doing more national advertising than any other American firm, but a touch of desperation lurked in its efforts to convince the average citizen he should buy a Victrola and records rather than blow his money for a battery-operated radio. The company's 1924 sales volume was less than half what it had been in 1920, and the downward trend was accelerating at year's end.

Miss Stanley was among the January, 1925, Victor artists. She sang "Back Where the Daffodils Grow!" The monthly supplement said it was "in fox-trot rhythm."

In April, Aileen had two songs on one record, "When My Sugar Walks Down the Street" and "I Ain't Got Nobody to Love." The "Sugar" side has historic interest, for a reason that should be apparent from the supplement description:

"Two highly popular numbers in a manner which is the contemporary outgrowth of the 'blues.' The first introduces one of its composers, Gene Austin, as an assisting artist. It has a catchy melody and rhythm, and has dicky-bird effects and queer vocal ululations. The companion number, for the soprano alone, is in very much similar style, and, judged by the tests of popular music, is something of a knockout."

It has just occurred to me that I had never before noticed Miss Stanley's being referred to as a soprano in that write-up. This was the first Victor in which Gene Austin, who was to become one of the most popular recording artists and help restore prosperity to the phonograph business, appeared. It was also the first in which Aileen had a partner other than Billy Murray. Gene did not sing a duet with the lovely lady; his duties were mostly to make "loo-loo-loo'ing" noises. This was the comedienne's last acoustic record.

Electrically-cut discs were introduced in the June supplement. Without the microphone, such vocalists as Austin and "Whispering Jack" Smith, who sang very softly, could not have won the great popularity they were to have. Their "crooning" was unsuited to the acoustic method.

The November, 1925, supplement gave the first opportunity for Aileen's admirers to find out what electric recording did for, or to her singing. It turned out that hers was among the voices that sounded better on lateral cut records when caught by the microphone than when it went into a horn. The songs were "You're in Wrong with the Right Baby" and "Want a Little Lovin'." and the supplement said:

"Could anything be more awful than being in wrong with the right baby—even being in right with the wrong one? Aileen . . . gets into blackface, so to speak, for the record . . . Both songs are to the piano, and they are two of the best, in their especial degree, that Aileen Stanley, pluperfect songstress of the popular mind, has yet put on a record for us."

II Aileen and Billy Again

The early electric process was not kind to Billy Murray's voice and style, but he sounded well in two duets which appeared in December, 1925. The songs were the first Aileen and Billy had made together by the new process, and their first teamwork in a year.

One, "Keep Your Skirts Down, Mary Ann," was in the great "fussing" tradition of "Maggie (Come Right Upstairs.)" To quote the supplement:

"Little Mary Ann has been rolling her stockings and letting one dimpled knee be seen when she sits down. In this record she gets her orders from Mother, despite her ejaculations of 'Apple-sauce' and her protestations that skirts are growing shorter. The record is lively and clever. Then Billy and Aileen have a sentimental number in fox-trot style. To forsake the terms of art for a moment, this record is one of the finest jobs these two artists have ever made for the Victor."

In January, 1926, the duo were heard in one of their most amusing records, a Bowery struggled classic, "Down by the Winegar Woiks." On the other side Billy struggled through a lamentable effort to "croon" a solo version of "Roll 'Em, Girls," which also dealt, like "Mary Ann," with the rolled hose problem. Recording Director Eddie King had decreed that since electrical recording had come in, Billy's former "hammering" style was out, and he must conform to the Gene Austin or Jack Smith pattern. Billy protested he was no crooner but gave in of necessity and did the best he could with an unnatural singing method. The result, as he angrily told me years later, was one of his poorest records. It was also his last Victor solo. After that he sang only in duets or with the Billy Murray Trio.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

However, the "Winegar Woiks" side was admirable. Said the supplement:

"Aileen and Billy have an interesting time of it in the first song, which is East-side 'tough' style to the typical old East-side waltz. Billy confesses to his new Jane that he lives down past the viaduct, down by the winegar woiks, where the people are so tough they have to chain the children to keep them from fighting the dogs."

That same month, Aileen had a record on which she sang both sides, assisted by Billy "Uke" Carpenter, who not only played the ukulele but made vocal noises like those Gene Austin had produced in "When My Sugar Walks Down the Street." The songs were "Flamin' Mamie" and "Sweet Man."

"Flamin' Mamie" contained the words, "her father's name was Burns—he worked in a mine," and Miss Stanley later told Burns Kattenberg that she thought of him when she sang the word "Burns." Naturally, that made Burns proud, and he was also proud when she returned from an engagement at the Kit-Kat Club in London and brought him one of the seven-inch souvenir records given to patrons at her opening performance. It contained an introductory song and a few spoken words greeting the first night audience.

Miss Stanley came back from her visit to Britain with a ukulele that had been autographed by many notables. Among the signers was Prince George, one of her admirers, who succeeded his brother Edward, the present Duke of Windsor, as King.

February, 1926, was a bad month for admirers of the graceful and humorous style of the Victor supplement writer, James E. Richardson. Although electrical recording and the Orthophonic Victrola were restoring Victor products to prosperity, the company discontinued its beautifully printed booklet supplements and substituted a four-page folder that merely listed the new records with the briefest possible information about them.

Aileen occupied both sides of No. 19863. The titles were "No Man's Mamma" and "Mighty Blue." In the first, there was a spoken passage at the beginning in which she revealed that Aileen was pronounced "Aye-lean." The supplement writer had only space enough to comment: "Clever topical songs; one indignant, one weepy Comedienne." What a comedown from the former delectable descriptions!

In May Miss Stanley was back with "I Love My Baby," which again included "ukulele and jazz effects by 'Uke' Carpenter." The rapidly rising Gene Austin was on the other side with "How I Love Her and She Loves Me Is Nobody's Business." The combination was described as "vociferous popular ditties with a 'punch' to them."

The July list contained a double-faced Stanley offering that had a surprisingly short life. The titles were "What a Man!" and "I wonder What's Become of Joe." Both were cut out when the 1928 catalog appeared, but the "Joe" song especially was catchy and attractively sung.

A month or two later came what, taking both sides into consideration,

I would nominate as the best Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray record: "Any Ice Today, Lady?" and "Whadda You Say We Get Together?" The first, with Aileen representing a hardboiled housewife and Billy an iceman with a rasping bass voice, is one of the funniest—probably the funniest duets they ever perpetrated.

CENTURY HOUSE, Watkins Glen, N. Y.

Story of old songs (pictures and some music) was first published as a hardbound at $8.50. Now available in soft cover at $4.50; J. McAndrew, 2569 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., says, "I received your old music books and am very much pleased with them. They are much more comprehensive than any others. I wish to have 2 more, Freeman's 'The Melody Lingers On' ($8), and Roehl's Player Piano Scrapbook (3); with coupon, all 3 books $10.50."

do

FOR SALE LLOYD G. KELLEY MUSIC BOX CO.

Hanover Four Corners, Mass.

Telephone: TAYlor 6-4434

All Electric Player Organ 5' H. x 6' L. x 32" W.
Hurdy-Gurdy (Barrel Organ) with two 26" rolls, 10 tunes each. 45" h. x 30" w. x 18" d. Price: $350.
English Hurdy-Gurdy (Barrel Piano). Spring-wound with coin slot. 10 tunes. 52" h. x 42" l. x 34" w. Price: $350.
Roller Organ with 10 tune rolls. 6 1/4" long. Cherry cabinet. Price: $85.
Seeburg Nickelodeon Piano. Plays "A" rolls. Needs restoring.
Steinway upright piano. One of very first with player action. Circa 1895 - Automaton Player Company of New York.
27" Regina music box, mahogany cabinet, 12 tune automatic record changer with 18 tune discs. Price: $750 F.O.B. Hanover.
Mahogany upright Regina, single record player with 18 tune discs. Price $675 F.O.B. Hanover.
Dozens of other mechanical music items for sale - Write for current lists.

do

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUKE labels
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS (such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

tfx

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1008 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

FOR SALE

REGINA MUSIC BOX CO.

Hanover Four Corners, Mass.

Lloyd G. Kelley, Successor

Phone: TAYlor 6-4434

15 1/2" Regina music box Christmas tunes. All tunes $5 each. Add $1 for postage.

1028 Silent Night
1029 O Sanctissima
1162 Adesie Fideles
1423 O Tannebaum
3026 Come Hither Ye Children
3028 White Christmas
3029 Jingle Bells
3030 The First Noel
3031 Hark, The Herald Angels Sing
3032 Santa Claus is Coming to Town

1ao

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - Cylinders repinned, combs repaired & tuned, all part repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N. Y. tfo

Specialists since 1825

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 - Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15 1/2" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

tfx

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House, opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine

tfx

Aileen Stanley with the late John L. Norton, Jr. and Sr., at the 1948 John Bieling Day, Garden City, N. Y.

On the B side the couple meet at a public telephone booth. Billy intercepts a call for Aileen. They discover both have lost their sweethearts and before the record ends they have kissed and consoled each other—probably the shortest and fastest switch from one love affair to another in history.

When this record was issued in England, however, it drew a rather unfavorable review from The Gramophone:

"Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray are superbly recorded in frightfully American songs . . . but the telephone is as usual unconvincing."

That "frightfully American" description induces a chuckle. The unmistakable Americanism of "Any Ice Today, Lady?" was what made it so funny to Stateside hearers—just as the intense Britainism of George Robey or Dan Leno bewilders and baffles most Yankees. However, the husky, burlesqued basso profundo in which Billy spoke at the beginning of the record must have confirmed the belief of some of his admirers that he had lost his natural tenor voice—an impression that had become current several months earlier when Victor had him make several records while he was, as he expressed it years afterwards to me, "almost dead with a cold and so hoarse I could hardly gasp."

His duet with Henry Burr, "I Wonder Where My Baby Is Tonight," was among the hoarse-voiced gaspers, and so was "D'ye Love Me?" which he sang with Gladys Rice. He also did the refrains to several dance records, one of which, "In Your Green Hat," sounds terrible, with electrical distortion added to the rasping voice quality. Victor insisted on his recording under such trying conditions because the Eight Famous Victor Artists were soon to leave on a long tour, and the company didn't want to wait months for Billy to return before recording several popular numbers.

I had an amusing personal experience concerning "Any Ice Today, Lady?" Shortly after I moved in 1943 from Johnson City, Tenn. to Roanoke, Va., I became a friend of John Williamson, who then worked in the Federal Government's war-time rent control office. One day I went into the office and found John singing "Any Ice" to a pretty girl, Marion Mundy. He explained that the Stanley-Murray duet, which had been issued 17 or 18 years before, had always been one of his favorites. I said it was also among my enthusiasms. John and I fell into the habit of greeting each other with "Any Ice Today, Lady?" whenever we met, and the custom has continued to this day.

The December supplement listed a Stanley-Murray combination that attracted more attention than any of their other records. That was especially true in England, where it was a sensation. It was another mother-daughter "quarrel" on the order of "Maggie" and "Keep Your Skirts Down, Mary Ann," and again the antagonists were Irish. The title was "Bridget O'Flynn." On the B side Aileen and Billy sang a love duet, "Who Could Be More Wonderful than You?"

Mr. Richardson wrote:

"Bridget O'Flynn is a sweet little girl, and you will love her. She brings the Boy Friend home from a dance, and, on the front steps, in the first successful spoken whispering record ever made, they exchange some innocent confidences. Bridget's 'Mom' overhears, and she is cross. She even slaps the girl, but is reminded she once did the same thing herself, her ill-humor dissolves and little Bridget is forgiven. Aileen Stanley is Bridget and Billy Murray is both Mom and the Boy Friend."

The whispers at the beginning really are whispered, and you have to listen close to catch what the couple are saying. Billy told me a cat imitation was by Aileen. She exclaims, "Darn that cat! I hope it didn't wake Mother!" and immediately Ma's strident voice is heard vociferating: "Bri-jet! Bri-jet O'Flynn!"

For several months the record was listed as one of Victor's big sellers. Overseas, The Gramophone was rapturous. In the February, 1927, issue, "Peppering" said:

"Of duets and such-like, I am glad to be able to recommend a really good effort by Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray in 'Bridget O'Flynn,' with 'Who Could Be More Wonderful Than You?'"

The next month he wrote:

"There's nothing so good to report this month as the 'Bridget O'Flynn' record of Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray."

Compton Mackenzie, the distinguished novelist who then edited and still publishes The Gramophone, had a low opinion of most comic records, but he wrote in April:

"How many comic records stand playing half a dozen times? Very few . . . Take these last three months. Apart from one amusing record of John Henry about a cinema film, and a song of Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray called 'Bridget O'Flynn,' I cannot find a single disc worth writing anything about."

Finally, in October, 1927, "Peppering," reviewing some new comic records, spoke nostalgically of "the immortal 'Bridget O'Flynn.'"

Unfortunately, however, despite its initial large sales, "Bridget" proved to be far from immortal. It was cut out of the 1929 Victor catalog after a life of only two years. In England, it was still available through 1933.

III. A New Partner

Let's go back to November, 1926, and quote Mr. Richardson's description of Aileen's record of "Six Feet of Papa." The Gramophone considered it hilarious and reprinted it, but apparently with a half-shocked feeling that it was extremely informal and "frightfully American."

"Aileen Stanley, at least in the world of song, is seeing things just now in a sweet pink light. You have heard her, on past records, yearn for a man, sass the iceman, or make a date for a chowder-club dance with some young citizen of the toughest make nature produces. But this time she is in special luck, for she has fallen in love with a new Papa, who is six feet tall and likely to be a rough kisser."

The sentiment of the "Papa" song is, as Jim Richardson broadly hinted, rather unrefined but Aileen makes it irresistible. Its coupling is a beautifully sung rendition of "Looking at the World Through Rose-Colored Glasses."

One record issued in 1927 but unknown to most Aileen Stanley collectors deserves special mention. It is 20511, "Nay, Nay, Neighbor" and "Gonna Get a Girl." Burns Kattenberg is the only collector I know of in the East who has a copy of this record, which was issued in April, 1927, for West Coast distribution only. Presumably it was pressed at the new plant Victor had erected in Oakland, Calif. Just why it was sold only on a regional basis is something I don't know, but a Victor dealer's numerical catalog for the entire United States omits it. The Stanley record must have been one of five discs restricted to the West, for all numbers from 20506 to 20512 are missing.

During May or June, 1927, one of the back covers of the Saturday Evening Post carried a Victor advertisement that featured comedy artists instead of the usual Red Seal stars. Aileen Stanley and Billy Murray were among them, and there was a picture of the pair.

The Stanley-Murray partnership, however, was about to run out. In July they had a double-faced duet record, "Does She Love Me?—Positively-Absolutely" and "I'm Back in Love Again," but then a change occurred.

Eldridge R. Johnson, who had founded the Victor Talking Machine Company in 1901, was in ill health and sold the company to a firm of New York bankers, J. W. Seligman & Co. I have been told that the new owners, who sold out a few years later to the Radio Corporation of America, assumed control with a determination to get rid of the long established artists who had expensive contracts and to replace them with new singers. "Fresh, young voices" was the watchword. The late Walter Clark, brother of Alfred Clark, who headed the Gramophone Company in England for many years, was given the unenviable job of telling the old-timers their services were no longer required. By the end of 1927 there was a general exodus of Victor's former top-ranking performers, and Billy Murray was among those who no longer had a contract.

In his place, Victor brought in a young tenor from Oklahoma, who, beginning in 1924, had made a few Okeh records, some of them duets with a baritone, Charles Sargent. Marvin first sang for Victor in 1926 while he was appearing in "Honeymoon Lane." Eddie King, who was in charge of the company's "popular" recording activities, paid him $75 to sing the refrain in a Nat Shilkret dance record of "Half a Moon" from "Honeymoon Lane." Marvin was then recording regularly for Edison and Columbia, but late in 1927, after his work had made a favorable impression, he became exclusive to Victor.

As Billy Murray went out, Johnny Marvin came in not only as a soloist who could play his own accompaniment on the Hawaiian guitar or ukulele (he was known as "The Ukulele Ace"), but as duet partner for Aileen Stanley and Ed Smalle. He had a pleasing but not especially distinctive voice, and his accent showed strong traces of Midwest and Southern influence. For instance, he pronounced "can't" as "kyain't."

Only one of the 1927 Stanley-Marvin duets calls for special comment. It was issued in October and was No. 20822, "I Walked Back from the Buggy Ride." Aileen and Johnny give an excellent impersonation of a wise cracking rustic couple, with the girl a bit suspicious of the boy's intentions.

On the A side, Aileen and Billy sang the last duet they were to record before Victor showed Murray to the door after he had recorded for it a quarter of a century and made it more money than any other singer. It was an excellent "tough life" sketch with the irresistible title of "I'm Gonna Dance With De Guy Wot Brung Me." Just as "Bridget O'Flynn" had been the first successful needle-cut whispering record, so the new title was probably the first in which the sound of someone—Aileen—chewing gum was reproduced. Said Mr. Richardson:

"Tragedy, comedy and half-cynical farce from common life by popular singers. The falling tears, the bursting of sobs mingle . . . with the audible mastication of chewing gum and the hoof-clatterings of a runaway horse."

IV. End of Victor Career

Only four Stanley and Marvin duet titles were issued in 1927. Then something strange happened. The record business was good in 1928 and Aileen Stanley was still popular both on records and on the stage, but not one single Stanley disc was issued all that year. The comedienne seems not to have been a victim of the "get rid of the old-timers" edict, so it's hard to understand why 1928 brought no Aileen Stanley records. Perhaps she was appearing in England most of the time.

Incidentally, 1928 was the year in which Victor's peerless supplement writer, Mr. Richardson, died. His place was taken by the late Charles O'Connell, who lacked Richardson's graceful style and turned the supplement descriptions into undistinguished sales "pitches."

Aileen Stanley's next appearance as a Victor artist was in the supplement for March, 1929. She sang "I'll Get By As Long As I Have You." On the reverse, Johnny Marvin, who had been steadily gaining popularity and now ranked with Gene Austin, Jack Smith and Frank Crumit among Victor's best selling male singers, was heard in "You Wanted Someone to Play With."

March also brought a Stanley-Marvin duet, "Ev'rybody Loves You." This record had an amazingly short career. It was cut out by the time the December supplement (now back in the fine old-time booklet form) was issued.

In April, Aileen had two solos, "Give Your Little Baby Lots of Loving" and "I'll Never Ask for More." (Does the second title indicate she didn't like the "lots of loving" after she got it?)

September produced a surprise. Billy Murray, who had been freelancing for several companies, returned to Victor as a duet partner for Aileen in the last record they made together. It was "Katie! Keep Your Feet on the Ground!" A return to the "mother-daughter" status of "Maggie" and "Bridget O'Flynn." On the other side Billy and Walter Scanlon (with the name misspelled as Scanlon) had an excellent comedy number, "Oh! Baby, What a Night."

Said Charles O'Connell:

"For those who enjoy those comic and tuneful duets so closely associated with music halls, this record will provide a lot of 14-carat entertainment. Billy Murray has long been before the public eye as a Victor artist, although this is his first record for some time. With Aileen Stanley he sings a skit that has to do with aviation. Billy takes the part of Katie's mother, giving her the sound advice, 'You haven't the wings of an angel, so, Katie, keep your feet on the ground."

Partnered by Walter Scanlon, Billy embarks on another skit, this time laid in the stag line of a party. The tune is catchy and the words clever, with many such passages of wit as the "Biblical dress" that was "low and behold." You'll all enjoy this record . . . The diction's as clear as crystal, and the melodies are snappy."

The depression that began late in 1929 plunged the record business into a downspin that made the one of 1924-25 seem by comparison the peak of prosperity. There were no more Aileen Stanley duets with either Billy Murray or Johnny Marvin, who died in Hollywood, Calif., December 20, 1944. Marvin's health had been impaired by a trip he made to entertain American soldiers in the South Pacific.

Aileen didn't appear again in Victor lists until September, 1930, when she offered two solos, "Swingin' in a Hammock" and "I Love You So Much." Her final Victor appearance was in November, when the titles were "I'll Be Blue, Thinking of You" and "Wasn't It Nice?" After the end of 1930 few vocal records of popular songs were issued, although there continued to be a fairly good representation of dance bands and country music.

V. English Recordings

Aileen Stanley continued to be a stage attraction after she ceased making records. Her recording career had lasted almost exactly ten years. I have a clipping referring to her starring in "Messrs. Shubert's 'A Night in Spain,'" but cannot date it precisely. I assume it was published in the early 1930's.

The comedienne remained a great attraction in England and seems for a time to have gone there almost every year. In April, 1934, The Gramophone reported:

"That charming American artist, Aileen Stanley, who recently paid a flying visit to this country, made two records in the Brunswick studios while she was here. 'Over On the Sunny Side' she brought over with her and made an instantaneous success with it in both her music-hall and cabaret appearances, so obviously she recorded it. . . . The accompaniment on both sides was really remarkable, and if one did not know that the record was made in this country it would be quite possible to believe that the players were some of America's recording stars of the Dorsey Brothers' calibre."

"This is followed by 'Aileen Stanley Song Successes,' in which she weaves a little story of two lovers into such songs as 'How Do You Do' (which is her theme song), 'My Best Girl,' 'Ain't That a Grand and Glorious Feeling?' 'Somebody Stole My Gal,' 'Souvenirs,' and so on."

"Here is a singer whom you are never likely to mix up with anyone else, whose individuality is more impressive than her

(Continued on page 49)

BILLY MURRAY AND HENRY BURR

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists—first in a series of 12" LP pressings. Includes Casey Jones, When Paddy McInty Plays the Harp, My Dream of the Big Parade and 12 other selections. Price $5.95 postpaid, including tax, or C.O.D.

RECORDING ENTERPRISES UNLIMITED

Box 661

Boca Raton, Florida

da

WANTED

Antique Penny Banks and Toys of Good Quality

Also Toy Catalogs
Correspondence invited and given prompt attention.

F. L. BALL
984 Memorial Drive Cambridge 38, Mass. ttc

We are accepting orders for

REPAIR SERVICE

on

MECHANICAL BANKS and TOYS

We also buy old banks.

GEORGE W. BAUER
P.O. Box 145

Pottstown, Pa. ttc

MECHANICAL BANKS*WANTED

Especially the more
Scarce Banks

FRANK LAUGHLIN

1134 E. Douglas Wichita, Kansas ttc

MECHANICAL BANKS*REPAIRED

Buy! Sell! Trade!

PARTS FURNISHED. COIN TRAPS — WILL BUY BROKEN BANKS; PARTS; OLD COINS; GLASS MARBLES, Etc.

V. D. HOWE

395 W. Utica St., Buffalo 22, N.Y. ttc

TOYS WANTED

ILLUSTRATED Catalog. 82 typical old toys & prices I pay. Catalog $1 refunded on purchase of toy for my collection.—
Lawrence Altman Antiques, Toys & Bells of the World, 4703 McPherson Ave., St.
Louis 8, Mo. au124032

EARLY TOYS, bought and sold continually. High grade cast iron horse drawn carriages, wagons, fire apparatus and all types of rigs unusual and elaborate. Live steam trains, boats, and fire pumps. Cap shooters, bombs, fire houses, catalogs, iron trains and especially elaborate bell toys. — Lloyd Ralston, 1192 Youngstown, Warren, Ohio 44484
f3008

TOYS FOR SALE

OLD TOY COLLECTION for sale. 47 cast iron pull-string trains, all sizes.
8 tin wind-ups. 2 large frictions, 19
animal drawn tin, wood, cast iron toys.
Hand moving 6½ ft. detailed model B&O Hudson loco on track. Other items included. Best offer over $1500 by Dec.
1, buys all. Send 4½x9" self-addressed envelope with 10c stamp for inventory.—
G. B. Hallowell, 1103 Woodbourne Ave.,
Baltimore, Md. d1485

WANTED

ANTIQUÉ TOYS AND MECHANICAL BANKS

Toy Jobbers Catalogs

Describe fully and state price

PERELMAN ANTIQUÉ TOY MUSEUM

339 Winding Way

Merion, Penna. tfo

MECHANICAL BANK*BOOKLET

A new booklet useful to both dealer and collector. Complete listings and new grading system. In seven parts covering the complete field of American, foreign, semi-mechanical, patterns, recasts, fakes, and variations.

NOW AVAILABLE PRICE $2

F. H. GRIFFITH

P.O. Box 10644, Pittsburgh 35, Pa. ttx

BANKS WANTED

Want old toy electric trains, trolleys, street cars. Especially want Ives Locos No. 3245, 1134, 1764, 1694.
Also Boucher or Voltamp. — Bert
Race, 199 Orange St., Albany, N.Y.
Tel. HO 5-0761, except Sundays.

my122703

PLEASE NOTE my mechanical bank display ad in this section, listing various wants. — F. H. Griffith, P.O. Box
10644, Pittsburgh 35, Pa. ttx

OLD mechanical and still banks, toys, describe, state price, condition. — Sco-field's, Box 457, Ridgefield, Conn. f12069

OLD mechanical and still banks, collections bought. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate, Troy, Ohio. f12238

ANNOUNCEMENT: We are now dealing in antique banks. Can use singles or collections, both stills and mechan-icals. Have several for sale or trade.
List 10c. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate,
Troy, Ohio. mh6299

MECHANICAL BANKS FOR SALE

HAVE nice selection of still banks and few mechanicals. Please enclose stamp for list. — A. Hotze, 9326 McKenzie
Rd., Affton 23, Mo. s12804

SEE MY DISPLAY AD elsewhere in this issue with two fine, rare mechanical bank offers. — Mrs. Ann Wolf, Boonville, Mo. d1061

PENNY PINEAPPLE cast iron Mechanical coin banks, cast iron circus wagons. Picture brochure and prices 15c.
— High, Dept. H4, 1219 Girard, Wyoming,
Pa. f3863

STILL BANKS WANTED

ANIMAL BANKS (old iron) especially eagle, frog, goat, hippopotamus, hen, opossum, steer, turtle, walrus. Describe fully, price. — Sidney Partridge, Marlboro, N. H. f3253

AILEEN STANLEY

(Continued from page 36)

voice, and whose personality pervades even the gramophone record to the exclusion of all criticism."

Exactly a year later, in April,
1935, Roger Wimbush wrote in The Gramophone:

"There should be a big public to welcome back Aileen Stanley (the 'gramo-phone girl' of early days) in some of her song successes on Decca M461...
This is a clever piece of presentation and is redolent of the singer's personality."

Unfortunately, Wimbush didn't give the title of this record and I don't have a Decca catalog of that period, but it has just occurred to me that I might find it in the Talking Machine and Wireless Trade News, and I did. The title is "Song Successes," which sounds like the same medley she had recorded for Brunswick.
Hubert S. Ryan made this comment in the May, 1935, issue:

"This selection of 'song hits' is strung together in a manner which makes a connected story—a novel and rather effective idea. As for the singer, she has quite the best American soubrette manner, and gets away with it all vivaciously enough."

Miss Stanley also made a few His Master's Voice records in 1935. Ryan's review of "Rags" and "Don't You Ever Fall in Love" in the August T. M. N. of that year sounds faintly satiric:

"Two more or less artless ditties sung in the most admired transatlantic fashion by Aileen Stanley, a comedienne whose manner and accent leave us in no doubt whatever as to her nationality.
'Rags' will appeal to dog lovers, and the number on the reverse side to those with a wider amorous scope."

In December, 1935, "M.E.C." writing in The Gramophone, said:

"Aileen Stanley, an old friend whose records are rather few and far between, sings 'I'm Livin' in a Great Big Way' and 'I'm in Love All Over Again'...
She still contrives to be quite different from anyone else."

(Continued next month)

MECHANICAL BANKS & TOY PISTOLS

ESPECIALLY WANT MECHANICAL BANKS:

- |                        |                   |
|------------------------|-------------------|
| • BOWERY BANK          | • MUSICAL SAVING  |
| • ROYAL TRICK          | • BANK            |
| • ELEPHANT (Tin)       | (You pay—I play)  |
| • WIMBLEDON            | • PREACHER IN THE |
| • BOWLING ALLEY        | PULPIT            |
| • BANK                 | • TARGET          |
| • RED RIDING           | • RIVAL           |
| • HOOD                 | • SMYTH X-RAY     |
| • FOOTBALL             | • BRITISH LION    |
| (Colored man kicks     | (Tin)             |
| ball)                  | • TOAD IN DEN     |
| • SCHLEY BOTTLING      | (Tin)             |
| UP CERVERA             | • PERFECTION      |
| • PRESTO               | REGISTERING       |
| (Penny changes to      | BANK              |
| quarter)               | • GIANT IN TOWER  |
| • JAPANESE BALL        | • DARKY           |
| TOSSEY                 | • FISHERMAN       |
| (Tin wind-up)          | • FROG ON ARCHERD |
| • SHOOT THAT HAT       | • TRACK (Tin)     |
| BANK                   | • TIME LOCK       |
| • TOMMY BANK           | SAVINGS           |
| (Prone, Soldier Shoots | • CLOWN (Bust)    |
| Gun)                   | • SNAKE & FROG    |
| • BULL & BEAR          | IN POND (Tin)     |
| BANK                   | • WINNER SAVINGS  |
| • COASTING BANK        | (Tin)             |

PISTOLS:

- |                   |                  |
|-------------------|------------------|
| • CAMERA          | • TWO DOGS ON    |
| • DOLPHIN         | BENCH            |
| • TORPEDO Shooter | • SCAR WILDE     |
| • HUMPTY, DUMPTY  | BOMB             |
| (Three heads)     | • TAMMANY PISTOL |
| • SAILING SHIP    | (Tiger Head)     |

Also want Cast Iron horse drawn carriages, animated bell ringing pull toys, old toy automobiles old catalogs showing banks & toy pistols.

F. H. GRIFFITH

P.O. Box 10644 Pittsburgh 35, Pa. ttx

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

SIX COMEDIENNES Aileen Stanley

Last of the Six

(Continued from the December Issue)

By JIM WALSH

.....
This series is dedicated to a pair of veteran Aileen Stanley admirers—
Burns Kattenberg of Bronxville, N.Y., and John W. Black of Wenonah, N.J.
.....

Apparently the last record Miss Stanley made in England or, as far as I know, anywhere else, was H. M. V. BD444, issued in 1938. The titles were "It Looks Like Rain in Cherry Blossom Lane" and "I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm." World War II, which began in 1939, must have ended her frequent visits to England.

The comedienne made a good many radio transcriptions, and I have a couple of them, which reveal her voice at its best. She also made guest appearances on radio shows. In October, 1940, the late Albert Campbell took me to her office in the Brill Building in New York City, but to my sorrow the lady whom I so much admired wasn't in. I was told that she had largely given up stage work to train and manage young women singers.

To this period belongs a clipping from Ben Gross' column in the New York Daily News. I think it appeared in 1946:

"Aileen Stanley, the manager, had better find herself a manager. For she'll probably soon be needing one for herself. As the guide of the destinies of the popular Murphy Sisters . . . she recently walked into a new career. Once a singing star in her own right, Aileen, while at NBC on business, ran into Lloyd Egnor, network vice president in charge of radio recording. 'You're the very one I want to see,' he announced. Then and there, remembering her professional work in the past, Egnor signed Aileen for a series of NBC library transcriptions.

"But there was more to come. Having arranged a new NBC contract for the Murphys, their manager proceeded to wind up details for their disc debut on Victor records. Again Aileen's singing triumphs were remembered, and now Victor is considering having her make an album of nostalgic favorites. Also, the Stanley girl is working on a new radio show and Paramount Pictures is paging her for a screen test."

Too bad that neither the Victor engagement nor the screen contract appears to have materialized. Even today a lot of people would welcome a new long-playing record or two by Aileen Stanley!

VII. And Finally—

Veteran HOBBIES readers will remember that the late John Bieling gave parties at his Hempstead, New York, home in 1946 and 1947, for a few of his fellow pioneer recording artists and their collector admirers. When John died in 1948 it was decided to continue the annual meetings and to call them John Bieling Days.

Photo by Allen G. Debus.
Aileen Stanley embracing Billy Murray at the 1948 John Bieling Day party, while Irving Kaufman looks smilingly on.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

The first Day was held in September, 1948, at the Garden City Hotel on Long Island. Several months earlier, I wrote to Aileen Stanley and urged her to attend. Her New York studio was then still in the Brill Building at 1619 Broadway, and her letterhead showed she also had a Hollywood studio at 8820 Sunset Boulevard. On May 15, 1948, she replied:

"Dear Mr. Walsh: I shall be more than happy to be at your Recording Artists and Record Collectors' Party on September 10th.

"Should anything come up that would necessitate my going out of town, naturally I wouldn't be able to attend—but I am looking forward to meeting you, and seeing my old friend, Billy Murray. Until then, all best wishes, AILEEN STANLEY."

Nothing occurred to keep Aileen and her husband from joining the group that assembled on that historic day, and she captivated everyone. She looked more mature, of course, than in her recording days. She wore glasses and her hair was touched with gray, but the charming personality and the equally charming voice and singing style were unchanged. I remember with pleasure the wave of the hand and the lovely smile she gave me during the dinner, when I was seated at the head table and she was not far away. That afternoon, to the accompaniment of Bob Buttermuth's rhythmic piano playing, she sang several of her favorite record numbers. Her protégé, a beautiful blonde girl known as Aileen Stanley Jr., also sang in a style much like that of her teacher and manager. I have a radio transcription by Junior and the resemblance to Aileen Stanley's singing methods is unmistakable.

One of the high spots of the occasion was the reunion of Aileen and her former recording partner, Billy Murray. They had not met for years, and they were truly happy to see each other. What a shout went up when Aileen embraced around Billy and kissed him, while the master of ceremonies, Irving Kaufman, looked beamingly on!

After I returned to Virginia and had rested from my trip, I wrote to both Miss Stanley and Aileen, Jr., telling them how much I had enjoyed being with them and hoping we should meet again. I received a cordial reply from Aileen in behalf of both, reciprocating my good wishes, but we have not seen each other since. They planned to attend the 1950 John Bieling Day (there have been no more since), but last minute circumstances prevented.

Recently, I learned that Aileen Stanley, who formerly lived on Riverside Drive in New York, now makes her home in Los Angeles. I wrote to Kay Campbell, a Variety writer, for information about Miss Stanley's present-day activities, and received this note:

"Dear Jim: Aileen Stanley returned my call a few minutes ago.

"Her husband died in '61.
 "She bought a house here for her mother in '29 and is occupying it now.
 "Her permanent headquarters are in L.A. Owns a building at 8820 Sunset Blvd. . . is manager for Gina Ginardi and her niece, Aileen, Jr. Semi-retired, does a bit now and then for films and TV.
 "Phone: CR 6-4804 (home). OL 2-7011.
 "She would like to hear from you."

I passed the Los Angeles address on to Aileen's lifelong admirer, John Black. He wrote to her and has received several cherished letters, which he has framed.

Since receiving Kay Campbell's helpful information I have tried several times to talk with Miss Stanley by long distance, but perhaps because of the time lag between Vinton, Va., and Los Angeles, Calif., have not been able to reach her. Miss Campbell, you will observe, refers to Junior as Aileen's niece. I have read elsewhere both that the blonde young lady is her niece and that they are not related, but presumably the statement of kinship came from Aileen in her conversation with Miss Campbell.

I shall have the issues of HOBBIES containing the Aileen Stanley series sent to the comedienne with the hope that she will approve and enjoy them, as I and innumerable other admirers have enjoyed her recorded artistry for so many years.

(The End)

—O—

RECORDS BY AILEEN STANLEY (Victor, 1920-1930)

(NOTE: Both sides—separated by a semicolon—are by Aileen Stanley unless otherwise indicated. "B. M." in parentheses denotes a duet with Billy Murray; "J. M." a duet with Johnny Marvin.)

- 15591 Broadway Blues; My Little Bimbo Down on the Bamboo Isle.
- 15703 I've Got the Blues for My Old Kentucky Home; Singin' the Blues (Till My Daddy Comes Home).
- 15760 Home Again Blues; Pucker Up and Whistle (Billy Murray).
- 15774 All By Myself; Anna In Indiana (Arthur Fields).
- 15784 I Wonder Where My Sweet, Sweet Daddy's Gone; Stand Up and Sing for Your Father an Old-Time Tune (Billy Murray and American Quartet).

(Continued on next page)

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

CENTURY HOUSE, Watkins Glen, N. Y.

Story of old songs (pictures and some music) was first published as a hard-bound at $3.50. Now available in soft cover at $4.50: J. McAndrew, 2669 Bedford Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., says, "I received your old music books and am very much pleased with them. They are much more comprehensive than any others. I wish to have 2 more, Freeman's 'The Melody Lingers On' ($8), and Roehl's Player Piano Scrapbook (3); with coupon, all 3 books $10.50."

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

FOR SALE
REGINA MUSIC BOX CO.
 Hanover Four Corners, Mass.
 Lloyd G. Kelley, Successor
 Phone: TAYlor 6-4434

15½" Regina music box Christmas tunes. AD tunes $5 each. Add $1 for postage.
 1028 Silent Night
 1029 O Sanctissima
 1162 Adeste Fideles
 1423 O Tannebaum
 3026 Come Hither Ye Children
 3028 White Christmas
 3029 Jingle Bells
 3030 The First Noel
 3031 Hark, The Herald Angels Sing
 3032 Santa Claus is Coming to Town

jac

Antique MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - Cylinders replined, combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired, cases refinished, all work guaranteed.

Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1566) Pelham, N.Y.
 Specialists since 1825 lfc

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfc

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling. tfc

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 842-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House, opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine

tfx

18799 I've Got the Joys; Strut, Miss Lizzie (American Quartet).
 18855 Boo Hoo Hoo (B. M.); In My Heart, On My Mind, All Day Long (B. M.).
 18876 Oh You Beautiful Baby (B. M.); Georgia (Peerless Quartet).
 18909 Whenever You're Lonesome (B. M.); I Certainly Must Be in Love (Billy Murray).
 18922 Sweet Indiana Home; Why Should I Cry Over You? (Victor Roberts).
 18935 Dixie Highway; My Cradle Melody (Peerless Quartet).
 18943 All Over Nothing at All (B. M.); I'll Stand Beneath Your Window Tonight and Whistle (B. M.).
 19026 When the Leaves Come Tumbling Down (B. M.); You Know You Belong to Somebody Else (Henry Burr).
 19027 You've Got to See Mama Every Night (B. M.); Runnin' Wild (Isabelle Patricola).
 19039 Don't Think You'll Be Missed; No One Loves You Any Better Than Your M-A-Double M-Y (Billy Murray and Ed Smalle).
 19114 Maggie! (Yes, Ma'am — Come Right Upstairs!) (B. M.); Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake (Billy Murray).
 19144 I'm a Lonesome Cry Baby; My Sweetie Went Away (Billy Murray and Ed Smalle).
 19221 Big Hearted Bonnie (B. M.); Not Here — Not There (Billy Murray).
 19231 Promise Me Everything, Never Get Anything Blues (B. M.); You May Be Fast But Your Mama's Gonna Slow You Down (B. M.).
 19411 New Kind of Man With a New Kind of Love for Me; Charley, My Boy (Billy Murray).
 19431 You'll Never Get to Heaven With Those Eyes (B. M.); Dumb Dora (Billy Murray).
 19443 Put Away a Ray of Golden Sunshine; When I Was the Dandy and You Were the Belle (B. M.).
 19454 Somebody Loves Me; All Alone With You in a Little Rendezvous (B. M.).
 19486 Everybody Loves My Baby; De Clouds Are Gwine to Roll Away (Vernon Dalhart).
 19502 Back Where the Daffodils Grow; Me and the Boy Friend (Jane Green).
 19585 When My Sugar Walks Down the Street (assisted by Gene Austin); I Ain't Got Nobody to Love.
 19707 You're in Wrong with the Right Baby; Want a Little Lovin'.
 19795 Keep Your Skirts Down, Mary Ann (B. M.); If I Had a Girl Like You. (B. M.).
 19828 Flamin' Mamie; Sweet Man (assisted in both by Billy "Uke" Carpenter).
 19838 Down By the Winegar Woiks (B. M.); Roll 'Em, Girls (Billy Murray).
 19863 Mighty Blue; No Man's Mama.
 19950 I Love My Baby; How I Love Her and She Loves Me is Nobody's Business (Gene Austin).
 20056 I Wonder What's Become of Joe; What a Man!
 20065 Any Ice Today, Lady? (B. M.); Whadda You Say We Get Together? (B. M.).
 20096 Down By the Gas House (B.M.); I Ate the Baloney (Billy Murray and Monroe Silver).
 20148 I Can't Get Over a Girl Like You (B. M.); Who Wouldn't? (B. M.).
 20198 Looking at the World Through Rose-Colored Glasses; Six Feet of Papa.
 20240 Bridget O'Flynn (B. M.); Who Could be More Wonderful Than You? (B. M.).
 20391 Don't Be Angry With Me; If I'd Only Believed in You (Jane Green).
 20511 Nay, Nay, Neighbor; Gonna Get a Girl.
 20643 I'm Back in Love Again (B. M.); Positively—Absolutely (B. M.).
 20714 Side by Side (J. M.); Red Lips, Kiss My Blues Away (J. M.).
 20787 Under the Moon (J. M.); Sing Me a Baby Song (Vaughn De Leath).
 20822 I'm Gonna Dance Wit de Guv Wot Bring Me (B. M.); I Walked Back From the Buggy Ride (J. M.).
 20825 Broken Hearted; Who Are You Fooling Tonight? (Vaughn De Leath).
 21839 I'll Get By As Long as I Have You; You Wanted Someone to Play With (Johnny Marvin).
 21848 Everybody Loves You (J. M.); When the World is at Rest (Chick Endor).
 21874 Give Your Little Baby Lots of Loving; I'll Never Ask for More.

 22040 Katie, Keep Your Feet on the Ground (B. M.); Oh Baby, What a Night! (Billy Murray and Walter Scanlan).
 22465 Swingin' in a Hammock; I Love You So Much.
 22524 I'll Be Blue, Thinking of You; Wasn't It Nice?

"His Master's Voice" (England)
 (1925-36)

B1976 Everybody Loves My Baby; Put Away a Little Ray of Golden Sunshine for a Rainy Day.
 B2606 I Ain't Got Nobody to Love; When My Sugar Walks Down the Street.
 B2615 My Best Girl; You're in Wrong With the Right Baby.
 B2022 Alabamy Bound; It Was Only a Dream.
 B2087 Can't Your Friend Find a Friend for Me? Give Me Just a Little Bit of Your Love.
 B2338 Any Ice Today, Lady? (B. M.); Whadda Ya Say We Get Together? (B. M.).
 B2392 Bridget O'Flynn (B. M.); Who Could Be More Wonderful Than You? (B. M.).
 B2502 Does She Love Me, Positively, Absolutely (B. M.); I'm Back in Love Again (B. M.).
 B2519 Red Lips, Kiss My Blues Away (J. M.); Side By Side (J. M.).
 B2521 Don't Be Angry With Me; If I'd Only Believed in You (Jane Green).

In 1923 Oké distributed record brushes featuring a photo of Aileen Stanley.

B2565 Under the Moon (J. M.); Sing Me a Baby Song (Vaughn De Leath).
 B2578 I'm Gonna Dance Wit De Guy Wot Brung Me (B. M.); I Walked Back From the Buggy Ride (J. M.).
 B2590 Here Am I, Broken Hearted; Who Are You Fooling Tonight? (Vaughn De Leath).
 B2991 I'll Get By As Long As I Have You; Everybody Loves You (J. M.).
 B3014 I'll Never Ask for More; Give Your Little Baby Lots of Lovin'.
 B3632 Swingin' in a Hammock; I Like to Do Things for You (Grace Hayes).
 B3690 Wasn't It Nice?; Nobody Cares If I'm Blue (Gene Austin).
 BD251 Don't You Ever Fall in Love; Rags.
 BD289 I'm in Love All Over Again; I'm Livin' in a Great Big Way.
 BD444 I've Got My Love to Keep Me Warm; It Looks Like Rain in Cherry Blossom Lane.

English Brunswick (1934)

01706 Over on the Sunny Side; Who Walks In When I Walk Out?
 01722 Aileen Stanley Song Successes—Parts 1 and 2.

English Decca (1935)

M461 Song Successes—Parts 1 and 2.
 Edison Diamond Disc (1920-23)
 50707 My Little Bimbo Down on the Bamboo Isle; Chili Bean (Billy Murray).
 50729 She Walks In Her Husband's Sleep; No Wonder I'm Blue (Ernest Hare).

50736 Where-Is-My-Daddy-Now Blues?; Play Me a Dixie Melody (Al Bernard).
 50761 Scandinavia; Strut, Miss Lizzie (Al Bernard).
 50768 Just a Week From Today; My Budding Rose (Vernon Dalhart).
 50791 I'm Nobody's Baby; I've Waited So Long (Bert Harvey).
 50804 Anna in Indiana; Oh, They're Such Nice People (Billy Jones).
 50825 I'm Looking for a Bluebird; My Daddy (Jim Doherty).
 50919 Boo-Hoo-Hoo; Carolina Rolling Stone (Vernon Dalhart).
 51207 On the Isle of Wicki Wacki Woo; What You Was, You Used to be (Sally Collins).

Edison Blue Amberol Cylinders
 (1920-22)

4147 My Little Bimbo Down on the Bamboo Isle.
 4204 Where-Is-My-Daddy-Now Blues.
 4233 She Walks In Her Husband's Sleep.
 4256 There's a Little Bit of Irish in All of Us.
 4268 Scandinavia.
 4293 Just a Week From Today.
 4327 I'm Nobody's Baby.
 4349 Anna in Indiana.
 4487 Boo-Hoo-Hoo.

Aeolian-Vocalion (1920-23)

14124 What Cha Gonna Do When There Ain't No Jazz?; Look What You've Done With Your Doggone Dangerous Eyes.
 14134 Sweet Mama, Your Papa's Getting Mad; It's All Over Now.
 14151 O-HI-O; Boll Weevil Blues (Ernest Hare).
 14161 Timbuctoo; Nestle In Your Daddy's Arms (Elliott Shaw and Charles Hart).
 14172 I Was Born in Michigan; I'm Nobody's Baby.
 14188 Hortense; Honey Rose.
 14202 You Made Me Forget How to Cry; They're Such Nice People (Ernest Hare).
 14216 It Takes a Good Man to Do That; Melontime in Dixieland (Harmonizers Quartet).
 14230 Stand Up and Sing for Your Father an Old-Time Song; There's Only One Pal, After All (Ernest Hare).
 14237 Cry Baby Blues; Who'll Be the Next One to Cry Over You (Ernest Hare).
 14451 Homesick; Call Me Back, Pal o' Mine (Charles Hart).
 14614 I'll Hop, Skip and Jump Into My Mammy's Arms; Louisiana.

Brunswick (1920)

2047 Broadway Blues; Chili Bean (Fred Whitehouse).

Gennett (1921-22)

4646 I Told You So; Jinga Bula Jing Jing Jing (Billy Jones).
 4689 I'm Missin' Mammy's Kissin'; Aunt Jemima's Jubilee (The Harmonizers).
 4719 Scandinavia; I Was Born in Michigan.
 4728 Emaline; Nice People (Billy Jones).
 4819 Boo 'Hoo, Hoo; I've Got the Red, White and Blue Blues.
 4836 My Home Town is a One Horse Town; Alabamy Mammy (Strand Theater Quartet).
 5007 Don't Bring Me Posies (When It's Shoesies That I Need); You Tell Her, I stutter (Ernest Hare and Billy Jones).

Oké (1921-23)

4221 Look What You've Done With Your Doggone Dangerous Eyes; What Cha Gonna Do When There Ain't No Jazz?
 4275 Gone Are the Days; My Mammy.
 4326 I've Got the Traveling "Choo Choo" Blues; My Man.
 4358 It Takes a Good Man to Do That; Mimi (Me Me).
 4409 I Want My Mammy; Tuck Me to Sleep in My Old 'Tucky Home (Billy Jones).
 4415 Mandy 'n' Me; 'Tain't Nothin' Else But Jazz.
 4513 Weep No More, My Mammy; Write and Tell Your Mammy I'm Coming Home.
 4524 Bow Wow Blues; Granny (You're My Mammy's Mammy).

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY ANNOUNCES MAJOR SERVICE

- Olympic (1921)
- 14104 Anna in Indiana; Puckle Up and Whistle.
- 11109 Honey Rose; Mini.
- 11111 In a Little Front Parlor (On an Old Back Street); I'm Looking for a Bluebird to Chase My Blues Away. (Al Bernard).
- 14113 Ma! (He's Making Eyes at Me); Mandy 'N' Me.

- Paramount (1921)
- 20040 My Home Town is a One-Horse Town; Broadway Rose (Charles Harrison). (This record was also listed as Puritan 719.)

- Pathe Sapphire (1920-21)
- 22107 Ding-a-Ring-a-Ring; I'm a Jazz Vampire.
- 22484 That Taila-Hassee Lassie of Mine; Why Don't You? (Ernest Hare).
- 20509 You Ought to See My Baby; Scandnavia (The Harmonizers).

- Pathe Actuelle needle-cut (1921)
- 620509 You Ought to See My Baby; Scandnavia (The Harmonizers).
- 4513 On the 'Gin 'Gin 'Ginny Shore; Mamma Gone Blues (Elsie Clark).
- 4677 Coal Black Mammy; Mandy (Ernest Hare).
- 4698 True Blue Sam; Tune In With My Heart (Ernest Hare).
- 4736 Away Down East in Maine (with Vincent Lopez's Orchestra); Swanee Smiles (Lopez's Orchestra).
- 4792 Chicago (That Toddlin' Town); Lovin' Sam (The Sheik of Alabama).
- 4791 Lost, A Wonderful Girl; Wanita (Billy Jones).
- 4905 Oh, How She Lied to Me; Down Among the Sleepy Hills of Tennessee (Okeh Star Trio).
- 40017 I'm Sittin' Pretty in a Pretty Little City; Swanee River Blues (Olga Steck).

LET US KNOW IF YOU'RE MOVING

- So that there will be no interruption in your subscription, please give us 6 weeks advance notice.
- Please state OLD and NEW address, and date you will be at new address.
- Send your notice to:

Circulation Department

HOBBIES Magazine

1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 5, Ill.

Under a grant of $150,000 from the Rodgers and Hammerstein Foundation, The New York Public Library will for the first time be able to make available to the public its comprehensive collection of more than 90,000 recordings now in dead storage. The collection will be prepared for use in the Performing Arts Library and Museum now being constructed at Lincoln Center, and will be known as the Rodgers and Hammerstein Record Archives.

The Library record collection was started in 1937, but space for accessible storage and a listening room has never been available. In scope, the archives range from the Lionel Mapleson unique wax cylinder recordings of performances at the Metropolitan Opera (1901-1903) to recent LP releases.

Both musical and non-musical recordings are included as are phonograph and phono - wire as well as cylinders and discs.

Some of the great rarities included are the only known complete set of the original celebrity recordings in the Columbia Grand Opera Series, a privately recorded 7-inch disc of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, which is earlier than any commercial recording of her voice, the speeches of Dwight Moody, the voices of Ellen Terry and John Burroughs, and an early Sophie Tucker cylinder. Early recording artists represented include Emma Carelli, Olympia Boronat, Victor Maurel, Adelina Patti, Celestina Boninsegna, and many others.

The Rodgers and Hammerstein Foundation was set up for the purpose of giving grants to institutions and individuals engaged in the fields of theatre, music and lyrics, musical plays, and recordings.

Through the generous gift of the Rodgers and Hammerstein Foundation, a large part of this remarkable treasury of recordings will be catalogued for the first time and listening equipment will be provided. After the opening of the Rodgers and Hammerstein Record Archives in the Performing Arts Library and Museum at Lincoln Center, the public will be able to listen to these recordings with the assistance of staff and appropriate attention to the rarity and fragility of the more valuable items in the Archives.

The Library's record collection has been assembled under the guiding hand of Philip L. Miller, Chief of the Music Division. As one of the nation's leading record critics, Mr. Miller conducts a column in The Library Journal and is senior critic for American Record Guide. His reviews and articles have appeared in many periodicals, and he is the author of "The Ring of Words," an anthology of song texts, and the volume on vocal music in the Knopf "Guide to Long Playing Records" series. On November 4, he will leave for a tour of record archives in Europe. While in London he will speak in the lecture series of the British Institute of Recorded Sound.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

1

2

3

4

5

1. Ever-friendly Roger responds to the caresses of Thomas A. Radcliffe of Collingwood, N.J. (Perhaps he thinks Mr. Radcliffe, a noted collector of sheet music and records, is Santa Claus in disguise!)
2. Weeks before Christmas, Nipper mounts guard at the top of the stairs, to make sure he gets the first glimpse of Santa.
3. Even Possey, who lives somewhere in the basement, but comes upstairs to visit Roger, Nips and Jim in their second floor bedroom, is sniffing for traces of the old gentleman in the red suit.
4. Percy shows annoyance because Snappy, the Turtle, has invaded the porch and eaten from his plate. He thinks Snappy is a bad boy and Santa should strike him off his list.

5. Petey was reported dead a year ago, but his HOBBIES friends will be glad to know he had only left home on an extended journey (perhaps looking for Santa Claus) and returned home in good health after being gone more than six months. He hopes Santa will leave something for him on the old well house in the rear of our spacious yard. Here Petey responds in 1961 to the attentions of his record collector friend, Quentin Riggs.

TO HOBBIES READERS
THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
FROM ROGER, NIPPER, PETEY,
PERCY AND JIM WALSH (Possey, the 'Possum, and Snappy, the Turtle, want to be included, too!)

In the midst of the Holiday gladness, all of us at 225 No. Maple St., Vinton, Va., will cherish the memory of the golden-hearted Gray, who was taken from us September 11, 1962. We agree that no sweeter or better cat could have lived and be lost to those who loved him.

jax

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Marie Narelle and Berrick Von Norden

PART I

By JIM WALSH

1. Many Maries

Thomas A. Edison, or his recording experts, had a weakness for women singers or players with the first names of Mary, Marie, or Marie.

Especially Marie. Through the years in which Edison cylinders or discs were issued there were Mary Jordan and Mary Porter Mitchell, contraltos; Mary Zentay, violinist; Maria Galvany, Maria Farnetti, and Maria Labia, sopranos, and the following Maries:

Comedienne—Marie Dressler.
Soprano (popular)—Marie Hoy.
Sopranos and contraltos (concert)—Marie Kaiser and Marie Morrissey.
Sopranos (operatic)—Marie Delna, Marie Rappold, Marie Sundelius, and Marie Tiffany.

And:
Soprano (ballads and "heart songs")—Marie Narelle.

These photographs of "The Australian Nightingale," Marie Narelle, also known as "the soprano with the perfect recording voice," are reproduced from The New Phonogram for December, 1905, and October, 1910.

Even with this impressive list, I may have missed a few Maries. But we have arrived at the heroine of the present study — Marie Narelle, the Australian soprano, whose wax two-minute Edison cylinders were treasured by thousands of proud owners between 50 and 60 years ago as the only "perfect" reproductions of the soprano voice.

We shall consider later the accomplished tenor who in this article shares "top billing" with the "Australian Nightingale." But for the moment our business is with Marie Narelle.

Regardless of whether her records were "perfect," Miss Narelle did have a remarkably sweet and sympathetic voice and a gift for making her sincerity and natural "homey" qualities register through the old-time recording horn.

II. First Recordings

Although the Edison publicity writers frequently used rhapsodic terms in describing Marie Narelle's singing, they gave comparatively little information concerning her personal life. About the most enlightening Edison biographical sketch is the following from the April, 1914, catalog of Blue Amberol cylinders.

It mentions that she had sung in concert with John McCormack, but does not reveal that she and McCormack both made their initial appearances before American audiences at the 1904 World's Fair in Saint Louis:

"MARIE NARELLE, DRAMATIC SOPRANO . . . is an Australian, born of Irish parents. She is considered the greatest ballad singer of today, and has endeared herself to the public for many years. She has toured the entire English-speaking world—making successes in concert everywhere.

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

"She recently toured the United States with John McCormack, sharing honors with him. She not alone appeals to the ear with her beautiful singing, but to the heart also, for she is a soulful singer, and a true artist, with a wonderful voice, and a thorough technical knowledge of how to use it."

Miss Narelle's initial appearance in the Edison lists was in September, 1905, with 9031, a rendition of one of her favorite numbers, "Killarney." This is the description that appeared in The New Phonogram:

"This record introduces a new singer to the admirers of the phonograph. Miss Narelle comes from Australia. She is a well-known concert singer, having taken part in concerts with the best vocal and instrumental artists in her own country, Great Britain, Europe, and America.

"She has a powerful, well-trained soprano voice of adequate range and agreeable quality. Her rendition of our record of 'Killarney' will be recognized as the work of a finished artist."

The cylinder had an introduction by Edward Meeker, who did virtually all the Edison announcing in those days. It said: "Killarney. Sung by Miss Marie Narelle. Edison record."

Meeker pronounced the singer's last name as "Nah-RELL," with a slight emphasis on the second syllable. Photographs which appeared some time afterward showed her to be a young woman with an impressive hair-do and a prominent chin.

"Killarney" was reviewed in the October, 1905 Talking Machine News, published in London. The English magazine's description was more eulogistic than the New Phonogram writer's rather weak comment about the soprano's "adequate range" and "agreeable" voice. It said:

"... A triumph of art in recording is Miss Narelle's 'Killarney.' It is the only faultless record of this piece we have, and it will charm in every particular by the clearness of its words as well as its magnificent tone and volume. We can do with more records of ladies' voices like this."

More than a decade later T.M.N. readers argued as to whether the later Narelle cylinders were "perfect reproductions of the soprano's voice," as their admirers contended, or didn't sound like her, as was insisted by some adherents of needle-cut discs.

Also in the September, 1905, supplement was a cylinder of "The Adieu," which the Australian diva sang with Harry Anthony (the late John Young.) "Anthony" was her only male duet partner until two other tenors came along. One of them was Berrick Von Norden, whose name appears with hers in this article's headline. The New Phonogram said:

"9092. This is a sentimental composition of the better class and one of the so-called standard kind that live and are always well liked.

"Miss Narelle's success in making a record of 'Killarney' . . . warranted the belief that she would also be appreciated in duets with an artist of Mr. Anthony's calibre. We are sure the public will agree with this opinion."

The Talking Machine News briefly described "The Adieu" as "a good, clear duet." It was not a big seller, but the near-sensation which "Killarney" caused among the record buyers of 58 years ago made it certain that other Marie Narelle records would be welcomed.

In October, Miss Narelle again touched Irish heart-strings. This time she sang "Weaving of the Green." The Phonogram commented:

"Even better than Miss Narelle's record of 'Killarney' in September is her rendition of this song, so dear to the heart of every true son and daughter of old Ireland. The sentiment of the song will appeal strongly to them, but Miss Narelle's artistic singing will cause the records to be sought by all classes."

A month later the Talking Machine News termed it "a charming record by Miss Narelle."

November, 1905, brought a Narelle record, 9138, of a less widely known ballad, "The Sweetest Flower That Blows." In December there was an almost full length photo of the lady, together with a listing of her record of "Silver Threads Among the Gold," a ballad that always sold well regardless of who sang it. It elicited this praise:

"9162 . . . An ever popular song, which to render well requires a very sweet and sympathetic voice, such as is possessed by Miss Narelle. There have been constant requests for this ballad and doubtless our friends have often wondered why it was not listed before, but to have it by Miss Narelle is well worth waiting for."

The T.M.N. said: "'Silver Threads Among the Gold' is an old favorite. This record by Miss Narelle is very sweet and clear."

January, 1906, brought cylinder 9186 on which Miss Narelle sang "Robin Redbreast," a song which is not very well-known now:

"One of the most popular numbers in 'Happyland,' performed by the Hopper Opera Co. at the Lyric Theatre, New York City. As sung by Miss Narelle for our record, it makes a dainty and beautiful number. An added charm is the bird imitations by Joe Belmont. It is a new and novel idea and will doubtless be very much appreciated."

The Talking Machine News briefly dismissed the record with, "'Robin Redbreast' is a pretty little song." Joseph A. Phillips, who later became a popular Edison artist, was one of the "Happyland" cast.

Another favorite old-timer was announced in February:

"9207. 'Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms.' This old and ever popular ballad needs no description. . . . Miss Narelle's sweetly sympathetic voice is heard to great advantage in this record."

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES $5. postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by
HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

The News proclaimed it "a good song to which Miss Narelle does full justice."

The magazine then became involved in a legal controversy with Edison because of printing a rumor that the price of the company's cylinders would soon be reduced. Edison withdrew its advertising and sued the T.M.N. for libel. No more Edison cylinder reviews appeared for several years.

March, 1906, saw Miss Narelle offer a sentimental number not quite so ancient as some of her others:

"9226. 'Answer.' This is another old ballad too well known to need description here. Suffice it to say that Miss

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

EXPERT REPAIRING - Cylinders reupined,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.

Bornand Music Box Co.

139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825 tfo

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worn gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15 1/2" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling. tfo

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House,
opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine

Narelle . . . does it to perfection and we think we have never made a better record of this talented artist."

In April the soprano gratified her Scotch admirers with 9254, "Comin' Thro' the Rye:"

"Miss Narelle's rendition of this old Scotch song will gladden every Scotchman's heart and be appreciated by all admirers of the song. Miss Narelle's Scotch dialect is perfection itself. Her interpretation of the song could not have been better had she been to the manor born."

A Narelle record, 9273, "Then You'll Remember Me," appeared in May:

"This charming sentimental ballad from 'The Bohemian Girl' . . . is too widely known to call for comment. We have had many requests for it in solo form and it is really a matter for regret that it is only now getting into our catalog. Miss Narelle sings it in a delightful manner. . ."

June and July brought no Narelle records, but the soprano reappeared in August with 9325, "The Bonnie Banks o' Loch Lomond:"

"A delightful record of this well-known and ever popular Scotch melody . . . The song is a great favorite of Miss Narelle's and one she takes unusual interest and delight in singing. Her especially fine rendition of the ballad abundantly bears out this statement."

Another three months passed before Miss Narelle sang "Annie Laurie" on 9422:

"Still another of Miss Narelle's beautifully rendered selections, made before she returned to her home in Australia. Miss Narelle's records have been among the most successful ever made for the phonograph."

"Her charming voice has endeared her to many thousand lovers of the phonograph throughout the civilized world. Those who have heard her previous records will appreciate how artistic this one is of that old Scotch song, 'Annie Laurie.'"

After that, there was silence from Marie Narelle for several years, but Edison customers did not lose interest in her. In September, 1907, "J.H.B." of Central Falls, R.I., asked The Phonogram, "Will Marie Narelle sing again for you?"

The answer was: "If she makes another tour in the United States probably yes. She is at present singing in her own country, Australia."

In June, 1908, another questioner learned that Miss Narelle did not sing in the cylinder of "It is Well with My Soul."

Someone else wanted to know, "Is your record, 'Silver Threads Among the Gold,' sung in such a low tone of voice intentionally or is it the fault of the record?"

He was told, "It is intentionally sung in a low tone of voice."

September, 1908, brought an inquiry from "N.J.G.," Reedy Creek, South Australia, as to whether Joe Belmont was an Australian? "No." And whether Edison had any Australian artists besides Miss Narelle? ("We believe not.")

A disconsolate Narelle admirer from Atlanta wanted to know in October, 1908, if the soprano still sang for Edison. The reply: "She has returned to Australia and is not likely to make more records."

The same person had the same question answered slightly differently in May, 1909: "Miss Marie Narelle has returned to her home in Australia and it is not likely that she will make further records for us for a long time."

In January, 1910, a correspondent was told Miss Narelle was born in Australia, of English descent. (We have seen the 1914 Blue Amberol catalog which said she was Irish-descended.)

"Cannot say," was the answer as to whether she would again sing for Edison. The time, however, was only a few months distant when the lady's pure soprano would again delight her American admirers.

III. "The Perfect Soprano" Returns

September, 1910, brought glad news for "G.W.L.," of Atlanta and other admirers of "the soprano with the perfect recording voice." Miss Narelle had made the long journey from her home in Australia to sing again for Edison.

The news was especially good because Edison had introduced the four-minute Amberol cylinders about two years before. This made it possible for singers to use correct phrasing and tempo and not to be hurried because of the limitations of a "roller" that played for only two minutes.

Marie Narelle's first Amberol was 495, a complete version of "Killarney." The New Phonogram writer was ecstatic:

"What words so eloquently descriptive of Erin's charm of scenery and days of by-gone splendor, what melody more beautiful and truly sympathetic than this gem of the talented Balfe's compositions?"

"It is a classic that appeals not only to the poetic Celtic nature but to music lovers the world over, especially when sung by an artist of such splendid attainments and international repute as Marie Narelle, 'The Australian Nightingale.'"

"Miss Narelle returns after a long tour abroad to sing exclusively for Edison records, which fact will be welcome news to the public, who have long clamored for more of her records. Her voice seems to have acquired fresh beauty of tone and expression during her absence."

This record received a laughable review in The Sound Wave, published in London:

"If furtherance be needed of the ever-green popularity of the title song, it will, of a surety, be furnished by its rendition hereon by one of our most delightful of sopranos. By the way, those who may wish to make acquaintance with 'Killarney' as a contralto solo can do so by procuring this record."

That last sentence is baffling. How could a record by a soprano introduce the song to those who would like to hear it by a contralto?

With excellent judgment, Edison had Miss Narelle sing "Auld Lang Syne" on Amberol cylinder 525, which was announced in October, 1910. Again, the Phonogram:

"Truly a beautiful record. A song of all the people, known and beloved by old and young wherever the English tongue is spoken, and sung by a singer who has made a life study of selections of this order."

"Marie Narelle sings the number with fine expression, combining with a voice of resplendent beauty a vocal method which evidences her thorough artistic sense and training. In her rendition she employs a genuine Scotch accent."

"It should be remembered that Miss Narelle can be heard only on Edison records."

Edison also did something in October the judgment of which is open to question. The Phonogram published a list of 24 Amberol cylinders which dealers were not allowed to sell, but which would be given, in batches of six, to Edison owners who persuaded their friends to buy phonographs.

One of the two dozen was D12, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," by Miss Narelle. It was described as "a charming old time melody with a plaintive, appealing air, which has again leaped into popularity. Sung by one of the foremost sopranos before the public."

Almost certainly, if cataloged in the usual way, it would have been one of the best-selling Edison cylinders.

Irish characteristics were prominent in 545, "The Dear Little Shamrock," which was offered in November:

". . . Another of Miss Narelle's songs of the people. The history and significance of the shamrock, as outlined in this tuneful old song, are known to every son and daughter of Erin's Isle, who will appreciate Miss Narelle's rendition of the number. Her brogue is as delicate and natural as her voice is fresh and lovely and her style expressive. . ."

The soprano's December offering was one of the old-fashioned ballads in which Mr. Edison delighted, (561,) "Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer:"

"This beautiful song, one of the best known and beloved in the English language, was the principal number of the opera, 'Lurline,' produced for the first time at Covent Garden, February 23, 1860. . ."

"Miss Narelle has easily met the exacting demands of this selection, her lovely voice of wide register and velvet quality, combined with an exquisite charm of expression and a finished vocal style, offering a really superb interpretation."

"This is by long odds the most notable contribution to the Edison catalog thus far by this renowned artist. . . It is a selection which will delight the lover of the best in vocal music."

The Talking Machine News, which had patched up its quarrel with Edison, said:

"It is not often one has the opportunity of hearing such a sweet, pathetic song as 'Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer,' sung in such an angelic, sympathetic voice as that of Miss Narelle. The number, which is the principal aria from Wallace's opera, 'Lurline,' is indeed finely interpreted and Miss Narelle's beautiful soprano voice is heard to splendid effect."

Almost six years earlier, Marie Narelle had made a duet with a tenor, Harry Anthony. Now, in January, 1911, she joined forces with another tenor, Frederic H. Potter, and a mixed chorus.

Potter was a singer who figured fairly prominently in the Edison catalog for two or three years, but about whom I have never been able to learn much. For once, the Australian soprano sang a currently popular song, "Every Little Movement:"

"The big song 'hit' of the popular musical production, 'Madame Sherry,' which is duplicating in New York the long and successful run it enjoyed in Chicago."

"Every Little Movement," the theme of which is a satirical description of the new aesthetic dancing fad, has a particularly catchy, infectious air which captivates at first hearing and invites many repetitions.

"Miss Narelle sings the first solo, the chorus is then sung as a soprano and contralto duet, and is repeated by mixed voices. The second solo is sung by Mr. Potter, who is also assisted by a chorus of mixed voices in the refrain."

Edison was generous with Narelle records in January. On 585 she sang "Bonnie Sweet Bessie."

"A popular Scotch ballad which we have been requested time and again to

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale, I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. ttx

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlaso, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. f3403

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. jly12407

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. mh3084

SEND STAMP for small monthly list of old records. Always something different at attractive prices. — Martin Bryan, Francis Street, Danielson, Conn. mh3633

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality, jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. jcl20061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. ap6407

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N. Y. f6407

CYLINDER RECORDS 50c each. Discs 25c and 50c each. Send for lists. — Gregory R. Reed, R.F.D. 4, Allentown 5, Pa. f3253

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. (Formerly Ted's of Philadelphia.) mh3844

RECORDS: Classical, Popular, Personality, Misc. 78s and cylinders. Condition guaranteed. Also phonographs, record catalogs, supplements, other material, bought, sold, traded. Let me know your needs. All corresp. acknowledged. — Dale Miller, Box 668, Yucaipa, Calif. mh3272

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. n12407

ATTENTION: Please note that the well-known collectors' record store "The Record Album," is now located at 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hirsch are always happy to welcome visitors interested in historical discs, and monthly sales lists will be gladly forwarded upon request. jax

EDISON Kinetoscope, Model D. Early motion picture projector and complete traveling show. Includes 1/2 ton extra parts with 20 adjustable lenses, many glass slides, advertising plates, etc. — Militello's Antiques, Westfield, N. Y. ap3825

IN MEMORY of Amelita Galli-Curci, several new vinylite RCA Victor 12" special pressings of her unpublished Rigoletto: Lasso in cielo, recorded with Giuseppe De Luca in 1918. Matrix C-21973-2. Magnificent! Please bid. — Aida Pavia-Artisay, 50 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N. Y. 10595 apx

FOR SALE: Rare 78's, opera, show biz, orchestral, historical. Send 10c for list. — P. Hanslee, Box 147, Calabasas, Calif. my6895

RECORD COLLECTORS - Who do you like? Gene Austin, Vernon Dalhart, Jolson, Vallee, Caruso? Or? Send $1 for lists of your favorite artists and we will include a record of Thomas Edison speaking. Send $2 for Victor 1905 Red Seal Catalog. — Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49502 f3487

FOR SALE: Disc and cylinder records, phonographs. 25c for lists. "Evolution of the Phonograph" by Reed and Welch, 576 pages, $9.95 postpaid. Sound of Fame, re-recording of 12 Edison artists, 33 1/2. $4. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Box 6, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. f3295

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, Jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. — Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. f3464

COLLECTOR buys and sells rare vocal operatic records. Lists solicited. — Arthur E. Knight, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PA 3-2839. my6407

WANTED MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED: 17 1/2" disc for Imperial Symphonion Model 106 — J. G. Hardin, 1313 Browne Ave., Yakima Wash. mh3652

WANTED: Old Record Catalogs, Supplements, Books, Magazine illustrations and other literature pertaining to old phonographs. — Dale Miller, Box 668, Yucaipa, Calif. mh3861

RECORDS & PHONOGRAPHS

FIRST TIME OFFERING! One of the largest private collections of phonographs, records and catalogs. 75 different types machines, parts and horns for all types and also 2 coin operated nickel-in-the-slot talking machines from the 1893 World's Fair, both in perfect running condition. Machines date from 1839 to 1920. Have Victor machines with the original plaster cast dog (Nipper), 1900. Over 12,000 cylinders from beeswax to celluloid, 1888 to 1926. Many are rarities. And also catalogs of early records and many first editions on articles of the industry. This collection took owner over 25 years to put together from all parts of the country and is to be sold in its entirety. If interested write Box ACR, c/o HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60605. f38902

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 1 1/2" $3; 1 3/4" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. jly6468

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holmway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. ap3403

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

OLD player piano rolls for sale. Free list. Also send wants. — Paula Watson, 6653 Enright, St. Louis 30, Mo. f6806

WANTED: Coin operated electric player piano (nickelodeon orchestration) with drums, chimes, etc. Coinola, Seeburg, Nelson - Wiggen, Wurlitzer. — Harold Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. mh3488

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

FOR SALE: old phonographs, phonograph records, needles, supplies, old books, piano rolls. Let me know your needs. All inquiries answered. — Monroe Sands, 303 E. Washington St., Urbana, Illinois. jcl22971

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America. $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. f36121

BARREL ORGAN, 118 wood and metal pipes, 5 ranks, 5 barrels each playing 12 selections, hand crank. Built by Wm. Townsend & Son, Edinburgh, Scotland. Six feet 8" tall, 3 feet 7" wide and two feet deep. $500 crated. Two piano harps, solid walnut, butternut cases. 21 sets of strings. 43" wide, 20" deep and 30" high, $125 each, crated. — Dale Baum, 4540 London Road, Duluth, Minn. 55804. f1606

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

TWO GAVIOLI band organs made in Europe. Over 750 pipes in organs. Write to: Joseph E. Lavacchia, 984 Main St., Woburn, Mass. mh3553

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. mh3023

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 6, Colorado. s12638

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

my46p

catalog, but which we have purposely withheld for Miss Narelle's return. The theme is the pathetic life story of the 'Bonnie Lass o' Dundee,' who loved and wed her brave Scotch laddie, but from whom cruel fate parted her for all time.

"Sung in Miss Narelle's most finished style, sympathetically and with accent of the best, the simple, direct words and pleading melody of this charming old song will tug at the heart-strings of its listeners and bring moisture to the eye. Many will pronounce it the best of the several lovely numbers she has contributed to the Amberol catalog."

No Narelle record was issued in February, 1911, nor was there one in March, but D.J.B. of Lewisburg, Tenn., was informed, rightly or wrongly, in the February Phonogram, "Marie Narelle is her true name. She was born in Australia."

IV. Another Duet Partner

In April, 1911, "H.A." of Philpot, Ky., was told "Miss Marie Narelle is not married." I suspect, however, the New Phonogram editor was mistaken.

That month brought another Narelle record, 662, "Day Dreams, Visions of Bliss," which she sang as a duet with an accomplished tenor, Berrick Von Norden. The Phonogram said:

"This sprightly duet, with its breezy waltz refrain, is the vocal hit of the operetta, 'The Spring Maid,' one of the present season's successes now playing to delighted audiences at the Liberty Theater, New York City . . .

"It would be difficult indeed to conceive a happier or more satisfying combination of vocal talent than Marie Narelle and Berrick Von Norden. Not alone for the tunefulness and popularity of this selection, but for the quality of the rendition and the character of the artists, this is a record to be treasured."

Before dealing "in depth" with Mr. Von Norden, it may be well to complete the list of Marie Narelle records issued before the unbreakable Blue Amberol cylinders were introduced. "Bonnie Doon," 687, was announced in May:

"... If one were asked to define the particular quality of Marie Narelle's singing that has made her the popular idol of three continents, the answer could truthfully be comprehended in one word—sympathy—the ability to feel the song she sings.

"The finest vocal organs and the most perfect technique certainly belong to her, but it is that indefinable something that touches the heart and brain that is responsible for her great success in interpreting the stirring, lovable ballads of the people.

"That quality is present in all its strength in her rendition of this lovely plaintive old melody. It is a record that every Edison owner—and only Edison owners, for this great artiste sings only for Edison records—can number with pride in his collection."

The next Narelle record was made available in September, 1911. It was 10512, the first two-minute Standard cylinder she had made since 1906, a shortened version of "Every Little Movement," which she had already sung on an Amberol with Frederic H. Potter and a mixed chorus.

This time Potter was omitted and Miss Narelle's partner was a contralto, the late Mary Jordan, who

(Continued on page 40)

Veteran Hobbyist Charles W. Cook shows his collection of Civil War bullets at his home in Sulem, Va.

—Photo by Kathy Thornton, Salem, Va.
Courtesy Salem Times Register

LIFELONG COLLECTING HAS HELPED KEEP VIRGINIA MAN YOUNG IN SPIRIT

By JIM WALSH

Charles W. Cook, of Salem, Va., is living proof that having hobbies helps to keep you mentally alert and young in spirit even though you have reached advanced years.

Mr. Cook, who is 84, was born in Roanoke county. He has lived at 319 Broad Street, in Salem, the historic county seat, since 1915.

For many years he was county treasurer. During all his active working years he collected things and enjoyed his hobbies. Now that he is retired his interest is still keen.

Perhaps his top-ranking preoccupation during the collecting period, which began when he was a small boy, has been the Civil War and everything associated with it.

Mr. Cook comes by that interest rightfully and naturally since his great-grandfather was a Revolutionary War soldier, and his father and uncles fought for the Confederacy in the Civil War. As a boy Charles Cook hunted for War relics on the Appomattox Battlefield, less than 100 miles from where he now lives.

Outstanding in his collection is the display of bullets he has discovered on ground where the War Between the States, as Southerners prefer to call it, was being fought a century ago. Mr. Cook has not only visited many of these historic spots, but friends are always glad to look for battlefield mementoes on their travels and bring them back to him.

The bullets, their days of aggressive or defensive usefulness past, rest on red velvet. They repose in small wooden cases, all labeled with information identifying the battlefield on which they were found.

The veteran collector furthermore treasures a large cannon shell from Hanging Rock Battlefield, just outside Salem.

Mr. Cook also collects coins and paper money. As one would expect, he has Confederate money and even script issued by the Continental Congress.

Another of his interests is Indian relics, especially those found in Virginia. He can show you an excellent collection of stone arrow-heads,

(Continued on page 53)

Corn Husk Dolls

*Courtesy The Brooklyn
(N.Y.) Children's Museum*

Jane Adams, describes the dolls she played with not so many years ago in Southern Illinois. Miss Adams is presently a student at Antioch College and served as docent at the Brooklyn, N. Y., Children's Museum.

In about July the corn would start getting ripe in the garden, and with the first ears of corn we would make the first cornhusk dolls. About half an hour before supper we'd go into the garden, pick a dozen good fat ears of corn, shuck them, and pop them in the boiling water. I'd put the tender inside husks in a pail of water to keep soft till after supper, then, while it was still light, take them down to the creek where some reed-like grasses grew, to use as rope. Well, the grasses weren't reed and didn't hold too well, so I'd take some twine, too. Then I'd take the leaves individually, turn them so that every other one was facing in the opposite direction. I'd make a little wad or ball of husk for the head, place it in the center of the leaves, and fold them over in half, tying the husks just under the head. Then I'd twist two leaves together to make the arms, tying them at the wrist, and placing this directly beneath the head, between the two halves, and tying them in place by tying a string around the waist. If I was making a woman I trimmed the leaves to make a skirt, maybe taking some berries to color it, making a shawl from the bottom edge of the tougher outer leaves, hooking it with reeds tied through holes and looped around the shoulders. If I was making a man I cut the leaves and tied them at the knees and ankles. He could then be seated on a stool, using other leaves to tie him in place. I could position the arms and legs by tying them in place and removing the string carefully when they were fully dry.

In late summer when the fields with corn was getting ripe I would make whole families: the parents out of the larger field corn, the children out of the sweet corn. They could have brown or yellow hair, depending on whether I used the old silk or silk from the youngest ears. This was glued on or tied in with the head, braided, cut short, curled if I used the old silk, or left hang long. I'd take a fine paint brush or feather or twig and use berry juice for the faces, maybe gather bits of wool from the sheep and mat it into bits of clothing, seat them on rocks and wooden benches, sometimes even making lean-to houses for them and setting up tiny communities. When acorns started getting ripe I would sometimes enclose one of them as the head, leaving the brown face out with the corn leaves around it. Some of the dolls had twigs or pipe cleaners for arms and legs, or I would put a piece of wire in the center of each limb to shape them. Each doll was different and an individual. Lives would be born, families have great experiences—fighting Indians, riding down fashionable streets, square dancing—live for a few hours, and then be left by the creek when it got full dark and Mother called us home, and we forgot our dolls in the excitement of chasing fire flies across the pasture to home. With luck they would be there in the morning if we remembered to look, and not too bedraggled by the dew, but if they were gone, we could always make more.

More dolls were made of the new young acorns. We'd take a big heavy needle, big heavy thread, take the caps off (since they're impossible to sew through), and sew the acorns together in the shape of a long skinny man. These we saved for the Christmas tree, among the first Christmas decorations. Later in the winter we'd gild them, so they would shine. If the acorns were very small, they would make good lapel pins on coats. Smaller seeds that we gathered out in the fields or retrieved from melons also made good little men, turned into women by the addition of scraps of material for skirts and scarves, glued on.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

probably had sung the alto's music in the longer cylinder.

Miss Narelle was again missing from Edison lists until December, 1911, when she gave, on 862, a four-minute version of "Annie Laurie." Of all the numbers in Miss Narelle's extensive repertoire, this is her favorite, and we have been holding back our record of it to present as a holiday offering to the phonograph public.

After that, there were no more Marie Narelle cylinders for more than a year, and her first blue Amberols were taken from wax Amberol molds.

(To be continued)

DOLL PATTERNS

WAGONWHEEL patterns, national distributor. Stamp and dime for list and sample body pattern. — Elizabeth Kringsler, 813 7th Ave. North, Fargo, N.D. je128041

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8 (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All Advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

DOLL ACCESSORIES

DOLL HATS. Dress up your doll collection with the addition of attractive doll hats. They're wonderful for gifts for the small fry, too. I also do doll repairing, such as rebuilding bodies, feet, fingers, shoulders (on the German jointed dolls that have bisque heads). I can mend kid bodies, if they can be mended, or make a new cloth body. Satisfaction or your money back. — Mary Upshaw, Doll repairing, 2601 Forbes St., Jacksonville 4, Fla. tfx

DO YOU want your dolls dressed correctly? Research done for each. Patterns made to measure for historic dolls. Stamp please. — Miss Christine Spraker, 304 Arnold Ave., Port Allegany, Pa. my6829

DOLL SUPPLIES: Curly mohair, elastic cord, wigs, doll stands. Literature available, including samples of mohair and elastic. Stamp appreciated. — Besie Magee, Middlefield, Conn. 06455. f600S

WAGONWHEEL patterns: Body, clothing, for china and bisque heads. 1800-1910. Stamp, dime, for list and sample pattern. — Follett Studios, Box 362, Moorhead, Minn. je126351

DOLL WIGS. Dynel or human hair, long curls, lovely. Price list for two stamps. — Dorothy's Dolls, 2509 Covert Ave., Evansville, Ind. mh3633

DOLL REPAIRS & Restorations

BRODEUR DOLL HOSPITAL, 417 State Life Bldg., Indianapolis 4, Ind. For 48 years we have done all kinds of repairs on all types of dolls. Work well done, reasonable prices. o120291

REPAIR DOLLS. Big money, no experience necessary. Send $1.50 for instruction book and 7-page parts catalog. — Doll Repair Parts, 9918 Lorain Ave., Cleveland 2, Ohio. mh126351

PORCELAIN reproductions: Heads, arms, legs, plain and socket type. Heads dated. Stamp and dime for list and booklet, "Bird's Eye View of Doll World." — Follett Studios, Box 362, Moorhead, Minn. je120291

DOLLS WANTED

WANTED: Old dolls or heads. Also Gibson Girl. — Goldie Schneider, 1047 West Main, Galesburg, Ill. je6084

WANTED: "Wizard of Oz" character dolls, toys, games, pamphlets, posters, picture books and cut-out books. Anything related to Oz. State cond. and price. — Dick Martin, 53 W. Burton Pl., Chicago 10, Ill. tfx

WANTED: Antique dolls, singly or whole collections. — Doelman Dolls, Middleport, N. Y. Phone Republic 5-8691. au12069

DOLL collectors manuals and Charlie Chaplin doll wanted. State price. — Genevieve Angione, 751 Harvard St., Rochester, N. Y. 14610. f120821

Wanted: Rose O'Neill dolls and other signed Kewpie items. Old valentines. Sunbonnet babies for own collection. — Ruth S. Hockett, 620 W. Jefferson, Kokomo, Ind. f3675

WANTED: Old dolls or heads. — Ruth Larkin, 205 Glendale Rd., Wallingford, Pennsylvania. ja12867

WISH TO BUY any authentic O'Neill Kewpies or Kewpie items, in or on any kind of materials, such as bisque, china, tin, cloth, metal, etc. — Fulton's Antiques, P.O. Box 297, Huntington Beach, Calif. ap3445

Marie Narelle and Berrick Von Norden

PART II

By JIM WALSH

I. A Distinguished Tenor

For reasons that will soon be apparent, I feel a peculiarly personal interest in discussing Berrick Von Norden and his records.

The tenor's first Edison solo was "The Lord is My Light," 612, issued in February, 1911, with this New Phonogram description:

"... The words of this profoundly impressive sacred number are from Psalm XXVII. The music was written by Frances Allitsen, a contemporary composer and concert singer living in London. Her settings of songs from the Scriptures and poets are much admired wherever they are known.

"Mr. Von Norden, a tenor with a voice of wonderful range and beauty, is well known to the musical public, having toured the United States and Canada with Calve in her successful tours of 1905 and 1906.

"He is now tenor soloist for the Temple Emanuel, the leading Jewish Synagogue in New York City, and also is one of the foremost oratorio and concert singers of the day. This, his first contribution to our catalog of devotional selections, is a record that we commend to the good graces of every lover of sacred numbers."

Here is the Phonogram's comment about the next Von Norden cylinder, 634, "Before the Dawn:"

"This high class sentimental song calls for treatment far beyond the capabilities of a majority of even the best concert singers, and the ease with which Mr. Von Norden meets its exacting demands, particularly in the difficult climax, stamps him, therefore, an artist of the very highest caliber.

"Such commendation will, we are sure, not be necessary with Edison owners who enjoyed his 'The Lord is My Light.' ... The engagement of so prominent and accomplished an artist as Mr. Von Norden testifies eloquently to the high class of talent we aim to provide for friends of the Edison phonograph. This song is an always favorite number on Mr. Von Norden's concert programs."

The tenor's April contribution, 642, "I'm Falling in Love With Some One," was a record of unusual interest:

"The principal song hit in Victor Herbert's latest operatic work, 'Naughty Marietta,' which has had a most successful run during the present season, and is still playing to crowded houses at the New York Theater, New York City, where it had its premiere.

"The theme of this fascinating number, which swings into a catchy slow waltz air refrain, is heard at intervals during the entire course of the performance. It is the air that the audience hums and whistles as it leaves the theater, and for days afterwards. Mr. Von Norden sings it most artistically and well, accompanied by an orchestra under the personal direction of Victor Herbert, who wrote the music. . ."

The Narelle-Von Norden "Spring Maid" duet also came out in April, and was the last cylinder, apparently, in which the tenor sang. It was certainly the last to be issued. He had such an excellent voice it is surprising that Edison did not persuade him to continue making records and not confine his recording "career" to just three months.

II. Tracing Von Norden Recordings

My purely personal pleasure in writing about Berrick Von Norden and his records stems from a day in the summer of 1962 when I received a letter from Abel Green, editor of Variety. Mr. Green said that a friend of Syd Silverman, Variety publisher, was eager to obtain records of the voice of her father who had sung under the name of Berrick Von Norden. In his letter dated August 24, 1962, Abel Green wrote:

"Dear Jim: For a good friend of Syd Silverman's, I would like to get a run down on how we can get any information on the available long ago recordings of Berrick Von Norden, who sang with Emma Calve on the old Victor label. These could be circa 1905-1910.

"Syd's friend is Berrick Von Norden's daughter . . . Von Norden's real name was Berrick Schloss, but his professional name was Berrick Von Norden.

"Incidentally, later in his career when he gave up thrashing, he became a conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra, but his daughter is concerned essentially with the records.

"... How could she get a copy, or even have a tape recording made, of these old recordings? I wouldn't be surprised that in that era they were probably made on cylinders rather than flat platters."

For an hour or so after reading this letter I felt somewhat frustrated. The name of Berrick Von Norden seemed vaguely familiar, but I couldn't remember just where I had seen it. I knew he was not one of the artists whose recording career spanned a good many years, and I was positive he hadn't made Victor records, but I also thought I had seen his name in one or more old record lists.

Finally, I tried the 1912 Columbia catalog and discovered one record: 437, "The Kiss Duet," from Oscar Straus' "Waltz Dream," sung by "Miss Marsh and Mr. Van Norden." (For several years, Columbia cata-Berrick Von Norden, the distinguished tenor, is shown here as he appeared in his Edison recording days. Later the singer, whose real name was Berrick Schloss, became conductor of the University Glee Club of Providence.

logs printed "Von Norden" wrongly as "Van Norden.")

"Miss Marsh" I deduced to be Lucy Isabelle Marsh, who made a few Columbia records before becoming exclusive to Victor for the remainder of her long career, but I didn't believe I had the "Kiss Duet," which was coupled with "As Long as the World Rolls On," sung by Henry Burr.

However, I went to my Burr collection and was surprised and delighted to find a copy in excellent condition. This I copied on tape and sent to Abel Green, with a letter saying it was the only recording I could trace of Berrick Von Norden's voice.

On August 27, Syd Silverman wrote:

"Dear Jim: Many, many thanks for the fabulous find of that Berrick Von Norden side. His daughter, Mrs. Betty Abramson, Chevy Chase, Md., is a good friend and, evidently, at the time of his death everything was donated to the music library at Brown U. in Providence, so she has no record of his voice.

"I'm sure she will be delighted with your wonderful find and undoubtedly you will be hearing from her in the near future.

The following day, August 28, Mrs. Abramson wrote:

"Dear Mr. Walsh: I have just listened to the tape of my father's voice and could not possibly tell you how very much it means to me.

"Berrick Von Norden, whose real name was Berrick Schloss, died in 1938, when I was in my late teens. My fondest childhood memories are those associated with a song-filled home.

"My father's voice brought all of us, and more particularly me, many thrills, great excitement, and through his heart as well as his song, a deep devotion. I have not heard his singing since 1938—all of his recordings were accidentally broken the day he died.

"My husband, who never met my father, has searched for some clue to find some of the cylindrical recordings. All of his efforts, until now, had been in vain.

"Now my husband and my children can share this treasure with me . . . I know well there is no way I could thank you enough for what you have done for me (through Syd Silverman). Gratefully, BETTY SCHLOSS ABRAMSON."

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

I replied, saying how glad I was that the taped copy of the Columbia record had given Mrs. Abramson so much pleasure. On September 2, 1962, she wrote:

"... I will have a copy of my photograph of my father made to send you—in the meantime I am sending the enclosed program with his likeness on the back."

"He made discs for Columbia from around 1905 to 1912, possibly a dozen or so. He was born January 3, 1882, in New York City. He died on August 23, 1938, in Providence, R.I. (his home)."

"He recorded some of his discs with Lucy Marsh (Gordon), who was a soprano from Providence. The few that I remember are from 'The Chocolate Soldier' and 'Naughty Marietta'—my favorite being 'I'm Falling in Love With Someone.'"

"Of course, I would very much appreciate having any other records you might find."

"And again, I thank you over and over for your thoughtfulness and generosity. I shall keep in touch with you."

Not long afterward, I obtained the Columbia quarterly record supplement for June, July, and August, 1908, and came across the original listing of the Marsh-Von Norden disc of "The Kiss Duet." A cylinder version also was included but, oddly, Columbia didn't have it sung by the same artists.

Instead, the "XP" cylinder, 33225, was by "Miss Elsie Wood (Sic) and "Mr. Henry Burr." "Miss Elsie Wood" was really Elise Stevenson, who in private life was Mrs. Rusling Wood. The disc number was 3766, but this single-face record was afterwards taken over in double-face form, as in my own copy. The supplement said:

"This is undoubtedly the hit of the entire operetta and is the part of the show which has been most talked about from one end of the country to the other. The song is a languorous, dreamy, ecstatic kissing song which would arouse the coldest listener."

As far as I have been able to determine, this is the only Berrick Von Norden record which Columbia ever issued, but possibly others were made under another name. It antedates his four Edison cylinders by more than two years.

It seems strange that I didn't recall for months that the tenor had made those Edison cylinders. That realization didn't dawn upon me until I was compiling notes to write about Marie Narelle and discovered that I had her duet with Von Norden. Then I checked my Edison cylinder lists, as I should have done earlier, and found the records whose Phonogram descriptions I have already quoted.

Naturally, I decided to copy the "Day Dreams" cylinder for Mrs. Abramson, but it was so brittle that a small section broke and fell off when I slipped it onto the mandrel. However, none of the tenor's part was destroyed, and I was able to copy what remained for Mrs. Abramson, who was happy to get it.

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES $5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by
HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING - Cylinders replined,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Borland Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Palham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1825 tfe

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island tfo

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYLOR 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling. tfe

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York tfx

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House,
opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine tfo

The University Glee Club of Providence

Season of 1930-31

Berick Schloss, Conductor
The University Glee Club

Berick Schloss, the virtual founder of the University Glee Club in 1911, has ever been a most enthusiastic and active member. He served as Director from the inception of the Club until 1914, when absence from Providence made it necessary for him to relinquish his leadership for two seasons.

With the exception of one other season when he was granted a leave of absence, Mr. Schloss has led the Club without interruption since then, and this year marks his seventeenth season as director.

The task of selection and arrangement of music for the programs has been largely his. He has consistently held before the Club the highest ideals in men's chorus singing, and sought to achieve artistic results. To him the Club owes largely its development from a group of enthusiasts, but untrained singers to its present status. His solos have enriched the Club's programs on many occasions, and his efforts in bringing soloists to Providence to appear with the Club have greatly added to the enjoyment of the Club's concerts.

Berick Schloss, as conductor of the University Glee Club of Providence, R.I.—Photos, courtesy of his daughter, Mrs. Daniel J. Abramson of Chevy Chase, Md.

Club of Providence for the season of 1930-31 contains the following tribute:

"Berick Schloss, the virtual founder of the University Glee Club in 1911, has ever been a most enthusiastic and active member. He served as Director from the inception of the Club until 1914, when absence from Providence made it necessary for him to relinquish his leadership for two seasons.

"With the exception of one other season when he was granted a leave of absence, Mr. Schloss has led the Club without interruption since then, and this year marks his 17th season as director.

"The task of selection and arrangement of music for the program has been largely his. He has consistently held before the Club the highest ideals in men's chorus singing, and sought to achieve artistic results. To him the Club owes largely its development from a group of enthusiastic but untrained singers to its present status.

"His solos have enriched the Club's programs on many occasions, and his efforts in bringing soloists to Providence to appear with the Club have greatly added to the enjoyment of the Club's concerts."

I am sure all music lovers will agree it is deplorable that so accomplished an artist and so dedicated a musician died at the early age of 56, and that his list of records is not much longer.

III. Marie Narelle's Blue Amberol

Edison bought out the almost indestructible Blue Amberol cylinders in November, 1912, but Marie Narelle did not appear until the following March. Her first Blue Amberole was 1720, a transfer of "Wearing of the Green" from the former Amberol list.

The supplement described the number as "one of the favorite marching tunes of the Irish Volunteers of 1782, and of the Irish rebels of 1798. Her late Majesty, Queen Victoria, regarded it as an especial favorite—a fact which is known to but few even in England." The description continued:

"Marie Narelle, a dramatic soprano of high caliber, has put aside an operatic career to become an exponent of the stirring and lovable ballads of the people.

"Her success and popularity may be judged somewhat by the extract from a Dublin newspaper regarding her performance—'and then came "The Wearing of the Green." Sung with Soul in it! And as she sings on, her eyes, now tender, now tempestuous, her notes deepen and her audience stirs inwardly. No training, nothing but soul and inborn melody could have made her sing as she did that night."

A Blue Amberol of "Bonnie Doon," 1974, was issued in October, 1913; and 2098, "Every Little Movement" (the duet with Frederic Potter) came out in December. "Bonnie Dundee," a song new to the Narelle list, appeared in May, 1914, as 2288. It was accompanied by 2289, "Jessie, the Flower o' Dunblane."

"Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer" was added, 2450, to the list in November. And then, after a lapse of more than nine years, came 4809, "Bonnie, Sweet Bessie," in January, 1924. This song, which had been popular as a Diamond Disc for more than a decade, was not a new recording, but a reissue of the January, 1911, Amberol. And it was the last Marie Narelle cylinder.

IV. British Collectors Disagree

In 1918, despite the havoc wrought by years of war, British record collectors still soothed themselves with the recorded sounds of Marie Narelle's velvety voice.

The Talking Machine News for January, 1918, published a tribute to the soprano from the Liverpool and District Recorded Music Society. The following appeared as part of an account of the Society's meeting on October 3, 1917:

"The Last Rose of Summer," by Marie Narelle . . . was played on Mr. Graham's magnificent 'Amberola.' The reproduction on the Amberola (was) perfection; it was, in fact, described by some present as 'uncanny' in its naturalness; the instrument ran absolutely silently, and there was no suspicion of surface noise, the whole effect being as though the singer had been transplanted into the room."

This report annoyed R. Davis, who was stationed in France with the Fifth Field Company Engineers of the Australian forces. Mr. Davis was a consistent advocate of what he considered the superiority of needle-cut records over cylinders and phonocut discs. On February 25, 1918, he wrote:

"I should like to know by what means the Liverpool and District Society came to consider the Blue Amberol record of Marie Narelle so very NATURAL in tone as to be considered by the members as uncanny in its absolute perfection?

"Has ANY member of the Society ever heard Miss Narelle sing in the flesh? . . . I heard her sing 'Kilmarney' at Melbourne Town Hall, and as soon as I arrived home I played the same item on an Edison gold-moulded (2-minute record), and the voice was not the same as I had heard an hour previous; it seemed enriched by the horn, quite 'canny,' and this must have been caused in recording, as I was using a cardboard horn. . ."

This comment seems both naive and unfair, since Miss Narelle's voice might have changed somewhat in quality since she had made the two-minute record many years before. And certainly Davis' "improvement" of substituting a cardboard horn for the one that came with the phonograph was not likely to have improved its tone.

On April 16, 1918, a Luton phonograph dealer, T. A. Foster, wrote a letter in which he asked a question that must have further annoyed Mr. Davis.

The needle-cut enthusiasts, for all their contempt of the cylinder, never could explain why, whenever discs and cylinder records were compared at a meeting of a recorded music society, there was always a heavy majority vote, which was sometimes unanimous, that the cylinders had a more natural tone, better surfaces, and were generally superior to their rivals. I cannot recall ever reading of a meeting at which the majority vote went to the discs.

Said Mr. Foster in his letter:

" . . . Does not Mr. Davis know that to compare the old 'gold-moulded' wax record—played with the old model "C" reproducer—with the Blue Amberol record played with the model "B" reproducer, is like comparing the old flint gun with the latest Enfield?

"I can assure Mr. Davis that the latest and best Edison machines playing Blue Amberols are not the least bit 'canny,' but are beautifully natural in tone. . .

"How does Mr. Davis account for the fact that at every concert where the needle-cut and cylinder have been compared the cylinder has more than held its own? If the cylinder was not natural in tone, does he suppose it would invariably take off premier honors?"

A member of the Liverpool Society, A. W. Cooper, got into the controversy:

" . . . The hon. secretary in his report did not mean to imply that even one percent of members . . . had heard Miss Narelle in the flesh, but that the reproduction was so very natural as to be a perfect rendering of a living human voice. . .

"It was exactly as if the singer in the flesh was before us and, speaking for myself, absolutely satisfying, quite irrespective of whether it was an exact reproduction of any particular singer's voice. There was absolutely no suggestion of a 'machine' about it. . ."

Mr. Davis, who, incidentally, was wrong in his belief that Marie Narelle had not sung in England, replied:

" . . . All I wish to say is that if I purchase a record of a great singer—and Miss Narelle is a great ballad singer—I want more than a record 'like a woman's voice.' I want an exact reproduction of the artist named on the label, and that is in my opinion where the Edison fails. . ."

The only record of those days that could give the "exact reproduction" that Davis yearned for was the Edison Diamond Disc. But this biased Australian probably would not have believed his laterally-attuned ears if he had been inveigled into hearing an Edison tone test.

However, he might well have asked the Liverpool Society where and how it obtained that cylinder of Marie Narelle singing "The Last Rose of Summer." No such record, my research indicates, was ever listed in an Edison catalog. Probably the "hon. secretary's" memory tricked him when he wrote his report, and the members had heard some other Blue Amberol by Miss Narelle.

V. Marie Narelle's Diamond Discs

The Australian soprano was one of the artists in Edison's first undated list of Diamond Discs, which appeared either near the end of 1912 or early the following year.

On 50006 she sang "Bonnie Sweet Bessie." The reverse side was devoted to the Metropolitan Quartet's rendition of "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground." "Bonnie Sweet Bessie" also was on 50031. Its coupling was Thomas Chalmers singing "In Happy Moments" from "Maritana."

A revised list was issued August 1, 1913, with most of the earlier numbers cut out. "Bonnie Sweet Bessie" came to rest on 50069, with Chalmers singing "Forgotten." This coupling remained in the catalog through 1929, when Edison quit the record business, but the Narelle side was remade in 1924 by Betsy Lane Shepherd. I suppose the moulds had become defective, and Miss Narelle was not available for re-makes.

A third list, covering the period from October 1 through December 10, 1913, brought Miss Narelle again

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

WANTED: All red G&T records of Tamagno; also black G&T, Gramophone, and Victor records of Evan Williams. As always, I will pay the best prices. — Thomas O'Shaughnessy, P.O. Box 281, Rochester, Minn. my3225

WANTED: Johnson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. jly12407

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1937 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. my3403

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. mh3084

SEND STAMP for small monthly list of old records. Always something different at attractive prices. — Martin Bryan, Francis Street, Danielson, Conn. mh3633

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality, jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. jcl20061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. ap6407

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. my3863

CYLINDER RECORDS 50c each. Discs 25c and 50c each. Send for lists. — Gregory R. Reed, R.F.D. 4, Allentown 5, Pa. my3253

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. (Formerly Ted's of Philadelphia.) mh3844

RECORDS: Classical, Popular, Personality, Misc. 78s and cylinders. Condition guaranteed. Also phonographs, record catalogs, supplements, other material, bought, sold, traded. Let me know your needs. All corresp. acknowledged. — Dale Miller, Box 668, Yucaipa, Calif. mh3272

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. n12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N.Y. my3804

EDISON Kinetoscope, Model D. Early motion picture projector and complete traveling show. Includes ½ ton extra parts with 20 adjustable lenses, many glass slides, advertising plates, etc. — Militello's Antiques, Westfield, N. Y. ap3826

IN MEMORY of Amelita Galli-Curci, several new vinylite RCA Victor 12" special pressings of her unpublished Rigoletto; Lasso in cielo, recorded with Giuseppe De Luca in 1918, Matrix C-21973-2. Magnificent! Please bid. — Alda Favia-Artisay, 50 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N. Y. 10595 apx

FOR SALE: Rare 78's, opera, show biz, orchestral, historical. Send 10c for list. — P. Hanslee, Box 147, Calabasas, Calif. my6896

RECORD COLLECTORS - Who do you like? Gene Austin, Vernon Dalhart, Jolson, Vallee, Caruso? Or? Send $1 for lists of your favorite artists and we will include a record of Thomas Edison speaking. Send $2 for Victor 1905 Red Seal Catalog. — Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49502 f3487

FOR SALE: Disc and cylinder records, phonographs. 25c for lists. "Evolution of the Phonograph" by Reed and Welch, 576 pages, $9.95 postpaid. Sound of Fame, re-recording of 13 Edison artists, 33 ½, $4. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Box 6, Palatine Bridge, N. Y. f3295

COLLECTOR buys and sells rare vocal operatic records. Lists solicited. — Arthur D. Knight, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PA 3-2889. my6407

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18 ½" $3; 15 ½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. jly6468

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. ap3403

WANTED MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED: 17 ½" disc for Imperial Symphonon Model 106 — J. G. Hardin, 1313 Browne Ave., Yakima Wash. mh3652

WANTED: Old Record Catalogs, Supplements, Books, Magazine illustrations and other literature pertaining to old phonographs. — Dale Miller, Box 668, Yucaipa, Calif. mh3861

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Record. 2) Record. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

WANTED: Coin operated electric player piano (nickelodeon orchestra) with drums, chimes, etc. Coimola, Seeburg, Nelson - Wiggen, Wuritzer. — Harold Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. mh3483

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

FOR SALE: old phonographs, phonograph records, needles, supplies, old books, piano rolls. Let me know your needs. All inquiries answered. — Monroe Sands, 303 E. Washington St., Urbana, Illinois. jcl22971

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America. $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N.Y. my32321

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

TWO GAVIOLI band organs made in Europe. Over 750 pipes in organs. Write to: Joseph E. Lavacchia, 984 Main St., Woburn, Mass. mh3553

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c. 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

FOR SALE: Edison phonograph. First patent 1898. Table model 17 ½"x8 ½", 12" high. Serial No. A111 807. Complete with morning glory horn and about 40 cylindrical records. Best offer. Shipping extra. — Mrs. Charles M. Albion, 6939 West Nelson, Chicago, Ill. mh1323

FOR SALE: 1898 Gramophone, by Thomas Edison, working order, with 25 cylinder records. Write: Helen Moshenok, Bellsite, Manitoba, Canada. mh1001

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 739 San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. mh3023

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colorado. sl2638

OLD POPULAR sheet music. Please write: Robt. Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Rm. 412, Los Angeles 26, Calif. ap3652

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lea Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulungo, Calif.

my46p

before the growing Diamond Disc public. On 50096 she sang "Chiming Bells of Long Ago" and "I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls." Number 50103 was occupied with her rendition of an old Irish song, "The Pretty Maid Milking Her Cow," while, on its coupling, Vernon Archibald sang "Hear Me, Gentle Maritana."

Also in the revised list were two more Narelle numbers: Number 80070, which was still another of the soprano's versions of "Killarney." It was coupled with "Then You'll Remember Me," sung by Charles Hackett, who became a Metropolitan Opera tenor; and 82511, "Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer," the companion of which was Gounod's "Ave Maria," sung in Latin by another soprano, Charlotte Kirwan.

A third list, dated December 10, 1913, brought Miss Narelle again before the tiny but growing Diamond Disc public. On 50096 she sang "Chiming Bells of Long Ago" and "I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls."

Number 50103 was occupied with Miss Narelle's rendition of an old Irish song, "The Pretty Maid Milking Her Cow," while to go along with it Vernon Archibald sang "Hear Me, Gentle Maritana." (Parenthetically, why was Mr. Edison, or somebody else associated with Edison recording activities, so obsessed with issuing excerpts from that moribund opera, "Maritana"?)

On 80101 Miss Narelle was heard in a Scotch ballad, "Angus MacDonald." The reverse was taken up by Elizabeth Spencer in "The Last Rose of Summer." (Could the Liverpool society have played this record, or perhaps the one by Marie Rappold, and mistakenly attributed it to Miss Narelle?)

And finally, on 80124, "The Australian Nightingale" and a chorus, sang beautifully "The Harp That Once Thro' Tara's Halls." Its companion was another "Maritana" relic, "In Turn What Say You?" by still another Marie — Marie Kaiser — and Archibald.

The Narelle records which had numbers beginning with 50 sold for $1; those beginning with 80 were $1.50; and those with 82, $2. There seems no good reason why one should have been more expensive than the other.

For such a highly praised artist, the discs, excepting "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," had a remarkably short life. When the June, 1915, Edison record catalog was published, "Bessie" was the only one remaining.

It is possible that the masters of the others were destroyed in the fire that ravaged the Edison plant in December, 1914. But, despite a popular impression to the contrary, it seems doubtful that any masters were lost.

A 1915 issue of the Edison Phonograph Monthly said none were destroyed. But if they were not, why were the Narelle records and others, such as Ellen Beach Yaw's "Sky-lark" cut out of the next catalog? If Miss Narelle was still under contract to Edison and available to do more recording, why were not her discs remade?

If the other masters were destroyed, how did it happen that "Bonnie Sweet Bessie" survived, as did all the company's masters of popular songs, dance records, and other good sellers?

I don't know the answers. But it is certain that there were no more Edison records by Marie Narelle and that, after 1924, her name disappeared from the Diamond Disc catalog with Miss Shepherd's remaking of "Bonnie Sweet Bessie."

The last full scale Blue Amberol catalog (dated November, 1920) which Edison considered it worth while to issue listed six Narelle numbers, so evidently there had been no destruction of the cylinder moulds. The six were "Bonnie Doon," "Bonnie Dundee," "Every Little Movement," "Jessie, the Flower o' Dunblane," "Sweet Spirit, Hear My Prayer," and "Wearing of the Green."

Finally, as I have already mentioned, "Bessie" was belatedly issued as a Blue Amberol in 1924, just as Miss Narelle's disc record was about to give way to a remake by Betsy Shepherd.

VI. An Exciting Discovery (?)

Although Marie Narelle and Edison had called it quits, the soprano's sweet voice was still to be heard on one more record—the only one I know of that she made for any other company.

Late in 1916, Pathe produced a 10-inch record, 20134, of "Dear Old Honolulu," sung by Miss Narelle with an Hawaiian accompaniment. I haven't heard the record but the title sounds like an incongruous combination of song, singer, and musicians.

On the other side, Henry Burr, also to Hawaiian accompaniment, sang "Everybody Hula." Marie Narelle, by the way, is one of the few popular phonograph singers with whom Burr didn't record a duet or two.

Just as I finished typing the preceding sentence, a thought which had never occurred to me before suddenly struck me with dazzling force and caused me to fetch out my old Pathe catalogs. From out of my subconscious mind or heaven knows where came the breath-taking suggestion that Marie Ryan, who made several Pathe records in 1916-17, was really Marie Narelle!

I can't on such short inspiration prove my suspicion correct, but everything seems to point to the likelihood that I have uncovered a well hidden secret of some 46 or 47 years standing. Perhaps my old friend, Harry Hunting, whose father, the late Russell Hunting, was Pathe's recording director, can say for sure. But here is the evidence:

The one Narelle record for Pathe was a song about Hawaii with a Hawaiian guitar accompaniment. Two of the Marie Ryan records are the same type. Furthermore, their numbers indicate they were made about the same time—within a few months, at least—of the Marie Narelle record.

Almost a clincher to me is the fact that the singer's name appears in its alphabetical place in Pathe catalogs as Marie Ryan. However, when the records are looked up under their individual titles her first name is given each time as Mary.

That suggests that the soprano, probably feeling that the type of music Pathe wanted her to record was unworthy of the reputation of the famous concert artist, Marie Narelle, asked that they be listed as by Mary Ryan. (It could be that her first name actually was Mary, instead of Marie.) This was faithfully done in the body of the catalog, but the compiler, perhaps with the name of Marie Narelle in mind, set it down in its alphabetical position as Marie Ryan, and it was carried that way in several editions.

An odd fact is that, in the comprehensive listing of Pathe artists in the back of the catalog, Mary Ryan is included, but, through some oversight, Marie Narelle is left out.

I am so nearly certain that Marie Narelle was Pathe's Marie, or Mary, Ryan that I shall list the Ryan records:

- 20015. Think of Me; Reverse: The Road That Leads to You (Henry Burr).
- 20018. Have a Heart (duet with Gordon MacHughes, whoever he was); Reverse: When the Lights Are Low (Ella Wells, soprano).
- 20027. Aloha Oe (Hawaiian accompaniment); Reverse: On the South Sea Isle (Sterling Trio).
- 20028. Fair Hawaii (Hawaiian accompaniment); Reverse: My Rose of Honolulu (Gordon MacHughes, baritone).
- 20032. Ireland Must Be Heaven for My Mother Came From There; Reverse: My Honey Lou (Burr).
- 20162. Keep the Home Fires Burning; Reverse: Ask Nothing More (Arthur Grover, baritone).

All were 10-inch, except the 12-inch 29162.

One more thought: Could the "Ireland Must Be Heaven" title have been selected by the singer as a tribute to her reputed Irish parentage?

I still have one more convincing piece of corroborative evidence to present before ending this impromptu exhibition of recorded music detective work.

VII. In Conclusion

For many years my knowledge of Marie Narelle's career and life story ended with that 1916 Pathe record. I could learn nothing of what had become of her.

But when my dear friend, Quentin Riggs (who is now stationed in Paris) went to work for the U.S. State Department in Sydney, Australia, it occurred to me that he might be able to find some items about the Australian-born soprano in back files of Sydney newspapers. He did turn up two. The Sydney Morning Herald for December 5, 1925, said:

"Madame Marie Narelle, after an absence of 15 years in America, is enjoying a warm welcome home, for she is an Australian, who was born at Com-banning Station, near Temore, a property owned by her grandfather."

"She has been stimulated by many expressions of goodwill in her decision to undertake a concert tour before going back to America. When Madame Narelle left Australia she fulfilled many concert engagements in the United Kingdom before going across to America to sing at the World's Fair in St. Louis."
(Continued on page 40)

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

The foregoing seems to indicate that the singer had remained in the States, since she returned here in 1910 to sing for Edison, until she went back to Australia in 1925.

The sad news of Marie Narelle's death appeared in the Herald for January 31, 1941:

"Marie Narelle, the Australian mezzo-soprano, has died at Chipping Norton, England, according to a cablegram received in Sydney. Miss Narelle, who was 70, achieved her first success at Sydney Town Hall, and toured Australia before going to America, where she gave many concerts. She is survived by two daughters and a son. A sister, Mrs. N. Gaffney, and a brother, Mr. A. J. Ryan, live in Sydney."

The brother's name is the final bit of corroborative evidence. If the soprano were his full sister, then her family name, too, must have been Ryan.

However, when the Narelle-Ryan theory suddenly entered my head, I did not remember that she had a brother, much less know his name. But, even more strongly than before, it seems that Marie Narelle and Marie, or Mary, Ryan of Pathe records must be the same singer.

Obviously, the information in that death notice is disappointingly scant. We don't have the date of birth or death. And we don't know whether the artist was married to a man named Narelle, or, which seems more likely to me, Narelle was a stage name. It certainly has the sound of one, despite the Phonogram's disclaimer.

Other questions occur: When and where was Marie Narelle married? If she was 70 in 1941, she was 34 when she made her first Edison records in 1905, and probably was already married and a mother despite the quoted statement that she was single. When and why did she go to England to live after returning to Australia in 1925?

Perhaps later we shall learn the answer to those questions and others that may occur to both you and me. Pending further enlightenment, I think we can agree that the soprano whose records were considered miracles of pure tone quality nearly 60 years ago was a true and sincere artist.

While she never won the operatic acclaim of Marie Rappold or Marie Sundelius, she was their equal, or superior, in concert songs. And she probably could have done equally well in opera if she had wished.

Among all of Edison's many Marys, Marias and Maries, Marie Narelle was not the least.

(The End)

OLD METALS

(Continued from page 44)

as early as 1750. He, or one of his elder brothers, inherited York House in 1748 from his father, Sir Theodore Janssen, a prominent London merchant who had accumulated great wealth as a promoter of the South Seas schemes.

The Battersea rate book indicates that no rates were collected on York House until late in 1753. The entries for the several preceding years merely record that the House was "empty."

Throughout its three-year life of artistic brilliance, the Battersea enamel workshop never became firmly established as a commercial cause.

Stephen Theodore Janssen was declared bankrupt in 1756. His household goods were sold. And several months later all enamels at York House were sold at auction. Included were enameled pictures, snuff boxes, watch cases; also decanter labels, tiles, stove plates, and numerous other items.

Battersea enamels marked an important advance in enameling techniques, even though, stylistically, they did reflect a trained French taste of the mid-18th century, and designs were dominated by the engravings of Ravenet.

These enamels have invariable intrinsic value simply because they reflect, with unsophisticated ingenuity, the English tastes of their time.

—O—

I regret, because of heavy commitments, not having the time to make appraisals and identifications. —G.K.

OLD MECHANICAL BANKS

(Continued from page 49)

however, that it is unique and completely different than any other known mechanical bank.

—O—

It is with much regret the writer reports the death of Edward T. Richards of Peace Dale, R.I., on January 14, 1964.

Ed was very well known in the mechanical bank collecting field and both he and his wife, Grace, were most avid and enthusiastic in their efforts of building up an outstanding collection of mechanical banks.

Mr. Richards founded and presided over for many years the Mechanical Bank Collectors Club of Rhode Island and was the prime organizer and president of the Mechanical Bank Collectors Club of America. He was also a well known and leading attorney with offices in Providence, R.I.

We know that many HOBBIES readers who knew him personally will be deeply touched, as was the writer, by the sad news of his untimely death.

DOLL ACCESSORIES

DOLL HATS. Dress up your doll collection with the addition of attractive doll hats. They're wonderful for gifts for the small fry, too. I also do doll repairing, such as rebuilding bodies, feet, fingers, shoulders (on the German jointed dolls that have blasque heads). I can mend kid bodies, if they can be mended, or make a new cloth body. Satisfaction or your money back. — Mary Upshaw, Doll repairing, 2601 Forbes St., Jacksonville 4, Fla. tfx

DO YOU want your dolls dressed correctly? Research done for each. Patterns made to measure for historic dolls. Stamp please.—Miss Christine Spraker, 304 Arnold Ave., Port Allegany, Pa. my6829

DOLL SUPPLIES: Curly mohair, elastic cord, wigs, doll stands. Send 25c in coin or stamps for illustrated, descriptive literature, including 17 or more samples of mohair and elastic.—Bessie Magee, Middlefield, Conn. 06455 au60211

WAGONWHEEL patterns: Body, clothing, for china and bisque heads. 1800-1910. Stamp, dime, for list and sample pattern. — Follett Studios, Box 362, Moorhead, Minn. je126351

DOLL WIGS. Dynel or human hair, long curls, lovely. Price list for two stamps. — Dorothy's Dolls, 2509 Covert Ave., Evansville, Ind. mh3633

DOLL HATS, 5 for $5.50 postpaid. Beautiful velvets, straws, felts. Send 25c and stamp for doll corset pattern. — Craigor's, Route 1, Box 302, Ironton, Ohio. mh1002

DOLL REPAIRS & Restorations

BRODEUR DOLL HOSPITAL, 417 State Life Bldg., Indianapolis 4, Ind. For 48 years we have done all kinds of repairs on all types of dolls. Work well done, reasonable prices. o120291

REPAIR DOLLS. Big money, no experience necessary. Send $1.50 for instruction book and 7-page parts catalog. —Doll Repair Parts, 9918 Lorain Ave., Cleveland 2, Ohio. mh126351

PORCELAIN reproductions: Heads, arms, legs, plain and socket type. Heads dated. Stamp and dime for list and booklet, "Bird's Eye View of Doll World." — Follett Studios, Box 362, Moorhead, Minn. je120291

DOLL PATTERNS

WAGONWHEEL patterns, national distributor. Stamp and dime for list and sample body pattern. — Elizabeth Kringer, 813 7th Ave. North, Fargo, N.D. je128041

DOLLS — MUSEUM

ANTIQUE DOLL MUSEUM, 135 San Francisco Ave., Egg Harbor City, N.J. 08215. (18 miles from Atlantic City). 800 dolls displayed. 16 ft. doll house. 2 hour lecture tours, by appointment. Groups $1 per person; $5 minimum. Phone 965-0366. Area Code 609. my3656

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8. (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Ralph Bingham

By JIM WALSH

I. Two Eloquent Tributes

(1) "Bless Bingham and all the apostolic college of humorists. The man that makes me laugh is my benefactor. God bless all skilful punsters, all those who mirthfully surprise us with unusual juxtaposition of words. Theirs is a divine mission.

"They stir into the acid beverage of life the saccharine, and make the cup of earthly existence, which is sometimes stale, effervesce and bubble. They placate animosities. They foster longevity. They slay follies and absurdities which all the sermons of all the pulpits cannot reach."

(2) "Ralph Bingham is funny because he can't help it. If he went into the undertaking business he would be expelled from the union in a week. He was born to drive dull care away—a doctor who cures by the good old rule of 'laugh and grow fat.'

"And he is one of the few doctors who seem to take their own medicine. On the platform or off, with an audience of one or five hundred, if Mr. Bingham's hearers are not shrieking with laughter you may take it for granted they are deaf-mutes who have not yet learned to read lip movements."

That ornate and flowery tribute quoted in the first paragraph came from the pen of the Rev. Thomas DeWitt Talmage, a noted evangelist and editor of the Christian Herald. I don't know in what year it was written, but since Mr. Talmage died in 1902 when Ralph Bingham was only 32, it obviously was penned when the portly and genial humorist was still a very young man.

The second laudatory comment, written in plain down-to-earth English, was published in "Talent" with Paul M. Pearson's name attached. Regardless of the difference in diction, they agree that Ralph Bingham was funny.

However, the gentleman whom Sam Rous, the Victor catalog editor, called Bingham's "silver-tongued publicity agent," went Talmage one better. Here is what he wrote, when Bingham's first Victor records were issued in 1915:

"He has now been 37 consecutive years before the public and has made 10,000 appearances on the American Continent. He has traveled more than 300,000 miles.

"Six hundred towns in Uncle Sam's domain have given him, each, five, some of them six, seven and eight audiences, in repeated recognition, confirmation, and commendation of his unequaled artistic and natural accomplishments, skillful platform methods, and his inimitable public demonstrations of wit, wisdom, humor, poetry, sentiment, tragedy, music, melody, drollery, and mirth."

Sam dryly commented: "Certainly we can't add anything to that!"

II. A Child Prodigy

Many years ago, when I was living in Marion, Va., an old house on Main street was torn down, and I obtained several ancient newspapers and some other printed matter which had been stored in the attic.

Included was a publicity "blurb" for an entertainment that Ralph Bingham had given at Marion Junior College—a still active institution for young women. My learned brother, Dr. Chad Walsh, head of the English department at Beloit College, attended Marion College for two years as a town-dwelling "coed."

Ralph Bingham in varied moods. —From the November, 1915, Victor Record Supplement.

That "advance" probably is still among my stored away possessions, but I can't remember seeing it since I left Marion in 1934. I wish I could find and quote from it, but I remember that Bingham was 26 when it was issued, which seems to fix the year of his appearance at Marion College as 1896.

Since the age of eight, he had been travelling with his father and was billed as a boy prodigy who not only told funny dialect stories but also played the violin. In those days he apparently performed mostly in educational institutions and under the auspices of churches. Emphasis was laid on the cleanliness of his humor.

The publicity contained quotations from several pastors and presidents of colleges praising Bingham's programs and saying he was steadily improving as a violinist and a humorist.

I don't know whether the comedian played the violin in the stage and Chautauqua appearances he made by the thousands in his mature years, but I imagine he discarded the instrument and relied on his inexhaustible treasury of funny dialect stories.

However that may have been, it is obvious that if Bingham were alive and vigorous today he would stand no chance as a public entertainer by relying on the repertoire that served him so well during his professional life. His stories were based heavily on the old-time "stereotype" of the Negro as a shiftless, good-natured, drunken, chicken-stealing character, and he would be under fire from the NAACP and "liberal" elements if he dared to tell them.

Bingham also told stories in Jewish and other dialects, and they too would be attacked by pressure groups. I am not sure that today's unofficial but effective ban on dialect comedy is a good thing. In fact, I think it isn't.

In the old days, the Irishman laughed at jokes about the Negro, but the Negro in his turn laughed at Irish jokes. The Jew laughed at Harry Lauder's anecdotes about Scotch "thriftiness," and the Scot chuckled at similar stories about the Hebrew. There was seldom any malice in the work of the dialect comedians. It was mostly humor in a spirit of good-natured "give and take."

I will concede that some dialect comedy was objectionable. In this category I place some of Walter C. Kelly's "Virginian Judge" material (Kelly was a racial bigot who refused to work on the same vaudeville bill with the colored comedian, Bert Williams). And if I were Jewish I should resent such recorded "comedy" as "The Original Cohens," by Ada Jones and Len Spencer. But anything of a genuinely offensive nature was relatively rare.

Few Negroes disliked comedy of the Bingham type in his day, and many don't object to it now. A few years ago a highly intelligent, well educated young Negro spent an afternoon listening to some of my records. To begin with, he was amazed at the realism of Edison Diamond Disc recordings. After listening to a Walter Scanlan record, my friend, himself a tenor like Scanlan, exclaimed:

"Mr. Walsh, I never heard any recording like that before! That beats anything I ever heard! How did Mr. Edison manage to get such marvelous results?"

A few minutes later he surprised me by picking up a Columbia record of Ada Jones singing "If the Man in the Moon Were a Coon." He asked me to play it. I had carefully refrained from putting on anything that I feared might offend him or hurt his feelings, so I rather dubiously asked if he were sure he wanted to hear that song. He insisted he did and he laughed with unaffected enjoyment as it was played.

"Would you mind playing some more like that? I do enjoy that Negro dialect!" he said.

So I played a number of Al Bernard and Ernest Hare's inimitable blackfaced comedy skits, and some by Jones and Spencer. We even heard a 1901 record of "Coon, Coon, Coon" by Arthur Collins and Joe Natus.

After a time I said: "I'm surprised you like those records. After all, they don't represent colored people in a very favorable light."

Serious for a moment, he replied: "Well, Mr. Walsh, it's like this. Those records are good-natured and they don't reflect on me. I know there are Negroes like those they impersonate in those records, just as there are plenty of others who are self-respecting and hard-working and doing their best to live up to high standards.

"I have no more right to complain about that type of Negro being depicted on records than the Irish have to try to stop 'Bringing Up Father' from being in the funny papers on the grounds that Maggie and Jiggs give a false impression of the Irish."

I have often thought that young man, whom I regard as one of my dearest friends, took a sensible attitude. He would have listened to Ralph Bingham in person and enjoyed his humor completely without self-consciousness, just as he almost went into hysterics over Bingham's record of "Mrs. Rastus at the Telephone."

The "live and let live" attitude should prevail in dialect humor as in everything else.

Speaking of "Mrs. Rastus at the Telephone," I am reminded of another example of broad-mindedness. I once gave a program of old recordings for a Jewish businessmen's organization and carefully avoided any Hebrew humor that might be offensive.

But the Jewish gentlemen, who constituted, I think, the most intelligently alert and responsive audience I ever appeared before, were disappointed that I hadn't brought "Cohen at the Telephone" and similar records. They said they enjoyed a program of serious music by Jewish artists, but they also wanted Monroe Silver, Julian Rose, Weber and Fields, and other Jewish dialect "comics."

But now to Ralph Bingham's records.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling. tfc

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House, opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine tfo

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING - Cylinders replanned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (FE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y. tfo
Specialists since 1825

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF
MUSIC BOXES
$5, postpaid
242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by
HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

CHICAGO ANTIQUES
EXPOSITION and HOBBY FAIR
May 9-13, inc.
CONRAD HILTON HOTEL
Visit old friends there

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

- ALL LABELS
Particularly the following:
- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
  - ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
  - ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
  - ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
  - ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York tfx

Ralph Bingham. —Reproduced from the September, 1915, Victor Record Supplement.
Ralph Bingham displaying one of his records to "Nipper" the Victor dog.
—From the September, 1919, Victor Record Supplement.

III. "The Walnut Story"

Several years before Bingham signed his Victor contract, one of his favorite stories was used on a best selling record, although it was not made by him but by his friend, the late Edwin M. Whitney, whose life story appeared in HOBBIES for October, 1957.

The anecdote was "The Ducky and the Boys," also known as "The Walnut Story," which Whitney recorded in 1910 for both Victor and Edison. It told of two boys who had been hunting walnuts, climbing over a graveyard wall to divide them. They dropped two walnuts on their way over the wall. Then they began to count them, saying, "I'll take this one! I'll take this one!" as each was laid in a pile.

An old Negro came along, heard the voices saying "I'll take this one" and ran to tell a white friend that the Lord and the Devil were in the graveyard dividing up the souls.

The white man scoffed but went to the cemetery wall with the Negro. As they stood outside, the boys said: "I'll take this one. I'll take this one! . . . New we'll get the two outside the fence and we'll have 'em all!"

The record ended with Whitney's dead-pan comment: "And they tell me that the white man beat the Negro running!"

Mr. Whitney, whom I met in Knoxville, Tenn., in 1927, was the first recording artist I ever talked with. He told me he had been given the Walnut story by Ralph Bingham but didn't know where Bingham got it.

I was distressed when Whitney said Bingham had died a year or two before, from pneumonia which he had taken on one of his tours. I had thought the fat and fun-loving Ralph was still alive and entertaining audiences.

IV. Bingham's First Victor Record

A 1925 Who's Who in America says that Ralph Bingham was born in Richmond, Va., on August 2, 1870, the son of Hamilton and Jane E. (McClintock) Bingham. He was educated in public schools and under "private tutelage," and received an honorary A.B. from Villanova College in 1906.

Bingham married Christine L. Giles on October 14, 1908. He "began on the platform" as a child in Richmond and first toured the United States and Canada under his father's management.

He was founder and president of the International Lyceum Association of America and was vice president of the Boy Council of Philadelphia. He was an Episcopalian and lived in Philadelphia.

The humorist's death occurred December 27, 1925.

Ralph Bingham's recorded repertoire consists of three 10-inch and two 12-inch double-faced Victor records.

The first disc, 17818, combining "Mrs. Rastus at the Telephone" and "Jests from Georgia," which were described as "darky stories," was announced in the Victor supplement for September, 1915. The description was accompanied by a small, but excellent, photograph of the smiling comedian. In part, the announcement said:

The Victor announces with pleasure the exclusive engagement of this famous humorist and raconteur for a series of records, the stories to be chosen from the best ones in Mr. Bingham's immense collection. This popular entertainer was born in Richmond, Va., in 1870, and made his first appearance in public in 1876.

"The first two selections, which are now presented, comprise the famous 'Mrs. Rastus at the Telephone,' which never fails to convulse an audience; and two very amusing Georgia stories, which Mr. Bingham has been using a great deal recently."

An old friend of mine tells me he well remembers when that first Bingham record came out. Then a small boy, he had gone to his Victor dealer's, intending to buy Albert Campbell and Henry Burr's record of "Norway," which he had previously heard and considered the prettiest song that had ever mesmerized his ears.

But he happened to hear "Mrs. Rastus at the Telephone," and was convulsed. Having only 75 cents, he underwent mental anguish trying to decide whether to invest in "Norway" or take "Mrs. Rastus" home to cheer the other folks in his family.

Comedy won and he did not regret his purchase. But I was glad to learn he went back and got "Norway (The Land of the Midnight Sun)" as soon as he amassed another six bits.

"Mrs. Rastus at the Telephone" is extremely funny. "Mrs. Rastus" (whom one imagines to be as portly as Bingham himself) is talking on the telephone to a doctor and trying to explain why Rastus needs the doctor's immediate services.

All sorts of things have happened to poor Rastus, including overeating, drinking too much Coca Cola, and an over abundance of "corn licker" and gin: "Yas suh, gin, J-I-N-nigger gin!" Rastus has also narrowly escaped drowning and been carved "scandalous" with a razor by an irate acquaintance, before being taken to the police station on a charge of carrying "congealed weepens."

The record ends with Mrs. Rastus saying: "Well, doctor, I guess you'll have to 'scuse Rastus dis time. He's daid!"

Bingham's low-life Negro dialect was excellent, as it should have been.

"Jests From Georgia" includes two "darky stories." The first is funny only if the listener can close his mind to what a horrible thing hanging is, whether done legally or at the hands of an ignorant, infuriated, cowardly mob.

It tells of a hanging that was taking place in an isolated Georgia community — a legal execution since the sheriff and his deputies were officiating. They had fastened a rope to a scaffold and slipped the noose around the Negro victim's neck when a fire alarm signal was sounded. Being volunteer firemen, the sheriff and his "boys" left the prisoner ready to be hanged and went to fight the flames.

While The Law was gone, another Negro came along and saw the man who was awaiting execution. He asked what the prisoner was doing and was told he was "posin' for movin' pitchers" and getting $10 an hour. But, he said, he was tired of the job. He offered the newcomer the chance to swap with him.

His victim unfastened the rope and then had it tied around his own neck. After a while the sheriff's department returned and went into action. They swung the substitute into the air — but the rope broke! And, as he picked himself up, the angry Negro exclaimed:

"Look here, white folks! You-all keep messin' aroun' with these here movin' pitchers, an' the first thing you know some nigger's gwine to git hurt."

The second, and much shorter story, told of the deacon of a Georgia Negro church who was rebuked by the pastor when he showed up late for Sunday services. He called on the deacon for an explanation and was told:

"Well, parson, you see it was like dis! There was a terrible accident down at my house last night. Somebody left my chicken coop door open an' all de chickens went home!"

A "stereotype" of course — but a funny one if your sense of racial righteousness doesn't overpower your sense of humor.

V "My Possum Hunt" — "Possy"

Thousands of record buyers were still enjoying "Mrs. Rastus" when the second Bingham record was offered in November, 1915 — a 12-inch combination (35490) of "The Boy in the Bleachers" and "My Possum Hunt." The supplement said:

"Two more good stories by this popular entertainer are offered this month — an amusing soliloquy by a 'tough kid' in the bleacher audience, and Mr. Bingham's famous 'Possum Hunt,' which he has told some thousands of times, and which always makes a hit. Mr. Bingham, like most of the real good people, makes records only for the Victor."

It is strange that Victor put "The Boy in the Bleachers" on the A side, for "My Possum Hunt" was much more amusing. It tells, through a Negro narrator, the story of an imaginary 'possum hunt in Georgia. Among those taking part, besides assorted colored men and dogs, were Clark Howell, then publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, Senator Hoke Smith, and President William Howard Taft.

The narrator unctuously relates how he climbed a tree, thinking he saw "ol' Mr. Possum's eyes shinin' in de dark," only to discover that he was in the presence of a huge bear. The bear jumped to the ground and the hunters began running.

One Negro was asked by a passer-by where he was going in such a

(Continued on page 46)

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale, I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

WANTED: All red G&T records of Tamagno; also black G&T, Gramophone, and Victor records of Ewan Williams. As always, I will pay the best prices. — Thomas O'Shaughnessy, P.O. Box 281, Rochester, Minn. my3295

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. jly12407

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. my3403

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. je3084

DUPLICATES for sale. Free listings. — Edward F. Tobener, Collector of Classical Records, 1405 E. 66th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64131 je3633

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality, jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 31st St., New York 24, N. Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. je120061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. ap6407

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N. Y. my3863

CYLINDER RECORDS 50c each. Discs 25c and 50c each. Send for lists. — Gregory R. Reed, R.F.D. 4, Allentown 5, Pa. my3253

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. je3483

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. n12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. my3804

EDISON Kinetoscope, Model D. Early motion picture projector and complete traveling show. Includes 1/2 ton extra parts with 20 adjustable lenses, many glass slides, advertising plates, etc. — Mitello's Antiques, Westfield, N. Y. ap3825

IN MEMORY of Amelita Galli-Curci, several new vinylite RCA Victor 12" special pressings of her unpublished Rigoletto: Lasso in cielo, recorded with Giuseppe De Luca in 1913. Matrix C-21973-2. Magnificent! Please bid. — Aida Favia-Artisay, 50 Prospect Ave., Valhalla, N. Y. 10595 apx

FOR SALE: Rare 78's, opera, show biz, orchestral, historical. Send 10c for list. — P. Hanslee, Box 147, Calabasas, Calif. my6895

COLLECTOR buys and sells rare vocal operatic records. Lists solicited. — Arthur E. Knight, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PA 3-2889. my6407

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18 1/2" $3; 15 1/2" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. jly6468

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. ap3403

WANTED MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED: Coin-operated electric player piano with stained glass front. Plays drums, chimes, etc. — Harold Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Maryland. je3633

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

FOR SALE: old phonographs, phonograph records, needles, supplies, old books, piano rolls. Let me know your needs. All inquiries answered. — Monroe Sands, 303 E. Washington St., Urbana, Illinois. je122971

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America. $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. my32321

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

OLD CYLINDER or disc phonographs. Cylinder records. Hand roller organs and rolls. Will buy any amount, good prices paid. — Neumann Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale, Calif. 91204 je3234

PHONOGRAPHS, horns, records, parts, catalogs, etc. — Ernest Allen, 9908 Baltimore, Overland, Mo. ap1001

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c. 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

FOR SALE: Edison Blue Amberol cylinder phonograph with internal horn. Cylinders included. Excellent condition. $45. Write: L. E. Lazarus, Jr., Box 368, Forreston, Ill. ap1002

FOR SALE: 1900 Edison phonograph with morning glory horn (large). Playing condition, 5 cylinder records. — L. D. Richmond, Wyalusing, Pa. ap1802

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1860. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colorado. s12698

OLD POPULAR sheet music. Please write: Robt. Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Rm. 412, Los Angeles 26, Calif. ap3652

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE
write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my46p

From left to right:

A PRIVILEGED 'POSSUM, "Possy," Jim Walsh's pet 'possum, made himself a winter sleeping quarters beneath this sofa. He does not approve Ralph Bingham's record of "My 'Possum Hunt."

Jim Walsh, author of "Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists," giving a plate of liver scraps to "Possy." Jim doesn't play any records such as "Possum Pie" for fear of wounding "Possy's" tender sensibilities. —Photos by Glenn L. Robertson.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 35)

hurry and replied that he wasn't "gwine anywhere . . . I'm comin' away from some place." The narrator himself outran some other Negroes who were running like the wind and jumped over four rabbits who were going his way.

Half-way home, he remembered he had left his crippled old "pappy", who had insisted on going to the hunt in a wheel chair, to the "mercy" of the bear, but pity for Pappy didn't arrest his progress. Arrived at his cabin, he used his last breath to push open the door — "an' the first thing I seen was my ol' man sittin' in his chair befo' de fire!"

"How did you git here, ol' man?" I says, an' my pappy says:

"Shut up, nigger! I got here ahead of de dogs!"

"My Possum Hunt," though laughable, is a record I do not play in the presence of my pet opossum, "Possy," whose likeness was reproduced, along with the countenances of my cats, in the January, 1964, HOBBIES.

After that picture was submitted, "Possy" decided he didn't want to spend the winter in a dark corner of the cold basement. So, without asking my permission, he slipped upstairs and made himself a "nest" by removing part of the lining from the bottom of an old sofa and hollowing out a space among the springs.

There he slept at night, enjoying the heat from the hot air register in the hall a few feet away, and within easy foraging distance of the kitchen, where he ate the food the cats had left. For several weeks he visited a neighbor's yard and dined on persimmons while the man of the house and his little grandson stayed with him and watched while he ate.

When my neighbor mentioned this to me, he said: "I never before saw a 'possum so tame and gentle and sweet as this one. I wouldn't have anybody harm him for anything." (Anybody who does harm him will have trouble with Jim Walsh!)

But because "Possy" is tame and gentle, I know he's sensitive, and I avoid playing "My Possum Hunt" when he is within hearing distance. I also don't play "A Coon Possum Hunt," "Run, Brudder Possum, Run," "Possum Pie," and "Nigger Loves His Possum." And I especially avoid "Carve Dat Possum—Carve Him to de Heart."

I know the sentiments of these songs would prove almost unbearably painful to my beloved and loving "Possy," who comes at my call from the basement when I want to give him a plate of liver scraps. Recently, when two men installed a new water heater for me, "Possy" and a black kitten, "Lucky Jim," sat down near the men and supervised the operation.

"The Boy in the Bleachers" is not particularly funny to me. In doggerel verse, it describes the emotions of a teen-age boy who goes to a baseball game expecting to see the home team win, but becomes disgusted when the visitors clout one home run after another in the first inning.

He decides to go home, then remembers he has spent his carfare for a "Coke" and has "t'ree miles" to walk.

Bingham made his two best records in "Mrs. Rastus at the Telephone" and "My Possum Hunt."

VI. Other Bingham Records

The third Bingham disc did not appear until April, 1917, although it is possible that the whole series had been recorded at one engagement in 1915, with some reserved for later distribution. The one now under discussion, "Goldstein Behind the Bars" and "Mrs. Rastus Johnson at the Wedding," proved to be the most lastingly popular and to have the longest catalog life.

All other Bingham records were discontinued after the 1925 introduction of electrical recording, but 18231 was carried in the catalog until 1930. This is the supplement description:

"Goldstein finds himself and his wife in jail for 'expeding the seed limit.' His efforts to get in touch with his son Izzy over the telephone and his explanations of his need for bail make an amusing monolog such as will appeal to all who like Hebrew humor.

"A very different telephone conversation is that concerning Mrs. Rastus Johnson at the Wedding. Ralph Bingham has a wonderful facility for varied dialects and the way in which he drops that of the Hebrew for the American Negro is astonishing."

"Goldstein at the Bars" is a record which my Jewish friends would have enjoyed if I had played it for them. Mr. Goldstein's hysterical efforts to raise bond are genuinely amusing, though obviously based on the "Cohen at the Telephone" theme.

"Mrs. Rastus Johnson at the Wedding" is not so funny as she was in telling the doctor what happened to Rastus, but there are some laughs, as when she describes the organist playing "Meddlesome's Wedding March" and says that the bride's five brothers were ushers. Their names were Mathew, Mark, Luke, John, and Revelations. But, unfortunately, the groom didn't show up!

The least successful Bingham record, 35626, was issued in June, 1917. It consists of two stories told in limping rhyme—"Home Run Bill's Defense" and "The Hold-Up at Buck Run."

It is possible to get a smile or two
(Continued on page 56)

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 46)

out of the story of "Home Run Bill," but there is not even one smile in the other side, which is a pseudo-dramatic account of an attempted hold-up at an isolated railway station. But we may quote James E. Richardson, who had by this time taken over as writer of the Victor supplement:

"Anybody who loves a good baseball story will appreciate Home Run Bill's plea in answer to the charge of shooting Tobias 'in strictly self-defense.'"

"If he had not done so—but let Home Run Bill tell it himself. The game would certainly have been lost. Everybody who hears the story will emulate the 'Jedge' who laughed and laughed till tears ran down his face."

"Ralph Bingham is a master of many dialects, but he is naturally most at home with those of the South, where he originated. The exciting story of 'The Hold-Up at Buck Run' is a recitation that will appeal strongly to those who love a good tale of the railroad. Its dramatic character is all the more forceful after the humor of 'Home Run Bill's Defense.'"

If you are wondering what happened in the "Home Run Bill" story, it turns out that a gambler named Jim Jackson had bet six dollars on Bill's side to win and had told Bill that if he lost his money he would consider the game "thrown" and would hold Bill personally accountable.

With the score four and four in the ninth, Bill saw Shortstop Tobias of the other team about to steal second base on a wild pitch and feared the game was about to be lost. So he shot "Tobe" "in de pants," but not "hard enough to kill him," "to keep Jim Jackson from shootin' me." The game supposedly was played in Chattanooga.

Something like this happened years ago in a Negro baseball game in Roanoke, Va. In the ninth inning a runner dashed from third base toward home plate to score the winning run. The catcher, whose name I remember as Taylor, was desperate. The only way he could think of to keep from losing the game was to pick up a bat, hit the runner across the head and knock him unconscious before he reached home. That was what Taylor did. I still remember the headline on the Roanoke Times account: "Nifty Bit of Stick Work Ends Ball Game."

A long wait occurred before the fifth and last Ralph Bingham record was marketed in September, 1919. Once more Mrs. Rastus was back with "Mrs. Rastus Johnson's Joy Ride." The other side was "Brother Jones' Sermon." There was a fine photograph of Bingham showing a record to a large model Victor dog. I am reproducing it with this article. Now let's read Mr. Richardson's description of record 18587:

"Honk, Honk here she comes! Mrs. Rastus is riding in her automobile, which, if it isn't the swiftest, is at least the loudest in the world. And Rastus is with her, volubly, vocally, actively. When the last thing in the world you'd expect to happen happens, and the fivver suddenly stalls, it is Rastus who has to get out and crank."

"But of what happens in the meantime we'll let Ralph Bingham tell you in his own inimitable manner. With it goes a Sunday morning sermon, in which Brother Jones discourses on 'De Divers,' 'Flumonia' and other ills of the flesh. If you never suffered from 'De Divers,' only Brother Jones can tell you the symptoms. The curious sing-song method of delivery is as funny as it is true to life."

Notice that Rastus, after dying in the first Bingham record, has returned to life in the last. He almost dies again after striking a match to see if any gasoline is left in the tank. The gas tank explodes and Rastus is blown into a tree.

"Brother Jones" took his text from "the 14th chapter of Etymology."

As already mentioned, 18231 stayed in the catalog through 1929. All the others had been retained through 1925, but were discontinued in the first electrical catalog. However, three were restored in the 1927 catalog of records of historical and personal interest.

The one failing to make the return grade was that which I have called the poorest — "Home Run Bill's Defense" and "The Hold-Up at Buck Run." The chief thing of interest about the latter side is that it reveals that Bingham, when speaking in his natural rather high tenor voice, used the "broad A" that is common to many persons living in and around Richmond. He said "pahst" for "past."

Ralph Bingham has been dead almost 39 years and his style of humor is no longer in vogue. But it was clean and, dialectic objections aside, wholesome. Our country would be better off today if it had more entertainers of the type of Ralph Bingham and fewer "sick comedians."

If you have Bingham records, play them occasionally. They are an excellent antidote for the blues, and I am sure, from all that I have heard of Bingham himself, that he was a fine, friendly, lovable man.

(The End)

ON TIME

(Continued from page 51)

no bezel or glass over the beautiful porcelain dial and exquisite hands.

A name, "Lenzkirch," is imprinted on the back movement plate. I do not find this name in the lists of old makers. I am not concerned, however, because it is well-known that the lists are quite deficient in the matter of middle Europe makers.

I am sure this is a Vienna clock and that it dates back to the first quarter of the 19th century. It could be even earlier. Along with all of its very fine features it is a good timekeeper as well.

I do not go along with the thought that age alone makes an antique clock desirable. That is only one of the considerations. There are many others. And certainly one of the most important is beauty of design, proportion, and execution.

I want my old clocks to be beautiful as well as good.

— O —

APPRAISAL FEE

"What is My Clock or Watch Worth?" Send picture and brief description of clock or watch to L. W. Slaughter, 201 East Lancaster Ave., Shillington, Pa., asking my fee. I will estimate the time and work involved and notify you of my charge. Be sure to write for Appraisal Service Fee. —L.W.S.

AMERICAN DOLLS

(Continued from page 44)

carry on his trade. In the early 1840's, he founded a factory for making toys, and in 1858 applied for his first patent. In 1872 an extension was granted on the original.

These prim and proper little ladies were made in all sizes, both blondes and brunettes showing various styles of hairdress. There are at least eight different hair styles, that we know of. The original label is usually found on the back of the neck, between the shoulders.

The patent specifications indicate the head molded in two parts, front and back. These are joined by a tape of muslin or calico which is also used to reinforce the nose. Paper, glue, flour and Spanish whiting make up the composition of the Greiner. These indestructible heads were sold separately and industrious mothers usually made the bodies.

All of Greiner's doll, with their broad shoulders, have a placid yet determined expression of a typical German house-frau, who believes in "Kirche, Kinder and Kuchen."

In 1958, nationally affiliated doll clubs throughout the United States celebrated the Greiner centennial. Collectors in all parts of the world highly prize this doll who typifies early Americana. These were dolls that were loved and played with. Little girls were not fearful of breakage.

Ludwig Greiner was one of America's pioneer doll makers. Each succeeding generation has produced good doll makers who help us understand the development and styles of our country.

BIBLIOGRAPHY:

- American Dolls—Ruth Freeman, Watkins Glen, N.Y., Century House, 1952.
- Dolls of Yesterday—Eleanor St. George, New York, C. Scribner & Sons, 1948.
- Toys of Other Days—F. Nevill Jackson, London, Country Life, 1908.
- The Handbook of Old American Toys—Louis H. Hertz, Wethersfield, Conn., Mark Haber & Co., 1947.
- American Made Dolls and Figurines — Doll Collectors of America, Inc., Winchester, Mass., 1940.
- Dolls a Guide for Collectors — Clara Hallard Fawcett, New York, H. L. Lindquist Publications, 1947.
- Your Dolls and Mine—Janet Pagter Juhl, New York, H. L. Lindquist, Publications, 1952.
- The New World—Stefan Lorant, New York, Duell, Sloan & Pierce, 1946.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells

PART I

By JIM WALSH

Grace Kerns from January 1912
Columbia Records.

I. A Distinguished Duet Pair

In March I concluded an account of the careers of Marie Narelle and Berrick Von Norden, a soprano and tenor whose only recorded association was singing a duet of "Day Dreams, Visions of Bliss" on an Edison cylinder.

This month I shall begin the stories of another soprano and tenor, Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells, whom I have had in mind for years as subjects of one or more articles. And again the two singers are combined on the strength of having made just one record together.

The record itself, as I shall explain at the proper time, was one of the most ludicrous examples of miscasting that two distinguished concert artists can ever have suffered, although they did well with something that would have been better suited to Billy Murray and the American Quartet or Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan.

I have often laughed, wondering about Miss Kerns' and Mr. Wells' emotions when they were asked to sing the composition I have in mind. John Wells was noted for his sense of humor and as an accomplished practical joker, which may have led him to greet the suggestion with impish delight. Miss Kerns also must have had a jocular vein or she would not have consented.

"But that is another story," as Rudyard Kipling used to say. Let us proceed now to the story, or stories, of Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells. Ordinarily, the lady would come first, but since I intend to proceed in chronological order and Wells made records before she did, he takes precedence.

II. A Brief Biography

As a child, endlessly preoccupied with records and recording artists, I had an amusing imaginary conception of John Barnes Wells. I depicted him as a tenor who always took pains to select the worst possible accompanist for his recitals.

Then, if his efforts weren't rapturously applauded, he would later explain to his friends: "Aw, it wasn't my fault. My piano player wasn't no account."

I hadn't then heard any of his records. And I thought of the accompanist as an unskilled high school girl.

But Wells was not a performer who needed to apologize for lack of vocal equipment, inadequate training or deficient musical intelligence. He was not only a tenor with a fine voice and interpretative skill but a minor composer, some of whose songs have merit.

John Barnes Wells was one of the relatively few American singers who "made" Who's Who in America for many years. An information seeker who turns to the 1934-35 edition will find him described as a "musician," who was born in Ashley, Pa., on October 17, 1880.

He was a son of John Calvin and Fidelia Alice (Barnes) Wells. (His middle name obviously came from his mother's family.) He was a student at Syracuse University from 1897 to 1901, but didn't graduate. On June 10, 1908, a year or so before his recording career began, he married Ethel Cator Heverin of Dover, Del., and they had one daughter, Dorothy Heverin Wells.

He was described as a concert and oratorio singer and teacher who was a member of Psi Upsilon, the University Glee, Dutch Treat, and Psi Upsilon clubs. His address was 317 West 95th Street, New York.

John Barnes Wells October 1919
Aeolian-Vocalion Records.

Wells' songs included "If I Were You," "The Dearest Place," "The Owl," "The Little Bird," "The Lightning Bug," "Why I Wish I Was a Little Rock," "I Dunno," "The Morning of Love," "Deep in the Heart of Me," "The Crow's Egg," "Two Little Magpies," "Thumb Marks," "Whoa," "The Turtle," "Wishin' and Fishin'," "Just Smiling," "The Mystery," "Cat-tails," "Mr. Wells," "My Lady Love," "What Care I," and "The Silly Little Fool."

It looks as though Wells frequently had children in mind when he composed his tuneful little pieces. I am not acquainted with his song called "Mr. Wells," but am intrigued by its title. Was it something, I wonder, in which his sense of fun came to the fore and he "kidded" himself?

The Who's Who information may be supplemented with a few other items found in the second edition of the "ASCAP Biographical Dictionary," which says that the tenor made his debut in New York with Victor Herbert's Orchestra.

He was also a soloist with Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony and other orchestras, and with choral societies in many cities.

He held "church posts in New York at Divine Paternity and St. Nicholas," and was a soloist in oratorios, recitals, concerts and radio. For 15 years he tutored students at Princeton University in voice culture.

As a further, and inadequate supplement, the 1938 edition of the "MacMillan Encyclopaedia of Music and Musicians" briefly described Wells as an "American tenor and composer; . . . pupil of Victor Harris. He made his debut in New York in 1915. He has composed a number of songs."

That statement about the 1915 debut is a mistake.

III. First Victor Records

John Barnes Wells' first disc records were made for Victor—a company for which Grace Kerns apparently never sang. His initial offering may have been the most popular record he ever made, but its enduring vogue probably was due even more to the B side on which Harry Macdonough was heard in the ageless "Where the River Shannon Flows."

The A side was given over to Wells' interpretation of a much older ballad, "Sweet Genevieve," in which he had the assistance of the once world-famous Haydn Quartet. Such a combination was bound to sell big.

Victor Supplement Editor, Sam Rous, wrote in the issue for February, 1910:

"A favorite old ballad for which there have been many requests. However, there has been a gain in waiting, for in the meantime the Victor has discovered a new tenor, whose voice is especially suited to this old song. For good measure Mr. Macdonough gives a popular ballad of old Ireland."

This was routine treatment, far from what the peerless James Edward Richardson would have written if the record had been published 10 years later.

Another Wells record destined for good sales came along in April. It was "My Garden That Blooms for You" and occupied the B side of 16467. Again, the Wells offering's popularity owed much to its coupling, which this time was "The Garden of Roses," sung by Macdonough, who now had the Haydn Quartet's help. Of course he was its "lead" to begin with:

"Two charming 'garden' songs by two competent and clear-voiced tenors. Mr. Wells has made many friends with his sweetly sung 'Genevieve,' and this new record will increase the number . . ."

If Wells had received only perfunctory attention for his first two records, he was the subject of a splurge on page two of the August supplement. His photograph was reproduced and there was a headline: "Two Songs by John Barnes Wells, Who Now Sings Exclusively for the Victor."

Before this announcement of Wells' having signed an exclusive contract was made, he had recorded his first and only four-minute Edison Amberol cylinder. It was reviewed in the August, 1909, New Phonogram:

"187. 'Good-Night, Dear.' A love ballad by still another singer who now enters the ranks of Edison artists. Mr. Wells is well-known in New York and vicinity. He has a fine tenor voice. The song is the one introduced in the comedy, 'Love Watches,' and sung with great success by Billie (Sic!) Burke. Composer, Will R. Anderson."

I wonder why Wells sang for Edison no more. As often happened, Edison had introduced a promising artist only to have the more enterprising Victor take him over.

To about this same period belongs Wells' first U. S. Everlasting four-minute cylinder, "My Garden That Blooms for You," a song that has

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfo

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LYOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

tfc

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House, opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine

tfo

Antique
MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE
EXPERT REPAIRING - Cylinders repinned,
combs repaired & tuned, all parts repaired,
cases refinished, all work guaranteed.
Free estimates, appraisals & lists.
Bornand Music Box Co.
139 4th Ave. (PE 8-1506) Pelham, N.Y.
Specialists since 1925

tfo

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF
MUSIC BOXES
$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-
makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

CHICAGO ANTIQUES
EXPOSITION and HOBBY FAIR

May 9-13, inc.

CONRAD HILTON HOTEL

Visit old friends there

WANTED
FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION
RECORDS
of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

already been mentioned as his second Victor offering.

His one Indestructible four-minute cylinder, "At the Gate of the Palace of Dreams," came along a couple of years later, in 1912, after Wells supposedly had become exclusive to Victor. It may have been recorded earlier but held for belated release, or the Victor contract may have been changed.

One of the tenor's August, 1910, Victors was a single-faced 10-inch, "In Maytime," a song composed by Oley Speaks. On a single-faced 12-inch he sang "Beloved, It Is Morn." Probably sales statistics would show that both were only poor-to-fair sellers, but here is Editor Rous' supplement description:

"An August announcement of great interest is the exclusive engagement of this noted young tenor by the Victor.

"Mr. Wells, who is a native of Pennsylvania, first became known as a singer while at Syracuse University, where he took a prominent part in the musical life of the college.

"On his graduation he was secured by the Brick Presbyterian Church of East Orange, always noted for its fine choir. New York soon discovered Mr. Wells, and he was promptly captured by the Madison Avenue M. E. Church, where his concert career may be said to have begun.

"The audiences who hear this young singer are always in complete sympathy with him, not only because of his lovely voice and the charm of his singing, but because of the absolute clearness of his enunciation, which enables every word to be heard.

"These unusual qualities are fully apparent in the two numbers he has sung for the Victor—Florence Aylward's impassioned love song and the delightful Ode to Spring by Oley Speaks."

Probably, as a part of signing Wells to sing only for Victor, the company meant at first to give him a bit more prestige by restricting his records to the single-faced type. These, however, steadily declined in popular favor, and he was soon back on the double-faced.

Notice that the sketch just quoted says he was graduated from Syracuse, whereas Who's Who, on going upon information provided by Wells, said he didn't. (Just another example of a biographer's troubles in trying to keep his facts straight when he consults differing sources!)

Since the tenor was singing for an East Orange church and the Edison company was at West Orange, it appears fairly obvious why his first recorded offering was an Edison cylinder.

During his early association with Victor, Wells remade 12-inch single-faced record 31394, "My Wild Irish Rose."

It had originally been sung by a now obscure tenor, Robert E. Lennon, who seems to have made no other discs, and was issued in July, 1905. As a sort of consolation prize to the now doubtless departed Mr. Lennon we may quote the supplement description of his lone effort:

"This is the most permanently popular of Chauncy Olcott's songs. No matter how many new ones he sings each year, the public always demands the favorite 'Irish Rose.' Mr. Lennon, who now makes his first appearance on Victor Catalogs, possesses a pleasant tenor voice and interprets this charming song extremely well."

The Lennon "interpretation" was still in the January, 1910, catalog, but by November had been succeeded by the Wells version with the same catalog number.

IV. Exclusive Victor Artist

Even in 1910, achieving an exclusive Victor contract was beginning to be considered a mark of prestige for any musician, so no doubt young John Barnes Wells, who had not yet seen his 30th birthday, was proud of himself.

The tenor was given another "big play" in September, 1910, when two more single-faced black label records by him were announced. An interesting feature of the supplement description was quotations from Southern newspapers concerning a tour of the South he had recently made:

"Those fortunate possessors of Mr. Wells' August records have doubtless noted the remarkable beauty of this young tenor's voice in the Aylward and Speaks songs and have enjoyed the refreshingly clear diction which marked his delivery.

"These records are undoubtedly among the most beautiful reproductions of concert songs which the Victor has issued in its black label class.

"Mr. Wells has just returned from his Southern recital tour, which was remarkable for the enthusiasm which his singing evoked from the audiences. Some of the press comments are interesting.

"A rich tenor of rarely full and sympathetic quality, and the hearts of the audience warmed to him from the first note.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal."

"His voice is a pure tenor, with an attractive sweetness in it—and he sings with ease and good taste.—Houston Chronicle."

"The new records Mr. Wells has made for the September list are Harriet Ware's enchanting 'Boat Song,' one of the greatest concert successes of 1909-10; and Lassen's well-known 'Mit deinem blauen Augen' ('Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender'), with the best of the many translations."

A new and even more youthful looking picture of Wells appeared in October, together with the announcement of two additional single-faced 10-inch records. One, "The Rosary," probably became, after it was coupled with Alan Turner's baritone version of "For All Eternity," Wells' best selling record next to "Sweet Genevieve." The supplement said:

"This month Mr. Wells gives us two standard songs of more than ordinary beauty, and he sings them quite delightfully. Meyer-Helmund's 'Margaretha' ('O' Thee, I'm Thinking, Margaretha') is next to the 'Thine Eyes So Blue,' the most popular of all his songs, and in Germany it is so beloved that it may well be called a folk song.

"Nevin's impressive 'Rosary' is already represented in the Victor catalog by the records of Schumann-Heink and Mr. Turner, but is now given for the first time by a tenor.

"Mr. Wells has in a few months by his lovely voice and artistic singing placed himself in the foremost rank of the singers who make Victor Records.

"The Victor possesses the exclusive right to Mr. Wells' services for the making of all types of records."

Here, at last, was high praise, but for some puzzling reason the hitherto steady stream of Wells records thinned to a trickle during the months that followed. There were no more single-faced discs.

It must have been discovered that the public was no longer inclined to pay 60 cents for a 10-inch record that played on only one side when a double-faced one by artists of the same caliber could be had for just 15 cents more. Wells returned to the double-faced class and stayed there.

The tenor's next record was not announced until February, 1911. Then, rather inexplicably, he was allowed to sing "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" in the face of competition from Harold Jarvis' almost legendary 16008, which was then, and remained for years afterward, one of the best selling records Victor ever issued.

The Wells "Beautiful Isle" was combined with "Dear Lord and Father, While I Stray," sung by HOBBIES cherished friends, Elizabeth and William Wheeler, who are still going strong at this writing with their singing classes in Cleveland. The supplement said:

"A new record of the beloved 'Isle,' which has been for years one of the most popular numbers in the Victor's sacred list, combined with a new gospel hymn much used in evangelistic services."

Wells was back in March, singing an Andrew Mack ballad, with words by a mysterious "Alice." The song, whose correct title is "The Story of the Rose," is better known today as "Heart of My Heart, I Love You." It is the theme around which a modern popular tune, "The Gang That Sang 'Heart of My Heart,'" is built. To accompany it, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler sang "Oh, That We Two Were Maying."

After this, there was silence until July, when Wells was heard in Frank Seymour Hastings' setting of the familiar Robert Burns lyric, "My Love is Like a Red, Red Rose." On the other side Mrs. Wheeler sang a setting of a James Whitcomb Riley poem, "There, Little Girl, Don't Cry."

For the July list, Wells made one side of a double-faced 12-inch record. To accompany Reinald Werrenrath's baritone interpretation of "The Charmed Cup," he sang a tenor version of "Murmuring Zephyrs," which received this description:

"... Mr. Wells' contribution is one of the most beautiful of the songs by Adolph Jensen (1837-1879). His 'Murmuring Zephyrs' is a lovely and graceful piece of writing, the idea of the murmuring breezes being conveyed by a delicate figure played by the flute, while the tender theme is carried by the voice."

Soon afterward the single-faced "Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender" was coupled with "Last Night," sung by Helen Clark.

Some historical interest attaches to Wells' record issued in March, 1912, for the A side was the first disc solo by the contralto, Elsie Baker, who was to become a great Victor favorite and remain so for many years. She sang "Pickaninny's Lullaby," a type of composition which she was frequently called on to perform.

Wells' number, "Mammy's Song," was of the same pattern:

"The second selection is the pretty little lullaby which Mr. Wells has been using in his concerts with so much success. The words, by Laura Spencer Porter, first appeared in the Woman's Home Companion, and were afterwards furnished with an attractive setting by Harriet Ware."

Wells seems to have been fond of Harriet Ware's songs. Was she perhaps, for a time, his recital pianist as well as a composer?

It is strange that the remainder of 1912 went by without another Victor record by Wells. Obviously, his exclusive contract was for not more than two years and perhaps was for only one.

We have already seen that he made an Indestructible cylinder which was issued in that year. He also sang a number of U. S. Everlasting cylinders.

Possibly, as sometimes happened, his contract was amended to leave him exclusive to Victor for discs, but to permit him to make cylinders, which were no longer considered serious competition to the conquering Victrola.

In February, 1913, Wells' "Rosary" was numbered among a list of 15 new double-faced records made up, with one or two exceptions, of popular selections already available in the double-faced list.

A month earlier, he had been heard in "I'm Wearing Awa'," of which the supplement said: "Mr. Wells gives a perfectly sung rendition of Arthur Foote's lovely setting of the heart-stirring Scotch poem, 'I'm Wearing Awa' to the Land of the Leal.'"

Something may have gone awry with the relations between Wells and Victor, for he was represented by only one other record during 1913. Issued in November, it was a frankly popular song, "My Wonderful Dream Girl." As fellow travelers he had Helen Clark and Billy Murray singing "Come On Over Here."

V. U. S. Everlasting Cylinders

There is a possibility, though concededly not a likely one, that Wells left Victor in 1912, and signed exclusively with U. S. Everlasting.

It seems improbable that a singer with his prestige would have become exclusive to a minor company that soon went out of business, but it could have been. And the "standard

(Continued on page 44)

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926, and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 478, Vinton, Va. ttx

WANTED: All red G&T records of Tamagno; also black G&T, Gramophone, and Victor records of Ivan Williams. As always, I will pay the best prices. — Thomas O'Shaughnessy, P.O. Box 281, Rochester, Minn. my3295

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. jly12407

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. my3403

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. je3084

DUPLICATES for sale. Free listings. — Edward F. Tobener, Collector of Classical Records, 1405 E. 66th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64131 je3633

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's; classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality, jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. n125563

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N. Y. jel20061

FREE "Personalities" catalogs - rare records and broadcasts by radio, stage, screen, television personalities. — Amalgamated Records, 341 Cooper Station, New York, N. Y. my6407

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N. Y. my3863

CYLINDER RECORDS 50c each. Discs 25c and 50c each. Send for lists. — Gregory R. Reed, R.F.D. 4, Allentown 5, Pa. my3253

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. je3483

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. n12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. my3804

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. — Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. o6829

COLLECTORS or dealers: Hundreds early operatic originals, imports, reissues. Special lists offering certain artists, labels, other classifications, as requested. — Penn Courtney, 4817 Gilbert Drive, Shreveport, Louisiana. jly3614

GLENN MILLER Ltd. ed. vol. II Eoot 6701. Sell or trade. — Willis, 2584 Peachtree Circle, Stow, Ohio. my1821

FOR SALE: Rare 78's opera, show biz, orchestral, historical. Send 10c for list. — P. Hanslee, Box 147, Calabasas, Calif. my6895

COLLECTOR buys and sells rare vocal operatic records. Lists solicited. — Arthur E. Knight, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PA 3-2889. my6407

GUITAR

Outstanding guitar teacher's instruction booklet, "Getting Started." Important first steps in learning to accompany singing. $1. — Guitar Instruction, 9 Mayflower Drive, Yonkers, N. Y. 10710. jly3675

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holoway, 1647 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. jly3403

WANTED MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED: Coin-operated electric player piano with stained glass front. Plays drums, chimes, etc. — Harold Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Maryland. je3633

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

FOR SALE: old phonographs, phonograph records, needles, supplies, old books, piano rolls. Let me know your needs. All inquiries answered. — Monroe Sands, 303 E. Washington St., Urbana, Illinois. je122971

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America. $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. my32321

SELLING collection instrumental albums and singles, accoustical and orthophonic. Golden Age operatic singles. — H. R. Gordon, Suite 2200, 134 N. LaSalle, Chicago, Ill. (Randolph 6-3533). my1291

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

OLD CYLINDER or disc phonographs. Cylinder records. Hand roller organs and rolls. Will buy any amount, good prices paid. — Neumann Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale, Calif. 91204. je3234

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap12741

EDISON cylinder machines, also maroon Gem. — George Stuber, 232 So. Charles, Waukesha, Wis. my1401

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18 1/2" $3; 15 1/2" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. jly6468

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver 5, Colorado. s12698

OLD POPULAR sheet music. Please write: Robt. Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Rm. 412, Los Angeles 26, Calif. o6445

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my46p

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 35)

songs" issued under the Victor label might have been made earlier.

"My Wonderful Dream Girl," a 1913 popular song, might have been recorded after Wells' contract with U. S., assuming there was one, ended with the death of the firm.

However it happened that the tenor made his U. S. Everlasting cylinders, none of which I have seen or heard, they were, judging by their titles, the most unusual and interesting group he sang for any company.

The first of the lot, "My Garden That Blooms for You," which was issued several months in advance of the others, has already been mentioned. Then followed "Sunset," of which the one U. S. catalog I have said:

"A beautiful poem by Sidney Lanier set to music by Alex Russell. Mr. Wells has made quite a reputation with this song in concert."

This was only the first of several selections which Wells sang for the cylinder company that were anything but hackneyed.

Afterward, one cylinder, coupling "In Maytime" and "The Red, Red Rose," was listed with this comment:

"These two beautiful songs have been successfully featured by Mr. Wells in concert, and we offer them both on one record."

Another two-song combination that looks attractive is "Rolling Down to Rio" and "Ould Doctor Ma'Ginn."

"Two very popular vocal selections. 'Rolling Down to Rio' is a song from the 'Just So Song Book' with words from Rudyard Kipling's 'Just So Stories.' 'Ould Doctor Ma'Ginn' is a typical character song."

Despite the attractive nature of these songs, they were not of the type that appealed to many cylinder record buyers. For that matter, neither would they have taken the fancy of most disc enthusiasts. And I doubt that 1000 copies of the record were sold.

The same may be said with equal regret, but equal justice, of Wells' next cylinder, which contained three of his own short compositions, "If I Were You," "The Elf Man," and "The Dearest Place."

"These three little gems on one record are not only exquisitely rendered by this eminent artist, but composed by him as well."

Harriet Ware's "Boat Song," which had been among Wells' first Victor discs, was coupled with another of her compositions, "To Lucasta."

"Two delightful renditions on one record, in each of which the hearer will be in perfect sympathy."

Wells' final U. S. cylinder, issued during the company's closing months, was more conventional. He chose the much-recorded "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby."

All told, an attractive list, even though mostly composed of short encore numbers.

But John Barnes Wells has been occupying the stage all this time while Grace Kerns has waited in the wings. Now it's time to bring her on.

(To be continued)

OLD METALS

(Continued from page 42)

enamellers copied rather than created styles of ornament, it is possible to give an approximate date for the introduction of designs in imitation of silver pieces. Boxes of every size, along with tea canisters and caddy sets, were much admired; also mustard pots, cream pitchers, hot-water jugs, and trays.

Some of the trays indicate that they were quickly dipped in liquid enamel rather than carefully coated with a powdered glass paste by means of a spatula. However, many enameled objects were extremely well finished.

Elaborate chatelaines, scent bottles in the form of billing doves, and dainty heart-shaped etuis—for carrying needles, toilet articles, and other trinkets—gained grace.

Egg-shaped nutmeg holders were complete with graters for their customary use with wine. Hand-made thimbles were drilled from solid gold and silver. Bodkins, shaped to contain hairpins; tooth-pick holders; and even game counters, in the form of tiny enameled playing cards, were some of the precious pieces of the colorful art of enameling.

Dresden bonbonnières in fanciful form appear to have been popular with the South Staffordshire enamellers of the 1770's. They adopted Dresden designs and made beautiful boxes in the form of human heads, birds, animals, fruits, and flowers. Specimens from the Schreiber Collection of Enamels, in the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, are illustrated on page 42.

Remembering the current change in taste, it is not difficult to distinguish comparatively early South Staffordshire and Birmingham enamels from the later, more ornate designs.

In the Battersea style, the lid of an enameled box frequently featured an allover picture, and the white enameled sides of the box portrayed printed or painted enamel posies.

Minutely mounted shell-shaped boxes, pleasingly painted with subjects taken from engravings, may be regarded as transition enamels.

Then came a gradual elaboration in the application of colored enamel backgrounds. With a colored ground on a box cover, an enclosing border for the central decoration seemed necessary. This appears to have been achieved with a few touches of gilding. It was followed by a more detailed scrollwork in the style of the French rocaille.

The fact that decoration could be enhanced by employing scrolls, shells, and simple flowers in bas-relief enamel seems to have been appreciated at an early date. Around 1761 this technique was applied in white on a white enamel ground supporting a transfer-print. It was soon discovered that gilding on bas-relief enamel scrolls was especially effective.

From the late 1760's until the early 1780's, the period of finest production in the Midlands, a typical enamel box was a truly handsome piece. The mounts of brilliant gilt metal were tastefully tooled and fitted with carefully shaped hasps and hinges.

The outer surfaces of both box and cover were meticulously enameled in rich royal- or turquoise-blue, pink, or green. A relief diaper pattern of crisscross lines and interspersed dots was often superimposed on the background of colored enamel.

The great diversity of designs detailed by English enamellers is exemplified in the splendid Schreiber collection. Illustrated from that collection is an enamel plaque, printed in black, portraying a tavern scene in the style of Teniers, the Flemish painter (1610-1690).

Teniers paintings were copied not only by 18th century enamellers, but also by metalworkers, particularly in cast and repoussé brass.

Probably made at Bilston or Wednesbury, during the second half of the 18th century, were two painted enamel medallions with Chinese subjects, copied from the Livre de Chinois, a book of engravings by P. C. Canot, from designs by Jean Pillement, published in London in 1759. These medallions (see page 42) are comprised in the Schreiber collection.

The entry in the Catalogue of the Schreiber Collection includes the information: "Bought in Paris, November 17, 1881. At Mme. Flaudin's we invested in two fine Battersea plaques, decorated with Chinese figures, but had to give a large price for them, 20 guineas."

It should be noted that, if the designs on these medallions were copied from a book published in 1759—three years after the closing of the Battersea workshop—the enameling is almost surely of Staffordshire origin.

Chinese themes, which dominate some pattern books, were seldom seen on 18th century English enamels but found suitable expression on porcelain and jannan. In contrast, the enamellers of Canton, China, gained increasing favor for their painted enamel copies of European engravings and tapestries.

From 1685 to 1719 the enamellers of Canton produced for export armorial table services of rare elegance. They applied their skills to objects of porcelain as well as compositions of copper.

Typical tea services included both materials in the same set. An ewer for hot water and a teapot enameled on copper would be accompanied by a milk jug, sugar bowl, and tea cups exquisitely enameled on eggshell porcelain.

Certain craftsmen were commissioned to create enamels of special significance for the Court of Louis XIV. These orders were delivered by ships of the Dutch East India Company to England, France, Holland, and other European countries.

Flowers, the most desirable decorating device of English enamellers,

(Continued on page 55)

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells

PART II

By JIM WALSH

I. The Lady from Virginia

Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells had careers that resembled in more than one way. Both won critical acclaim for their church and concert work and attained considerable recognition as recording artists. Neither achieved the enduring popularity and almost fanatical following of many other singers with less soundly constructed musical training, but whose methods of voice production were peculiarly suited to the acoustic recording system.

Both, too, made just one Edison cylinder. Both did their last recording for minor companies. Both ended their careers as vocal teachers. And both died comparatively young, in their fifties, little more than a year apart.

Grace Kerns was a Virginian. She was born in Norfolk in 1886 (I have been unable to learn the exact date), where, three years earlier, the more famous bass-baritone, Ernest Hare, also had been born. Her father, Andrew J. Kerns, was a native of Pennsylvania, as was her mother, who had been Miss Catherine Clark before her marriage.

Miss Kerns' first record for any company seems to have been a 12-inch of "My Beautiful Lady," from "The Pink Lady," issued by Columbia in September, 1911.

I lack the September supplement, but can quote from the one for October, when the soprano and Margaret Keyes, contralto, sang in Latin the "Quis Est Homo" ("Power Eternal") from Rossini's "Stabat Mater." Miss Keyes held the B side alone with another "Stabat Mater" excerpt: "Fac ut Portem" ("I Will Sing of Thy Great Mercy.")

Describing the duet side, Catalog Editor George Clarence Jell wrote:

"It would be difficult to say too much in praise of these new recordings, especially the duet, 'Quis Est Homo,' which contains some of the finest and most finished and artistic vocalism ever reproduced.

"It is natural to look for excellence of phrasing, purity of intonation and exquisite blending of voices in such artists as Miss Keyes and Miss Kerns, but results in this record are almost more than should be looked for."

To anticipate a bit, the complete Columbia record catalog for July, 1912, published a profile portrait of Miss Kerns (judging from the few pictures I have seen of her, she preferred side views to full face "shots"), with a brief sketch. This probably had first appeared in the September, 1911, Supplement:

"This young concert artist who has of late become so prominent in musical affairs throughout the East first became known to the New York public through her engagement as soprano soloist of St. Bartholomew's Church, noted the country over for the unvarying excellence of its music.

"Miss Kerns is an absolute mistress of the art of vocalism and has beyond question one of the best recording voices on the continent. Her admirable musical taste and technical proficiency are splendidly evidenced in the records she has made for the Columbia."

Today, some record collectors think of Miss Kerns as a Columbia counterpart of Victor's better known and more popular Olive Kline. The two sang much the same sort of music, but Grace Kerns did not imitate Victor's Olive. In fact, her recording career began before Miss Kline's.

Grace Kern's list of Columbia records is so extensive that not all can be mentioned. Some of the more outstanding, however, will be chosen for Supplement quotation and discussion.

In January, 1912, her version of Tito Mattei's ballad, "Dear Heart," was described as "unmistakably one of the best soprano records ever issued in the Columbia list, made so by the exquisite quality of Miss Kerns' voice and her intelligent conception of the interpretative demands of the song."

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

The April supplement brought a more ambitious undertaking, in which Miss Kerns and "Grand Opera Chorus" sang "Le Vergine degli Angeli" (The Angelic Virgin) from the finale of Verdi's "La Forza del Destino." This was described as:

"Our latest masterpiece of popular-priced operatic recording! . . . The selection opens with several bars by the male chorus after which the soprano takes the main theme as a solo, following which the soloist and chorus combine for the finale."

"Miss Kerns has acquitted herself quite as well as in the many other recordings she has made for us, her vocalism being unexceptionable, as usual, and her Italian diction entirely adequate."

"The choral parts were recorded under the personal direction of Sr. Giulio Setti, Chorus Master of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York."

October brought what the Supplement writer (and, by the way, have you noticed how fond he was of the word, "vocalism?") described as "Two Famous Romantic Opera Solos by Grace Kerns." Both were from "The Bohemian Girl," one being, as you have guessed, "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls" and the other the less familiar "Come With the Gypsy Bride."

It was predicted that "I Dreamt I . . . sung as beautifully as Miss Kerns sings it will surely enter a new period of popularity." In the same issue, Miss Kerns sang "Roses Bloom for Lovers" from "The Rose Maid."

There can hardly be a better place

Grace Kerns from Vocalion Record Bulletin, November, 1922.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T. etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

to discuss Grace Kerns' one Edison Blue Amberol cylinder, for it, too, was "Roses Bloom for Lovers." Although the fourth Blue Amberol (1504) in numerical order, it did not appear in the first Blue Amberol list but in the second, which was dated December, 1912. In part the description reads:

"From abroad the merry tunefulness of the Viennese operetta, 'The Rose Maid,' has found its way to Broadway, where all lovers of light opera are enthusiastic over the delicate charm of its music. . . (This) song proved the hit of the production. . . Miss Kerns is a new Edison soprano and the delicate clearness of her voice is displayed to excellent advantage. . ."

The "new soprano," like the "new tenor," John Barnes Wells, however, made one record and never appeared again in an Edison list.

In December, Miss Kerns essayed "Poor Wandering One" from Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance," and received this tribute:

"Miss Kerns has given us an interpretation remarkable in its excellence, her vocalism (!!!) in the coloratura passages as usual approximating perfection."

January brought a record of "Sweetheart, Let's Go A-Walking," from the New York Hippodrome production, "Under Many Flags," sung by a tenor, Harry La Forge, about whom I know nothing, and a soprano, Miriam Clark, whom I suspect of being Grace Kerns in disguise, largely on the basis of voice resemblance, and because Miss Kerns' mother had the maiden name of Clark.

I have an idea that "Miriam Clark" was a forerunner of another name the soprano used several years later.

Mr. Jell, the supplement writer, was lavish in March, 1913, with praise of Miss Kerns' record of "The Last Rose of Summer":

"We issue this month a new vocal record of this immortally lovely song that will easily rank as one of the finest recordings of it ever presented. Miss Kerns, whose singing seems to be increasing in beauty of tone and gracefulness of expression with each succeeding season, has invested the song with a truly wonderful measure of dignity and true artistry. The velvety quality of tone on the high notes is particularly noticeable."

But why was there no mention of the lady's immaculate "vocalism"?

In April the waltz song, "Carmena," was sung by "our all-star quartet," whose members were Grace Kerns, soprano; Mildred Potter, alto; Craig Campbell tenor; and Frank Croxton, bass. The other side was a vocal arrangement of Strauss' "Blue Danube Waltz," by the Columbia Light Opera Company, of which Miss Kerns was a member.

April brought, too, the first duet by the Misses Kerns and Potter. They sang "I Would That My Love," coupled with a Kerns solo, "Just A-Wearyin' for You." Just as Grace Kerns is sometimes thought of as a Columbia rival to Olive Kline (or Lucy Isabelle Marsh) on Victor, so Kerns and Potter are mentioned as opponents of the Victor duet team of Olive Kline and Elsie Baker.

Actually, they began singing together more than two years earlier

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House, opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES & TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, & extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1825)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1506

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF
MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

Music is well said to be the speech of angels.

—Thomas Carlyle than the Kline-Baker combination. And Mildred Potter died September 24, 1915, less than three months after the first Kline-Baker duet appeared in the July Victor list.

Cultured Columbia patrons were offered in May "The Celebrated 'Goodnight' Quartet from Martha," as rendered by Kerns, Potter, and Croxton, with Reed Miller taking the tenor part. They were told that "the present record by the best concert artists of New York City bears comparison with any rendition of this number ever given."

As a solo on a 10-inch record Miss Kerns sang "Danube River," described as:

"One of the 'good old songs' that are everlastingly popular is found in this well-known number, which Miss Kerns sings with so much expression and tonal beauty."

II. Wells Comes to Columbia

It's time now to go back to John Barnes Wells.

When that accomplished tenor's records were last discussed he had sung "My Wonderful Dream Girl" for the November, 1913, Victor list. That same month saw the appearance of his first Columbia record, on which he sang "The Rose of Tralee." Miss Potter was heard on the A side in "Oh Promise Me." The supplement description, accompanied by a rather saturnine looking small photo of Wells, read:

"With this double disc we present also the first Columbia recording by one of the most popular of American tenors, Mr. John Barnes Wells, who sings for us one of the standard Irish ballads that are forever in demand. The skill and finish of Mr. Wells' style could not be more consummately demonstrated."

In January, 1914, the first record by the famous Columbia Stellar Quartet, an organization whose members were especially selected by Mr. Jell, was issued. They sang "Sally in Our Alley" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me." Charles Harrison, was first tenor; Wells, second tenor; Andree Sarto, baritone; and Frank Croxton, bass.

We shall later meet Mr. Wells in a surprising male quartet reappearance on Columbia records, but he apparently sang in only two Stellar Quartet numbers. His place was soon taken by Henry Burr for a few records. Burr gave way to Reed Miller, who remained the quartet's "lead" until he died in 1923.

The Columbia Ladies' Quartet made its first record for the March, 1914, issue. The songs were "Rockin' in de Win'" and "Little Alabama Coon." The artists were Miss Kern and Louise McMahon, sopranos; and Miss Potter and Clara Moister, contraltos.

Miss McMahon also made some records under the name of Grace Nash, and I thought for a considerable time that Grace Kerns was Miss Nash. Later, however, I discovered identical photographs of "McMahon" and "Nash." The description ran:

"This latest of the Columbia Quartet organizations will be voted one of the greatest artistic successes we have ever instituted. The voices are chosen from among the best of American concert sopranos and altos, each singer an artist and a soloist of note.

"The need of a thoroughly efficient Ladies Quartet has been strongly felt for some time in record work, and this need is now amply supplied. The fine blending of voices and the splendid musicianship shown prove the efficiency of the new combination."

Columbia's Educational Department, a futile rival to Victor's extremely efficient one, offered in March "model records for seventh and eighth grades . . . Two Famous School Songs by the Columbia Trio." The songs were "Stars of the Summer Night" and "The Loreley," and the singers, Miss Kerns, Beulah Gaylord Young (who later became Mrs. Charles Harrison), and Miss Moister:

"The combination of first and second soprano with the alto (when the voices properly blend), forms one of the most beautiful trios, its novelty being not the least of its attractive features.

"All are acquainted with the old German folk-song, 'The Loreley,' sung the world over in every conceivable vocal combination. Opposite this is a most effective arrangement of the old familiar melody, 'Stars of the Summer Night.'"

It is interesting to recall that Mark Twain once wrote he considered "The Loreley" the world's most beautiful melody.

George Clarence Jell was really bringing out new Columbia vocal groups in 1914. April introduced the Columbia Mixed Quartet, consisting of Kerns, Potter, Harrison, and Croxton — the same ensemble as the "all star quartet" already mentioned except for Harrison taking Craig Campbell's place. They sang Dudley Buck's "Te Deum No. 7 (Festival) in B Flat."

In August, Wells made his second and last appearance with the Columbia Stellar Quartet, taking part in a 12-inch version of "Jesus, Refuge of My Soul," described as "an adaptation of the original air of 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul.'" On the other side, the quartet baritone Sarto, was heard in "What a Saviour."

III. That Remarkable Duet

And now we have come to the historic moment when I can reveal the identity of that remarkable duet by Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells, which I mentioned last month as the reason for my pairing these two distinguished concert singers in this article.

The Columbia record I have in mind came out in January, 1915, and it had the soprano and tenor singing — of all things! — a raging comic song hit, "Chinatown, My Chinatown." Surely, two such accomplished church, oratorio, and concert singers were never called on to sing anything less in their usual "line."

Now, don't get me wrong. I'm not taking a supercilious attitude. I love old-time popular music as much as I hate the junk that is foisted on teen-agers nowadays.

The words of "Chinatown," with their references to "the festive Chink," "pipe dreams," and "hearts that know no other land, drifting to and fro" are ridiculous. But the music is irresistible, and the song is worthy to rank as an American folk classic — Broadway variety, of course.

It may be that Grace and John enjoyed singing it, just as (I have read) Caruso, Scotti, and other Metropolitan Opera stars used to get together after performances and lustily harmonize, "I'm Alabama Bound," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Oh, You Beautiful Doll," and other popular hits, most of which have endured.

Caruso was even quoted as saying that good "pop tunes" contained better music than most of the opera he sang and that he actually preferred to sing them. But that may have been a press agent's idea of a "color" story and Caruso may never have said it.

Regardless of what their sentiments may have been, Miss Kerns and Mr. Wells did a rattling good job with "Chinatown."

If there is any criticism, it is that, to me, the soprano's voice is a bit too high pitched and her style slightly too intense and emotional, while Wells sounds, as he usually did in singing popular music, somewhat phlegmatic at times. But they really go to town on the third chorus, when Wells abandons the almost baritone range in which he has been singing and goes 'way up high.

I can think of only one other vocal record of "Chinatown." The American Quartet sang it for Victor, with Billy Murray doing most of the work but Bill Hooley getting in some good bass licks. The duet version may be somewhat superior from a musical standpoint, but the quartet catches the exact spirit of the ludicrous song.

Edison and Pathé passed up a sure thing by not making records of the song. All that aside, the Kerns and Wells rendition of "Chinatown, My Chinatown," once heard will never be forgotten.

Incidentally, the song was what the music trade calls a "sleeper" — one published for years before it becomes popular. Until recently I was puzzled as to when it was composed and printed.

I had seen 1906, 1910, and 1914 given as the copyright dates. "Chinatown" didn't become popular until 1914, but I recently found a copy of the sheet music, and the copyright date is 1910.

In both the Victor and Columbia records, "almond eyes of brown" is pronounced "al-mond" instead of "ah-mond." I suspect it had to be pronounced that way to fit the meter of Billy Jerome's lyrics set to the music of Jean Schwartz.

By the way, my copy of the Kerns-Wells duet is on a Cort record, rather than Columbia. If you have been planning to write me and accuse me of napping because I hadn't mentioned that records by both Miss Kerns and Mr. Wells are found on Standard, United, Harmony, Cort, Remick Perfection, Consolidated, and other off-brand discs, please don't waste your time.

I have mentioned repeatedly in HOBBIES that Columbia records were pressed for other firms under a variety of labels—probably several dozen altogether. I know about them, but it is impractical, as well as impossible, to find space to list the artists' records under anything but the original Columbia label.

But back to that duet. It is amusing to notice that the November, 1914, Etude had listed Grace Kerns as one of a fairly large number of American singers whose training was American and who had adhered to the highest ideals in opera and concert. It's odd that Wells, who was the better known of the two, wasn't mentioned.

Reinhold Werrenrath appears as Reinhold Werrenrath!

Oh yes, the Columbia Supplement referred to:

"'Chinatown, My Chinatown,' a dainty Oriental melody whose popularity commenced on the Pacific Coast (and) has recently swept across the (Continued on page 44)

VIOLINS

VIOLINS: Josef Guainerius, hand-made (copy), made in Germany, 1884, very fine copy in perfect condition, with wooden case and newly rehatted bow, $225. Stradivari (copy), mold-made, 1928, and bow, $95. Plus postage and pack. Germany, good copy, fine condition, case ing. — Mrs. Ronald E. Nelson, 147 Randolph Dr., Bangor, Maine. au3618

GUITAR

Outstanding guitar teacher's instruction booklet "Getting Started." Important first steps in learning to accompany singing. $1. — Guitar Instruction. 9 Mayflower Drive. Yonkers, N.Y. 10710. jly3675

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. jly12407

CITY OF LONDON PHONOGRAPH SOCIETY
Oldest active Society in the world for enthusiasts of cylinders, discs and phonos. Worldwide membership. Subscription outside Europe $3 annually. Write for latest copy of magazine to:

ERNEST BAYLY
19 Glendale Road
Southbourne, Bournemouth, England

jep

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. je3084

DUPLICATES for sale. Free listings. — Edward F. Tobener, Collector of Classical Records, 1405 E. 66th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64131 je3633

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. je120061

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP.—ARG. 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. au3614

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. je3483

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. n12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N.Y. au3483

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. — Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. o6529

COLLECTORS or dealers: Hundreds early operatic originals, imports, reissues. Special lists offering certain artists, labels, other classifications, as requested. — Penn Courtney, 4817 Gilbert Drive, Shreveport, Louisiana. jly3614

RECORDS: all kinds except classical. Old record catalogs. Back issues of HOBBIES. Please list specific wants if possible. — W. Praster, 656 Miami Road, Wenonah, N. J. Tel. 609 - 857-4686. au3084

FOR SALE: Edison records to teach Spanish, German, French. 16 records on French, 17 records on Spanish. 22 records on German. There are 4 leather bound books on each 12 leather bound books. There are 77 small paper-bound books in above language. Books were copyrighted 1902 by International Textbook Co., Scranton, Pa. Above items in perfect condition. Write. — Paul Taff, 13398 West 23rd Place, Golden, Colo. je1025

RECORDS: Rodeheaver & Asher, Billy Murray, Crumits, Dalharts, Collins, Collins Harlan, Ada Jones, MacDonough, McCormack, Galli Curoi, Bisham, Ester Waker, Aileen Stanley, Nora Bayes, Buddy Clarke, Violin, Columbia, Red Seal, many others. Stamp please. — B. Schloemer, 4125 St. John Terrace, Deer Park, Ohio. je1003

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Donart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2889. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records. 1902 to L.P.—Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my128801

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. jly3403

WANTED MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED: Coin-operated electric player piano with stained glass front. Plays drums, chimes, etc. — Harold Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. je3633

PIANOS & ROLLS

FOR SALE: 125 Apollo Concert Grand rolls in top condition. All classical 88-note. Listing sent on request. Best offer takes all. — Clifford Buckalew, 4130 Sycamore Lane, Kokomo, Ind. 46901 je1042

WANT all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Welte, Ampico, odd or unusual rolls. Lists unnecessary. — Box 787H, Kemah, Texas. my124631

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Records. 2) Records. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America, $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. n62342

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

OLD CYLINDER or disc phonographs. Cylinder records. Hand roller organs and rolls. Will buy any amount, good prices paid. — Neumann Miller, 410 W. Lomita, Glendale, Calif. 91204 je3234

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap12741

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage.—Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. jly6468

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's 3151 High, Denver 5, Colorado. sl2698

OLD POPULAR sheet music. Please write: Robt. Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Rm. 412, Los Angeles 26, Calif. o6445

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 406 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. au3023

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my46p

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 35)

whole country. We have made an excellent duet recording of it by Miss Kerns and Mr. Wells."

Brother, you sure did! But I would like to know what the musical purists thought when they saw that record listed, or if any of them happened to hear it!

IV. More Kerns and Wells Recordings —Some Mysterious Names

Both the soprano and tenor found new duet partners on opposite sides of a 12-inch record in March, 1915. On one face, Miss Kerns and Harry McClaskey (Henry Burr to you!) sang "When Ye Gang Awa', Jamie," and on the other, Miss Potter and Wells combined in "Land of the Swallows."

Miss Kerns must have felt, after singing with Burr, that she was now one of the Columbia "family." Burr's popularity was so great and his talents so varied that almost every popular Columbia vocalist was called on at one time or another to sing a duet with him.

The Supplement assured Columbia patrons that "for these numbers we have used some of the best artists to be found in our regular list, and the results have amply justified the pains taken in the recording."

In April, a previously unheard soprano joined Burr in three duets—"When My Ship Comes In," "What'll You Do" and "Let's Settle Down in a One-Horse Town."

She was called Frances Fisher, but after listening to her high-pitched duet work I strongly suspect this was just another name for Grace Kerns, especially since she had appeared in a duet under her right name with McClaskey/Burr the month before. Several other Fisher-Burr duets were listed during the following few months.

While I was pondering about Frances Fisher, I found myself wondering, as I had done before, over the identity of the equally mysterious "Miss M. Mayew," sometimes called "Miss Margaret Mayew." And then, what I believe is the solution popped into my mind, as it should have done years before.

The "Mayew" records started to appear about the time the charming soprano, Elise Stevenson, lost her duet partner, Frank C. Stanley, by death, and began to sing with Burr instead. They were issued through 1910 and 1911 until Miss Stevenson decided to abandon her recording career at her husband's insistence. The last Columbia record under Elise Stevenson's name was numbered A1029; the last Mayew duet with Burr, A1057.

Burr made duet records of "Day Dreams, Visions of Bliss" with both ladies — with Miss Stevenson for Victor and Miss Mayew for Columbia. I played them both and the similarities in voice and style seem unmistakable. Pending further revelations, I think we may assume that Misses Stevenson and Mayew (the latter made no solos but sang only as Burr's partner) were the same person.

Furthermore I also suspect Miss Stevenson was the soprano, Caroline Vaughan, who helped Burr to record "There's a Girl in Havana," a song written by Irving Berlin, but which he permitted to be published under the names of his brother-in-law, E. Ray Goetz, and A. Baldwin Sloane.

Also in April appeared one of the most popular Columbia records, A1686, with Misses Kerns and Potter singing "Whispering Hope" and Miss Kerns and Herbert Stuart (who was really Albert Wiederhold), baritone, being heard in "Somewhere a Voice is Calling."

The Columbia Supplement, beginning with this issue, was printed in larger, more readable type, in which Mr. Jell said:

"Perhaps the best duet combination in both recording and rendition ever issued on record. The familiar melody and appealing sentiment of 'Whispering Hope' are irresistible as sung by Miss Kerns and Miss Potter.

"Somewhere a Voice is Calling," a beautiful new two-part song from England, is now repeating in America its sensational success abroad. It is recorded with striking effect by Miss Kerns and Mr. Stuart."

It is conceivable that this record of "Whispering Hope" induced Victor to issue the Kline-Baker version that came out in July, and the Kerns-Stuart side caused Edison to make the famous Diamond Disc of "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" by Elizabeth Spencer, soprano, and Vernon Archibald, baritone.

I have said that Miss Kerns and Mr. Wells made only the one duet, "Chinatown." That statement does not stand, however, if the soprano were really Miriam Clark.

In June, 1915, Miss Clark, whoever she was, and Wells sang "The Flame of Love," coupled with Sam Ash's tenor rendition of "My Own Venetian Rose." And in February, they had sung "Love Moon" from "Chin Chin," coupled with "Calling Me Home," by the Stellar Quartet.

Miss Kerns was present in June, singing "I Feel Thy Angel Spirit" with Wiederhold, doing a solo of "I Love You Truly," and taking part in "Mighty Lak' a Rose," and Brahms' "Lullaby" as interpreted by the Columbia Ladies Quartet.

In July, mysterious Miriam sang the soprano solo in "I'm a Pilgrim," by the Columbia Mixed Quintet. Since Miss Kerns has already been identified as the soprano of the Mixed Quartet, it seems a logical deduction that she was also in the quintet, taking the chief soprano part. But that, of course, is guesswork. And who was the fifth member?

The Virginia soprano received more praise in August for her record of "The Nightingale Song" and "Among the Lilies."

"In the 'Nightingale Song,' Miss Kerns renders, in her own individual style, one of the best recordings it has ever been our good fortune to announce. Equally effective, too, is the rendition of Czibulka's famous composition."

October brought the most ambitious double-faced record in which Grace Kerns had taken part. One side of the 12-inch disc contained the Rigoletto Quartet and the other the Lucia Sextet, sung in English. A sad feature was the appearance in both of Mildred Potter. She had died a week before the October 1 release date. The Quartet was by Kerns, Potter, Charles Harrison, and Wiederhold; the Sextet by the same four with Reed Miller and Frank Croxton added. Certainly a cast of stellar singers, regardless of how well their interpretations may have pleased opera specialists.

The supplement description laid it on thick:

"In this new popular-priced Columbia recording a wonderful treat awaits the thousands who recognize in these two selections the most inspired concertized compositions in all opera . . .

"A description of these selections is unnecessary. The great fact is the singing of them by Columbia artists of such merit that the resulting record can be compared favorably with the most expensive ones that money can buy, and yet sell at a popular price.

"The singers, selected from a long list of Columbia talent, have been trained specially to produce the perfect vocalization and stupendous finales of these operatic masterpieces. Their success can be delightfully heard in every home on this remarkable Columbia record."

"The Flame of Love" was John Barnes Wells' last appearance in a regular Columbia record list. His last solo had been issued in February, 1915, and must have been his most popular Columbia record — the great Ernest R. Ball ballad hit, "A Little Bit of Heaven."

We may now leave Columbia for Victor and consider some Wells records that have not yet come to our attention.

(To be continued)

OBITUARY

WILLIAM H. WINTER

Henry Winter of Boston, Mass., HOBBIES' advertiser, has written to tell us of the death of his brother, William H. Winter, on March 25. He was 84 years of age.

The late Mr. Winter was an artist and colorist as assistant to Mr. Tiffany in the former Tiffany Studios.

Many of the late Mr. Winter's murals are in state and public buildings. He also had many paintings to his credit. Of late years he was "dean" of the scenic artists union.

MARY G. HARPENDING

Mary G. Harpending, Rochester, N.Y., and formerly of Dundee, N.Y., passed away on March 24. Mrs. Harpending dealt in antiques for many years and she and her son, Richard, helped in the liquidation and dispersal of many antiques and fine art estates in the vicinity of Rochester and Dundee. Richard will carry on the business.

Mrs. Harpending is survived also by another son, Abram R. six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

I. Wells' Later Victor Records

The previous discussion of John Barnes Wells' Victor records ended with the issue for November, 1913, when he began to have his name in Columbia lists. We now return to his Victor activities.

The highly regarded tenor may have signed a one or two-year exclusive Columbia contract, for he was absent from Victor lists for all of 1914 and 1915. He reappeared in February, 1916, singing what appears to have been a new recording of Harriet Ware's "Boat Song," to replace his single-faced one.

Another Ware song, "Joy of the Morning," was on the reverse side. Miss Ware played the accompaniments, which again leads me to think she may have been Wells' pianist for a time.

The record's number is 17693, which indicates that it was originally intended for publication around March, 1915, but had been held nearly a year. Other double-faced discs at the time it was issued were in the 17900's.

The entire page of the March supplement was given over to a description of the record, and to photographs of Wells standing with arms folded, and Miss Ware. Editor Sam Rous wrote:

"... The new records Mr. Wells has made for the February list are Harriet Ware's enchanting 'Boat Song,' a setting of verses by Montrose Moses, and one of the greatest of concert successes; and a new song, also by Miss Ware. An interesting feature of these records is the excellent accompaniments played by the composer.

"Miss Ware merits the grateful thanks of her countrymen for utilizing such fine verses for her song texts.

While one hears much hue and cry about the poverty of good English songs, and many of our native composers turn continuously to German verse thereby adding to a Lied literature already most abundant, Miss Ware hears the music in poems of big thought by authors who express themselves in the English tongue.

"To have written 10 songs of even excellence, all to poems which one may sing or listen to without shame for either sentiment or literary merit, is an accomplishment which should give Miss Ware an enduring place among contemporary song writers. But there is every indication that she will yet do larger and better things toward the enrichment of American music."

Wells reappeared in April, 1916, with a record which probably ranks third, or perhaps second, among his best selling Victors. It was one of the prettiest popular songs ever written, "Memories," and the music was by Egbert Van Alstyne, who also composed "In the Shade of the Old Apple Tree," "Cheyenne," "Navajo," "I'm Afraid to Come Home in the Dark," and many other great hits. On the B side, Elsie Baker sang "One Fleeting Hour."

A mysterious tenor, William Barnes, made his first appearance in the same list, singing "I Love You, That's One Thing I Know." Those who listened closely and were familiar with the voice of a well-known concert tenor could have little doubt — and need have had none — that William Barnes was John Barnes Wells.

Several other Barnes selections followed, including one — to anticipate a little — in April, 1917, whose cataloging was distinctly curious. It was 18239, "Tho' I'm Not the First

Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells

PART III

By JIM WALSH

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

Musical Boxes - Talking Machines - Music Rolls

Antique and new musical items bought, sold, and restored.

Musical boxes, talking machines, player pianos, player organs and rolls.

Music movements and music rolls made to order from sheet music piano score.

Old rolls re-cut and expression added to 88 note rolls.

1626-1628 Wisconsin Ave., Washington 7, D. C.

Tel 338-8225, 942-0416

Visit the Wiscasset Musical Wonder House, opening June, 1964, in Wiscasset, Maine

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES & TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, & extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1825)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1606

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

to Call You 'Sweetheart,' Please Let Me Be the Last."

This record was listed in the supplement as being by the Orpheus Quartet and the label also mentions no one except that group. But the complete catalogs from May, 1917 on, as long as the record was still being made, described it as being by William Barnes and the Orpheus Quartet. Probably, however, not one purchaser in a thousand realized John Barnes Wells was singing the solo part.

That year, 1917, was one of curious Victor catalog procedures, anyway. The May catalog contained record 18233, "Everything is Going Up," sung by Billy Murray. The mating was "With His Hands in His Pockets and His Pockets in His Pants," by Byron G. Harlan.

When the August supplement came out, the record was reissued, under the same number, but with the B side changed to "Rolling in His Little Rolling Chair," sung by Willie Weston. The Harlan song was permanently dropped, although his records of it for other companies were big sellers.

Going back to 1916, a Wells record of more than ordinary interest was announced in August. On one side he sang the delightful "Long Ago in Alcalá," and on the other, three of his own little compositions: "The Owl," "The Crow's Egg," and "Why?" At the top of the page was a reproduction of a drawing of Wells by James Montgomery Flagg. Said the supplement:

"Mr. Wells offers for August a delightful group of humorous songs which he sings in his own inimitable style, with a diction as clear as a printed page. The first is Andre Messager's setting of the famous Weatherly-Ross verses—'charming nonsense,' someone has called the song. It is the best 'take-off' on the modern concert song ever written.

"Mr. Wells has also given three of his own quaint and amusing 'songlets'—attractive titles which his audiences are never tired of hearing."

In November, Wells sang "The Melody of Home" and again had luscious-voiced Elsie Baker as his companion, with a Carrie Jacobs-Bond song, "Today."

The "Pennsylvania tenor" essayed an Irish ballad, "Norah, the Pride of Kildare," for the March, 1917, list. Then, nine months later, the last John Barnes Wells record Victor was ever to issue was announced in the December supplement. "When Shadows Fall" was its title.

It was accompanied by a good picture of Wells sitting at a piano, hands over ears, pretending to be horrified at the "vocal expression" of a portrait of him—probably the one, already mentioned, by James Montgomery Flagg. This was the Victor record supplement's final compliment to John Barnes Wells:

"A lover's pleading cry that 'When shadows fall, then you'll come back to me' is the subject of the song by Harold G. Frost and E. Clinton Keithley. It is admirably sung with impassioned enthusiasm by John Barnes Wells, who rises to great heights in the climax. He nevertheless gets a beautiful, soft tone for the final high note."

It is hard to say why there were no more Wells records, but he was one of several long-standing artists who made their last Victor appearance in that December, 1917, supplement. Others were Billy Golden, Reed Miller, and Frederick Wheeler.

The nation had been converted to a war-time basis and much of the Victor plant was producing materials for battle. Record and phonograph production had to be curtailed, so a good many artists were let go, probably with warm assurances, "We'll be glad to have you back after things return to normal." But Wells and a number of others never again appeared on Victor lists.

When Victor's last large catalog of acoustic records appeared in 1925 eight Wells titles were still listed: "Boat Song," "Joy of the Morning," "Long Ago in Alcalá," "Mammy's Song," "Memories," "The Owl," "The Rosary," and "Sweet Genevieve." But all were discontinued when electrical recording was introduced.

Two, however, "Memories," and "The Rosary," were included in a 1927 catalog of records of historical and personal interest, "restored to the public by the public's own demand." The most popular Wells record, "Sweet Genevieve," had been re-made electrically by Franklyn Baur.

II. Wells' Last Records

As best my research indicates, Wells was not heard on records again until October, 1919, when the Aeolian-Vocalion monthly supplement devoted a page to a fine photo of him. On the opposite page was announced his vertical-cut, needle-playing record of "The Lord is My Light," and "Face to Face."

"Another well-known artist has been added to the Vocalion Record staff in John Barnes Wells, tenor soloist of the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, New York City.

"This gifted singer, who has been equally successful on the concert stage and in oratorio, has sung two impressive sacred solos for his initial recordings.

"The Lord Is My Light" by Allitsen gives wide scope for Mr. Wells' vocal possibilities, while his interpretation of the well-beloved 'Face to Face' is immensely appealing. There is a pleasurable sense of repose in the singing of John Barnes Wells that makes listening a joy."

A month later, Wells sang "The Birthday of a King" on another Vocalion record. Then, early in 1920, Aeolian-Vocalion stopped making hill-and-dale records to follow the bandwagon rush to the lateral cut, after a lawsuit had ended Victor's patent monopoly. The Wells records consequently were on sale for only a few months and are hard to find today. I believe they were his last solo discs.

Until a couple of years ago I had thought they were the last records of any kind in which he took part, but then I was astonished to find in a 1961 issue of Record Research a list of six double-faced discs which Columbia had made for Reinald Werrenrath through its "Personal Service Department.

The songs were all, apparently, peculiar to the Psi Upsilon college fraternity, the records were for fraternity use, and Werrenrath was assisted by the Psi Upsilon Quartet. The other members were Cyrille Carreau, Harold C. Winston — and John Barnes Wells!

I don't know just when those records were made, but it must have been in the early 1930's, after Vic-

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Restored Music Boxes for sale including all types of mechanical musical items. Many original factory parts are in stock for restoring your Regina music box, and tune discs are manufactured for the 15½" Regina music box including several Christmas songs. We are always interested in purchasing all types of mechanical musical items for restoring and reselling.

This picture of John Barnes Wells, "admiring" his vocal expression, was taken in December, 1917, Victor Record Supplement.

tor had declined to renew the exclusive contract which Werrenrath had for many years.

They had to be made before August 8, 1935, for that was the date on which John Barnes Wells died in Roxbury, N.Y. He was not quite 55. I am not certain of the cause of his death, but have an impression that I read a long time ago he succumbed to a heart attack. It's possible, though, that my memory is tricking me.

III. Grace Kerns' Last Columbia Records

In November, 1915, Columbia made its strongest effort to bring its monthly record supplement up to a standard approaching, if not equalling, Victor's. The size of pages was increased to that of the Victor, better paper was used and more care was used in preparing the text and reproducing photographs.

That first improved supplement listed a record of "Auf Wiedersehn," from "The Blue Paradise," which Grace Kerns sang as a duet with the English tenor, Hardy Williamson, who had been a miner before he became a singer. Williamson soon afterwards signed up with Edison and traveled extensively giving "tone tests."

There was an Edison association, too, with the record's other song, "Molly Dear, It's You I'm After," sung by Edith Chapman, soprano, and a quartet. As "Miss Chappel," Edith Chapman had figured a decade before in Edison two-minute cylinder lists.

And it has just struck me that she must be the otherwise unknown soprano, "Ethel Costello," who appeared in the Columbia lists at about the same time that Miss Chapman made her Columbia debut.

When artists recorded under assumed names they were fond of using their own initials (for example, Elsie Baker called herself Edna Brown), so Edith Chapman and Ethel Costello almost certainly were the same woman.

In May, 1917, Miss Kerns sang a Hawaiian number, "On the Shore at Le Le Wi," with Reed Miller as her partner. The coupling, "When Cupid Calls," was by Kerns and Miller with Andrea Sarto's baritone added for extra measure.

The same list also had "Miriam Clark" singing "So Long, Letty," with Hardy Williamson. In view of Miss Kerns' previous association with Williamson, this provides more circumstantial evidence that Grace and Miriam were the same.

There should have been a good sale for a June record on which Miss Kerns sang "Kiss Me Again" and she and Miller were heard in "They Didn't Believe Me."

For the August supplement, Miss Kerns, Charles Harrison, and the Columbia Opera Chorus sang the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore," replacing one which had been made several years before by Elise Stevenson and John Young.

A record that must have been one of the more attractive of Miss Kern's offerings came out in November. It combined "Bonnie Sweet Bessie" and "When the Roses Bloom." The description said:

"The voice of Grace Kerns is familiar on many of the finest choral, quartet, and duet records in our catalog. It is an added pleasure to hear Miss Kerns' solo in such a gem as Gilbert's 'Bonnie Sweet Bessie.' 'When the Roses Bloom' is even more beautiful. . . . Certainly this song is one Schubert himself could well claim, so tender-sweet is the melody."

Miriam Clark disappeared, but in March, 1917, Grace Kerns was listed singing "Poor Butterfly" in the guise of "Katherine Clark." There can be no doubt about her identity in this instance.

We have seen that Katherine, or Catherine Clark was her mother's maiden name, and no doubt it occurred to the soprano that it would be a nice tribute to her mother to make a few records under that lady's name.

Perhaps her mother may also have had the name of Miriam or there may have been a Miriam Clark among Miss Kerns' other kinfolds. Under her own name Miss Kerns sang Margaret R. Lang's "Irish Love Song."

In April, the soprano, whose Columbia days were almost at an end, had another duet with Reed Miller. They sang "Our Star," a vocal setting of Rubenstein's "Monastery Bells."

Meanwhile, a new soprano, a Mormon girl from Utah, Lucy Gates, had been engaged. She began to make many records of the type that had been associated with Miss Kerns. It might be said she became Columbia's "new Grace Kerns."

There were no more records with Miss Kerns' name except for two containing Catholic music, which must have been issued in 1917 but did not appear in the monthly supplements. They were numbered out of sequence; A3055 coupled "O Bread of Heaven" and "Soul of My Saviour," and A3056, "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name" and "Hear the Children, Gentle Jesus."

In August, 1917, "Katherine Clark" was present with a song whose title had a prophetic touch, "I'm a Regular Daughter of Uncle Sam," for, with her country throwing its full strength into World War I, Miss Kerns gave up her concert and recording career to go abroad and minister to the needs of service men.

The last "Katherine Clark" record was listed in October. It was called "Hello! My Soldier Boy," was described as "a wireless novelty," and was composed by Fred W. Hager, who wrote more "descriptive specialties" for phonograph use than any other musician. The soprano had Henry Burr as her fellow singer. On the other side the Peerless Quartet sang another Hager number, "The Spirit of '17."

"The wireless novelty song, 'Hello! My Soldier Boy,' is certainly up-to-date. The girl who sends her love 'over and through the atmosphere' is, in this case, Katherine Clark, and her soldier boy, Henry Burr, both favorite Columbia artists. And, by the way, you can hear the wireless ticking merrily throughout the song."

That was the last, for Columbia, of Grace Kerns, Miriam Clark, and Katherine Clark. For some reason, the company soon afterwards proceeded to a wholesale slaughter of her records.

When the September, 1918, catalog was published, she had only seven 10-inch and two 12-inch solos remaining, although many of her concerted numbers were retained. A new photograph was reproduced showing the soprano in what may have been an operatic costume. Whatever it was, it made her look plump.

By September, 1919, the solos were down to the 12-inch "Bohemian Girl" record and the two 10-inch Catholic couplings. The ensemble offerings also had been drastically pared.

(To Be Continued)

VIOLINS

VIOLINS: Josef Guainerius, hand-made (copy), made in Germany, 1884, very fine copy in perfect condition, with wooden case and newly rehalred bow, $225. Stradivari (copy), mold-made, 1928, and bow, $95. Plus postage and packing. — Mrs. Ronald E. Nelson, 147 Randolph Dr., Bangor, Maine. au3618

GUITAR

Outstanding guitar teacher's instruction booklet "Getting Started." Important first steps in learning to accompany singing. $1. — Guitar Instruction. 9 Mayflower Drive. Yonkers, N.Y. 10710. jly3675

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

WANTED: Jolson material. — Dick Bonesteel, 3249 Perkins Lane West, Seattle, Wash. jly12407

OLD SHEET MUSIC

(Turn to Page 44)

WANTED TRADE MARK BERLINER PHONOGRAPH

and

Any Berliner or Johnsen
or Victor machines.

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
FOR THESE PHONOGRAPHS.

Will buy ANY PARTS
for these machines.

L. A. SCHLICK
1728 So. Shore Dr.
Worthington, Minn.

tfx

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. s3084

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. jcl24661

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. au3614

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. s3483

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif 92506. n12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N.Y. au3483

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. — Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. o6829

COLLECTORS or dealers: Hundreds early operatic originals, imports, reissues. Special lists offering certain artists, labels, other classifications, as requested. — Penn Courtney, 4817 Gilbert Drive, Shreveport, Louisiana. jly3614

RECORDS: all kinds except classical. Old record catalogs. Back issues of HOB-BIDS. Please list specific wants if possible. — W. Praster, 656 Miami Road, Wenonah, N. J. Tel. 609 - 857-4686. au3084

FOR SALE: Disc and cylinder records, phonographs. 25c for lists. Evolution of the Phonograph by Reed and Welch. $9.95. — Coppernoll's Antiques, Box 6, Palatine Bridge, N.Y. au3004

FOR SALE: Several fine music boxes, some coin glass, clocks and Winchesters. — Write Lee Boddy, River Oaks Road, Iowa Falls, Iowa. au3023

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Donart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAWtucket 3-2888. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records. 1902 to LP. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my128801

Wanted: Radio Transcription Records featuring Russ Columbo, radio crooner in the early 1930's. Will pay highest prices. Needed for research. Roy Steifel, Box 511, Winston-Salem, N. C. s3447

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holmoway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. jly3403

WANTED MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED: Reproducers and reproducer parts for old phonographs. Can repair. Will trade phonographs for banks. — Miller's, 1017 Westgate Rd., Troy, Ohio 45373. S3023

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANT all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Welte, Ampico, odd or unusual rolls. Lists unnecessary. — Box 787H, Kemah, Texas. my124631

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

COLLECTOR of old piano rolls, will sell, make offer — Mrs. Luther Dammen, Mayville, No. Dakota. jly1821

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America, $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. n62342

COTTAGE ORGANS

PRE 1900 Cable Cottage organ, rebuilt, new bellows, new stops, refinished, if interested will send photo and price — L. E. Burdick, 3161 7th Street, Boulder, Colorado jly1051

PHONOGRAPHS

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

WANTED: Cylinder & old Disc phonographs. Parts, reproducers & any catalogs & literature on the Phonographs. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. s3563

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18 1/2" $3; 15 1/2" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. jly6468

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's 3151 High, Denver 5, Colorado. s12698

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 406 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. au3023

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Low Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

my56p

Grace Kerns and John Barnes Wells

PART IV

By JIM WALSH

IV. Last Records

When Miss Kerns returned from abroad she probably found that Columbia, having Lucy Gates and other popular sopranos, did not need her. She did a little more recording, in or around 1919, but chiefly, or entirely, for companies that were making hill-and-dale records that had a limited distribution.

I have a Paramount record on which she sings "The Angel's Serenade," to a violin obligato by Samuel Gardner. "Ave Maria" is played by Gardner on the other side. She may have made more Paramounts, but, lacking catalogs, I am unable to say.

Miss Kerns also made at least three hill-and-dale Okeh records, the Company for which Fred Hager was recording director. The titles were "Kiss Me Again," "Angel's Serenade," and "Poor Wandering One" from "The Pirates of Penzance."

In 1920, the mysterious Arto Company of Orange, N.J., which made briefly both records and piano rolls issued three or more discs by the Virginia soprano.

The three I know of were "Old Folks at Home" and "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" (in both of which she had the assistance of a mixed quartet and a banjoist), and her old favorite, "Whispering Hope," sung as a duet with Reed Miller's wife, Nevada Van der Veer. Perhaps Miss Kerns made others.

The Arto record, like the Emerson, was represented to be "universal" — that is, it supposedly would play in either lateral or vertical position.

The one Arto record envelope I have contains some amusing statements. After saying that Arto records would play 10 times as long as the usual needle-cut record, the envelope's blurb continued:

"Standard Songs. Your favorite standard selections . . . have been recorded on Arto records by artists you are accustomed to hearing on Victor and Columbia Records.

"In the recording unusual care has been exercised to render the selections as you would want them. No individual eccentric interpretations have been permitted but the artists have made every effort to render the compositions as they were originally arranged. You will find the music 'stays with you' — it just makes you hum to yourself!"

Miss Kerns' final appearances before the recording horn appear to have been made in 1921 and 1922. Like John Barnes Wells, she ended her career as a phonograph singer by making a few records for Aeolian-Vocalion.

The first appeared in October, 1921, when she sang "The Nightingale Song" as a solo and enlisted the help of her friend, Nevada Van der Veer, in still another duet version of "Whispering Hope." The supplement said:

"'Whispering Hope' is one of the most popular duets for women's voices ever written. Heard with Nevada Van der Veer's splendid contralto is a gifted new Vocalion artist, Grace Kerns, soprano soloist of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church, New York City. The clear beauty of Miss Kerns' exquisite voice is well displayed in her first solo Vocalion recording."

The second Kerns solo, "At Dawning," was announced in the summer of 1922, and the last in November, when she sang "In the Time of Roses." That seems to have been the last record she made for anybody.

V. Grace Kerns' Tragic Death

I have a clipping from a newspaper, which I think was the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot, telling of Grace Kerns' tragic death on September 10, 1936, while she was riding in a car driven by her nephew, Howard J. Kerns, who was also killed. The Associated Press article erroneously gives Miss Kerns' name as Kern, but I shall add the missing "s."

"Four persons, one an internationally known singer, died today as the result of motor accidents on Virginia highways.

"Miss Grace Kerns, associate professor of voice at Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, was killed instantly in an auto-bus crash near Williamsburg.

"She had been a member of the R.M.W.C. faculty since August, 1932, and previously was a soloist for 13 years at St. Bartholomew's Church, New York City.

"Miss Kerns' concert work was extensive, and she appeared with some of the world's leading orchestras. Among her engagements was a 15-week tour with the New York Symphony Orchestra under Walter Damrosch. During the World War, she served with the YWCA in cantonments and hospitals in Europe.

"Howard J. Kerns, Norfolk, was driver of the car in which the two died in a collision with a Peninsula Line bus.

"W. W. Walker, driver of the Newport News bound bus, said that he ran off the road on a curve in an effort to avoid a crash. None of the bus passengers were injured."

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Recently I obtained a copy of Miss Kerns' death certificate, and have already quoted some of the information it contains. The information was supplied by Catherine Kerns (Miss Kerns' mother?), of 622 West Onley Road, Norfolk.

The coroner's report, signed by A. M. Sneed, said that Miss Kerns' "whole body was crushed. Both legs and arms broken, skull crushed."

What a tragic end to a useful, even brilliant, career that should have continued for many more years!

Since Miss Kerns' last years had been spent as a member of the Randolph-Macon Woman's College faculty, I wrote to Dr. James Quillan, college president, hoping to obtain additional biographical detail and perhaps a good photo. My letter was answered on April 12, 1961, by Miss Evelyn Harvey, secretary to Dr. Quillan, who summarized the college's available information:

"Pupil of Louis Caplanni, New York; two years and a half at Institute of Musical Art, New York; pupil of Emma Thursby; opera under Sebastiani in Naples, Italy, and Alfred Giraudet in Paris, France, for three years; on tour for 16 weeks with New York Symphony Orchestra, under Walter Damrosch; soloist with Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and other leading orchestras, and many appearances with oratorio societies throughout the country; 13 years soloist at St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City and private teaching studio in New York; Associate Professor of Voice, Randolph-Macon Woman's College, 1932-36. . . I regret there is no information about her parents and birthdate."

So, after her national and international successes, Grace Kerns returned to her native "Old Virginny" to live — and to die. It seems too bad that she and John Barnes Wells could not have lived and sung longer, but their records will keep memories of them evergreen for generations yet to be. (The End)

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

trr

10-Inch Columbia Records

By Grace Kerns (1911-1917)

A1091 Dear Heart. Reverse: Whispering Hope (Beulah Gaylord Young and Clara Moister).

A1103 Banks of Allan Water. Reverse: Irish Lullaby (Beulah G. Young).

A1127 O Wert Thou in the Cauld Blast (duet with Bessie Volckmann, contralto). Reverse: Wanderer's Night Song (Reed Miller—Frank Croxton).

A1221 Pirates of Penzance—Poor Wandering One. Reverse: Maritana—Let Me Like a Soldier Fall (Charles W. Harrison).

A1249 Sing, Smile, Slumber. Reverse: A Dream (Craig Campbell).

A1265 Last Rose of Summer. Reverse: The Rosary (Columbia Male Quintet).

A1275 Just A-wearin' For You. Reverse: I Would That My Love (Grace Kerns and Mildred Potter).

A1299 Danube River. Reverse: Kitharney (Andrea Sarto).

A1341 Oh, That We Two Were Maying (duet with Craig Campbell, tenor). Reverse: When I Know That Thou Art Near Me (Elsie Baker and Frederick Wheeler).

A1357 Go, Pretty Rose (duet with Craig Campbell). Reverse: Asthore (Craig Campbell).

A1359 Sweethearts. Reverse: Every Lover Must Meet His Fate (Reed Miller).

A1375 At the Ferry. Reverse: Because (Frank Pollock).

(Continued on next page)

VIOLINS

VIOLINS: Josef Gualnerius, hand-made (copy), made in Germany, 1884, very fine copy in perfect condition, with wooden case and newly rehired bow, $225. Stradivari (copy), mold-made, 1928, and bow, $95. Plus postage and packing. — Mrs. Ronald E. Nelson, 147 Randolph Dr., Bangor, Maine. au3618

RECORDS WANTED

PLEASE DO NOT SEND me lists of records or phonographs you have for sale. I am a collector only. The only records I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

WANTED

TRADE MARK BERLINER

PHONOGRAPH

and

Any Berliner or Johnsen
or Victor machines.

HIGHEST PRICES PAID
FOR THESE PHONOGRAPHS.

Will buy ANY PARTS
for these machines.

L. A. SCHLICK
1728 So. Shore Dr.
Worthington, Minn.

tfx

Please mention HOBBIES when
replying to advertisements.

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. s3084

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N. Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. je124661

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. au3614

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. s3483

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. n12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N.Y. au3483

GREAT VOCAL RECORDS. South's store for top condition collectors' 78's. Operatic, historical, personality, jazz. Wants located. Free lists, your category. — Record Collectors Service, 2322 Biscayne Blvd., Miami 37, Fla. o6829

RECORDS: all kinds except classical. Old record catalogs. Back issues of HOBBIES. Please list specific wants if possible. — W. Praster, 656 Miami Road, Wenonah, N. J. Tel. 609 - 857-4686. au3084

FOR SALE: Disc and cylinder records, phonographs. 25c for lists. Evolution of the Phonograph by Reed and Welch, $9.95. — Coppernolls' Antiques, Box 6, Palatine Bridge, N.Y. au3004

FOR SALE: Several fine music boxes, some coin glass, clocks and Winchesters. — Write Lee Boddy, River Oaks Road, Iowa Falls, Iowa. au3023

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Domart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2389. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1902 to L.P. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my128801

Wanted: Radio Transcription Records featuring Russ Columbo, radio crooner in the early 1930's. Will pay highest prices. Needed for research. Roy Steifel, Box 511, Winston-Salem, N. C. s3447

FREE LISTS. 78's, overflow from large collection. Opera, comedy, albums. Write. — P.O. Box 1566, Studio City, Calif. o3272

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

FOR SALE

BEAUTIFUL antique Austrian carousell organ, 50 keys, two barrels, 18 tunes, motorized, completely restored and re-finished. Perfect. $1,200. Photo 25c. — Howard, Box 243, Valley Mills, Texas. o3614

WANTED MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED: Reproducers and reproducer parts for old phonographs. Can repair. Will trade phonographs for banks. — Miller's, 1017 Westgate Rd., Troy, Ohio 45373. S3023

COIN OPERATED pianos, orchestrations, mechanical dolls, old time arcade and vending items. — Ed. Zelmsky, 120 Sea Cliff Ave., San Francisco 21, Calif. o3253

PIANOS &amp; ROLLS

WANT all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Welte, Ampico, odd or unusual rolls. Lists unnecessary. — Box 787H, Kemah, Texas. my124631

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Records. 2) Recordco. 3) Vocal style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America, $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. n62342

WANTED: Stokowski recordings, off the air tapes, posters, pictures, memorabilia. — David Kendig, 257 W. 91st St., New York City. o3403

EDISON constant speed strobe fits end of mandrel to indicate 160 speed. Kit contains Strobe neon light and cord; one strobe for regular (Amberol); one strobe for Concert 5" size; one strobe for disc records 33 1/3, 45, 78 speeds; instructions. Prepaid $5, allow two weeks. — Hanson, Box 1168, Leesburg, Florida 32748. o3618

PHONOGRAPHS

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

WANTED: Cylinder & old Disc phonographs. Parts, reproducers & any catalogs & literature on the Phonographs. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. s3863

REPRODUCER REPAIRING a specialty. Have original Edison cylinder styluses for your reproducers. All types. Phonograph parts of all kinds, records, horns, etc. Send 25c for lists. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. o3445

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18 1/2" $3; 15 1/2" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. ja6468

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's 3151 High, Denver 6, Colorado. s12698

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 406 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. au3023

ELECTRIFY

PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE
write to

LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my56p

A1436 The Lorelei. Reverse: Stars of the Summer Night (both with Beulah G. Young and Clara Moister).

A1442 Marriage Market—The One I Love (with Charles Harrison). Reverse: The Doll Girl—Come On Over Here (Agnes Kimball and Harrison).

A1624 Chinatown, My Chinatown (with John Barnes Wells). Reverse: Mrs. Sippi, You're a Grand Old Girl (Columbia Stellar Quartet).

A1678 Blue Alsatian Mountains. Reverse: Answer (Reed Miller).

A1686 Whispering Hope (with Mildred Potter). Reverse: Somewhere a Voice is Calling (with Herbert Stuart).

A1744 Nightingale Song. Reverse: Among the Lilies.

A1748 I Love You Truly. Reverse: Until (Reed Miller).

A1782 One Sweetly Solemn Thought (with Mildred Potter). Reverse: Dreams of Galilee (Columbia Male Quartet).

A1819 Blue Paradise—Auf Wiedersehen (with Hardy Williamson). Reverse: Molly Dear, It's You I'm After (Edith Chapman with Male Quartet).

A1833 Violets. Reverse: Hearts and Flowers (Frank Pollock).

A1851 Estudiantina Waltz (with Mildred Potter). Reverse: Funiculi, Funicula (Charles Harrison and Columbia Stellar Quartet).

A1966 Sybil—When Cupid Calls (with Reed Miller and Andrea Sarto). Reverse: On the Shore at Le Lei Wi (with Miller).

A1982 Kiss Me Again. Reverse: Girl From Utah—They Didn't Believe Me (with Reed Miller).

A2028 Bonnie Sweet Bessie. Reverse: When the Roses Bloom.

A2071 Rose of My Heart (with Miller). Reverse: Kilkenny (Charles Harrison).

A2095 My Faith Looks Up to Thee (with Ida Gardner). Reverse: Safe in the Arms of Jesus (Harry McClaskey).

A2139 Irish Love Song. Reverse: Little Irish Girl (Reed Miller).

A2177 Our Star (with Miller). Reverse: The Farewell (Nanette Flack and Miller).

A3055 O Bread of Heaven. Reverse: Soul of My Saviour.

A3056 Holy God, We Praise Thy Name. Reverse: Hear the Children, Gentle Jesus. 10-inch Records by "Miriam Clark"

A1661 Chin Chin—Love Moon (with J. B. Wells). Reverse: Calling Me Home (Columbia Stellar Quartet).

A1713 I'm a Pilgrim (with Columbia Mixed Quartet). Reverse: Lift Up Your Heads (Columbia Mixed Quartet).

A1757 Flame of Love (with John B. Wells). Reverse: My Own Venetian Rose (Sam Ash).

A1969 So Long, Lefty (with Hardy Williamson). Reverse: Cumberland (Henry Burr and Albert Campbell).

10-inch Records by "Katherine Clark"

A2167 Poor Butterfly. Reverse: Century Girl (Inez Barbour).

A2274 I'm a Regular Daughter of Uncle Sam. Reverse: Oh Jack, When Are You Coming Back? (Billy Burton and James Hall).

A2301 Hello! My Soldier Boy—A Wire-less Novelty (with Burr). Reverse: Spirit of '17 (Peerless Quartet).

12-inch Columbia Records

By Grace Kerns (1911-1916)

A5307 The Pink Lady—My Beautiful Lady (with Chorus). Reverse: Pink Lady Selections (Prince's Orchestra).

A5311 Stabat Mater—Quis Est Homo (duet with Margaret Keyes, contralto). Reverse: Stabat Mater—Faci ut Portem (Keyes).

A5312 Mavtana—Scenes That Are Brightest. Reverse: Bohemian Girl—Then You'll Remember Me (Reed Miller).

A5329 Doctor Tinkle Tinker—Girl of My Dreams (with Chorus). Reverse: The Siren—Wallflower Sweet (Kerns & C. W. Harrison).

A5367 Forza del Destino—La Vergine degli Angeli (In Italian). Reverse: Tales of Hoffman Selections (Prince's Orchestra).

A5409 Rose Maid—Roses Bloom for Lovers. Reverse: Rose Maid—Sweethearts, Wives and Good Fellows (Chas. Harrison and Columbia Mixed Quartet).

A5410 Bohemian Girl—Come With the Gypsy Bride. Reverse: Bohemian Girl—I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls).

A5445 Oh! Oh! Delphine—Venus Waltz (with Craig Campbell and Mixed Chorus). Reverse: Oh! Oh! Delphine Vocal

Gems (Columbia Light Opera Company).

A5452 Carmen—Waltz Song (with Mildred Potter, Craig Campbell, and Frank Croxton). Reverse: Blue Danube Waltz (Columbia Light Opera Company).

A5462 Martha—Good Night Quartet (with Potter, Reed Miller, and Croxton). Reverse: Martha—Lost, Proscribed (Miller and Croxton).

A5480 Beggar Student—Shall I Tell Her? (with Reed Miller). Reverse: Beggar Student—Vocal Gems (Columbia Light Opera Company).

A5536 Norma—Hear Me, Norma (with Mildred Potter). Reverse: Vesperi Siciliani—Oh Thou Queen of Love and Beauty (with Potter).

A5574 Sari—Love Has Wings. Sari—Love's Own Sweet Song (both with Chas. Harrison).

A5625 The Only Girl. Reverse: When You're Away.

A5636 When Ye Gang Awa', Jamie (with Harry McClaskey). Reverse: Land of the Swallows (Mildred Potter and J. B. Wells).

A5657 Oh, That We Two Were Maying (with Mildred Potter). Reverse: Don Pasquale—Oh, Summer Night (Caroline Hudson-Alexander and Andrea Sarto).

A5668 I Feel Thy Angel Spirit (with Albert Wiederhold). Reverse: Mavis (Reed Miller).

A5701 Calm as the Night (with Wiederhold). Reverse: I Live and Love Thee (with Potter).

A5709 Rigolotto Quartet (with Potter, Harrison, and Wiederhold). Reverse: Lucia Sextet (with Potter, Reed Miller, Harrison, Frank Croxton, and Wiederhold).

A5745 Ring Out, Wild Bells (with Male Quartet). Reverse: Ring Out, Wild Bells (Columbia Oratorio Chorus).

Edison Blue Amberol Cylinder By Grace Kerns (1912)

1504 Roses Bloom for Lovers. 10-inch Paramount Hill-and-Dale (1919)

30054 Angel's Serenade. Reverse: Ave Maria (violin solo by Samuel Gardner).

10-inch Okeh Hill-and-Dale (1919)

1015 Violets. Reverse: Just a Wearyin' for You (Marie Morrissey).

1048 Kiss Me Again. Reverse: Dreams (Frederick Wheeler).

1053 Angel's Serenade. Reverse: Good-bye, Sweet Day (Croxton Quartet).

1055 Pirates of Penzance—Poor Wandering One. Reverse: Under the Greenwood Tree (Inez Barbour).

10-inch Aeolian-Vocalion (1921-22)

14225 Nightingale Song. Reverse: Whispering Hope (with Nevada Van Der Veer).

14359 At Dawning. Reverse: Rock-a-bye Baby (Helen Clark).

14418 In the Time of Roses. Reverse: The Carnival (Helen Barr).

10-inch Arto Red Label

"Universal" Records (1919-1920)

3004 Old Folks at Home (with Mixed Quartet and Banjo Accompaniment). Reverse: Old Black Joe (Wilfred Glenn and Shannon Quartet).

3005 Whispering Hope (duet with Nevada Van Der Veer). Reverse: One Sweetly Solemn Thought (Harry Evans, baritone).

3006 Carry Me Back to Old Virginny (with Mixed Quartet and Banjo Accompaniment). Reverse: My Old Kentucky Home (Shannon Four).

Victor Records by John Barnes Wells
10-inch single-faced (1910)

5781 In Maytime (Oley Speaks).

5783 Boat Song (Harriet Ware).

5789 Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender (Lassen).

5793 Of Thee I'm Thinking, Margaretha (Meyer-Holmund).

5794 The Rosary (Ethelbert Nevin).

12-inch single-faced

31394 My Wild Irish Rose (originally made by Robert Lerman).

31791 Beloved, It Is Morn (Hickey-Aylward).

10-inch double-faced (1910-1917)

16140 Sweet Genevieve (with Hayden Quartet). Reverse: Where the River Shannon Flows (Harry Macdonough).

16167 My Garden That Blooms for You. Reverse: Garden of Roses (Macdonough and Hayden Quartet).

16700 Beautiful Isle of Somewhere. Reverse: Dear Lord and Father (Elizabeth and William Wheeler).

16705 Story of the Rose. Reverse: Oh, That We Two Were Maying (Elizabeth and William Wheeler).

16865 Red, Red Rose. Reverse: There, Little Girl, Don't Cry (Elizabeth Wheeler).

16929 Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender. Reverse: Last Night (Helen Clark).

17039 Mamma's Song. Reverse: Pickaninny's Lullaby (Elsie Baker).

17203 I'm Wearing Awa'. Reverse: Daddy (Elizabeth Wheeler).

17234 The Rosary. Reverse: For All Eternity (Alan Turner).

17441 My Wonderful Dream Girl. Reverse: Come On Over Here (Helen Clark and Billy Murray).

17693 Boat Song. Reverse: Joy of the Morning.

17968 Memories. Reverse: One Fleeting Hour (Elsie Baker).

17970 I Love You, That's One Thing I Know (sung under name of William Barnes). Reverse: Always Be Honey to Me (Albert Campbell and Henry Burr).

18052 Girl Who Wears a Red Cross on Her Sleeve (as William Barnes). Reverse: Baby Shoes (Edna Brown).

18054 My Own Iona (as William Barnes, with male quartet). Reverse: In the Beautiful Seaside Air (Billy Murray and Chorus).

18062 Long Ago in Alcalá. Reverse: The Owl, (2) Crow's Egg, (3) Why?

18122 Melody of Home. Reverse: Today (Elsie Baker).

18154 Norah, the Pride of Kildare. Reverse: Molly Dhu (Charles Harrison).

18239 Tho' I'm Not the First to Call You Sweetheart (as William Barnes, with Orpheus Quartet). Reverse: Where the Black-Eyed Susans Grow (Albert Campbell and Henry Burr).

18392 When Shadows Fall. Reverse: The Secret of Home, Sweet Home (Chas. Harrison).

12-inch double-faced (1911)

35189 Murmuring Zephyrs. Reverse: The Charmed Cup (Reinold Werrenrath).

10-inch Columbia (1913-1915)

A1409 Rose of Tralee. Reverse: Oh, Promise Me (Mildred Potter).

A1609 Same Sort of Girl (with Inez Barbour). Reverse: Girl from Utah (waltz, Columbia Band).

A1624 Chinatown, My Chinatown (with Kerns). Reverse: Mrs. Sippi, You're a Grand Old Girl (Columbia Stellar Quartet).

A1661 Chin Chin—Love Moon (with Miriam Clark). Reverse: Calling Me Home (Columbia Stellar Quartet).

A1662 Little Bit of Heaven. Reverse: Roses Remind Me of Someone (Henry Burr).

A1757 Flame of Love (with Miriam Clark). Reverse: My Own Venetian Rose (Sam Ash).

12-inch Columbia (1915)

A5636 Land of the Swallows (with Mildred Potter). Reverse: When Ye Gang Awa', Jamie (Grace Kerns and Harry McClaskey).

10-inch Vertical Aeolian-Vocalion (1919)

22032 The Lord is My Light. Reverse: Face to Face.

22037 The Birthday of a King. Reverse: Still Night—Holy Night (Nevada Van Der Veer).

4-min. Edison Amberol Cylinder (1909)

137 Good Night, Dear.

4-min. Indestructible Cylinder (1912)

3311 At the Gate of the Palace of Dreams.

4-min. U.S. Everlasting Cyl. (1910-1912)

1162 My Garden That Blooms for You.

1428 Sunset.

1435 (a) In Maytime. (b) Red, Red Rose.

1458 (a) Rolling Down to Rio. (b) Auld Doctor Maginn.

1481 (a) Dearest Place. (b) If I Were You. (c) Elf Man.

1511 Boat Song—To Lucasta.

1578 I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby.

The End

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by
JIM WALSH

Hands Across the Seas!

Major H. H. Annand, of Hillingdon,
Middlesex, England, Visits
Jim Walsh, of Vinton, Va.

PART I

By JIM WALSH

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry he cannot reply to most of the mail he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and cannot tell anyone where they can be bought or sold, except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot exchange tape recordings or make tapes, cannot supply back copies of HOBBIES Magazine, and has no record catalogs or other phonograph reference material for sale.

I. A Series of Surprises

Major H. H. Annand is a veteran British army officer. He has been in many parts of the world and seen his share of surprising things.

But the Major — usually known to his friends by the nickname of "Gerry," pronounced "Jerry" — has retained the capacity to be surprised. So there is no reason for anyone else to be surprised on learning that he was surprised to see the postman struggling up the front path toward his house, "Whitewell," on Pield Heath Avenue in Hillingdon, Middlesex, England, on the morning of last April 9.

That postman was lugging a heavy box, and he felt a sensible ambition to divest himself of it without delay.

Inside the box were a dozen or so Edison Diamond Discs, which I had sent to Gerry in the hope and belief that they would reach him by his birthday, March 25. Instead, they had dawdled their way across the Atlantic and placed a burden on the postman more than two weeks later than they should have.

Not a great while before the records arrived, Major Annand had experienced another surprise. Two copies of a recently established weekly newspaper, the Vinton Messenger, published in the Virginia town in which I live, had mysteriously found their way to Whittier, Calif., some 3,000 miles from Vinton, and had been remailed to Gerry across another 6,000 miles or so.

He is still wondering how they came to the hands of Jesse Jones, his Far West friend by correspondence, who passed them along.

While these surprises were surprising enough in themselves, they were only the prelude to a series of greater surprises for both Major Annand and me — but especially for the Major. In fact, there were several times during a few days of the next several weeks when the genial Gerry probably came close to being the most surprised man alive.

II. The Major Surprises Me

My own share of the surprises began when I received from the Major a letter, dated April 9. I had corresponded with him, intermittently, for several years. And I had often sent him greetings when writing to his, and my, dear friends, Mr. and Mrs. Joe V. J. Cramp, of Chaseway, Penticton Road, Braintree, Essex, England. The very thought of having such an exalted sounding address should give Joe and Beattie a high regard for themselves! But on to the Major's letter:

"My dear Jim: What a wonderful surprise this morning.

"When I saw the postman staggering up the front path, I wondered what was worrying him. I haven't yet had time to try them all, but they all look interesting.

Major Annand considers this one of the best portraits ever made of him. —Photo by Oakie S. Asbury, Roanoke Times photographic staff.

"Jesse Jones, of Whittier, Calif., sent me two copies of the 'Messenger' which featured your activities, and I rather marveled how he was able to get Vinton papers in California.

"What wonderful pictures of 'Pussy' in the April HOBBIES, which arrived a day or so ago.

"'Pussy' will have to be on his best behavior, as, shortly, I intend my long-wished-for visit to the United States. It will be one of the 21-day economy excursions, and I expect to make it late in April and the first two weeks in May. . . . I hope to have two or three days with you.

"I know that this is inviting myself, but I wouldn't dream of coming to America without seeing you, the fabulous puss-cats and Pussy. . . . Truly, GERRY."

The news that Gerry Annand planned to come to see me was a welcome surprise. Despite years of corresponding with him and Joe and Beattie Cramp (her full given names are Beatrice Mary), it was hard to realize that they were people of flesh-and-blood carrying on the ordinary duties of life thousands of miles away from me.

Gerry, Joe and Beattie seemed more like creatures of my imagination, and I was sure that was the way they felt about me. And now the Major actually was about to make a personal investigation to find out if Jim Walsh really existed; if the cats — Roger, Nipper, Petey, and Lucky

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

$5, postpaid

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers, also checklist of clock-makers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

Jim — had genuine corporeal being; and, most of all, if "Possy," the sweet and gentle-natured opossum whose photographs have lent charm to HOBBIES pages, genuinely lived, breathed, and had marsupial existence.

Possy was to prove the one real disappointment of the Major's visit. The admiring Englishman and his four-footed friend never did make connections. In other respects, however, Gerry Annand's descent upon the States turned out to be an unqualified triumph.

III. The Major Arrives

I was elated at the prospect of having Major Annand, whom I knew to be one of the most highly regarded English record collectors, as my guest. He is serving a lifetime tenure as president of the City of London Phonograph Society, the primary object of which is to preserve Edison cylinder records and acquire all the information possible concerning them.

This information is published in book form, as in the numerical compilations of Edison cylinders which the Major has issued, and in the society's bi-monthly publication, "The Hillandale News." He is generally considered Great Britain's foremost Edison expert.

At the same time I was perturbed by the knowledge that my being obligated to work a lot of overtime and having so many other things to do in extremely limited spare time had caused my big old house to become frightfully untidy, and I feared its condition would offend a fastidious British gentleman.

I hoped to find time to do some comprehensive cleaning before his arrival, but it turned out that the "extracurricular" duties became ever more pressing. And when he first entered my door, weeks later, the place was more unsightly than it had been when his letter came.

I was to learn that, in Gerry Annand's estimation, the fact that my living quarters look as if a cyclone had devastated them didn't matter a bit. He explained he had come to see Possy, the cats, and me, and not to make a report to the board of health on whether my premises, my "family," and I should be quarantined.

In one of the few letters that I had snatched time to write in months, I let Gerry know that I was eagerly awaiting his arrival and would do my best to have the Vinton equivalent of a red carpet spread for him.

I also arranged to take my vacation to correspond with the time he would be with me. Since I had left my former radio-television news writing job in June, 1964, to become a staff member of the Roanoke Times, I was entitled to only one week.

Time went on and I heard no more from the Major. I began to wonder if anything had happened to make him cancel or postpone his economy-size trip. Then, on the night of Tuesday, May 5, while I was writing several stories dealing with the day's activities of Roanoke's U.S. District Court, my desk phone rang and,

From left to right, top to bottom:

Jim Walsh took this "surprise" snapshot as Major Annand descended from a bus in Roanoke, Va., Friday, May 8, 1964.

Jim Walsh and Major Annand in the Vinton Post Office with Jim's famous Box 476 between them.

"Gerry" soon became a fast friend of Jim's glossy ebony black kitten, Lucky Jim.

Quentin Riggs who had been working for the U. S. State Department in Sydney, Australia, won Nipper's affections last February. Quentin and Evelyn, his wife, visited Jim and his cats before moving on to Quentin's new assignment in Paris. "Nips" became equally loving to Major Annand.

when I answered, the caller identified himself as "Mr. Nugent in Richmond."

I recognized him as A. Nugent, Jr., a well-known mail order dealer in old phonographs, records, and novelties of various sorts, so I had a suspicion of what would happen next. Gerry had told me he intended to spend a few days with Mr. Nugent, with whom he had had pleasant business transactions, before he came to Vinton.

A moment later I was told Major Annand wished to speak with me. As soon as Gerry's voice came over the wire I immediately recognized its soft, typically charming English quality. He had sent me, a year or so before, a recorded tape in which he played some of the records in his collection, commented on them, and said he wished he could see me, "Nipper and Co." Even before they met, "Nips" seemed set apart to occupy an individual spot in the Major's affections.

Gerry and I had a little trouble understanding each other at first, partly because the connection could have been better. But I understood that he planned to reach Roanoke about 5:45 the following Friday night, traveling by bus. I told him I could hardly wait until he came.

The next day I checked and found that, by taking a later bus, Gerry could journey directly to Vinton and I could meet him at the corner bus stop, within two or three minutes of my house. It isn't a Colonial mansion but from the outside bears a poor-relation likeness to one.

I wrote and suggested that he switch his schedule, but the suggestion reached him too late to be of practical value. I was afraid I should have to work late that Friday night — I frequently am kept overtime on Fridays — and that Gerry would be at loose ends for several hours while I hammered my balky news-room typewriter.

But it "eventuated" that it was best he came earlier, for it gave us several hours more time together.

On that memorable Friday afternoon, I covered my beat as usual and, according to my customary procedure, entered the Roanoke Times news-room about 5 o'clock. I wrote as much "copy" as I could, then told the Night City Editor, Dick Hancock, that I had to go to the bus terminal to meet the English friend whose impending visit I had mentioned.

The ever-thoughtful and obliging Dick told me to go "right ahead." I said I'd come back later and write what copy I had remaining.

My visit at the terminal was only a short one as I stood alertly looking for an express bus from Richmond. The camera with which I take color slides was vigilantly poised and I prepared to give Major Annand the first of the many surprises he fell heir to during his association with me.

Soon the bus pulled in and down stepped a smiling, rather diminutive, gentleman whom I recognized at once from a picture I had of him at home. But Gerry Annand wasn't burdened with elaborate suit cases or other luggage-transporting contrivances. All he had in one hand was a shopping bag.

Without saying a word, I snapped a picture of him getting off the bus. A couple of other passengers, colorfully adorned in hill-billy mode, were standing in the door just behind him. The unaccredited emissary of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, seemed somewhat astonished but managed a smile and said he had known me at once from my pictures. We shook hands and I suggested that we sit in the waiting-room for a few minutes and become acquainted.

IV. Our First Hours Together

During the first few minutes we talked, the Major seemed to have some trouble understanding me. I wondered at first if he had a touch of deafness.

I decided later the trouble probably was caused by the difference in our accents; also, perhaps, from his having undergone "bus fatigue" because of the more than five-hour ride from Richmond to Roanoke.

And at times I had to ask him to repeat something he had said. Since I'm not the least hard of hearing, I suppose my difficulty also was the result of differences in pronunciation and enunciation. Within half an hour the language barrier, which didn't amount to much in the beginning, was out of the way and we had no further trouble.

I asked the Major if he felt that he could eat something. He said that after his long bus ride he certainly could. So I took him to the City Lunch, a popular-priced restaurant a block or so from the newspaper building.

We had a good meal served by an attractive waitress. She was obviously intrigued at being privileged to serve my friend whom I introduced as a distinguished gentleman from England.

When he gave his order the Major presented me with the first of a series of surprises for myself. Instead of asking for tea, as I had anticipated, or even expressing a preference for coffee as a supper beverage, he said he would like to have a bottle of Pepsi Cola.

It seemed he had become acquainted with Pepsi during his travels, liked the taste, and had decided to concentrate on imbibing it while he was in the States. I also had a Pepsi.

At the end of the meal, when he lit an American cigaret and offered me one, he seemed mildly surprised when I said I had never smoked in my life.

I explained I still had some writing to do and suggested that Gerry go with me to the news-room, where I would finish my stint and get away as soon as conditions allowed. He willingly consented, and a few minutes later those members of the Times news staff on duty at that hour looked up to see me enter with my already cherished friend.

In me, of course, they saw a familiar sight — a tall man, tending to be "heavy-set," my black hair showing tinges of gray here and there but with the black still predominating. In the Major they saw a man with hazel eyes, sparse hair, an impish smile, and a personality that wins new acquaintances on first meeting.

They did not, however, see a large man when they gazed on the heralded Major Annand. If Gerry's legendary fellow Englishman, Jack the Giant Killer, were still alive my friend would be in no danger from him. The Major, I estimate, is about 5 feet 7 inches tall.

The news-room, occupied at differing times of the day by members of the morning Roanoke Times and the afternoon World-News staffs, is a large place and I was not able to introduce my guest to everyone in it.

He did meet those nearest at hand: City Editor Jim Echols; Dick Hancock, the already mentioned Night Editor; News Editor Jack Carper; Telegraph Editor, Felix Walker; State Editor, Fred Loeffler; and perhaps others. After the introductions, the Major immersed himself in the newspaper environment by gazing around him, while I set to work to write the stories I had not already turned in.

I suppose I worked about as fast as usual, but because of my impatience to get away I had a harassing feeling that I was making no progress. Later, I told Gerry that no one could have a better, more congenial group of fellow workers than mine.

After about an hour I made the last of my trips to Dick's desk to hand him a piece of copy, and he told me to "get going." That he said would be all from me for that night. He didn't want to be bothered by any more of my stuff! It was also all there was to be from me for a little more than a week, for when the Major and I walked out my vacation was under way.

We waited a short time before a bus came to take us to my home in Vinton, about three miles to the east of Roanoke, and we were on our way. At last Gerry Annand was within realization of his dream to discover whether my house, my record collection, and, most of all, my cats, who extend their New Year's greetings each January to the readers of HOBBIES, were real or something his imagination had conjured up.

(To be continued)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 31)

Geraldine Farrar, Rococo 5216:

Side I - 1. Mefistofele: L'altra notte 2. Madama Butterfly: Un bel di 3. Donne Curiose: Ah, tutta per te 4. Donne Curiose: Il cor nel contento, w. Hermann Jadlowker 5. Segreto di Susanna: Il dolce idillio, w. Pasquale Amato 6. Segreto di Susanna: Via! Così non mi lasciate 7. Exsultate, Jubilate: Alleluja.

Side II - 1. Rencontre Imprévue: Un ruisseau bien clair (Gluck) (in German) 2. Romeo et Juliette: Je veux vivre 3. Faust: Air des Bijoux 4. Nymphes et Sylvains (Bemberg) 5. Königskinder: Weissst noch das grosse Nest? 6. Königskinder: Lieber Spielmann 7. Liebe Augustin: Der Himmel hangt (Fall).

I guess enough time has elapsed since the release of the last Farrar LP to warrant the issuance of a new one.

After Caruso, the beautiful Geraldine is one of the most popular artists among collectors. And the majority of the items on Rococo 5216 are not of the common kind.

Her "Mefistofele," for example, is not found on every dealer's list, and neither are the two "Donne Curiose" excerpts, on which the duet with Jadlowker is priceless.

The "Segreto di Susanna" recordings are also quite scarce, while the Alleluja is downright rare and much sought after.

Then there is the elusive selection from Gluck's "Rencontre Imprévue," as well as the probably even scarcer "Nymphes et Sylvains." Aside from these, neither Weisst noch from "Königskinder" nor "Liebe Augustin" are too easy to come by.

Hearing Farrar on LP is like meeting an old friend, and discovering with surprise new things about the person that somehow escaped notice before.

—O—

PATHE DISCS

Couplings

(With piano, unless otherwise noted)

Emma Carelli

4375 Bohème: Mi chiamano Mimi
4381 Bohème: Addio, senza rancore
4373 Mignon: Non conosci il bel suol
4380 Manon: Addio, o nostro piccolo desco
4374 Cavalleria Rusticana: Voi lo sapete, o mamma

4376 Zaza: Dir che ci sono al mondo
4377 Aida: Ritorna vincitore
4378 Gioconda: Suicidio
4379 Tosca: Vissi d'arte
4382 Mefistofele: L'altra notte in fondo al mare

4375 Bohème: Mi chiamano Mimi

4383 Jana: Morte di Jana

Maria Galvany

4120 Barbiere di Siviglia: Una voce poco fa

4132 Barbiere di Siviglia: Io sono docile

4118 Rigoletto: Caro nome

4119 Traviata: Sempre libera

4127 Sonnambula: Rondo allegro (Ah! non giunge?)

4129 Puritani: Rondo (Qui la voce?)

4123 Mirella: Valzer (w. flute)

4125 Dinorah: Ombra leggiara (w. flute)

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Hands Across the Seas!

Major H. H. Annand, of Hillingdon,
Middlesex, England, Visits
Jim Walsh, of Vinton, Va.

PART II

By JIM WALSH

V. The Major Meets the Cats and Hears Some Records

I was disappointed that the ever loyal and loving Roger, whose 10th birthday had recently been observed, and who comes down the hill from our house to meet me, regardless of weather when I get off the bus — he can stand in the lower end of our front yard and see me descend — was not on hand to serve as a one-cat welcoming delegation. Since we came in earlier than my usual time, I suppose he had not yet begun preparations for his nightly pilgrimage.

I unlocked the side door, and Major Annand had his first look at a sight that was to become familiar to him — the hall-way with walls covered by bright colored pictures featuring cats.

We went into a large room that used to be the dining-room, before I moved in and changed it to my own purposes. Here the Major was bemused by hundreds of framed photographs. Most of them were personally autographed to me, and many of them have been pictured in HOBBIES, revealing the likenesses of famous recording artists and other notables.

We were soon greeted by Nipper and Lucky Jim, the latter a shiny black kitten who became a member of my cat family less than an hour after I had sorrowfully buried my poor "Percy, the Pitiful Persian," last November 24.

I was especially pleased by the reception Gerry received from Nipper, who is now 7 years old. For most of his earlier life the impish Nips was timid to strangers and hid when they came to see me. But he made an about-face last February at the time Quentin and Evelyn Riggs spent a few days with us before moving on to Quentin's new U.S. State Department assignment in Paris. He had been stationed for two years in Sydney, Australia.

Nipper liked Quentin and Evelyn and sat in the laps of both — the first time he had ever willingly occupied anybody's lap except mine. He also made friends with Jack Via of South Boston, Va., shortly before the Major arrived, and he has since bestowed the lap-sitting accolade on Don Leavitt, recorded music reference librarian of the Library of Congress.

Nipper and the Major took to each other from the first, as if by some sort of intuitive comradeship. And I obtained some excellent color snapshots of Nipper basking contentedly in Gerry Annand's lap.

Lucky Jim also displayed his customary friendliness, but I shudder to think what would have happened if the energetic Jim had ever caught the Major walking barefooted across the floor. He has found me in that helpless position many a time and has bitten and kicked my undraped feet with so little mercy I have had to beg him to stop. I told him mere human flesh and blood couldn't endure those fiendish teeth and claws.

Within a few minutes, Roger, my dwelling's "official greeter," appeared. He was, as I had been sure he would be, overjoyed to see Gerry.

Roger is always pleased to have company. I think about the only unhappiness of his warm and rewarding life has been that he lives with a lone bachelor instead of a large family. He would relish lots of human companionship and I suspect he often feels lonely when I am away at work.

Rog stood on tiptoe to have his head patted, his favorite gesture of friendliness. And he "talked" animatedly for two or three minutes, delivering a "welcome to our city" address. The Major developed the habit of stroking him constantly and of referring to him as "my beauty." He also spoke of him as "the peerless Roger."

Like nearly everyone else who sees Roger, Gerry generously praised his gorgeous coloring — a calico-cat mixture of black, red and gold, so glossy it looks as if self-polishing floor wax has been rubbed into his fur.

Petey has returned home to live after 18 months of wandering. He learned somehow that Percy, who had driven him away, was no longer here to molest him. But Petey didn't appear that night. Jim, Nips, and Rog, however, took to my friend so wholeheartedly I decided there must be some secret psychic sympathy between that man and those felines.

Gerry himself explained it by saying: "Cats know at once when people like them, and I have always loved cats. That's the reason why we have become friends from the beginning of our acquaintance. And to think these are the very cats I've seen the pictures of so often in HOBBIES and wondered if I'd ever be privileged to meet! I can hardly believe it!"

While I fed the cats, whom I look on as my children and love as much as if they were my flesh-and-blood descendants, the Major enjoyed looking at the "rogues' gallery" of recording artists.

Afterwards there was a "pilgrim's progress" tour of the rambling old house, in which he received a stop-and-go impression of more pictures, many record players, and many more thousands of records, discs, and cylinders.

I amused him by telling of the time

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry he cannot reply to most of the mail he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and cannot tell anyone where they can be bought or sold, except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot exchange tape recordings or make tapes, cannot supply back copies of HOBBIES Magazine, and has no record catalogs or other phonograph reference material for sale.

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES & TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, & extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1825)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1506

tlc

I moved from one house to another a few years ago and heard a Negro handyman remark to another as he lugged a load of "platters" that he hoped he never saw another dish-dashed record, book, or picture as long as he lived.

Next, of course, came record playing. But at this writing, a month after the event, I don't clearly recall everything that was played.

I do remember that the Major was attracted by a batch of Blue Amberol cylinders I had recently been given, especially after I had mentioned it included several by one of his favorite sopranos, Leola Lucey, who, at last report, was still living and conducting a vocal studio in New York.

He said he had long been searching for her Blue Amberol of "Song of Songs," and I told him that if it were in the assortment he might have it. Unfortunately, it wasn't, but I played for him the Diamond Disc from which the cylinder was dubbed. I also played one of the same song by my old friend, Walter Scanlan, but Gerry preferred the soprano version.

This was reproduced on an Edison, and the Major was rendered almost speechless by the perfect tone quality and more than ample volume of this instrument. Thomas A. Edison brought it out in 1927, two years after Victor had introduced the Orthophonic; Columbia, the Viva-Total; and Brunswick, the Prismatone; all designed for use with the then startlingly new and different electric recording.

The emissary from England had never before seen or heard an Edison. But after his first almost incredulous surprise, he unhesitatingly pronounced it the best acoustical gramophone he had ever given ear to.

He agreed it was a tragedy that Edison kept it on the market only a year. It was withdrawn in 1928, when the combination Edison phonograph and radio was introduced. And only a few thousand were sold.

It was also a typical example of Edison's "too late" policy that the Edison was offered so long after the other companies had scooped most of the "gravy" from the "new style of phonograph" market. The Major asked me to send him an Edison if I could ever find one at a reasonable price.

On our last night together, the Major and I recorded a tape on which he discussed some of the features of his visit and he, among other things, told his impression of the Edison — and the cats. I'll quote from his remarks subsequently.

Meanwhile, on this "enchanted evening," I played my favorite banjo record, Vess L. Ossman's Blue Amberol "Banjo Medley." I told Gerry that Vess Ossman III, grandson of "The Banjo King," lives in Arlington, Va., and that through obtaining a set of the HOBBIES articles I wrote about his grandfather in 1948 he had been able to trace some California relatives whom he hadn't seen since he was a small boy.

"Gerry" Annand, beside a sign in the Dogwood Restaurant at Vinton, Va., welcoming him as a distinguished guest. —Photo by Oakie S. Asbury, Roanoke Times staff.

He and Sue, his wife, had gone to California to see them and had been reunited, for the first time in 40 years, with his aunt, Mrs. Annadele Mulligan, and his uncle, Ralph Ossman, who has since died.

I have also provided Vess III with about a score of photographs of the most noted members of the Ossman family. He had not previously had any of their photographs. These included some of his father, Vess Ossman, Jr., who had been a noted banjoist in his own right.

The Edison was used to demonstrate the vast volume of three Goldman Band selections, "The Jolly Coppersmith," "Third Alarm March," and "Stars and Stripes Forever." Gerry said the machine was standing in the most convenient spot on my upstairs sun-porch, but its volume was partly swallowed by thousands of Diamond Discs stored around it. He thought it would sound even better at a location he indicated near the end of the porch. Experimentation proved him right.

He asked to hear any Diamond Discs I had by the California Ramblers. These recordings, which are scarce under the Ramblers' name, were issued, electrically transcribed, during the last months of Edison's recording activities.

I have none — although I lack only a few hundred titles of owning a complete Diamond Disc library — but Gerry has most of them. He wanted to see how they compared on the Edison with his means of reproducing them.

I did have plenty of earlier recordings by the same band made under the disguise of the Golden Gate Orchestra. He was impressed by the volume and sonorousness of "Down South," played by B. A. Rolfe's Orchestra.

As the hours sped on, Gerry was feeling vigorous and fresh and would have been in his ecstatic element staying up all night listening to records, but I had worked overtime the day and night before, as well as most of the earlier part of the week, so at about one o'clock Saturday morning depleted nature compelled me to suggest that we call a halt.

We agreed to be up reasonably early the next morning and betake ourselves for breakfast to the Vinton Dogwood Restaurant, about a five-minutes walk from my house.

That agreed on, we walked two doors up the street to the beautiful, well-kept home and premises of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Marshall, with whom I had engaged an ideal room for the Major. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall were captivated by their exotic guest and more than happy to have such an unassuming, obliging gentleman in their home.

Little did the Major suspect what would greet his astonished eyes a few hours later at the Dogwood!

VI. The Major is Overwhelmed and Mrs. Grose is Surprised

Major H. H. Annand and I arose betimes on the morning of Saturday, May 9, and sauntered toward the business section of Vinton. On our way we were observed by a number of intrigued citizens who had seen an article in the Vinton Messenger, telling of his receiving the copies of the paper that gave Kenly Marvin Smith's biographical sketch of me.

We went to the post office, where I pointed out what I think I may rightly call my famous box 476. I jokingly told Gerry I had received so much mail during the past years that the number had been worn from the box. Whatever the cause, the number has disappeared.

When Darnell Vinyard, a friend of mine, came in, I introduced him to the Major and asked him to snap a picture, with my slide camera, of us standing beside the box. He did, and it turned out splendidly.

On our way to my house the night before I had carefully avoided taking the Major by a route which would bring the Dogwood Restaurant within his observation. There was a reason.

Lloyd M. Grose, with his wife, Katherine — known to everybody in the Vinton geographical area as "Toots" — operates the Dogwood. Several days before Lloyd had told me he wanted to change the display in one of his windows and asked if I had any suggestion.

Lloyd and Toots for a long time have been among my most cherished friends, so I am always glad to do anything I can for them, just as they insist on sending me free meals when I am ill and can't go out to eat.

I told Lloyd I was expecting the Major to come at almost any time and thought it would be a nice gesture to install a window display welcoming him to Vinton. Lloyd seized on the idea at once — and that evening Gerry phoned me he would be in our midst the following Friday.

Quick work was called for. The next day I selected a portable type Victrola and an Edison "Fireside" instrument from my collection, together with a large number of cylinders and discs — the latter all of British Empire make. Australia, India and Canada were represented, but the bulk of the records came from Great Britain.

Lloyd did his usual tasteful job of installing them in the window and induced Warren Huddleston, one of the owners of the nearby Harris-Huddleston grocery, to paint two special explanatory signs.

The window was then complete and for the next couple of days I could hardly wait for Gerry to get his first astonished view of it. I considered it the Vinton equivalent of a royal "red carpet."

Leaving the post office, Gerry and I reached the Dogwood and I stopped in front of the window. Gerry's gaze followed mine, and I have never seen a face register more heartfelt amazement. For a moment it seemed he might collapse.

"Why, where in the world," he exclaimed, "did they find all those old records (which he pronounced RECORDS, as virtually all English do) and gramophones? The last thing I would have expected to see is a display like that!"

"You haven't seen it all!" I said. "Look at those signs!"

The Major looked again, and his gaze took in one brightly colored poster which read:

"HANDS ACROSS THE SEA!
VINTON WELCOMES MAJOR H. H.
(GERRY) ANNAND, DISTINGUISHED AUTHORITY ON OLD PHONOGRAPH RECORDINGS."

The second poster said:

"This Window Contains Typical Examples of Old-time English Disc Records as Well as the Cylinders in Which Maajor Annand Specializes. Also Shown Are Typical Disc and Cylinder Phonographs of More Than 50 Years Ago."

Major Annand was heard to observe as soon as his breath returned that he had already experienced many agreeable surprises in the States, but this completely unexpected window welcome overtopped everything else that had happened to him.

Inside, "Toots" was introduced to the Major and received his thanks. We were sorry that Lloyd was not in but knew he and Gerry would have the pleasure of meeting later.

The bewildered but beatific Britisher, who is actually more of Scotch than of English descent, told those around him that he had been overwhelmed during the few days he had spent in this country by the way people everywhere, even in large city motels and business places, had gone out of their way to be nice to him.

He had expected to like the States, he said, but his experiences had convinced him more firmly than ever that the greatest hope for the future betterment of our civilization must come from better understanding and increasing friendship between Americans and British. And no one hearing the Major could doubt his sincerity and impassioned belief in what he said.

Once more Gerry ordered a Pepsi-Cola with his meal and I followed his example, although I topped mine later with coffee. He explained he didn't like tea as it is made in America, or coffee prepared in the English mode, but he did relish Pepsi-Cola.

When we had finished, the Major got another surprise. Mrs. Grose said: "Since this is the first time you have eaten with us there isn't any charge. This is on the house."

Toots then fell heir to a surprise of her own. Without warning, the Major grasped her and implanted a sounding kiss on her cheek. He said he enjoyed the experience and hoped Toots didn't mind. As Gerry afterward explained: "I felt I wanted to express my admiration to Mrs. Grose for being so kind, so I kissed her. My travels through much of the world have taught me that most ladies permit an impulsive kiss, and I really think our charming Mrs. Grose deserved my delighted 'thanks.'"

When Gerry and I left the Dogwood we still had a busy morning before us.

(To be continued)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 31)

MOOR: Same cast as Dec. 21 except: Melba-Lucia, Sevelhac-Enrico.

January 30, CARMEN: Same cast as Dec. 14 except: Arta-Micela, Sevelhac-Escamillo, Brag-Zuniga.

January 31, RIGOLETTO: Same cast as Dec. 5 except: Melba-Gilda, Giacomini-Maddalena, Ancona-Rigoletto.

February 1, CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA: Russ-Santuzza, Giacomini - Lola, Severina - Lucia, Dalmores - Turiddu, Sevelhac - Alfio, PAGLIACCI: Donalda - Nedda, Bassi - Canio, Sammarco - Tonio, Sevelhac - Silvio, Daddi-Beppe.

February 2, MATINEE, BARBIERE DI SIVIGLIA: Same cast as Jan. 21.

February 2, HUGUENOTS: Same cast as Jan. 18.

February 3, Concert - Occellier - DON CESAR DE BAZAN: Selection & HERODIADE: Aria, Cisneros - FAVORITA: Aria, Altchevsky-PRINCE IGOR: Cavatina & DEMON: Aria, Russ - MEFISTOFELE: Aria & VESPRI SICILLIANI: Bolero.

Tenth Week - February 4, CARMEN: Same cast as Dec. 14 except: Sevelhac - Escamillo, Brag-Zuniga.

February 6, CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA: Same cast as Feb. 1 except: Cisneros - Lola, PAGLIACCI: Same cast as Feb. 1.

February 7, MIGNON: Bressler - Gianoli-Mignon - Pinkert - Filina, Giacomini - Federico, Bonel - Guglielmo, Arimondi - Lotario, Gilbert-Laerte, Mugnoz-Gianro.

February 8, FAUST: Same cast as Dec. 7 except: Melba - Marguerite, Trentini - Siebel, Ingenoff - Marthe, Ancona - Valentin.

February 9, MATINEE, MIGNON: Same cast as Feb. 7.

February 9, AIDA: Same cast as Dec. 19.

February 10, Concert - Donalda, Zeppilli, Lejeune, Sammarco, Dalmores, Gilbert.

Eleventh Week - Feb. 11, CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA: Same cast as Feb. 1 except: Cisneros - Lola, PAGLIACCI: Same cast as Feb. 1 except: Venturini-Beppe.

February 12, SONNAMBULA: Same cast as Jan. 25 except: Severina - Teresa, Arimondi - Conte Rodolfo, (Reschiglian - Alessio? - A.P.-A.)

February 13, HUGUENOTS: Same cast as Jan. 18 except: Zeppilli - Marguerite.

February 14, RIGOLETTO: Same cast as Dec. 5 except: Melba - Gilda, Sammarco - Rigoletto.

February 15, AIDA: Same cast as Dec. 19.

February 16, MATINEE, LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR: Same cast as Dec. 21 except: Melba - Lucia, Sammarco - Enrico.

February 16, TROVATORE: Same cast as Jan. 1.

February 17, Concert - Arta, Occellier - FAVORITA: Aria, Donalda, JOCELYN: Berceuse, Altchevsky - MELSTERSINGER: Froisled, Cisneros - PROPHETE: Grand Air - Act II, Max Bendix - guest violinist.

Twelfth Week - February 18, MIGNON: Same cast as February 7.

February 20, DINORAH: Pinkert-Dinorah, Trentini-Caprala, Giacomini-Capralo, Altchevsky - Corentin, Ancona - Hoel, Mugnoz - Cacciatore, Venturini - Mietore.

February 22, MATINEE, CARMEN: Same cast as Dec. 14 except: Arta - Micela, Ancona - Escamillo.

February 22, CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA: Same cast as February 1 except: Venturini sang Turiddu to replace Dalmores, PAGLIACCI: Same cast as February 1 except: Venturini-Beppe.

February 23, MATINEE, TRAVIATA: Same cast as Jan. 2 except: Sammarco - Garmont, Gilbert - Marchese d'Obigny.

February 23, LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR: Same cast as Dec. 21.

February 24, Concert - None given.

Thirteenth Week - February 25, RIGOLETTO: Same cast as Dec. 5 except: Melba - Gilda, Giacomini - Maddalena, Ancona - Rigoletto.

February 27, BALLO IN MASCHERA: Russ - Amella, Cisneros - Uirica, Zeppilli - Oscar, Bassi - Riccardo, Sammarco - Renato, Arimondi - Samuel, Mugnoz - Tom, Reschiglian - Silvano, Venturini-Giudice.

March 1, BOHEME: Melba - Mimì, Trentini - Musetta, Bonel - Rodolfo, Sammarco - Marcello, Gilbert - Schunard, Gianoli - Galletti - Benoit & Alcindoro, Tocchi - Farpignol.

March 2, MATINEE, BALLO IN MASCHERA: Same cast as Feb. 27.

March 2, CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA: Same cast as Feb. 1, DINORAH: Act II, same cast as Feb. 20, FAUST: Act V, Occellier - Mephistopheles (Marguerite & Faust? - A.F.-A.)

March 3, Concert - THE CREATION (Haydn), People's Choral Union: Corinne Elder - Kelsey, Helen Marie Day, Daniel Beddoe, Frank Croxton.

Fourteenth Week - March 4, SONNAMBULA: Same cast as Jan. 25 except: Severina - Teresa, PAGLIACCI: Same cast as Feb. 1.

March 5, CARMEN: Same cast as Dec. 14 except: Lejeune - Frasoulia (given as a benefit opera), Between Acts II and III: Russ, Bassi & Arimondi - LOMBARD: Trio.

March 6, BOHEME: Same cast as March 1.

March 8, FRA DIAVOLO: Pinkert - Zerlina, Giacomini - Jady Pamela, Bonel - Fra Diavolo, Gilbert - Milord, Venturini - Lorenzo, Fossetta - Matteo, Arimondi - Giacomo, Gianoli - Galletti-Beppe.

March 9, MATINEE, CARMEN: Same cast as Dec. 14 except: Sevelhac-Escamillo.

March 9, AIDA: Same cast as Dec. 19.

March 10, Concert - Ancona - PAGLIACCI: Prologo & TANNHAUSER: Evening Star, Pinkert - DINORAH: Shadow Song, Bassi - AIDA: Celeste Alda, Cisneros - PROPHETE: Grand Air, Russ - FRESCHUTZ: Aria, Donalda - ROMEO ET JULIETTE: Valse, Russ, Bassi & Arimondi - LOMBARD: Trio, Trentini, Giacomini & Cisneros GOTTERDAEMERUNG: Song of the Rhinemaidens.

(To be continued)

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Hands Across the Seas!

Major H. H. Annand, of Hillingdon,
Middlesex, England, Visits
Jim Walsh, of Vinton, Va.

PART III

By JIM WALSH

Jim Walsh and Major Annand in the office of the Vinton Messenger. "Gerry" is holding a copy of the Messenger which told of his plan to visit the author of "Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists."

—Photo by Judy Hill

I. Two Newspaper Interviews

Major H. H. (Gerry) Annand and I posed for a couple of pictures outside the Dogwood Restaurant window display welcoming him, then walked two blocks up Pollard Street, to keep an appointment with J. Roy Fuller, editor of the weekly Vinton Messenger.

An article had appeared in the Messenger a few weeks before, telling of the Major's receiving its issues containing K. M. Smith's biographical sketches of me. And Mr. Fuller, who is about the same size as Gerry, had said he would like to talk with the gentleman from England and have his picture taken by the staff photographer, an attractive and intelligent William Byrd High School senior, Judy Hill. I had told him I'd try to bring the Major around at about 9 or 9:30 a.m.

We found Roy waiting, and he asked many questions as the basis for the article which he would write for the following Thursday's Messenger.

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry he cannot reply to most of the mail he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and cannot tell anyone where they can be bought or sold, except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot exchange tape recordings or make tapes, cannot supply back copies of this magazine, and has no record catalogs or other phonograph reference material for sale.

Being interested in folk music, he asked the Major where in England he might find words and music of an old dance tune he was seeking, "Did You Ever See the Devil, Uncle Joe?"

Gerry promised to help Mr. Fuller try to locate it through English sources, but since then he has discovered it in a new folk music book at the Roanoke Public Library. It has also been recently recorded.

Judy got out her Polaroid, and the Major and I posed for pictures in which he held a copy of the Messenger telling of his anticipated arrival. The first shot wasn't especially good, but the second was excellent—so good that I have had a copy made and am sending it to HOBBIES for this issue.

Next on a busy morning's schedule was a visit to the Roanoke Times building, where I planned to write an article about my British guest's visit.

I knew it was too late to get a feature into the Sunday paper, but there is always a need for good "filler" material in the Monday morning edition. I planned to help State Editor Fred Loeffler, who would be in Sunday command of the news room, by leaving the story for Monday use.

We boarded a Roanoke bus operated by Clyde Bowles, an affable driver who almost makes a profession of being friendly and obliging to his passengers. When Quentin and Evelyn Riggs were here from Australia last February, Clyde gave the lovely auburn-haired Evelyn a paper cup brimming of coffee and she was captivated by his thoughtfulness.

The morning that she and Quentin were about to leave Roanoke, they caught a glimpse of Clyde as his bus passed their hotel, and waved him a warm farewell. He never sees me that he doesn't have something to say about "that fine young couple."

I introduced Clyde Bowles to the Major and told Clyde we were going down for me to write an article about my guest. I suggested that Clyde read Monday's paper, to make sure he saw it, and said I wouldn't be surprised if the paper sent a photographer down to get a picture of

From left to right:
Vinton Police Sergeant J. R. Renick "Arresting" the delighted "Gerry."

"Gerry" Annand and Jim Walsh outside the Vinton Dogwood Restaurant.

Major Annand demonstrates Thomas A. Edison's way of listening to his Disc Phonograph.

Oakie Asbury takes a picture of Major Annand to accompany Jim Walsh's article in the Roanoke Times. The Major in front of the Vinton Dogwood Restaurant window displaying the "Hands Across the Sea" poster. Major Annand and the poster mentioning his interest in cylinder records.

the Dogwood Restaurant window display. Driver Bowles and Major Annand parted with warm regards.

I wanted to introduce, into the story about the Major, an excerpt from a speech Charles Dickens made when he was in the United States 96 years ago. He told what a calamity he thought it would be if there should ever be any more serious differences between England and the States.

In view of the Major's sentiments, I thought it would be an admirable quotation. We went to the Roanoke Public Library, and I spent 15 or 20 fruitless minutes looking for the quotation, which I couldn't remember word for word. Afterwards, I introduced it in a paraphrased form into the article, and that probably did just as well.

As we approached the Times-World building, Fred Loeffler was crossing the street. I told him I was going to write an article about Major Annand for the Monday Times, and Fred said he sure would be able to use it.

The Major and I took the elevator to the third floor, and went into the newsroom which at that hour was occupied entirely by the afternoon World-News staff. I picked up my typewriter and took it into the reference library, where I could ask Gerry questions and do a high-speed writing job without interruptions.

Since the Major was my guest, and the story would appear under my byline, I knew that, in keeping with the paper's policy, I would have to alter my "lead" to conceal the fact that he was visiting me.

So, I trifled slightly with the absolute truth by representing him to be extremely fond of Manuel Romain's Blue Amberol cylinder of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," and as having journeyed so far to view the world-famous "Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia." The Major says that's the only Romain record he particularly likes.

The story, based on information Gerry had given me, almost wrote itself. Within a comparatively short time it had been typed, read to the Major, had received his approval, and had been left on Fred Loeffler's desk.

That done, I arranged for my photographer "buddy," Oakie S. Asbury, to take a couple of pictures of the Major in the library. One, which wasn't reproduced in the paper, was nevertheless a remarkably fine portrait and character study, and Gerry had since written me he considers it one of the best pictures he ever had made.

Returning to Vinton, we soon set to work making tape recordings of selections that the Major wanted to take back to England, with special attention to a long-playing disc made by the late Fred Van Eps, and other Van Eps banjo numbers.

The recorder we used, a small one, imported, has frequently compelled me to call it a "she-devil" and other unhallowed names because of its erratic performance and tendency to give trouble at the most inconvenient times, but this time its behavior was flawless and Gerry was delighted with it.

While we were taping away, the phone rang, I answered it and, with the recorder still running, the rings and the conversation were clearly recorded. The caller was Fred Loeffler, who wanted to know if the Major would go to the Dogwood Restaurant and pose for a picture beside the window display.

I assured him Gerry would be delighted, and we arranged that Gerry and I should walk down within the next few minutes and meet the photographer, who again turned out to be good old Oakie Asbury.

When Oakie arrived, there was so much glare and reflection from the window he was afraid he couldn't get a good shot, but he tried several and they came out better than he expected.

Meanwhile, I "sneaked" an excellent color slide showing Oakie taking the Major's picture as he stood with becoming dignity beside the window.

II. Roanoke Times and Vinton Messenger Articles

Now I'll anticipate a bit. My article about the Major did appear in the Monday Roanoke Times, with one of Oakie's snapshots, and Gerry was delighted with the result. The article tells a great deal about Major Annand that I haven't had an opportunity to set down. I believe it would be a smart, labor-saving device to clip it and insert it here for the sake of the insight it will give HOBBIES readers into my friend's personality and activities.

So here is my story, as it appeared Monday, May 11, under the title, "Songs of Mountains Attract British Visitor":

"The yearning of a retired British army officer to see the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia brought him to the Roanoke Valley where he received a surprise welcome.

"Maj. H. H. Annand, a noted collector of old-time phonograph records, had long been fascinated by the words to the song that sings the praises of the mountains 'On the Trail of the Lonesome Pine.'

"The Major, known to his friends not only in England but throughout much of the world as 'Gerry,' says perhaps the biggest surprise of his life came Saturday morning when he went to the Vinton Dogwood Restaurant for breakfast and saw a window full of old disc and cylinder phonograph records, together with a sign reading:

"'Hands across the sea!'
"Vinton welcomes Maj. H. H. (Gerry) Annand, distinguished English authority on old phonograph recordings."

"Another sign called attention to the fact that the visitor, who is president of the City of London Phonograph Society, specializes in collecting records of the old-time cylinder or 'roller' type.

"Was I surprised?" Maj. Annand repeated a question that had been asked him. "I was more than surprised! I was shocked! For the first few moments the shock was so great that it didn't sink in. I couldn't understand at first what it was all about.

"But being publicly greeted in such an unexpected and flattering manner was one of the nicest things that has happened to me on a trip that has been full of pleasant happenings."

"How did Maj. Annand of Whitewell, Field Heath Avenue, Hillingdon, England, happen to be in Vinton and receiving unexpected honors?

"The Major, whose home is near Field Heath which has been a privileged encampment place for English gypsies for hundreds of years, explained it this way:

"When he is at home he likes to play Edison Blue Amberol cylinder No. 1743. The record was made in 1913 by a once-famous but now long-dead American tenor, Manuel Romain, and the title is 'The Trail of the Lonesome Pine.'

"The words of that old song, about 'In the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, on the trail of the lonesome pine,' have always fascinated me," Maj. Annand said, "and I made up my mind that when the airplane companies got the prices of their economy trips down into my 'price bracket,' I was going to the States and see those fabulous Blue Ridge Mountains for myself.

"The last of April, the effervescent Englishman went on, 'the price came down to where I wanted it and I paid my first visit to the States. I visited friends whom I had known only by correspondence in Philadelphia and Richmond, then Friday I moved on to Roanoke and Vinton, where I also have friends.

"Mr. and Mrs. Grose learned I was coming and decided it would be a nice thing to give me an unexpected welcome. So they obtained a couple of old-time phonographs — or, as we would say in England, a phonograph and a gramophone — and the surprise materialized."

"What does Maj. Annand, who will return to England May 20 after visiting other American friends, like about the States?

"Just about everything he's seen.

"Your people," he said, 'have been unbelievably friendly and courteous and eager to make a visitor — I won't say a foreigner, for I don't feel like one — seen at home. Over and over I have been told, "You know, we regard England as our motherland."

"And the scenery!" The Major waved an expressive hand. I have enjoyed some of the most wonderful scenery — especially that which I saw Friday on the bus coming from Richmond to Roanoke. At one point, when the scenery was at its most beautiful, my view was obstructed by a coat with a large beaver collar which a woman had draped across the back of a seat in front of me.

"That was too much for me. I spoke pleasantly but firmly. 'Madam,' I said, 'would you please remove that coat? It is obstructing my view of the most beautiful scenery in the world.'"

"The woman, who was paying no attention to the scenery, scowled but removed the coat, and I was able to feast my eyes on the wonderful Virginia mountains."

"Maj. Annand saw military service in both World Wars. During the first he went into service in 1916 at the age of 18 and served the remainder of the time in France and Belgium. He suffered no injuries except for being slightly gassed.

"In World War II his duty was almost entirely overseas, but he assisted at the evacuation of Dover during the tragic Dunkirk days of 1940 and did similar service in other English and French communities. In July, 1941, he was sent to the Middle East and saw service in Palestine, Egypt, Syria, and Transjordan. Four years later he returned to England.

"Long years abroad have taught Maj. Annand the advantage of traveling light. I carry everything I need in a shopping bag. No cumbersome luggage for me!" he says.

"For 16 years the Major was a member of the Metropolitan London Police Reserves — an organization whose primary purpose is to assist the regular police in times of stress — reached the rank of staff sergeant. And he explained:

"When the regular police were confronted by unusual problems that involved handling huge masses of people — the visits of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks to England and the wedding of Princess Mary are good examples — the reserves took over the regular police's normal law enforcement duties. Like them, we wore uniforms and carried truncheons but, of course, no firearms. Peace officers in England are not allowed to use guns."

"The Major also has been a professional concert pianist and has been active in several other ways. He is a devoted cat lover and on his visit to Vinton was gratified that one cat, meeting him for the first time, stood up to have its head patted, then rolled over on the ground as a way of saying 'welcome.' Another sat in his lap and a third on his shoulder.

"But as to what Maj. Annand likes about America, here are a few other things:

"The marvelously cheap bus rates. "The prices of cigarettes — about a third of what we pay in England.

"American coffee. They don't know how to make coffee in England — but I must admit I don't care for the American way of making tea."

"(But when he had his first meal in Roanoke the genial Britisher drank a soft drink.)

"Most of all, though," the Major added, 'I think I like best the friendly spirit of the people and the way men and women who are really perfect strangers urge me to be sure to come back.

"I believe," he said, 'I could best sum up my feelings by quoting what Charles Dickens told a group of American newspapermen on his second visit to the States in 1868. He said it would be better for the world to be ravaged by fire and turned over to the wild fox and the bear than for any future conflict to arise between your country and Britain. That's exactly the way I feel. To me you are not a foreign country. Such a term would be sacrilegious and insulting.'"

While I am quoting, I may well use some excerpts from Roy Fuller's Vinton Messenger story which appeared the following Thursday, leaving out the portions covering the same ground as the one I wrote. The Messenger article by Fuller was headed "British Rare Record Expert Visits Vinton's Famous Collector."

"A British collector of old and rare phonograph records was a visitor in Vinton the past week-end. He is Maj. (retired) H. H. Annand of Hillingdon, England, 20 miles west of London.

"You guessed it. He was here to visit Vinton's famous record collector Jim Walsh.

"Annand is on the three-week tour of the East and took a side trip by plane to Roanoke and Vinton. He was sorry he missed the Dogwood Festival but he had high praise for the town and its friendly citizens.

"Annand started collecting records in 1902 when his father, proprietor of a candy shop, bought a horn phonograph for his shop. He now has about 5,000 records.

"One of the oldest is the recording of a speech by the Rt. Hon. W. E. Gladstone, former prime minister of England, made in 1894.

"And how did he learn about Walsh? The Messenger ran an article about his record collection. Somebody in California sent a clipping of it to Annand, and they started corresponding, which led to including Vinton on his trip schedule. Neither of the men have any theory on how the Messenger started the cross-country and Atlantic trek.

"A Vinton restaurant put a welcoming sign in a window along with an old Edison phonograph. It read in part, 'Vinton welcomes Maj. H. H. (Gerry) Annand.' The Major, known to his friends in England and abroad as 'Gerry,' likes to play when he is at home the 1913 recording of 'The Trail of the Lonesome Pine,' by the now long-dead American tenor, Manuel Roman.

"Mention has already been made of Major Annand's recording of the voice of the famous English prime minister, Gladstone, who died many years ago. The Major also has been well acquainted with a still-living prime minister, Winston Churchill.

"That happened during World War II when Annand was doing special duty in Egypt. Churchill visited Cairo on a military inspection tour.

"And it was one of Annand's duties to see that anything the prime minister wanted done was accomplished.

"He was very affable, especially since I was a junior officer who couldn't interfere with any of his plans," the Major said.

"He added that he intended to return to Vinton next year or as soon as possible after that.

"He will be certain of a warm welcome from all the Vinton people he has met, as well as from Walsh's cats. The felines became his fast friends before he left Tuesday morning to return to Richmond. He will board a plane in New York on May 20 and expects to reach his home about 11 o'clock that night."

Judy's photograph of the Major and me almost created a scandal among the righteous people of Vinton and impaired my deserved reputation of being a lifelong abstainer from alcoholic beverages.

Several of my friends said the picture looked as if I had a whisky bottle in one pocket. I told them truthfully the suspicious object was my camera with the flash attachment protruding outward, but I'm not sure I convinced anybody.

Incidentally, before going to the Times building for me to write my Monday morning story, Gerry and I had gone to the Roanoke Photo Finishing Company and left two rolls of film to be processed into colored "transparencies." I was told I could get them Monday afternoon.

III. The Major is "Arrested"

After Gerry had done all the posing that Oakie required, we had a late afternoon meal in the Dogwood. Outside again, we ran into a number of men who had read or heard of his arrival and who wanted to shake hands and say a few words welcoming him to Vinton.

Smiling and friendly Sgt. James R. Renick of the town police force drove up and was introduced. He and Gerry had an animated discussion of the attempted German invasion of Britain during World War II, and with a little difficulty I induced the Sergeant to pose for a picture in which he pretended to be arresting the British guest for some unspecified crime.

Later, I took a snap of the Major in a Dogwood booth with another Vinton officer, Patrolman Clarence Jones.

Walking back to 225 North Maple Street, Gerry again expressed his amazement at the way "people who had never seen me or even heard of me have gone out of their way to be nice. It happened in New York and Philadelphia, and when I reached Richmond, Alex Nugent and Mrs. Nugent practically welcomed me with open arms."

The Major recalled that the Nugents' two daughters were fascinated by his accent and one of the girls said to the other: "Shut up and let me listen! I want to hear him talk!"

Gerry had already told me he would have to leave Roanoke Tuesday morning and return to Richmond, to spend more time with Mr. and Mrs. Nugent, who wanted to take him to their "summer place" on the James River. After he had gone, Lloyd Grose remarked:

"If the Major had stayed much longer, I'd have been saying 'RAH-THER' the way he did when anything especially pleased him."

Gerry himself showed signs of becoming Americanized. Once or twice he even said "reck'd" instead of "record." I always preferred the latter pronunciation and used it a long time until I discovered most people didn't understand what I was talking about.

I mentioned that I had read and re-read old issues of the Talking Machine News and the Sound Wave so long that I was familiar with the names of scores of English record collectors who were active 60 or more years ago.

Among them were Lindsay A. Wilcox, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, who began contributing to the T.M.N. in 1903, its first year of publication, and had collected records for 10 or 12 years before that.

(To be continued)

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage.—Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. ja6468

RECORDS WANTED

THE ONLY RECORDS I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tix

HELP! De Lucia - ASCO A-105 Band 6 is not "Lu Cardillo." What is it? Note—Pathe NP-89 Side 2 is not "Comme une Fale Fleur." What is it? — Charles Dunning, 312 Northfield Place, Baltimore 10, Md. n3065

WILL PAY $3 for any 14" single face, black label, De Luxe Special record made by the Victor Company to be played at 60 r.p.m. — Doulou, 1228 Sarkies Drive, Warren, Ohio. n3694

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. d3084

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N.Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid.—American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. je124661

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP.—ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. n3483

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. mh6867

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. n12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. n3683

JOSEPH JEFFERSON - Rip Van Winkle scene. Orig. Col. 385, Exc. comd. to highest bidder. Following record lists available: World War 1 & 2 songs; Recorded songs of Irving Berlin; Old-time musical comedy and Broadway show tunes. Send $1 refundable first order. 1905 Victor Red Seal Catalog. $2. — Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. n3848

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Domart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2889. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to L.P. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my128801

FOR SALE: Phonographs and records. 25c for lists. "Evolution of the Phonograph" by Reed and Welch $9.95. "History Speaks" 12" L.P. 42 voices from recordings, early as 1888, 2 records, $6 for set, postpaid. — Coppernoll's Records, Box 6, Palatine Bridge, N.Y. d3886

EDISON, VICTOR, and other disc records for sale. Send 15c to Alan Burton, 22 North West St., Norwalk, Ohio 44857. n1061

AMAZING LIST of out of print operatic and classical vocal 78's. Finest condition. Priced low. List on request.—S. Weiss, 430 Maple Hill Dr., Hackensack, N. J. ja3614

RARE RECORDS & TAPES: My collection of jazz, pops, Latin American, country, western, drama, dance, vocal, sweet, comic, opera, classical, stars of stage, screen, sports, old quartets instrumental solos, personalities, documentary, etc. 1900 to 1960. All sizes including 16". — Jack Argo, P.O. Box 105, Hudson, N. H. 03051. ja3067

PHONOGRAPHS REPAIRED

REPRODUCER REPAIRING. Have original Edison styluses all types. Reproducers for sale. Stamp for reproducer brochure. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr. Soquel, Calif. ja3253

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. st12698

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 406 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. fg046

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

PLAYER REED ORGANS. Private collection of Aeolian Grands and Wilcox & Whites with many rolls for same. All in good condition, also Regina music box with disc cabinet and 69 discs, 15½", excellent condition. If interested contact me now. — Dudley Mellors, 6764 N. Oxford Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60631. Phone NE 1-1541. n3008

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

GLASS HARMONICA wanted; particulars as to price, condition, etc. to I. M. Irving, 16 Manor Lane, Larchmont, N. Y. ja3403

WANT coin-operated Seeburg piano, (model H), stained glass doors. Plays drums, pipes, xylophone. Carved wooden statues on the front. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. ja3234

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANT all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Welte, Ampico. odd or unusual rolls. Lists unnecessary. — Box 757H, Kenah, Texas. my124631

WANTED: Following reproducing piano rolls: 1) QRS Recordo. 2) Recordo. 3) Vocal Style Reproducing. 4) Imperial Automatic Electric. — Selmer Nielsen, 6323 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis. n120821

DUO-ART and old standard piano rolls for sale. Free lists, stamp please.—Vi & Si's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N. Y. ja3863

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America, $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. n62342

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

WANTED: Cylinder & old disc phonographs. Parts, reproducers and any catalogs and literature on the phonographs. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. d3863

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. n3276

EDISON PHONOGRAPH, No. S-20795. Reproducers, 204 minute recordings. 200 cylinders Amberols, also Stewart's Uncle Josh, etc. Large horn, separate. All in excellent condition. Price $300. — Jessie York, Tannery Rd., Box 130, Downsville, N. Y. ja3656

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my56p

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Hands Across the Seas!

Major H. H. Annand, of Hillingdon, Middlesex, England, Visits Jim Walsh, of Vinton, Va.

PART IV

By JIM WALSH

Gerry had never heard of Mr. Willcox, who almost certainly is dead by now, or of many other once well-known recorded music specialists. He knew nothing of J. T. Wilkins, who was one of the most active members of the City of London Phonograph Society in the 1920's and frequently conducted a "Dutch auction" — whatever that is—of Blue Amberol cylinders.

The Major did tell me that Henry Seymour, an early expert on sound reproduction, had been dead a long time, and that Adrian F. Sykes, one of the most vociferous cylinder enthusiasts of half a century or more ago, died about five years ago. Sykes had been president of the City of London Society.

(I have just looked up "Dutch auction" in Webster's. It is an auction which the auctioneer begins by asking a high price, then keeps dropping it until somebody buys).

My guest continued hoping he could meet "Possy," the lovable 'possum who adopted me last fall, and both boarded and lodged with me, but his hopes weren't fulfilled. That was a pity, for Possy had acquired local celebrity.

Several weeks before the Major's arrival Possy, with my help, announced in the Messenger that he was running for town council and expected to be chosen mayor. The paper published his photo, (like the one in the January HOBBIES), on its front page, and gave his announcement more space than any of the human candidates received.

But before the June 9 election was held and even before Gerry arrived, warm weather had caused Possy to feel the stirrings of romance. He found himself a girl friend and they are reputed to have set up house-keeping somewhere in the woods not far from my house.

Mrs. Marshall, in whose home Gerry occupied sleeping quarters for the few hours each night that he and I weren't playing records, told me Possy sauntered into her yard a week or so before the Major's arrival. He was escorting what she took to be a lovely lady 'possum, and he calmly strolled up to the persimmon tree from which he used to feast every day last fall.

"He stood under the tree," Mrs. Marshall said, "looked over his shoulder at the other 'possum and grunted. I could tell as plain as day he was telling her there would be good eating when the 'simmons ripened, and I couldn't keep from laughing."

Mrs. Marshall told me that last autumn, when Possy would be chomping industriously away, she'd say to him, "Don't you know you haven't got any right to eat my persimmons, you little rascal?"

"He would look at me and grunt but keep eating," she continued. "My little four-year-old grandson used to like to watch him eat and would say, 'Pretty 'possum likes 'simmons.' After Possy had eaten all he wanted he'd walk very deliberately out of the yard and go back to your house," Mrs. Marshall said.

The best I could do was show Gerry the sofa beneath which the sweet-faced Possy slept during the winter and the plate from which he ate.

When the election took place he wasn't credited with even one vote! Either all the people who had promised to vote for him decided he was no longer interested in serving his city or, as I darkly suspect, he was "counted out."

Whichever happened, I expect him to be living again with me (but without his "wife," I hope) when cold weather returns.

IV. Saturday After Supper

The Saturday after-supper hours were largely devoted to more record listening, chiefly by means of the Edison, although Gerry was much impressed by an acoustic Victor record of "American Fantasie," played in 1918 by Victor Herbert's Orchestra and reproduced on my Magnavox. The sound boomed out as if it had been imprisoned by the latest electric process and the instruments were reproduced with remarkable fidelity.

I got one of my best pictures of the Major while he was listening to the Edison in the same way that Thomas A. Edison, who was almost deaf, used to concentrate on hearing one of his disc phonographs.

The great inventor, who insisted that by this method he could detect overtones and piano hammer strokes that were inaudible to almost everyone else, took a small horn from a cylinder phonograph and pushed it against the internal horn of the disc machine so that the sound was amplified to a remarkable degree.

The picture I took showed Gerry, an impish smile on his face and a small tin horn in his hand, magnifying the already generous volume of the Edison. Even more flabbergasting results could have been achieved by holding a large wooden horn.

We walked, at about 1 o'clock Sunday morning, to the Marshall home. I carried a flashlight to brighten our way up the dark street and both of us were accompanied by the zealous Roger. The Major gloated, as he had many times, over all he would have to tell Beattie and Joe Cramp about his visit and the reception that had astonished him in Vinton.

"Beattie and Joe keep hoping you'll come over to see them," he said to me, "but I've told them over and over that you couldn't take the cats and Possy with you and you couldn't leave them unattended for weeks at a time.

"The last time I wrote to Beattie," he added, "I told her that if she wanted to see you and the cats she'd just have to get up and move her charming little personality over here instead of looking for you to come over to Britain."

I replied, a little sadly, that all my life the desire to visit England and to spend a long time there had been almost an obsession with me. But as long as I have the cats, whom I treasure more than anything else in the world, and am kept so busy with so many things, I don't see how I can make the trip.

"Now," I told Gerry, "since you're here you know why it happens that I often go so long without writing to you. You've seen the dozen or so pasteboard boxes I have stacked around, mostly containing letters from HOBBIES readers, that I haven't found time to answer and probably never shall be able to reply to.

"I have to write thousands of words nearly every working day. I have a big old house to look after, the cats to take care of, and heaven knows how many other things to do that almost nobody suspects I am called on for.

"Sometimes," I went on, "many weeks go by without my having a chance to write even one letter to

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry he cannot reply to most of the mail he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and cannot tell anyone where they can be bought or sold, except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot exchange tape recordings or make tapes, cannot supply back copies of this magazine, and has no record catalogs or other phonograph reference material for sale.

anyone. Many of the letters I receive would take hours or days of research to answer and there is no way I can find the time to do it. So don't feel hurt if I don't write to you as often as I should or as you would like. I'm still your friend, regardless of whether or not you hear from me."

Gerry said he thoroughly understood my predicament and would try to make other people, who write to me but seem doomed to go without an answer, understand it too.

The next day I played a tape recording which had been sent to me by Timothy Brooks, a senior at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H. Tim gave regular programs over the College radio system, featuring old American popular music.

One Sunday last spring he talked with me by long distance, asking me questions about the history of the phonograph and getting my comments on records he intended to play in a future program.

We talked for more than an hour and he showed himself to be an obviously courteous, considerate, and attractive young fellow.

After the program was given some weeks later, Tim sent me a tape version of it—the one I played for Major Annand—running an hour and seven minutes. It was most thoughtful of him and I enjoyed it, but so far I haven't got around to thanking him, although (I write on Saturday, June 13) I have been intending to do so for these two months or more. If Tim reads this I hope he will accept my apologies.

The Major enjoyed the tape and he and I chuckled over its statement that I knew "more about records than everybody else put together."

Tim left nothing undone to give his listeners the feeling, firstly, that they would hear, and secondly, that they had heard, an unusual program!

I. The Major Meets K. M. Smith

A pleasant feature of Sunday, May 10, was Major Annand's meeting with one of Vinton's most remarkable residents — Kenly M. Smith, who, after months of patient persistence, obtained my permission last February to publish the Vinton Messenger articles telling of my various activities.

Mr. Smith is now 86, but his wit is keen and his mind as sharp as a newly-honed, old-fashioned, straight razor blade. He grew up in the mountainous area of extreme Southwest Virginia, only a few miles from John Fox, Jr.'s legendary "Trail of the Lonesome Pine." And he still speaks in a mountain vernacular, but his lack of formal education doesn't show in his writing.

He is widely read and is pointed out by his fellow Vintonites as the man who probably has won more large prize contests than anyone else in Virginia. His achievements have included naming a nationally circulated farm magazine.

Like Gerry Annand, he is small in stature but large of brain. And, despite their different environments and accents, they were drawn to each other at once.

Gerry and Jim at opposite ends of the Dogwood window display. The Major listening to the Edisonic with Lucky Jim sitting like a black statuette behind him.

Mr. Smith's call took care of two things. It gave him an opportunity to meet the Major, who, Mr. Smith believed, was induced to come to Vinton largely because of reading the articles in the Messenger. This call also made it possible for Mr. Smith to hear some of Cal Stewart's "Uncle Josh" records — something he had been telling me for the last year or two he wanted to do.

Many years ago, Mr. Smith had told me, he used to enjoy the "Josh" records by his fellow Virginian, who was born near Charlotte Court House in 1856. "But," Mr. Smith said, "it must have been 50 years since I've heard any."

For his obvious pleasure, I used the Edisonic, an Amberola and a Victor machine with a large wooden horn, to revive some of the best monologs and sketches in the repertoire of Cal Stewart, who died in a Chicago hospital in December, 1919.

They included "Uncle Josh and Aunt Nancy Put Up the Kitchen Stove," recorded with help of Ada Jones; "Uncle Josh Keeps House," and "Train Time at Punkin Center," also several others.

I took two snapshots of Major Annand and Mr. Smith sitting close together, with the little Japanese tape recorder nearby. Both snapshots were good, but one came out especially well.

Only this morning, June 14, I met Mr. Smith and showed him a picture I took last Monday of him standing beside Clyde Bowles, the bus driver whom the Major liked. Mr. Smith mentioned that he thought he had never seen a more natural looking picture than the one of Gerry taken with him. He and I never meet nowadays without exchanging animated recollections of that Sunday afternoon.

Something else the Major enjoyed was talking by telephone with two of my best friends — Miss Delrhey Fitzgerald, of Pulaski, Va., and Albert (Jack) Via, of South Boston, Va.

There was a little dialectical difficulty among the parties to the long-distancing. But for the most part they understood what was said and formed favorable impressions of one another.

Of course we went right on playing cylinders and discs. The Major told me he had a record I had long wanted, a U.S. Everlasting Cylinder of Albert Benzler playing a piano version of "Black and White Rag." He promised to tape it for me.

He also said he would send me a taped dubbing of "Pussy's in the Well," sung on an Edison Blue Amberol by the Manhattan Ladies Quartet — a cylinder he said was almost "stereoscopic" in its realism.

There was something else he wanted to make for me and that I would like for him to tape, but neither of us has since been able to recall what it was. He also promised to have back copies of the City of London Phonograph Society's publication, "The Hillandale News," sent to me.

For my part, I was able to give him a dubbing of Billy Murray and Walter Scanlan's Diamond Disc of "Goodness Gracious, Gracie," which he especially liked. I also gave him two rare Edison long-play records issued in 1926 and lent him another, of which I had only one copy. Also into his capacious shopping bag went a Diamond Disc piano solo of "Tenderly," by Duke Yellman.

Gerry enjoyed several of Billy Murray records I played, especially the Diamond Disc of "If I'm Wrong, Sue Me," which is something of an autobiography of "The Denver Nightingale." Gerry asked me to send him a spare copy if I ever found one.

He remarked: "I may be wrong, but Billy sounds very happy on that record (made in 1928) as if he were glad to be back with Edison after his long absence as an exclusive Victor artist."

Another record the Major greatly enjoyed was a U. S. Everlasting of "You're My Baby," sung by a duet team mysteriously listed as Edna Brown and Fred James. This 1913 record came out a few months before the U. S. Company went out of business.

The singers I identified as Elsie Baker and Frederick J. Wheeler, who also called himself James F. Harrison. It is obvious that the assumed K. M. Smith of Vinton, with Clyde Bowles, obliging Roanoke bus driver who became Major Annand's friend.

Gerry Annand in Mr. and Mrs. Marshall's attractive front yard, Vinton, Va.

Jim Walsh with Catherine Butler whose carefree disposition Major Annand found irresistible.

name, "Fred James" came from Fred (Wheeler) and James (Harrison). This is the only record I have ever heard of on which Wheeler used the Fred James disguise.

I omitted to mention that while we were in the Dogwood, Police Officer Clarence Jones took a picture of Gerry and me clasping hands across the table, as a sort of miniature representation of the "Hands Across the Sea" slogan in the window poster, which provided the title for these articles.

II. Our Last Day Together

And then came Monday, the last full day of 1964 that Major H. H. Annand and I were to spend together, although I hope there will be many reunions in coming years. I was up early to get the paper. We both were more than pleased with the Oakie Asbury picture of the Major and the Dogwood sign, and the way the article was presented. Several copies of that article went into the Major's shopping bag.

This day, however, brought considerable vexation because of erratic tape recorder behavior. The little Japanese recorder that had performed irreproachably the day before smeared itself with shame by spilling tape, breaking tape, unwinding unevenly, and refusing to do anything that could reasonably be asked of it. Not only that, but my two other recorders developed "bugs" as soon as we tried to use them.

I told Gerry I was "jinxed" when it came to using mechanical contrivances, and I think he was soon convinced. He said he had never seen anything like the perverse way in which all three recorders refused to work.

After devoting more than an hour and a half to trying to copy one record and being unsuccessful, I was so badly flustered that when Mrs. Grose drove up to take us to the Dogwood for a meal with her and Lloyd and asked me what I wanted to drink with my supper, I replied: "Carbolic acid!"

And I wasn't entirely joking.

After we had eaten, Lloyd obligingly dropped in to see what he could do to put the balky paraphernalia to rights. He tinkered with the Japanese recorder and insisted there was nothing wrong with it.

Concededly, it did work charmingly while he was present, but it went bad again within a few minutes after he left, and I had to take it next day to Elmo Stamper, a repairman friend of mine, for a checkup. He still has it, for I haven't had time to pick it up and bring it home.

I remarked to Gerry I suspected my house was haunted by a malicious poltergeist that delighted to play havoc with all my efforts to use machinery. He seemed inclined to agree.

In mid-afternoon we had despairingly abandoned the tape recorders to whatever gremlins possessed them and gone to Roanoke Photo Finishing Company to get the slides made from snapshots I had taken during the Major's stay.

They turned out to be the best group of pictures I had ever taken. Included in the lot were three I had made of one of my best friends, Catherine Butler, whose picture was shown in the January, 1962, HOBBIES, laughing at the huge envelope in which I mailed my Peter Dawson series to HOBBIES.

We went to the Roanoke City Building Commissioner's office to show the slides to Catherine, and her frank and unaffected pleasure in the ones taken of herself mightily charmed the Major.

After we left the office, Gerry remarked that Catherine, a beautiful vivacious brunette, had one of the most light-hearted, captivating personalities of anyone he had ever met. "She is so completely natural and spontaneous in everything she says and does that I don't see how anyone could feel out of sorts around her," he remarked.

Young Mrs. Butler giggled happily when I passed that remark on to her the next time we met.

Next we went to the Times newsroom in the hope of obtaining for the Major the original print of the picture in that morning's paper. My lovely blonde fellow staff writer, Carol Almond, looking irresistible in pink, offered to search for the print, and soon returned smilingly from the library, triumphantly waving it.

Gerry was so much impressed by Carol's blonde beauty that I promised I'd take a color picture of her for him the next time I found her again wearing that pink costume. He has since written me a letter in which he sent love to Catherine and "the Blonde Bombshell," as he called Carol.

On our return home I showed large-size versions of the slides. The Major was amazed by their glowing brilliance and the ease with which they were automatically projected. The colors in one that showed him standing in Mr. and Mrs. Marshall's front yard, surrounded by flowers, were breath-taking.

One charming slide depicted the Major, unaware his picture was being taken, listening to the Edison, with little Lucky Jim sitting gravely behind him, looking exactly like a statuette of a black kitten.

But the most remarkable of all, from the color point of view, showed Gerry in a thoughtful attitude, nursing his devoted little friend, Nipper, whose face wore a loving expression resembling that of a trusting baby toward its mother.

Because of some color peculiarity for which we were unable to account, the slide had a rich, deep tone which made it look as if it had been painted by Rembrandt. This was accidental, but it was amazing and should be striking even in the black-and-white illustration which will appear with this installment.

There was one regrettable thing: A slide of Gerry holding Roger became jammed in the projector (the Gremlins again!) and was damaged, so the Major appears to have a black eye. Thus I have no picture to submit of my dear friend fondling the (Continued on page 44)

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage.—Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. ja6468

RECORDS WANTED

THE ONLY RECORDS I want to buy are supphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

78 RPM Del Stargers' Carnival of Venice, Herbert L. Clarke Brunswick No. 2367 Stars in a Velvety Sky. — H. Stuart Kenney, 430 E. Mt. Pleasant Ave., Phila. 19, Pa. d1003

WANTED: Gold Label Edison Long play records, Wilson, Roosevelt records, Duo Art Piano rolls. Many others. Dime for large want list. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond, Va. d1422

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

VIOLIN FOR SALE

VIOLIN - William Lewis & Son, Chicago verify as very fine copy Jacobus Stainer made Mittenwald, Germany. Needs restringing and bridge. Wooden case and bow. — Mrs. C. E. Newman, 4003 S. Harrison Blvd., Fort Wayne, Indiana. ja3065

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

- Particularly the following:
- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
  - ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
  - ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
  - ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
  - ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. d3084

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N.Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid.—American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. je124661

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP.—ARG, 341 Cooper St., New York, N.Y. f3633

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. mh6867

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. d12407

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. f3683

CLEARANCE SALE of fine classical, operatic and vocal 78 RPM records dating back to 1908. Assortment of 100 different for $35, includes Caruso, Galli-Curci, Melba, Gluck, Tetravzzini, Kreisler, Rachmaninoff, etc. All in excellent condition, satisfaction guaranteed. Limited offer. Makes an excellent gift. Order now. — Memory Shop, 183 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49502. f3848

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Domart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2889. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to L.P. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my128801

FOR SALE: Phonographs and records. 25c for lists. "Evolution of the Phonograph" by Reed and Welch $9.95. "History Speaks" 12" L.P. 42 voices from recordings, early as 1888, 2 records, $6 for set, postpaid. — Coppernoll's Records, Box 6, Palatine Bridge, N.Y. d3886

FREE LIST: Opera, Comedy, Old Jazz, Albums, Seventy Eights — Box 1566, Studio City, Calif. 91604. f3042

AMAZING LIST of out of print operatic and classical vocal 78's. Finest condition. Priced low. List on request.—S. Weiss, 430 Maple Hill Dr., Hackensack, N. J. ja3614

RARE RECORDS & TAPES: My collection of jazz, pops, Latin American, country, western, drama, dance, vocal, sweet, comic, opera, classical, stars of stage, screen, sports, old quartets instrumental solos, personalities, documentary, etc. 1900 to 1960. All sizes including 16". — Jack Argo, P.O. Box 105, Hudson, N. H. d3051 ja3067

PHONOGRAPHS REPAIRED

REPRODUCER REPAIRING. Have original Edison styluses all types. Reproducers for sale. Stamp for reproducer brochure. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr. Soquel, Calif. ja3253

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. $d205. s12698

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 406 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. f6046

SHEET MUSIC. Old songs 250,000 alphabet order catalogued. No list yet. Price 50c to $1. Inquiries. Please send self addressed stamped letter to — Robert Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Los Angeles 26, Calif. Rm. 412. my66501

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Wurflitzer Orchestration Coin operated. Excellent condition. Mills violin single with rolls. — E. S. Laugh-ton, York Beach, Maine. mh3675

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

GLASS HARMONICA wanted; particulars as to price, condition, etc. to I. M. Irving, 16 Manor Lane, Larchmont, N. Y. ja3403

WANT coin-operated Seeburg piano, (model H), stained glass doors. Plays drums, pipes, xylophone. Carved wooden statues on the front. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. ja3234

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANT all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Welte, Ampico. odd or unusual rolls. Lists unnecessary. — Box 787H, Kemah, Texas. my124631

DUO-ART and old standard piano rolls for sale. Free lists, stamp please.—Vl & Sl's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N. Y. ja3863

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America, $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. my6234

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

WANTED: Cylinder & old disc phonographs. Parts, reproducers and any catalogs and literature on the phonographs. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. d3863

PHONOGRAPH with outside horn, any condition, parts, catalogs. Also Berliner, Johnson, Victor or 5" cylinder machine. Price. — Armand Scroby, 125 Western, Mansfield, Ohio. f3863

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3276

EDISON PHONOGRAPH, No. S-20795. Reproducers, 204 minute recordings. 200 cylinders Amberols, also Stewart's Uncle Josh, etc. Large horn, separate. All in excellent condition. Price $300. — Jessie York, Tannery Rd., Box 130, Downsville, N. Y. ja3656

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my56p

clude a large lizard form carved on the door of a rice shed which came from Sumatra. A more curious example, shown here, is an ornament on the outside wall of a house, made by lacing a rope through holes in the wall to form the outline of a lizard.

Frog designs are seen on prehistoric bronze kettle-drums, as shown here. The frog has something to do with rain-magic. One Museum specimen represents a frog on the mouth of a bronze water kettle from Borneo.

The tortoise is well-known in Hindu-Javanese art as a symbol of the earth. Showing Chinese mastery, this symbol of long life is also found in those parts of Indonesia where there has been little Hindu influence. West Borneo wooden dishes are sometimes carved in the shape of a tortoise.

Among the oldest of Chinese symbols, the tortoise is one of the Four Sacred Animals, along with the dragon, the phoenix, and the unicorn. The tortoise, symbol of longevity, strength, and endurance, controlled the North, and influenced Winter.

The Indonesians have a unique creative cleverness in decorative art. They have evolved an immense diversity in methods of expression, techniques, and styles, as will be indicated through this study.

Part III, BIRDS, will appear in the January issue

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 35)

"patriarchal," intellectual head of my cat family.

The Major had asked me to make out a list of English Pathe records I don't have by the American comedian, Gene Greene, for whose "platters" I have long been advertising in HOBBIES, and I eventually got around to preparing it on Monday night.

Pathe is pronounced in England much as it is here (like Path-AYE), the Major told me, but the French of course do not sound the "h," and with them Pathe sounds more like "Pat-teh" or "Patty."

Gerry also said he would try to find a Marathon long-playing record (a hill-and-dale type made in England from about 1912 to 1915, which played as much as eight minutes a side), to replace my only copy, which I recently broke. But he warned Marathons were scarce and hard to find.

III. The Major Expresses Some Opinions

As Monday night wore inexorably and inevitably away, the Major and I could not conceal a feeling of sadness that his visit, memorable to both of us, would end the next morning when he boarded a Trailways bus to return to Richmond and enjoy more of the Nugent family's hospitality.

We had previously agreed that we would record a tape, discussing some of the things we would long remember about our get-together, and at precisely 9:25 we began a completely spontaneous and unrehearsed performance.

I am sure those of you who have followed this play-by-play account of the Major's visit to Virginia will find interest in some of the things he said, and I therefore transcribe part of his remarks:

Vinton Hospitality

"From the moment I arrived at the bus stop where I was greeted with a flash camera, much to my surprise, everything has moved at surprising amazing speed.

"Early the next morning I was taken to the Dogwood Restaurant, where to my surprise, and shock, and speechlessness, there was a window showing a large sign and posters welcoming me to Vinton, Va. . . . It was an unbelievable sight. . . .

"In this country I have met with unparalleled kindness from everybody, but to think that in Vinton the reception was so overwhelming—I don't think words alone can convey what really went on.

"If I say that at one end of the scale it included a magnificent article in the local newspaper, and an imitation arrest by Vinton police on the other, I think it will be easily understood that the whole picture and the whole suite of works went on from top to bottom."

Concerning Cats

"That wonderful quartet of cats! I think they deserve a chapter of their own—and they're getting it.

"There's Lucky Jim—an elongated, jet-black, loving creature.

"There's the peerless Roger—Roger, who acts as the Grenadier Guard to the premises. Meets everybody. Roger, who comes trailing down quite a long way to see them off—a cat of super-intelligence. Roger stands in a class by himself.

"Now, one shouldn't have favorites among cats, but I lost my heart to Nipper and I think Nipper did to me, too. We can't ask Nipper's opinion, but he has only just got off my lap to let me say this.

"Then, of course, that leaves us Petey. Well, Petey I haven't seen much of, but the once I did see Petey he seemed to want fussing. Petey seemed left out. And Petey has had a rather checkered career, I understand.

"These four cats are much publicized, both in photographs and in prose. I'm one of the few people who has been privileged to see them literally both in the flesh, and in their fur, too, and I can assure you, Jim, they don't in any way let down the publicity they have had. They are really four most wonderful cats, but there again I am biased about cats.

"But you couldn't be biased about those four. They are beyond bias. You have really got to come here to see them. It is no use just reading about them. These cats have got to be seen to be believed."

The Edison

"The Edison is the last word in acoustic phonographs. . . . In 1927 Edison, in common with other leading manufacturers, brought out a larger type of machine, taking advantage of increased knowledge in acoustics and the principle of the pressure of a column of air, and decided that it would make a very big advance, provided a larger pressure could be put on the sound box.

"Victor and its contemporary, His Master's Voice in England, brought out what was known as the Orthophonic Victrola—or the Re-Entrant in England—and it was a hopeless thing. The advertising used the slogan, 'Listen to the bass,' and how right they were.

"It was an insult to the average listener's hearing because there was no ton at all. The Columbia was rather better but there again it was left to Edison to bring out the last word.

"Using the system of an increased air column with a larger trumpet brought out the finest quality I have ever heard in Edison reproduction. There you have volume without noise: you have a roundness of tone unknown in anything else.

"Edison was right when he referred to anything else as talking machines. His was not a talking machine. It was a machine that was an exact copy of what was put into it. . . . It was the last word in acoustical reproduction and, in my opinion, equal at least to the first three stages of electrical reproduction."

Jim Walsh and His Collection

"Jim's collection of course is fabulous. It would take, I think, at least 60 years to go through it all. It has almost everything, and it's just as well that it is in the hands of a person like Jim.

"His writings of course are well known. . . . and his knowledge, I should say, is superior to that of anyone (else) in the world. He can tell you all about any composer, any libretto, any artist, almost any piece of music written. And that is equivalent to an Edison encyclopaedia. To come here is a revelation.

"Jim has left no stone unturned to see that my stay has been a memorable one. All I can say to him is that he has succeeded beyond all ordinary standards. His home is a marvelous Aladdin's Cave."

Why He Came

"I think I gave it to be generally understood when I first came over here that I was not coming to see places—I was coming to see people. And when I said people I wasn't thinking of President Johnson or Dean Rusk or Cabot Lodge or Mr. Stevenson. I was coming to see the ordinary people, and what I wanted to see most were the folk of my beloved Virginia. . . .

"Take the first morning I went into the Dogwood Restaurant. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Grose are wonderful people. Jim tells me they take care of him, and they certainly took care of me."

Major Annand took the original tape home to Hillingdon, but I vanquished my recorder troubles long enough to make a copy for myself. After playing it, a few comments occur to me.

I told the Major it seems to have been pretty well established that where there are as many as three cats in a family one is designated as official head washer of the others. This is not considered a menial task but an honor, and the cat who gets the distinction is proud of it. Among mine, Nipper has always been the specially designated sanitarian.

In the days when my beloved Gray, who died September 11, 1962, was still with us, Nips enjoyed nothing so much as scrubbing Gray and Roger's heads while they ate and, as a rule, would not take his own food until their topknots were sparkling.

More recently, he has begun washing Lucky Jim's head and, since Jim as yet doesn't care much for the idea, this has caused numerous fights between them. The latest, but not the last, occurred a few minutes ago. Roger still accepts the washing as his right by virtue of seniority and being head of the house.

I well remember Gerry's saying, "When I get back home and tell my friends about these marvelous cats, the one who will be most heartsick because she can't see them is Mrs. Beatrice Mary Cramp." I asked him to give Roger, Nipper, Lucky Jim, and Petey's best regards to the Cramp cats, Jim and Sandy.

As for the Edison, since the Major was here I have had another visit from my friend, Donald L.

(Continued on next page)

OLD PRINTS..PAINTINGS..MAPS

Leavitt, recorded music librarian of the Library of Congress.

Don was critically injured in a two-car accident while returning home from a visit to me in May, 1963. Nadine, his wife, and their two children were also hurt. All are virtually recovered now.

After listening to a piano record on the Edison, Don said he wished he had the Library's recording engineer with him, "because he simply wouldn't believe, without hearing it, that such reproduction is possible from an acoustic instrument."

The Major told me English collectors believed that all Edison Diamond Discs with a serial number of 11,000 or higher were electrically recorded, but I told him that was wrong. I got out an Edison dealer's numerical catalog (the first Gerry had seen) and we went through it, trying to track down just where the electrical process began.

Since I didn't have all the Diamond Discs of that period, we could determine only that the electrical system began somewhere around 11,900, then, after reaching 11,999, skipped to 18,000 and continued into the 19,000's. The 12,000 series was reserved for serial numbers of long-playing records.

(Continued in next issue)

LET US KNOW IF YOU'RE MOVING

- So that there will be no interruption in your subscription, please give us 6 weeks advance notice.
- Please state OLD and NEW address, and date you will be at new address.
- Send your notice to:
Circulation Department

BINDERS for HOBBIES

The wealth of information contained in each issue of HOBBIES is too valuable to be thrown around with consequent danger of loss.

Holds 12 issues.

Price each $3.00
HOBBIES

1006 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60605

NEW PRINT PRICE GUIDE

Handbook lists prices on approximately 6,000 prints of Currier & Ives, Kellogg & other print makers. Price $4.00 postpaid.

E. G. Warman Publishing Co.
8-10 Frankhooover Street
Uniontown, Penna.

ARGOSY GALLERY

116 East 59th Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.

WANTED

- Still Life
- Farm Scene
- Marine

KNOW YOUR CURRIER & IVES

List of over 350 large folio Currier prints and their value, 50c.

List of over 350 small folio Currier prints and their value, 50c.

Both sent postpaid for a dollar bill.

EARL L. ROMEY
Box 291
Bluffton, Indiana

PRINTS FOR SALE

EVERY KIND OF PRINT except Americana. Lace valentines; silhouettes; old playing cards; gold paper edgings and ornaments. Will buy valentines before 1875; silhouettes if labelled. — K. Gregory, 222 East 71st, New York 21, N.Y. f120422

CURRIER & IVES and other early American prints. State wants, or send $1 for price list of over 400 prints, credited on order. — Jacques Schurre, 280 9th Ave., New York, N.Y. 10001. f64201

FOR SALE: Hand colored artist's proof, 4 1/4"x3 3/4", from set of elegant steel engravings of Benjamin Franklin at the Court of France, 1773. In lovely heavy frame, complete with glass. In top condition. Best offer takes. — Hallett Cole, 191 East Hind Drive, Honolulu 16, Hawaii. f40801

N. CURRIER, large folio. The Cares of a Family. Three small moth holes in border, otherwise perfect, $450. — Mrs. John Luna, Rt. No. 3, Columbia, Tenn. d1002

FOR SALE: Prints from Ladies' Magazine, Godey's Book, and French Fashion Magazines, dating from 1785 to 1920. — Patricia Robinson, 193 Bartlett Ave., Springfield, Mass. 01202. n12871

PRINTS WANTED

WANTED: Currier & Ives prints. Give title and condition. Especially want Shakers near Lebanon, Battle of Bentonville, Franklins Experiment, Dartmouth College, Neptune House. — A. R. Davison, East Aurora, N.Y. f6069

WANTED: A. B. Frost prints, sketches, etc., also Lanier's book on Frost. — Henry M. Reed, 270 Broad St., Bloomfield, N.J. f124431

CURRIER & IVES WANTED: Large sizes only. Also large prints of City Views printed before 1855. — Camilla Lucas, Inc., 3 East 28th St., New York, N.Y. ja128271

WANTED by collector: Important Currier & Ives: winter scenes, railroad subjects, clipper ships and sporting. — T. M. Reece, Boonville, N. C. mh120821

PAINTINGS WANTED

PAINTINGS WANTED: Also bronzes, drawings, water colors, etc. by American & European artists. A particular want is anything of American historical interest especially subjects relating to the West, such as the Cowboy and Indian, western landscape, etc., by artists such as Remington, Russell, Schreyvogel, Kretzschmar, Bierstadt, Catlin, Homer, and lesser known artists. Also American and Canadian artists of the 19th century school. — J. N. Bartfield Art Galleries, Inc., 45 West 57th St., New York 19, N. Y. 212 Plaza 3-1830. d30821

WANTED: Quality oils, water colors, drawings, miniatures by known though not necessarily noteworthy artists, pre-1800 collections of signed etchings, engravings, prints, artist's proofs, special book plates, manuscripts, and early printed pieces of artists, sculptors, gliders, metalworkers, and those supplying them materials. Artists' tools and supplies, paintings by or information about Taylor Baker. Price first letter. — Robert F. Weimann, 4 Prospect St., Ansonia, Conn. f120216

HITLER and other Nazi portraits, also bronzes, etc. Price and stamped envelope please. — Disco, 2503 Third, Milwaukee, Wis. mh6676

Please mention HOBBIES when replying to advertisements.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Hands Across the Seas!

Major H. H. Annand, of Hillingdon,
Middlesex, England, Visits
Jim Walsh, of Vinton, Va.

PART V

By JIM WALSH

IV. Gerry Says Goodbye

When Tuesday morning came Gerry and I couldn't conceal that our time together was running short.

He said goodbye to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and we went to the Dogwood for our last breakfast together there. He then had the painful necessity of parting with Toots and Lloyd Grose, Fay Eversole, Linda Meador, and Edna Kerns.

What little time was left before we boarded a bus for Roanoke was devoted to a hurry, skurry, and flurry of making sure he wasn't forgetting to take with him everything that he wanted to carry in that shopping bag.

Among the contributions were several copies of an alphabetical list of my HOBBIES articles prepared at the Library of Congress.

We were both glad that Petey came up just before we left and sat on the front porch while the Major patted him and told him goodbye. I took a picture of the parting—the only one I got of Gerry and Petey together.

Gerry had previously said his farewells with the other three. Roger had stood on his hind legs to have his head stroked, while the Major once more addressed him as "my beauty," and urged him to go on living for many happy years to come—something that the wonderfully healthy Roger unmistakably intends to do.

On the bus we talked with a man who had read the article in the Monday paper and recognized the Major by his resemblance to the picture. The driver detected his English accent. We also were compelled to listen to the shrill and strident harangue of a woman who complained to her seatmate about the state of the world in general and her private affairs in particular.

After she had mercifully left the bus, I remarked to the Major: "That woman certainly found a lot to fuss about."

"Yes," he replied, "and she did it through her nose. She has the sort of nasal voice that the English have been led to believe all Americans have—but don't."

I wanted to take a few farewell pictures of Gerry, so I had him pose for one on the steps leading to the second floor of the Roanoke municipal building and for another, still standing on those stairs, but with the Times-World building in the background. The light wasn't good and their quality was not on a par with that of most of the slides I had previously taken.

Still worse were the snaps I made of Gerry as his bus was about to begin the return trip to Richmond. (He said, by the way, that "round trip" was one term he had learned to use while traveling by buses in the States.)

I had no flash bulbs and the shots I took came out so dark they were hardly worth printing. When the Major comes back, I shall be sure to have plenty of blue flash bulbs to match my Ektachrome film.

The bus started pulling out, I saw

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES & TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, & extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1825)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1506

tfc

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfc

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

MUSICAL BOXES - TALKING MACHINES - MUSIC ROLLS

PLAYER ORGANS & PIANOS

MUSIC MOVEMENTS AND MUSIC ROLLS MADE TO ORDER

1628 Wisconsin Ave.

Tel. 202-948-8225

Washington 7, D. C.

or 301-942-0416

(See our advertisement in Museum Department of HOBBIES)

tfc

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry he cannot reply to most of the mail he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and cannot tell anyone where they can be bought or sold, except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot exchange tape recordings or make tapes, cannot supply back copies of this magazine, and has no record catalogs or other phonograph reference material for sale.

From left to right:

Gerry Annand and Jim Walsh in a Hands-Across-the-Table exchange. Notice the soft drink bottles—no tea or coffee.

Major H. H. Annand fondling Nipper whose eyes are almost closed from love and drowsiness.

Major Annand with Kenly M. Smith, one of Vinton's best known men.

a smiling face and a waving hand, and then:

It was all over. Gerry Annand's three and a half days of surprise piled upon surprise in Roanoke and Vinton had ended. But I knew further pleasures awaited him in Richmond.

V. Since Then

I am such a busy person that I seldom have time for loneliness, but I did feel lonely when I returned home without the fine English gentleman who had shared such a helter-skelter pace with me since the preceding Friday night.

When I reached my house the cats also seemed lonesome. That is, Roger and Nipper did. Lucky Jim, being only a young sprout, leads such a harum-scarum life, romping here and there, that he has, and had, no time or taste for meditation concerning missing friends.

In one way, however, the cats found consolation. They were able to resume their custom of taking daily naps with me. I find it necessary to lie down for an hour or so in the morning or early afternoon before beginning a long day's work, and they know precisely what time they should join me.

During the Major's stay, Nipper, especially, would come to me and wail piercingly at lying-down time, and I knew exactly what he was demanding. But I couldn't beg time off from my revels with the Major to sleep. And the irate Nips had to be disappointed.

The following day I learned that, while Gerry and I were on the Roanoke bus, Kit Johnson, who has the "Profile" program at WSLs-TV, had tried to reach Major Annand by telephone. She was eager to have him as the featured guest on her program, but of course it was then too late. We'll try to arrange an appearance for him with her the next time Gerry comes back.

There was also a phone call from a woman who said she had tried, "off and on all day Monday" to reach us, but had never received an answer. It seemed she had bought an old trunk at an auction sale and had found it filled with "those big thick Edison records — about 70 or 80 of them."

She thought, as most people do who stumble upon Edison records without previous knowledge, that they were great rarities and had visions of selling the lot to the Major, to be painstakingly chaperoned back to England. I had a ludicrous vision as she talked of his trying to stuff those heavy things into his shopping bag and lug them all the way to London.

Anyway, I told the lady that Diamond Discs were by no means rare — that about four-fifths of the old records and phonographs people try to sell me are Edisons, because they were made so much better than their contemporaries and have been far less subject to wear, depreciation, and breakage — and that she hadn't lost a fortune by not selling them.

Toots Grose gave me a genuine surprise by saying her 10-year-old son, Michael, who is in the fourth grade at East Vinton Elementary School, had come home excited because his teacher, Mrs. Inez Coates, had read my entire Monday article "about that English Major" to the class.

Mrs. Coates had been trying to interest the children in reading newspapers as a means of keeping aware of current history and had chosen the story about the Major as a good example of finding out "what's going on in Vinton now."

And a lady who lives near me asked with indignation, real or pretended, why I didn't bring my "high-toned English friend around and in-

(Continued on page 47)

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3276

TWO EDISON PHONOGRAPHS. No. 1, S. No. 26795; No. 2, S. No. 54810. One has an attached morning glory horn and the other a large separate horn, both in good condition with 250 Edison cylinder records. — Jesse York, Tannery Rd., Box 130, Downsville, N. Y. ja3656

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage.—Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. ja6468

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

VIOLIN FOR SALE

VIOLIN - William Lewis & Son, Chicago verify as very fine copy Jacobus Stainer made Mittenwald, Germany. Needs restringing and bridge. Wooden case and bow. — Mrs. C. E. Newman, 4003 S. Harrison Blvd., Fort Wayne, Indiana. ja3065

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. sl2698

OLD POPULAR SONGS. I buy & sell. Big list 10c. — Dean Snyder, 406 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90013. f6046

SHEET MUSIC. Old songs 250,000 alphabet order catalogued. No list yet. Price 50c to $1. Inquiries. Please send self addressed stamped letter to — Robert Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Los Angeles 26, Calif. Rm. 412. my66501

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holloway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. mh3403

PHONOGRAPHS REPAIRED

REPRODUCER REPAIRING. Have original Edison styluses all types. Reproducers for sale. Stamp for reproducer brochure. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr. Soquel, Calif. ja3253

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Wurlitzer Orchestration Coin operated. Excellent condition. Mills violin single with rolls. — E. S. Laugh-ton, York Beach, Maine. mh3676

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. mh3084

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N.Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. je124661

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. f3633

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. mh6367

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. d12867

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N. Y. f3683

CLEARANCE SALE of fine classical, operatic and vocal 78 RPM records dating back to 1908. Assortment of 100 different for $35, includes Caruso, Galli-Curci, Melba, Gluck, Tetrassini, Kreisler, Rachmaninoff, etc. All in excellent condition, satisfaction guaranteed. Limited offer. Makes an excellent gift. Order now. — Memory Shop, 183 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49502. f3848

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Domart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2889. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to L.P. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my128801

FREE LIST: Opera, Comedy, Old Jazz, Albums, Seventy Eights — Box 1566, Studio City, Calif. 91604. f3042

MEMORIES of World War I - LP recording with Nora Bayes, George M. Cohan, Irving Berlin, Enrico Caruso, Al Jolson, Gen. John J. Pershing, Billy Murray, John McCormack, etc. with original songs from 1914-1918. Send $5 to: Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. mh3407

AMAZING LIST of out of print operatic and classical vocal 78's. Finest condition. Priced low. List on request. — S. Weiss, 430 Maple Hill Dr., Hackensack, N. J. ja3614

RARE RECORDS & TAPES: My collection of jazz, pops, Latin American, country, western, drama, dance, vocal, sweet, comic, opera, classical, stars of stage, screen, sports, old quartets instrumental solos, personalities, documentary, etc. 1900 to 1960. All sizes including 16". — Jack Argo, P.O. Box 105, Hudson, N. H. 03051. ja3067

I WILL LOAN my catalog of early vocal discs. Sentimental, humorous, personality, country western, minstrel, children's, sacred, historical. 56c to $1.12 each. Send deposit of $1 for 28 long pages. Return and get refund or deduct from first order. You can't lose. No instrumental or classic vocal list at this time. — Ray Hargraves, 8745 Florence Ave., Brentwood, Mo. 63117. mh3449

SHARE large tape collection 20's-30's pops (from original discs). 6-selection sampler tape $1. 2 track 3 1/2". — Martin, 396 Toler, San Leandro, Calif. f3483

GIGLI complete operas, other vocal or orchestra albums, hundreds acoustic. electric 78's, imports, unusual labels. New lists. — Penn Courtney, 4817 Gilbert Drive, Shreveport, Louisiana. mh3483

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

GLASS HARMONICA wanted; particulars as to price, condition, etc. to I. M. Irving, 16 Manor Lane, Larchmont, N. Y. ja3403

WANT coin-operated Seeburg piano, (model H), stained glass doors. Plays drums, pipes, xylophone. Carved wooden statues on the front. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. ja3234

COIN OPERATED nickelodeons, orchestrons, Automatic Regina, Seeburg, Wurlitzer, Coinola, Deagan Una-fon Cal. Maple, band organ, tap organ, large music box with bells, etc. — Frank Curtiss, Saint Louis, Michigan. mh3234

PIANOS &amp; ROLLS

WANT all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Welte, Ampico. odd or unusual rolls. Lists unnecessary. — Box 787H, Kemah, Texas. my124631

DUO-ART and old standard piano rolls for sale. Free lists, stamp please. — V. & S. Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N. Y. ja3863

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America, $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. my6234

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

PHONOGRAPH with outside horn, any condition, parts, catalogs. Also Berliner, Johnson, Victor or 5" cylinder machine. Price. — Armand Scroby, 125 Western, Mansfield, Ohio. f3863

TAPED RECORDINGS

ACOUSTIC and elect. operatic recordings on your tapes, 50c per selection. For information and list send stamp to: "Recordings," 48 Revell Ave., Northampton, Mass. mh3483

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my56p

Petey, Roger, Lucky Jim, Nipper, Popsy and Jim Walsh

WISH YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

LEFT TO RIGHT

- Petey spent more than a year in exile when he was driven from home by the larger and stronger Percy the Pitiful Persian. He returned home after Percy died of a heart attack November 22, 1963 — the day of President Kennedy's death. He hopes Santa Claus will do a better job of finding him this Christmas than during those 18 months when he was homeless and frequently cold and hungry.
- Roger's gorgeous coloring, charming personality and courtly manners assure him plenty of lady friends. Here he responds to the caresses of Mrs. Evelyn Slaydon while Evelyn's sister, Mrs. Elsie Comstock, beams approval and promises to say a good word for him to Santa.

- Lucky Jim joined the family on Sunday, November 24, 1963, less than an hour after his "Papa Jim" had sorrowfully buried Percy. In order to keep a bright lookout for Saint Nick, Jim, Jr., has climbed to a shelf above the senior Jim's typewriter stand. Below him is a typewritten list of Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists articles which have appeared in HOBBIES.
- Nipper things the big Orthophonic Victrola is a good place to watch for the patron saint of Christmas. (It's also a good place to keep away from his friendly enemy, Petey, who chased him into it. Notice the photos of recording artists on the wall.)
- Sweet-faced Popsy, who spent the warm months in the open air, returned home in time to vote in the November 3 presidential election. He probably also thought Santa would do a better job of finding him if he had a permanent address like 225 North Maple Street, Vinton, Va., instead of sojourning in the woods. Popsy hopes Santa will stuff his stocking with sugar plums and persimmons — especially persimmons.

THROUGH ETERNITY WE'LL NEVER FORGET! Grateful that we are still here, we still pause at this Christmas season, as we do every day, to think tenderly of Gray (died Sept. 11, 1962), Percy, Heartaches (a neighbor's friendly cat who died last spring), Angel Eyes and all we have loved and lost.

ROGER, NIPPER, PETEY, LUCKY JIM, POSSY AND JIM WALSH.

fashioned of bronze-finished brass with design in high relief.

The famous picture was painted in 1518. The kneeling figures represent Pope Sixtus II and St. Barbara.

12. "The Finding of Moses," suggested by a painting by Paul Delaroche. The design is rendered in light metal against a dark background.

The story is told in Exodus I:1-10. The woman parting the rushes is usually identified as "Pharaoh's Daughter," but she may have been intended for Pharaoh's daughter's maid-servant, or for Moses' sister.

13. "The Angel of Peace" from a painting by Wilhelm von Kaulbach. Pressed brass with dark background.

14. "Rebekah at the Well." This pressed-brass button shows the meeting between Abraham's servant and Rebekah, who was destined to become the wife of Abraham's son, Isaac. The story is found in the 24th chapter of Genesis.

16. "The Angel Gabriel." Cut-out, bronze-finished brass with black background and scroll border.

Gabriel, one of the Archangels, interpreted his visions to Daniel, Daniel VIII: 16-27 and IX: 21-27, announced the birth of John the Baptist to Zacharias, Luke I:11-20, and was sent to Nazareth as a messenger to the Virgin Mary, Luke I: 26-38.

17, 18 and 19 are modern carved-pearl buttons from Jordan. Number 17, a filigree type, shows the Serpent in the Garden of Eden, Genesis III.

18 pictures three shepherds and the Star of Bethlehem, Luke II:8-15.

19, with filigree background, shows the Holy family, either when fleeing to Egypt to escape Herod, Matthew II:14, or when journeying to Jerusalem, Luke II:20.

Many Biblical and symbolic subjects appear on these pearl buttons, which are of fine workmanship. They make an effective display, but I must point out that they are "Studio" buttons, made for collectors and not for use. The other buttons, except 7, were intended to be worn on garments.

In these days, Christmas has become less of a religious observance than a holiday given over to gifts and good cheer. Such manifestations of "Christmas Spirit" are as pleasant as they are popular, and far be it from me to belittle them.

But we ought also to remember the religious significance of Christmas, that its spiritual values may not be neglected in an increasingly materialistic world.

"Man shall not live by bread alone."

* I am grateful to Mrs. Russell A. Lovell, Massachusetts, for the loan of several Biblical buttons, and for the Biblical references quoted above.

** For pictures of other St. George items, and for further details of his life, see HOBBIES for November, 1963.

*** In these "Related Hobby" groups, I endeavor to present as many different hobbies as is practicable. I tried to find a post card version of theistine Madonna; failing that, I had to be satisfied with the illustration from a Christmas card.—D.F.B.

BUTTONS WANTED

YELLOW KID buttons wanted.—Louis Bobel, 194 Munn Ave., Irvington 11, N.J. s12867

WANTED: Presidential campaign buttons prior to 1932.—Edward J. Meyer, 4333 46th St., Sunnyside, N.Y. 11104. f3652

WANTED: Pictures & other pierced metal buttons, 2 or more of a kind.—Hal Baird, 6128 Louisville St., New Orleans, La. 70124. ja3633

BUTTONS FOR SALE

ANTIQUE BUTTONS, direct European imports, collectors' items, 18th century buttons, pictorials, crests, dress earrings, sets cuff links.—Mrs. Margot Jacoby, 250 W. 94th St., New York 25, N. Y. s122971

OLD BUTTONS. 85 assorted, 75 vegetable ivory or 40 black glass, $1.10.—Mrs. Karl S. Gerstenlauer, Pleasant Valley Village, R.D. 2, Milton, Pa. f3863

75 BUTTONS, different types, all collectable, $1. p.p.—Mary Caskey, Box 215, Gloucester, N. J. fly12698

ANTIQUE BUTTONS: Old Austrian out glass crystal reflector buttons. From old store stock. Assorted sizes, shapes, colors, 20 for $2.—Theresa Rarig, 302 S. Rothsay, Minneapolis, Kansas. mh3234

ANTIQUE BUTTONS—sent promptly on approval. One nice large picture button and 50 other assorted old buttons for $2.50. I also wish to buy good buttons. What have you?—Minerva M. Miner, Box 612, Lake Alfred, Fla. 33850. ap4806

BUTTON HOOK BOOK. Pictures, information, patents, $1.25.—Bertha Betensley, 5042 N. St. Louis Ave., Chicago 25, Ill. s128801

FOR $2.25: 75 choice old buttons, assorted materials and sizes, one large picture button and five smaller picture buttons. List of other buttons bargains for stamped envelope.—Nellie Solberg, Route No. 2, Stone Lake, Wisconsin. 54876. mh3065

BUTTONS on approval with reference. Assts. 25-50-100 for $1.10 plus bonus buttons. Agent Brooks buttons.—Mrs. Ralph Radosh, 260 Sadonia Ave., Ferguson, Mo. 63135. f3614

$1.10 BUYS 10, 50 or 100 good old buttons including 10 worth $1 free. Money-back guarantee.—Mrs. A. S. Campbell, 788 Bonaventure Ave. N.E. Atlanta, Ga. 30306. f3844

PRESIDENTIAL campaign buttons being sold. Enclose stamp for list.—Bob Sellers, 620 Pamilar Ave., San Jose, Calif. 95128. ja3832

BRITISH MILITARY buttons, 25 assorted $1.10; 100 $4. Insignia badges 8, $1.10; 50, $5 postpaid.—McManus, P.O. 561, Groves, Texas. 77619. ja3863

OLD SOLID BRASS railroad buttons, over 60 years old, silver and gold new condition. For coat, cap and sleeve; motorman, conductor, inspector, porter, B&O, Penn. R.R. and others. Sample 10c each, one dozen assorted $1. Dealers, $6 for 10 dozen, all prepaid. Will trade for political pins, coins, medals, weapons (old or new), American or foreign or anything nice. Send check or money order to: Trader Bill Crompton, Antique Fair, P.O. Box 265, Somerset, Mass. ja36121

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 34)

troduce him to all your poor neighbors, instead of being so exclusive?"

I did my best to explain that our schedule was so crowded I had to content myself with making Gerry known to those persons whom we merely happened to meet rather than trying to subject him to a community-wide round of introductions.

A little more than a month has passed since I had my last 1964 glimpse of Gerry Annand, but his memory lingers. The display stayed in the Dogwood window a couple of weeks after he boarded a plane back to England in New York on May 20 and arrived there some six hours later.

When the records, phonographs, and posters finally were taken out, I mailed the posters to Gerry, together with a quantity of color pictures made from the slides and a couple of enlarged pictures Oakie Asbury had taken but which were not used in the Times.

Within a few days I received a letter from the Major, saying everything had arrived in good order and that he is displaying the posters in his front room, to make sure everybody who enters his house see them.

Sometimes it seems like a dream and I find it hard to believe that Major Annand ever was here. He must have had the same feeling as, back on Field Heath Avenue in Hillingdon, Middlesex, he recalls the faces and places he knew during his stay and reflects that, though so familiar only a few weeks ago, they are now separated from him by hundreds of miles of land and 3,000 miles of Atlantic Ocean—too much either to walk or swim.

But visible reminders yet exist of Gerry's sojourn in Vinton. The records we played still haven't been put away (I just haven't had the time) and the back of the Dogwood Restaurant cash register still displays a clipping of my Roanoke Times article.

And what does 3,000 miles of water amount to nowadays? This is the 20th century and the Major is only an eight or 10 hours flight from his Roanoke-Vinton friends. We are all looking for him to come back soon and stay longer.

We're going to be mighty disappointed, Gerry, if you don't.

What's more, we'll be surprised!

NICHOLLS BUTTON BOOKS
SUPPLEMENT III and Index $3.95
Supply limited Order now from
Mrs. FLORENCE N. APOSTLE
4806 Fitzhugh Ave.
Richmond 30, Virginia

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Three Memorable Days

In and Near Washington

By JIM WALSH

PART I

I. The Guilty Guys

Donald L. Leavitt, reference librarian of the Library of Congress's Recorded Music Division, and Emlyn Williams, distinguished Welsh actor-author, are the guilty guys. They must share the responsibility of my having to rise by the dawn's early light on Oct. 24, 1964, and stumbling sleepily over inanimate objects in my bedroom as I sought to attire myself in fair raiment before clambering onto a train bound for Washington, D. C.

This early morning stumbling and fumbling came about because Mr. Williams was booked to give his famous readings from the works of my favorite author, Charles Dickens, on the evening of October 26 and had let it be known that he had no objection to my attending. Don, who had several times visited me at my home in Vinton, Va., to confer about plans for leaving my record collection, reference materials, diaries and other hoarded objects to the Library of Congress, had been trying for more than a year to persuade me to spend a few days with him; his wife, Nadine, and their children, Susan and Stuart, but something had always kept me from going.

Then Don came through with an irresistible proposal. He said that if I would come to see him on the weekend preceding the Emlyn Williams recital he would obtain tickets. Moreover, I would have an opportunity to confer with several Library of Congress officials about my desire to bequeath the records and other things.

I feared that having to report Roanoke City Council's meetings each Monday might stand in the way of my getting off, but Norwood Middleton, the Roanoke Times managing editor, and City Editor Jim Echols generously consented to let me go and to have Tuesday free as well. On my part, I agreed to write an article for the Saturday entertainment section describing Mr. Williams' presentation. So it was that, thanks to Messrs. Williams and Leavitt, I had spent a restless night, making sure I didn't oversleep and miss my train, and was tumbling over miscellaneous articles, including cats and cardboard boxes, as I made ready to go. The cats shrieked indignation; the boxes did not commit themselves.

As I floundered groggily here and there, lines from a song which Billy Murray made popular on records in 1907 echoed through what, at 5 o'clock in the morning, passes for my mind:

"In Washington, dear Washington,
Where the limit's as high as the Capitol dome,
And the best thing in the city is the train for home. . ."

I drowsily recalled other assertions from "In Washington." They included such unflattering statements as "they charge five dollars for coffee and rolls, but they put Apollinaris in the finger bowls" and "every Senator uses his desk for a bed—if it wasn't for the snoring you would think they were dead." I wondered what the price of coffee and rolls might be nowadays if that plebeian combination set you back half a saw-buck 57 years ago, but I didn't intend to call on any Senators and was indifferent as to whether they were still sleeping at their desks.

The thing that most concerned me was the welfare during my absence of my four cats—Roger, Petey, Nipper and Lucky Jim. Since I have no one to look after them when I go away, I seldom stay apart from them more than a day at a time, and I was a bit worried about the numberless things that could happen between my Saturday morning departure and return home at 6 a.m. Tuesday. However, I left sufficient food available to keep them, I hoped, from feeling hungry before Monday morning, when Lloyd Grose, my friend who operates the Dogwood Restaurant, had said he would come and bait them. And I left the door leading to the basement open for them to go in and out as many times as they liked.

As I began to trek down the hill I carried two suitcases, but was accompanied by only one cat, the exuberant little Lucky Jim. Unlike Roger, who had chaperoned me to the foot of the hill, piteously begging me not to leave on "that New River train," Jim made no objection to my going, but being in the first flush of healthful youth, ran for the sheer pleasure of rapid motion and occasionally rolled over like a whirling dervish to testify his happiness. As I told him goodbye, I wondered how many trips Roger would make, hoping to meet me and walk up the hill with me, before Tuesday morning and how many cats would be waiting to welcome me when I came back.

II. The First Few Hours

Some half a dozen hours after my parting with Lucky Jim, Don Leavitt

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry he cannot reply to most of the mail he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and cannot tell anyone where they can be bought or sold, except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot exchange tape recordings or make tapes, cannot supply back copies of this magazine, and has no record catalogs or other phonograph reference material for sale.

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES & TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, & extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1825)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1506

ucc

met me at Grand Central station in Washington. Don had been badly injured in a traffic accident during the spring of 1963 while he and his family were returning to their home in Bowie, Md., after a brief visit with me, and was in a hospital for a good many weeks. Nadine, Susan and Stuart were less seriously hurt. Don, who was driving a new red "Mustang" he had just bought, was looking well and showed few, if any, signs of his injuries.

He suggested that lunch was in order, and I agreed. I noticed that extensive preparations were being made at the Capitol for the January inauguration of a President who, I correctly suspected would prove to be Lyndon B. Johnson. One thing Don and I regretted later was that it didn't occur to us that the body of former President Herbert Hoover was lying in state at the Capitol. Since Mr. Hoover for many years had been my greatest admiration as a statesman and a dedicated servant to his fellow men and I had regarded him as the foremost living American, I should have liked to stand beside his coffin as a final gesture of love and reverence. But, as Don pointed out, when the thought occurred too late, there probably were so many men and women in line it would have taken hours to go through, and I wouldn't have felt up to staying on my feet that long.

After eating in a restaurant near the Library of Congress, Don took me to Maryland. Only Stuart was at home, since Susan had gone to a Girl Scout camp and Nadine also was there, not to return until Sunday morning.

I have just been guilty of a misstatement. Not only was 8-year-old Stuart at home, but Ti-Ki and Whimsy were present and accounted for. Ti-Ki is a beautiful Maltese cat, markedly resembling my dearly loved Peter Dawson (Petey) Walsh, while Whimsy is a large, boisterously friendly dog whose native strain I have forgotten. Both welcomed me and became my friends, although Whimsy had a custom of barking vehemently when I came upon her unexpectedly.

I had to agree it was a good idea when Don, who looks surprisingly like Jim Echols and has a voice resembling my city editor's, suggested that I lie down for an hour or so. After that, he said, perhaps I'd like to take a drive to see the Naval Academy at Annapolis, the historic old town in which Don formerly lived, and take a look at Chesapeake Bay.

I went to bed for a while in a room that ordinarily is Stuart's and managed to doze after trying to send thought waves to my cats informing them that "Papa" was all right and didn't intend to leave them unattended very long.

Back on my feet, I made some phone calls. One of the attractions about my visit to Washington had been the prospect of meeting Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Abramson at their home, 2800 Greenvale Street, Chevy Chase, Md., and being with Mr. and Mrs. Vess L. Ossman III in their apartment at 1400 Joyce Street, Arlington, Va. Betty Abramson is a daughter of the late Berrick Schloss, a tenor who made records as "Berrick Von Norden," and about whom I wrote in HOBBIES last February and March. The present Vess Ossman, of course, is the grandson of "The Banjo King," who died in 1928. I wrote a HOBBIES series concerning him that ran from September, 1948, skipping December, through February, 1949. Guided by those articles, which Sue Ossman's sister found and gave them, Vess had been able to get in touch with and go to California to visit Vess L. Ossman's daughter, Mrs. Annadele Mulligan, and son, Ray Ossman, whom he hadn't seen in 46 years. I had been wishing I could meet both couples and both had said they would like to meet me.

I had written them of my intention to come to Washington and received cordial invitations to call.

As a result of the telephone conversations it was decided that it would be best for Don and me to show up in Chevy Chase at about 2 p.m. Sunday, for Betty and Dan were committed to other engagements for much of the day, and go afterwards to Arlington and the Ossmans.

The visit to Annapolis was interesting. I love to look upon old buildings breathing history from every brick or wooden pore and Annapolis was full of them. It was almost sundown when we visited the waterfront, where I began singing a 1913 popular song hit, "Sailing Down the Chesapeake Bay." It was a song Don had not previously heard, but he said that, as well as he could judge from my interpretation of it, it was one after his own heart and of which he meant to look up the music. I have since mailed him a tape recording of the Edison Blue Amberol cylinder of it sung by the Premier Quartet. Don appeared surprised at my ability to sing, or at least articulate the words, of some old song on any subject that came to hand.

In spite of the dim light, I used flash bulbs to take two color slides of the bay. Seen through an ordinary hand viewer, they look foggy, with little detail, but projected on a screen they have a beautiful quality about them as if they had been painted in subdued colors by a fine artist.

Being so tired I was perfectly willing to go to bed early that Saturday night, and, after wafting some more telepathic thought waves to Roger, Nipper, Petey and Lucky Jim, I became unconscious.

Usually, I am such a light sleeper that a fly walking on the ceiling will wake me unless he wears cotton pads

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- * COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- * VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- * INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- * FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- * "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

tfx

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work. Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

MUSICAL BOXES . TALKING MACHINES . MUSIC ROLLS

PLAYER ORGANS & PIANOS

MUSIC MOVEMENTS AND MUSIC ROLLS MADE TO ORDER

1628 Wisconsin Ave.

Washington 7, D. C.

(See our advertisement in Museum Department of HOBBIES)

Tel. 202-948-8225

or 301-942-0416

tfx

Left to right, top to bottom:

On the front lawn of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Abramson's home at Chevy Chase, Md.—Jim Walsh and Mr. and Mrs. Abramson.

Jim Walsh holding tape recorder, with Betty Abramson who almost didn't get in the picture.

Sue Ossman, Jim Walsh and Vess Ossman, in Mr. and Mrs. Ossman's Arlington, Va., apartment.

Sue Ossman, Jim Walsh and Vess Ossman III, displaying records made by "The Banjo King."

on the soles of his feet, but this time I slept so soundly I was not even aware Stuart had been taken ill with a "virus bug" and Don was up most of the night ministering to him. He was really a sick-looking little boy the next morning, and was obliged to stay in bed most of the time Sunday and Monday.

III. I Call On Dr. and Mrs. Abramson

I'm sure it was a relief to Don when Nadine and Susan came home shortly before noon and began to help look after Stuart and keep him more contented. Since I had come to Washington to witness the performance of a fine British actor, I thought it in keeping with the spirit of the visit to present Nadine with some fine imported English candy.

In the early afternoon Don and I started for Chevy Chase, but stopped on the way to get something to eat at an excellent Chinese restaurant. Not being a connoisseur of exotic foods, I didn't sample any of the Chinese cooking, but ordered an American meal that met my taste.

Betty Abramson had given such explicit directions that Don's Mustang had little difficulty in galloping gaily to her lovely home. Betty and Dan were in the front yard raking leaves, and I received something of a shock when I first saw Betty, who was wearing sunglasses. It was a pleasant shock, however. But no, I have again been guilty of a slight misstatement. When I first saw Betty, I didn't take her to be Mrs. Abramson but thought she was her daughter. The shock came when I learned the lady who looked like a college girl really was Betty Abramson. I don't know Betty's exact age, but, whatever it is, she is the youngest looking woman of that age I've ever seen. Of that I'm sure. If she wished she should have no trouble passing for a high school girl.

Dan Abramson also looks remarkably young to have a son and daughter old enough to be in college. He is a man of wide reputation as a surgeon, with a gravely courteous manner that attracts one upon first meeting. As for Betty, she gives the impression of bubbling over with enthusiasm and zest for living. She radiantly told Don and me that we had picked an especially appropriate time to call because the occasion was not only her birthday but her wedding anniversary.

A couple of pictures were taken and then we went into the house, where I used my small tape recorder to catch the voices of Betty and Dan. They both thanked me for what I had done about two years ago to obtain tape recordings for her of all the known records made by her father. Abel Green, editor of Variety, had written me that Betty and Dan were friends of Syd Silverman, who publishes "The Bible of Show Business," and that they badly wanted to find some Von Norden records. Abel asked if I could help, and it turned out that I had a Columbia disc by the tenor and an Edison cylinder. My dear friend, L. Brevoort O'dell of Branchville, N. J., had the remaining cylinders and generously taped them for Betty.

The only other occupant of the Abramson home for the moment was a dog called Pepsi, because she had "more bounce to the ounce." I think it should go without saying that meeting a dog with such a name made me think fondly of my English friend, Major Gerry Annand, who showed such a capacity for Pepsi Cola when he visited me last May.

Don took a flash shot of me holding the tape recorder and facing Betty across the room. He and I liked this charming couple so much we should have been delighted to spend a much longer time with them, but time was wasting, they had other commitments and we had to get to Arlington. So we left Chevy Chase with the fervent wish that we should be able to meet Betty and Dan Abramson on many future occasions.

IV. Meeting Vess and Sue Ossman

Mr. and Mrs. Ossman live in an apartment in Arlington. From it they have a breath-taking view of much of Washington, including the Lincoln Memorial and innumerable other historical landmarks. And you may be sure they are like Betty and Dan Abramson in this respect: You could follow the route of the strongest-winged crow for a full day, or even a week or month, and not find a nicer couple. "As the crow flies," both the Abramsons and the Ossmans are unsurpassable.

My meeting with Vess and Sue Ossman was unabashedly emotional. The HOBBIES articles not only had led to the discovery of the California relatives - none too soon, for Ray Ossman died ten days after their last meeting, happy at having seen the nephew of whom he had heard nothing for many years - but I had also been able to provide Vess with a dozen of more photographs or negatives of his grandfather, as well as of his father, Vess L. Ossman, Jr., also a famous banjo player, who has been dead for 22 years.

THREE MEMORABLE DAYS

(Continued from pages 34 & 35)

Vess, a successful Washington businessman, with an almost startling resemblance to photographs of the distinguished elder Ossman, thanked me warmly for the things I had done, knowingly and unknowingly, and Sue seemed almost overcome. On the basis of this one meeting, I would say that spontaneous sincerity is the keynote of Sue Ossman's character.

Before leaving home I had hurriedly taped copies of half a dozen Vess Ossman records to play for Sue and Vess, who have only a handful of "The Banjo King's" once vastly popular discs. They were not so well done as I could have wished, but my

A youthful photo, with a joking inscription, of Vess L. Ossman, Jr.

Vess L. Ossman, "The Banjo King," as he appeared in the early 1900's.

DOLL PATTERNS

WAGONWHEEL patterns: Body, clothing, for china and bisque heads. 1800-1910. Stamp, dime for list and sample pattern. — Follett Studios, Box 362, Moorhead, Minn. ap3483

THE Doll Pattern House presents (what we believe to be), a new line of patterns for old, and antique dolls. Shoes, coats, undies, dresses, etc. Prices from 25c to $1.50. Please send stamp and 25c for sample pattern and price list. — The Doll Pattern House, P.O. Box 158, Orange, Mass. o12933

WAGONWHEEL patterns, national distributor. Stamp and dime for list and sample body pattern. — Elizabeth Kringer, 813 7th Ave. North, Fargo, N. D. ap3253

DOLL BOOKS FOR SALE

MINIATURE STUFF, 128 pages, hard cover, patterns, directions, illustrations. Sources of supply for making miniature furniture, dolls, accessories. $5.25. — Toy Trader, Middletown, Conn. 06457. ap6867

DOLL PARTS

10,000 Antique doll parts. I will restore your dolls or sell just parts. Heads, eyes, wigs, reproduction limbs, antique dolls. 10c for list. Mail order or appointment only. — Dorothy J. Rawlings, 44914 3rd St. East, Lancaster, Calif. Je64811

GERMAN blown glass doll eyes. Stamp for list. — Lena Swartz, Rt. 5, Box 357, Oregon City, Ore. Je128801

REPRODUCTION parts for old china head dolls. Send long stamped envelope for price and description. — Welshko, Rome, Ohio. ap3882

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8. (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

friends seemed to enjoy hearing them, and I promised that in what little spare time I could muster I would break my rule of not copying my records on tape for anybody and try to transcribe for them the nearly 200 Ossman records I believed myself to have. (Incidentally, they own two not in my collection — a 10-inch Zonophone of "Donnybrook - mislabeled "Dannybrook" Fair", and a 12-inch Victor of "Banjo Lize," made with Len Spencer.) I have been working on this project in odd moments, but at this writing - Sunday, November 22 - still don't have it completed.

Vess recalled that he formerly lived in Harrisburg, Pa. - I believe he and Sue met and were married there - and that one of the photos I sent him showed five members of the Record Maker Troupe - Vess Ossman, Theodore Morse, Albert Campbell, Byron G. Harlan and Arthur Collins - visiting Troop's Music Store at Harrisburg in April, 1917.

"I had no idea," Vess said, "that my grandfather had been in that store, but not long ago, when I was in Harrisburg I went into it and found that Mr. Troop, who is now 82 years old, has a large framed copy of that group picture hanging upstairs."

Having the recorder along, I took advantage of the chance to preserve for posterity some remarks of Vess and Sue, as well as of Don Levitt, who had modestly declined to speak when offered the opportunity at the Abramson's. I suppose he decided on the second solicitation that he might as well give in and get it over with.

Perhaps you would be interested in some of the comments made in the Ossman apartment that lovely October Sunday afternoon. Vess came first. He said:

"My wife and I will be forever grateful to you, Jim, for what you have done. It's been a pleasure meeting you and Don this afternoon. Next spring we're expecting a visit from my Aunt Annadele. . . and if and when she does come we'll be only too glad to drive down and spend a few days with you. We're looking forward to it. And thank you once again for everything you have done for us."

Sue was called on next and, in a voice vibrant with emotion, she exclaimed:

"Jim, you're every bit as nice a guy as I thought you would be! If you could only see and know what happiness you have brought to the Ossman family with your articles, your recordings and the pictures you sent me, . . . you'd never know how happy it made them all feel. I also want to tell you it gave my husband, Vess, a chance to visit with his Uncle Ray . . . If we had just cut off that visit ten days we would not have had a chance to see him, for he passed away ten days after we were there. Thanks again, Jim, for all you have done."

Somewhat taken aback, I replied: "Well, Sue and Vess, you make feel awfully good, but a little bit humble and undeserving at that, because I don't know that I deserve all that you have said, but I'm certainly glad

(Continued on page 45)

RUTH HARRINGTON, who became Mrs. Vess L. Ossman, Jr. and the mother of Jim Walsh's friend, Vess Ossman III of Arlington, Va.

OLD PRINTS--PAINTINGS--MAPS

(SEE COVER)

This historical and famous painting is illustrated from the collections of the Library of Congress.

The printed inscription at the bottom of the illustration describes it as "Washington Delivering His Inaugural Address, April, 1789, in the Old City Hall, New York." It was painted by Thomas H. Matteson. The engraving was made by H. S. Sadd in 1849.

PRINTS WANTED

WANTED: Currier & Ives prints. Give title and condition. Especially want Shakers near Lebanon, Battle of Bentonville, Franklin's Experiment, Dartmouth College, Neptune House. — A. R. Davison, East Aurora, N. Y. f6069

WANTED: A. B. Frost prints, sketches, etc., also Lanier's book on Frost. — Henry M. Reed, 270 Broad St., Bloomfield, N. J. f124431

CURRIER & IVES WANTED: Large sizes only. Also large prints of City Views printed before 1886. — Camilla Lucas, Inc., 3 East 28th St., New York, N. Y. ja124661

WANTED by collector: Important Currier & Ives; Winter scenes, railroad subjects, clipper ships and sporting. — T. M. Reece, Boonville, N. C. mh120821

WANTED: Nos. 3, 5 and 9 to complete set of 12 lithographed illustrations for "Uncle Tom's Cabin," published by Lemercier, Paris. — Bryan, 5301 Brook Road, Richmond, Va. ja1612

PRINTS FOR SALE

EVERY KIND OF PRINT except Americana. Lace valentines; silhouettes; old playing cards; gold paper edgings and ornaments. Will buy valentines before 1875; silhouettes if labelled. — K. Gregory, 222 East 71st, New York 21, N.Y. f120422

ORIGINAL colored French fashion prints. 5½x8½", $1; 7½x10½", $2; 10½x14½", $3. 25c handling. — Connecticut Antiques, Pomfret Center, Conn. ap3882

EXQUISITE prints illustrating Fairy Tales, by Dulac. Published 1910. Prints 9x12" (can be trimmed). Perfect condition, $1 each plus 25c handling. — Connecticut Antiques, Pomfret Center, Conn. ap3614

CURRIER & IVES and other early American prints. State wants, or send $1 for price list of over 400 prints, credited on order. — Jacques Schurre, 280 9th Ave., New York, N.Y. 10001. f64201

FOR SALE: Hand colored artist's proof, 4½"x30¾", from set of elegant steel engravings of Benjamin Franklin at the Court of France, 1778. In lovely heavy frame, complete with glass. In top condition. Best offer takes. — Hallett Cole, 191 East Hind Drive, Honolulu 16, Hawaii. f40801

BIRD and flower prints and maps $1 to $25. Send wants. — E. Nevitt, P.O. Box 469, Oshkosh, Wis. mh3882

FOR SALE: Prints from Ladies' Magazine, Godey's Book, and French Fashion Magazines, dating from 1785 to 1920. — Patricia Robinson, 198 Bartlett Ave., Springfield, Mass. 01202 n12871

WANTED

- Still Life
- Farm Scene
- Marine

ARGOSY GALLERY

116 East 59th Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.

tfc

KNOW YOUR CURRIER & IVES?

"Currier & Ives Illustrated." Many interesting Curriers pictured. Price 50c.

"List of 360 Large Folio Curriers & Values." Price 50c.

"List of 366 Small Folio Curriers & Values." Price 50c.

ROMEY

Box 291, Bluffton, Indiana

tfc

NEW PRINT PRICE GUIDE

Handbook lists prices on approximately 6,000 prints of Currier & Ives, Kellogg & other print makers. Price $4.00 postpaid.

E. G. Warman Publishing Co.
8-10 Frankhooover Street
Uniontown, Penna.

tfc

OLD METALS

(Continued from page 44)

and finely pointed noses; the bad ones have bulging eyes and bulbous noses. Other wayang figures are made of wood and leather.

The cylindrical brass box in the photograph is a wayang accessory, containing a puppet head-dress of gaily decorated dried buffalo skin. The box is enhanced with carved wayang figures; against foliated background, they are contained in arched panels with alternating panel-details of diaper designs. The cover, with central lotus medallion, is decorated with floral and geometric patterns.

—O—

Animal-Style will appear in the March issue of HOBBIES Magazine. Indonesian Decorative Design, Part V:

PAINTINGS WANTED

WANTED: Quality oils, water colors, drawings, miniatures by known though not necessarily noteworthy artists, pre-1800 collections of signed etchings, engravings, prints, artist's proofs, special book plates, manuscripts, and early printed pieces of artists, sculptors, gilders, metalworkers, and those supplying them materials. Artists' tools and supplies, paintings by or information about Taylor Baker. Price first letter.—Robert P. Weimann, 4 Prospect St., Ansonia, Conn. ja120215

HITLER and other Nazi portraits, also bronzes, etc. Price and stamped envelope please. — Disco, 2503 Third, Milwaukee, Wis. mh6675

THREE MEMORABLE DAYS

(Continued from page 41)

if I have done anything to give you pleasure and bring you into communication with these long-missing relatives." I then called on Don, and he came through with:

"... I have found this entire afternoon fascinating — one of the most fascinating since the last time I went to visit you, Jim, in Vinton. This has been particularly interesting because of ... the very interesting people we have met. And to me it has been doubly interesting to see another facet of your many-faceted personality, in the remarkably fine things you have done for so many richly deserving people."

I thanked Don and said I wished Roger, Nipper, Petey and Lucky Jim were present to say a few words. "I've been sitting here," I said, "wondering what they are thinking about the prolonged absence of their Papa."

"I'll bet they'll have plenty to say when you get home," Vess interposed, and I went on: "I'll bet Roger has gone down the hill a hundred times, wanting to walk home (Continued on page 49)

WANTED
Antique Penny Banks and Toys of Good Quality
Also Toy Catalogs
Correspondence invited and given prompt attention.

SALLY ERATH
745 Fifth Ave., New York 22, N. Y. tfo

HUBERT B. WHITING

40 Friend St.
Wakefield,
Mass. 01880

WANTED
Old Iron Penny Banks,
Still and Mechanical tfo

MECHANICAL BANKS WANTED
BREAD WINNER, BUFFALO BUCKING, GERMANIA EXCHANGE, GIANT IN TOWER, LION HUNTER, RED RIDING HOOD, NORTH POLE, FOWLER and OTHER RARE BANKS and FINE TOYS.

FRANK LAUGHLIN

1134 East Douglas
Wichita, Kansas tfo

WANTED

ANTIQUA TOYS AND MECHANICAL BANKS

Toy Jobbers Catalogs

Describe fully and state price

PERELMAN
ANTIQUA TOY MUSEUM

339 Winding Way
Merion, Penna.

MECHANICAL BANKS & TOY PISTOLS

ESPECIALLY WANT MECHANICAL BANKS:

- |                          |                       |
|--------------------------|-----------------------|
| • BOWERY BANK            | • PREACHER IN THE     |
| • ROYAL TRICK            | • PULPIT              |
| • ELEPHANT (Tin)         | • TARGET              |
| • BOWLING ALLEY          | • BRITISH LION (Tin)  |
| • BANK                   | • RIVAL               |
| • RED RIDING HOOD        | • SENTRY BANK         |
| • FOOTBALL               | • (Tin)               |
| • (Colored man kicks     | • DARKY BUST          |
| ball)                    | • (Tin)               |
| • SCHLEY BOTTLING        | • TOAD IN DEN (Tin)   |
| UP CERVERA               | • PERFECTION          |
| • PRESTO                 | • REGISTERING         |
| • (Penny changes to      | • BANK                |
| quarter)                 | • GIANT IN TOWER      |
| • JAPANESE BALL          | • DAREY               |
| TOSSER                   | • FISHERMAN           |
| • (Tin, wind-up)         | • FROG ON ARCH        |
| • SHOOT THAT HAT         | • TRACK (Tin)         |
| • BANK                   | • TIME LOCK           |
| • TOMMY BANK             | • SAVINGS             |
| • (Prone, Soldier Shoots | • QUEEN VICTORIA      |
| Gun)                     | • JUBILEE BANK 1887   |
| • BULL & BEAR BANK       | • SAFE DEPOSIT        |
| • COASTING BANK          | • BANK (tin elephant) |
| • MUSICAL SAVING         | • WINNER SAVINGS      |
| • BANK                   | • (Tin)               |
| • (You pay—1 play)       |                       |

Pistols:

- |                   |                  |
|-------------------|------------------|
| • CAMERA          | • TWO DOGS ON    |
| • DOLPHIN         | • BENCH          |
| • TORPEDO Shooter | • OSCAR WILDE    |
| • HUMPTY, DUMPTY  | • BOMB           |
| • (Three hands)   | • CANNON BOMB    |
| • SAILING SHIP    | • BABY HEAD BOMB |

Also want Cast Iron horse drawn carriages, animated bell ringing pull toys, old toy automobiles, old catalogs showing banks & toy pistols.

F. H. GRIFFITH

P.O. Box 10644 Pittsburgh 35, Pa. tfx

MISCELLANEOUS WANTED

ILLUSTRATED Catalog, 32 typical old toys & prices I pay. Catalog $1 refunded on purchase of toy for my collection. — Lawrence Altman Antiques, Toys & Bells of the World, 4703 McPherson Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63108. au124032

MOVIE OUTFITS, films. Toy lead casting sets. World War I aviation. — Pete Zarilla, 600 Virginia Ave., Rochester, Pa. 15074. je126121

STANDARD GAUGE Deluxe toy trains wanted. — Alden Miller, 3212 34th Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minn. 55406. ap6084

THREE MEMORABLE DAYS

(Continued from page 45)

with me . . . but they won't see my bright and shining face until about 6:00 o'clock Tuesday morning."

Mr. and Mrs. Ossman returned the photographs I had lent them and let me take three of theirs home for copying - one of Vess himself as a small boy; one of his mother, an actress named Ruth Harrington, taken when she was a member of "The Red Rose Company," and one of his father, Vess L. Ossman, Jr., who looks in that youthful picture, to have been a dead ringer for my friend, Bob Haumesser, news director of Roanoke television station WSLs.

There were a few more remarks centering on hopes for future meetings, and then Don and I got up to go, reluctantly, as we had at Chevy Chase. After I shook hands with Vess, Sue and I started to exchange handclaps but thought better of it and kissed. Don and I then drove back, in the now declining afternoon, to the section of Bowie in which he lives. It is known as Leavitt Town. Don, however, admits it wasn't named for him.

Stuart was still a sick boy, but Nadine provided us with a bountiful and delicious supper, after which we played some records of varying degrees of antiquity which they had picked up in Washington area stores. I especially liked the Berceuse from "Jocelyn" sung by Edmond Clement. At a reasonable hour I went to bed, looking forward to the morrow's meeting with the Library of Congress officials, the Emyln Williams recital and, finally, to the soon-to-be reunion with my furry family at home. I tried once more to send them reassuring messages before I dropped off to sleep.

(To be continued)

BANKS WANTED

PLEASE NOTE my mechanical bank display ad in this section, listing various wants. — F. H. Griffith, P.O. Box 10644, Pittsburgh 35, Pa. tfx

OLD mechanical and still banks, toys, describe, state price, condition. — Scofield's, Box 467, Ridgefield, Conn. f12069

OLD mechanical and still banks, collections bought. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate, Troy, Ohio. mh12238

OLD IRON still and mechanical banks. Describe fully, price. — Sidney Partridge, Marlboro, N. H. ap3422

MECHANICAL BANKS FOR SALE

HAVE nice selection of still banks and few mechanicals. Please enclose stamp for list. — A. Hotze, 9326 McKenzie Rd., Afton 23, Mo. s12804

PENNY PINEAPPLE cast iron Mechanical coin banks, cast iron circus wagons. Picture brochure and prices 15c — High, Dept. H4, 1219 Girard, Wyomissing, Pa. 19810. mh6637

We are accepting orders for
REPAIR SERVICE
on
MECHANICAL
BANKS and TOYS
We also buy old banks.
GEORGE W. BAUER
P. O. Box 145
Pottstown, Pa. tfo

MECHANICAL BIRD BANK

$3.50 plus postage

ATTRACTIVELY LITHOGRAPHED OLD STYLE GERMAN METAL. Turn the crank, bird comes out of his house, picks up coin in beak, goes back into house and makes deposit. About 5½" tall. A carefully made West German import and an extraordinary bargain. Works perfectly every time. Supply limited. Delivery slow after present supply is sold. Get all you will need now. Satisfaction Guaranteed.

AVALON ANTIQUES
47371 Van Dyke—Utica, Mich. 48087 tfo

Please mention HOBBIES when replying to advertisements.

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Three Memorable Days

In and Near Washington

By JIM WALSH

PART II

1. I Visit the Library of Congress

Don Leavitt and I had rather a late breakfast before we left his home in Bowie, Md., on the morning of Monday, October 26, and drove to the Library of Congress. His small son, Stuart, was still ill with a virus ailment, which Susan, Stuart's elder sister by two or three years, was soon to take.

Mrs. Leavitt had been hoping to hear Emlyn Williams give his Dickens recital that evening in the Library's Coolidge auditorium, and said she would still try to make it if Stuart improved sufficiently. However, he didn't and having characteristically forgotten to bring my ticket from home, I used Nadine's that night.

As we rode along, Don and I agreed that October is the best time to visit Washington because the Capitol City's notoriously trying climate is then on its best behavior.

I also mentioned one thing that had helped me make up my mind to come. This was the fact that the Williams recital would take place on the 26th.

My only sizable superstition — which has been proved true so often it actually shouldn't be considered superstitious — is that nearly all the important things in my life happen on the 26th of the month, and most of them in April and October.

Since the date was October 26, the omens, I told Don, seemed truly auspicious.

Arrived at the Library, Don parked and went to his office, but I strolled across the street and took several color slides of the Capitol being made ready for the inauguration. One slide came out exceptionally fine with beautiful, glowing autumn colors. I am sending it for illustration with this article, even though I know it cannot appear to equal advantage in black and white.

During the next hour or so I revisited the Library's recording laboratory and met many staff members. Whenever I was introduced to a lady worker she invariably asked about the health of my cats. It was evident my reputation as a cat lover had been spread throughout the Library of Congress — by, I suspect, Mr. Leavitt.

A bookcase in Don's office contained some rare old record catalogs. I did the best job I could taking notes from them, not only for myself but for the benefit of all record collectors who read my HOBBIES articles.

I was also able to examine a file of The Phonogram, published by the Edison Company's advertising manager, Herbert A. Shattuck, during the years 1902 through 1922. Most of these I had never before seen. Now I'll share my notes with you, even though it means some interruptions of this article's continuity.

II. Notes from "the Phonogram" Catalogs

The first several issues of the Phonogram were remarkably uninteresting to a record collector. Mr. Shattuck seemed to be more inclined to write facetiously about various kinds of remarkable birds than about phonographs and records.

I soon discovered, however, that a good many records had been made on the huge concert cylinders, 5 inches in diameter, that never appeared on the smaller standard cylinders. And in 1900 the larger records were numbered separately.

The July, 1900, Phonogram solved a mystery of years standing. When I visited the late John L. Nortons, Sr. and Jr., of Roxbury, Mass., in October, 1946, they played for me a concert cylinder the title of which they understood to be "Pickings from 'Puck,'" and the artist's name as Felix Haley.

Immediately before the clearly announced "Pickings from 'Puck,'" there were a couple of words which John and Jack insisted were "I hollered!"

They contended that the comedian was recording over and over by the "round;" and apparently hadn't spoken loud enough on the preceding try. Then, maintained the Nortons, somebody had said, "Holler louder next time."

So the comedian, before making his announcement had turned and replied, "I hollered!"

I contended that this was ridiculous and that the word "hollered" wouldn't have been used, although I admitted I couldn't say just what those opening words were.

Well, the Phonogram revealed that the performer's name was Felix Haney, not Haley; and the record number was B409. As for the title, it was "Hi Holler on 'Pickings from 'Puck.'"

In other words, "Hi Holler" (not "I hollered!") was a "rube" character, like "Uncle Josh," and it was he who was supposed to be reading funny—I didn't find them very funny—passages from "Puck."

Mr. Haney, who was a member of the "Way Down East" Company, also recorded B408, "Hi Holler Out Hunting." I wished that the Nortons could have lived to learn the truth about "Hi Holler."

A month earlier, the Phonogram cleared away the mystery of the first name of a whistler who had been known to me only as "Angela." Standard two-minute cylinder 7453, a whistling solo, "I Could Pick de Winner Wid My Two Eyes Shut" was listed as being by Nina Angela.

There's a good chance that Miss Angela was the first woman professional whistler to make a record.

August, 1900, brought eight concert-

The big white house to which Jim Walsh returned after his Washington visit.

The two small black objects are Roger (near the steps) and Lucky Jim, walking toward him. They probably kept many watchful vigils while their master was away.

Two views of the Capitol at Washington being prepared for the presidential inauguration.

Emlyn Williams as Charles Dickens.

size banjo records by Vess L. Ossman. And in July, violin records had been listed by "Wallace Fredericks."

I don't think I'm jumping to conclusions when I say this must have been Frederick Wallace Hager. He was Charles D'Almaine's only rival as a cylinder record violinist when the 20th century began.

How many cylinder collectors have heard a record by May Kelso, who made a few duets with John Bieling around 1900? The November, 1900, Phonogram candidly admitted she was known on the stage as Maym Kelso, but this was changed to May for phonograph use because the machine wouldn't clearly reproduce that final "m" when the announcement was made.

Miss Kelso began appearing in farce-comedy in 1888 and spent three and one-half years with the cast of the Russell Comedians in "The City Directory." Becoming tired of the stage, she "retired," but returned in the autumn of 1898 and in 1899 sang in "Broadway to Tokyo."

Will N. Steele, a monologist, was born in New York, June 25, 1871. I learned, and was a partner of Thomas W. Murray in "A Night at the Players Club" and "Talking It Over." He began making Edison records in 1899.

Still in November, 1900, the Phonogram said the first Negro recording artist, George W. Johnson, "The Whistling Coon," was born in 1846 and moved North in 1873. He came close to being the very first recording artist, for he was said to have made tin-foil records in 1877, the year Edison invented the phonograph.

The same issue brought a surprise in a biographical sketch of one of the most popular and famous of old-time recordings artists, Byron G. Harlan.

When Harlan died in 1936 his age was said to be 75 and I have always seen the date of his birth given as 1861. This article, however, said he was born in Kansas in 1857, which would have made him 42 when he began singing for records in 1899.

He got his first chance in the show business when Gus Brigham, a traveler for "the Yanes Piano House," heard him singing while he was working as a hotel clerk in South Dakota, and told the manager of the Hess Opera Company about him.

Harlan became a member of Newton Beers' "Lost in London" company, then was with Hoyt's "A Texas Steer" for three and one-half years, playing the part of the private secretary. After that he had his own "Lost in London" company before Thomas A. Edison engaged him to make records.

On the basis of photographs and other "circumstantial evidence," I believe the 1861 date, rather than 1857, is correct for the year of Harlan's birth.

Billy Golden and George Diamond were mentioned as the first two "professionals" to sing for the phonograph. They were said to have made 10 steamboat trips from St. Louis to New York as singing and dancing comedians.

Golden had worked on southern plantations, picking cotton, and learned his flawless Negro dialect. He had been on the stage 26 years. And he was to continue to make records for almost another quarter of a century.

In December, 1900, it was revealed that James H. White remade some of the "Casey" monologs after Russell Hunting went to England in 1899. White later was manager of Edison's English business before starting his own White Record Co. He had been a photographer for the early Edison movies.

From the January, 1901, issue I learned, or was reminded, that my old friend, the late Albert C. Campbell, was born in Brooklyn in 1872 and made his theatrical debut with the Philadelphia-Manhattan Opera Company.

The article said Calvin G. Child of the Gramophone Company, who later became head of Victor's Red Seal activities, supervised Campbell's first recording session.

I was surprised to learn that Campbell was soloist in 1900-01 with the Edison Male Quartet, for I had imagined that this ensemble from the beginning had been the same as the Haydn Quartet combination.

The January, 1901, Phonogram also said that Prof. D. Wormser, whose zither solos were recorded by several companies over a good many years, was born in 1850 in Landau, South Germany.

A baritone recording artist of the period, M. A. Guarini, was born in 1865 at Mirabelle, Eclano, Italy, and was said to be a member of the "noble family." He had been admitted to the Naples Conservatory of Music in December, 1883.

A month later came the information that Charles D'Almaine was born in Hull, England, June 13, 1866, to French and English parents, both musical. He began study of the violin at the age of 10, "concertized" for two years through Great Britain, and as a boy prodigy played for Princess Louise at Inverary Castle, Scotland.

He studied for five years in London with J. T. Carrodus and was his favorite pupil. In 1889 D'Almaine came to the United States with the Balmoral Scotch Concert Party and remained in this country.

I was interested to find that Eugen Ysaye, the celebrated Belgian violinist, had praised the playing of Belle Richards, one of D'Almaine's pupils, and predicted she would become the greatest woman violinist. But I'm afraid this is the first time I ever heard of Belle Richards.

February, 1901, brought the news that W. H. Sedgewick had made a sound-effects record depicting noises made by a train. And in April came the information that A. L. Sweet, who made Edison cornet records, was born in 1875 in Dansville, N. Y.

A photograph of Senorita Maria Godoy (the first time I had seen her given name) was published in August. The month preceding there had been one of Harry Macdonough, who in three years had won wide popularity as a tenor recorder of sentimental ballads.

Also in August was some comment on Marguerite Newton, then a well-known soprano record maker. I remember that the late John Bieling told Stephen Fasset that Miss Newton was married to George P. Watson, the yodler. But when she died, more than 20 years ago, the Billboard published an obituary, which I clipped but have lost, and there was no mention of Watson, who had died in 1926.

Emlyn Williams as himself.

The Phonogram said Miss Newton sang as a contralto when she was 15 and was known as "The Little Annandale." Two years later she was with Conreid's Opera Company, and a year after that with the Chicago Church Choir Opera Co. She had diphtheria and retired for two years, but then joined Kreling's Road Opera Company in San Francisco.

In 1892, after appearing at Koster and Bial's, she "drifted into vaudeville." While she was in Cleveland in 1893, "Mr. Guion, manager of the Ohio Phonograph Co., decided she would make a good phonograph singer." She had been working four years for Edison in 1901.

Next I came to a Berliner record catalog, which had been owned by Calvin Child. It contained this reference to Vess Ossman II's illustrious grandfather, "The Banjo King," the original Vess, and expressed this opinion of the tone quality of Berliner records:

"Ossman, the Greatest Banjo Soloist, says: 'The tone quality is so nearly like the actual sound of the instrument itself as to deceive the most expert.'"

Artists making Berliner records in—There's a good chance that Miss Antome only as "Angela." Standard two-

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry he cannot reply to most of the mail he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and cannot tell anyone where they can be bought or sold, except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot exchange tape recordings or make tapes, cannot supply back copies of this magazine, and has no record catalogs or other phonograph reference material for sale.

cluded "Sousa's own band." It, under the direction of Arthur Pryor, rather than the cantankerous Mr. Sousa who had a contempt for the talking machine and originated the derisive expression, "canned music," had been playing for Berliner for five years.

Also included were the U. S. Marine Band, directed by William H. Santelmann; the Royal Italian Band, conducted by Signor G. Peluso; the Metropolitan Orchestra (a title which Victor took over from Berliner), directed by S. H. Kendle and Frank J. Kelly.

Herbert L. Clarke, Walter E. Rogers, Emil Keneke, Thomas Clark, and John Martin, were cornet soloists. Simone Manita played the euphonium, and Signor Palma, the trumpet.

Among the vocalists and comedians were George Broderick, J. J. Fisher, S. H. Dudley, Press Eldridge, Dan W. Quinn, and Arthur Collins. It was a surprise to find him singing "On the Road to Mandalay."

Others were Harry Macdonough, Edward M. Favor, Joseph Natus, Will F. Denny, F. A. Giannini, E. Francisco (a pseudonym for Emilio de Gogorza), Herr Carl Bernhardt, and Florence Hayward. She was doing duets with Macdonough.

Included, too, were the Haydn Quartet of Rycroft, Macdonough, Dudley, and Hooley; the Original Lyric Trio; and "Messrs. Marion, Miller, Marsh, and Rapp" doing "Blind Tom" on 0647.

There were some "minstrel first parts," by Dudley, Hooley, Macdonough, Frank E. Banta, the Metropolitan Orchestra and Chorus; and some comic sketches and recitations by Billy Golden, William F. Hooley, Len Spencer, and George Graham.

Time was running out, so I didn't try to copy much information about the titles of the Berliner artists' records.

III. Library Conference and Emlyn Williams Recital

The Library of Congress has a room for visitors who feel tired or ill to lie down in. So I took a brief "rest break" after making all the notes there was time for, and before going with Don to lunch at the restaurant in the Supreme Court building. With us was Bill Lichtenwanger, head of the Library's music reference division.

One of those odd coincidences that seem to occur more often to me than to anyone else was involved in my meeting with the genial Mr. Lichtenwanger, for during World War II he was a government cryptanalyst and worked with my brother, Chad Walsh. In fact, Bill remarked, "Chad broke me in."

I obtained a guard's permission to take some pictures of the Supreme courtroom, but the result was disappointing. The room was locked, and dark and although I used flash bulbs all I got was some vivid coloring from the red curtains at the door.

Since returning home I have had fun telling awe-stricken friends that while I was dining in the restaurant Chief Justice Earl Warren came in, looked intently at me, walked over and asked if I were not Jim Walsh, explaining that his wife had taken HOBBIES for many years and that he never missed reading "Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists."

It has been worth relating that whopper to observe the bulging eyes of my listeners and have them say, "Did he really?" But I have always gone farther and saddened them by admitting there isn't a word of truth to the yarn. The court wasn't in session and I didn't see any of the justices in the cafeteria-style eating place or anywhere else.

In mid-afternoon Don and I had a conference with half a dozen Library officials concerning my desire to bequeath my records, phonographs, reference material, diaries, letters, phonographs, and heaven knows what-all to the Library.

I was assured the Library would be glad to accept it and that a form would be sent to my Roanoke lawyer, Arthur E. Smith, for his guidance in preparing the bequest.

I made careful note of all the names of all the dignitaries with whom I talked, but, with my invariable bad luck in losing things, the sheet containing those notes is the one thing I brought back from Washington that I can't find. So, rather than rely on memory and run the risk of omitting names of any of those who treated me with such courtesy and consideration, I shall omit names altogether.

Don and I had supper in the restaurant where we had eaten lunch the day before, then returned to the Library for the Emlyn Williams recital.

We went into the Coolidge Auditorium. Incidentally it was named, not for President Calvin Coolidge, but for Mrs. Elizabeth Coolidge, a Washington woman who had provided the money to have it set aside as a center for hearing string quartet recitals and other fine music.

Don told me as we entered, that Mr. Williams was appearing under the auspices of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Poetry and Literature Fund, and that the gracious donor, Mrs. Whittall was present. She proved to be a black-clad lady, aged 96, sitting in the rear of the auditorium, the seats of which are arranged in rows sloping gradually downward.

I had hoped to see Emlyn Williams during the afternoon, but had been told he wouldn't be available until after his performance, at which time he could be called on in his dressing room.

At the appointed hour the curtain rose and it seemed that Charles Dickens, complete with red carnation and red watch fob, strode briskly upon the stage. The desk he used was the exact replica of the one used in Dickens' public readings 100 years ago.

"Dickens," of course, was Williams. But now it occurs to me that, to give you an idea of his performance, I may as well quote the account which I had promised to prepare for the Roanoke Times entertainment section, and which I did write within a few minutes after I returned to work Wednesday afternoon.

It was done in haste because Jesse Chapman, editor of the Saturday entertainment section, told me that if he had the article "right now" he could use it the following Saturday, while it was still timely; otherwise there would be a delay of a week or more.

Under the heading of "Emlyn Williams, Dickens Revisited," the piece was accompanied by a picture of "Emlyn Williams, made up as Charles Dickens" and one of another person who was identified only as "Walsh" and as a "Staff Writer."

Here is the text:

"A man dead for more than 90 years came to life in Washington, D.C., last Monday evening.

"The scene of the apparent resurrection was the Coolidge auditorium of the Library of Congress. Before a capacity audience the curtain rose and revealed nothing much except a reading desk whose color ranged somewhere between pink and red.

"There was a few moments wait and then onto the stage strode briskly—so it seemed to the viewers—the greatest English Victorian novelist, Charles Dickens, who died June 9, 1870.

"Dickens" bowed stiffly to his audience, carefully removed and folded his white gloves, which he laid in a special compartment of his desk, picked up a book, frowned — it was not the one he wanted—then picked up another and began reading from an early chapter of 'Our Mutual Friend.' And as he read it was almost impossible to believe that Charles Dickens himself was not on stage, reading from his own books, as he did from 1853 to 1870.

"It wasn't Dickens, of course. The reader was the distinguished English playwright, author and actor, Emlyn Williams, who, like me, is a member of the Dickens Fellowship. He and I had corresponded and he had let it be known that he wanted me to attend his performance.

"That performance, as I have indicated, was truly remarkable. The reading desk was an exact replica of Dickens' own, now preserved by the Dickens Fellowship in Dickens House, London, and Williams' make-up was almost uncannily realistic. He evidently had been at pains, too, to find out all he could about the timbre of Dickens' voice, his characteristic intonations and the manner in which he impersonated his immortal 'brain children.' The result was a work of art.

"Williams read scenes from five of the standbys he has been giving for several years: 'Moving in Society,' from 'Our Mutual Friend'; 'Paul,' from 'Domby and Son'; 'Mr. Bob Sawyer Gives a Bachelor's Party,' from 'Pickwick Papers'; 'Mr. Chops' from 'A House to Let,' and 'The Fancy Ball,' from 'A Tale of Two Cities.'

"Also included were four new adaptations Williams is offering for the first time this season, including 'A Call Upon

RECORDS WANTED

THE ONLY RECORDS I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

THE CURIOUS HISTORY OF MUSIC BOXES

242 pages, 133 halftone illustrations, checklist of music box manufacturers; also checklist of clockmakers, watchmakers. Widely acclaimed.

Published by

HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago 5, Ill.

a Strange Man,' from 'The Black Veil,' one of Dickens' first short stories, published in 1836; and 'Once Upon a Time,' from 'The Battle of Life.'

"Emlyn Williams himself is a slightly built, white-haired man with a gentle voice and a friendly manner. Meeting him in person, it was hard to believe he had seemed the veritable Charles Dickens just a few minutes before."

I have just noticed for the first
(Continued on page 41)

RECORDS WANTED

WILL BUY phonograph records any amount of the 20's and 30's. Will pay cash for information leading to purchase of any such collections; blues; hillbilly; jazz; personality; piano rolls; army & navy discs; 16" transcriptions; radio shows; speeches; singer; celebrities. I have over 450,000 out of print 78 records. Send for wants. — Jacob S. Schneider, 413 Amsterdam Ave., New York, N.Y. 10024. au88831

WANTED: Recording of the following tenors: Craig Campbell, Geoffrey O'Hara, Affre, Hamlin, Bonci, Giorgini, Cortis Gillon, John Harrison, Edward Lloyd, Jadowlker, Mieli, Slezak, Martinez-Patti, Erik Schmides, Tamagno, Zenatello, Zerola. Will pay good prices. — Thomas O'Shaughnessy, Box 281, Rochester, Minnesota. my3426

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. mh3084

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N.Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" lists 7500 numbers values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. ja124661

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — ARG, 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. my3632

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N. J. mh6867

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. d12867

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N.Y. my3683

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Domart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2889. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to L.P. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my128801

MEMORIES of World War I - LP recording with Nora Bayes, George M. Cohan, Irving Berlin, Enrico Caruso, Al Jolson, Gen. John J. Pershing, Billy Murray, John McCormack, etc. with original songs from 1914-1918. Send $5 to: Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. mh3407

UNUSUAL LIST of out of print operatic and classical vocal 78's. Finest condition. Priced low. List on request. — S. Weiss, 18 Roff Ave., Palisades Park, N.J. ap3234

I WILL LOAN my catalog of early vocal discs. Sentimental, humorous, personality, country western, minstrel, children's, sacred, historical, 56c to $1.12 each. Send deposit of $1 for 28 long pages. Return and get refund or deduct from first order. You can't lose. No instrumental or classic vocal list at this time. — Ray Hargraves, 8745 Florence Ave., Brentwood, Mo. 63117. mh3449

GIGLI complete operas, other vocal or orchestra albums, hundreds acoustic, electric 78's, imports, unusual labels. New lists. — Penn Courtney, 4817 Gilbert Drive, Shreveport, Louisiana. mh3483

Rare vocal & operatic records for sale. Collectors all over the world know my regular 48-page catalogues of vocal collectors' items, comprising Golden Age vocals on G&T, Fonotipia, Odeon, etc. Hundreds of rare electrics and pre-electrics. Are you on my mailing list? Write to Michael Wyler, "Stanholme," Woodside Road, West Moors, Dorset, England. my30231

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

WANT coin-operated Seeburg piano, (model H), stained glass doors. Plays drums, pipes, xylophone. Carved wooden statues on the front. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. ap3614

COIN OPERATED nickelodeons, orchestrons, Automatic Regina, Seeburg, Wurlitzer, Coinola, Deagan Una-fon Cal-Maple, band organ, lap organ, large music box with bells, etc. — Frank Curtiss, Saint Louis, Michigan. mh3234

Nickelodeons, orchestrons, calliopes, band organs, parts always wanted. Please save this ad for reference. — Frank Zottoli, 1042 Main St., Holden, Mass. mh1252

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder & old disc phonographs. Parts, reproducers and any catalogs and literature on the phonographs. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3863

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, bought, sold, repaired. 2 min. list 75c, 4 min. list 75c. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. ap122741

PHONOGRAPH with outside horn, any condition, parts, catalogs. Also Berliner, Johnson, Victor or 5" cylinder machine. Price. — Armand Scroby, 125 Western, Mansfield, Ohio. my3863

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. my3846

TWO EDISON PHONOGRAPHS. No. 1, S. No. 20795; No. 2, S. No. 54810. One has an attached morning glory horn and the other a large separate horn, both in good condition with 250 Edison cylinder records. — Jesse York, Tannery Rd., Box 130, Downsville, N. Y. ap3027

FOR SALE: Antique phonographs. Something new on old phonographs. Illustrated booklet, prices and pictures of over 50 phonographs for sale. — Booklet $1.25 ppd. Early cylinder phonos with morning glory horns, flat disc, Edison, Columbia, Victor shown and priced. Use phonos for decorating, music, and conversation pieces. Records supplied with all phonos. Use booklet as pricing or selection guide only $1.25. — W. H. Miller, 1017 Westgate Road, Troy, Ohio. 45373. mh30401

FOR SALE: Early cylinder and disc phonographs. Cylinder and disc records, list 25c. Old musical instruments, sheet music. — Coppennoll's Antiques, P.O. Box 6, Palatine Bridge, N.Y. my3483

PHONOGRAPHS REPAIRED

REPRODUCER REPAIRING. Have original Edison styluses all types. Reproducers for sale. Stamp for reproducer brochure. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. ap3253

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Wurlitzer Orchestration Coin operated. Excellent condition. Mills violin single with rolls. — E. S. Laugh-ton, York Beach, Maine. mh3676

PIANOS & ROLLS

WANT all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Welte, Ampico, odd or unusual rolls. Lists unnecessary. — Box 787H, Kemah, Texas. my124631

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists, Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte Mignon, Deluxe, 88 note regular, blues and rags. — VI & Si's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N. Y. ap3234

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America. $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. my6234

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. ap3234

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. sl2698

SHEET MUSIC. Old songs 250,000 alphabet order catalogued. No list yet. Price 50c to $1. Inquiries. Please send self addressed stamped letter to — Robert Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Los Angeles 26, Calif. Rm. 412. my66601

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Hol-loway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. mh3403

TAPED RECORDINGS

ACOUSTIC and elect. operatic recordings on your tapes, 50c per selection. For information and list send stamp to: "Recordings," 48 Revere Ave., Northampton, Mass. mh3483

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my56p

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 35)

time that, either because of a printer's error or a desire to make the article fit into an allotted space, a few lines have been left out of the paragraph I wrote describing the four new scenes Williams presented.

They should include "Moving Higher in Society," from "Little Dorrit," and "A Bedtime Story for a Good Child," from the "Nurse's Story" article in "The Uncommercial Traveler." Williams brought down the house with this concluding offering, a masterpiece of serio-comic horror, relating how one of Dickens' childhood nurses had frightened him into hysterics by telling him gruesome stories, then wished him pleasant dreams.

Sitting in front of Don and me during the performance were Edward N. Waters, assistant chief of the Library of Congress Music Division, and Mrs. Waters, a charming lady who seemed pleased that I had brought two books for Mr. Williams to sign — one his autobiography, "George" (his full name is George Emlyn Williams) and the other an account of his acting career.

Mr. Waters is author of "Victor Herbert: A Life in Music," which I have. He asked me if I knew where he could obtain the six 'cello records Herbert made for Victor in 1911-12 (I believe he said he has two), but I don't own any, and couldn't tell him where they could be had.

Two or three rows below me sat a stocky, middle-aged man with a heavy mustache. His appearance seemed tantalizingly familiar. I felt he was someone I should know, and he turned several times and looked at me as if he thought he ought to recognize me.

I mentioned him to Don, who said the man attended most of the events in Coolidge Auditorium, but Don had never known who he was. It seems to me now that the gentleman had a striking resemblance to photographs of the late William Faulkner, whom I never saw in person. Perhaps it was the similarity to Faulkner that gave me the impression I had met the man somewhere.

The audience having reluctantly permitted Emlyn Williams to leave the stage, after giving him an ovation based on admiration for the learning and skill with which he had brought Charles Dickens back to life, Don and I slowly made our way back stage.

Our progress was impeded by the large number of other Williams' admirers who had the same idea. Several persons were ahead of us, but none took up much time. So within a few minutes I was receiving a cordial greeting from Mr. Williams, who graciously autographed the books and photos I had brought. He said he had wanted to see me during the afternoon and would have phoned but didn't know any number that would reach me. I gave him copies of HOBBIES for December, 1958, and January, 1959, which included my article on the recordings from Dickens' works which had been done up to then, including two long-playing records which the accomplished gentleman before me had made and which I have.

I learned that he would be back in Washington in January, and we expressed hope for another, and longer, meeting. Then I left because there were still men and women waiting to tell Mr. Williams how much they had enjoyed his recital.

In the preceding paragraph I said I gave Mr. Williams two copies of HOBBIES, but, to be more accurate, I gave them, then took them away.

I didn't mean to do it, of course, but in picking up the autographed books and photos I also unthinkingly bore away the magazines — something I didn't discover until Don and I had gone to Union Station, where I expected within the next 30 minutes to board the train for an early morning reunion with Roger, Nipper, Petey, and Lucky Jim.

When I told Don what I had unintentionally done he said we would have time to drive back to the Library, a distance of only three or four blocks, and try to find Mr. Williams, to give him the HOBBIES a second time. We did go back, but the dressing room was dark and Emlyn Williams was gone.

I handed the magazines to Don, who said he would mail them, with a note of apology, to Mr. Williams the next day. As always with that sterling gentleman, Don Leavitt kept his word, and both he and I later received nice notes of appreciation from Mr. Williams.

IV. Home and Reunion With the "Family"

The train came, and Don and I separated with deep regret on my part, although the feeling was lightened by the knowledge that I should be at home somewhere around 6:00 o'clock the next morning, to greet four probably melancholic cats and let them know I didn't mean to leave them again any time soon.

I never can sleep on a train or bus, but there seemed nothing to do but curl up uncomfortably in a seat and try to pass the night. A feeling of intense discomfort still assails me when I think of those half dozen hours, but I added another to my vast collection of personal coincidences.

When the conductor began making his rounds, somebody called to him, and my sleepy-eyed astonishment was great when he replied: "Wait a minute until I can take this ticket from Mr. Walsh!" He then asked if I were still living in Vinton and how my cats were getting along.

Although he knew me I didn't recognize him, but hated to admit it. Many conductors who make the "run" between Roanoke and Washington live in Roanoke, so I assume he was one of the many Roanokers who knew me by sight but whom I don't know.

Lying curled up and contorted, I remembered that when I was returning on a bus from Washington in June, 1962, I took a seat behind the driver, who knew me at once, though I had believed him a stranger. He talked to me all the way into Roanoke about local politics and other topics with which we were both familiar.

I also remembered that when I had reached home from that bus ride, my dearly loved cat, Gray, who was to live only another three months, was waiting in the yard to greet me. As I had entered the house, Roger, Nipper, and Petey all came joyously, and poor Percy, the Pitiful Persian, had appeared a few minutes later, coming up through the basement door.

Within a month Petey had disappeared to be gone for 18 months, or until after Percy's death. As for Lucky Jim, he wasn't in the world, or even thought of in June, 1962.

I recalled that a picture of Gray was in the January, 1959, HOBBIES I had brought for Mr. Williams, and I kept thinking about a compassionate poem, entitled "A Message," which Dorothy Foster Brown, conductor of HOBBIES' Button Department, had written when she learned how I was grieving over the loss of Gray, whom I almost consider the only angel I have known swathed in cat fur.

This is what Miss Brown wrote:

"Dear friend and master, I am still
The cat you loved and knew;
I have not changed but simply wait
Our friendship to renew
"Because you cannot see me now
You think that I am dead;
But death is just a word, you know,
So please be comforted.
"In parting for a little time
We bow to fate's decree;
But my heart is filled with joy and pride
When you remember me.
"Don't grieve, dear master, but be sure
Some bright, celestial day
You will find again your faithful friend,
Your ever-loving Gray."

I'm sure if Gray knew of those sentiments Miss Brown attributes to him he would be grateful. Gray was so sweet and good there is nothing I can say that would remotely do him justice.

And so, with me intensely tired and intolerably sleepy but unable to drop off, the night wore away. Especially annoying were the long stops at several places, including Monroe, Va., (where "Steve," the engineer hero of "The Wreck of the Old 97" was given his orders); and Lynchburg.

The train stayed so long at these towns that I became familiar, staring gloomily out of the window, with the individual beauty of almost every small rock in the railway road-bed.

Shortly before 6:00 A.M., the train rattled into Vinton. It passed within 200 feet of the side of my house, and I was glad to see the shioned in the shape of an elephant's head. The entire body is often portrayed on textiles — alone or with other animals.

(Continued on page 44)

Wooden grave ornaments in Sumatra sometimes represent the deceased riding an elephant. A favorite decoration of Hindu-Javanese gold rings is the elephant design.

Designs of the Indonesian kris hilt usually represent the human figure. However, animal-style ornaments are also applied in this manner. Elephant-form kris hilts in the Djakarta Museum are made of silver, iron, brass, wood, and ivory.

These decorative designs are elaborately and artistically carved, engraved, and embossed. Some are encrusted with contrasting metals, enriched by repoussé work, damascened inlays and/or overlays.

The horse was taken to the Archipelago in ancient times. Bronze kettle-drums of the Dong-Son culture were decorated with designs of horses and horsemen. A stone image of an ancestor often represented a man on horseback.

Sumba Island, east of Java, has, from early times, been a horse-breeding country, so it is only natural to find this domesticated animal reproduced there in decorative design. Shawls worn by Sumba men show stylized figures of horses. These garments were made near Kampera, East Sumba.

Gold open-work medallions of Hindu-Javanese origin represent the sun god, Surya, on his horse. This same figure formed the keystone of a cupola on the sepulchral monument Sawentar, near Blitar, East Java. Museum examples include: Figures of a man on a horse and a kerbau — perhaps castings — superimposed on the upper portion of a bronze kettle from Borneo.

A Balinese iron pinang nut cutter, encrusted with gold, bears a horse-head design with intricately carved diaper designs of swastikas and sun symbols.

Gold kris cases are ornamented with the sun god on his horse, the naga (serpent), and the garuda or sun eagle.

The lion has never been native to Indonesia, though found in ancient India. Therefore, as a form of decorative design, the lion arrived in Indonesia with the Hindu culture. This vigorous animal was reproduced in bronze, silver, wrought steel, and in splendid wood-carvings.

Handles of Javanese bronze urns were frequently fashioned in the form of a lion — natural and stylized. Silver tripods, resting on three lion supports, were used by priests in Bali to sustain the small vessel containing holy water.

Also the winged lion appears in Indonesian art. From Buleleng, Bali, come elaborate open-work wood carvings which were used as window screens. Two facing lions are represented on each screen. Boldly carved winged-lion capitals have been taken from columns at Sebati in South Bali.

The graceful lines of the stag have been artistically applied to Indonesian ornament. Prehistoric bronze kettle-drums sometimes carry a cast representation of a man capturing a deer with a lasso.

Early Javanese necklaces were decorated with splendid stag-head designs. Bronze figures of the stag were created in South Malang, Java. Temple shrines in Bali are frequently decorated with the head of a stag carved in wood.

Iron receptacles for preparing dye were sometimes made in the form of an elongated stag. Found in a Balinese manuscript is an interesting interpretation of a rainbow, with each end representing a stag's head.

The mythical makara, shaped like a fish — with an elephant trunk — was introduced as a decorative design in Indonesia with the Hindu culture. The makara — the significance of its art form uncertain — is usually found in the framework of temple entrances.

Gold disks in the form of a makara — sometimes two figures — distinctly having the form of a dolphin, are worn on headresses. The makara design, on bronze urns from the Hindu period, is sometimes stylized into plant forms, with the elephant's trunk still recognizable.

From the Hindu period, the Djakarta Museum has a bronze lamp in the form of a makara. The body serves as container for the oil. The wick is placed in the lower jaw. The lamp hangs from a heavy iron chain, the lowest link of which is embellished with a fine casting of a parrot, the Indonesian god of love.

—o—

Indonesian Decorative Design, Part VI - Geometrical Figures will appear in the April issue of Hobbies

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 41)

lights I had left turned on were still burning, also that the house hadn't burned down.

I strained my eyes in the hope of seeing calico Roger, part-Siamese Nipper, Maltese Petey, or coal-black Jim, but in the dim morning light it was impossible to detect furry objects so small.

Despite this slight disappointment, I was happy, knowing that the family reunion to which I had been looking forward for three days was now about to come to pass.

Leaving the Norfolk and Western passenger station, I got into a taxi. My eagerness to be at home was too great for me to wait for a Vinton bus. Within less than 10 minutes I was at home. But there was no sign of a cat in the yard or on the front porch.

Vaguely apprehensive, I unlocked the door — and there stood Petey, wailing a greeting, while Nipper peered down from the stairs above, wanting to run to me but fearful of his larger and stronger enemy, Pete.

The first thing Petey did was make it clear that he had hurt himself while I had been reveling and roistering abroad! He held up one paw, showed that he couldn't touch the floor with it, and meowed piteously.

I thought he probably had stuck something in his foot but when I took him to a veterinarian a few days later, I was told nothing was in the foot and he had no broken or cracked bones, but that he apparently strained a shoulder muscle — probably, I suspect, in making a sudden lunge at Nipper!

The vet said the trouble would clear up without any attention other than Pete's sagacity in keeping the foot off the floor, but at this writing he is still limping and still complaining.

A few days after my return, my right arch began to give me so much trouble I could hardly walk, so one night, when Petey met me at the door, I held up my foot to indicate I couldn't bear to touch it to the ground, and meowed to him for some of the sympathy he had expected from me. My trouble soon cleared up, and I wish his would.

Within two minutes after I reached home, Nipper ventured downstairs, and Roger came in from the storage house in which he usually sleeps. They made it clear they were overjoyed to see me. But when I went to bed I was worried because I hadn't had a glimpse of Lucky Jim, who had so frolicsomeness escorted me down the hill that Saturday morning, which now seemed about six months distant, so much had happened since.

A couple of hours later I got up, dressed, and started down the hill to eat breakfast and replenish the cats' food supply. They had almost entirely cleaned up the plates Lloyd Grose had set out for them.

In the yard I met that blessed shiny little Lucky Jim, who went into a spasm of juvenile delinquent hysterics at sight of me, and once more raced ahead to the foot of the hill. He waited for my return and this time he didn't have long to wait.

The cats were fed with their favorite delicacy, beef liver, and I went back to bed, to stay there most of the time until Wednesday morning. I was happy to be at home but glad—in spite of Petey's injury, which probably would have happened anyway if I hadn't left — that I had gone to Washington.

Thanks to Don and Nadine Leavitt, Betty and Dan Abramson, Sue and Vess Ossman, Emlyn Williams, and lots of other fine folks, I had enjoyed a truly memorable three days.

(The End)

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

SHIRLEY SPAULDING—
First American woman to make banjo records (for Edison, 1920-21).

This picture appeared with an erroneous caption in our January issue

A QUIZ ON THE PHONOGRAPH'S EARLY DAYS

PART I

By JIM WALSH

More than a century ago, Charles Stuart Calverley, a witty and learned lecturer at Christ College, Cambridge, England, wrote an examination paper asking difficult and obscure questions concerning Charles Dickens' humorous classic, "The Pickwick Papers." The quiz has been regarded as a model since it first appeared in 1857.

It has occurred to me that HOBBIES readers might find amuse-

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry that he is unable to reply to most of the correspondence he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and is unable to tell anyone where to buy or sell them except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot make tape recordings or exchange tapes with readers, and he cannot supply back copies of this magazine. These have to be ordered direct from HOBBIES, 1006 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605.

ment, interest, and information in a similar questionnaire dealing with the early days of sound recording and the activities and personalities of the pioneer recording artists.

So I have compiled a list of 50 questions which should test anyone's knowledge of the pre-electric period. Reference will be made chiefly to "popular" artists, although there will be some mention of those classed as "personalities" or "celebrities." A few electric records may be mentioned. The questions will first be given, followed by the answers.

To the extent of my specialized knowledge at this time, the answers are accurate. The recorded music field is so vast, that I am frequently surprised to find that information or beliefs which I have relied upon as wholly accurate must be modified in the light of subsequent discoveries.

I have never hesitated to admit my errors. And I shall be equally willing to publish corrections if I learn I have been wrong in any of the answers I publish here.

Some of the information contained in this article may be found by diligent search of HOBBIES during the 22 years I have been writing a monthly department, but much of it, I think, has never been published.

The first 10 questions and answers appear this month. The others will follow in the next HOBBIES.

Now the questions:

1. What is the rarest record in the world? (Warning: This may be regarded as a trick question.)
2. What is the oldest existing record?
3. Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan, Ada Jones, Cal Stewart, and the American (or Premier) Quartet were best known for their comedy efforts. Name one record each in which they sang hymns.
4. Name another record in which Harlan sang the tenor part of a religious composition in a duet with a baritone other than Collins.
5. Who sang in the chorus of Billy Murray's Columbia record (A643) of "The Yankiana Rag?"
6. What famous Victor record by Vernon Dalhart was issued with a certain coupling, then reissued the following month with a different number and another song on the other side?
7. What Victor record, in which Murray and the International Novelty Orchestra participated, had a title seemingly referring to a famous court action of 1925, but apparently was never officially issued?

8. What Dalhart record, issued near the end of the acoustic period, kept the same number—apparently for "good luck" reasons—when he remade it electrically?

9. Who was the first woman to make a banjo record?

10. What Peerless Quartet record was announced in a monthly supplement but dropped a month later? (To be continued)

—O—

Those are this month's questions.

Now the answers:

(To the best of my information and belief.)

1. No record is entitled to rate as the "rarest" in the world. There must be a good many recordings of which only one copy has survived, and since scarcity and demand are the determining factors of rarity, one might be as rare as the other. If any of the cylinders Billy Murray made for Bacigalupi Brothers in San Francisco in 1897 have survived they would be among the lot.

Perhaps as rare a record as any was acquired in 1962 by C. Hilding Bergquist of Minneapolis, Minn. This is a 10-inch Monarch, 3296, of "A Frangosa March," played by a concertina virtuoso, Prof. Maccann, and issued by Eldridge R. Johnson before the Victor Talking Machine Co. came into being.

This record is a mystery. It could not have been made before 1901, when 10-inch records were first introduced, and its number belongs to the 1901 period.

However, it is not listed in the complete Victor record catalog for February, 1902, and the Victor files contain no mention of any such disc ever having been made. There is no 3296 in the Victor numerical lists of the period and no indication that Maccann, who was an Englishman, ever made a record.

Yet Bergquist says his copy, which he obtained in apparently unplayed condition, has the customary spoken announcement of the early Victor days. (Who, I wonder, was the bland-voiced gentleman who did the Victor announcing? Could it have been Mr. Johnson himself?) The record seems to be an unsolvable mystery. Possibly it was an imported recording, but why doesn't it appear in any Victor catalog or inventory of master records? Bergquist probably has the only copy.

2. Most likely, the oldest record still extant is a white wax cylinder made October 5, 1888, on which Sir Arthur Sullivan congratulates Thomas A. Edison for inventing the phonograph but says he shudders to think how much horrible music it will cause to be recorded. (Sullivan should be alive today and hear the stuff the teen-agers gulp down!) The cylinder has been dubbed onto a long-playing record, "The Sound of Fame."

3. You'd never guess it from the (Turn to page 36)

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 34)

title, but Collins and Harlan sing "Bringing in the Sheaves" on their Victor record of a descriptive sketch, "The Cat and the Fly Paper." Oddly, Collins takes the part of the wife and Harlan of the husband, as he also does in their Victor disc of "The Rooster and the Hen."

Ada Jones sings part of a hymn, beginning "My Days Are Passing Swiftly By," in "Uncle Josh and Aunt Nancy Put Up the Kitchen Stove," and Cal Stewart leads in singing "On Jordan's Stormy Banks I Stand" in the Columbia record of "Evening Time at Punkin Center." The Premier-American Quartet sings "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful" at the end of the Aeolian-Vocalion hill-and-dale record, "Christmas Eve in the Old Homestead."

4. In 1902 Harlan and Frank G. Stanley made a Columbia record of Faure's "Palm Branches," also known as "The Palms." Stanley leads with Harlan joining in the chorus.

5. I'd like to be sure of the answer to this one myself. The "chorus" sounds like a lone woman singing with Murray in the last refrain.

Examination of the list of Columbia artists in 1909, the year the record was first sold, makes it appear the "chorus" was a vaudeville comedienne, Stella Tobin, who made a few Columbia and Edison records. The voice strongly resembles hers on the two-minute Edison cylinder of "Will He Answer Goo-goo?" The soprano certainly isn't Ada Jones. Elise Stevenson and Lucy Isabelle Marsh are possibilities, but, lacking definite information, I prefer Tobin. And then maybe there is more than one woman. A similar "chorus" sings with Bob Roberts on Columbia A664, "Shine On, Harvest Moon."

6. Dalhart's Victor record of "The Death of Floyd Collins" was issued in November, 1925, numbered 19779, and with "The Wreck of the Shenandoah" on the A side, indicating the latter was considered the more important of the two.

In December, 1925, it was reissued as 19821 with the Floyd Collins song as the A side, and "Dream of the Miner's Child" on the reverse. Victor researchers today are unable to give any explanation of the change.

Possibly the Shenandoah's fatal crash was considered too "gruesome" for hill-billy style treatment, but other companies issued Dalhart's versions of the song without any apparent protest.

7. Here is another baffler. About a year ago I went into the Rescue Gospel Mission in Roanoke, Va., and looked through some albums filled with old records.

I came to attention when I found one containing Victor 19832, a fox-trot, "Monkey Biz-ness (Down in Tennessee)" on one side, and "She's Drivin' Me Wild" on the other. The first side was played by Nat Shilkret's "International Novelty Orchestra," with a vocal refrain by Billy Murray, and the second by Don Bes-tor's Orchestra.

The number indicated the record was intended for issue around December, 1925, but, as an almost life-long Billy Murray collector, I was puzzled, because I couldn't remember ever hearing of such a Victor. Excitedly, I paid five cents for the virtually mint copy and took it home.

Examination of my Victor catalogs and supplements for 1925 and 1926 revealed no trace of any such record. The title obviously was inspired by the John T. Scopes evolution trial at Dayton, Tenn., although the words actually refer only to a young man's annoyance because of the "monkey biz-ness" of which his Tennessee sweetheart was guilty.

It struck me that the record probably had been prepared and a few copies issued, then suppressed at the death of William Jennings Bryan, who had gone to Dayton to help prosecute Scopes for violating Tennessee's anti-evolution statute. But a little checking revealed that Bryan died a few months before the record should have appeared.

I have since written to Victor headquarters in New York and received no helpful information. The company's books show that the two sides were recorded in the autumn of 1925, but there is nothing to indicate they were ever offered for sale.

So how come I found one in a Roanoke Gospel Mission store? And how many copies were sneaked out of the pressing plant, I wonder? Needless to say, I treasure that undeniably rare record.

8. The Dalhart record that retained its original number after being remade was 19427, combining "The Prisoner's Song" and "The Wreck of the Old 97." The acoustic version, issued late in 1924, was the biggest selling vocal record ever made, up to that time.

Perhaps the company—or, more likely, Dalhart—was superstitious and wanted the same number kept for the improved electric version. Many records were electrically remade, of course, but as a rule were given new numbers.

9. No doubt some readers will answer "Ruby Brooks," when asked to name the first woman to make a banjo record, but Ruby Brooks, who died about 1906, was a man and a member of the vaudeville team of Brooks and Denton.

England appears to have the distinction of producing the first commercially issued record by a woman. In July, 1916, His Master's Voice cataloged B648, "Home, Sweet Home" and "Kettledrums," played by Miss Helen Sealy. Like the American banjoist, Fred Van Eps, Miss Sealy also played the violin and, unlike Van Eps, she made some violin records.

The first American banjo record by a woman appears to have been Edison Diamond Disc 80625, "Royal Tourist—Novelette," played by the still active Shirley Spaulding. She also made a few other Diamond Discs.

10. In March, 1921, Victor announced 18725, "I Used to Love You But It's All Over Now," sung by Henry Burr and the Peerless Quartet, and "Dolly (I Love You)," by the quartet.

The record was dropped from the April supplement and never appeared in a yearly catalog. It is hard to understand why it was summarily dismissed, since "I Used to Love You" became a successful song.

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 33)

mother's tutoring, her renown could have been greater than it now is.

According to the notes supplied with the disc, Mignon Nevada (family name: Palmer) was born in Paris, on August 14, 1886. She made her debut at the Costanzi of Rome, as Rosina.

Further, she sang at the San Carlo of Lisbon, the Pergola of Florence, and in other cities, including London where she first appeared as Ophélie at Covent Garden, on October 3, 1910. Other engagements followed at La Monnaie of Brussels and, in 1923, at La Scala of Milan.

So far as I know, this recording of Mignon Nevada made for IRCC in 1938 and announced by her mother, is the only one existent of her voice.

—o—

A SALUTE TO VETERANS

Memories of World War I

This column is happy to count among its good friends of long standing the Memory Shop of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Formerly situated in Jackson Heights, N.Y., this pleasant record collectors' meeting place began its existence right after World War II, managed by the genial devotee of the historical disc, Arnold Jacobsen.

We were living in New York City then, and many a Thursday evening (courtesy of our baby sitter) we would dash over to this record haven, anticipating some lucky find.

These recollections stirred in my mind when I received from Memory Shop a Long Play disc commemorating World War I.

Originally, this collection of recordings made during the Great War, was prepared as a program for a Veterans Convention. The rousing reception it received from the boys and all who heard it, prompted the issuance of an LP.

Several scarce recordings are included on the Memory record by such popular celebrities as Nora Bayes (in her famous "Over There"), George M. Cohan, Arthur Fields, Al Jolson, Irving Berlin, and others.

Caruso and McCormack add their contribution to the War effort, and General John J. Pershing is heard in a short address made on a battle-

(Continued on page 43)

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A QUIZ ON THE PHONOGRAPH'S EARLY DAYS

PART II

By JIM WALSH

11. Name one or more records of "The Arkansaw Traveler" not made by Len Spencer. (This refers to the comic talking sketch, not to country dance recordings.)

12. Name an early record of "Backyard Conversation Between Two Jealous Irish Washerwomen," in which Steve Porter, who is usually associated with this skit, did not take part.

13. Can you name a Columbia "Uncle Josh" record not made by Cal Stewart?

14. George Schweinfest was one of the best known flute and piccolo soloists of early days. Name any records in which he played instruments other than these.

15. What vaudeville comedian and his wife, a comedienne, made Columbia records separately but not as a duet team, in 1910?

16. Name a Columbia record issued one month by a comedian, then reissued the following month by a duet team.

17. In what Victor record does a famous comedian begin some high notes, but lets another tenor with a similar voice complete the notes for him?

18. What was the best selling record by Paul Whiteman's orchestra?

19. What Edison Diamond Disc had the highest sale?

20. In what year did candidates for the presidency of the United States first record campaign talks?

21. What was the best selling Columbia double-faced record from 1908 to 1911?

22. What was the first record of an act between a ventriloquist and his dummy?

23. Name the first quartet of four women to make records.

24. What famous Italian opera star recorded an American popular song partly in English and partly in French?

25. What operatic basso sang the vocal refrain of a Victor black label band record?

Those are this month's questions.

—O—

Now the answers:

(To the best of my information and belief.)

11. Zonophone, around 1902, issued "The Arkansaw Traveler" as nine-inch record 5494, but it was done by the "Uncle Josh" man, Cal Stewart, instead of Len Spencer, who is popularly supposed to have held a vested interest in the comic sketch. Spencer died in December, 1914.

In 1923 Edison issued a Diamond Disc of the skit by Steve Porter and Ernest Hare. Porter, an old friend of Spencer's, was engaged at that time in remaking some of Len's old specialties, with Ada Jones and other artists. He also made "The Arkansaw Traveler" for Pathe and perhaps some minor companies.

12. In 1902 "Harlan and Spencer" recorded "A Backyard Conversation" for Columbia, on single-faced 398. Harlan of course was Byron G., but it isn't clear whether the Spencer was Len or his brother Harry, who made the notorious Columbia record purporting to be "President McKinley's Last Speech." When the record was remade by Porter, with whom it had been earlier identified, the 398 number was retained.

13. Another 1902 Columbia record was "Uncle Josh's Huskin' Bee," by "Spencer and Schweinfest." Again, I am not sure which Spencer took part. "Schweinfest" was George Schweinfest, who on this occasion saved a fiddle instead of blowing into his usual flute or piccolo.

14. Besides playing the fiddle in the record just mentioned, Schweinfest made a piano solo, BC cylinder 85083, "Yankiana—March and Two Step," which Columbia issued in November, 1906. Come to think of it, this probably was the first Columbia piano solo of popular music ever issued. It is, in fact, the first Columbia piano record of any sort, excluding those with piano accompaniments, to which I have found any reference.

15. The vaudeville comedian who made Columbia records in 1909-10 was Paul Southe. The comedienne, his wife, was the already mentioned Stella Tobin.

16. In April, 1910, Columbia issued, as record A800, Paul Southe's version of Harry Von Tilzer's great hit, "The Cubanola Glide," which was then sweeping the country. The May supplement announced that Southe's version, which I think was poor, had been replaced with one by Collins and Harlan. No explanation was given.

17. On Victor record 17245, "Beautiful Doll, Goodbye," by the American Quartet, Billy Murray starts several high notes but Walter Van Brunt, who happened to be present, was called on to finish them. Their voices are so similar it is almost impossible to detect the substitution. Ordinarily Billy had no trouble with high notes, but this was one time they just wouldn't respond.

18. Paul Whiteman told me his Victor record of "Three O'Clock in the Morning," issued late in 1922, was his best seller. He said it reached a total of 3,900,000 copies.

19. The biggest selling Edison Diamond Disc was Walter Van Brunt's "I'll Take You Home Again, Kathleen." Walter says he remade it some 15 times to please Mr. Edison. "Kathleen" was the inventor's favorite song. Total sales went to 1,500,000. Edison dealers made a point of always trying to sell it to a new customer by truthfully representing it to be "Mr. Edison's favorite record."

20. The year in which presidential candidates first recorded campaign talks was 1908, when both William H. Taft, Republican, and William J. Bryan, Democrat, made a number of records for Victor, Edison, and Columbia.

A 1908 Edison magazine advertisement says no presidential candidates had ever before made records. In recent years one or more long-playing records have been issued which purport to contain talks by William McKinley and Grover Cleveland, but it is obvious that these are "studio jobs," with artificial sounding applause.

It was the custom in those days to have staff artists record portions of speeches by noted politicians, and to issue them without giving the artist's name. "Cleveland" on one I have, sounds remarkably like Dan W. Quinn. Harry Spencer, Len Spencer, William F. Hooley and Frank C. Stanley recorded abbreviated versions of the speech McKinley made in Buffalo shortly before he was shot.

21. Old Columbia advertisements say the best-selling record the company had from 1908 to 1911 was A587, "The Herd Girl's Dream," played by George Stahl (he later spelled it Stell), violin; Marshall P. Lufsky, flute; and Paul Surth, harp. It had a banjo solo, "Invincible Eagle March," by Vess L. Ossman, on the other side. This record was remade in 1911 by the same trio, with a different selection on the B side, and

(Turn to page 36)

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry that he is unable to reply to most of the correspondence he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and is unable to tell anyone where to buy or sell them except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot make tape recordings or exchange tapes with readers, and he cannot supply back copies of this magazine. These have to be ordered direct from HOBBIES, 1006 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605.

GILBERT as Boniface in
"Le Jongleur de Notre Dame"

(This listing corrects an error made on page 32 of our January issue. The caption above erroneously appeared with a picture of Shirley Spaulding, first American woman to make banjo records for Edison—1920-1921)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 33)

His first big chance presented itself in the fall of 1929, when he made his debut at the Berlin State Opera, as Alfredo in "La Traviata," with Gitta Alpar in the part of Violetta.

One season in Berlin led to another important engagement, this time with the Vienna State Opera, as a guest artist. In the meantime, he also made guest appearances in London, Milan, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Amsterdam, Brussels, Dresden, Munich, and Hamburg.

At the completion of his tour, he returned to Berlin and established permanent residence in the German capital he so loved.

Roswaenge endured the hardships of World War II, singing in concerts whenever he could after the opera houses in Berlin were closed because of heavy bombings. And as if these troubles were not enough, he was suspected of being a foreign collaborator and interned in Krasnogorsk, Russia, from where he soon was transferred to Sweden.

Free, finally, the tenor felt the urge to sing more strongly than ever and patiently started anew, in Basel, where he had sung at the outset of his career.

Peace returned, the damaged Vienna State Opera had been rebuilt, and Roswaenge had the great joy of coming back to the scene of his former triumphs. It was then that he participated in the unforgettable presentation of "Turandot," as Calaf to the lovely Chinese Princess of the ill-fated Maria Cebotari.

From 1945 until 1960 he appeared in Vienna, Zurich, and other important music centers of Europe, visiting the United States for the first time in 1963. Roswaenge was married to the soprano Ilonka Holndorner, with whom he sang on occasion.

In closing, this department wishes The Record Collector success in this new enterprise. The manner in which the Roswaenge issue is presented is to be commended. The material on which the records are pressed is excellent, the artist's performance is faithfully reproduced, and the sound is of mirror-like clearness and life-like quality.

Perhaps, after a successful reception of this release, others of similar type will follow. Let us hope so.

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. st2698

SHEET MUSIC. Old songs 250,000 alphabet order catalogued. No list yet. Price 50c to $1. Inquiries. Please send self addressed stamped letter to — Robert Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Los Angeles 26, Calif. Rm. 412. my66601

MELODEONS & ORGANS

TWO BEAUTIFUL rosewood melodeons for sale. Thoroughly reconditioned, tuned. Also reed organs, repairing, parts. —C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williams-ville, Vt. my1251

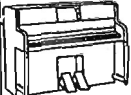

PARLOR ORGAN: Cornish Organ Co., Cornish, N. H. ca. 1890. 6'10" high; 48" wide. Very good condition mechanically with original walnut finish nearly perfect. Adjustable stool included. $200, plus transportation. May be seen on weekends, by appointment, at our country home, Stony Creek, N.Y. — Mrs. David C. Haskell, Fish Hatchery Road, Rome, N.Y. my1044

TAPED RECORDINGS

ACOUSTIC and elect. operatic recordings on your tapes, 50c per selection. For information and list send stamp to: "Recordings," 48 Revell Ave., Northampton, Mass. je3583

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

my56p

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 34)

was numbered A1157. The 12-inch "Herd Girl's Dream," by Stehl, Lufsky, and Charles Schuetze, on A5378, was the biggest selling Columbia of that size during the same period.

22. The first ventriloquist-dummy act may have appeared on two little-known Edison Diamond Discs, "Phil and Jerry—parts 1 and 2" and "parts 3 and 4," issued in 1928 as 52208 and 52247. They were made by the late Phil Cook and give a realistic impression of a ventriloquism performance like those of Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. It is true that Len Spencer and Alfred S. Holt made a "Punch and Judy" record for Victor, 4554, which appeared in January, 1906. I have not heard the record, but judging from the catalog description it is not a ventriloquist act.

23. The first woman's ensemble to make records apparently was the Paloma Quartet, which had three single-faced offerings in the Victor supplement for February, 1903. They were said to be "not loud, but very good quality."

The titles were 1887, "La Paloma," 1889, "Medley of Popular Songs" (names not given), and 1900, "The Waterfall." I have no idea who the singers were, though they probably were a vaudeville group whose identity might be learned from ancient copies of The Clipper or some other yellowed show business publication. I have none of the Quartet's records, but would especially like to find 1889. Neither do I know of anyone who has ever seen them. They must be among the rarest records.

24. Enrico Caruso recorded "Over There" in a mixture of what passed for English and French. It was announced in the Victor supplement for September, 1918, and to most ears probably sounds more like baritone bellowing than singing.

Billy Murray, who couldn't have approached Caruso in opera, sang "Over There" better than the great Italian. Which reminds me that Billy once told me of eating with Caruso at the Victor Lunch Club.

Billy remarked, "Mr. Caruso, do you know I'd give anything to be able to sing opera like you?"

And Caruso graciously replied, "And don't you know, Mr. Murray, I'd give anything to be able to make people laugh, the way you do?"

25. The basso singing the vocal refrain to the band record of "Madelon," was Marcel Journet, who helped out in Victor 18534, a one-step-march rendition by the Victor Military Band, issued in May, 1919.

(To be continued)

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America. $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. my6234

MUSIC BOXES WANTED

WANTED: 20" brass singing bird in any condition; and inlaid Chess table. — Frank J. Austin, 900 East Beach Blvd., Pascagoula, Miss. 39567. my1671

MUSIC — REPAIRS

EXPERT melodeon repairing. — Lamper, 1072 E. Leonard, Grand Rapids, Mich. 49505. (C-Sharp Hobby Shop). my12698

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holway, 1547 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. jly3403

FAVORITE Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A QUIZ ON THE PHONOGRAPH'S EARLY DAYS

PART III

By JIM WALSH

This is a continuation of the series of questions and answers begun in the April issue.

Now the Questions:

26. Did the late John Bieling, first tenor of the American and Hayden Quartets, ever sing with Caruso?
27. Gene Greene, the American vaudeville comedian, made many records for English Pathe from 1912 to 1914. Name one in which he changed the locale and customs of the song to conform with British localities and procedures.
28. Name a record by a famous American cartoonist who recently "retired" in order to devote himself to sculpture.
29. Name any records made by other cartoonists for other companies.
30. What was the first record containing a reference to television?
31. What was the first record ever broadcast?
32. Name the first record containing a song with the word "radio" in the title.
33. What "Red Seal" artist probably made more records—not all of them Red Seals—than any other singer of his status?
34. What woman violinist was presented with a bracelet containing miniature models of records she had made?
35. What record issued by Victor,

Columbia, or Edison was the first to contain a reproduction of the harp?

36. Who was the first woman violinist to make a record for Victor? For Columbia? For Edison?

37. Who was the first woman to make regularly issued piano records?

38. Name the first woman to conduct a symphony orchestra on records.

Now the Answers:

(To the best of my information and belief)

26. Perhaps it wouldn't be correct to say John Bieling sang with Caruso, but he sang as a Metropolitan Opera supernumerary in a couple of productions in which Caruso starred. He told of meeting Caruso back stage and saying: "Signor, you were wonderful tonight!"

Caruso smiled, "You liked it, eh!" He bowed his acknowledgements.

27. The English Pathe record by Gene Greene was "Casey Jones." Gene had "the brave engineer" headed for Dover instead of "Frisco." Gene referred to the fireman as the "stoker," and at the end had Mrs. Jones assuring the children that they had "another papa on the Cunard line," instead of the "Salt Lake line."

28. Reuben L. ("Rube") Goldberg, the famous cartoonist, in 1918 made a half-sung, half-spoken Pathe record called "Father Was Right." It would be interesting to know just how that engagement for only one record came about.

29. Among other cartoonists who made records were Harry Herschfeld, Sidney Smith, and Milt Gross. Harry Herschfeld talked a couple of "Abe Kabibble" monologs for Columbia in 1919. They were also issued in abbreviated form as Little Wonders.

Sidney Smith recorded "Andy Gump's Christmas Message" for Gennett. And Milt Gross did a Yiddish dialect specialty on the very obscure Nutmeg brand. The latter was an electrical recording.

30. As far as I have learned, the first record in which the word "television" was used was "Main Street," which Billy Murray recorded in 1929 for both Edison Diamond Disc and needle cut records under the alias of "Cy Pitkin and the Town Band."

31. You can't keep that fellow Murray out of the phonograph's historical events. The first record ever broadcast, according to an associate of the late Dr. Lee de Forrest, was Billy's 1907 Victor of "College Life."

De Forrest, a pioneer radio experimenter, played it one day in his laboratory and it was heard through earphones by a wireless operator, Arthur Wallis, at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

32. The first record containing a song with "radio" in the title may have been Victor 18923, "My Rambler Rose," a fox-trot by Whiteman's Orchestra. Midway it introduced another song, "List'ning on Some Radio."

In that same month, September, 1922, Columbia issued a song about radio, but not using the word itself. It was called "I Wish There Was a Wireless to Heaven" and was sung by Billy Jones. The sub-title was "Then Mama Would Not Seem So Far Away—a variant, of course, on "Hello, Central, Give Me Heaven."

33. The exemplary baritone, Emilio De Gogorza, probably sang more records than any other artist of celebrity status. He began in the late 1890's, making cylinders for Edison, the American Record Co., Lambert, and others.

In his recording De Gogorza called himself by several names—Carlos Francisco, Herbert Goddard, and M. Fernand, among them. And after making many Victor black label records he became and remained for many years one of the most prolific Red Seal recorders.

34. The lady violinist who received a bracelet of miniature recordings representing titles she had played was the late Marie Hall. She received the gift from H.M.V. Co. of England in 1905.

The bracelet—where is it now? It was of gold and pearls, with miniature models of a gramophone and a violin, and small gold replicas of Miss Hall's discs.

35. The first Victor, Columbia, or Edison to preserve the tones of a harp appears to have been Columbia 3176, "Mazurka de Concert," a duet by the violinist, Walter Biederman, and a harpist whose name is given only as Smith. (I wonder if this was a mistake for Paul Surth, a harpist who frequently played in Columbia combinations.) It was announced in June, 1906, and described as "the first record of this kind ever made."

The first Victor record in which a harp is mentioned is "Tranquility," played by an instrumental quartet, which came out late in 1906. The first Edison was "Memories of Home," 9485, a violin, flute, and harp trio, by the Edison Venetian Trio, issued in March, 1907. Eugene Jaudas played the violin, Eugene Rose the flute, and Charles Schuetze the harp.

Edison's first harp solo was "Angel's Serenade," 9509, played by Schuetze and announced in April, 1907. Victor's first was 70027, "Priere — Valse de Concert," played

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry that he is unable to reply to most of the correspondence he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and is unable to tell anyone where to buy or sell them except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot make tape recordings or exchange tapes with readers, and he cannot supply back copies of this magazine. These have to be ordered direct from HOBBIES, 1006 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60606.

by Ada Sassoli and issued in January, 1911.

The first popular-price black label harp solo came out in September, 1911. The player was Mr. Scheutze, and once more he offered "Angel's Serenade."

And to Charles Schuetze goes the honor of making the first Columbia harp solo, 1055 which coupled his variations on "Annie Laurie" and "Melody in F." It was made available in November, 1911.

36. The first lady violinist to make a Victor record was Maud Powell. She was also Victor's first Red Seal violinist. Prior to her initial appearance in the catalog, about the first of 1905, the only other Victor violin records were by Charles D'Almaine.

Miss Powell's first two Victors were 64027, "Slavonic Cradle Song" and 64028, "Polonaise" (Vieuxtemps). They were afterwards remade and issued with new numbers.

Columbia's first record by a feminine violinist seems to have been 3223, "Hungarian National Dance," played by Jessie Strauss (Who today knows anything about her?) It was published in September, 1905. According to the Columbia Record, Miss Strauss had been appearing as a soloist with Sousa's Band.

No skirt-wearing violinist was represented in the Edison catalog (disregarding any experimental cylinders that may have been made in the 1800's and '90's) until April, 1912, when the Olive Mead String Quartet played Haydn's "Hymn to the Emperor." Two ladies fiddled in this foursome — Olive Mead as first violin, and Vera Fonaroff, as second.

In September, 1912, Edison issued the first four-minute cylinder solo by a woman violinist — the late Kathleen Parlow, who afterwards was heard on Diamond Discs. On 28026 she played two numbers, Beethoven's "Minuett in Gb Major," and Drigo's "Valse Bluette."

37. An English woman, Lillian Bryant, may have been the first woman to make solo piano records issued in the ordinary commercial manner. She played for His Master's Voice in the very early 1900's, and also was making Edison Bell cylinders in 1900 or not long afterward.

In time she became an accompanist for Pathe. Around 1910 a young clarinet virtuoso, Haydn Draper, came to Pathe's London studios to record parts of a Weber Concerto with Miss Bryant as pianist. He brought with him an aspiring baritone, George Baker, who was permitted to record "Tommy Lad."

The meeting led to the marriage of Baker and Miss Bryant. Baker is still making records. Miss Bryant presumably is dead.

Following up the subject of women pianists, Nellie Melba probably was the first woman whose performance Victor recorded in this country. In 1907 she played her own accompaniment while singing Tosti's "Mattin" (Continued on page 35)

If you're wondering about the identity of this four-year-old, all dressed up in a Scotch kilt, hand-sewed by his mother, you'll find the answer in this series. One clue: It isn't Harry Lauder!

FRIENDS

My shop will be closed for business from June 10 to July 20.

Will be at your service after July 20 to restore your old music boxes or supply you with a completely restored specimen.

GEORGE A. BIDDEN
Barrington, Rhode Island

jlvc

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

tlc

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES & TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, & extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1826)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave.

Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1506

tlc

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

MUSICAL BOXES - TALKING MACHINES - MUSIC ROLLS

PLAYER ORGANS & PIANOS

MUSIC MOVEMENTS AND MUSIC ROLLS MADE TO ORDER

Kensington, Maryland 20795

Phone 301 - 942-0416

(See our advertisement in Museum Department of HOBBIES)

tlc

From top to bottom, left to right:

Ada Jones was best known for comedy work. So was the (Premier) American Quartet. But at least once they did some hymn singing on records.

Arthur Collins (1864-1933), famous recording comedian, presented this photo of himself to a Columbia executive, the late Walter Forbush, in 1904. Many years later Mr. Forbush gave it to Jim Walsh. The 101st anniversary of Collins' birth occurred February 7, 1965.

Walter Lawrence achieved fame as a recording artist at the age of 12 years.

John Philip Sousa's most famous composition should have been pressed as the one billionth Victor recording.

Sousa's band recorded one of the most famous Negro dialect comic songs and a pioneer woman violinist played as a soloist with the band.

RECORDS WANTED

WILL BUY phonograph records any amount of the 20's and 30's. Will pay cash for information leading to purchase of any such collections; blues; hillbilly jazz; personality; piano rolls; army & navy discs; 16" transcriptions; radio shows; speeches; singer; celebrities. I have over 450,000 out of print 78 records. Send for wants. — Jacob S. Schneider, 413 Amsterdam Ave., New York, N.Y. 10024. au68881

RECORDINGS wanted of pre-1957 radio or TV broadcasts (news, comedy, mystery, adventure). — George Vlasto, 400 North St., Greenwich, Conn. je3403

HIT PARADE with Mark Warnow's orchestra on transcriptions, home recordings, tape. — Lyle Poole, 3041 Garlough Ave. S.W., Seattle, Wash. 98116. je3023

THE ONLY RECORDS I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

RECORDS FOR SALE

Edison, Columbia cylinder records. Collectors' items. Cylinder machines and parts bought and sold. — James Riley, 156 School St., Norwich, Conn. je3084

Out-of-print records, primarily 78 rpm, some deleted LP's: classical vocal, instrumental, popular, personality jazz. Monthly sales list of classical vocals. Authoritative appraisals. Collections bought. — The Record Album, 254 W. 81st St., New York 24, N.Y. n122553

HAVE YOU ANY RECORDS worth $150? "Price Guide" (1952) lists 7500 numbers, values, $2.50 postpaid. — American Record Collectors' Exchange, 825 7th Ave., New York 19, N.Y. je124661

FREE CATALOGS, private collection, famous motion picture sound tracks. Available in entirety on 12" LP. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Sta., New York, N.Y. au3863

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, N.J. je3483

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. d12867

Free Catalog. Rare Crosby broadcasts. — A.R.G., 341 Cooper Station, New York 3, N.Y. au3213

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8 (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

ata," issued on Red Seal record 88077.

Victor did not have a woman pianist in its catalog until 1921 (aside from accompaniments played by Harriett Ware for John Barnes Wells) until Guiomar Novaes, a Brazilian, and Olga Samaroff, then the wife of Leopold Stokowski, were signed in 1921.

Victor represented the Melba record to be the first ever made in which an artist played his or her accompaniment. However, a veteran Columbia official told me Len Spencer played his when he began making Columbia cylinders in 1889 or 1890.

American Columbia did not wait quite so long as Victor to engage a "pianiste." In March, 1920, Columbia presented Mary Hallock playing three short Chopin numbers on A6136.

Madame Hallock must have been an ingenious lady. She was said to have invented a "light organ which plays 'light waves' in accompaniment to the sound waves of the piano."

Toward the end of 1920 Edison introduced its first woman pianist for Diamond Discs when Lucille Collette played Chopin's "Waltz in C Sharp Minor" and Staub's "Sous Bois" on 80570.

No women pianists were included in the Edison two and four-minute wax cylinders. The Company turned down a request from one enthusiast that it issue "a piano solo by Miss Ada Jones." But a few Blue Amberol cylinders contained dubbings of disc performances by Olga Steeb, Muriel Pollock, and Constance Merling.

38. The honor of being the first woman to conduct a symphony orchestra on records goes, as far as I know, to Lillian Bryant. She conducted the Pathe Symphony Orchestra (and Pathe Military Band) for English Pathe.

(To be Continued)

RECORDS FOR SALE

CLASSICAL vocals, Golden Age originals. Send $1 for 26 page catalog No. 4. Refundable. — Ray Hargraves, 8745 Florence Ave., Brentwood, Missouri. 63117. au3804

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder or other antique band instruments. — W. A. Holloway, 1647 N. Dearborn Pkwy., Chicago 10, Ill. jly3403

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8 (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Domart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R. I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2889. my122971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to L.P. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my126121

UNUSUAL LIST of out of print operatic and classical vocal 78's. Finest condition. Priced low. List on request. — S. Weiss, 18 Roff Ave., Palisades Park, N.J. jly3234

I WILL LOAN you my catalogs. Many 78s; 56c to $1.12. Please order catalog by number. No. 2, 30 pages early pop vocals, country, western, humorous, personality. No. 3, 18 pages pop instrumental, early jazz, Dance O., band, solo. Deposit $1 each catalog or both for $1.50. Deduct from $5 order or return for full refund. Fair enough? — R. Hargraves, 8745 Florence Ave., Brentwood, Mo. 63117. je34201

RECORD LIST available: Musical comedies and Broadway shows, World War I & II songs, bands and brass, rare labels, early Al Jolson, or whatever category you desire. Send $1 for lists, refundable first order. 1905 Victor Red Seal catalog $2, Memories of World War I LP, $5. Complete Jolson discography $2. — Memory Shop, 188 Monroe, Grand Rapids, Mich. je3407

COLLECTORS' GUIDE American Recordings 1895-1925 (Julian Morton Moses). 200 pages. $5.95 postpaid. — Classical Record Shop, 825 Seventh Ave., New York 19, N.Y. mh126351

GIVEAWAY PRICES: Opera, vocal, dance, orchestra 78's. Priceless classical albums, make offer. List free. Dealers invited. — Dave Spahn, 19 Alexander Ave., Bloomfield, N.J. 07004. je3004

BUY, SELL, TRADE 12" and 16" radio transcriptions, all types. — Paul Scriven, 238 West State, Niles, Ohio. jly3272

SHARE TAPE COLLECTION 20's, 30's, pops, originals, categories: personalities, novelties, men singers, girl singers, orchestras, others. State interest. 6-selection sampler $1 - 2 track, 3 1/4". — D. Martin, 396 Toler, San Leandro, Calif. jly3215

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18 1/2" $3; 15 1/2" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. au3234

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. sl2698

SHEET MUSIC. Old songs 250,000 alphabet order catalogued. No list yet. Price 50c to $1. Inquiries. Please send self addressed stamped letter to — Robert Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Los Angeles 26, Calif. Rm. 412. au3825

MELODEONS FOR SALE

TWO BEAUTIFUL rosewood melodeons for sale. Thoroughly reconditioned, tuned. Also reed organs, repairing, parts. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. au3403

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

BOOKS on player pianos. Rebuilding the Player Piano is the book of complete information on how to do every aspect of restoration on these valuable machines. $6.95 postpaid. Tells where to obtain all necessary supplies and parts. Player Piano Treasury is the complete illustrated picture history of the mechanical piano in America. $10 postpaid. Ask for our list of reprints and service manuals. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. — The Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N. Y. n62342

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS WANTED

WANT coin-operated Seeburg piano, (model H), stained glass doors. Plays drums, pipes, xylophone. Carved wooden statues on the front. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Md. jly3614

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Wuriltzer Orchestration Coin operated. Excellent condition. Mills violin single with rolls. — E. S. Laugh-ton, York Beach, Maine. je3403

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Cylinder & old disc phonographs. Parts, reproducers and any catalogs and literature on the phonographs. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. jly3863

EDISON cylinder phonographs. Any cond. OK. Broken parts bought. Describe & price. — Karl Frick, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. au3023

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. au36101

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, horns, repairs, record lists, reproducers, parts wanted. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954. ap126121

2 EDISON cyl. Phonographs standard type combination, good condition, 10 records with each 1 1/4" horn, 1 larger horn, $42.50 each. Express collect. — Joseph P. Conroy, Milton, New York. je1422

PHONOGRAPHS REPAIRED

REPRODUCER REPAIRING. Have original Edison styluses all types. Reproducers for sale. Stamp for reproducer brochure. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. jly3253

PIANOS & ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Moneyback guarantee. Send for current list. — Harold Powell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists, Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte Mignon, Deluxe, 88 note regular, blues and rags. — Vi & Si's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N. Y. au3464

BUY AND SELL all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Ampico. Lists unnecessary. — Stewart, 787H, Kemah, Texas. 77565 my122511

TAPED RECORDINGS

ACOUSTIC and elect. operatic recordings on your tapes, 50c per selection. For information and list send stamp to: "Recordings," 48 Revell Ave., Northampton, Mass. je3583

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

my66p

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A QUIZ ON THE PHONOGRAPH'S EARLY DAYS

PART III

By JIM WALSH

This is a continuation of the series of questions and answers begun in the April issue.

Now the Questions:

39. Who was the first boy soprano to make a solo record for Victor? For Columbia?

40. Name any pre-electric American records of "The Preacher and the Bear" not made by Arthur Collins.

41. Who was the oldest person to make a record issued as part of a record company's regular catalog?

42. Who was the youngest whistler to participate in a record?

43. What record made by "The Banjo King," Vess L. Ossman, in 1910, was discontinued a couple of years later but reissued in 1927, four years after Ossman's death?

44. What record did Victor intend to press in gold to commemorate producing the one billionth Victor record? Which one was actually pressed?

45. What famous recording artist didn't know when he was born?

46. Harry Bluff was a comedian, announcer, and traveling salesman for the English firm of Edison Bell. What name did he use in making Edison (not Edison Bell) cylinders?

47. Name one or more records in which a woman sings as a member of, or with, the Premier (American) Quartet.

48. Name a Peerless Quartet record in which Henry Burr does not sing.

49. What record, issued in 1914, was said to contain the lowest note ever recorded of the human voice up to that time?

50. What was the first Victor record made after Victor took over Emile Berliner's patents?

Now the Answers:

(To the best of my information and belief)

39. In the "elder days" of recording art, the harp and piano were considered the most difficult instruments to record, and the boy soprano constituted the most vexing voice problem. In February, 1908, Victor announced its first boy voice record, 5329, Handel's "Angel's Ever Bright and Fair," with this comment:

"The voice of a boy soprano is a most difficult one to record, and no successful impressions have been made up to the present time. The Victor, however, now presents a very good record of Handel's air, such by Master (Donald Hugh) MacBride of the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, L. I., and it will be found a most interesting one."

The MacBride record must have been poorly recorded, for it stayed in the catalog only a short time. In 1915-16 Victor tried again, with records by Masters Claude Isaacs and William Pickels.

Columbia's initial boy soprano offering came in December, 1912, when a record was announced by Waiter Lawrence, soloist of All Angels' Church, New York City. It was A5421, and contained a coupling of "With Verdure Clad" from Haydn's "The Creation" and Dell'Acqua's "Villanelle."

Master Lawrence's photo appeared on the supplement cover. His "exclusive Columbia engagement" was announced on page 3, with the statement that "for the first time, in the annals of the recording art, the perfect voice of a boy soprano has been adequately recorded — by the Columbia Phonograph Company."

Lawrence made several other Columbia records, including a duet with Reed Miller. Edison never issued any boy soprano solos on discs, but Diamond Disc 80452, containing "Onward, Christian Soldiers!" and "Holy! Holy! Holy!" was sung by the Calvary Choir with the assistance of Choir Boys of St. Andrew's Church, New York. Claude Isaacs made a couple of Blue Amberol cylinders.

The one hugely successful boy soprano production in all recorded music history was issued by His Master's Voice in England a year or so after electric recording was introduced.

It was "O For the Wings of a Dove," a song which Lawrence had recorded for Columbia many years before. And, as sung by Master Ernest Lough, it became one of the most popular records in the English firm's history. It was exported and sold throughout the world.

40. As far as extensive research indicates, Arthur Collins was the only American singer to record "The Preacher and the Bear" from the time the first discs and cylinders of this classic were made in 1905 until he retired 20 years later. (Albert Whelan recorded it in England.)

However, it was included in a few band and orchestral records, though, oddly enough, no instrumentalist seems to have made a solo offering. What a good banjo number it would have made for Vess Ossman!

Sousa's Band played it complete on Victor single-faced, 10-inch 4981, and it was included in the "Bunker Hill Medley" on Edison Standard two-minute cylinder 9025, played by the Edison Military Band.

Other numbers in the medley were "I've Got a Little Money and I've Saved It All for You," "Tammany," and "My Carolina Lady." Surely the medley should have been named for "The Preacher" or "Tammany" rather than the much less popular "Bunker Hill."

In 1918 Columbia issued a "Turkey in the Straw Medley" played by Yerkes' Jazzer Orchestra on A2537. The medley also included "The Arkansaw Traveler" and "The Preacher and the Bear." But in singing, the field was left strictly to Arthur Collins.

The late Ray Walker told me he used to play the piano accompaniment when Eddie Morton sang "The Preacher" song in vaudeville, "and nobody else ever sang it the way he did."

Perhaps it's a pity we don't have at least one Morton recording of the Collins classic. After Collins retired, the song was recorded by several performers, including Ernest Hare, Al Bernard, Riley Puckett, and, in the 1940's, Phil Harris.

41. The oldest person to make a record for regular release may have been Pope Leo XIII, who was 98 when he made two Columbia cylinders, of a Benediction and Ave Maria, at the Vatican on February 15, 1903. They did not appear on discs, and were said to be rather lacking in volume but faithful reproductions of the Pontiff's voice.

They were recorded by S. Bettini and sold for $2 each. Probably a few copies of the cylinders still remain in Catholic homes, or, if not there, in religious institutions, or at the Vatican.

42. The youngest recorded whistler

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry that he is unable to reply to most of the correspondence he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and is unable to tell anyone where to buy or sell them except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot make tape recordings or exchange tapes with readers, and he cannot supply back copies of this magazine. These have to be ordered direct from HOBBIES, 1006 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605.

Paul Whiteman, veteran orchestra leader, affectionately known as "Pops," had many big selling records. What was his biggest?

was not Margaret McKee or Sibyl Sanderson Fagan, as some collectors may suggest, but probably was Billee Osborn who, at the age of 10, whistled some bird imitations in "Swanee Bluebird," a fox trot by the Benson Orchestra of Chicago, which Victor issued in September, 1922.

However, this statement is open to argument, because the Victor supplement insisted Billee didn't whistle: "he vocalizes; he produces in his throat the remarkable bird-imitations which give life to this record."

"When I wrote the question I thought of the youngster (who is now 52 if he still lives) as a whistler. So, in spite of the Victor hair-splitting, I'll let it stand.

43. In October, 1909, Edison made available four-minute Amberol cylinder 250, containing "Wildflower," "The Whitewash Man," and "Yankiana Rag"—the latter, in my opinion, one of the most captivating bits of ragtime ever written. They were played by Vess L. Ossman.

The record was called "Banjo Medley." It was discontinued when the Blue Amberols were introduced late in 1912, but was revived in 1927 on Blue Amberol 5377.

Since cylinder sales in those days, two years before Edison quit the phonograph business, had dwindled almost to nothing, the record is hard to find, but I proudly own a copy and it is my favorite banjo performance.

44. Back in 1948, Victor intended to press a recording of "The Stars and Stripes Forever March" by Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra as the one billionth Victor record. (In view of incomplete sales totals I wonder how they arrived at the figure.)

But when the matrix was brought out, through an error the number reproduced was 624, Vess Ossman's "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden," which was said to be the oldest surviving master of a Victor record. It was made in 1901.

The record was gold-plated, after which, as one Victor spokesman philosophically remarked, "it can't be played, anyway, so what difference does it make if it is the wrong one?"

45. The recording artist who didn't know when he was born was Harry E. Humphrey, an elocutionist. He

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES
for more than 25 years.

recorded many recitations and announced nearly all the "explanatory talks" by Edison celebrity artists. All he knew was that he was born in San Francisco, at some time in the late 1870's.

Humphrey was afterwards prominent in radio as the star of the "Death Valley Days" program. Does anyone know whether he is still living?

46. Harry Bluff called himself Bobby Naish on a couple of Edison Blue Amberol cylinders recorded in England.

47. Inez Barbour sings with the Premier Quartet in the Amberol record (512) "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," although her name is not mentioned on the record box.

Another Premier Quartet record is a mystery to me, 1626, "Patriotic Songs of America," in which the quartet alternates in singing portions of time honored songs with the playing of the National Military Band. A woman assists, and this again probably is Miss Barbour, who was the wife of the late Henry Hadley, for years conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra.

A man sings part of "The Star-Spangled Banner." He seems to be a baritone, but his voice does not sound like that of any of the Premier Quartet members of that day. He certainly is not "The Canary." First Tenor John Bieling. He is not Billy Murray. In fact, if Billy is in the

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

MUSICAL BOXES - TALKING MACHINES - MUSIC ROLLS

PLAYER ORGANS & PIANOS

MUSIC MOVEMENTS AND MUSIC ROLLS MADE TO ORDER

Kensington, Maryland 20795

Phone 301 - 942-0416

(See our advertisement in Museum Department of HOBBIES)

record at any time he is virtually inaudible.

The singer is not the bass, William F. Hooley. That leaves Steve Porter, the baritone, but the style and enunciation seem unlike Porter's. In some respects he sounds like Donald Chalmers, but Chalmers wasn't making records when this number first appeared on an Amberol.

I'd like to look into Edison's files and discover who the members of the quartet were (some of the regulars may have been absent) the day this record was made.

48. The Peerless Quartet record, in which Henry Burr doesn't sing, is Edison Blue Amberol 1876 (previously issued on Amberol 431), "Characteristic Negro Medley," in which Billy Murray takes Burr's place as second tenor. Presumably this was done because Murray was considered better suited than Burr to singing this humorous kind of material.

49. The 1914 record with the lowest note of the human voice up to that time was, on the Edison Company's assertion, 82053, "The Horn," sung by the distinguished Rhode Island basso, Frederic Louis Martin.

50. According to a Victor publicity handout issued in the late 1930's or early 1940's the first recording done by Victor, after Eldridge R. Johnson acquired the Berliner patents, was "I guess I'll Have to Telegraph My Baby," sung by Johnson himself.

If this record was ever issued, however, I have been able to find no trace of it in Victor printed matter. It certainly would be worth having.

Victor single-faced record 1 was a recitation of Eugene Field's poem, "Departure," by George Broderick. But hundreds of records had already been issued before that in the 3,000 series, not to mention Johnson's 7-inch Climax and Improved discs that preceded the Victor label.

That concludes the list of 50 questions.

But now, for a bonus, I'll add four more, and follow immediately with the answers:

Now the Questions:

51. Anna Case is generally believed to have made no acoustic records except Edison discs and cylinders. (She made some Columbia electrics.) And Leonora Sparks is generally identified with Columbia and Pathe. Name a Victor Red Seal record in which both sopranos sang.

52. Who is the small boy shown in the photo accompanying this article wearing kilts or, as the Scotch prefer to term it, the kilt?

53. President Wilson's daughter, Margaret Woodrow Wilson, made several popular Columbia records. What earlier President had a niece who won recording success?

54. A recent Hallmark "reminder" calendar has a reference to a famous pioneer recording artist. Who is the artist?

Now the Answers:

51. The Red Seal record in which Misses Case and Sparks (and Marie
(Continued on page 40)

SIXPENNY EDITION

M. E. Lounsbury

YOU MUST HAVE A LITTLE BIT OF FUN

By FRANK WOOD and FRED GIBSON.

SUNG BY
Miss FLORRIE FORDE
IN HER REVUE
"Here's to You"

CAVENDISH MUSIC CO., 11, Soho Square, LONDON, W.1.

The Cavendish Music Co.

Florrie Forde

By ALLEN DEBUS

Florrie Forde was one of the reigning Queens of the English Music Hall for more than 40 years. Already successful in Australia, she arrived in London in 1897 where she played to, and conquered the audiences of three of the greatest music halls on the same night.

Among her most famous songs were:

"Down at the Old Bull and Bush, an adaptation of the American "Under the Anheuser Bush."

"Has Anyone Seen a German Band?"

Oh, Oh, Antonio.

Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly? Flanagan.

Hold Your Hand Out Naughty Boy.

Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag."

"You Must Have a Little Bit of Fun," was one of her hits of 1925.

Throughout her professional career she made hundreds of recordings from the opening of the new century down through the late 1930s.

One of the last records I have by her is a Medley of her greatest hits made for Regal-Zonophone, MR 2198.

Despite her tremendous popularity on English discs and cylinders she remained relatively unknown to the American record buyer. The only records of her listed in an American catalog that I know of are her Edison blue amberol cylinders: 23006 - "Keep On Swinging Me Charlie;" 23030 - "My Boy;" 23051 - "Keep Straight Down the Road;" 23069 - "Patricia;" 23102 - "Anywhere in Manxland;" and 23118, "Hold Your Hand Out, Naughty Boy!"

RECORDS WANTED

WILL BUY phonograph records any amount of the 20's and 30's. Will pay cash for information leading to purchase of any such collections; blues; hillbilly; jazz; personality; piano rolls; army & navy discs; 16" transcriptions; radio shows; speeches; singer; celebrities. I have over 450,000 out of print 78 records. Send for wants. — Jacob S. Schneider, 413 Amsterdam Ave., New York, N.Y. 10024. au68881

All Dolls Pictured are For Sale

ONE OF THE FINEST DISPLAYS OF DOLLS AND TOYS IN THE EAST

Open Every Day

Hours:

10:00 to 5:00

Sunday:

10:00 to 8:00

16 colored doll postals, $1.60 p.p.

"Touring Mary Merritt's Doll Museum" 50 pages of photos and text, $1 plus 10c postage.

"Dolls, Pleasure and Treasures" Antonia Fraser, 128 pages, beautiful photos on each page, $4.95 plus 15c postage.

Doll or Toy list 25c stamps or coin.

MARY MERRITT'S DOLL MUSEUM

Phone 215-385-3809

R.D. 2, Douglassville, Pa.

(DEPT. H)

tfe

ANTIQUE DOLL SHOP

239 Chartres Street
New Orleans 16, Louisiana

Close-out of the following (undressed)
German dolls: bisque heads, PM bodies.

- 23" C. M. Bergman, made in Germany ..... $25.00
23" Floradora A&M real hair wig ..... 25.00
24" C. M. Bergman A&M ..... 25.00
25" Heubach Koppelsdorf ..... 30.00
22" Made in Germany 168-08 ..... 20.00
24" "Taft" 1910 ..... 23.50
25" Armand & Marseilles A&M ..... 25.00
24" Simon Halbig C. M. Bergman; 26.50
24" Koppelsdorf Germany ..... 25.00
23" "Pansy" R H Germany ..... 25.00
20" A 6 M ..... 25.00
42" "Jutta" German bisque head
PM body ..... 175.00
17" SFBJ 301 Paris original HH wig.
Bisque head (French) ..... 50.00
Have an additional large stock of German dolls to dispose of. No lists. Please state wants. jlyp

EDNA W. VICTOR

- Box 1404 Studio City, Calif. 91604
Adorable Rosa O'Neill keeple clock (see plate 104
"The One Rose.") $32.
Schoenhut girl, rare wooden sleeping eyes. Also boy toddler. $35 each.
Gorgeous closed mouth Jumeau marked on both body and head, lovely clothes, orig. stand. $185.
Open mouth talking Jumeau shown on page 49
Fawcett's "New Guide." $140.
RARE ORIENTAL ALL BISQUE. 5½" tall, glass eyes, molded Chinese shoes, long pigtail, darling orig. clothes and rug. A true collector's item.
$40.
Transportation extra. jlyc

FOR SALE

ANTIQUE DOLL COLLECTION:

400 dolls, Parian, bisque, wax, wooden, china, 15" to 32", complete with wigs, eyes, etc., completely dressed.

For further information, contact . . .

FERNE E. MARSHALL

100 56th St. S.W.

Grand Rapids, Mich. jlyp

Dolls for the beginning and advanced collector.
We also carry a good selection of heads, bodies, and parts. LAY-A-WAYS always welcomed. Large current list available FREE for stamped envelope.

AUNT BETTY'S DOLL HOUSE

3560 Cherry Lane

Greensboro, N. C. 27405

56c

LET KIMPORT SCOUT FOR YOU

It's a lucky vacationer who can find one perfect doll in a dozen stops. (Unless you come to Kimport of course). Why not enjoy the scenery and let Kimport search for you? They know values and obtain entire collections from which to offer you very special dolls. Please write your wants.

Free sample house organ Doll Talk Sent on Request.

KIMPORT DOLLS

Box 495

Independence, Mo. jlyc

CHINESE CH'A

Mint condition, finest specimen of Ch'a I have ever come across. Does not contain the damaging imperfections of the American and English variety. Ch'a is Mandarin Chinese for 'TEA', and is specially prescribed for those who are bothered by the Tannic Acid in other teas, but everyone who likes good tea drinks it. Have you ever drank Chinese Ch'a? Why not send for a box today? Choice of: Jasmine with Jasmine flower petals, Oolong, & Red.

Box, 100 Tea Bags, ppd. $1.35

Box, 5 oz. Loose, ppd. $1.00

CHINESE CHARLIE

Post Office Box 771

San Francisco, California

利差國中

oc

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

Mattfeld, mezzo-soprano) assist Johanna Gadske, the star soprano, is 88441, "Du also bist mein Brautigam" ("Oh Dagger! Thou Art My Goodwill is the one and only asset that competition cannot undersell nor destroy.

—Marshall Field

You can't escape the responsibility of tomorrow by evading it today.

—Abraham Lincoln

Bridegroom!"), from Mozart's "Magic Flute." It was issued in November, 1913, and seems to be relatively scarce.

In his "Collectors' Price Guide," published in 1952, Julian Morton Moses gives $9 as a reasonable figure for this record.

The supplement commented: "The music of the three 'boys' is sung by Mmes. Case, Sparks, and Mattfeld, with voices of clear, youthful timbre which exhibit well the grace and brightness of Mozart's music."

52. The small boy wearing the kilt is veteran recording tenor Charles Hart, whose ancestry is not noticeably Scottish.

Despite several serious and painful operations of the past few years, "Charlie" Hart, whose life story was told in HOBBIES for December, 1958, and January, 1959, is living contentedly at 155 Hudson Street, Englewood, N. J. He observed his 80th birthday May 16, 1964.

53. Mabel McKinley Baer was a niece of President William McKinley. She was successful as a soprano singer in vaudeville and wrote several popular songs, including "Golden Rod" and the great Indian hit, "Anona," both of which she recorded in 1908-09 on Edison Amberol cylinders. In recording she used her maiden name, Mabel McKinley.

54. The artist mentioned on the Hallmark calendar is, again!, Vess L. Ossman. After buying one of the calendars, Mrs. Vess L. Ossman III of Arlington, Va., was surprised to find in the space for May 3, "Memories of Vess Ossman." Neither she nor I know what connection that date has with "The Banjo King's" life and career. Perhaps the Hallmark Company would tell us.

That concludes the pioneer recording artists quiz.

Would you like another some time?

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Some Mysterious Edison Diamond Discs

By JIM WALSH

The ways of the one-time Thomas A. Edison, Inc., appear beyond understanding.

Edison made incomparably the finest records of the pre-electric period. But the inventor's system of distributing the Diamond Discs was not in keeping with their merits.

Frequently, songs were recorded when they first began to be popular, yet they were not placed on sale until years later when the demand had ceased.

Some songs of World War I, such as "When the Great Red Dawn is Shining," and "The Little Good-for-Nothing's Good For Something, After All," were not issued until 1922-23. A comic talking record, "A Visit to Reilley's," made available during the same period, referred to the 1915 sinking of the Lusitania as a recent event.

But here is something more inexplicable. I learned a few years ago that Edison made many Diamond Discs that were never issued, in the sense of taking their place in the catalog. And I have been baffled ever since, trying to account for the way these records occasionally turn up.

If my old friend, Fred Rabenstein, who used to be my "contact man" at the Edison Laboratories, were still alive he probably would solve the mystery.

Perhaps the eminent New York expert on Edison recordings, Ray Wile, who periodically visits the Edison National Monument at West Orange, N.J., may look into the matter and give us the results of his findings.

Possibly, I, myself, might already have learned the answer by writing to some of my remaining Edison friends. But I have decided, just for fun, to write this article setting forth the mystery, then give the answer later, if I learn it.

The nearest thing to a solution that occurs to me is that the uncataloged records may have been intended solely for use in "tone tests," when Edison artists sang or played in comparison with the Diamond Discs, to prove there was no difference between the living music and the reproduced.

For this purpose, however, it would seem that only a few copies would have had to be pressed. But the letters and numbers on the smooth inside rim of the records appear to indicate the normal number of pressings.

Here, for instance, is one marked C-2-4. This indicates it is made from the second sub-master of a C master record, and that about 8,000 copies have been produced from that sub-master and the four moulds.

Incidentally, the letters A, B, and C do not indicate the order in which different recordings of the same selection were made. Mr. Rabenstein told me that the three original masters (Edison always had the artist make at least three) were examined by an expert through a microscope, and the one with sound wave formations that looked best to him was labeled A; the next best, B; and the remaining one, C.

Thus it sometimes happened that the one made last received the A identification because of what the microscope appeared to indicate. The same thing was true of remakes, lettered F, G, and H.

D and E were very rarely used, although two or three examples have turned up in piano records made by Ernest L. Stevens under Mr. Edison's personal supervision at West Orange. A few examples of mould letters up to O have also been found.

Some of the mystery records were made by popular Edison artists, but not listed under their names in the customers' catalogs. Others were by performers who never received catalog identification as singing or playing for Edison.

The tone-test idea receives slight added plausibility from the fact that the unlisted records are nearly all vocal. No bands or orchestras, which were not used for direct comparison purposes, are included. There are many more women singers than men in the unlisted group.

Somebody who might solve the mystery, and I hope he will if he reads this, is Victor Young, the Putnam Valley, N.Y., antiques dealer who advertises regularly in HOBBIES.

Mr. Young was a staff pianist at Edison in the tone-test days. And his wife, Helen Davis, a charming mezzo-soprano, was an Edison artist and tone-test performer.

Mr. Young sometimes began a tone test by walking to the front of the stage, looking around as if for Miss Davis, and remarking that she seemed to be late. Meanwhile, he would play one of her records.

After the music started, she would be seen walking up an aisle. And she would sing with the machine until she reached the stage and stood beside the Laboratory Model New Edison.

Miss Davis made some of the unlisted records. Many years ago, when I visited Abingdon, Va., I met Mr. Young's aunt, the late Miss Ethel Baugh. She played for me an unsold Helen Davis record, "She Was French and I Was English," with the accompaniment by "Albert Victor," as Miss Baugh called Mr. Young.

After I returned home she wrote me that she would give me that record if I came to see her again, but she died before I again saw Abingdon. I haven't seen the record listed in the group now being discussed.

For years I have hoped that some form of transportation would take me to Putnam Valley, so I could talk with Mr. and Mrs. Young about the old Edison days and write a HOBBIES article about their experiences, but my time for travel is severely limited.

Should this come to the notice of Helen and Victor I hope they will enlighten us concerning the records that were pressed but never issued in the ordinary way.

I first learned of these baffling Diamond Discs when my friend, Herbert W. Schmid of Indianapolis, Ind., sent me an Edison dealer's numerical catalog—the only one, I think, I have seen.

The dealer who had owned it had so arranged it that records still in the catalog were listed on the right side of the page, and cut-outs transferred to the left.

Included among the cut-outs were a fairly large number of Diamond Discs I had never before heard of. There were also a good many spaces containing only a record number, but with no title. They apparently were reserved for records never issued.

When I said I assumed the previously undiscovered titles were records Edison had intended to issue but for some reason didn't offer for sale, Mr. Schmid replied that he had most of them in his collection and owned a fair number of duplicates which he would be glad to let me have.

Naturally, I took him up because I felt I would be acquiring some re-

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry that he is unable to reply to most of the correspondence he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and is unable to tell anyone where to buy or sell them except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot make tape recordings or exchange tapes with readers, and he cannot supply back copies of this magazine. These have to be ordered direct from HOBBIES, 1006 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605.

Helen Davis (costumed as Jenny Lind) was one of Thomas A. Edison's favorite singers. She made some uncataloged Diamond Discs.

Victor Young, now a Putnam Valley, N.Y., antiques dealer, played the accompaniment for records by his wife, Helen Davis.

On the other side Odette LeFon-tenay, soprano, sings "I Know a Lovely Garden," and "Yesterday and Today." The serial numbers indicate they were recorded in 1917 and the catalog number that they came out in 1918.

But—this is the mysterious thing! —the dealer's catalog gives the singer of the Lazzeri side as Mabelle Wagner—Shank! Now what on earth happened? Wagner-Shank can hardly be a disguise for Lazzeri, since the two voices are entirely different. Anyway, neither version "made" the customer catalog.

Another surprise was finding one of Edison's most popular comedians, Byron G. Harlan, represented by 50566, "Dancing the Du Da Du Da Dae," and "I'm a Twelve O'Clock Fellow (in a Nine O'Clock Town)." Both were recorded in 1917, but not issued—if that's the right word—until 1919, and never cataloged.

There are also some comic records by a Scotchman, David Duggin, whose name never appears in standard Edison catalogs.

Marie Tiffany, a soprano who travelled extensively doing tone-test work before she married a Brunswick official and became a Brunswick recording artist, has several of these mystery records.

So has Amy Ellerman, contralto. Leeta Corder, a soprano who died a few years ago and was identified in her death notice as an Edison artist, but whose name escaped the catalog, is another.

And why was a double-faced Diamond Disc made of "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and "There's a Long Long Trail" by Ida Gardner, con-markable rarities. Nearly all the "unissued" Diamond Discs I have came from Mr. Schmid.

Most of these records were made in 1919, though one or two appear to go back to 1918. Three are from early 1925. Nearly all are black label, but, to add to the mystery, one or two have "Recreation" white labels which weren't used until late in 1921 or the start of 1922.

Yet you may search any Edison alphabetical record catalog from 1919 through 1928 and find no mention of these records. The big batch issued in 1919 are not mentioned in any of the monthly supplements for that year, although they are numbered in ordinary sequence. The more I think of it the more I experience a rather pleasing sense of bewilderment.

(I have just patted Nipper's head and told him, in response to his urgent meows, that I must finish this article and can't play with him now.)

Did you ever hear of a soprano named Mabelle Wagner-Shank? You won't find her name in an Edison catalog, but she is represented by several of these unaccountable records. One in which I was particularly interested was 50561, "Beautiful Ohio," and "When the Evening Bells Are Ringing."

In Edison catalogs "Beautiful Ohio" is listed twice as sung by the Metropolitan Quartet and played by Judas' Society Orchestra. After one playing of the Wagner-Shank record, I could understand well enough why the Metropolitan Quartet version was chosen, but why was the soprano solo made at all?

Then there is another soprano, Florence Ferrell, who was photographed giving tone tests. I have been unable to find her name in any Edison catalog except the dealer's.

And just now—even as I typed—I discovered something I had never before noticed that increases my mystification. I have a white label Recreation, 80392, on one side of which the great operatic contralto, Carolina Lazzeri, sings two typical encore numbers, "I Am Thy Harp," and "I Love You Truly."

From left to right:

Merle Alcock, the eminent contralto, made a "mystery" record.

Florence Ferrell, soprano, gave Edison tone tests, but her name did not appear in the Diamond Disc catalogs.

Cecil Arden, contralto, made some of the "mystery" Edison records.

tralto, when both songs were well represented in the catalog by other artists?

I could go on and on commenting. Instead I'll copy from the catalog of the old Edison dealer, whoever he was, the listings of the unaccounted for records.

The list probably will not be complete, for the dealer may have overlooked inserting slips covering some of the records that are identified by numbers alone.

Three of the records, issued in February, 1925, by women blues singers, may have been intended as the nucleus of an Edison "race catalog" to compete with those of Okeh and other companies of that time, but they received no recognition in the big Edison catalog even though they appeared in their proper numerical order in the dealer's list.

50551, 52, 59, blank;
50561, "Beautiful Ohio," and "When the Evening Bells Are Ringing," Mabelle Wagner-Shank;
50562, 63, 64, 65, blank;
50566, "Dancing the Du Da Du Dae," and "I'm a Twelve O'Clock Fellow," Byron G. Harlan; 51476, "Sweet Man Joe," Josie Miles, and "Undertaker's Blues," Rosa Henderson; 51477, "Mad Mama's Blues," and "Temperamental Papa," by Josie Miles;
51478, "Don't Advertise Your Man," Rosa Henderson, and "Memphis Bound," Viola McCov;
80361, 62, 63, 64, 66, 67, 68, 74, 75, 76, 77, blank;
80378, "Good Night, Little Girl, Good Night," and "A Pink Rose," Mabelle Wagner-Shank; 80380, (a) "Rose in the Bud," (b) "I Love You Truly," and "Mattinata," Mabelle Wagner-Shank; 80392, (a) "I Am Thy Harp," (b) "I Love You Truly," Mabelle Wagner-Shank, and (a) "I Know a Lovely Garden," (b) "Yesterday and Today," Odette Le Fontenay;

80403, 04, 05, blank;
80407, "Dreams," and "I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls," Florence Ferrell;
80421, 22, blank;
80423, "There's a Long, Long Trail," and "Keep the Home Fires Burning," Ida Gardner;
80424, blank;
80473, "Since First I Met Thee," Florence Ferrell, and (a) "When Love is Kind," and (b) "Jenny," Amy Ellerman;
80475, blank;
80480, "Coming Home," and "Lover and the Bird," Claire Lillian Peteler; 80495, "Cantilena," Igor Sokoloff, violon-cello, and (a) "To a Wild Rose," and (b) "Elegie," Madeline MacGuigan Sokoloff, violin;
80497, blank;
80533, "Scots, Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bled," Emerson Williams, and "Hunting Tower," Emerson Williams & Jean MacNeil; 80534, "Crookit Bawbee," Emerson Williams and Jean MacNeil, and "Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon," Jean MacNeil;
80536, "Ma Little Sun Flower, Good Night," Jean MacNeil, and "Lassie O' Mine," Emerson Williams;
80540, "Scenes That Are Brightest," and "Always Do As People Say You Should," Leeta Corder; 80542, (a) "To You," (b) "If I But Knew," and "Danube River," Helen Davis;
80545 through 80554, blank;
80557 through 80560, blank;
80555, "Tatters," and "That's the Reason Noo I Wear a Kilt," David Duggin, Scottish tenor;
80556, "Oh! You Don't Know What You Are Missing," and "You'd Better Ask Me," and "There Is Somebody Waiting for me," David Duggin; 80564, "Villanelle," and "Can It Be Love at Last?" Leeta Corder; 80565, "Ben Bolt," and "Could I," Cecil Arden, contralto; 80566, "Mattinata," and "Lucrezia Borgia—Il Sergento per esser Felici," Cecil Arden; 80567, "Blue Bells of Scotland," and "Consider the Lilies," Helen Davis; 80568, "Dearie," and "The Amorous Goldfish," Helen Newitt, soprano;
80584 and 85, blank;
80636, (a) "In Mirrored Waters," and (b) "By the Waters of Minnetonka," Marie Morrisey, contralto, with flute obbligato by Harold L. Lyman, & "Mammy Dear," Marie Morrisey;
80655 through 80666, blank;
80708, 09, 14, and 35, blank;
80739, 40, 41, 43, and 68, blank;
80903 and 80904, blank;
82108 through 82112, blank;
82116, 62, 65, and 66, blank;
82126, "Forgotten," and "Shadows," Amy Ellerman, contralto;
82127, "I've Been Roaming," and "Land o' the Leal," Amy Ellerman; 82137, "Blue Bells of Scotland," and "Florian's Song," Marie Tiffany; 82141, "Fields o' Ballyclare," and "My Ain Folk," Merle Alcock, contralto;
82142, blank;
82143, "Faust—King of Thule," and "The Swallows," Odette Le Fontenay; 82146, "Good-Bye," and "Some Day," Odette Le Fontenay.

I suspect this list might be added to materially, but it suffices to show that Edison made, and in some manner distributed, at least a few copies of records that were never regularly cataloged. On re-reading, I am struck by several things:

The records were nearly all in the 80000 series, which sold at various times from $1.50 to $1.85. There is a remarkable percentage of sides containing two short selections, of the type I have already called "encore numbers." There was a tendency to have the same song recorded by more than one artist. Numbers with a Scotch flavor stand out to a remarkable degree. And there seems to be a startling proportion of contraltos.

Ida Gardner, photographed in 1917 giving an Edison tone-test, made a Diamond Disc of "There's a Long, Long Trail" that was never listed in the yearly record catalogs.

Now can any well-informed and charitable citizen give us the secret story, whatever it was, behind all these mysterious Diamond Discs?

(The End)

"A HOT TIME IN THE OLD TOWN TONIGHT" 1886

This famous rollicking tune may be properly listed as a patriotic song, and it has been so accepted by the Army ever since the Spanish-American War. Like "Dixie" it has a minstrel background; it was written in a little Louisiana town by a show musician, Theodore Metz, who was an orchestra leader on tour with one of the smaller companies.

This was in 1886. It had little popularity at the time, and was not published until 1896, when it was brought out by Willis Woodward and Company, with words by Joe Hayden. As Browne puts it: "the catchy, don't care tune carried an irresistible attraction for our fighter lads of 1898, when, as one music critic writes "Theodore Roosevelt catapulted into fame by adopting it as the official song of his Rough Riders."

—Kenneth Rose in the August, 1944, HOBBIES

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

PERFORMERS WHO REMADE TWO-MINUTE EDISON CYLINDERS

PART I

Record collectors, and especially those who specialize in preserving the now obsolete cylinders, suffered a severe loss when Dr. Duane D. Deakins died in a plane crash in the California mountains.

Dr. Deakins, who was a staff physician at the Bret Harte Sanatorium, Murphys, Calif., had devoted most of his spare time for several years to compiling catalogs of several types of cylinders.

These are already scarce collector's treasures. They included the Edison Standard two-minute, the Amberol four-minute, Blue Amberol four-minute, Indestructible, and U.S. Everlasting.

Although these listings are marred by a number of errors (they were to have been corrected in later editions that may never appear) they nevertheless, represent a genuine passion for the cause of cylinder collecting, and are invaluable for reference.

When Dr. Deakins died he was amassing information concerning two-minute Columbia cylinders issued from 1889 to 1909, in the hope of presenting a complete Columbia listing.

His work was left uncompleted, partly because Columbia catalogs for several years did not give names of artists who made records, but listed them merely as Tenor, Baritone, Soprano, and the like.

Dr. Deakins did not want to publish his Columbia booklet until all numbers, titles, and artists had been identified, but he had not been able to assemble a complete set of catalogs, and there were still hundreds, perhaps thousands of record numbers, still to be accounted for.

If I had time I should like to attempt such a Columbia catalog myself, but time is one thing I don't have. I am a newspaper staff writer, and turn out thousands of words every working day as part of my job. During my little leisure I find it impossible to perform much extended research in addition to looking after a large house, caring for my cats, and trying to do some of the almost innumerable other things I am called on to accomplish.

More and more, it becomes out of the question for me to write letters, even to my long-standing friends. I have on hand hundreds of letters from HOBBIES readers which probably never will be answered, simply because I don't have the time or, if I did, couldn't work 24 hours a day.

I am always glad to hear from readers, commenting on articles I have written or suggesting others that I might write, although I am something like 10 years behind with subjects about which I have committed myself to write eventually.

Letters I am unglad to receive are those in which I am asked to give information that would take hours of investigation to answer, or wanting to know how much old records are worth and where they can be sold.

As my monthly advertisement says, I do not deal in records, cannot tell what they are worth, or point the way to a purchaser. All I can do is suggest that the would-be seller write to some of the persons who advertise in HOBBIES that they deal in old records.

In spite, however, of saying that I lack time for research, I am about to give the results of some investigations I have painstakingly made.

I believe that Dr. Deakins' catalog of Edison Standard two-minute cylinders has one serious omission. Where a cylinder was afterwards remade by an artist other than the one who originally sang or played it, Dr. Deakins gives only the name of the first performer.

This means that in many instances the listing of records under an ar-

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES & TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, & extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1825)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1506

tlc

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tlc

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

MUSICAL BOXES - TALKING MACHINES - MUSIC ROLLS

PLAYER ORGANS & PIANOS

MUSIC MOVEMENTS AND MUSIC ROLLS MADE TO ORDER

Kensington, Maryland 20795

Phone 301 - 942-0416

(See our advertisement in Museum Department of HOBBIES)

tlc

"Denver Nightingale"—Billy Murray, right, is shown here with his devoted friend, James V. Martindale. When Murray was appearing with the National Barn Dance in Chicago in 1942, he remade several cylinders by other artists, but Billy's popularity was so great none of his remade were by anyone except himself.

—Photos, property of Jim Walsh tist's name is incomplete, and the person who consults the Deakins' catalog does not have available a complete list of that performer's cylinders. A few, who did only remakes, are not listed at all.

This applies to the two-minute Standards, alone. The wax four-minute Amberols were sold for only four years, from 1908 to 1912, a period too short, apparently, for the supply of moulds to be exhausted by even the best-selling numbers.

And neither are any "remakes" indicated in the Blue Amberol list. But

NOTE: Because of the pressure of many other demands on his time, Mr. Walsh is sorry that he is unable to reply to most of the correspondence he receives from HOBBIES readers. He does not buy or sell records and is unable to tell anyone where to buy or sell them except to suggest writing to dealers who advertise in HOBBIES. He cannot make tape recordings or exchange tapes with readers, and he cannot supply back copies of this magazine. These have to be ordered direct from HOBBIES, 1006 So. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605.

there were some, dubbed from Edison Diamond discs. Blue Amberols sold so poorly in the last half dozen years they were made, there was no danger of the moulds giving out.

But the story is different with the two-minutes that appeared from 1896 to 1912. Even after the cylinders began to be gold moulded in 1902, there were no permanent masters.

The master record was destroyed in making the moulds, and after the moulds became damaged from constant use it eventually became necessary to make a new supply.

Where the original artist was available and was considered satisfactory, he or she was used for the re-makes; but if not available, because of having become exclusive to some other company or for any other reason, another artist had to be substituted. These re-makes are not indicated in the Deakins' catalog.

So I have decided that, in order to supplement the dedicated Doctor's admirable work, I will publish a list of these "make overs."

Dr. Deakins explained to me that he omitted identifying more than one version of a cylinder, and used only the name of the artist first recording it, in order to conserve space, and because he thought multiple listings would be confusing.

My own feeling, however, is that collectors need to know about the many changes that marked the Edison cylinder catalogs.

It isn't fair, say, to a collector who wants to have information concerning every Edison record Ada Jones made, to omit her 1905 rendition of "Little Alabama Coon," simply because George J. Gaskin (and Arthur Collins, who also isn't mentioned by Deakins) had sung it previously.

It is this omission that I feel a holy urge to remedy.

But first, some explanation is called for. Partly because of the pressure of time, I am listing only vocal and instrumental records.

For the moment, I am not trying to report on remade versions of band and orchestral selections. They may come later, but the old-time cylinders of this type are of little interest to most collectors, and I see no need just now to list the many changes that were made in those categories.

After all, the bands and orchestras were mostly house organizations. It makes little difference, as far as the sound is concerned, whether the box, in which the cylinder was issued, called the recording group the Edison Military Band, the Edison Concert Band, or something else.

In giving details of the remade Standards I am following a policy exactly opposite to that of Dr. Deakins. He mentioned the name of the first artist to record a cylinder, but omitted that performer's successor or successors.

I am placing the individual selection under the name of the artist or artists who last made it. Then I go back to the original performer and follow in order with any others.

A good example is the first cylinder in this compilation, "As Your Hair Grows Whiter," which I have put beneath the name of Harry Anthony, who made it in February, 1906.

Next comes George J. Gaskin, who made the first version in 1898 or earlier; then Joe Natus' 1902 interpretation, and finally, that of Albert Campbell, which I found for the first time in the October, 1903, catalog. Campbell's, of course, gave way to Anthony's.

I have tried in every instance to list the first complete catalog or monthly supplement in which I found a particular version offered, but no guarantee is made that some of the cylinders may not have been listed earlier.

I have perhaps the largest collection of Edison cylinder catalogs, but there are gaps. For instance, I have nothing, aside from some monthly listings in the Phonogram, between the October, 1899, catalog, and the one dated "fall, 1902."

Similarly, there are several gaps from 1904 to 1906. A remake that I list as appearing for the first time, to my knowledge, in 1902, may have been issued in 1900 or 1901.

Perhaps all uncertainty will be cleared up when Major H. H. Annand and associated English record collectors publish the numerical list they are compiling of all Edison cylinders.

However, I am not sure whether Major Annand and associates will indicate all artists who made, and remade a record, or whether, the Deakins policy of giving only the first artist to sing or play it, will be followed.

I admit I am somewhat uncertain concerning a few apparently remade records. The Edison system was sometimes peculiar.

For instance, take the second number under Anthony, "Because." I first found it, sung by Anthony, in the complete cylinder catalog for November, 1905.

Previously, it had been listed by Albert Campbell in October, 1899; by Joe Natus, 1902; and then by Campbell again in August, 1904! There are one or two other examples of such oddities.

Going down the list, I find check marks beside the numbers of a few concerning which I felt I should make some comment.

For instance, there is "Home With the Milk in the Morning," which was listed in the March, 1910, supplement as being by Pete Murray, a vaudeville tenor who made only a few Edison records.

The March, 1911, complete catalog, just a year later, says the record is by the much better known and more popular Billy Murray.

Now what happened? Did Pete Murray make the original version, only to have Edison remake it a few months later because it was considered unsatisfactory, or because of damage to the moulds?

Was Billy Murray chosen because Pete—no relation to Billy—was no longer available?

Did Pete really make the record and did it continue to be by him? But was Billy Murray's name (under which it appeared until two-minute cylinders were discontinued in October, 1912) substituted by mistake?

Or was it really made by Billy to begin with, credited to Pete through error, and the error afterwards corrected? I wish I knew, but I don't.

Although the piano record of "Violet," first made by Frank P. Banta, was remade by Albert Benzler, the moulds remained in working order. Edison made a special indestructible pressing of it for Banta's son, Frank E. Banta, when the four-minute Blue Amberols were introduced late in 1912.

"Auction Sale of Household Goods," has its share of peculiarities. It was issued by Len Spencer and Gilbert Girard in August, 1902; by Spencer and Alfred S. Holt in November, 1905; Spencer and Girard again in April, 1907; then back to Spencer and Holt, in December, 1907; and finally by Spencer alone August, 1908.

A soprano, Nellie Thomas—does anybody now living know anything about her?—made a record of "For All Eternity." It came out in 1902.

Far from lasting for all eternity, Miss Thomas' version was replaced in August, 1904, with one by Corinne Morgan, the well-known and popular contralto. Then, in July, 1906, the Morgan interpretation gave way to one by another much less known contralto, Mary Porter Mitchell.

Incidentally, it may be reasonably assumed that records, the moulds of which gave out so quickly they had to be remade over and over, were good sellers—unless Edison's experts grossly under-estimated the number of moulds usually ranging from 10 to 40, that would be needed.

Some surprise may be felt at finding that Cal Stewart, the genial delineator of "Uncle Josh," remade George W. Johnson's highly individual "Laughing Coon" and "Laughing Song," in 1902. However, Stewart became exclusive to Columbia in 1903, and both numbers were soon afterwards relisted by Johnson.

As the moulds wore out, Stewart's "Uncle Josh" records disappeared from the Edison catalog. An "iron puddler," Andrew Keefe of Albany, N. Y., was engaged to record a few of them, but since they were not given the original Stewart catalog numbers they do not count as remakes.

It is at least as astonishing to find that Arthur Collins, in 1900, was induced to remake "Turkey in the Straw," to which Billy Golden was Ada Jones, front, most popular recording comedienne of her day, remade "Little Alabama Coon," which had previously been sung by George J. Gaskin and Arthur Collins. This 1908 picture shows Ada Jones with Beth Boone, who wrote several of the sketches recorded by Miss Jones and Len Spencer.

Conducted by JIM WALSH

PERFORMERS WHO REMADE TWO-MINUTE EDISON CYLINDERS

By JIM WALSH

PART II

Alphabetical Listing Arranged by Artists

ANTHONY, HARRY (John Young), Tenor—Records Remade by:

1562—As Your Hair Grows Whiter (Feb., 1906). Previously by George J. Gaskin (1898); Albert Campbell (1899); Joe Natus (1902); Campbell (Oct., 1903).

5710—Because (Nov., 1905). Previously by Campbell (Oct., 1899); Natus (1902); Campbell (Aug., 1904).

7537 Bird in a Gilded Cage (July, 1905). Previously by Natus (Oct., 1900).

8517—Down on the Farm (Nov., 1905). Previously by Franklyn Wallace (Oct., 1903).

7871—I've a Longing in my Heart for You, Louise (Nov., 1905). Previously by Natus (1901).

5720—My Wild Irish Rose (July, 1906). Previously by Campbell (1899); Natus (1902).

8038—Ring Down the Curtain (Aug., 1907). Previously by Wallace (July, 1902).

BAKER, SUSANNE, Contralto — Record Remade by:

8014 Down Where the Bluebells Grow (Nov., 1905). Previously by Louise Roberts (June, 1902).

BANJO RECORDS—Remade by Vess L. Ossman:

The following were originally made by Ruby Brooks in 1898 or earlier.

2604—Cocoanut Dance (Aug., 1904).

2607—Darkey's Awakening (1899).
 2608—Darkey's Patrol (April, 1907).
 2608—Darkey Tickle (Nov., 1905).
 2613—Happy Days in Dixie (Aug., 1907).
 2616—Hot Stuff Patrol (1899).
 2625—Nigger in a Fit (1899).
 2631—Sounds from Africa (1899).
 2635—Yankee Doodle (1899).
 7679—Salome. Previously by Fred Van Eps (1907).
 7666 San Toy Selections. Previously by Fred Van Eps (1901).

BANJO RECORDS—Remade by Fred Van Eps:

2605—Darkey's Dream (Nov., 1905). Previously by Ruby Brooks (1898).

2627—Patrol Comique (April, 1907). Previously by (1) Brooks (1898); (2) Ossman (1899).

2632—Stars and Stripes Forever March (1905). Previously by Brooks (1898).

7881—Sunflower Dance (April, 1907). Previously by (1) Brooks (1901); (2) Ossman (1902).

BELLS RECORD—Remade by Albert Benzler:

8379—Pretty Peggy (Dec., 1907). Previously by F. Rubsam (April, 1903).

BUGLE CALLS—Remade by John Hazel:

8144 Infantry Calls (Nov., 1905). Previously by A. L. Sweet (Sept., 1902).

8057—U.S. Cavalry Calls (Nov., 1905). Previously by A. L. Sweet (July, 1902).

CLIFFORD ARTHUR, Baritone (George Alexander)—Remade by:

7013—Carmen—Toreador Song (Oct., 1903). Previously by J. J. Fisher (1899).

COLLINS, ARTHUR, Baritone—Records Remade by:

4011—Turkey in de Straw (1901). Previously by Billy Golden (1899).

6948—Way to Kiss a Girl (Nov., 1905). Previously by Dan W. Quinn (1899).

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

OLD RECORDS FOR SALE

Just purchased a quantity of Victor Records large size Red Seal Single-faced and a few of the smaller ones.

Such artists as Alda, Calve, Caruso, Farrar, Galski, Galli-Curci, Homer, Melba, Ponselle, Schumann - Heink, etc.

No lists - give us the number of the record you are looking for and artist's name and we will quote you if we have it.

THE HOBBY STALL
Hubert & Helen Harris
Perth Road Amsterdam, N.Y.

antique

MUSIC BOXES

for sale

MAGNIFICENT ASSORTMENT OF ALL SIZES &amp; TYPES

Small 4 tune instruments up to large table models playing 90 tunes, some with bells, drum, organ attachments, dancing dolls, etc. Also the disc type, all sizes, &amp; extra discs. Lists upon request. Expert repairing. All work guaranteed.

(Orig. Established Switzerland 1825)

BORNAND MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N. Y.

Phone 914 PE. 8-1506

tfc

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

OLD SALZBURG MUSIC BOXES

MUSICAL BOXES - TALKING MACHINES - MUSIC ROLLS

PLAYER ORGANS &amp; PIANOS

MUSIC MOVEMENTS AND MUSIC ROLLS MADE TO ORDER

Kensington, Maryland 20795

Phone 301 - 942-0416

(See our advertisement in Museum Department of HOBBIES)

"Banjo King," Vess L. Ossman, seated with banjo in front of him, is shown here in 1916 with his Banjo Orchestra. The pianist is Max Lichtenstein and the young man with the saxophone may be Vess Ossman, Jr. The elder Ossman remade several cylinders.

COLLINS, ARTHUR, and HARLAN, BYRON G.—Records Remade by:
7889—I Got Mine (Feb., 1906). Previously by Arthur Collins and Joe Natus (1901).
8018—McManus and the Parrot (Nov., 1905). Previously by Collins and Natus (Dec., 1901).
7865—Negro Recollections (Nov., 1905). Previously by Collins (1900).
7474—Old Black Joe (Nov., 1905). Previously by Collins (1900).

COLLINS, ARTHUR, and NATUS, JOE—Record Remade by:
7997—Whon, Bill (1902). Previously by Collins (1900).

CORNET SOLO—Remade by John Hazel:
8882—Last Rose of Summer (July, 1906). Previously by Bohumir Kryl (Jan., 1901).

CORNET DUET—Remade by John Hazel and William N. Barstow: 8898—Two of Us (Dec., 1907). Previously by Hazel and Frank S. Seltzer (Jan., 1904).

CORNET & TROMBONE DUET—Remade by Herbert L. Clarke and Leo Zimmerman: 8382—Alice Where Art Thou? (Nov., 1905). Previously by Clarke and Leroy Haines (April, 1903).

DRUM and FIFE CORPS—Remade by U.S. Marine Fife and Drum Corps: 8058—Forbes' Farewell (Nov., 1905). Previously by National Guard of New Jersey Field Music (July, 1902).

DUDLEY, S. H., Baritone—Records Remade by:
1011—Chin Chin Chinaman (Oct., 1899). Previously by Dan W. Quinn, tenor (1898).
1084—Put Me Off at Buffalo (Oct., 1899). Previously by Quinn (1898).
4012—Whistling Coon (1902). Previously by George W. Johnson (1898).
4013—Whistling Girl (July 1, 1903). Previously by George W. Johnson (1898).

DUFFY, JOHN H., Baritone—Records Remade by: 7839—Bedouin Love Song (Nov., 1905). Previously by J. W. Myers (1901).
8010—Bridge, The (Nov., 1905). Previously by J. W. Myers (June, 1902).

EDISON MIXED QUARTET—Records Remade by:
8321—Good Night, Good Night Beloved (April, 1907). Previously by Mendelssohn Mixed Quartet (Feb., 1903).
8496—Home, Sweet Home (Aug., 1907). Previously by Mendelssohn Mixed Quartet (Sept., 1903).
8356—Sweet and Low (Nov., 1905). Previously by Mendelssohn Mixed Quartet (March, 1903).

EDISON MALE QUARTET—Record Remade by:
8217—Lucky Jim (July, 1906). Previously by Lotus Quartet (Nov., 1902).

EDISON TRIO—Record Remade by:
8503—Attila—Praise Ye (Nov., 1905). Previously by Metropolitan Mixed Trio (Oct., 1903).

FAVOR, EDWARD M.—Record Remade by:
1066—McGinty at the Living Pictures (1899). Previously by Dan W. Quinn (1898).

FLUTE and VIOLIN DUETS—Remade by Eugene Rose and Eugene Jaudas: 8423—Heart's Desire (Nov., 1905). Previously by Jaudas and Louis Atz (July, 1903).
8495—Mountain Echoes (Nov., 1905). Previously by Jaudas and Atz (Sept., 1903).
8464—On the High Alps (Nov., 1905). Previously by Jaudas and Atz (Aug., 1903).
8404—Spring of Love (Nov., 1905). Previously by Jaudas and Atz (June, 1903).

GILLETTE, IRVING (Henry Burr), Tenor—Records Remade by:
2018—Holy City (Nov., 1905). Previously by (1) Roger Harding (1898); (2) Harry Macdonough (Oct., 1899).

1515—Home, Sweet Home (Nov., 1905). Previously by (1) George J. Gaskin (1898); (2) Macdonough (Oct., 1899).
8233—Palms, The (Nov., 1905). Previously by George M. Stricklett (Nov., 1902).

HARLAN, BYRON G., Tenor—Records Remade by:
5718—Girl I Loved in Sunny Tennessee (1902). Previously by Albert Campbell (Oct., 1879).
8020—Where the Silvery Colorado Winds Its Way (Nov., 1905). Previously by J. Aldrich Libbey (April, 1902).

HARLAN, BYRON G. and STANLEY, FRANK C.—Records Remade by:

7540—Baby's Prayer (July, 1903). Previously by Harlan and A. D. Madeira (1900).

7498—I Left Because I Love You (July, 1903). Previously by Harlan and Madeira (1900).

7347—In the Shadow of the Pine (July, 1903). Previously by Harlan and Madeira (1900).

7603—Sweet Antoinette (April, 1903). Previously by Harlan and Madeira (1900).

7475—Where the Sweet Magnolias Bloom (April, 1903). Previously by Harlan and Madeira (1900).

7382—While the Leaves Came Drifting Down (Aug., 1903). Previously a solo by Harlan (1900).

HARRISON, JAMES F. (Frederick J. Wheeler), Baritone—Records Remade by:

7701—All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name (Nov., 1905). Previously by J. J. Fisher (Oct., 1899).

7005—Calvary (Nov., 1905). Previously by Fisher (1899).

7163—Gypsy Love Song (Nov., 1905). Previously by William F. Hooley (Oct., 1899).

4914—Bohemian Girl—Heart Bowed Down (Nov., 1905). Previously by Hooley Oct., 1899).

7007—In Old Madrid (Nov., 1905). Previously by Fisher (Oct., 1899).

7118—Just as the Sun Went Down (Nov., 1905). Previously by Fisher (Oct., 1899).

7327—Schubert's Serenade (Nov., 1905). Previously by Hooley, bass (1900).

4909—Warrior Bold (Nov., 1905). Previously by Hooley (Oct., 1899).

7014—What a Friend We Have in Jesus (Nov., 1905). Previously by Fisher (Oct., 1899).

JONES, ADA, Comedienne—Record Remade by:

1523—Little Alabama Coon (Nov., 1905). Previously by (1) George J. Gaskin, tenor (1898); (2) Arthur Collins (1899).

KAISER, JOHN, Comedian—Records Remade by:

8360—Casey and His Gang of Irish Laborers (Nov., 1905). Previously by James H. White (March, 1903).

8069—Casey at the Telephone (Nov., 1905). Previously by James H. White (July, 1902).

8103—Casey Courting His Girl (Nov., 1905). Previously by White (Aug., 1902).

8075—Casey Taking the Census (Nov., 1905). Previously by White (July, 1902).

MACDONOUGH, HARRY, Tenor—Records Remade by:
(Continued on page 42)

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

REDUCING our collection. Write for list of top-quality musical boxes for sale, both disc and cylinder types. — Twomey, 267 Porter St., Manchester, Conn. d3483

SHEET MUSIC WANTED

SHEET MUSIC, folios, orchestrations, pre-1930 jazz, ragtime & blues only. Wanted by private collector. Send list or description. — Frank Powers, 1061 Celestial, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202. n38421

The distinguished baritone, Reinald Werrenrath, as a young singer, remade W. H. Thompson's original Edison cylinder of "The Maple Leaf Forever." Werrenrath is shown here with Mrs. Werrenrath, in his later years at his summer home at Chazy Lake, N.Y. —Photos, property of Jim Walsh

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

2003—Almost Persuaded (Oct., 1899). Previously by Roger Harding (1899).

1503—Annie Laurie (Oct., 1899). Previously by George J. Gaskin (1898).

1521—Last Rose of Summer (Oct., 1899). Previously by George Gaskin (1898).

2033—Maryland, My Maryland (Oct., 1899). Previously by Harding (1898).

1530—My Beautiful Irish Maid (Oct., 1899). Previously by Gaskin (1898).

1570—On the Banks of the Wabash (Oct., 1899). Previously by Gaskin (1898).

1539—Safe in the Arms of Jesus (Oct., 1899). Previously by Gaskin (1898).

1574—Sing Again that Sweet Refrain (Oct., 1899). Previously by Gaskin (1898).

1575—Sweetest Story Ever Told (1902). Previously by (1) Gaskin (1898); (2) Campbell (1899).

2021—Sweet Bye and Bye (Oct., 1899). Previously by Harding (1898).

MANDOLIN—Records Remade by Samuel Siegel:

7234—Fairchild Wheelmen (April, 1903). Previously by W. C. Townsend (1898).

7235—Story Teller Waltz (April, 1903). Previously by Townsend (Oct., 1899).

MILLER, REED, Tenor—Records Remade by: (See also record remade by Miller under name of James Reed.)

6504—Lost Chord (Aug., 1907). Previously by Harry Macdonough (Oct., 1899).

7242—Sing Me a Song of the South (Aug., 1907). Previously by Macdonough (1899).

1559—Where is my Wandering Boy Tonight? (Aug., 1907). Previously by (1) Gaskin (1898); (2) Macdonough (Oct., 1899).

MITCHELL, MARY PORTER, Contralto—Record Remade by:

8224—For All Eternity (July, 1905). Previously by (1) Nellie Thomas, soprano (Nov., 1902); (2) Corinne Morgan, contralto (Aug., 1904).

MINSTREL RECORDS Remade by Arthur Collins, S. H. Dudley and Ancient City Quartet. These records, (all Oct., 1899) were listed in 1898 as by Billy Heins and the Ancient City Quartet.

4700—How I Love My Lou.

4702—Laughing Song.

4704—Minstrel Scene.

4705—Three Minutes with the Minstrels.

MORGAN, CORINNE, Contralto—Record Remade by:

8223—Whisper and I Shall Hear (Aug., 1904). Previously by Nellie Thomas, soprano (Nov., 1902).

MURRAY, BILLY, Tenor—Records Remade by:

1027—Girl Wanted (Dec., 1907). Previously by (1) Quinn (1898); (2) Dudley (Oct., 1899).

10325—Home with the Milk in the Morning (March, 1911). Previously by Pete Murray (March, 1916).

8118—In the Good Old Summer Time (Nov., 1905). Previously by William Redmond (Sept., 1902).

8173—Taking a Trip up the Hudson (Nov., 1905). Previously by William Redmond (Oct., 1902).

MYERS, J. W., Baritone—Record Remade by:

5800—Answer (1902). Previously by Jere Mahoney (1899).

PIANO RECORD—Remade by Albert Benzler:

8394—Violets (Nov., 1905). Previously by Frank P. Banta (May, 1903).

PICCOLO RECORDS—Remade by Frank S. Mazziotto (Oct. 1899). (All originally by George Schweinfest, 1898).

2802—Darkies' Jubilee.

2801—Gem Polka.

2805—Irish Reel.

2809—Nigger Feyer.

2810—Nightingale and the Frog.

POTTER, FREDERIC H., Tenor—Record Remade by:

8276—I'll Be With You When the Roses Bloom Again (Aug., 1907). Previously by Harry Macdonough (Dec., 1902).

REED, JAMES—Record Remade by: (See also under Reed's real name, Reed Miller.)

8237—I'm Wearing my Heart Away for You (Nov., 1905). Previously by Franklyn Wallace (Dec., 1902).

SPENCER, Len, Comedian—Record Remade by:

8089—Auction Sale of Household Goods (Aug., 1928). Previously by (1) Len Spencer and Gilbert Girard (Aug., 1902); (2) Spencer and Al S. Holt (Nov., 1905); (3) Spencer and Girard (April, 1907); (4) Spencer and Holt (Dec., 1907).

SPENCER, LEN, and HOLT, ALFRED S., Comedians—Records Remade by:

8077—Auction Sale of a Bird and Animal Store (Nov., 1905). Previously by Spencer and Girard (Aug., 1902).

8061—Bouncer at the Blazing Rag (July, 1906). Previously by Spencer and Girard (July, 1902).

8034—Daybreak at Calamity Farm (Nov., 1905). Previously by Spencer and Girard (July, 1902).

8035—Scene at a Dog Fight (July, 1906). Previously by Spencer and Girard (July, 1902).

8053—Trip to the Circus (July, 1906). Previously by Spencer and Girard (July, 1902).

SPENCER, LEN, and MEEKER, EDWARD, Comedians—Record Remade by:

8941—Krausmeyer and his Dog Schneider (Dec., 1907). Previously by Spencer and Holt (March, 1905).

SPENCER, LEN and HUNTER, PARKE—Record Remade by:

8704—Reuben Haskins' Trip in his Airship (Dec., 1907). Previously by (1) Spencer and Hunter (June, 1904); (2) Len Spencer (Aug., 1904).

SPENCER, LEN, and VAN EPS, FRED—Records Remade by:

8594—Banjo Evangelist (April, 1907). Previously by Spencer and Hunter (Jan., 1904).

8580—Hickory Bill (April, 1907). Previously by Spencer and Hunter (Jan., 1904).

STANLEY, FRANK C., Baritone—Records Remade by:

7838—Asleep in the Deep (Aug., 1904). Previously by J. W. Myers (1901).

7004—Beulah Land (Aug., 1904). Previously by J. J. Fisher (Oct., 1899).

4918—Down Deep within the Cellar (Oct., 1905). Previously by William F. Hooley (Oct., 1899).

4907—Old Sexton (October, 1905). Previously by Hooley (1898).

7840—Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep (Aug., 1901). Previously by J. W. Myers (1901).

7280—Village Blacksmith (Nov., 1905). Previously by Hooley (1899).

STEWART, CAL, Comedian—Record Remade by:

4005—Laughing Coon (1902). Previously by Geo. W. Johnson (1898).

4004—Laughing Song (1902). Previously by Johnson (1898).

NOTE: "Laughing Song" was relisted by Johnson in April, 1903, and "Laughing Coon" in Aug., 1904.

TURNER, ALAN, Baritone—Record Remade by:

7010—Love's Old Sweet Song (July, 1906). Previously by J. J. Fisher (Oct., 1899); (2) Andrew Schneider (Aug., 1904).

VIOLIN RECORDS—Remade by Charles D'Almaine:

6702—Gypsy Dance (1902). Previously by Fred W. Hager (Oct., 1899).

6703—Intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana" (1902). Previously by Hager (Oct., 1899).

7192—Schubert's Senenade (1902). Previously by Hager (Oct., 1899).

7195—Spring Song—Mendelssohn's (1902). Previously by Hager (Oct., 1899).

WATEROUS, MR. and MRS. HERBERT, Baritone and Soprano—Record Remade by:

8258—O That We Two Were Maying (Aug., 1908). Previously by Corinne Morgan and Frank C. Stanley (Dec., 1902).

WATSON, GEORGE P., Yodler—Record Remade by:

4021—Hush a Bye, Baby (1902). Previously by L. W. Lipp (1898).

4023—Sauerkraut is Bully (1902). Previously by Lipp (1898).

WERRENATH, REINALD, Baritone—Record Remade by:

8799—Maple Leaf Forever (Dec., 1907). Previously by W. H. Thompson (Sept., 1904).

WHISTLING SOLOS—Remade by Joe Belmont:

7335—Anvil Chorus—Trovatore (1902). Previously by "Angela" (1900).

7334—Bobolink (1902). Previously by "Angela" (1900).

7100—Mocking Bird (1902). Previously by Billy Gilbert (Nov., 1899).

WHITE, JAMES H., Comedian—Records Remade by:

I have been told that the May, 1901, Edison record catalog, which I do not own, contains 19 "Casey" and four "Hiram Wilkins" monologs by James H. White. These must be remakes of titles previously by Russell Hunting, who left the U.S. in 1899, and went to England.

Fourteen "Casey" records and eight others in the 1898 catalog are credited to Hunting, but no artist's name is given with the same titles in the 1899 issue. If White's records bear the same number as Hunting's they should begin with 3801 and run consecutively. Four titles by White were remade in 1905 by John Kaiser.

XYLOPHONE RECORDS Remade by Albert Benzler:

These records were all previously made by J. Frank Hopkins and appeared in the monthly supplement or catalog on the dates that follow those assigned to the Benzler versions.

Alagazam March (July, 1905)—April, 1903.

8412—Down Where the Wurzbarger Flows (Aug., 1907)—June, 1903.

8476—Hot Scotch March (July, 1906)—Sept., 1903.

8005—I Have Grown So Used to You (Aug., 1907)—June, 1902.

8366—Mr. Dooley Medley (April, 1907)—March, 1903.

8473—Sanlago Waltz (July, 1905)—Aug., 1903.

8586—Uncle Sammy March (Feb., 1906)—Jan., 1904.

8393—Under the Bamboo Tree Medley (July, 1906)—May, 1903.

DOLL BOOKS FOR SALE

MINIATURE STUFF, 128 pages, hard cover, patterns, directions, illustrations. Sources of supply for making miniature furniture, dolls, accessories, $5.25.—Toy Trader, Middletown, Conn. 06457. ap126351

1873-74 Demorest's Pattern Catalog (reprint) 18 pages. Polonaises, Cabriolles, suits, underwear, costume ideas for all the family. 500 pictures. $2.—Peak Doll Directory, 19 Boulder Court, Colorado Springs, Colo. Ask about your listing in P.D.D. n3065

"THE AGE OF DOLLS." A compilation of source material for dating 19th century dolls. Pictures, descriptions and original prices of hundreds of dolls and doll articles, taken from catalogs and advertisements. Notes on the manufacture of dolls and their clothing. Arranged chronologically and indexed. Paperbound. Price $6 postpaid. "Dolls, Makers and Marks," is also available for $5. Both books by Elizabeth Coleman, 4315 Van Ness St., Washington, D.C. 20016. d3065

THE DOLLHOUSE BOOK, Estelle Ansley Worrell. Seen on national TV. Patterns and directions for every imaginable dollhouse accessory in period styles. Over 300 project ideas. 8½x11", hard cover, $6.50 postpaid.—Norman Worrell and Associates, P.O. Box 7246, Kansas City, Mo. 64113. n3276

SO YOU ARE interested in antique dolls!! Illustrated, informative booklet on antique dolls (24 pages, 8¼x5½"). Send $1 to: G. Bunting, 509 Walton Place, Scotia, N.Y. 12302. o1002

DOLL PARTS

10,000 Antique doll parts. I will restore your dolls or sell just parts. Heads, eyes, wigs, reproductions limbs, antique dolls. 10c for list. Mail order or appointment only. (Closed month of August and from December 15 to January 15).—Dorothy J. Rawlings, 44914 3rd St. East, Lancaster, Calif. d60321

GERMAN blown glass doll eyes. Stamp for list.—Lena Swartz, Rt. 5, Box 357, Oregon City, Ore. je128801

10,000 PAIRS porcelain arms & legs to match your old dolls. Cloth and kid bodies, all styles & sizes. Stamp for parts list. Dealers welcome.—Clara's Doll Hospital, 5911 McClain Lane, Paradise, Calif. mh122112

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8. (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

DOLLS WANTED

WANTED: Old dolls or heads. Also Gibson Girl.—Goldie Schneider, 1047 West Main, Galesburg, Ill. ja6084

Wanted: Rose O'Neill dolls and other signed Kewpie items. Old valentines. Sunbonnet babies for own collection.—Ruth S. Hockett, 620 W. Jefferson, Kokomo, Ind. n3675

WANTED: Rose O'Neill Kewpies and Happy Fats dolls or items in any form.—Mrs. Virginia Rhule, 824 East Capital, Springfield, Ill. 62701 je120821

WANTED: "Wizard of Oz" character dolls, toys, games, pamphlets, posters, picture books and cut-out books. Anything related to Oz. State condition and price.—Dick Martin, 53 W. Burton Pl., Chicago 10, Ill. tfx

WANTED: Rose O'Neill signed Kewpie items. Happi Fats, Sunbonnet items, Kate Greenaway items. Please state price. I do not make bids.—Ruth S. Hockett, 620 W. Jefferson, Kokomo, Ind. my124872

FAVORITE Pioneer Recording ARTISTS

Conducted by JIM WALSH

VICTOR DOUBLE-FACED RECORDS THAT WERE REMADE

By JIM WALSH

PART I

In theory, the Victor Talking Machine Co. had permanent master records that would never wear out. Supposedly, as long as these masters were stored in fireproof vaults they would last forever and Victor artists were assured of "immortality" for their vocal or instrumental performances.

Although that was the theory, it didn't hold good in practice.

Red Seal artists, as well as performers of the "popular" type, were frequently called on to remake masters of "big sellers" and the new versions were issued under unchanged catalog numbers.

In the Black Label group, artists often were changed. The record, however, continued to be sold under the number it had originally been given. For Black Label performers, "immortality" many times consisted of a decade, or a little more or less of catalog credit, before some other singer or player was substituted for the original artist.

Recently, I have been going through catalogs of Victor records from the time the first double-faced list was offered in October, 1908, until electric recordings appeared for the first time in the June, 1925, supplement. I have done this to compile a list of acoustically recorded discs which underwent changes before being dropped from the catalogs.

As far as I know and believe, nobody else has ever compiled such a list. And it will appear in HOBBIES in print for the first time.

I knew that a great many changes of recording personnel had been made. But I was surprised to find how large a percentage of big-selling Victor records were made over.

Many poor or fair sellers, of course, appeared in the catalog for a few years and were cut out without undergoing change. But if a record was one of the "standard" type likely to go on selling, the chances were better than even that one side, or probably both, would be remade after a comparatively few years.

I have not yet undertaken to prepare a list of remade single-faced Black Label records, because that would involve digging deep into Victor's earliest history. I may do so later.

And I may as well point out that although many Purple and Blue Label records and a considerable number of Red Seals were remade one or more times by the original artists, new performers were not substituted for them.

There were a number of reasons why Victor remade so many Black Labels. Damage to the original masters was sometimes a factor, and the artist who had made them was no longer available, or his work might have deteriorated.

Many of the remade 10 and 12-inch discs had been first sung or played during a comparatively primitive stage of the recording art, and the recording directors decided the records should be redone to bring them up to later standards.

Quite often, too, the artists may have lost popularity, and it was thought good business to have the records reissued by singers or players whose work was still in strong demand.

This would account for the fact that so many Hayden Quartets were remade, after the quartet had disbanded, by groups such as the Peerless, Criterion, and Shannon Quartets that were still active and popular.

Harry Macdonough, the Hayden's second tenor was for years Victor's most popular ballad soloist. But many of his records gave way to new versions by other tenors.

Corinne Morgan, the contralto, who made no Victor records after 1910 was supplanted on many records by the fresh-voiced, vivacious young Elsie Baker.

Charles D'Almaine, the violinist, who quit fiddling to become a chiropractor, had the humiliation of being replaced by other musicians. And almost all of Vess L. Ossman's banjo records, that remained in the catalogs of the early 1920's, were done over by Fred Van Eps.

Speaking of Macdonough, the remaking of his records must not have caused him any special grief, for he was manager of the Victor artist and repertoire department during most of the "remake" period. He must have approved the changes and selected the artists to make them.

After the electrical process doomed the old horn recording method, many of the popular sellers, of course, were remade through the microphone. But as a rule they were issued under new numbers, regardless of whether the remakes were by the original performers or someone else.

I have not included electrical recordings in my research.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

Fred Van Eps remade several of Vess L. Ossman's banjo recordings for Victor.

Singing both as soloists and in duets, Charles Hart and Elliott Shaw remade earlier Victor records.

Henry Burr remade earlier recordings by Harry Macdonough and Frederic C. Freemantel.

Occasionally. I came across some things that I found baffling. An example of a real puzzler is 16009 which appeared in the first list of double-faced Victor records. On the A side, the late Dr. Frederic C. Freemantel originally sang "Lord, I'm Coming Home." The B side was occupied by Frank C. Stanley's interpretation of "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."

Freemantel's side remained in the Victor catalog until the 1919 edition. It gave way then to a version by Harry McClaskey, better known under his assumed name of Henry Burr.

The 1919 catalog said Stanley's 10-inch record of "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" had been replaced by a new version sung by Wilfred Glenn, the Shannon Quartet manager and bass, now living in retirement at Charlottesville, Va.

But in 1921 Stanley's name reappeared and Glenn's went out. Two years later, Stanley gave way to Elliott Shaw, the Shannon's baritone.

What was going on? Since Frank Stanley had died in December, 1910, he could not have recorded a fresh version to take the place of the one attributed to Glenn.

Several years ago, Stanley's daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Repelow of West Orange, N. J., mentioned to me a misunderstanding that had arisen concerning a record on which her father's name and Glenn's were confused.

Mrs. Repelow either said she and other members of her family once heard a Victor record with Glenn's name on the label but containing her father's voice, or that the label read Frank C. Stanley but the voice was Glenn's.

Stanley also had made a 12-inch record of "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," which was remade by Glenn. Conceivably, Glenn had not remade the 10-inch version, but through error was credited with doing both.

Then, after the error had carried through a couple of catalogs, it was detected and Stanley's name was restored until his version was replaced by Shaw's. But that is merely a guess.

Another puzzle is why the Peerless Quartet record of "Medley of Foster Songs," 35095, was remade by the Criterion Quartet when the Peerless was the most popular of all recording ensembles.

Possibly, the master or matrices became damaged while the Peerless was on one of its long concert tours. And Victor, needing to press some more copies immediately, wasn't willing to wait until Henry Burr's organization returned.

Frederic Freemantel's records were remade by Henry Burr under his real name of Harry McClaskey. They appeared for a few years in the catalog under the McClaskey name.

Then, in the 1925 catalog—the last Victor issued before electric recording caused the vast majority of old records to be discarded—the name of McClaskey was dropped, and the records were issued as by Burr. This also happened to "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," which the tenor had made in 1914 as McClaskey.

I am wondering whether the Burr versions were the same as those which appeared under the McClaskey name, or whether they involved still another make-over.

When Burr's remake of Harold Jarvis' famous "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" appeared in 1924 it was reasonable to assume that some misfortune occurred to the Jarvis master. But when Victor issued a special catalog of records of historical and permanent interest in 1927 the Jarvis side was restored.

This might indicate that the original master had not been damaged, but the change was made because Jarvis no longer had a large following and Burr was still popular.

Another question: Why was Emil Keneke's cornet record of "The Rosary" remade by Leon L. Handzlik when Keneke was still Victor's chief trumpeter?

In giving this list of made-overs, I shall set down first the record number, then the title, followed by the name of the original performer, and the year in which the disc first appeared in the double-faced list. Since most of these re-done records had previously been issued single-faced, the actual recording date was often several years earlier than indicated here.

Then follows the name of the artists who did the remaking and the year in which the make-over was first cataloged.

It is safe to assume that, as a rule, the remake was made in the year preceding that in which it entered the catalog. For instance, "1913" means the remake record first appeared in the 1914 catalog, but in all likelihood was recorded in 1913.

Sometimes only one side of a double-faced record was remade, to begin with. But the other followed a year or so afterward.

Where only one side was remade throughout the record's active life, I am not giving the coupling.

—O—
List of remade records will appear in the December issue of HOBBIES.

—O—

He has a right to criticize who has a heart to help.

It has been my experience that folks who have no vices have very few virtues.

—Abraham Lincoln

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

LIST OF DOUBLE-FACED RECORDS THAT WERE REMADE

By JIM WALSH
PART II

From left to right:

Elsie Baker, shown here with Allen G. Debus and Ross Keegan at the 1948 "John Bieling Day" party at Garden City, N.Y., made over many records originally sung by another contralto, Corinne Morgan.

16008 Beautiful Isle of Somewhere, sung by Harold Jarvis, tenor (1908). Remade by Henry Burr, tenor (1924). REVERSE: Christ Arose, sung by Hayden Quartet (1908). Remade by Shannon Quartet (1924).

16009 Lord, I'm Coming Home, sung by Frederic C. Freemantel, tenor (1908). Remade by Harry McClaskey, tenor (1919). REVERSE: One Sweetly Solemn Thought, sung by Frank C. Stanley, baritone (1908). Remade by Wilfred Glenn, bass (1919). Frank C. Stanley (1921) and Elliott Shaw (1923).

16019 Widow Dooley, comic Irish sketch by Ada Jones and Len Spencer (1908). Remade by Ada Jones and Billy Murray (1922).

16045 Devil's Dream Reel and Speed the Plow Reel, both by Victor Dance Orchestra (1908). Remade by John Taylor, violinist (1921).

16046 Voice of Love, cornet and flute duet by Emil Kencke and Darius Lyons (1908). Remade by Rosario Bourdon, cello, and Clement Barone, flute (1920). REVERSE: The Rosary, cornet solo by Kencke. Remade by Leon L. Handlik, cornet (1921).

16051 Serenade (Pierrot), violin solo by Charles D'Almaine (1908). Remade by Michael Gusikoff (1920).

16052 In Venice, whistling solo by Mrs. Alice Shaw (1908). Remade by Margaret McKee, whistler (1922).

16060 Hosanna and Holy Night, tenor solos by Harry Macdonough (1908). Remade by Lewis James, tenor (1924 and 1923, respectively).

16061 Florida—In the Shade of the Palm, sung by Macdonough (1908). Remade by Shaw (1921). REVERSE: Tell Me, Pretty Maiden, soprano and tenor duet by Elsie Stevenson and Macdonough (1908). Remade by Victor Light Opera Sextet (1921).

16088 Titli's Serenade, cornet and flute duet by Kencke and Lyons (1908). Remade by Kencke and Barone (1920).

16092 Gay Gossoon, banjo solo by Vess L. Ossman. Remade by Fred Van Eps (1924). REVERSE: St. Louis Tickle, played by Ossman-Dudley Trio (1908). Remade by Plantation Trio (1924).

16105 Bring Back my Bonnie to Me, sung by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1924).

16139 Killarney, sung by Macdonough (1909). Remade by Burr (1921).

16166 Vesper Service and Beulah Land, both by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Peerless Quartet (1924).

ANTIQUE MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

Swiss type, many with organ, bells & drums in various sizes. Disc type all makes with discs from 4" diam. up. Bird boxes & bird cages & rare musical mechanical pcs.

Bornand Music Box Co.

(Specialists Since 1825)

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y.

914 PE 8-1506 tfc

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss music boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of music boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

16178 Jesus Christ is Risen Today, by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Shannon Quartet (1924). REVERSE: Bless be the Tie that Binds, sung by Trinity Choir (1909). Remade by Trinity Quartet (1924).

16184 Holy City—Parts 1 and 2 by Macdonough (1909). Remade by James (1924).

16192 My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice, sung by Corinne Morgan (1909). Remade by Elsie Baker, contralto (1912).

16194 Nightingale and the Frog, piccolo solo by Lyons (1909). Remade by Barone (1922).

16195 Home, Sweet Home, by Macdonough (1909). Remade by Charles Harrison tenor (1922).

16196 Sing Me to Sleep, by Morgan (1909). Remade by Baker (1912). REVERSE: O Promise Me by Macdonough. Remade by William Robyn, tenor (1921).

16197 Home, Over There by Macdonough and Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Peerless Quartet (1921). REVERSE: Oh, Come, All Ye Faithful by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1923).

16212 Elegie by Elsie Stevenson (1909). Remade by Elizabeth Spencer (1920).

16216 Saved By Grace, tenor duet by Macdonough and John Bieling (1909). Remade by Albert Campbell and Burr (1924). REVERSE: My Faith Looks Up To Thee by Trinity Choir (1909). Remade by Trinity Quartet (1924).

16217 The Bridge by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Peerless Quartet (1924).

16218 Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Glenn and Shannon Four (1909). REVERSE: Cornfield Medley by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Peerless Quartet (1923).

16230 He Will Hold Me Fast by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1921).

16255 I Need Thee Every Hour by Macdonough and John Bieling (1909). Remade by Campbell and McClaskey (1919), and Campbell and Burr (1925).

16261 Rest for the Weary and Shall We Gather at the River? Both by Hayden Quartet (1909). Both remade by Peerless Quartet (1924).

16266 Keep Off the Grass and Silver Heels, banjo solos by Ossman (1909). Both remade by Van Eps (1920).

16269 Calvary, baritone solo by Stanley. Remade by Edgar Kiefer (1924).

16286 Will There Be Any Stars In My Crown?

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LYOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 15 years. tfe

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD, ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single-faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York txf

by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1923).

16288 Sabbath Morn by Macdonough (1909). Remade by Burr (1921).

16296 Birds in the Forest, trio for two violins and flute by Howard Rattay, Theodore Levy and Darius Lyons (1909). Remade by Rattay, Witzmann and Barone (1921).

16313 Largo (Handel), violin solo by Rattay (1903). Remade by Alexander Schmidt (1921).

16388 Annie Laurie and Ben Bolt, contralto solos by Morgan (1909). Remade by Baker (1922).

16389 Old Folks at Home by Morgan (1909). Remade by Baker (1922).

16390 Turkey in the Straw Medley by Ossman (1909). Remade by Van Eps (1921).

16393 Medley of Old Time Reels by D'Almaine (1903). Remade by Taylor (1923).

16398 Bohemian Girl—Then You'll Remember Me sung by Macdonough (1909). Remade by James (1924).

16399 On a Morning Land by Stanley and Macdonough (1909). Remade by Macdonough and Edward Hamilton (Reinold Werrenrath) (1919). REVERSE: God Be With You Till We Meet Again by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Orpheus Quartet (1919).

16402 Dixie by Byron G. Harlan and Stanley (1909). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1921).

16405 In the Gloaming by Morgan (1909). Remade by Elizabeth Spencer (1920).

16408 The Palms by Macdonough. Remade by Robyn (1921).

16410 Angel's Serenade, violin and cello duet by Rattay and Louis Heine. Remade by Rattay and Barone (1923).

16412 Where Is My Boy Tonight? by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Peerless Quartet (1925).

16414 Tell Mother I'll Be There by Hayden Quartet (1909). Remade by Peerless Quartet (1925).

REVERSE: Some Time We'll Understand by Trinity Choir (1909). Remade by Trinity Quartet (1924).

16418 Just Before the Battle, Mother by Macdonough and Bieling (1903). Remade by Campbell and Burr (1922).

16431 Throw Out The Life Line by Macdonough and Hayden Quartet (1910). Remade by Burr and Peerless Quartet (1922).

16448 I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray by Fisk University Jubilee Quartet (1910). Remade by Bethel Jubilee Quartet (1924).

16453 Golden Shippers by Fisk University Jubilee Quartet (1910). Remade by Bethel Jubilee Quartet (1924).

16473 Dollar Princess Waltz, played by Victor Dance Orchestra (1910). Remade by The Troubadours (1925).

16484 Song of the Soul, violincello solo by Victor Sorlin (1910). Remade by Yasha Bunchuk (1924).

16490 Ave Maria by Elizabeth Wheeler, soprano (1910). Remade by Della Baker, soprano (1925).

16495 Hall Columbia by Macdonough and Hayden Quartet (1910). Remade by James and Shannon Quartet (1925).

16531 Tramp, Tramp, Tramp by Harlan and Stanley. Remade by Criterion Quartet (1921).

16532 The Ninety and Nine by Freemantel. Remade by Harry McClaskey (1919) and Henry Burr (1925).

16533 My Mother's Prayer by Freemantel. Remade by James (1924).

16538 Mocking Bird, violin solo by D'Almaine (1910). Remade by Taylor (1923).

16663 Home, Sweet Home, sung by Morgan (1910). Remade by Elizabeth Spencer (1921).

16567 Bunch of Rags, banjo solo by Ossman (1910). Remade by Van Eps (1921). REVERSE: Dixie Girl March by Ossman-Dudley Trio. Remade by Plantation Trio (1922).

16688 Near the Cross by Elizabeth and William Wheeler (1911). Remade by Alice Green and Raymond Dixon (Olive Kline and Lambert Murphy) (1923).

16695 Melody in F by Vienna Quartet (1911). Remade by Florentine Quartet (1922).

16700 Dear Lord and Father by Elizabeth and William Wheeler (1911). Remade by Kline and Murphy (1925).

16741 My Wild Irish Rose by Hayden Quartet (1911). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1923).

16742 Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me by Freemantel (1911). Remade by McClaskey (1919) and Burr (1924). REVERSE: Nearer, My God, To Thee by Hayden Quartet (1911). Remade by Peerless Quartet (1924).

16743 Softly and Tenderly by Freemantel (1911). Remade by McClaskey (1918) and Burr (1925). REVERSE: Old-Time Religion by Hayden Quartet (1911). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1921).

16749 When the Roll is Called Up, Yeoman by Hayden Quartet (1911). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1921).

16813 Last Rose of Summer by Elizabeth Wheeler (Continued on page 45)

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12698

RARE MUSIC. We buy, sell, trade all categories. All inquiries promptly answered. Largest stock in the West. Same location 32 years. Expert photostat all sizes. — Music Mart, 3201 West 6th St., Los Angeles 5, Calif. mh62511

RECORDS WANTED

THE ONLY RECORDS I want to buy are sapphire, center-start Pathe discs by Gene Greene, "The Ragtime King." I will pay $3 for fine copies of Pathe records by Greene, if they are not already in my collection. I need some Victor and Columbia record supplements and catalogs prior to 1913. Do not need Victor and Columbia catalogs and supplements after that year. Want phonograph trade publications, such as the Talking Machine World from 1905 to 1926 and The Edison Phonograph or Amberola Monthly, Diamond Points, the Columbia Record and the Voice of the Victor. — Jim Walsh, Box 476, Vinton, Va. tfx

WANTED: Criterion Records - 11 1/2" across, for antique music box. — Able Art Service, 77 Summer St., Boston, Mass. 02110. mh3234

WANTED: Ampico rolls (black box), Edison disc records (white label) and 2-minute indestructible cylinder records. — T. P. Grattelo, 2614 Central, Alameda, Calif. ja3863

RECORDS FOR SALE

USED old records for sale of former opera singers. Correspondence invited. Attention collectors. — Charles Twain, 1360 Harbor Drive, Sarasota, Fla. d1061

FOR SALE: Old used records of opera stars - Gluck, Galla Curci, Journet, Ruffo, Caruso, etc. What is your offer? — C. Twain, 1360 Harbor Drive, Sarasota, Fla. d1291

SHARE TAPE COLLECTION 20's-30's. Pops originals. State interest. 6-selection sampler $1. 2 tracks. 3 1/2". — Doug Martin, 396 Toler, San Leandro, Calif. ja3253

PIANO RECORDINGS - all types - cylinders, discs, LP's, and rolls, wanted to buy or trade for your needs. Rare vocal discs and others to trade. — International Piano Library, 12416 Euclid Ave., Cleveland 6, Ohio. mh66501

RECORD COLLECTORS! Lists available (78's): Old-time musical comedies and Broadway shows, Irving Berlin songs, bands and brass, rural comedy, etc. Also Caruso, Jolson, Dalhart, McCrack, Austin, etc. Send $1 for lists of artists or category desired, refundable first order. 1905 Victor catalog $2; World War 1 lp with Gen. Pershing, Jolson, George M. Cohan, others singing original 1914-18 songs $5; Thomas Edison speaking $1. — Memory Shop, 1762 Oxford, S.E., E. Grand Rapids, Mich. 49506 d30021

BUY, SELL, TRADE 12" and 16" radio transcriptions, all types. — Paul Scriven, 238 West State, Niles, Ohio ja3882

FOR SALE: 12 Edison Amberol records, misc. songs, incl. classified record catalog. Excellent condition. — E. Bouchal, 95th Pl. & Jackson, Hinsdale, Ill. Phone PA 3-9094. d1861

RARE 78's. State category. — Record Lists, P.O. Box 2122, Riverside, Calif. 92506. d12867

RECORDS: 78's of all kinds. Please let me know all you can about your needs. — T. Thibault, 561 Ferry Ave., Camden 4, New Jersey. ja3483

OLD FAVORITES and evergreens. Vocal, instrumental, all kinds. Tell me your likes. — Ray Hargraves, 8745 Florence, Brentwood, Mo. 63117. mh6806

35,000 classical records of every kind of labels. Also over 50,000 popular records sold very reasonably. Our specialty: advanced collectors. — J. Scignano, 29 Columbia Ave., Nutley, N.J. d3844

CLASSICAL vocals, Golden Age originals. Send $1 for 26 page catalog No. 4. Refundable. — Ray Hargraves, 8745 Florence Ave., Brentwood, Mo. 63117. t6407

MONTHLY LISTS of classical vocal 78 r.p.m. Many rarities. Operatic 78 collections bought. — The Domart Collection, 400 Mineral Spring Ave., Pawtucket, R.I. Phone PAwtucket 3-2889. my1261971

OVER 100,000 hard-to-get records, 1903 to L.P. — Jack's Record Cellar, 254 Scott St., San Francisco 17, Calif. my126121

NEWSPAPER CLIPPINGS BUREAU - Reviews articles - art, books, music, theater, dance, movies, Americana, politics, etc. Reasonable rates. — P.O. Box 2147, G.P.O., New York, N.Y. 10001 d3004

COLLECTORS' GUIDE American Recordings 1895-1925 (Julian Morton Moses). 200 pages, $5.95 postpaid. — Classical Record Shop, 825 Seventh Ave., New York 19, N.Y. mh126351

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

REDUCING our collection. Write for list of top-quality musical boxes for sale, both disc and cylinder types. — Twomey, 267 Porter St., Manchester, Conn. d3483

MUSICAL BOXES, bought-sold-repaired. Music boxes & rolls made to order. Specialists in mechanical musical instruments — Old Salzburg Music Boxes, Box 203, Kensington, Md. 20795 o124661

TAPED RECORDINGS

ACOUSTIC and elect. operatic recordings on my tapes. 50c per selection. For information and list send stamp to: "Recordings," 22 1/2 Conway St., Greenfield, Mass. d3853

PIANOS & ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Money-back guarantee. Send for current list. — Harold Powell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

BUY AND SELL all piano and music rolls, especially Duo-Art, Ampico. Lists unnecessary. — Stewart, 787H, Kemah, Texas. 77565. my122511

Wanted: Piano rolls. Ampico or Duoart. Write: Newton, Ingomar, Pa. d6084

WANTED: Rolls for Wurlitzer Military Band organ. Style #125 and #150. Prefer rolls cut before 1940. I am looking for these selections: "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down," "Carolina in the Morning," "The Peanut Vendor Song." Will accept any others on your terms, write first. — D. H. Smith, 65 N. 2nd St., Hamburg, Pa. 19526. ja3088

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

WANTED: Seeburg, Coinola, Nelson-Wiggen, Mills coin slot pianos, plays large paper roll. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Maryland. f3403

CYLINDER and disc phonographs, records, parts, horns, repairs, record lists, reproducers, parts wanted. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954. ap126121

THORN phonograph needles. Excellent reproduction. Will not blast. Cannot injure records. Many plays and can be sharpened (inquire). $1 per 10. — Tolley, 1455 Marin Ave., Albany 6, Calif. 94706. f3464

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED cylinder and old phonographs, any condition, all types of parts, please describe well and price wanted. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3004

WANTED: (Victor VI) in good condition. — H. Stuart Kenney, 430 E. Mt. Pleasant Ave., Philadelphia 19, Pa. mh6215

BRITTEN'S OLD CLOCKS & WATCHES AND THEIR MAKERS
7th and Revised Edition
Originally published to sell for $25.
515 5"x11" pages. List of makers.
$6.95 Postpaid
ADAMS BROWN COMPANY
P.O. Box 349 Exeter, N. H.
Send stamp for catalog describing 350 books on Clocks and Watches. tfe

CLOCK &amp; COLLECTOR BOOKS

Dreppards, American Clocks .....	$5.95
McKearin's - American Glass ....	12.95
Ormsbee: Field Guide To American Victorian Furniture .....	4.95
DeCarle's Clock & Watch Repairing ..	8.50
Kerfoot: American Pewter .....	3.95
Kovel: Directory of Marks on Amer- ican Silver, Pewter, & Silver Pl.	5.95
Belknap's, Milk Glass .....	7.50
Metz, Early Amer. Pattern Glass ..	7.00
Kovel: Dictionary of Marks on Pot- tery and Porcelain .....	3.00
Brittens: Old Clocks & Watches ..	6.75
Nutting, Furniture Book .....	15.00
Andrews, Shakers Furniture .....	2.00
Palmer's Book of American Clocks ..	12.95
Haven & Beiden - History of the Colt Revolver .....	7.95
Kovel: American Country Furni- ture (1780-1875) .....	7.50

ZELLNER'S BOOK SERVICE
Wind Gap, Pennsylvania

do

Custom built wheels & parts for French clocks, German clocks, antique, grandfather clocks and wood wheel Terry clocks. Music boxes rebuilt. We have one of the best equipped shops in the South.

Free estimates. All work guaranteed.

B. W. SETZER
4534—29th St., N.W. Washington, D.C. tfe

Build This Beautiful
GRANDFATHER (Style) CLOCK

We show you how at price you can afford.
Send only $1 for complete plans and instructions plus information-packed catalog of clock movements, dials, blueprints and kits for constructing Grandfather, Grandmother, Terry and other fine clocks.

MASON & SULLIVAN CO.
Dept. M Osterville, Mass.

mh66c

FROM 500 TO 1,000 OLD CLOCKS
IN STOCK MOST OF THE TIME.

It will justify a trip
if you want clocks in quantity.

GUY & GLADYS SAULSBURY
Spicer, Minnesota tfe

CLOCKS WANTED

WANTED by collector: Old or unusual clocks, for cash. — W. Harding, 9314
Walden, Silver Spring, Md. jly124201

TIMEPIECE LITERATURE

NEW clock and dial text catalog "T"
Free information. Stamp please. — Old Time Shop, Box 5126, Poland 14, Ohio. ap6407

FAVORITE PIONEER
RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 37)

ler (1911). Remade by Della Baker (1925). RE-VERSE: Tannhauser—Evening Star, cello solo by Victor Sorilla (1911). Remade by Bourdon (1921).
16928 In the Gloaming by Will Oakland and American Quartet (1911). Remade by Burr and Peerless Quartet (1924).
17012 Cuckoo Song and Papa's Baby Boy, yodeling songs by George P. Watson (1912). Remade by Frank M. Kamplain (1924). These apparently were Kamplain's only Victor records.
17234 For All Eternity, made by Alan Turner, baritone (1913). Remade by Ralph Crane (Royal Dadman) (1925).
17360 Darktown Editors, comic sketch by Billy Golden and Joe Hughes (1913). Remade by Golden and Billy Helms (1920).
17417 Old Folks at Home, banjo solo by Ossman
(1913). Remade by Van Eps (1922).
17446 The Rosary, sung by Turner (1913). Re-made by Crane (1925).
17475 Somewhere A Voice Is Calling by McCloskey (1914). Reissued under name of Burr (1925).
18375 Tales of Hoffmann—Barcarolle and Mighty Lak' a Rose, both by Boston Quintet (1917). Re-made by Shannon Quartet (1924).
35008 Medley of Old Time Reels by D'Almaine
(1908). Remade by Taylor (1921).
35009 Star Spangled Banner by Stanley (1909).
Remade by Glenn (1921).
35012 Crucifix by Stanley and Macdonough
(1909). Remade by Hart and Shaw (1921). RE-VERSE: My Faith Looks Up To Thee by Stanley and Macdonough. Remade by Hart and Shaw (1922).
35014 Glory Song by Hayden Quartet (1909).
Remade by Criterion Quartet (1925).
35052 My Old Kentucky Home by Morgan
(1909). Remade by Elsie Baker (1913).
35086 Faust—Flower Song by Morgan (1909).
Remade by Baker (1919).
35095 Medley of Foster Songs by Peerless Quartet (1910). Remade by Criterion Quartet (1924).
35116 Jerusalem by Stanley (1910). Remade by Shaw (1921).
35117 He Shall Feed His Flock by Morgan
(1910). Remade by Baker (1913).
35133 Sing Me To Sleep by Morgan (1910). Re-made by Baker (1913). REVERSE: Songs My Mother Used To Sing by Morgan and Macdonough.
Remade by Edna Brown and Raymond Dixon (Elsie Baker and Lambert Murphy) (1921).
35140 Schubert's Serenade, violin and flute duet by D'Almaine and Lyons (1910). Remade by Raffay and Berone (1922).
35141 One Sweetly Solenn Thought by Stanley (1910). Remade by Glenn (1920) and Shaw (1921). REVERSE: Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah by Stanley and Macdonough (1910). Re-made by Hart and Shaw (1921).
35270 Merry Wives of Windsor Overture by New Symphony Orchestra (1913). Remade by Victor
Symphony Orchestra (1923).
35534 Zampa Overture by New Symphony Orchestra (1916). Remade by Victor Symphony Orchestra (1923).

THE END.

TOOLS

HARD - TO - FIND TOOLS for model makers, craftsmen. Catalog 10c.—Brook-stone, Worthington 23, Mass. f3861

REPAIRS

REVERSE PAINTING on glass. Hand-painted for antique clocks and mirror tops. Broken tablets reproduced to look like original. Work done in oil or gold leaf.—Ruth J. Kenney, 1110 Via Regina,
Santa Barbara, Calif. ja3675

LET US KNOW
IF YOU'RE MOVING

- So that there will be no interruption in your subscription, please give us 6 weeks advance notice.
- Please state OLD and NEW address and date you will be at new address
- Send your notice to:
Circulation Department
HOBBIES Magazine
1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago 5, Ill.

OLD JEWELRY

JEWELRY WANTED

DIAMONDS, old gold coins, watches, stickpins, rings, earrings, etc., regardless of condition. Highest prices paid. Prompt replies. Send by registered mail to: Edward G. Wilson, 1802 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. jel20291

ANTIQUE & MODERN JEWELRY from all over the world, bought and sold. Inquiries solicited. — Kenneth R.
Park, Rm. 512, 26 West St., Boston 11,
Mass. (Est. 1844). jly124661

WANTED: Rose Diamond jewelry, especially stickpins. Will buy broken pieces.
—Edith Weber, 125 Atlantic Ave., Oceanside, N. Y. d3882

JEWELRY FOR SALE

ANTIQUE JEWELRY, a fine line of antique pins, earrings, bracelets, stick pins, chains, watches, coin bracelets in silver and gold, coin jewelry, lavalieres, pendants, lockets, charms. An ever changing stock in gold, gold filled and silver in all price ranges. Selection of sterling souvenir spoons at $1.50 each.
Please write Mrs. Leon A. Katzin, 415
S. Le Doux Road, Los Angeles, Calif.
90048. d1884

TEA makes a wonderful gift. All loose tea packaged in Hong Kong in colorful Chinese boxes.

5 Ounce Loose Chinese Tea
Jasmine, with Jasmine flower petals, or Wu Lung (Oolong) each $1 ppd.
Lichee, with Lichee fruit, $1.25 ppd.
7½ Ounce Loose Chinese Tea
Jasmine, with Jasmine flower petals, or Wu Lung (Oolong) ea. $1.40
ppd.

Tea Bags, 100 each box
Jasmine or Oolong (Wu Lung) $1.35
ppd.

CHINESE CHARLIE

Post Office Box 771
San Francisco, California
Store Phone 415 - 776-0850

利差國中

BINDERS for HOBBIES

The wealth of information contained in each issue of HOBBIES is too valuable to be thrown around with consequent danger of loss.

Holds 12 issues.

Price each $3.00

HOBBIES

1006 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60605

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

EARLY ZON-O-PHONE RECORD CATALOGS

PART I

By JIM WALSH

Through the helpfulness of the Library of Congress I have been privileged to examine a rare Zon-o-phone record catalog dated May 10, 1901, and issued by a company whose name is given on the cover as the National Gram-o-Phone Corporation of 3 and 5 West 18th Street, New York.

The details of the formation of this company and its litigation with Emile Berliner's Gram-o-phone interests are complex. I shall not try to go into them here.

Instead, I suggest that anyone wishing to trace the history of the Zon-o-phone organization should consult "The Fabulous Phonograph," by Roland Gelatt, or "From Tinfoil to Stereo," by Walter L. Welch and Oliver Read.

This 1901 catalog is the oldest one of Zon-o-phone records I have seen. Apparently the first Zono records were issued in 1900. The catalog has given me some information I had previously lacked.

My next oldest record catalog for this company is dated June, 1905. This leaves a four-year gap during which the numbering system of Zon-o-phone records changed more than once. So did the recording process and the ownership.

The National Gram-o-phone Corporation, in fact, went bankrupt in 1901, after the catalog, from which I shall quote, was issued. A year later the Zon-o-phone trade name had been taken over by the Universal Talking Machine Manufacturing Co.

Victor acquired Universal in 1903 and rather surreptitiously marketed Zono records and talking machines at least through 1912, possibly into 1913.

A number of artists—Billy Murray among them—who supposedly were under contract to make disc records for Victor exclusively, also appeared on Zon-o-phones. These, however, had a limited sale.

The 1901 catalog, which formerly belonged to the late John Secrist, had 24 small pages. Its contents were nothing to fill any serious music lover with enthusiasm.

There were two record sizes—the 7-inch Zon-o-phone, which sold for 50 cents each or $5 a dozen, and the 9-inch Superba, 75 cents each or $8 a dozen.

Ten-inch records had not been introduced and there were only eight of the 9-inch, which probably received their first announcement in this catalog.

All, of course, were single-faced. Concerning the 9-inchers the catalog said, in capital letters:

"We call especial attention to the first product of our new Superba 9-inch records. They are beautiful in quality, and in richness, and mark the highest achievement in the talking machine world."

Those 9-inch discs were 9826, selection from "The Isle of Champagne," played by Victor Herbert's Band; 9827, "American Marines' March," Herbert's Band; 9828, "Yank-ee Doodle," with variations, Herbert's Band.

Also there were 9867, "When the Harvest Days Are Over," Haydn Quartet; 9871, "Cornfield Medley," Haydn Quartet; 9872, "Farmyard Medley," Haydn Quartet; 9876, "Asleep in the Deep," baritone solo by J. W. Myers, and 9927, "Where the Road Turns at Banbury Cross," tenor solo by Will F. Denny.

No information was given as to why the numbers were not consecutive.

I have a copy of "The Isle of Champagne" selection, numbered 1117. It appears in the 1905 catalog as 5019. By the following year all 9-inch Zon-o-phone records had given way to the 10-inch type, first introduced in December, 1904, and numbered from 1 upward.

During the remaining years in which 10-inch, single-faced Zono records were made, exactly 25 were issued each month.

The 1901 catalog contained 44 7-inch records by Victor Herbert's Band and two on which the band accompanied Bert Morphy, who sang, on 9122, "The Blue and the Gray," and on 9126, "Every American Girl is a Queen."

A bit of explanation is in order here. Victor Herbert, the eminent composer, did not conduct the so-called Victor Herbert's Band. He merely gave permission for some of the members of the group, which had formerly been Gilmore's Band, to play in the Zon-o-phone "house" organization conducted by Fred Hager.

Victor Herbert's first direct phonograph participation appears to have occurred in 1903 when his orchestra made a 12-inch, single-faced record of "The Rosary" for Victor. Herbert was then absent from records until 1909 when he signed a two-year contract for the orchestra to make Edison cylinders.

He also became "technical adviser" to the Edison Laboratory and was supposed to suggest suitable numbers to record and to criticize recordings, but his advisory association was purely nominal. In 1911 he signed up with Victor and remained exclusive to Victor until his death in 1924.

During the last two or three years that Blue Amberol cylinders were sold, Edison reissued some of the Herbert Orchestra selections that had originally been made for the four-minute Amberols. Most of the Orchestra's cylinder records were lacking in volume and sold poorly. The Victors were better from the standpoint of being louder.

Some of the 1901 Zono titles by the pseudo-Herbert Band are interesting. There is, for one, 9592, "Zon-o-phone March," composed by Hager and "specially written and dedicated to the Zon-o-phone."

Others include 9823, "Tone Pictures of 71st Regiment Leaving for Cuba;"

MUSIC BOX COMPANY
LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor
HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.
A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

ANTIQUE MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

Swiss type, many with organ, bells & drums in various sizes. Disc type all makes with discs from 4" diam. up. Bird boxes & bird cages & rare musical mechanical pcs.

Bornand Music Box Co.

(Specialists Since 1825)
139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y.
914 PE 8-1506 tfc

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

VICTOR HERBERT, the distinguished Irish-American composer, did not conduct "Victor Herbert's Band" on Zon-o-phone records. He merely permitted his name to be used.

9824, "McKinley's Inaugural March" (not an on-the-scene recording!), and 9825, "Casey and Murphy's Review of St. Patrick's Day Parade."

We come next to 31 7-inch records by the Zon-o-phone Orchestra, "an organization composed of selected artists from the symphony orchestras of this city. These players are all fine soloists of the highest order; their records are incomparably fine."

The first Zono Orchestra record is "The Jolly Coppersmith," which the late Fred Hager told me outsold, in those early days, all other band and orchestra records combined, "because the banging on the anvil and other noises were so loud they drowned out the scratch."

The orchestra also recorded "The Zon-o-phone March" on 9657. And the catalog said, "This march was written and dedicated to us especially for the Zon-o-phone by our musical director."

There is an irritating note in connection with 9661, "Zon-o-phone Waltz:"

"A bright, melodious waltz movement composed by an enthusiastic and loyal friend of the Zon-o-phone—a composer of considerable note in the Far West. Orchestrated for us by a well-known musician who also arranged the orchestra music for Rogers Brothers in Central Park."

Why couldn't they have said who the composer and the musician who orchestrated it were?

A record I'd like to find was 9658, "Election Night, 1900, at the Club in New York:"

"Election night at one of the prominent New York clubs. A boy is reading the election returns of the recent McKinley-Bryan contest. Music, cheers, yells, hisses, and some commotion follows. The band plays 'Yankee Doodle,' 'A Little Bit Off the Top,' and 'We Won't Go Home Till Morning.'"

Again, however, understand this was just a "studio job" and not a recording actually made in some political clubroom.

Page seven sets forth seven tenor solos by Joseph Natus, with orchestra accompaniments rather than piano. The Zon-o-phone Reed Orchestra was represented by six selections.

This will interest the opera fans: Five solos by "Sig. Francisco," with Zon-o-phone Reed Orchestra accompaniment. Included were 9509, the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen;" 9510, the "Pagliacci Prolog" ("A masterpiece, sung with wonderful expression, and human beyond any record you have ever heard);" 9511, "Holy City;" 9513, "Evening Star" from "Tannhauser;" and 9514, "Dio Possente," from "Faust."

"Francisco," of course, was Emilio de Gogorza, one of the most accomplished baritones of this century. He became Victor's "contact man" and induced most of the Metropolitan Opera stars of the early 1900's to make Victor records.

In his young manhood, when he was still an aspiring but not especially prosperous singer, Emilio de Gogorza made records under assumed names for nearly all the pioneer companies.

(To be continued)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 35)

LO: Jeder Knabe 5. FANCIULLA DEL WEST: Lasset sie glauben 6. DAPHNE: Gotter! Bruder in hohen Olympus.

Born in Skane, Sweden, on January 2, 1901, Ralf studied singing first with Ingebjart, and later at the Royal Conservatory. He began his career in Stettin, as Cavaradossi, in 1930.

His further engagements included opera houses in Chemnitz, Frankfurt-am-Main, Stockholm, Vienna, Copenhagen, London, and Dresden's Staatsoper. He died on April 27, 1954.

Already a German Kammersänger, he created Apollo in the world premiere of Richard Strauss' "Daphne," in Dresden, on October 15, 1938. The last band on the Rococo disc, is, therefore, a creator's recording from this rarely heard opera.

—o—

CESAR VEZZANI

Some time ago, a biography of César Vezzani appeared on these pages; in view of this, and being pressed for space, I'll omit one this time. Anyway, it will suffice in this famous singer's case to remark that his is a lasting fame and that his records are constantly sought by his many devotees.

The Rococo LP contains a rich variety of operatic selections in which the Corsican tenor is his own effective self, sparing neither voice nor temperament.

CESAR VEZZANI, Volume II, Rococo 5234:

Side I - 1. HUGUENOTS: Plus blanche 2. PROPHETE: Roi du ciel 3. GUILLAUME TELL: Asile héréditaire 4. SAMSON ET DALILA: En ces lieux (w. Maria Duchene) 5. SAMSON ET DALILA: Air de la Meule

Side II - 1. PECHEURS DE PERLES: Au fond du temple saint 2. PECHEURS

(Continued on page 42)

EMILIO DE GOGORZA, who became one of the greatest concert baritones, made Zon-o-phone records under the names of "Signor Francisco" and "Ed. Franklin."

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artist

Conducted by JIM WALSH

From left to right:

The late "Roger" Smith.

Roger poses for his picture. He is held by Miss Delrhey Fitzgerald of Pulaski, Va.

A Last Loving Tribute To "The Peerless Roger"

By JIM WALSH

Each year, beginning in 1959, the January HOBBIES has carried photographs of my cats, and, in more recent years, of "Possy," my pet possum, as a Christmas and New Year greeting to our friends throughout the world.

Little Nipper, Petey, Lucky Jim, Possy, and I hope to revive that custom next January. But this year our hearts are too heavy because of the death of the undisputed head of our household, the black and red-gold calico cat, whom our beloved English friend, Major H. H. Annand, termed, when he visited us in May, 1964, "the peerless Roger — a cat of super-intelligence."

As "Gerry" Annand told the cats and me farewell, he patted Roger's gleaming head and said, "Goodbye, my Beauty. Live a long time!"

None of us suspected that within one year and a half Roger would be in eternal rest beneath a tree in the front yard which had been his favorite sleeping place during hot summer weather.

In paying this tribute to one of the most devoted friends a man ever had, I recall thousands of memories. They began the scorching hot night of June 21, 1954, when, as part of my news-reporting duties, I walked into the detective bureau of the Roanoke, Va., police headquarters and saw a tiny kitten, about six weeks old, amusing the detectives by chasing the paper balls they threw to him.

The kitten had been abandoned at the rear of the municipal building, and had spent the day wailing.

In the early evening it jumped in an open window in the detective bureau and began playing with the detectives.

I hadn't owned any cats for years because of the grief of losing them. But as this kitten and I looked at each other an impulse seemed to travel from his heartstrings to mine.

I recalled an old record on which Len Spencer recited a poem, "Roger and I," about a homeless, frequently hungry tramp and his faithful dog, Roger. And I knew this kitten should have that name.

Detective Harry Britt turned to me and said, "You can have him, Jim, if you want him."

I replied: "If he's still here when I get off from work I'll take him home. His name is going to be Roger." Before I returned to my newsroom I went across the street and bought the famished little fellow some milk.

He was there at quitting time, in a small room for safe-keeping. Policewoman Rosa Smith placed him in a large brown envelope, with his cream-colored paws in the bottom and his black head above the top. So Roger and I went to catch a bus to my home in Vinton. In Rosa's honor I added the middle name of Smith.

Roger was frightened on the bus and meowed a bit, but by the time we reached Vinton he had made friends with nearly all the passengers. And as we left the bus, the driver and others said, "Good night, Roger!"

Then something occurred so touching I love to think of it. As I walked up the dark street to my home, clutching the envelope and its precious contents, Roger started purring at the top of his infant voice.

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

ANTIQUE

MUSIC BOXES

FOR SALE

Swiss type, many with organ, bells & drums in various sizes. Disc type all makes with discs from 4" diam. up. Bird boxes & bird cages & rare musical mechanical pcs.

Bornand Music Box Co.

(Specialists Since 1825)

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y.

914 PE 8-1506

tfc

OLD RECORDS

FOR SALE

Have a nice stock of Victor Records large size Red Seal Single-faced and a few of the smaller ones also some Columbia Records.

Such artists as Alda, Calve, Galvany, Gluck, Heifetz, Hempel, Caruso, Coriot, Destinn, Farrar, Gadski, Galli-Curci, Homer, Melba, Ponselle, Schumann-Heink, etc.

No lists - give us the number of the Record you are looking for and the artist's name and we will quote you if we have it.

THE HOBBY STALL

Hubert & Helen Harris

Perth Rd., Amsterdam, N.Y. 12010

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfo

I said, "Well, little fellow, if you trust and love me this much already you'll have a good home as long as you or I live." I kept that promise.

At home I had no food for him except canned milk. Roger would drink a bit from his saucer, then come, rub against me, and purr. At length he jumped into my lap, and nuzzled me, his paws on my neck. We played together about an hour before bedtime and were happy.

For the 11 years that followed, there was no question of our devotion. One of his sweetest traits was his generosity. When I moved to another house, after having had Roger a couple of months a starving gray cat, with a wild, hysterical voice, came pleading for a home.

The cat had such a bad cough I was afraid to take him in for fear Roger would catch it. But the little fellow made it so clear he loved the beggar I finally did, after a veterinarian said the cough wasn't catching.

The first morning the wanderer was admitted to the kitchen for breakfast Roger purred lustily, then got his favorite catnip mouse and gave it to the other cat to play with. The "beggar" became my cherished Gray, who died September 11, 1962. He was one of the best cats that ever lived. And he loved Roger and me with devotion.

Through the years Roger delighted in meeting me at night when I came from work. He'd stand in my front yard, see me leave the bus a few blocks away, then run swiftly down the hill, roll over and over at my feet, and lead the way home.

In recent months he seldom did this. I did not realize he didn't feel up to it.

His memory was amazing. He never forgot anyone, though years intervened between meetings. One friend, Quentin Riggs, an employee of the U. S. State Department, now working in Paris, is changed each two years to a new assignment. He comes to see me between transfers.

Up to now Roger has seen him coming, trotted down the path to meet him, and rolled over to express joy. It is going to hurt, a few months from now, when Quentin and his wife, Evelyn, come to Vinton, but have no Roger to greet them.

Roger died last November 5. I had noticed he was not eating well and took him to his favorite veterinary hospital, where the doctors all loved him. They found he had several bad teeth. Perhaps because the teeth had kept him from eating enough, he had developed anemia, and, it was feared, leukemia. He was given a blood transfusion and seemed for a few days to gain strength rapidly.

Then a second transfusion was given. When my phone rang, I knew the worst. "Mr. Walsh," the

(Continued on page 41)

DOLLOLOGY

Conducted by
CLARA H. FAWCETT

DOLLS! learn world's most fascinating business

We teach you to make, repair, and sell all kinds of dolls and accessories. Study at home. Excellent money making opportunities in every locality. Start a business part or full time. Easy to learn. Low monthly payments — many pay for their course out of earnings made while learning. We show you how. May we send FREE and without obligation our informative booklet? No salesman will call. For an exciting future, ACT NOW!

NORM and SUE MORRIS

The Doll Hospital School
11826 San Vicente Blvd.
Studio BB-66
Los Angeles, Calif. 90049

tfo

WE SELL OLD DOLLS TO DEALERS ONLY

We can supply Doll Dealers and Antique Dealers on a regular basis with all categories of DOLLS — all old, and bought from homes and collections.

FINE COLLECTORS' ITEMS — wooden, mache, china, Parian, Bisque — finest French dolls.

We can supply Dealers with quantities of GERMAN BISQUE JOINTED & KID DOLLS.

No lists or mail order. Write or phone for an appointment. The trip will be worthwhile.

SYLVIA BROCKMON

6333 Wayne Ave., Philadelphia, Pa. 19144

Phone 215 — GE 8-4511

tfc

DOLL HOSPITAL SUPPLIES

Everything you need for fixing dolls: repair kit, tools, books, glass eyes, old parts, modern parts, heads, etc. Catalog 25c.

Wish to buy old dolls or heads.

DOLL REPAIR PARTS, Inc.

9918 Lorain Cleveland 2, Ohio

tfc

DOLLS

Toys — Miniatures

1900 - 1930

A Catalog Reprint

RUTH'S DOLL MUSEUM

620 W. Jefferson Kokomo, Ind.
Telephone GI. 7-7272

A MUSEUM WITH A HOMEY ATMOSPHERE
Rare Dolls on display; Mechanicals; Music Boxes. life size Wax Figures.

Rare 22 room Doll Castle, furnished with antique furniture. Large doll house with salesman sample furniture. Miniature General Store and other doll Houses.

Open daily except Wednesday 1 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Wednesday by appointment only.

tfo

DOLLS, DOLLS, DOLLS

I pay postage on dolls only. Stamped envelope please.

1. Dionne Baby. Life size, comp. with cloth body. 24" tall. exc. cond., rare size dres. $27.50
2. Extra nice Rubber Campbell kid girl 7" tall dr. 10.00
3. "FANTASTIC" never played with, for the collectors who want the very best. These dolls listed below are all dressed in orig. clothes and are in showroom cond.
  - a. Princess Elizabeth 20" tall, beautiful 37.50
  - b. F&B Patsy Ann 20" tall all orig. 22.50
  - c. Deanna Durbin exquisite 25" tall, all orig. 40.00
  4. Terri Lee. 18" t. Blonde in orig. clothes 12.50
  5. Shirley Temple 20" tall gd. cond. dr. 25.00
  6. 2 colored Japanese bisque babies pair 7.00
  7. Chinese man dr. orig. comp. with cloth body, gd. cond. 12.00
  8. Pair app. 4" bisque boy & girl not mkd. Look German. Boy has been mended, girl perfect, dressed cute 15.50
  9. Nancy doll, all comp. gd. cond. 18.50
  10. Antique doll, purse, real cute 3.50
  11. Mde. Alex. Princess Eliz. Not original clothes, gd. cond. 27.50

I have many dolls. Please send your wants.

BARBARA LUCAS

10643 Olive Temple City, Calif.

Phone 213 - 443-6823

fc

DOLL DEALERS

Please let me have your booth reservations for selling space in our Annual Convention of the United Federation of Doll Clubs, Inc. without delay.

The time: August 3 to 7, 1966; Convention Headquarters, the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago.

Write me as soon as possible.

DIANE HARTLAP

Chairman Commercial Booths

P.O. Box 525, Chicago, Ill. 60690

fp

MRS. EVELYN DOYER

1626 North 46th Street

Phoenix 8, Arizona

Shoe box full of authentic antique materials, including laces, velvet, ribbon, taffeta, lawn, silks, etc. for dressing antique dolls. $3.75 postpaid. myp

LOVELY DOLLS AVAILABLE AT KIMFORT

Many choice antique dolls pass through Kimfort from month to month. Lucky enough our buyers abroad and helpful friends through the U.S. keep a limited supply coming our way. If your wants are on our lists we frequently can match up to your requests. Kimfort is also headquarters for national and American types; also stands and books.

Free sample of Doll Talk on request.

KIMFORT DOLLS

Box 495 Independence, Mo.

fo

LAMP POST ANTIQUES

1215 No. 8th St., Colton, California 92324

tfo

DOLL HOSPITAL SUPPLIES

Wigs, Eyes, Elastic, Enamel, Lacquer, Lashes, Tools, Books, Stands and Music Units.

Catalog 50c. Elastic samples 25c.

"How to Charge" booklet $1.00.

JACK'S FIXIT SERVICE

Dept. LP

4235 East 10th Lane

Hialeah, Florida 33013

tfo

costume, for doll clothes reflect the styles of their day.

In the 1870's it was popular to dress "lady" dolls in the height of fashion. These were not necessarily "fashion" dolls; that is, dolls meant to demonstrate the latest fashions in women's clothing, but were "play" dolls for children.

The photograph of the painting marked A is a good example of a doll's dress patterned on mama's "Sunday best." The original of this rendering by Marie Alain may be seen at The Baltimore, Md., Museum of Art.

The dress is of striped purple taffeta silk with lace at neck and sleeves. It formerly was owned by Mrs. H. B. Bray, and was made in Baltimore.

The doll's parasol, A-1, privately owned, is of satin and lace. It bears the same date as the dress. Ernest A. Towers, Jr., is the artist.

Small hats were worn at this time, as shown in the sketch I, "Headgear for a well-dressed doll, 1860-1870."

B shows a doll's costume of 1876 with sketch of the back of the dress, which is of brown taffeta silk with corded-silk trimmings and steel buttons. It may be seen at the Baltimore, Md. Museum of Art. The water-color sketch is by Lillian Causey. The original owner was Mrs. H. B. Bray.

In 1876 hats were still small to accommodate the high and elaborate hairdos of the period. Some of the hats were merely a round patch decorated with trimming around the edge, or a plume and fastened under the chin with bonnet strings.

The 1870's were the heyday of the "fancy" doll heads in so-called Parian bisque; also the era of the French bisque "lady" dolls with slender waists. They were in the height of fashion and were called by their manufacturers, "Parisiennes."

From the Children's Museum of the Detroit, Mich., public schools comes the precious doll's dressing gown (C) of white eyelet embroidery of the 1840 to 1860 period. The beautiful rendering is by James McLellan.

D is a doll's dress of about the same period. It is privately owned. The dress of fine linen is trimmed with hand-embroidered muslin and tied at the waist with a blue ribbon. The bodice is lined with muslin. There are three hand-made button holes with glass buttons.

The attractive little garment comes from Wells River, Vt. The original owner was Mrs. C. W. Rogers. The fine, detailed, water-color sketch is by Edith Tower.

The four sketches marked E are by Rosalie L. Lane and the outfit may be seen at the Cooper Union Museum in New York City. It consists of a cotton print dress with tiny all-over design, and a pleated collar; a Mother Hubbard type of wrapper with sleeves full at the top, like those of the dress; and two chemises. The original owner was Mrs. Charles Fairchild. Its date is 1830-1840.

The charming little dress, F, rendered by Mary Humes, brings us nearer our own time. Some of our older doll collectors will remember wearing just such a dress about the turn of the century.

It is of printed lawn, lace trimmed, and may be seen at the Valentine Museum in Richmond, Va. Miss Pauline Grand is credited as being the original owner of this doll dress.

G is a doll's navy and white check gingham sunbonnet of 1886 originally owned by Mrs. W. L. Tallman, made veterinarian said over the phone, "I hate to tell you. Roger just gave a sigh, laid his head over on one side, and died. I'm sure he knew you loved him and were doing everything you could for him. As I've often said, he was the smartest, sweetest cat I've ever treated."

(Continued on page 49)

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

Yesterday another veterinarian, who gave Roger distemper shots as a kitten, told me, "I remember him as the sweetest kitten ever in my hospital. I didn't keep him in a cage but let him follow me while I treated the other animals. It hurts to know he is gone."

But after all, what a successful life Roger led — admired and loved by all who knew him! Most cats, like most people, are soon forgotten after they are buried. But I know that as long as I live, the memory of Roger will be one of my most cherished treasures.

And I like to think that in a hundred years, after all of us now alive have turned to dust, some antiquarian or casual reader, will pick up this issue of HOBBIES, read of my pet's death and say:

"Roger must have been a wonderful cat!"

Indeed, dear reader of the year 2066, he was. In my heart, as long as I survive, he will remain what Gerry Annand proclaimed him:

"The Peerless Roger."

NORTH SHORE DOLL CLUB

The newly organized North Shore Doll Club meets the first Saturday in each month in Evanston, Ill. Diane Hartlap, Chicago, is the club's president. The club has applied for a charter from the United Federation of Doll Clubs, Inc.

One of the members of the new club is married to a descendant of the famous Steiner family who created the now much sought after Steiner dolls. The club's program for December was highlighted by a talk on the history of the Steiner family.

FULTON'S ANTIQUES

P.O. Box 297

Huntington Beach, Calif. 92648

By appointment or mail-order only

Tel. (714) 536-6877

All the following French dolls are closed mouth, Bulbous, stationary eyes, perfect bisque, wigged with real hair or original mohair, jointed mache bodies & cork pates.

35" - Gorgeous "FETE JUMENT" girl. Brown eyes, ash-blond mohair original wig, applied pierced ears, superb bisque that looks moist. Marked both head and body.

35" - Lovely "F.G." girl. Huge blue eyes, real hair, pierced ears (incised mark), has the straight wrists with jointed body.

18" - Very scarce "SCHMITT BEBB". Marked both head and body. Brown eyes and dark real hair.

24" - Beautiful "BEBE STEINER" - big blue eyes, real hair, the lovely, realistic ear, mache jointed body (straight wrists).

SCARCE GERMAN CHARACTER TYPES

18½" Oriental Girl. Fine bisque head, marked Simon & Halbig. Black wig open mouth, matching jointed body, of composition.

20" - Colored Boy. Closed mouth, all-bisque head, marked HEUBACH KOPPELSDORF 339/4. Pierced ears with brass hoop earrings, child's body. Shipping extra. Stamp, please. fo

While in the ST. PETERSBURG, FLORIDA area, don't miss seeing —

RUHAMAH'S DOLL MUSEUM
Open week days, or by appointment

MRS. C. HUNTER VON HOF
2801 - Beach Blvd. So. (55th St.)

Duplicate dolls for sale at all times!

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

From left to right:

J. J. FISHER, baritone, who began making records in the 1890's had several discs in the 1901 Zon-o-phone catalog.

EDWARD M. FAVOR, one of the earliest pioneer recording artists, contributed extensively to the 1901 Zon-o-phone record catalog.

EARLY ZON-O-PHONE RECORD CATALOGS

Part II

By JIM WALSH

Continuing the survey of the rare Zon-o-phone record catalog of May 10, 1901, in the Library of Congress, I found there were a dozen violin solos by Fred Hager, "winner of the first prize (gold medal) at the Pittsburgh Exposition of 1898, for the best Violin Record."

Theodore Pusinelli had nine clarinet solos. There were seven clarinet duets by "Messrs. Pusinelli and Hackett", eight trombone offerings by "Mr. Fred Blodgett," and four cornet and trumpet duets by "Messrs. Keneke and Blodgett."

Emil Keneke soon became associated with Victor and was its first trumpeter through the early electric recording period.

14 cornet solos by Keneke were said to be "of pure cornet tone; in fact, the best records ever made for any talking machine. They are free from scratch and particularly free from blast; Mr. Emil Keneke was soloist of Innes' and Sousa's band."

Keneke and A. Mygrant were represented by six cornet duets. Frank S. Mazziotta had 14 piccolo solos. Samuel Siegel checked in with three mandolin selections, F. W. Isenbarth had six performances on the zither. And Charles P. Lowe, the reigning xylophone recording artist of the early 1900's, had nine titles.

Then came Vess L. Ossman with 10 banjo offerings:

9181, Coon Band Contest; 9184, Hot Corn Jubilee; 9186, Rusty Rags; 9832, The Colored Major; 9811, Mosquito Parade; 9834, Tell Me, Pretty Maiden (the hit from Florodora); 9835, Hannah's Promenade; 9836, Salome—Intermezzo; 9837, Savo, and 9838, Narcissus.

Next were no less than 29 baritone solos by "Ed. Franklin," another assumed name for De Gogorza, although it is generally understood that not all the Zono records purporting to be by Franklin were sung by the urbane Emilio. I do not believe, though, that he would have cavilled to sing, under an alias, any of the titles listed in 1901.

Harry Macdonough had eight tenor solos and J. J. Fisher exercised his baritone tones in 15, seven of which were hymns with organ accompaniment. J. W. Myers had seven baritone solos. There were nine comic songs by Dick Thomas, a comedian who had not previously come to my attention.

Sig. Roberto Vanni, "formerly of the Metropolitan Opera House Co., New York," contributed nine offerings in Italian. And there were eight in German by Herr Alfred Doria, one of which, 9540, "Abendstern" from "Tannhauser," I have in my collection.

Mme. Sarda, a soprano, sang the "Mad Scene" from "Lucia" in Italian, and "Ben Bolt" in English. Senor Martinez gave three numbers in French and one in Spanish, and William Paull, a Metropolitan baritone who recorded fairly extensively in England, was heard in the "Toreador Song" from "Carmen" and "The Bonnie Banks o' Loch Lomond."

Other Metropolitan Opera singers were Lempriere Pringle, a basso with two numbers to his name; also Mme. Meisslinger, represented by two soprano solos. And — this was a real surprise to me — Clarence Whitehill, the bass whose Victor records were so well-known 10 years later, sang "Last Night" on 9689, and "Atta Quarto — Di Fillipo," on 9691. I had not previously known that

(Turn to page 38)

ANTIQUE MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

Swiss type, many with organ, bells & drums in various sizes. Disc type all makes with discs from 4" diam. up. Bird boxes & bird cages & rare musical mechanical pcs.

Bornand Music Box Co.
(Specialists Since 1825)

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N. Y.
914 PE 8-1506

tfc

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.
A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

WILLIAM F. HOOLEY, famous quartet bass, made several spoken Zon-o-phone records, including excerpts from Gladstone's speech on "Self-Help and Thrift."

During Hooley's career, which continued until he died in 1918, he sang regularly or occasionally in the Haydn, Edison, American, Premier, Knickerbocker, Orpheus, and Victor male quartets, and in the Lyric mixed quartet. He was also a member of the Lyric Trio of the 1890's and the early 1900's.

Whitehill had made records before he began singing for Victor and H. M. V.

Joe Natus pops up again with 21 records of popular songs. There are nine tenor solos by George J. Gas-kin, and 32 by Edward M. Favor.

Another surprise was three contralto offerings by May Kelso — "Stay in Your Own Back Yard," "Kentucky Babe," and "Florida Flo." I had associated May Kelso only with Edison cylinders.

Mina Hickman, soprano, and J. J. Taylor, tenor — a new name to me — made four duets. And there were five by Grace Spencer and Harry Macdonough.

Six selections were listed by the Mozart Trio. They were much the same titles that Estella Mann's Original Lyric Trio had sung for other companies.

The ever-faithful Haydn Quartet rallied around with 18 characteristic contributions. A tenor, Charles Renwick, about whom I know nothing, had one song. Billy Heins, later to be known as a partner of Billy Golden, in blackface sketches, had 10 comics. And John Terrell, who had begun recording for Berliner in the 1890's, had 11.

Especially intriguing is the fact that it took two records, 9663 and 9664, to get in Terrell's version of something called "My Little Sign is Gone From O'er the Door."

William F. Hooley gave eight recitations, including "Gladstone's Advice on Self-Help and Thrift," which most buyers probably thought were by William Ewart Gladstone himself.

George Graham, another of Berliner's Washington discoveries, had 10 comic talking records. And Billy Golden presented four of his famous Negro comedy sketches, but "Turkey in the Straw" was not included.

Cal Stewart's "Uncle Josh" monologs were already going strong. And the eight familiar titles are enough to make any true Josh admirer drop a reminiscent tear.

Len Spencer does not appear in the 1901 catalog, but his younger brother, Harry, is on hand with 9244, "Bryan on the Philippine Question," 9245, "Bryan on Our National Destiny," and 9249, "Casey Taking the Census." Once more, these records were NOT made by William Jennings Bryan himself, although purchasers generally probably thought they were.

And that brings me once more to the subject of the notorious Columbia "Last Speech of President McKinley" record, which some collectors still insist on believing was made by William McKinley himself although it has been incontrovertibly established that the disc was by Harry Spencer.

Here is one final bit of evidence that McKinley did not make that record or any other.

In the Library of Congress collection is a 1902 catalog of Columbia cylinder records, issued early in 1902, just a few months after McKinley's death. Near the front of the catalog is an announcement that Columbia has succeeded in developing a permanent master for cylinders, with this comment:

"If the late President McKinley had made a record his voice could have been preserved forever" on one of the Columbia masters.

That is an admission that McKinley had not made any records. Not only that, but Columbia did not even begin to make disc records until 1902, after McKinley had been dead for several months.

The "Last Address" disc which has misled so many collectors was numbered 833. That number was not reached until late in 1902, when McKinley had been dead something like a year. And a 1907 catalog lists it under Harry Spencer's name.

The 1901 Zon-o-phone catalog ended with a record by John Kaiser, who made the preliminary announcements at the beginning of records, doing "Casey Taking the Census" on 10003. Why did they have both Kaiser and Harry Spencer make that record?

There were six of Frank Kennedy's once famous "Schultz" (misspelled in the catalog as "Shultz") monologs, and four "miscellaneous selections," nine Japanese. Also add 9517, "When You Are Here, Love," by Miss Mae Cressey; 9599, "King of the Land and Sea," by George Broderick, bass; and 9650, "All' Afflitto," by a mysterious Miss Miller.

I looked in vain for records by the equally mysterious baritone, Atwood Twitchell, who recorded for Zon-o-phone in 1902 and 1903, but had all his records cut out by 1905.

I looked also for records by the late Frederick Wheeler, who wrote me that he began making Zono records in 1901, shortly before the Company went broke, and had a contract calling for $1,400 a year.

His records, under the name of James F. Harrison, must have been made shortly after this catalog appeared, and, like Twitchell's, did not survive into the 1905 listings. Wheeler afterwards, however, made some 10-inch Zon-o-phone records on a few of which he sang with Corinne Morgan.

(To be continued)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 35)

opened the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York, on September 1, 1906. Later on she also sang in vaudeville.

If memory serves me well, Scheff appeared on Ed Sullivan's show a year or so before her death in 1954. I remember marveling at the wonderful way she looked and sang "Kiss Me Again." If I am right, and if someone has taped that broadcast—may I have a copy of it? Please?

What a pity that Scheff never recorded commercially. Wasn't anybody able to persuade her? Or didn't anybody care to? Judging from the IRCC excerpt—our loss is immeasurable.

—o—

One of the loveliest, best-schooled female voices on records belongs to the scintillating Belgian soprano, Blanche Arral.

Born Clara Lardinois, she studied with Mathilde Marchesi and made her debut at the Opera-Comique, as Mignon, when a mere child of 15. She was in the premiere of "Manon," and her engagements took her throughout Europe, Egypt, and the Far East.

At the turn of the century, she was a tremendous hit in Russia, in French operetta. Of this, I have accounts and photographs from the Russian literature of those days. And the Bolero from "Le Coeur et la Main," on the IRCC LP, is an eloquent example of her charm in the lighter kind of music.

It is too bad Marie Delna left so few examples of her singing for us to hear. Hers is one of the few real contralto voices known on records, and she is a true artist in every sense of the word.

As Marie Ledan, she was born in Paris, on April 3, 1875. She studied with Rosina Laborde and made her debut at the Opera-Comique as Didon in Berlioz' "Les Troyens a Carthage," on June 19, 1892.

She remained a valued member at the Opera-Comique for a number of years, creating several roles there, among them that of Marceline in (Continued on page 54)

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

EARLY ZON-O-PHONE RECORD CATALOGS

PART III

By JIM WALSH

In part II I gave an account of the contents of a Zon-o-phone record catalog dated May, 1901. Now I shall discuss a booklet apparently issued in 1902, which describes Zon-o-phone machines but does not list records. Then I'll pass on to a 1905 record catalog.

By the time the 1902 booklet appeared, the National Gram-o-phone Corporation, as I said in the last article, had gone broke and had been succeeded by the Universal Talking Machine Co., which was acquired by Victor in 1903.

One rather amusing thing about the little 32-page production is the fact that Edouard de Reszke, basso, and Marcella Sembrich, soprano famous in opera, gave testimonials, dated 1902, and accompanied by their photographs, saying Zon-o-phone reproductions of voice and music were "perfect" and the best they had heard.

Both endorsers became, in 1903, among the first singers to make Columbia grand opera records. They probably wished they hadn't given those Zon-o-phone testimonials the year before.

Under the heading of "The New Zon-o-phone" (and where, I wonder, did that name Zon-o-phone come from?) the catalog said:

"Please note that for the purpose of this article the term Zon-o-phone implies and includes:

1. The Zon-o-phone instrument itself.
2. Zon-o-phone records made by the new, and exclusive, Zon-o-phone process.
3. Zon-o-phones and Zon-o-phone records used in combination. Thus defined, the Zon-o-phone stands for what in grand essentials of Clearness, Brilliancy, Power, Freedom from scratch, is absolutely the highest stage of development yet reached by mechanisms in reproducing sound."

Although no Zon-o-phone records are listed, we are given some interesting information about their allegedly miraculous qualities:

"It is . . . only in the actual, practical, audible results that the immense advance is evident; and it is no secret that this is chiefly due to the superiority of Zon-o-phone records—so great, in fact, that we have felt justified in sacrificing completely our entire stock of old Zon-o-phone records representing the expenditure of many thousands of dollars, and substitute the new Zon-o-phone records therefor.

"The present Zon-o-phone record is made by an entirely new process evolved from an accidental discovery in our laboratory through which thousands of sound vibrations wholly lost before are now recorded with most wonderful delicacy, and with a faithfulness to detail absolutely unequalled by any other method."

The following description was given of the 9-inch record, which was now called the Concert instead of the Superba:

"Concert Record . . . can be used upon any type of Zon-o-phone. The selections are considerably longer than there is room for upon the standard record; owing to certain facts of a purely technical nature not easily explained, the sound vibrations are reproduced with an effect impossible with the shorter circles. The price of the Concert 9-inch record is 75 cents each; 10-inch, $1."

The reference to a 10-inch record is puzzling, for this catalog almost certainly appeared in 1902, and the only type of 10-inch Zono I have met with didn't begin appearing until December, 1904. Possibly, though, a few 10-inch were made earlier, but gave way to a renumbered group.

In those early days companies thought little of remaking their record catalogs to get the advantage of "the last word" in assertedly new recording techniques. And the records also were frequently renumbered.

Five models of Zon-o-phone instruments, all with outside horns, were pictured at prices ranging from $15 to $45. Page 19 was devoted to showing the labels of 9-inch and 7-inch records.

The 9-inch Universal Zonophone (not hyphenated as Zon-o-phone in the illustration) was of J. W. Myers singing "The Holy City." And the hard-to-read 7-inch label has Myers singing "Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield."

The remainder of the catalog is devoted to description of sound boxes, horns, horn cranes, record cabinets, and other accessories.

The 32-page Zon-o-phone record catalog for June, 1905, is a curiosity, at least in appearance. Its pages are circular in shape, to resemble records, and the cover is a reproduction of Zon-o-phone record 5213, "Zon-o-

From left to right:

Edouard de Reszke. A page from a 1902 Zon-o-phone booklet showing an endorsement by the famous basso who made Columbia Grand Opera records the following year.

Marcella Sembrich. A 1902 testimonial from the famous soprano to the merits of Zon-o-phone records and instruments.

Cal Stewart "Uncle Josh Weathersby." His records brightened the early Zon-o-phone catalogs. This photo shows a 1911 Edison cylinder record supplement.

phone Waltz," by the Zon-o-phone Orchestra, which was mentioned under a different number in the preceding installment.

Those recently introduced 10-inch records come first, beginning with 12 by the Garde Republicaine Band of France. Record 1, "Loin Du Bal," 2, "Marche des Mousquetaires," and 3, Chopin's "Marche Funèbre," were contributed by the French organization. It was described as:

"The National Band of France, consisting of 80 soloists, considered the best band in Europe. . . . The records were made in our laboratory by this great French organization during their recent visit to the World's Fair."

The Zon-o-phone Concert Band was well-represented. Several of its contributions featured cornet solos by John Hazel, who is usually thought of as a performer on Edison two-minute cylinders.

Hager's Orchestra, directed, of course, by Fred Hager, also featured selected instrumentalists, among them Eddie King, who played bell solos. He was afterwards the Zon-o-phone artist and repertoire manager and for many years after that supervised Victor's popular recordings.

Other instrumentalists on the 10-inch records included Vess L. Ossman, banjo; Bohumir Kryl, cornet; Leroy Haines, trombone; Frank S. Mazziotto, piccolo; Theo. Pusinelli, clarinet; and Simon Mantia, euphonium.

Singers were Bob Roberts, Byron G. Harlan, Frank C. Stanley, J. W. Myers, Billy Murray, Arthur Collins, Albert Campbell (several of Campbell's solos were under the assumed name of Frank Howard), Corinne Morgan, James F. Harrison, James Reed (Reed Miller), George W. Johnson, Henry Burr and the Criterion Quartet.

Most of these artists also appeared in the 9-inch list. It likewise included George Alexander, Joe Belmont, Arthur Clifford (another name for Alexander), Will Denny, Ed M. Favor, J. J. Fisher, George J. Gaskin, Billy Golden, Billy Heins, Mina Hickman, Pete Le Mar, Joe Natus, Dan W. Quinn, Len Spencer, Cal Stewart, and Harry Tally.

There was a long list of 9-inch band and orchestra records made for dancing, although the country was not dance crazy in 1904-05, as it was to become a decade later.

There were records for the two-step, mazurka, polka, lancers, quadrille, yorke, schottische, Virginia reel, and waltzes. How old-fashioned they sound now!

When Billy Rose and Con Conrad wrote a comic song in 1923 about Barney Google, the comic strip hero, they may have thought they were doing something new, but they weren't. This 1905 Zono catalog contains an orchestral number entitled "Happy Hooligan."

Instrumentalists on the soon-to-be discontinued 9-inch records included John J. Kimmel, accordion; Vess L. Ossman, banjo; Ed King, bells; Theo. Pusinelli, clarinet; Bohumir Kryl, cornet. Also included were Leroy Haines, trombone; Frank S. Mazziot-ta, flute; S. J. Porpora, saxophone; Fred Hager, violin, and Charles P. Lowe, xylophone.

Two Zon-o-phone record labels shown in a 1902 advertising booklet. Concert, 9-inch. Parlor, 7-inch.

There was a Zon-o-phone Reed Quintet. And four offerings were listed by the National Guard Drum and Fife corps, including 5214, "An Election District Parade in New York City."

Most of the records I am mentioning could be obtained in both the 7 and 9-inch size, but an asterisk before a record number meant it was available in 9-inch only.

Duet teams included Collins and Harlan, with 26; Harlan and Stanley, six; and Corinne Morgan and J. F. Harrison, one.

Four records were included by the Imperial Minstrels; eight by the Criterion Quartet; and 20 by the Invincible Four (the forerunner of the Peerless Quartet, which sometimes used the Invincible Four name in later years).

And there were 19 recitations and comic sketches by Len Spencer. In some of these he was assisted by Parke Hunter and Al S. Holt.

Cal Stewart's "Uncle Josh" records were still going from strength to strength and enjoying a popularity that endured long past his death in December, 1919. This popularity continued among collectors to this day.

Twenty-four of his records were listed on circular-shaped page 25, including 5495, "The Arkansas Traveler," which connoisseurs of old-time records generally feel nobody but Len Spencer had a right to record.

Most of the Stewart titles are ultra-familiar, but there is one virtually unknown today. I have never seen nor heard it, and it probably was never made except on Zon-o-phone record 5911.

This is "The Difference Between a German and Irish Picnic," by Cal Stewart and John Kaiser, the Zon-o-phone announcer who was an uncle of the great popular recording pianist, Frank E. Banta.

Come to think of it, although Cal Stewart took part in that record, it must not have anything to do with "Uncle Josh," any more than "A 'Possum Supper at Darktown Church" (a record that my pet 'possum, Possy, can't abide!) which was written by Stewart. He took part in it but without his usual rustic accent!

A numerical Zon-o-phone catalog of the 1905 period shows the numbering of 7- and 9-inch records began with 5000, "Anvil Chorus" from "Trovatore," by a band. It ended with 6168, an accordion solo (no doubt by Kimmel), "Yankee Doodle Boy"—with variations.

Soon after that the 10-inch, and later, 12-inch records took over. They were issued in single and double-faced form, as long as Victor considered it worthwhile to offer Zon-o-phone records.

(The End)

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

Antique MUSIC BOXES

Fine Swiss & Disc Types for sale.
Complete repair service including replinning of cylinders, repair of combs, etc. All work guaranteed.

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

(Specialists since 1825)

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N.Y. 10803
Phone 914 - PE 8-1506

lfc

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

lfc

A PHENOMENAL CAREER

Edna White & Her Trumpet

An early photo of Edna White and her famous trumpet.

By FREDERICK SUMMERILL, M.D.
PART I

Several years ago Dr. Frederick Summerill, a veteran Edison record collector and enthusiast, of Teaneck, N.J., wrote me he intended to submit for this department an article concerning his friend and mine, the distinguished and greatly gifted trumpet virtuoso, Edna White.

He has at last found time to send me the manuscript, which I have pleasure in publishing. At the end of Dr. Summerill's contribution I shall add a few notes of my own. —Jim Walsh for admission to high school. But she did get into Brooklyn Manual Training High School.

This was interrupted by an agent from Frank Damrosch who called at her home and had her enter the Institute for Musical Arts which was just starting. It long afterward became Juilliard School.

The brass department of their orchestra was not doing so well as the strings and Mr. Damrosch probably thought such a well-known child protege could attract interest in the school. Edna was given special dispensation to enter, as the age requirement was 16.

Her teacher was Adolph Dubois. He devoted much time to her, not only for routine lessons twice a week, but also he had her come to his home every day for free lessons.

At the Institute she received regular courses in theory, harmony, orchestration, philosophy, history, and appreciation of music. Post-graduate courses were added later.

During her three years at the Institute Frank Damrosch obtained permission from his brother Walter for Edna White to attend rehearsals of the New York Symphony. This she did for several seasons.

In the summer she was taken to Auditorium was one of the few places in this country where great concert artists were heard in the summer-time. Once Ernestine Schumann-Heink was there. She happened to hear little Edna White play the trumpet. Then this motherly artist gave the girl a thrilling hug with praise for her musicianship.

The opening ceremony for the first transcontinental telephone transmission scheduled Edna White's Aida Quartet. But on the preliminary trial it was found that the telephone could not carry the four instruments well. The music was jangled.

So this was solved by having Edna White play solo trumpet, which was transmitted excellently. She played "Silver Threads Among the Gold" for it in the office of the Brooklyn Eagle. Reception was in that of the San Francisco Examiner. This was in March, 1915.

Not long after this Edna White's concert career was recessed for married life, which gave her one son, who now lives in New York, and whom she sees often.

The son, Douglas Chandler, had a short stage career but it helped him into business. When he appeared in Carol Channing's "Wonderful Time," a man in the audience spotted him and put him into a fine position in the field of public relations with a large firm.

During this period of family life Edna White Chandler continued her trumpet practice. When World War I reached the United States, she appeared many times as trumpet soloist in War Bond appeals.

(To be continued)

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

I. Biographical Sketch

One Sunday in February, 1957, there appeared a small framed advertisement: "Edna White—A Farewell to my Trumpet—at Carnegie Concert Hall." For one who had heard Miss White play at Ocean Grove before World War I, and who had her Edison records, this proved to be an enlightening and enjoyable evening.

The program was an eight-page pamphlet, with light-blue cover. Its first notation was from the Bible: "Numbers 10, Verses 1-10." Beneath this, in her own words, Edna White (Chandler) gave her farewell to "my noble friend, companion . . . my life has been rich . . . felt the brushing of angel's wings and have looked upward."

After a salutation, three small, simple songs were sung by Francine Falcon, soprano. The words and music of them were by Edna White (Chandler), who followed by telling about the beginning of her career.

Her father had taught her to play the trumpet and her first public appearance was at Waltham, Mass., before she was eight years old. She was then taken to Ocean Grove, N. J., where the Park Sisters Quartet had become famous. While there Edna studied with Anna Park.

Besides practicing trumpet little Miss White went to school. She finished grammar school before she was 11, and was found to be too young Ocean Grove, where Tali Essen Morgan was in charge of music. He suggested an instrumental quartet to play in Ocean Grove Auditorium.

So the Aida Quartet was created, with Edna White, first trumpet; Florence McMillan, second trumpet, and Norma and Cora Sauter, cornets. This Quartet soon became popular and successful. It toured the country for several seasons.

Its program was elaborated by Norma Sauter playing the violin; Cora the cello, and Florence McMillan the piano. These were the instruments the three had played until Edna White came to Ocean Grove and taught them the trumpet and cornet.

For a while a baritone was with them. He was C. Pol Plancon, nephew of the famous basso, whose first name was Charlemagne. So was that of the nephew. Miss McMillan later became a famous pianist, as accompanist for Louise Homer, Enrico Caruso, and Leo Slezak.

As these four young girls were taken thru the West they had many thrills. In the winter while riding an open sleigh in Utah they were chased by wolves (not human ones, for in those days teenagers were too young for that).

Then in Texas the girls suffered a hold-up. But since they had little money and were such youngsters, they were freed without harm.

In those early days Ocean Grove

Antique MUSIC BOXES

Fine Swiss & Disc Types for sale.
Complete repair service including repinning of cylinders, repair of combs, etc. All work guaranteed.

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

(Specialists since 1825)

139 4th Ave. Pelham, N.Y. 10803
Phone 914 - PE 8-1506

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

tfx

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A PHENOMENAL CAREER

Edna White & Her Trumpet

By FREDERICK SUMMERILL, M.D.

Part II

Several years ago Dr. Frederick Summerill, a veteran Edison record collector and enthusiast, of Teaneck, N.J., wrote me he intended to submit for this department an article concerning his friend and mine, the distinguished and greatly gifted trumpet virtuoso, Edna White.

He has at last found time to send me the manuscript, which I have pleasure in publishing. At the end of Dr. Summerill's contribution I shall add a few notes of my own.

—Jim Walsh

After the War Edna White Chandler returned to the stage as soloist and had gratifying success in vaudeville for about nine years.

During this time she was divorced and married a famous concert and operatic baritone, Torcom Bezazian, with whom she had a very successful act in vaudeville. Both did solo work and he also would sing, with her giving trumpet obligato.

In 1927 they went to France and he toured in opera while she studied voice. She was accepted for Opera Comique but they returned to America, for Keith's circuit, in which she did trumpet and vocal solo work with a band of 14 girls.

This was so successful that she then developed, owned, and operated seven vaudeville acts. They consisted of one band and six quartets.

From 1925 to 1931 Edna White was frequently soloist with the Rochester Park Band. Hermann Dossenbach was director. On February 7, 1932, she played as soloist with Henry Hadley's Manhattan Orchestra and after that concert John Phillip Sousa called back stage and asked her to make a concert tour with his band, but he died the next month.

Edna White then started a music school called Gotham Academy but hard times ended it in 1933. So she became soloist with bands under WPA. Walter Damrosch put her into this without any test, for he knew her work and career.

This she carried on for four years, two of which also had vocal solo work. She was the regular coloratura lead in "Naughty Marietta" and "Fortune Teller," both by Victor Herbert, for the Colin O'More Opera Company.

This was interrupted by Edna being drafted back as trumpeter for productions by Orson Welles, then aged 22, who, with Edwin Denby, produced "Horse Eats Hat." The music was by Paul Bowles, and was orchestrated by Virgil Thomson.

The cast included Arlene Francis, Joseph Cotten and Orson and Sidney Welles. Its Military Ensemble was directed by Edna White, who also played in it. This music was given only between the acts and the audience always stayed for the entertaining intermission.

Early in 1931 Edna White trained and played in a Brass Quartet, which performed chamber music. Regarding this, Frank Damrosch wrote her: "You are opening up a new field of chamber music, which should find popular support."

Later the same year Gena Brancome, Department of Fine Arts, General Federation of Women's Clubs, wrote: "Your superb tone, artistry, and sympathetic musicianship contributed greatly to the success of my recent composer's concert. Until I heard you, I had not realized the gorgeous nuances of which a trumpet is capable."

At what is now City Center, Henry Hadley had his Manhattan Symphony Orchestra, and February 7, 1932, was the first time for a trumpet to appear with a major symphony. For this Guy-Ropartz composed a concerto for trumpet: Andante and Allegro. This was played from the original score, which has never been published.

Regarding it, Vincent Bach, of the Bach Instrument Company wrote: "I want to tell you again how much I enjoyed your solo with the Manhattan Symphony. You displayed excellent technique, also wonderful tone, and I was proud to know it was with a 'Bach' instrument."

Soon after this, misfortune struck Edna White and she was sick with scarlet fever; for a long time she had to drop everything. Her return was with WPA. Along in the fourth season with this, Giuseppe Creatore had her take three weeks leave to tour with his Little Symphony of 16 women.

Upon her return to WPA at Brooklyn Museum she was not given her regular place in first chair but was seated back in the third row. Most of the men objected to this but the

Antique
MUSIC BOXES
Fine Swiss & Disc Types for sale.
Complete repair service including repinning of cylinders, repair of combs, etc. All work guaranteed.
BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.
(Specialists since 1825)
139 4th Ave. Pelham, N.Y. 10803
Phone 914 - PE 8-1506

tfo

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 25 years.

tfo

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfo

TORCOM BEZAZIAN, famous baritone, making an Edison disc recording in 1921 while his wife, Edna White, plays a trumpet obligato. Members of Edison Orchestra are in the background.

one man was kept in first chair. She was the only female in this concert band.

So Edna went on her own in 1938 and engagements to play and to teach came to her immediately. One of the first to call was "Tiny" Mason, an obese trumpeter with an orchestra, who wanted a lesson the very day she left WPA.

She tried to put him off but he said, "Miss White, I must have my lesson today when I have my six dollars. If you put me off until tomorrow, I won't have my six dollars." He had his lesson.

Later in 1938 Edna White wrote and published a book, "The Trumpet Teacher." It was called an "able treatise" by Walter Damrosch and received similar compliments from Arthur Pryor; George Gartland, Director of Music, New York Schools; and Carleton Sprague, Chief of Music, N.Y. Public Library.

In the fall of 1938 Edna White played much on radio. She became the first to play on the trumpet Rimsky-Korsakow's "Bumble Bee," which she did on WOR, October 5.

In 1948 she did trumpet solo work in a Baltimore theater and here James Burke, the famous cornet and trumpet player, heard her for the first time and introduced himself, complimenting her renditions. He is still soloist with the Goldman band.

On February 9th, the next year, she gave an elaborate trumpet concert in Carnegie Hall. It was augmented by the Andrew Tietjen Choir, with whom she played the opening number: "Wachet, betet, seid bereit allezeit. Cantata 70," by Bach.

Her other numbers on the program were:

Legende .....George Enesco
Sonatine (American premiere)
.....Henry Martelli
Concert Waltz (First performance)
.....Virgil Thomson
Midnight Madrigal .....Tibor Serly
Procession from Symphonic
Suite, Quebec ....Gena Branscombe

In 1941-1942 she held first trumpet chair in Giuseppe Creatore's American Women Symphonette. The next season she was with The Tone Weavers, which had two trumpets, French horn, and trombone. The following year she was with B. A. Rolfe's Daughters of Uncle Sam. In 1944 she played with La Symphonie Feminine de Montreal, Ethel Stark, conductor.

II. Recordings

Edna White's recordings for Edison discs began early in 1921 when Arthur Walsh signed her to a contract for recording and "tone tests." She remembers making four recordings. At first only two were issued:

80613 Recollections of 1861-1865. Trumpet with orchestra. Other side, Chester Gaylord, saxophone.
80650 The Debutante by Herbert L. Clark. / Russian Balalaika Orchestra.

Not until 1926 did Edison issue another, when it was marked as a special issue.

80862 When You and I Were Young, Maggie. Trumpet with orchestra. /Sunshine of Your Smile, Jack Stillman, cornet solo.

The Edison catalogs always carried the following with Edna White's recordings:

"Many of you will remember the Aida Trumpet Quartet, which played in many cities and towns of the country, some years ago. This organization was founded and led by Edna White, at the tender age of 16.

"But, before this, she had appeared in public. Indeed, she made her bow as a trumpeter to the public at nine years of age, at a concert given at Ocean Grove. The father of Miss White was responsible for her early training and may be said to have fairly brought her up on the trumpet.
(Turn to page 49)

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 49)

"After two years of touring with the Aida Brass Quartet, Miss White retired for rest and study. In 1914 she organized the famous Edna White Trumpet Quartet, which played at the San Francisco-Panama-Pacific Exposition, as well as in concert and church fields.

Some time ago Miss White decided to return to the solo work of her early career, so severed connection with her quartet, which became the Gloria Trumpeters."

The fourth recording by Miss White in 1921 was Agnus Dei, by Bizet, but it was never issued. However, two more were made in 1926 and the record was made and issued but it was never listed in the monthly announcements or in the catalogs, as were many others, as recounted by Jim Walsh in a recent issue of HOBBIES.

This writer has this record:

52036 Sweet Genevieve/Bohemian Girl: Then You'll Remember Me. Trumpet solos by Edna White, with orchestra.

Edison catalog lists four recordings by the Aida Brass Quartet, made in 1924. However, upon listening to these, Edna White (Chandler) stated that the trumpet was not played by her. The name was apparently borrowed from her earlier organization, which had established such a great reputation.

(To Be Continued)

WANTED

ANTIQUÉ TOYS AND MECHANICAL BANKS

Toy Jobbers Catalogs

Describe fully and
state price

PERELMAN ANTIQUÉ TOY MUSEUM

339 Winding Way

Merion, Penna.

We are accepting orders for
REPAIR SERVICE

on
MECHANICAL

BANKS and TOYS

We also buy old banks.

GEORGE W. BAUER

P. O. Box 145

Pottstown,

Pa.
tfc

MECHANICAL BANKS FOR SALE

PENNY PINEAPPLE cast iron mechanical coin banks, cast iron toys. Picture brochure and prices 15c. — High, Dept. H4, 1219 Girard, Wyomissing, Pa. 19610 mhl24051

MECHANICAL BANKS WANTED

BUFFALO BUCKING, GIANT IN TOWER, RED RIDING HOOD, NORTH POLE, FOWLER — OTHER RARE BANKS, FINE CAST IRON TOYS.

Reference: Dun & Bradstreet

FRANK LAUGHLIN

COLLECTOR

1134 East Douglas

Wichita, Kansas

tfc

MECHANICAL BANKS WANTED

PLEASE NOTE my mechanical bank display ad in this section, listing various wants. — F. H. Griffith, P.O. Box 10644, Pittsburgh 35, Pa. tfx

OLD mechanical and still banks, toys, describe, state price, condition. — Scofield's, Box 457, Ridgefield, Conn. f12069

Old mechanical & still banks, collections bought. — W. Miller, 1017 Westgate, Troy, Ohio. mhl28421

MECHANICAL banks wanted: Home bank (cast), Pelican and others. — J. Seidelle, 2141 Brace Pl., Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. 44221 je3272

OLD MECHANICAL and still banks. Describe fully, price. — Sidney Partridge, Marlborough, New Hampshire. je3291

TOYS WANTED

Early toys bought continually. High quality cast iron and tin horse drawn carriages, wagons, fire apparatus, trains and comical toys. Royal Circus wagons. Arcade's large automobiles and trucks. Animated bell toys, capshooters and bombs. Clockwork and electric trains and trolleys. Toy and train catalogs. Fire houses. — Lloyd Ralston, 1192 Youngstown, Warren, Ohio. 44484. je32721

AMERICAN FLYER "S" gauge trains, Erector/Mechano, cast iron toys, wanted. — Alden Miller, 3212 34th Ave. So., Minneapolis, Minn. 55406. o6276

HUBERT B. WHITING

40 Friend St.

Wakefield,

Mass. 01880

WANTED

Old Iron Penny Banks,
Still and Mechanical

tfc

MECHANICAL BANK BOOKLET

Useful to both Dealer and Collector. Complete listings and new grading-evaluation system. In seven parts covering the complete field of American, Foreign, semi-mechanical patterns, recasts, fakes, and variations.

NOW AVAILABLE - PRICE $2.

F. H. GRIFFITH

P.O. Box 10644 Pittsburgh 35, Pa. tfx

MISCELLANEOUS WANTED

ILLUSTRATED Catalog, 82 typical old toys & prices I pay. Catalog $1 refunded on purchase of toy for my collection. — Lawrence Altman Antiques, Toys & Bells of the World, 4703 McPherson Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63108. aul24032

WANTED: 19th Century antique toys, banks, mechanical and still; and old toy catalogs. Must be of good quality.

Write to: SALLY ERATH, H
745 Fifth Avenue - Room 304
New York, New York 10022

tfc

WANTED

Toy trains & trolleys built before 1942. Top prices paid.

Please identify, state price and condition.

JACK WM. WINDT

1939 Golf St., Sarasota, Fla. 33577 np

MECHANICAL BANKS & TOY PISTOLS

ESPECIALLY WANT MECHANICAL BANKS:

- BOWERY BANK
- ROYAL TRICK
- ELEPHANT (Tin)
- BOWLING ALLEY BANK
- RED RIDING HOOD
- FOOTBALL (Colored man kicks ball)
- SCHLEY BOTTLING UP CERVEZA
- PRESTO (Penny changes to quarter)
- JAPANESE BALL TOSSER (Tin, wind-up)
- SHOOT THAT HAT BANK
- TOMMY BANK (Gun, Soldier Shoots)
- BULL & BEAR BANK
- COASTING BANK
- MUSICAL SAVING BANK (You pay—1 play)
- PREACHER IN THE PULPIT
- TARGET
- BRITISH LION (Tin)
- RIVAL
- SENTRY BANK (Tin)
- DARKY BUST (Tin)
- TOAD IN DEN (Tin)
- PERFECTION REGISTERING BANK
- GIANT IN TOWER
- DARKY FISHERMAN
- FROG ON ARCHER TRACK (Tin)
- TIME LOCK SAVINGS
- QUEEN VICTORIA JUBILEE BANK 1897
- SAFE DEPOSIT BANK (tin elephant)
- WINNER SAVINGS (Tin)

PISTOLS:

- CAMERA
- DOLPHIN
- TORPEDO SHOOTER
- HUMPTY DUMPTY (Three heads)
- SAILING SHIP
- TWO DOGS ON BENCH
- OSCAR WILDE BOMB
- CANNON BOMB
- BABY HEAD BOMB

Also want Cast Iron horse drawn carriages, animated bell ringing pull toys, old toy automobiles, old catalogs showing banks & toy pistols.

F. H. GRIFFITH

P.O. Box 10644 Pittsburgh 35, Pa. tfx

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS
P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.
Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus
list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES
for more than 25 years.

Antique
MUSIC BOXES
Fine Swiss & Disc Types for sale.
Complete repair service including replanning of cylinders, repair of combs, etc. All work guaranteed.
BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.
(Specialists since 1825)
139 4th Ave. Pelham, N.Y. 10803
Phone 914 - PE 8-1506

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RE-CORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced,
with MONARCH and DE LUXE
labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE
CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zono-
phone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODE-
ON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.
Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

tfx

Please mention HOBBIES when
replying to advertisements.

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DE-SIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock.
Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A PHENOMENAL CAREER

Edna White &amp; Her Trumpet

By FREDERICK SUMMERILL, M.D.

PART III

Several years ago Dr. Frederick Summerill, a veteran Edison record collector and enthusiast, of Teaneck, N.J., wrote me he intended to submit for this department an article concerning his friend and mine, the distinguished and greatly gifted trumpet virtuoso, Edna White.

He has at last found time to send me the manuscript, which I have pleasure in publishing. At the end of Dr. Summerill's contribution I shall add a few notes of my own. —Jim Walsh

Following her farewell to her trumpet in 1957, Edna White (Chandler) managed a public relations business office on Broadway for Rinn Records, Chicago, providing programs and performers for commercial occasions, political gatherings, and the March of Dimes.

She has retired from this and is working on her autobiography, in which she says she was the youngest to do concert work with the trumpet. Now she is feeling the urge to be the oldest, for she still loves that horn.

In 1962 she did pick up the trumpet and make two fine recordings on tape, with a good piano accompaniment by a friend. One was the famous "Carnival of Venice." This writer heard both. As only three years have passed since those fine recordings, she soon could resume easily her great artistry with her beloved trumpet.

—o—

COMMENTS BY JIM WALSH

Dr. Summerill does not mention the Columbia records which the Edna White Trumpet Quartet made in 1918, three years before Miss White recorded her first Edison solos.

In July, 1918, Columbia issued the first of the series of three: A2538, "Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight" and "Fancying You Fancyin' Me" from "Odds and Ends of 1917." The supplement made this comment:

"The Edna White Trumpet Quartet is unique among musical organizations. A trumpet quartet is unusual to begin with and four girl virtuosos of this difficult instrument almost a miracle. The rich, pure toned harmonies of trumpets seem to have more than earthly quality, and add a strange thrilling beauty to the familiar melodies played. These trumpet recordings are remarkably tone true."

Three months later, in October, came A2603, Brahms' "Lullaby" and "The Lost Chord."

"The Edna White Trumpet Quartet is music not only of novelty, but of the highest artistic quality. A musician of high standing recently listened to one of the Quartet's recordings and remarked, 'I seldom use slang, but there is music which "gets" you.' It is true. The full throated harmony of four trumpets gives music of celestial grandeur, unlike that of any other instrument."

January, 1919, brought A2650, "The Lost Chord" and "Nearer My God to Thee."

"The 'Lost Chord,' in reality, tells us as scarcely any other musical composition has ever told, of the inspiration of music itself. The pure, religious tone of trumpets seems created for this very music. The Quartet has recently played for many camps and found, with all their popular numbers, 'The Lost Chord' is a favorite of every soldier. 'The most famous hymn in the world' makes an ideal coupling."

When these records were listed in the Columbia catalog for 1919 they appeared under the heading of "Edna White Trumpet Quartet." If you looked for them under "White (Edna) Trumpet Quartet," you found yourself referred to the heading I have just mentioned.

But when the 1921 catalog was published, if you searched under "Edna White Trumpet Quartet," you were told to look under "Gloria Trumpeters." The name on the record labels also was changed.

I first met the charming Edna White in Roanoke, Va., during the fall of 1949 when she was a starred member of a troupe entertaining service personnel in military hospitals. They gave several performances in the Roanoke County Veterans' Administration institution.

I mentioned her records and she indicated enthusiastically that the Edisons reproduced her playing to perfection.

My only other meeting with Miss White was in September, 1950, when she attended the John Bieling Day party at Hempstead, L.I., and gave an amazing trumpet interpretation of "The St. Louis Blues." I have been hoping for another meeting, but the opportunity has not arisen.

EDNA WHITE presented this photo to Jim Walsh after their meeting in Roanoke, Va., in 1949

A group photo in HOBBIES for December, 1949, shows her with many other noted recording stars.

Dr. Summerill is mistaken in saying that Edna White's Diamond Disc 52036 was not listed in a monthly supplement and did not appear in a yearly catalog. It was announced in the supplement of July, 1927, accompanied by a photo of the lady. And it had its proper place in the 1928 catalog—the last issued by Edison.

The "Then You'll Remember Me" side was dubbed onto an Edison long-playing record, 10005, issued in 1927. On that side Sodero's Band also played "Selections from 'Iolanthe.'"

The reverse contained "Amoureuse Valse" and "Serenade — Spanish Waltz," by the American Concert Orchestra, and a saxophone solo, "Danse Hongroise," by Rudy Wiedoeft. Both sides, dubbed from ordinary Diamond discs, played 12 minutes.

Three of Miss White's Edison discs were copied on Blue Amberol cylinders:

4250, "The Debutante," 4239, "Recollections of 1861-65," and 5106, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie."

The photograph on page 41 of the June issue of HOBBIES, showing Torcom Bezazian singing for a Diamond disc while Miss White played a trumpet obligato, was taken in 1921. I have gone through the list of Bezazian's Edison records without being able to determine what song the baritone was singing.

The Edison records by the Aida Brass Quartet appeared in the supplements for July and October, 1924. A picture of the ensemble was reproduced in the latter. No indication is given of their names. The discs were not dubbed onto cylinders.

(The End)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued on page 37)

1911 at the State Theatre of Olmutz, and then passed on to Stuttgart.

During his career he sang in Bayreuth, the State Opera of Berlin, in Milan, Paris, London, and Brussels. He also appeared in Munich, Prague, and Amsterdam.

A truly engaging singer is Ruth Miller, wife of the tenor Mario Chamlee. It is indeed a pity that this soprano never recorded commercially, for hers is a lovely voice educated in the best of vocal traditions.

Having studied with such pedagogues as Lloyd d'Aubigne, Emile Bourgeois, and Giovanni Sbriglia, she initiated her operatic career under the name of Francesca Milena.

She sang with the Cosmopolitan Opera, the Aborn Grand Opera Company, and finally was engaged at the Metropolitan where she graced the roster in the 1917-18 Season. As Musetta in "La Boheme," she shared the spotlight with Alda, McCormack, and De Luca; and as Micaela in "Carmen," with Farrar and Martinelli.

As the IRCC L-7029 notes state, "Ruth Miller became Mrs. Mario Chamlee on October 2, 1919, and today they are successful teachers in California." The best of luck to both, for they certainly deserve it.

One of the most neglected singers on records is without a doubt the magnificent Richard Bonelli, endowed with a voice resembling in timbre that of Titta Ruffo (on a smaller scale, of course), and a pupil of none other than Jean de Reszke.

Among all the 78 rpm recordings he made for Vocalion, Brunswick, and Columbia, the only operatics that I can remember off hand are the Good Night Quartet from "Martha" (acoustic Brunswick), the two duets with Chamlee (electric Brunswick) and Chanson Ancienne from "La Basoche" coupled with "Xerxes" Largo (electric Columbia).

He did make an extravagantly beautiful "Visione Veneziana" backed by "Luna d'Estate," (electric Brunswick), which I cannot recommend highly enough. But the fact still remains that a superb operatic talent was restricted at its peak to lighter repertoire by the major recording companies.

Here I must add that in the mid-'50s Allegro Royale brought out an operatic Long Play disc of Richard Bonelli. And a mighty fine LP that was, even though the baritone was then past his prime.

Born Richard Bunn, in Port Byron, N.Y., on February 6, 1894, Bonelli studied with Arthur Alexander, William Vilonat, and Jean de Reszke. His operatic debut took place in Modena, Italy.

Later he sang in Monte Carlo, in Paris (at the Theatre de la Gaite-Lyrique), at the Chicago Opera (1925-31), and the San Francisco Opera (1932-34).

The Metropolitan claimed him in 1932, where, on December 1, he made his debut as the elder Germont in "La Traviata," with Ponselle in the role of Violetta.

Bonelli successfully appeared at the Met from 1932 to 1934, and again in 1944-45. The last I heard is that he now lives in retirement in California.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Early cylinder phonograph equipment on display in Thomas A. Edison's reconstructed Menlo Park Laboratory at the Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich., is being inspected in this picture. From left to right the inspectors are: Donald L. Leavitt, Reference Librarian for Sound Recording, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C.; Walter L. Welch of Syracuse, N.Y., co-author with Oliver Read of "From Tinfoil to Stereo;" and Kurtz Myers, Chief of the Music and Drama Dept., Detroit, Mich., Public Library.

—Photo, Courtesy of The Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn, Mich.

A 1900 ACCOUNT OF THE PHONOGRAPH

Part I

By JIM WALSH

Within the past few weeks I have had the good luck to obtain a copy of a book that previously had been unknown to me, but which contains such an interesting chapter on the early development of the phonograph and sound recording, I feel it deserves re-publication here.

I obtained the book from my friend, E. R. G. Heneberger of Harrisonburg, Va. Mr. Heneberger is city auditor of Harrisonburg. He also conducts a spare time mail order business in old books and magazines.

The title of the volume he sent me is "Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century." The author is Edward W. Byrn, A.M., and the publishers, Munn & Co. of New York.

This book, which has long been out of print and is also out of copy-right, appears to be almost completely unknown today, but its chapter on the phonograph vividly brings back the pioneer days of experimenting by Edison, Tainter and Bell, and Berliner.

Accompanying the chapter are a number of cuts of old style recording and reproducing instruments. Some of these I hope can be shown here.

Now I'll let Chapter XXII speak for itself. Its principal heading, "The Phonograph," is supplemented by, "Invention of Phonograph by Edison. Scott's Phonograph. Improvements of Bell and Tainter The Graphophone. Library of Wax Cylinders. Berliner's Gramophone."

"Following closely upon the discovery of the telephone, the phonograph came, literally speaking for itself, and adding another surprise to the wonderful inventions of that prolific period.

"It was in the latter part of 1877 that Thomas A. Edison showed a few privileged friends a modest looking little machine. He turned the crank and to the astonishment of those present it said 'Good morning! How do you do? How do you like the phonograph?'

"Its voice was a little metallic, it is true, but here was presented an insignificant looking piece of mechanism which was undeniably a talking machine and one with an unlimited vocabulary.

"So-called talking machines had been made before, of which the Faber machine was a type. These, by an arrangement of bellows to furnish air, and flexible pipes in imitation of the larynx and vocal organs, made laborious and wheezy efforts to imitate the mechanical functions of the throat and tongue in articulate speech, but the method was fundamentally faulty and no success was attained.

"Edison followed no such leading. His phonograph made no attempt at imitating in construction the complex organization of the human throat, but was as wonderful in its divergence therefrom and in its simplicity as it was in the success of its results. The machine was patented by him February 19, 1878, No. 200,521, and its life principle is simply and clearly defined in the first claim of the patent, as follows:

"The method herein specified of reproducing the human voice, or other sounds, by causing the sound vibrations to be recorded substantially as specified, and obtaining motion from that record as set forth for the reproduction of sound vibrations."

"The invention was a striking and interesting novelty and at once attracted the attention of scientific men as well as the general public. Its first public exhibition was about the latter part of January, 1878, before the Polytechnic Association of the American Institute, at New York.

"It spoke English, French, German, Dutch, Spanish, and Hebrew with equal facility. It imitated the barking of a dog and crowing of a cock, and then catching cold, coughed and sneezed and wheezed until it is said a physician in the audience proposed sending a prescription for it.

"It was also suggested by an irreverent man that it might take the place of preachers in the rendition of sermons, while another thought that as it reproduced music with equal facility it might take the place of preacher and choir both.

"In the spring of 1878 it was exhibited at Washington by Edison and his assistant, Mr. Batchelor. Mr. Edison was the guest of U. H. Painter, and in his parlors it was shown to a party of gentlemen.

"From Mr. Painter's house the machine was taken to the office of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, thence to the Academy of Sciences, in session at the Smithsonian Institution, and at night it was taken to the White House and exhibited to President and Mrs. Hayes.

"The form of the first phonograph is shown in Figure 189. It consisted of three principal parts — the mouthpiece A, into which speech was uttered, the spirally grooved cylinder B, carrying on its periphery a sheet of tin foil, and a second mouthpiece D.

"The cylinder B and its axial shaft were both provided with spiral grooves or screw threads of exactly the same pitch, and when the shaft was turned by its crank its screw threaded bearings caused the cylinder to slowly advance as it rotated.

"The mouthpiece A had adjacent to the cylinder a flexible diaphragm carrying a little point or stylus which bore against the tin foil on the cylinder. When the mouthpiece A was spoken into and the cylinder B was turned, the little stylus, vibrating from the voice impulses, traced by indentations a little jagged path in the tin foil that formed the record.

"To reproduce the record in speech again, the mouthpiece A was adjusted away from the cylinder, the cylinder run back to the starting point, and mouthpiece D was then brought up to the cylinder.

"This mouthpiece had a diaphragm and stylus similar to the other one, only more delicately constructed. This stylus was adjusted to bear lightly in the little spiral path in the tin foil traced by the other stylus, and as the tin foil revolved with the cylinder its jagged irregularities set up the same vibrations in the diaphragm of mouthpiece D as those caused by the voice on the other diaphragm, and thus translated the record into sounds of articulate speech, exactly corresponding to the words first spoken into the instrument.

"In Fig. 190 is shown a further development of the phonograph, in which a single mouthpiece with diaphragm and stylus serves the pur-

The First Phonograph, Fig. 189.

DOLLOLOGY

Conducted by
CLARA H. FAWCETT

The Lure of the Wooden Doll

By CLARA HALLARD FAWCETT

The lure of the wooden doll is understandable. It was the first to be manufactured in quantity.

Although many of the commercially made dolls of wood are not handsome, to say the least, what collector would not jump at the chance to buy a "Queen Anne" of about 1700; that is, if one happens to have the price. Such dolls are expensive.

Years ago, Laura Treskow of London, England, had quite a thrill when she entered a shop and discovered two beautiful examples of the famous Queen Anne wooden doll sitting pert and challenging upon a shelf.

"How nice," she thought, "if they could be sitting on my shelf." She promptly bought them.

Later the shopkeeper tried in vain to buy them back. By that time they had left Laura's shelf and were on their way to Kimport in America, where many rare and lovely dolls have found a temporary home.

"There are not many rare and beautiful antique dolls left in England," says Laura Treskow, "for the Americans have taken them all."

Wooden "Queen Anne" dolls which sailed the sea from London, England, to Kimport's in America. —Photo, courtesy Laura Treskow, London.

Doll carved, dressed, and photographed by Mrs. Liesing Merrill. It was her first attempt at doll making.

Helen, early 19th century wooden doll with cloth hinges.

pose both of recorder for making the record and a speaker for reproducing it, a trumpet or horn being used, as indicated in dotted lines, to concentrate the vibrations in recording and to augment the sound in reproducing."

We will discuss and show the "second form of Phonograph" (Fig 190, etc.) next month; also the "Graphophone, recording and reproducing devices."

This was not the case 30 or 40 years ago. On one of the good antique-buying days of yore another American collector, the late Mrs. Henry A. Diamant of New York City, while window shopping in London, came upon a shop called "Queen Mary's Shop." There, in the window, was a most intriguing diminutive Maypole of about 1840. (See page 42)

Each gaily costumed wooden girl and boy thereon, 13 altogether, held

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A 1900 ACCOUNT OF THE PHONOGRAPH

PART II

By JIM WALSH

In the August issue of HOBBIES, quoting from "Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century" by Edward W. Byrn, A.M., and published by Munn & Co., New York—an old book long out of print and copyright—we told about the first phonograph.

We also introduced the second form of phonograph. In it "a single mouthpiece with diaphragm and stylus serves the purpose both of recorder for making the record and a speaker for reproducing it, a trumpet or horn being used, as indicated in dotted lines, to concentrate the vibrations in recording and to augment the sound in reproducing."

"The phonograph is in reality a development of the phonautograph, which was an instrument invented by Leon Scott in 1857 to automatically record sounds by diagrams. There is a model of Scott's phonautograph in the National Museum at Washington, D.C., and it consists of a chamber to catch the sound waves and an elastic diaphragm with stylus working on a revolving cylinder bearing a sheet of paper coated with lamp-black.

"The phonograph's record-making mouthpiece, with its diaphragm and stylus, is substantially a phonautograph, but instead of simply causing the stylus to trace a record on carbon-coated paper and stopping with this result, Edison traced a record in a substance—tinfoil—which was capable of mechanically translating that record into sound again by a mere reversal of the function of the stylus and diaphragm.

"This was the very essence of simplicity and logical reasoning. All records heretofore had been traced for visual inspection only. Edison's record was not for visual inspection, but was endowed with the mechanical function of reproducing sound.

"From the first Edison believed that his phonograph was to fill an important place in the business activities of the world, since here seemed a silent but faithful stenographer which reproduced the words of the speaker with absolute fidelity, even to the quality of emphasis and inflection. It made no mistakes, was always even with the speaker in its work, and asked no questions.

"For a number of years, however, the invention lay dormant and served no other purpose than that of a scientific curiosity or an amusing toy. The difficulty of its practical application largely existed in the perishable form of the record, which, being in tinfoil, was liable to be mutilated and distorted, and was not well adopted for storage or transportation.

"A few years after the announcement of Mr. Edison's invention, Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the distinguished inventor of the telephone, with his associates, Chichester A. Bell and Charles Sumner Tainter, directed their attention to the improvement of the phonograph.

"Dr. Bell had received from the French government, upon the recommendation of the French Academy of Sciences, the Volta prize of 50,000 francs as a recognition of his successful work in acoustics and the invention of the telephone, and with this sum he built the Volta Institute in Washington and carried on the work of developing the phonograph.

The graphophone, recording and reproducing devices. Fig. 191.

"On May 4, 1886, Chichester A. Bell and Sumner Tainter obtained patents Nos. 341,214 and 341,288, which covered a great improvement in the record of the phonograph. This invention substituted for the tinfoil sheet a surface of wax, which was finally fashioned into a cylinder.

"Instead of merely indenting the record on tinfoil, the stylus cut a distinct groove or kerf in the wax cylinder as it revolved, dislodging therefrom a minute filament or shaving, and forming a record which was not only far more positive in its translating effect, and more easily transported and stored, but was also less perishable. Besides it could be effaced easily without loss of the cylinder by simply smoothing off the surface of the cylinder again when it was desired to make a new record.

"This invention quickly grew into practical use, and is known as the 'Graphophone.'

"In Fig. 191 is shown on the left a cross section of the diaphragm, recording stylus, and wax cylinder, of the graphophone. The stylus is plowing a tiny groove in the wax cylinder in the act of recording the speech. And on the right is shown the reproducing stylus traversing the record groove in the wax cylinder, and the diaphragm chamber with which the ear tubes are connected.

"The grooves in the wax, although giving forth mechanical movement that is translated into sound, are very minute. They are only 6-10,000 of an inch deep.

"When the possibilities of the graphophone became known, capital was quickly supplied for its commercial exploitation, and the Columbia Phonograph Company was organized.

"At the present time, owing to the great increase in the business, the control of the graphophone business is vested in two branches, the Columbia Phonograph Co., which has charge of the selling, and which has offices throughout all the principal cities of this country and some of the larger ones of Europe; and the American Graphophone Company, which attends to the manufacturing branch. Its factory is located at Bridgeport, Conn., where, it is said, that in 1898 the production of the factory reached the point of one graphophone for every minute of the day, making a total daily output of 600 machines.

The second form of phonograph. Fig. 190.

"Although the Bell and Tainter patents of 1886 represent the basic principles of the graphophone, its development and perfection have been contributed to in many subsequent improvements by Messrs. Bell, Tainter, McDonald, and others. The more important of these are covered by patents No. 375,579, December 27, 1887; No. 380,535, April 3, 1888; No. 527,755, October 16, 1894, and No. 579,595, March 30, 1897.

"At the beginning of this industry it was thought the principal use of the instrument would be found in business applications, to take the place of the stenographer, but it proved difficult to revolutionize office methods, especially as the earlier machines were somewhat intricate, and the business man had no time to divide in engineering a machine.

"These difficulties, however, have been so far overcome by modern improvements and simplification of the machine that its use in business houses as an amanuensis has become quite common.

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

WANTED: Seeburg, Coinola, Nelson-Wiggen, Mills coin slot pianos, plays large paper roll. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Maryland. n3403

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954 ap126121

WANTED: Cylinder phonograph reproducers, any parts to reproducers, jeweled needles (stylus). Don't want steel needles. Describe and price wanted. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. n3614

WANTED: Busy Bee cylinder records playing condition, any quantities. 1 Busy Bee cylinder phonograph playing condition. 1 Busy Bee disc phonograph in good playing condition. Busy Bee disc records good condition any quantity wanted. Lambert 5" oversize cylinder records unbreakable. 1 Capworth Williams Sunday school, pump organ in good condition only, size 36" long, 36" high, 12" deep. 1 Sears Roebuck complete mail order catalog with all pages in it, years from 1880 to 1900. Any of these years wanted. — Alton Vogel, Box 12107, Rockdale, Texas. n36731

Old pianos, organs, harpsichords expertly repaired. Museum restorations a specialty. Fine selection of historic instruments for sale. Write for list. — Pro Musica Instrument Co., 53A Maryland Ave., Annapolis, Maryland. s1063

GUITARS - Wanted used or new books, pamphlets, brochures, etc. containing information about the first use of steel strings on guitars in the U.S. and foreign countries. Also general information about the history of the guitar in the U.S. and abroad. Please send description of material available and price. — Box JHM, c/HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60605. s38201

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ja3633

"The greatest use of the graphophone is, however, for amusement purposes. Its songs, orchestral, and solo renditions, and its humorous monologue reproductions, constitute today a great library of wax cylinders, regularly cataloged and sold by the thousands.

"It will be understood readily that the formation of the cylinders must constitute a great business of itself when it is remembered that many record cylinders accompany each graphophone, and that the latter are turned out at the rate of one a minute by a single company.

"Many thousands of these cylinders are made daily. Some are sent out simply as plain wax cylinders, onto which the records are made by the voice of the purchaser, while others have records made for them of popular music, monologues in dialect, humorous speeches, etc.

"The waxy composition, which is in reality a species of soap, is melted in huge pots. It then passes from one floor to another, undergoing a refining process in its progress, and finally reaches the molds.

"These molds are arranged in rows around a horizontal wheel about eight feet in diameter. The wheel is kept revolving, and a man on one side is kept constantly busy in filling the molds with the molten material as they reach him.

"A half revolution of the wheel brings the filled molds to the other side of the room, and by that time the material has hardened sufficiently to enable another attendant, stationed there, to remove the cylinders from the molds. Thus the wheel is kept going, receiving at one side a charge of the melted wax and discharging at the other molded cylinders, which are afterwards turned true on the surface.

"The record-making department is both unique and interesting. Here the records of music are produced. They are made by bands and performers engaged for the purpose, many of which, operating at the same time, producing such a medley as to be scarcely distinguishable to the visitor.

"The records are tested by about half a hundred women, each of whom has a little compartment or booth framed in by glass partitions. The duty of the tester is to decide upon the merits of the record by actually listening to it on the graphophone.

"A very important feature in record-making, from a commercial standpoint, is in means for cheaply duplicating records. If every record cylinder had to be made by the separate act of a performer such records would be very expensive.

"An original record is first made by some celebrated musician or speaker, and this record is afterwards multiplied and reproduced in large numbers. For this purpose an original record by suitable mechanism is made to take the place of the speaker or singer, and so multiplies and reproduces the original record.

(Continued on page 44)

PIANOS FOR SALE

Refinished Mathushek rosewood square grand piano. Built in 1875. — Lewis Osborn, 321 E. Ninth, Cushing, Okla. 74023. o3693

GRAND PIANO. Rose carved legs $200. — Antoinette DePaola, Blackwood, New Jersey. Phone: CA 7-4593. o3802

FOR SALE: Steinway piano, built about 1830. Oblong, rosewood. Fair condition. — Lee R. Chapin, 93 Broadway Ave., Colonia, N. J. s1441

PIANOS AND ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Money-back guarantee. Send for current list. — Harold Powell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

Wanted: Piano rolls, Ampico or Duoart. Write: Newton, Ingomar, Pa. ja12069

Wanted: Duo-Art piano rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 2614 Central Ave., Alameda, Calif. s4234

Wanted: Ampico piano rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 2614 Central Ave., Alameda, Calif. o3882

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists. Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte, blues, foreign, rags, 88-note standards. — Vi & Si's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N.Y. 14226. n3844

WURLITZER nickelodeon rolls wanted every type. Wanted these machines: Seeburg G, H models, Coinola Co., and others. — Jerry Cohen, 11756 Canton Place, Studio City, Calif. 91604. n3483

ANTIQUE BAND INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Over the shoulder band instruments and Civil War relics. — W. A. Holloway, 1547 N. Dearborn Parkway, Chicago, Ill. 60610. n3403

MELODEONS

TWO BEAUTIFUL rosewood melodeons for sale. Thoroughly reconditioned, tuned. Also reed organs, repairing, parts. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vermont. s3023

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12698

RARE & STANDARD all categories. Special price in quantities to dealers. All inquiries promptly answered. Largest stock in the West. Same location 32 years. Expert photostat all sizes. — Music Mart, 3201 West 6th St., Los Angeles 5, Calif. s64811

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

FOR SALE: Mills Single Violano Virtuoso. Good playing condition, extra rolls. Must sell, will accept highest offer, write for details. — Judy Haskins, Copper Harbor, Mich. s1002

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

BOOKS: The Fabulous Phonograph, $6.95; Rebuilding the Player Piano, Givens, $6.95. — Mid-America Books, Leon, Iowa 50144. n3652

PHONOGRAPH PARTS, repair service, accessories, novelties. Everything for the phonograph owner. Giant list 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. o3253

FOR SALE: Edison Eclipse coin slot phonograph, complete in very good condition. Send 50c for picture and more information. Wanted to buy: Any outside horn phonographs and parts for same. — Wayne Warren, 24361 Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543. o3126

DOLL ACCESSORIES

DOLL HATS. Dress up your doll collection with the addition of attractive doll hats. They're wonderful for gifts for the small fry, too. I also do doll repairing, such as rebuilding bodies, feet, fingers, shoulders (on the German jointed dolls that have bisque heads). I can mend kid bodies, if they can be mended, or make a new cloth body. Satisfaction or your money back. — Mary Upshaw, Doll Repairing, 2601 Forbes St., Jacksonville 4, Fla. tfx

DO YOU want your dolls dressed correctly? Research done for each. Patterns made to measure for historic dolls. Stamp please. — Miss Christine Spraker, 304 Arnold Ave., Port Allegany, Pa. 16743 n3844

DOLL WIGS. List 25c, coin or stamps. Long Curls to shoulder - baby - also Shirley Temple. These are lovely. Mail order only. — Dorothy's Dolls, 2509 Covert Ave., Evansville, Ind. d6698

DOLL &amp; MINIATURE HOUSE FURNISHINGS

ORIGINAL OILS. Professionally done by recognized artist. By mail from the Springridge Farm Studios of Donna B. Reeder, R. R. 1, Farmersville, Ohio, 45325. Introductory price of $3 each, or enough for the entire doll-house in lots of 10 at the introductory price $25. s1006

DOLL BOOKS FOR SALE

DOLLS, MAKERS & MARKS, 2nd edition, incl. large addenda with scores of additional marks for the identification of dolls, plus all the material in the popular first edition. Entire book profusely illustrated with marks of makers in business before 1880 and pictures of their dolls. Completely new comprehensive index. Paperbound. $7 postpaid. Check with order please. "The Age of Dolls," $6 ppd. Both books by E. Coleman, 4315 Van Ness St., Washington, D.C. 20016. s36311

DOLL STUFF AGAIN, 2nd printing, paper back, 320 pages, profusely illustrated. Pattern sheets. All you need to know to get neck deep in dolling. The doller's "bible", $6.—Toy Trader, Middletown, Connecticut. 06457. d122112

WONDERFUL DOLLS OF WAX by Jo Elizabeth Gerken. The only book in any language about wax dolls. Their history. Comprehensive classification. A century and a half of Pierotti. The real Montanari Story. Museums and collections in the United States, Britain, and the Continent. Selected bibliography. Ninety-seven halftones. Clothbound $10 postpaid. Published by Doll Research Associates, Box 6012 College View, Lincoln, Nebr. 68506 Ja64891

DOLLOVER'S LIBRARY: Vol. 1 - How to Dress a Doll & Make Cardboard Furniture 1860 Godey Style, $1. Vol. 2 - Doll Crochet of Yesterday, $1.50. Vol. 3 - Butterick Pattern #314 dated 1899, 26" Doll's Long Coat and Cap, $1. — Grace H. Coutant, publisher, R.D. 4, Box 342, Scotia, N.Y. 12302. c62131

DOLL BOOKS: Dolls: New Guide For Collectors, Fawcett, $11.75; American Doll Artist, Bullard, $12; The One Rose, (Rose O'Neill) Ruggles, $7.75; Dolls of the World, White, $15; Dolls of Three Centuries, St. George, $7.50; Dolls of Yesterday, St. George, $12.50; How To Dress A Doll, Morgan (soft bound), $2.15; On Making, Mending & Dressing Dolls, Fawcett, $5.95; Dolls, Singleton, $9.95; History of Dolls' Houses, Jacobs, $12.50; Age of Dolls, Coleman (softbound), $5.95; Dolls & People, Mowery, $6.95. Catalog 25c. — Mid-America Books, Leon, Iowa 50144 n38231

THE SCHOENHUT DOLL, 16 pages with pictures, describing wooden jointed dolls made years ago. Every doll collector will want this booklet to add to the collectors' doll knowledge. Just send $1 to Hobby City Doll Museum, c/o Bea DeArmond, 1238 So. Beach Blvd., Anaheim, Calif. s3697

MARTHA MILLS' LITTLE PEOPLE OF DRURY LANE"

(Continued from page 40)

doll requires infinite patience. I find basswood and horse-chestnut well suited for dolls, since both are nice for carving, do not chip easily, have an almost invisible grain, and lend themselves well to detail.

"For carving Indian dolls nothing is better than red cedar. It seems to be made just for carving, is exactly the right color and shade, and, with a bit of rubbing with the fingers, takes on a beautiful sheen.

"I ventured into the field of wood carving seriously about 1955 and entered my first wooden doll in national competition at San Francisco in 1957. It won a blue ribbon. This was an Apache Indian carved from walnut that grew on our Indiana farm.

"Other woodens followed in succeeding national competition at Federal Doll Club Conventions—St. Francis of Assisi in Kansas City in 1959; St. John in Cleveland in 1960; St. Christopher in Miami in 1961; and Lincoln, the Rail-Splitter, in Buffalo in 1962. All of them won blue ribbons.

"Moses, as an old man looking over into the Promised Land, is generally considered to be my finest creation. He is 18 inches tall and jointed so he can either stand or sit unsupported. He never has been entered in national competition.

"Recently I have ventured into the field of miniatures, which I find most fascinating. Of these a caricature of Leopold Stokowski has attracted more than a little attention. Two different portrait woodens of Lincoln are considered my very best miniatures. These are about four inches tall. For the present, at least, I plan to confine my efforts to these very small woodens.

"I do not sell any of my creations, but they often are on exhibition. They also are used in connection with my speaking engagements. In fact, 'The Little People of Drury Lane' are well-known in the Chicago area, Indiana, and Florida.

"In all probability, I shall go on carving wooden dolls until my eyes grow dim and my fingers no longer are nimble. These dream children keep crowding into my head much faster than I can keep up with them. In order to accomplish all the things I have planned and dreamed of doing, I will have to attain at least 100 years."

Martha Mills, we salute you! Your name will go down in the history of creative art in doll-making, for future generations to respect.

ATTENTION

Regional and Odd Material Collectors W. Va. coal miner 8" tall completely made out of coal. Also, two 3" miners made of lead, working in front of a piece of coal. Either selection $6.00 ppd. No lists, send stamp with inquiries to Mary Christopher.

THE DOLL HOUSE

229 Grand St., Morgantown, W. Va. sc

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 36)

HIPOLITA LAZARO - Roccoco 5246:
Side I - 1. GLI UGONOTTI: Bianca al par 2. I PESCATORI DI PERLE: Mi par d'udir 3. CARMEN: Il fior che avevi 4. IL TROVATORE: Di quella pira 5. LA FANCIULLA DEL WEST: Or son sei mesi 6. LA FANCIULLA DEL WEST: Ch'ella mi creda 7. TURANDOT: Non piangere Liu 8. TURANDOT: Nessun dorma.

Side II - 1. GUGLIELMO TELL: Corriam 2. IL PICCOLO MARAT: Gran duetto (w. Maria de Voltri) 3. Ay del Ay (Osma) 4. Gitana Mia (Muza y Media-villa) 5. Desde Lejos (Contini).

Born in Barcelona on August 13, 1889, Hipolito Lazaro served in the Spanish army prior to making his debut at the Teatro Novedades of his native city, in 1910. The opera was "La Favorita," and he had practically no vocal training at all.

He later studied under Maestro Colli in Milan, and in 1912 sang in London's Coliseum under the pseudonym of Antonio Manuele.

Under his own name, he appeared at La Scala in 1913, and then in other opera houses in Europe and South America.

Lazaro's debut at the Metropolitan took place on January 31, 1918, as the Duke in "Rigoletto." He remained there until April 25, 1920, when in the season's closing concert he did Spirto gentil from "La Favorita" and participated in the Quartet from "Rigoletto."

Until his present retirement in Barcelona, Lazaro continued singing in Italy, France, South America and Spain.

The above Long Play discs may be obtained from Ross, Court & Co., 3244 Yonge St., Toronto 12, Ontario, Canada. The price is $4.95 plus postage.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

"The duplicating of records was contemplated by Edison from the first, as seen in his British patent, 1,644 of 1878, and later appliances for accomplishing such results are covered under Tainter's patent, No. 341,287, Bettini's, No. 488,381, and McDonald's, No. 559,806.

"The diaphragms used in the recorders and reproducers are made of French rolled plate glass, thinner than a sheet of ordinary writing paper. The recording stylus is shaped like a little gouge to cut the little grooves in the wax, while the corresponding stylus of the reproducer has a ball-shaped end to travel in the groove.

"Both the recording stylus and reproducing ball are made of sapphire, chosen on account of its hardness, to resist the great frictional wear to which they are subjected. When a record is to be effaced from a cylinder, it is turned off smooth on a sort of lathe, and the cutting tool or knife for this purpose is also made of sapphire."

(To be continued)

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A 1900 ACCOUNT OF THE PHONOGRAPH

PART III

By JIM WALSH

This is the conclusion of our story about the phonograph as told in "The Progress of Invention in the Nineteenth Century" by Edward W. Byrn, A.M., and published by Munn & Co., New York. See HOBBIES August and September issues.

"The latest, loudest, and most impressive form of the talking machine is the 'Graphophone Grand.' This has a horn attachment exceeding the big horn of a brass band in size, and the wax cylinder is about four inches in diameter.

"Its reproductions in music and speech are so full and strong as to be clearly heard at the most remote part of a large hall, and its versatile voice lends effective rendition of all sorts and kinds of sounds, from the inspiring chords of 'A Choir Invisible' to the grandiloquent and facetious rattle of a noisy and hustling auctioneer.

"It is not to be understood, however, that the graphophone is the only speaking machine on the market, for about 250 patents have been granted on phonographs and graphophones.

"The National Phonograph Company, under many later patents granted to Mr. Edison, manufactures and sells the phonograph shown in Figure 192, which is a very ingenious and effective instrument.

"This modern form of phonograph is actuated either by electricity or spring power, is regulated by a speed governor, and bifurcated ear tubes connect with the diaphragm case, which tubes are placed in the ears when the instrument is operated.

"The gramophone is also another speaking machine. This is the invention of E. Berliner and covered by him in patent No. 372786, November 8, 1887. An illustration of the gramophone recorder is given in Fig. 193. Instead of a wax cylinder this machine employs a flat disc on which the record is formed as a volute spiral groove, gradually drawing toward the center.

"It is produced as follows: A zinc disc is covered by a thin film acid-resisting material, such as wax or grease, and is placed in a horizontal pan, mounted to revolve as a turntable about a vertical axis. A stylus and diaphragm, with speaking tube attached, are arranged above the disc, and when spoken into the vibrations of the diaphragm cause, through the stylus, a record to be traced through the wax, down to the zinc.

"As the waxed disc and pan are revolved, the stylus and diaphragm are gradually moved by gears toward the center of the disc. While the record is being traced the waxed disc is kept flooded with alcohol from a glass jar, seen in the cut, to soften the film and prevent the clogging of the stylus.

"The disc, when complete, is then rinsed off and etched with acid, chromic acid being used, to prevent liberation of hydrogen bubbles. The etched disc is then electrotyped to form a matrix, and from this electrotype hard rubber duplicates of the original record are molded, which are capable of giving 1,000 reproductions.

"These rubber discs are placed on the reproducing instrument, which is arranged to cause the stylus to trail freely along in the spiral groove, and when the disc is rotated under the said stylus its record is converted into articulate speech. Such flat disc records give quite loud reproductions, are not easily destroyed, and may be compactly stored and transported.

"In the gramophone the diaphragm stands at right angles to the record disc and the stylus does not vibrate endwise to make a path of varying depth, as in the phonograph and graphophone, but the stylus vibrates laterally and traces a little zigzag line.

"The cost of a talking machine is from $5 to $150. The wax cylinders cost from 25 cents to $3. And the cylinders will hold a record of from 800 to 1,200 words, equivalent to about three or four pages of print in an octavo volume.

"An important part of such machines is the motor, which must maintain a uniform rate of speed, and much ingenuity has been displayed on this part of the machine.

"Probably the largest use of the phonograph or graphophone is for home amusement and exhibition purpose. The coin operated, or 'nickel-in-the-slot' machine, finds a popular demand, while its utilitarian use as an amanuensis, or stenographer, is as yet a subordinate one.

"Although 21 years of age, and of full growth, the phonograph is ever a wonderfully new and impressive device. When listening to it for the first time the conflict of emotions which it excites is difficult to analyze.

"A voice full of human quality, of clear and familiar enunciation, and speaking in the most matter of fact way about the most matter of fact things, proceeds from an insignificant and insensible bit of metal, presenting the apparently anomalous condition of speech without a speaker.

"When convinced that there is no trick, astonishment struggles with admiration and a desire for a personal introduction. We speak into it, and have the unique experience of listening to our own voice emanating from a different part of the room, instead of our own mouths. It is really difficult to believe one's own senses, and no wonder that it inspires the superstitious with a feeling of awe.

"If Mr. Edison had lived a few centuries earlier, and had produced such an instrument, his life might have paid the penalty of his ingenuity, for without doubt he would have been classed as a wizard, and of close kin to the evil one.

"The phonograph is the truth-telling and incontrovertible witness whose memory is never at fault, and whose nerves are never discomposed

FIG. 193.—THE GRAMOPHONE RECORDER.

The gramophone recorder employed a flat disc, Fig. 193.

FIG. 192—MODERN PHONOGRAPH.

Modern form of phonograph, Fig. 192.

by any cross-examination. As evidence in court its word cannot be doubted, and the witness confronted by his own utterances from the phonograph must yield to its infallible dictum.

"The dying father, unable to write, may dictate to it his last will and testament, and leave a message for his loved ones, and long after the sod is green on his grave, that message would still be audible, and fresh and true to all the tender inflections of the heart's emotions. By its aid the Holy Father, at Rome, may give his personal and audible blessing to his children throughout the world, though separated by thousands of miles.

"Who can tell what stories of interesting and instructive knowledge would be in our possession if the phonograph had appeared in the ages of the past, and its records had been preserved?

"The voices of our dead ancestors, whose portraits hang on the wall, and the eloquent words of Demosthenes and Cicero would be preserved to us. In fact, we should be brought into vocal contact with the world's heroes, martyrs, saints, and sages, and all the great actors and teachers whose personalities have made history, and whose teachings have given us our best ideals.

"But perhaps the most practical and best characterization of the phonograph is given in Mr. Edison's own terse words. He says:

"In one sense it knows more than we know ourselves, for it retains the memory of many things which we forget, even though we have said them. It teaches us to be careful of what we say, and I am sure makes men more brief, more business-like, and more straightforward."

RECORDS FOR SALE

RECORD COLLECTORS: We have an assortment of excerpts from Broadway Musical Comedies from 1910-1940; 50 original 78's for $25. A different interesting category to collect. Free lists of records in other categories, operatic, old-time personalities, etc. available. Mention wants. Also 1905 Victor Red Seal catalog reissue $2. Record identification and dating chart for labels prior to 1930, $1. — Memory Shop, 1762 Oxford, S.E., Grand Rapids, Mich. d30211

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

WANTED: Seeburg, Coinola, Nelson-Wiggen, Mills coin slot pianos, plays large paper roll. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Maryland. n3403

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954 ap126121

WANTED: Cylinder phonograph reproducers, any parts to reproducers, jeweled needles (styli). Don't want steel needles. Describe and price wanted. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. n3614

WANTED: Busy Bee cylinder records playing condition, any quantities. 1 Busy Bee cylinder phonograph playing condition. 1 Busy Bee disc phonograph in good playing condition. Busy Bee disc records good condition any quantity wanted. Lambert 5" oversize cylinder records unbreakable. 1 Capworth Williams Sunday school, pump organ in good condition only, size 38" long, 36" high, 12" deep. 1 Sears Roebuck complete mail order catalog with all pages in it, years from 1880 to 1900. Any of these years wanted. — Alton Vogel, Box 12107, Rockdale, Texas. n36731

"FROM TINFOIL TO STEREO." Few copies left. $9.95 U.S., foreign $11. Large August list of many musical and other items now ready, 25 cents prepaid. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond, Va. o1462

GUITARS - Wanted used or new books, pamphlets, brochures, etc. containing information about the first use of steel strings on guitars in the U.S. and foreign countries. Also general information about the history of the guitar in the U.S. and abroad. Please send description of material available and price. — Box JHM, c/o HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60605. d3379

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. o3633

MELODEONS

TWO BEAUTIFUL rosewood melodeons for sale. Thoroughly reconditioned, tuned. Also reed organs, repairing, parts. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vermont. s3023

ORGANS WANTED

WANTED: Lap organ, dated around 1830. Mason & Hamlin Piano Harp reed organ, dated around 1876. — Box 3374, Montgomery, Ala. d3403

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Two-manual melodeon, prefer octagon legs. Two manual reed organ with pipe top dating between 1865 & 1880. Prefer Mason & Hamlin, Estey, or Smith American. — L. B. Green, 347 Holly Ridge, Montgomery, Ala. d3215

PIANOS AND ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Money-back guarantee. Send for current list. — Harold Powell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

Wanted: Piano rolls, Ampico or Duoart. Write: Newton, Ingomar, Pa. ja12069

Wanted. Ampico piano rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 2614 Central Ave., Alameda, Calif. o3882

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists. Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte, blues, foreign, rags, 88-note standards. — Vi & Si's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N.Y. 14226. n3844

WURLITZER nickeloden rolls wanted every type. Wanted these machines: Seeburg G, H models, Coinola Co., and others. — Jerry Cohen, 11756 Canton Place, Studio City, Calif. 91604. n3483

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12238

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

BOOKS: The Fabulous Phonograph, $6.95; Rebuilding the Player Piano, Givens, $6.95. — Mid-America Books, Leon, Iowa 50144. n3652

PHONOGRAPH PARTS, repair service, accessories, novelties. Everything for the phonograph owner. Giant list 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. o3253

FOR SALE: Edison Eclipse coin slot phonograph, complete in very good condition. Send 50c for picture and more information. Wanted to buy; Any outside horn phonographs and parts for same. — Wayne Warren, 24361 Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543. o3426

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. d3846

EDISON 2 & 4 minute records now both played with same reproducer head. Mail your model "C" or "H" needle head and a dual-speed jeweled stylus will be installed. $6.50 plus 50c return postage. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. n3886

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

A March, 1901, Catalog of Edison "Concert" Cylinders

By JIM WALSH

PART I

In the beginning, I should like to explain, for the benefit of several inquiring readers, why I appear to have stopped writing biographical sketches of recording artists.

The stoppage, I am glad to report, is only temporary. And the reason for it is this:

More than a year ago I gave my large collection of old record catalogs and other phonograph reference material to the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C. All these catalogs, books, magazines, etc., have been sent to Washington to be specially bound, then returned to me for my lifetime, after which they will pass permanently into the Library's possession.

But binding on so large a scale is slow work. As I write, I don't have any of this reference material and there is no way of telling when it will come back to me.

Meanwhile, it is impossible to do adequate biographical sketches without being able to consult the catalogs for information about a given artist's recordings. That is the chief reason why I have been filling this department with the sort of thing that can be prepared without an extensive reference library.

But when my belongings are returned I shall go back to writing the life stories of men and women who made records many years ago. And I have promised Wendell Hall, "The Red-Headed Music Maker," that he is the first performer about whom I shall write. There will be many more to follow.

While I'm explaining, I should also like to apologize to a gentleman in Ohio who, more than a year ago, sent me a Victor record of "The Waterfall," by the Paloma Quartet of women. He knew I badly wanted a record by this group, which recorded in 1902 or 1903. And he was kind enough to give me the one he had.

Then I lost the letter and have not been able to remember his name and address. If my generous donor sees this I hope he will accept my apologies and my sincere appreciation.

Now to business:

In the past few days I have acquired a copy of a record catalog which I never had seen before—form No. 199, issued by Edison and dated March 1, 1901.

It is a listing of the large, five-inch "concert" cylinders which were introduced in the late 1890's. It is of historical interest because of being accompanied by an announcement that after supplies of this catalog were exhausted there would be no more separate listings of concert cylinders.

Instead, the big records would be ordered from the catalogs describing the small, standard-size cylinders. In order to get the concert size, it would be necessary to prefix the small record number with the letter C.

Edison continued to supply concert cylinders for several years afterward. But the demand gradually dwindled to nothing, especially since those that were ordered from the regular catalog were not recorded separately. They were merely dubbed from the small two-minute records, with consequent loss of volume and clarity.

In this unique 20-page catalog—unique to me because I never have seen another like it—the concert records have numbers prefixed by B. However, when I decided to publish the catalog's contents for the pleasure of HOBBIES readers I decided to save space and conserve my energies by omitting that initial letter.

I am not reprinting the catalog in its original form. It starts with band and orchestra records, followed by instrumental solos, talking records, singing in English, and, finally, vocal numbers in foreign languages.

The system of listing vocal records in English is irritating, since they are given in a crudely alphabetical order, with "A" and "The" counted as part of the title, and the singers' names abbreviated.

Since I am sure most fanciers of these old records are chiefly interested in the vocal numbers and are primarily concerned with knowing what selections the various artists made, I have followed a strictly alphabetical arrangement without regard to band, instrumental, and vocal divisions. All records are listed under names of the performers.

In making out my compilation, I also jotted down some notes that I thought would add more interest. Unfortunately, I cannot say that this is a complete listing of Edison concert cylinders made before the dubbing process was adopted.

I believe the highest number in the English division is 576, but I am able, by my count, to find only 508 cylinders belonging under this heading. That seems to indicate about 68 had been discontinued, but the only cut-out I can definitely identify is 408, "Hi Holler on Hunting," by Felix Haney, a comedian who was with the "Way Down East" Company.

My hurried tabulation gives 78 band records; 60 by orchestras; six by brass quartets; eight banjo solos; four chimes records; seven clarinet solos; cornet, 10; piccolo, nine; trombone, nine; violin, 20; and xylophone, four. In view of the poor violin recording of those days it is surprising that it appears to have been the most popular instrument.

Otherwise, there are 41 talking records; eight whistling solos; and 206 vocal solos. There are also 29 male quartets; two mixed trios; and seven minstrel skits.

The foreign list is virtually complete. It begins with 11000 and ends with 11083, which gives a total of

Back and front covers of the March, 1901, catalog of Edison "concert" size cylinder records.

84. I can find only 83 foreign cylinders however, and believe 11062 either hadn't been issued or had been cut out.

My survey shows Edison, at this time, was using only one banjo player for concert cylinders; one clarinet soloist; one cornettist; one piccolo performer; and one xylophonist. But there were two trombone players and two violinists.

Frank P. Banta, who died in 1904, conducted both the Edison Symphony and Peerless Orchestras.

Since 1900 was a presidential election year, there are several records of political flavor. The Republicans were more extensively represented than the Democrats. Two cylinders, by unnamed artists, purport to be speeches by William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic nominee; and there is one of "McKinley's Letter of Acceptance."

Neither Bryan nor McKinley made these cylinders. They were probably by William F. Hooley, although George Broderick and Frank C. Stanley are possibilities.

President William McKinley was assassinated in September after this catalog came out in March.

Among the singers, there are two sopranos; two basses; seven tenors; and seven barytones. For this occasion I am following the catalog's way of spelling baritone, although I dislike it.

No indication is given of the quality of George W. Johnson's voice. Cal Stewart is described as "comic," and George P. Watson as "yodler."

Although two sopranos are listed I strongly suspect these ladies wore the same bonnets and slept in the same bed. Notice that both have the first name of Marguerite, and that the last names of both end in "ton."

The inference is irresistible that since Marguerite Newton (Mrs. Geo. Watson) was known chiefly as a singer of comic songs, Edison thought it would be better to give her a different name for her more ambitious numbers, so she became Marguerite Ashton.

There are 26 solos in French; five French duets; nine German solos; 19 Italian solos; two Italian duets; and 22 Spanish solos. I have no idea who Mme. Alba was. I hope nobody confuses her with the later Frances Alda.

Signor Francisco, of course, was Emilio De Gogorza. He did a vast amount of cylinder recording at the beginning of his career. I wonder if the Mme. Noldi, who made a few records, is Helene Noldi, who recorded years later for Victor.

Voice quality of the "foreign" male singers was not given and I had to make a guess at them by the type of operatic numbers they sang. Information concerning most of the operatic records is distressingly scant. I judge that the Lyric Trio's "Attila" is really "Praise Ye!" from Verdi's early opera.

A number of hymns were sung by A. D. Madeira. He was of Spanish descent, the late Joe Belmont told me, and was born at Gibraltar.

A year after this catalog appeared Madeira had quit making records and was in the typewriter business in St. Paul, Minn. Billy Golden also had quit—temporarily—and was "running a fashionable hotel in Washington, D.C."

In listing Frank Kennedy's records I have followed the catalog's style and copied his Dutch character's name as "Shultz." It usually was spelled "Schultz" on records and in catalogs.

I suppose all the artists in this catalog are dead, but, come to think of it, I have never read of Kennedy's death. He made some Okeh records in the 1920's.

George Broderick is an interesting character, partly because he was an uncle of Helen Broderick, the famous actress of later years, and partly because he made Victor record Number 1, "Eugene Field's Poem, 'Departure,'" and four others of the first 10 Victors records.

I have a Berliner record made by
(Continued on page 62)

ORGANS

WANTED: Lap organ, dated around 1830. Mason & Hamlin Piano Harp reed organ, dated around 1876. — Box 3374, Montgomery, Ala. d3403

FOR SALE: Walnut pump organ. Shoninger, coupled brass bells. Mint condition. Best offer. — Dan Estes, 501 Wembly Rd., Greenville, S. C. n1061

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Two-manual melodeon, pre-fer octagon legs. Two manual reed organ with pipe top dating between 1865 & 1880. Prefer Mason & Hamlin, Estey, or Smith American. — L. B. Green, 347 Holly Ridge, Montgomery, Ala. d3215

PIANOS AND ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Money-back guarantee. Send for current list.—Harold Fowell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

Wanted: Piano rolls, Ampico or Duoart. Write: Newton, Ingomar, Pa. ja12069

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists. Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte, blues, foreign, rags, 88-note standards. —VI & SI's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N.Y. 14226. n3844

WURLITZER nickeloden rolls wanted every type. Wanted these machines: Seeburg G, H models, Coinola Co., and others. — Jerry Cohen, 11766 Canton Place, Studio City, Calif. 91604. n3483

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12238

THE ETUDE, 1905. Young Students' 4-Hand collection, 1897. Kinkel Folio for Piano 1887. On, Wisconsin, 1909. $2 each. —Brooks, 3901 Zenith So., Minneapolis, Minn. n1481

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ap6276

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

BOOKS: The Fabulous Phonograph, $6.95; Rebuilding the Player Piano, Givens, $6.95. — Mid-America Books, Leon, Iowa 50144 n3652

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. d3846

EDISON 2 & 4 minute records now both played with same reproducer head. Mail your model "C" or "H" needle head and a dual-speed jeweled stylus will be installed. $6.50 plus 50c return postage. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. n3886

PHONOGRAPH items galore in our spanking new catalog No. 6. Parts, repairs, needle-heads; you name it. Get your copy today, 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. ja3844

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

WANTED: Seeburg, Coinola, Nelson-Wiggen, Mills coin slot pianos, plays large paper roll. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Maryland. n3403

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954 ap126121

WANTED: Cylinder phonograph reproducers, any parts to reproducers, jeweled needles (stylus). Don't want steel needles. Describe and price wanted. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. n3614

WANTED: Busy Bee cylinder records playing condition, any quantities. 1 Busy Bee cylinder phonograph playing condition. 1 Busy Bee disc phonograph in good playing condition. Busy Bee disc records good condition any quantity wanted. Lambert 5" oversize cylinder records unbreakable. 1 Capworth Williams Sunday school, pump organ in good condition only, size 36" long, 36" high, 12" deep. 1 Sears Roebuck complete mail order catalog with all pages in it, years from 1880 to 1900. Any of these years wanted. — Alton Vogel, Box 12107, Rockdale, Texas. n36731

WANTED: 88-note player piano rolls. Q.R.S. The Modist-Metrolstyle. Classical, operatic, standard, etc.—Paul Woehler, 764 Summit Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio. 45204 n1671

GUIARS - Wanted used or new books, pamphlets, brochures, etc. containing information about the first use of steel strings on guitars in the U.S. and foreign countries. Also general information about the history of the guitar in the U.S. and abroad. Please send description of material available and price. — Box JHM, c/o HOBBIES, 1008 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60605. d3879

SEEBURG nickelodeons - one piano and one cabinet type, stained glass fronts, lights and drum effects. — Mrs. Harry Roehrig, 1 Whitewood Rd., White Plains, N. Y. ja3004

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS: Rebuilding the Player Piano $6.95, Player Piano Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15 (See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid.—Vestal Press, Vestal, N.Y. 13850. o120652

DOROTHY GALLEY, Art Glass

Goose Lane Tolland, Conn.

Phone 203 — 875-6795

Net Prices:

1. Sgnd. Galle 5" h., 2 1/4" widest. Polished lavender violets on acid pink. $85.
  2. Sgnd. Daum Nancy, 2 1/4" deep, 4 3/4" w. Blue and wine flowers with green leaves on mottled acid yellow at top; black at bottom. $70.
  3. Sgnd. Galle, 5 1/4" h., 2" widest. Polished coral red floral on yellow acid. $75.
  4. Sgnd. d'Argental, 6" h., 2" widest. Double cased. Polished olive-green and apricot on gold acid. $65.
  5. Sgnd. Daum Nancy, 4 1/2" h., 2" widest. Lavender and rose flowers on textured green, pink and white acid. $60.
  6. Sgnd. Galle, 3 1/2" high, 2" widest. Polished brown pansies on yellow acid. $55.
  7. Sgnd. 'Galle. Almost 5" h., 3" widest. Lavender, green and white on white with a wide pink streak. All acid. $75.
  8. Sgnd. 'Galle. Double cased. Scenic. Polished shades of brown on acid yellow and white. 4 1/2" h., 3 1/4" widest. $85.
  9. Sgnd. 'Galle. Over 1 1/2" h., 2 1/4" widest. Orange on white. All acid. $55.
  10. Sgnd. Richard. Almost 4 1/4" h., 4 1/2" widest. Brown on rose-pink. All acid. $85.
  11. Sgnd. Galle, 3 3/4" h., over 1 1/2" widest. Green on pink. All acid. $55.
  12. Sgnd. Galle, 7" h., 3 1/4" widest. Two shades of deep crimson on orange. All glossy. $85.
- Postage & insurance extra. nc

OLD PLANK ROAD Antique Shop

Mrs. Sara I. Cliborne

P.O. Box 191 South Hill, Virginia

- Pair Bulls Eye and Diamond Point flint collections, pr. $70.
- 2 Waffle & Thumbprint champagnes, ea. $15.
- Opalescent Lacy Sandwich bowl, Roman Rosette, 4", $18.
- Same as above, short edge crack, hard to find as in design, $13.
- Canary Diamond Quilted 5 1/4" bowl, $6.50.
- Rubina Inverted T.P. bulbous water pitcher, good color, square top, applied handle, polished pontil, $37.50.
- Decal portrait of Lincoln (Mathews) mounted on walnut plaque with brass ring to hang, 3x2 1/4" - $3.50.
- Rare shagreen etal or sewing case, 5 1/4" long, silver mountings and medallion for monogram; 5 spaces inside; no fittings but modern scissors, nail file, etc., will fit, $10.
- White Bisque pig. 4 1/2" long; a bank, $4.
- Blue Beatty Honeycomb 4 1/2" flat sauce (powder blue with raised opal squares) $6.
- Jade green opaline glass cookie jar, bulbous; good metal cover and handle, $12.50.
- Spartan pattern, clear glass creamer, lovely fan spout, $8.50.
- (Many other desirable Pressed glass items - write wants).
- Beautiful and unusual barber bottle, medium green, 7 1/2" tall, melon sectioned base; all-over raised florals with gold trim, $15.
- Cranberry Inv. T.P. salt; old metal top; enamel florals in blue and green, deep color, $7.
- Clear Basketweave covered pomade jar, scarce item, $10.
- 9 1/4" Caledonian china plate, R. M. W. & Co. (not scenic) shades of green plaid, $5.
- Sterling teaspoon, cut out handle "Jacksonville" $3.
- Ivory napkin ring, raised silver "N", $2.50.
- Early Ivory and silk fan; porcelain box in shape of fan; purple marble glass cakestand; rock sand picture in glass bell; unusual sauce, D&B with amber edge; Pattern glass mugs including miniatures. Old watches and movements—stamp for list. Also list of pattern and animal tops.

No reproductions. Add postage, excess refunded. Careful packing. Prompt shipment. Wants solicited Phone 703 (Area) 689-2808 nc him which he announced as "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," by George Brod-er-r-ick," with a strongly rolled "r." Then after the pianist started playing, George remembered he hadn't completed the announcement and hastily blurted "Berliner Record!" to the piano accompaniment. He seems not to have recorded after 1901 or 1902.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

It is something of a surprise to find our old friend, Al Campbell, using his light tenor voice to sing Manrico's part of the Miserere from Trovatore, but he probably did it well. Cal Stewart's list of Uncle Josh titles is mostly ultra-familiar, but included is one most obscure Stewart record, "There Ain't a Word."

I wonder why the 71st Regiment Band was called on to make only one record, Chopin's "Funeral March." Perhaps this band was no longer available and had a long cut-out list, which would account for many of the missing numbers, but that is sheer speculation.

Dan W. Quinn should have been called a tenor instead of a "barytone."

Read the list of Spanish solos and you will see that De Gogorza and Senorita Maria Godoy duplicated each other's repertoires to a considerable extent. Both, for instance, made records of something called "El Cafe de Puerto Rico."

Returning to politics, S. H. Dudley managed to be admirably nonpartisan by singing both Republican and Democratic campaign songs.

In my copying I have corrected a number of mistakes. For instance, I substituted "Gioconda" for "Gisconda." However, I have pretty well followed the catalog's system of printing song titles, many of which have a word beginning with a capital letter, but most, or all, of the remaining words are without a capital.

And, in my proofreading, I have caught four amusing typing errors of my own. I have changed "Lead, Kindly Light," "Uncle Josh and the Bunco Steers," "A Bird in a Gilded Cave," and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean" to "Lead, Kindly Light," "Uncle Josh and the Bunco Steers," "A Bird in a Gilded Cage," and "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean."

After all this prologue I promise the first part of an alphabetical listing of the artists and records contained in Edison's March, 1901, catalog of concert size cylinders will be presented in the December issue. Herewith I give my thanks to my faithful cat, Petey, who has been sitting beside me and closely following the progress of my typing and editing.

(To be continued)

—0—

There were about 100,000 cigar store Indians in the United States in 1900 but only about 3,000 are left says the National Geographic Society.

ON TIME

(Continued from page 47)

bling discussion of American clocks. When I started it I had no idea it would extend to this length. Actually, we could go on almost indefinitely because new and interesting material turns up all the time. The work, however, would soon become unwieldy and no very useful service would result.

My great hope is that this brief sampling of the field, with the 36 illustrations of clocks, all different in character, will bring home to many people the immensity of the subject. One must make a study of each old clock which turns up, and which has an individuality all its own, in order to determine whether or not it is of interest from a collecting standpoint.

As we mentioned in the beginning, each of the clocks illustrated and described here is representative of a type or group of clocks. It is not complete by any means; and no work of this kind ever will be. Furthermore, it must be remembered that within each type or group there are endless variations in design and workmanship as represented by the manufacturers who made them.

Most of the American clocks that one is apt to come across, however, will be related to one of these types or groups and a little study will make this clear. If it can be related to one of these groups we can then determine where it belongs, what its approximate age may be, what its degree of interest from a collecting standpoint may be, and even get a rough idea of what its approximate value might be.

This is of great importance, especially to the beginning collector, and if it serves this purpose the effort involved will be worthwhile.

From here we will move on to a study of American watches.

(To be continued)

OLD METALS

(Continued from page 50)

feet in height, and had a diameter of 23 inches. Each vase was decorated with the mystic Nine five-clawed Imperial Dragons. These vases may now be seen in the Victoria and Albert Museum, London.

Modern superstition has further originated the idea of four Dragon Kings identified as the Naga or Serpent Spirits of the Hindus. Each bears rule over one of the four seas which form the border of the habitable earth.

- VICTOR YOUNG ANTIQUES
Mill St., R.D. 3 Putnam Valley, N. Y.
- Letter opener brass plated owl handle.... $ 5.00
Majolica bowl, 3" high, water lilies..... 6.00
Iron chicken feeder, good for ash tray.... 4.50
10" Carnival vase green iridescent N.... 9.50
Mother of Pearl jelly spoon engraved..... 7.50
Haviland cup & saucer Countess pattern.... 8.50
Tiffany bronze match box holder on tray 12.00
Sterling Souv. fork skyline, etc. Chicago.... 6.50
Transportation extra. Stamp for check return nc

A March, 1901, Catalog of Edison "Concert" Cylinders

By JIM WALSH
PART II

Form 200.

March 1, 1901.

REDUCTION IN PRICE

Edison Concert Records

IN EFFECT MARCH 1st, 1901.

$1.00 Each or $12. per Dozen.

ANTICIPATING an increased demand for Concert Records, owing to reduced price, we will be prepared after March 1st, 1901, to furnish in Concert size, every title listed in small records.

WE will discontinue the issuance of separate Concert Record lists, after the present list No. 199 is exhausted; and thereafter both Concert and Standard Records may be ordered from the one list.

IN ordering Concert Records from Record List No. 150, use the regular catalogue number and check letter C.

NATIONAL PHONOGRAPH CO.

135 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK.
1901 Edison Advertising

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Following our prologue in the November HOBBIES, here is the first part of an alphabetical listing of the artists and records contained in the catalog of "concert" cylinders.

- MADAME ALBA, Soprano (Songs in French)
11059 Air Hamlet
11058 Cantabile
11062 Ninon
11060 Mignon (Gounod)
MADAME ALBA and M. BEGUE (Duets in French)
11046 Allegro From Il Trovatore
11045 Grace Contempro From Il Trovatore
11049 Le Petit Noël
11044 Mignon, As tu Souffert
11040 Pardonnez Moi
SIG. ACHILLE ALBERTI, Barytone (Songs in Italian)
11052 Aria, 1st Act, Ballo in Maschera
11053 Barcarolla From Gioconda
11055 Brindisi From Il Guaranal
11051 Il Balen From Il Trovatore
11050 Infelice
11054 Prologo From Pagliacci
11056 Romanza L'Ebreca
SIG. ALBERTI and MADAME NOLDI (Duets in Italian)
11047 L'Addio By Nicolai
11057 Miserere
MARGUERITE ASHTON, Soprano
440 Creole Love Song
456 Love in Springtime
453 Magnetic Waltz
439 Paterson Waltz Song
M. BEGUE, Barytone (Songs in French)
11067 Air de Lucie de Lammermoor
11063 Arioso d'Hamlet
11069 Berceuse de Jocelyn
11033 Enchantment
11040 Heridiade
11065 Invocation de Faust
11064 La Favorite
11068 La Ronde du veau d'or de Faust
11039 Les Huguenots
11034 Les Rameaux
11066 Le Trouvere
11035 Ninon
11032 Toreador From Carmen
JOE BELMONT, Whistling
387 American Flag March
389 At a Georgia Camp Meeting
445 Ben Hur Chariot Race March
567 Farmer Boy (Song and Whistling Chorus)
477 Over the Waves Waltz
407 Smoky Mokes
388-Whip-poor-Will Song
BRASS QUARTET
37 Come Where Lilies Bloom
311 Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming
39 Forsaken
36 Old Oaken Bucket
310 Old Folks at Home
38 Soldiers Farewell
GEORGE H. BRODERICK, Bass
359 Absent Minded Beggar (Rudyard Kipling's War Poem)

- 337 Anvil Song
357 Beer Song From Martha
345 Cal of Gold From Faust
352 Cooper's Song From Boccaccio
342 Down Deep Within the Cellar
343 Father O'Flynn (A Jolly Song with a Brogue)
351 Friar of Orders Gray
347 Heart Bowed Down
356 How Fair Art Thou (Love Song from the German) 354 King O'er Land and Sea
338 Let All Obey
339 Palms
355 Red Scarf
346 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep
341 Simon the Cellarer
344 Since Thou Art Mine
353 Song of the Turnkey From Rob Roy 348 Tale of a Whale
358 Vagabond
350 Thursday
349 Who Treads the Path of Duty From The Magic Flute
ALBERT CAMPBELL, Tenor
111 Because Sentimental
108 El Miserere Ah, I have signed to rest me From Il Trovatore
452 Flower From the Garden of Life
220 For All Eternity Sacred
526 For Freedom and Ireland Patriotic
124 Girl I Loved in Sunny Tennessee
223 I Love Thee, I Adore Thee From The Serenade
112 Just One Girl Sentimental
221 King's Highway From The Highwayman
459 Little Black Me
269 Love Is Tyrant Sentimental From The Singing Girl
534 Mack's Serenade Sentimental
458 Mandy Lee
298 My Dearest Girl Ballad
444 My Dreams
109 Oh, Promise Me
297 Promise of Light Sacred
110 She Was Bred in Old Kentucky Sentimental CHIMES
(No artist's name given, but probably played by Harvey Emmons, who later made chimes cylinders for Edison under the assumed name of Henry Nesbitt).
513 Believe Me If all those endearing young charms
541 Chimes of Trinity
511 Safe in the Arms of Jesus
512 What a Friend We Have in Jesus
ARTHUR COLLINS, Barytone
499 Blue and the Gray Republican Campaign Song
557 Cindy, I Dream About You Negro dialect song hit of Pete Dalley's Co., Hodge, Podge & Co.
268 Darktown Is Out Tonight Negro dialect song
99 Drill, Ye Tarriers, Drill Comic
100 Handicap March Song Descriptive
102 Hello, Ma Baby Comic
264 I'd Leave My Happy Home for You Negro dialect song
154 I Guess I'll Have to Telegraph My Baby Comic 556 Just because she made dem goo-goo eyes Negro dialect song

HAPPY HUNTING! This picture originally appeared in the Knoxville (Tenn.) News-Sentinel and was taken when Jim Walsh, who this month completes 25 years of writing for HOBBIES, was in Knoxville, looking for old records.

Not long afterwards it was reprinted in the Saturday Evening Post as an illustration for "Meet the Platterbug," an article by J. C. Furnas about record collecting.

- 565 Lam, Lam, Lam Negro dialect sing
102 Martha Jane Green Comic
522 Mick Who Threw the Brick Comic Irish song
521 My Tiger Lily Comic song
265 My Hannah Lady Negro dialect song
101 McKinninny's Lullaby Comic
523 Vaudeville Specialty "B" (Introducing funny sayings, song choruses, dances, etc.)
505 You Can't Keep McKinley from the Chair Republican Campaign Song

CHARLES D'ALMAINE, Violin Solos

- 335 Because
333 Ben Bolt
450 Come All Ye Faithful
368 Down at Finnegan's Jamboree Descriptive
331 El Miserere From Il Trovatore
334 Imitation of Bagpipes and Scotch Air
332 Polish National Dance
449 Ralf's Cavatina
336 Scenes That Are Brightest
369 Then You'll Remember Me

M. DEL CAMPO, Bass

- (From Royal Opera, Lisbon; Scala, Milano; Scala, Napoli; Imperiale, Pietroburgo)
11074 Air de Figaro From La Nozzi de Figaro Mozart
11070 Air de Vulcain de Philemon et Baucis Gounod
11077 Air du Cardinal de la Julve
11075 Chanson a Boire de Martha
11072 La Marseillaise
11078 La Serenade de Schubert
11076 Mephisto's Serenade de Faust
11073 O Ma Charmante
11071 Romance du Sommeil

WILL F. DENNY, Tenor

- 441 Cold Feet Comic
216 Different Styles of Singing
528 Doing His Duty-ooty Comic
495 Don't It Tickle You Comic
443 For Old Time's Sake Sentimental
117 How'd You Like to be the Iceman? Comic 167 I Couldn't Comic
219 I'm Not Particular
106 I've Waited, Honey, Waited Long for You Sentimental
493 I Wonder if He's Waiting
442 Just When I Needed You Most Sentimental
529 Like a Girl Comic
218 Man Took a Girl
568 Parody on a Widow's Plea for Her Son
217 Shadows on the Door
527 Tick Tock Ticking of the clocking of her stocking Comic song
176 You Can't Think of Everything

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

WANTED: Seeburg, Coinola, Nelson-Wiggen, Mills coin slot pianos, plays large paper roll. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle St., Cumberland, Maryland. n3403

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954 ap126121

WANTED: Cylinder phonograph reproducers, any parts to reproducers, jeweled needles (stylus). Don't want steel needles. Describe and price wanted. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3614

ATTENTION music instrument collectors: 2 16-string Gibson Harp Guitars, mint cond.; 2 violins, orig. Stainer - Copia of Mathias; 3 organs - Kimball and Lyon Healey; 1 player piano with rolls; 1 Edison Home Phonograph, complete with cylinders; 1 Seeburg Symphonola type SB10200. Many other instruments, new and old. — Scott's Antiques, Burna, Kentucky 42023. Phone 502 - 988-2266. d1044

GUITARS - Wanted used or new books, pamphlets, brochures, etc. containing information about the first use of steel strings on guitars in the U.S. and foreign countries. Also general information about the history of the guitar in the U.S. and abroad. Please send description of material available and price. — Box JHM, c/o HOBBIES, 1006 S. Michigan, Chicago, Ill. 60605. d3879

SEEBURG nickelodeons - one piano and one cabinet type, stained glass fronts, lights and drum effects. — Mrs. Harry Roehrig, 1 Whitewood Rd., White Plains, N. Y. ja3004

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS: Rebuilding the Player Piano $6.95. Player Piano Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15 (See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid. — Vestal Press, Vestal, N.Y. 13850. o120852

HERR W. C. DEUSING, Barytone (Songs in German)

- 11023 Abendstern From Tannhauser
11079 Am Meer von F. Schubert
11083 Der Trompeter von Saeckingen
11080 Der Deutschen Vaterland
11081 Edelweiss
11082 Lied des Rattenfaengers von Hameln
11027 O Schöne Zeit
11029 Sehnsucht
11026 Wacht am Rhein

DUDDLEY, S. H., Barytone

- 573 Chinese Soler Man From San Toy Comic 515 Continuous Performance
497 Democratic Campaign Song to the tune of Marching Through Georgia
514 Doan yo' cry ma Honey Negro dialect song
31 Dreaming, Dreaming Comic
From The Serenade
30 Father, Won't You Speak to Sister Mary? Comic, as sung in A Stranger in New York
28 Sporty Widow Brown Comic
572 Tale of the Kangaroo Comic
From The Burgomaster
29 Tattooed Man Comic From Idol's Eye
516 Vaudeville Specialty "A" Imitation of Amateur Vaudeville Artists
555 Village Choir Comic
506 We Stand By McKinley
Republican Campaign Song
164 Yuba Dam A Comic Tale of the West
EDISON GRAND CONCERT BAND

- 10 About the Battle of Gettysburg
525 American Valor March
1 Beau Ideal March
275 Benediction of the Polnards
139 Black America Two-Step
471 Blue and the Gray
162 Blue Danube Waltz
273 Camplin' on de Old Suwanee
552 Charge of the Battalion March
323 Christian Waltz
2 Columbian Exposition March
544 Columbia the Gem of the Ocean
470 Court of Honor March
564 Dancing With Ma Baby Schottische
223 Dare Devil March
553 Favorite March
373 From Battle to Victory March
554 From Tropic to Tropic March
12 Georgia Camp Meeting
232 Gladiator March
574 Gloria From Mozart's 12th Mass
149 Grand March From Tannhauser
3 Handicap March
138 Hands Across the Sea March
274 Hapsburg March
324 Hello, Ma Baby
159 Inauguration March
518 Inflammatus From Stabat Mater
11 In the Sweet Bye and Bye
328 Jolly Coppersmith
276 La Circus
173 La Marseillaise
330 La Secret Polka With Cornet Solo
151 Light Cavalry Overture
215 Little Kinkles
141 Love's Dreamland Waltz
376 Loyal Legion March
377 Maniot March
545 Marching Through Georgia
516 Medley of National Airs
372 Meyerbeer's Torchlight Dance
323 'Mid the Green Fields of Virginia
327 Military Galop
517 Mr. Thomas Cat
374 My Hannah Lady
272 National Fencibles March
320 Nearer My God to Thee Sacred
189 Night Alarm Descriptive
231 Nine Knights March
4 Off to Camp March
160 Old Church Organ
472 On the Levee
236 Overture to Merry Wives of Windsor
288 Overture to Poet and Peasant
289 Overture to Semiramide
271 Overture to Tancrède
235 Overture to William Tell
234 Overture to Zampa
175 Reeves March
5 Selections from Bohemian Girl
375 Selections from Don Carlos Operatic
8 Selections from Fra Diavolo
7 Selections from Rigoletto
8 Selections from Symnambula
169 Silver Jubilee March
547 Soldiers in the Park From Runaway Girl
171 Star Spangled Banner
325 Storm and Sunshine March
524 Strike Up the Band
233 Tambour de Garde
230 Troubadour With Piccolo Solo
9 Traumerel
140 Under the Double Eagle March
576 Vacant Chair Band with Cornet Solo
279 Willow Grove March
326 Zenda Waltz

EDISON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Directed by Frank P. Banta

- 14 Anvil Chorus From Il Trovatore
536 At the Circus Descriptive 438 Battle of Manassas Descriptive
15 Dancing on the House Top
16 El Cantan March
280 Espanita Waltz
17 Forge in the Forest
23 Fortuna Teller March
18 Intermezzo From Cavalleria Rusticana
437 La Paloma
229 Love's Whisper
225 My Estelle Waltz
19 Selections from The Serenade
246 Senorita Waltz
170 Stelebride Gaiety Descriptive 20 Stars and Stripes Forever March 22 Titi's Serenade

(Continued on page 50)

ORGANS

WANTED: Lap organ, dated around 1830. Mason & Hamlin Piano Harp reed organ, dated around 1876. — Box 3374, Montgomery, Ala. d3403

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

WANTED: Two-manual melodeon, pre-fer octagon legs. Two manual reed organ with pipe top dating between 1865 & 1880. Prefer Mason & Hamlin, Estey, or Smith American. — L. B. Green, 347 Holly Ridge, Montgomery, Ala. d3215

PIANOS AND ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Money-back guarantee. Send for current list. — Harold Powell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

Wanted: Piano rolls, Ampico or Duoart. Write: Newton, Ingomar, Pa. ja12069

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists. Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte, blues, foreign, rags, 88-note standards. — Vi & Si's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N.Y. 14226. f3234

WILL GIVE Wurlitzer roll changer piano for information leading to purchase of Seeburg H orchestrion piano. — Shaner, 1042 Myrtle, Cumberland, Maryland. f3633

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12238

SHEET MUSIC, several thousand old popular songs very low priced, any size order, private party. — McNeill, 1117 South Taylor Ave., Oak Park, Ill. f3253

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ap6276

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. d3846

FOR SALE: Edison Eclipse coin slot phonograph, complete in very good condition. Send 50c for picture and more information. Wanted to buy: Any outside horn phonographs and parts for same. — Waynes Warren, 24361 Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543. f3295

PHONOGRAPH items galore in our spanning new catalog No. 6. Parts, repairs, needle-heads; you name it. Get your copy today, 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. ja3844

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18 1/2" $3; 15 1/2" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. mh6219

WANTED: Discs, excellent condition for: Komat 20 1/4"; Polyphone 9 1/2"; Amorette 12" & 8 1/2". — S. Leonard, 12 Garden St., Great Neck, N.Y. 11020 f3061

OLD METALS

Conducted by
GRACE KALER

Nagas Their Lore and Legend

The Nagaraja Nanda, King of Nagas.
Gilt bronze. Tibet. Height 8 inches.
—Author's collection; photo by Fred Kaler

Like the legendary dragon of Chinese art, the naga—serpent demigod of Hindu mythology—is a favorite art form in India. A rightly revered creature of ancient India, the serpent was second only to the sacred cow.

Nagas, superhuman in wisdom, were sometimes symbolized with the head or tail of a serpent; more often they typified mermen and mermaids, wearing head-dresses decorated with a serpent—usually a five-headed cobra. An image of Nanda, the Nagaraja, or King of the Nagas, occasionally included the winged and feathered features of a Chinese dragon.

It seems probable that nagas were a part of the old folk-lore of Tibet, which was identical to many traditional legends of India. Pon, a form of nature worship involving divination, magic, the repression of evil spirits, and the worship of good spirits, is to this day associated with the worship of nagas.

They are of four species: (1) celestial, guarding the mansions of the gods; (2) aerial, causing winds and rain to benefit human beings; (3) earthly, marking the courses of rivers and streams; (4) guardians of hidden treasures.

All Souls Day, a Tibetan festival function, was celebrated on the 15th day of the fourth month. The rain-deities were appeased on this day,

The lay governor of Lhasa, the high official Lamas, and other officers went in procession from the court at Potala to the great Lhasa Cathedral. Here they honored the imposing image of Buddha and lingered for a lamp-feeding ceremony. Melted butter was poured from silver ladles into the temple lamp. The procession continued along a circular road by way of the Mende bridge to the Dragon Temple.

In an inner sanctuary of the Dragon Temple offerings of gold and silver were deposited among the serpent images, or nagas. This shrine was then locked and sealed, not to be opened again until the following year. The object of this ceremony was to gain the good graces of the naga demigods and the assurance of sufficient rain for the benefit of crops and animals.

The Chinese dragons or rain-gods have powers and functions similar to those of Tibetan and Indian lore, and the northern Buddhists have assimilated them with the nagas. Thus the dragon in Tibetan art is often indistinguishable from the naga, but nagas are also represented as serpents, and as part human and part serpent, corresponding to the mermen and mermaids of European lore.

It appears that the people had more faith in nagas than in most divinities, perhaps because the nagas made themselves visible so frequently. Every cloud with a curious formation or serpentine tail was considered a naga.

A naga community was classified into groups of kings, nobles, and commoners, Buddhists, and non-Buddhists. The Buddhist naga kings appear to have been protected from attacks by their constant enemies, the garudas.

The garuda, a mythological, golden-winged bird of Indian and Tibetan folk-lore, was forever waging warfare against the nagas. Legends describe the garuda as part bird and part human.

In Indian symbolism the garuda represents the Sun, and the naga typifies the energy of the waters of the earth. A beneficent being who controlled the rain, the naga thus became a guardian of fertility of the soil. He held in his sway serenity and success.

Naga kings lived in paradise in the depths of the sea, where they were nourished on pearls and opals. Their palaces of colored, transparent stones, with crystal doors, are said to have been seen in the early morning by persons gazing into the deep reflective waters. Nagas guarded great treasures, some of which they occasionally bestowed upon mortals whom they favored.

There were five of these semi divinities. The principal figure occupied a central position, surrounded by the four "great Guardian Kings of the quarters of the world." These were the White Guardian of the East, king of the gundharvas (heavenly musicians); the Green King of the South, lord of the gnomes, and the Red Guardian of the West, king of the nagas. The king of the yaksas (tree spirits), the god of Wealth, was the Yellow Guardian of the North.

—Grace Kaler

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

249 Under the Polar Star March
548 Wien Bleibt Wien

ED. M. FAVOR, Tenor

114 Forgotten Words Comic
118 Her Papa Was There Comic
113 Ikey Eisenstein Comic
158 Once Again
115 What Do You Think of Hoolihan?

J. J. FISHER, Barytone

153 Just as the Sun Went Down
162 Love's Sorrow Sentimental
163 Moth and the Flame Sentimental
165 My Queen Irene

SEÑOR FRANCISCO (Emilio De Gogorza), Barytone
(Songs in Spanish)

11024 A La Luna
11038 Caballero de Gracia
11031 Consejos
11036 El Café de Puerto Rico
11042 El Celoso
11041 La Cocina
11025 La Golondrina
11022 La Paloma
11030 La Tempestad
11023 Linda Mia
11043 Milagro de la Virgen
11037 Quilen Te Llamo

WALLACE FREDERICKS (Frederick Wallace Hager)
(Violin Solos)

421 Home Sweet Home
395 Hungarian Dance
393 La Sompambula
385 Melody by Sarasate
403 Old Black Joe
394 Pizzicati
396 Scenes That Are Brightest
404 Second Mazurka
402 Spanish Dance
384 Waltz By Chopin

SENIORITA (MARIA) GODOY
(Songs in Spanish)

11021 Caballero De Gracia
11013 Como me gusta tu Cuerpo
11019 Como yo te he Querido
11020 Dolores
11015 El Café de Puerto Rico
11017 El Gorro Frigio
11014 La Cocina
11012 La Paloma
11018 Nina Pancha
11016 Panchita

BILLY GOLDEN, Barytone and Whistling

531 Mocking Bird
533 Rabbit Hash
530 Turkey in de Straw Negro Specialty
532 Uncle Jefferson Negro Specialty

SIG. (M. A.) GUARANI, Tenor
(Songs in Italian)

11005 Ah che la morte Canora
11003 Carmela
11006 Celeste Alda
11000 Funiculi Funicula
11007 Inno di Garibaldi
11001 La Donna e Mobile
11010 La Mia Bandiera
11002 Mattinata
11008 O Paradiso
11009 Questa o Quella
11011 Risveglio
11004 Toreador Song
(To be continued)

A March, 1901, Catalog of Edison "Concert" Cylinders

By JIM WALSH

PART III

In the November HOBBIES we told of this unique 20-page catalog Number 199, issued by Edison, that listed the large cylinders introduced in the late 1890's.

The December issue of HOBBIES carried the first part of the listing of the artists and records contained in this catalog.

Now we shall continue the listing to its conclusion.

FELIX HANEY, Comedian, of the "Way Down East" Company

409 Hi Holler on Pickings from Fock

BYRON G. HARLAN, Tenor

461 Blue and the Gray Sentimental

463 Please Mr. Conductor Sentimental

569 Sons of the Sea

570 When the Harvest Days Are Over Sentimental

462 Will I Find My Mama There? Sentimental

BYRON G. HARLAN, Tenor,
and A. D. MADEIRA, Barytone, Duets

423 He Carved His Mother's Name Upon a Tree

428 I Left Because I Love You

424 In the Shadow of the Pines

426 My Old New Hampshire Home

427 Where the Sweet Magnolias Bloom

425 While the Leaves Came Drifting Down

HOOLEY, WILLIAM F., Bass and Recitations

399 Asleep in the Deep

86 Bedouin Love Song

90 Carbine Song From the Serenade

410 Flee as a Bird

415 Gypsy Love Song From Fortune Teller

88 Heart Bowed Down From Bohemian Girl

411 Kathleen Mavourneen

157 Palms Sacred

412 Schubert's Serenade

89 Soldier and a Man

87 Son of the Desert Am I

198 Twenty-third Psalm

GEORGE W. JOHNSON, Laughing Comedian

483 Laughing Coon

482 Laughing Song

485 Whistling Coon

484 Whistling Girl

MAY KELSO, Contralto

192 Always Sentimental Ballad

520 Beneath the Evening Star Sentimental

161 Honey You's Ma Lady Love

255 Hush Your Noise and Go to Sleep Sentimental

307 Just Suppose Sentimental

160 Kentucky Babe

321 One Little Word Sentimental

519 Side By Side Sentimental

156 Sweet, Sweet Love

FRANK KENNEDY, Comedian

199 Shultz's Advice to Men

468 Shultz at Delmonico's

465 Shultz's Attack on the Savage Mosquito

538 Shultz Becomes a Dog Fancier

469 Shultz Has Malaria

200 Shultz's Letter from the Klondike

537 Shultz on a Farm

464 Shultz on the Man Behind the Gun

466 Shultz on the Paris Exposition

571 Shultz on Temperance

467 Shultz's Views on George Washington

CHARLES P. LOWE, Xylophone Solos

473 Dinah Polka

474 Happy days in Dixie

475 Pickaninny Polka

476 Dancing in the Sunlight

LYRIC TRIO (Probably Grace Spencer, soprano; Harry Macdonough, tenor;
and William F. Hooley, bass)

84 Attila

85 Farewell, My Own

HARRY MACDONOUGH, Tenor

121 Good Bye, Sweet Dream, Good Bye Sentimental

120 Holy City Sacred

575 Home, Sweet Home

561 I Can't Tell Why I Love You, But I Do Sentimental

118 Last Rose of Summer

435 Love-Lorn Lily Sentimental

125 'Mid the Green Fields of Virginia

281 My Lady Lou

270 Picture No Artist Can Paint Sentimental

434 Since That Day Sentimental

436 Wait Sentimental

122 Where Is Heaven? Sentimental

119 Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight? Sentimental

A. D. MADEIRA, Barytone

260 Comforter Has Come Sacred

258 Come Home Sacred

201 Dream, A Sentimental Ballad

259 I Am Redeemed Sacred

261 I Need Thee Every Hour Sacred

317 Last Night Sentimental

256 Let Us Stand Up for Jesus Sacred

262 Rescue the Perishing Sacred

257 Shepherd True Sacred

EDISON RECORDS.

OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER SUPPLEMENTS.

We will gladly secure for you any of the following records, or any records listed in Edison catalogue at the regular prices, to be shipped with other goods.

Both Standard and Concert Records may be ordered from this list.

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| 7924 Baby Mine. As sung by Marie George in "The Strollers". Waltz song. Price. | 7956 If I Only Had a Dollar of My Own. Coon song.   |
| 7925 The Invincible Eagle. Banjo, O.   | 7957 Vaudeville Whistling and Monologue Specialty. With imitations.                             |
| 7926 Creole Belles. Rag-time March, Band E.                                    | 7958 Uncle Josh Weathersby playing Golf.  |
| 7927 Hurrah Boys. Two-step, Band E.  | 7959 Selections from "King Dodo". Orchestra.  |
| 7928 The Marchionesse. Mazurka Gracieuse, Orch. F.                             | 7960 The American Billionaire. De Wolf Hopper in Weber & Fields' "Hoity Toity". Song, Stanley.  |
| 7929 Ev'ry Darkey Had a Raglan On. Coon song, Co.                              | 7961 Characteristic Baby Polka. With imitations. Band.  |
| 7930 De Beriot's 6th Air. With variations. Violin solo, D'A.                   | 7962 Medley March from Rogers Bros. in Washington. Orchestra.                                   |
| 7931 I Want Some One to Care for Me. Coon song, De.                            | 7963 Medley March from "Hoity Toity".   |
| 7932 My Lady Love. Song, Na.   | 7964 Baby and I. Duet.  |
| 7933 March Arcadia. Dulcimer solo, Gibson.                                     | 7965 De Pullman Porter's Ball. From Weber & Fields' "Hoity Toity". Comic song.                  |
| 7934 I Got Married This Morning. Comic song, Fa.                               | 7966 Mrs. Carter. Comic song, Favor.  |
| 7935 Love Me, Lize. Comic duet, Co. and Na.                                    | 7967 Neapolitan March, "A Frangese! Band.   |
| 7936 March from the Musical Comedy "The Strollers". Orch. P.                   | 7968 Minnie-ha-ha! Serio-comic song by the writers of Dolly Gray.                               |
| 7938 Simple Little Sister Mary Green. Comic song, Q.                           | 7969 The Wedding of the Reuben and the Maid. Duet.  |
| 7939 Einstein at the Vaudeville. Comic recitation, Sil.                        | 7970 My Own Wild Western Rose.  |
| 7940 The Treasures of the Sea are Buried Deep. Descriptive song, My.           | 7971 Creole Belles. Rag-time march, Banjo.  |
| 7941 Lizzie, Is He? Serio-comic song. My.                                      | 7972 Because I Love You, Dear.  |
| 7942 I'll Be With You When the Roses Bloom Again. Sentimental song, Mac.       | 7973 Rozmysli si Marenko Sekstet ze Smetanovy Prodane nevesty. Orchestra.                       |
| 7943 Sleep Well, Thou Sweet Angel. With variations. Piccolo solo, Maz.         | 7974 When the Lilies of the Valley Bloom Again.   |
| 7944 The Spider and the Fly. Sentimental song, Har.                            | 7975 When Two Little Hearts are One. Lillian Russell and De Wolf Hopper in "Hoity Toity". Duet. |
| 7945 Little Darling, Dream of Me. Male quartette, F. Q.                        | 7976 The Tale of a Bumble Bee. Song from King Dodo. Duet.                                       |
| 7946 Drinking Song. From the opera "Martha". Sta.                              | 7977 Not by a Dam Side.   |
| 7947 Hush! Don't Wake the Baby. Song, with yodle, W.                           | 7978 'Way Down Yonder in the Cornfield. New song, Myers.  |
| 7948 Nobody Ever Brings Presents to Me. Male duet, Har. & Sta.                 | 7979 Bessie, My Right Hand Bower.   |
| 7949 Indeed. Sentimental song, Na.   | 7980 Ma Ebony Belle. Negro lullaby.   |
| 7950 'Phemie. Coon serenade, Du.   | 7982 President McKinley's Last Speech. Delivered at Buffalo, September 5th, 1901.               |
| 7951 I'd Lay Down My Life for You. Sentimental song, Mah.                      |   |
| 7953 Schultz on Dogs. Comic recitation, Ken.                                   |   |
| 7954 The Honeysuckle and the Bee. Love song, Mac.                              |   |
| 7955 Bay State Quickstep. Banjo.   |   |

THE LATE PRESIDENT'S FAVORITE HYMNS.

- 7267 Nearer, My God, to Thee. Male quartette, Edison quartette.
- 7625 Lead, Kindly Light. Male quartette, Edison quartette.

The Talking Machine Co. 107 Madison Street, CHICAGO

A list of Edison two-minute cylinders issued in October and November, 1901. Notice how Artists' names are abbreviated, for instance, Collins is shortened to "Co."

The record of "President McKinley's Last Speech" was by Frank C. Stanley. Both concert and regular records could be ordered from this list.

- JERE MAHONEY, Tenor
- 478 Bird in a Gilded Cage Sentimental
- 105 Break the News to Mother Sentimental
- 104 In the Baggage Coach Ahead Sentimental
- 106 Just Set a Light Sentimental
- 302 My Little Georgia Rose Ballad
- 107 My Old New Hampshire Home Sentimental
- 244 One Night in June Sentimental
- 245 She Rests By the Suwanee River Sentimental
- 243 She Was Happy Till She Met You Sentimental
- 303 Where the Sweet Magnolias Bloom Sentimental
- MALE QUARTETS (Artists not listed, but undoubtedly the Edison Male Quartet)
- 32 Annie Laurie
- 282 Break the News to Mother Sentimental
- 418 Camp Meeting Jubilee
- 420 Carry Me Back to Old Virginia
- 197 Cornfield Medley
- 422 County Fair Descriptive
- 267 Creole Sue Sentimental
- 34 Church Scene
- 190 Farmyard Medley Descriptive
- 283 Just as the Sun Went Down Sentimental
- 214 Kentucky Babe
- 308 Lead Kindly Light Sacred
- 367 Louisiana Lou
- 562 Medley of College Songs
- 419 Moonlight on the Lake
- 417 My Lady Lou
- 198 My Old Kentucky Home
- 268 Nearer My God to Thee Sacred
- 314 Old Folks at Home
- 558 Onward Christian Soldiers
- 305 Owl and the Pussy Cat
- 507 Republican Campaign Shout
- 33 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep
- 290 Sleighride Party
- 308 Soldier's Farewell

- 313 Tenting To-night on the Old Camp Ground
- 35 Tear, The
- 563 Vesper Service
- 366 Where the Sweet Magnolias Bloom
- FRANK S. MAZZIOTTA, Piccolo Solos
- 51 Dance of the Pirates
- 203 Goldfinch Polka
- 543 Little Footsteps With Variations
- 651 Medley of American National Airs
- 52 Nicolai's March
- 53 Robin Adair
- 542 Sand Dance
- 202 Tarantella
- 54 Wren Polka

MINSTREL RECORDS

- 370 Christy Minstrel, 1st Part
- 265 Echoes of Minstrelsy
- 460 Minstrel, 1st Part
- 204 Minstrel, Pot Pourri
- 371 Minstrel Scene
- 237 Plantation Minstrelsy
- 206 Three Minutes with the Minstrels
- JOE NATUS, Tenor
- 549 All for a Man Whose God Was Gold Sentimental
- 490 All Things Are not What They Seem Sentimental
- 448 Dear Old Bess and I Sentimental
- 431 Fatal Rose of Red Sentimental
- 550 Good Bye Dolly Gray Sentimental
- 429 Her Name is Rose Sentimental
- 488 I Will Still Believe You True Sentimental
- 433 She is an All Right Girl Sentimental
- 430 She Rests by the Suwanee River Sentimental
- 489 They're Proud of the Irish Now Sentimental
- MARGUERITE NEWTON, Soprano
- 59 I Don't Like No Cheap Man Comic (Turn to next page)

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954 ap126121

WANTED: Cylinder phonograph reproducers, any parts to reproducers, jeweled needles (styl). Don't want steel needles. Describe and price wanted. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3614

SEEBURG nickelodeons - one piano and one cabinet type, stained glass fronts, lights and drum effects. — Mrs. Harry Roehrig, 1 Whitewood Rd., White Plains, N. Y. ja3004

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS: Rebuilding the Player Piano $6.95. Player Piano Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15. (See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid. — Vestal Press, Vestal, N.Y. 13850. o120652

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

BEAUTIFUL little 49-note Carhart & Needham folding melodeon. Rosewood. Expertly reconditioned. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ja1251

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

Wanted: Orchestrion, any type. No quibbling, and will answer all correspondence. — John C. Whinnery, R.D. 3, Salem, Ohio. ja1612

BERT. PETERSEN ANTIQUES

1103 Monterey Rd. South Pasadena, Calif.

- Single or group photos 35c. Transp. extra.
- 200 88 note piano rolls - Q.R.S. and a doz. other makes, 97% are in very good cond. The lot $125.00
  - Fine cond. Dulemer, 39x15", 7" deep quadruple strings very old and in fine cond. Would take 20 yrs. to find another for sale. Very rare 300.00
  - Piano - Soprano, 120 base accordion, no scratches and perfect, in alligator case a professional instrument. Sacrifice 125.00
  - Another not as good cond. No case 30.00
  - Beautiful Sebastian Erero's Harp (London) new strings and playable cond. Collector's item 600.00
  - Melodion. Good bellows and the most beautiful rose wood you will ever see. 250.00
  - Esy two manual reed organ. Full pedals, with electric pump can't ship 300.00
  - European street organ (pipes and hand cranked). trade for clocks 400.00
- jax

263 Look Out for the Hoo-doo-doo Man Comic 61 She Lipped When She Said Yes Comic
60 Take Your Clothes and Go Comic VESS L. OSSMAN, Banjo Soles

188 Cotton Blossoms
46 Darkies' Patrol
50 Georgia Camp Meeting
242 Honolulu Cake Walk
47 Nareissus
48 Patrol Comique
187 Pretty Little Queen Song and Dance
49 Serenade March
186 Smoky Mokes

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3161 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12238

SHEET MUSIC, several thousand old popular songs very low priced, any size order, private party. — McNeill, 1117 South Taylor Ave., Oak Park, Ill. f3253

COLLECTORS ITEM: 30,000 (approx.) sheets from late 1800's to 1930's, cataloged and in excellent condition. Write: Jane Burton, Nob Hill Dr., Colgate, Wis. 53017 mh3863

SHEET MUSIC: 1900's to 1960. Collection A-Z orders but no list.—R. Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart, Los Angeles 26, Calif. Rm. 412. je6046

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ap6276

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. ja3845

FOR SALE: Edison Eclipse coin slot phonograph, complete in very good condition. Send 50c for picture and more information. Wanted to buy: Any outside horn phonographs and parts for same.—Waynes Warren, 24361 Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543. f3295

PHONOGRAPH items galore in our spanking new catalog No. 6. Parts, repairs, needle-heads: you name it. Get your copy today, 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. ja3844

PEERLESS ORCHESTRA.

Conducted by Frank P. Banta

451 Battle of Manila Descriptive
487 Bchemian Life March
250 Bonnie Briar Bush March
247 Campin' on de Ole Suwanee
25 Charlatan March
535 Cindy Two-Step
510 Colored Aristocracy A Feverish Inspiration
457 Coon Band Contest A Trombone Eccentricity
194 Cotton Blossoms A Characteristic March
26 Dinah Polka
226 Elolse Polka
195 Finale of selections From Il Trovatore
539 Hall to the Spirit of Liberty Sousa's Latest 173 Hannah's Promenade
492 Home, Sweet Home
227 Jolly Fellows Waltz
486 Mammy's Carolina Twins
397 Man Behind the Gun March
193 Ma Ragtime Baby Two-Step
491 March From the Ameer
508 Ma Tiger Lily Cake Walk
146 Medley Lancers First Figure
147 Medley Lancers Second and Third Figures

(Turn to page 49)

PIANOS AND ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Money-back guarantee. Send for current list.—Harold Powell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

Wanted: Piano rolls, Ampico or Duoart. Write: Newton, Ingomar, Pa. ja12069

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists. Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte, blues, foreign, rags, 88-note standards. —Vi & Si's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N.Y. 14226. f3234

WILL GIVE Wurlitzer roll changer piano for information leading to purchase of Seeburg H orchestrion piano. —Shaner, 1042 Myrtle, Cumberland, Maryland. f3633

Wanted: Ampico piano rolls. —T. P. Grattelo, 2614 Central Ave., Alameda, Calif. mh3882

WANTED: Welte, Mignon and DeLuxe rolls. Send titles and prices to Harry J. Smith, 3683 Grant St., Hudsonville, Mich. 49426 mh3633

WURLITZER automatic player piano rolls, 12 5-tune rolls $10 each. Wurlitzer Caliola band organ rolls 25 10-tune rolls $15 each. —G. T. Merriken, 2141 Briggs Chaney Rd., Silver Spring, Md. ja1232

DUO-ART & AMPICO rolls for sale. —Marc Goodman, 4229 Bushnell, Univ. Hts., Ohio 44118. ja1211

Petey, Nipper, Lucky Jim, Popsy and Jim Walsh

Wish the Great HOBBIES Family A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

1. Petey enjoys nothing better than a red-hot game of dominoes, but his mournful expression seems to indicate he has lost.
2. Nipper appears somewhat in awe of the bronze bust of his favorite author, Charles Dickens. His favorite Dickens character, naturally, is Susan Nipper in "Dombey and Son." He has many of Susan's impetuous traits.

3. Lucky Jim is an accomplished "Kitten on the Keys" when he indulges in his favorite pastime of playing the chord organ.
4. Popsy has been clearing his desk to have everything ready for a good time when Christmas comes.
5. The favorite hobby of Roger, who left us November 12, 1945, was loving and being loved.

He is objecting here to having his picture taken as Jim Walsh holds him. Besides Roger, we cherish memories of the good and gentle Gray. Percy the Pifful Persian and the other dear ones whom we have loved and lost through the years.
If you want to send us Christmas greetings, we get our mail at Box 476, Vinton, Va., 24179. jax

WANTED
ANTIQUE TOYS AND
MECHANICAL BANKS
 Toy Jobbers Catalogs
 Describe fully and
 state price

PERELMAN
ANTIQUE TOY MUSEUM
 339 Winding Way
 Merion, Penna.

We are accepting orders for
REPAIR
SERVICE

on
MECHANICAL
BANKS and TOYS
 We also buy old banks.
GEORGE W. BAUER
 P. O. Box 145

Pottstown,

Pa.
tfo

HUBERT B. WHITING

40 Friend St.
 Wakefield,
 Mass. 01880

WANTED
 Old Iron Penny Banks,
 Still and Mechanical

tfo

Wanted!!!

A Collection of Old
MECHANICAL BANKS

Please describe and state price and condition. Individual specimens also desired. Correspondence promptly acknowledged.

MARK HABER
 Wethersfield, Conn.
 mh76c

WANTED: 19th Century antique toys, banks, mechanical and still;
 and old toy catalogs. Must be of good quality.

Write to: SALLY KRATH, M
 745 Fifth Avenue - Room 364
 New York, New York 10022

tfo

NEW MECHANICAL BANK BOOKLET

More than thirty banks added to the lists of American and Foreign made mechanical banks. All banks, including semi-mechanical, are graded, listed alphabetically and numbered.

Booklet is in seven parts - Part I - American Made Mechanical Banks, Part II -
 Foreign Made Mechanical Banks,
 Part III - Semi-Mechanical Banks,
 Part IV - Mechanical Bank Patterns,
 Part V - Uncertain and Recast Mechanical Banks, Part VI - Fake Mechanical Banks, Part VII - Variations.
 Additional original illustrations - Additional information.

Invaluable to collectors and dealers alike.
 NOW AVAILABLE — PRICE $3.

F. H. GRIFFITH
 P.O. Box 10644, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15235

tfx

MECHANICAL BANKS & TOY PISTOLS

ESPECIALLY WANT MECHANICAL BANKS:

- |                          |                       |
|--------------------------|-----------------------|
| ● BOWERY BANK            | ● PREACHER IN THE     |
| ● ROYAL TRICK            | ● PULPIT              |
| ● ELEPHANT (Tin)         | ● TARGET BANK         |
| ● BOWLING ALLEY          | ● (Fort and Cannon)   |
| ● BANK                   | ● BRITISH LION (Tin)  |
| ● RED RIDING HOOD        | ● RIVAL               |
| ● FOOTBALL               | ● SENTRY BANK         |
| ● (Colored man kicks     | ● (Tin)               |
| ● ball)                  | ● DAREY BUST          |
| ● SCHLEY BOTTLING        | ● (Tin)               |
| ● UP CERVERA             | ● GUESSING BANK       |
| ● PRESTO                 | ● (Woman's Figure)    |
| ● (Penny changes to      | ● PERFECTION          |
| ● quarter)               | ● REGISTERING         |
| ● JAPANESE BALL          | ● BANK                |
| ● TOSSER                 | ● GIANT IN TOWER      |
| ● (Tin, wind-up)         | ● DAREY               |
| ● SHOOT THAT HAT         | ● FISHERMAN           |
| ● BANK                   | ● FROG ON ARCHER      |
| ● TOMMY BANK             | ● TRACK (Tin)         |
| ● (Prone, Soldier Shoots | ● TIME LOCK           |
| ● Gun)                   | ● SAVINGS             |
| ● BULL & BEAR BANK       | ● QUEEN VICTORIA      |
| ● COASTING BANK          | ● JUBILEE BANK 1887   |
| ● MUSICAL SAVING         | ● SAFE DEPOSIT        |
| ● BANK                   | ● BANK (tin elephant) |
| ● (You pay—1 play)       | ● WINNER SAVINGS      |
|                          | ● (Tin)               |

PISTOLS:

- |                   |                  |
|-------------------|------------------|
| ● CAMERA          | ● TWO DOGS ON    |
| ● DOLPHIN         | ● BENCH          |
| ● TORPEDO Shooter | ● OSCAR WILDE    |
| ● HUMPTY, DUMPTY  | ● BOMB           |
| ● (Three heads)   | ● CANNON BOMB    |
| ● SAILING SHIP    | ● BABY HEAD BOMB |
- Also want Cast Iron horse drawn carriages, animated bell ringing pull toys, old toy automobiles,
 old catalogs showing banks & toy pistols.

F. H. GRIFFITH
 P.O. Box 10644, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15235

tfa

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

B148 Medley Lancers Last Figure
 B146 opens with the usual announcement, followed by "Are you ready?" After a short overture, the FIRST figure is called, as follows:
 "Hands to the right; cross over; swing corners.
 "Hands to the left; cross over; swing corners.
 "Hands to the right; cross over; swing corners.
 "Hands to the left; cross over; swing corners."
 B147 contains the SECOND and THIRD figures. In order to get both figures on this record, the speed was lowered; so, in reproducing, run this record just a little slower, in order to have the correct time.

The SECOND figure is called as follows:
 "All forward; ladies in centre; balance."
 Repeated four times.

The THIRD figure is called as follows:
 "All forward; forward and salute; ladies chain.
 "All forward; forward and salute; ladies chain.
 "All forward; forward and salute; gentlemen cross right hands.

"All forward; forward and salute; gentlemen cross left hands."

B148 contains the FOURTH figure, the last one.
 The following are the calls:

"First couple; chaise; march; right and left.
 "Second couple; chaise; march; right and left.
 "Third couple; chaise; march; right and left.
 "Fourth couple; chaise; march, right and left."

228 Moonlight Kisses Gavotte
 251 My Lady Lou Schottische
 142 My Lady Love Waltz

493 On Duty March
 494 Pretty Peggy
 24 Rendez-Vous Valse

500 Ripple Dance
 540 San Toy Two-Step
 27 Selections from The Fortune Teller

500 Selections from The Rogers Brothers in Central Park Introducing Reuben and the Duchess

252 Senegambian Two-Step
 291 Singing Girl March From Victor Herbert's
 Opera

292 Singing Girl Mazurka From Victor Herbert's
 Opera
 278 Singing Girl Waltz From Victor Herbert's Opera

178 Smoky Mokes
 248 Spring Songs Waltz
 191 Whistling Rufus

POLITICAL TALKS, by unidentified artists
 500 Bryan's Speech of Acceptance
 504 Bryan's Speech to Labor

503 McKinley's Letter of Acceptance Speech
 DAN W. QUINN, Barytone
 386 In Old Ben Franklin's Day Comic From the Amer

208 Little Bit Off the Top Comic
 414 My Money Never Gives Out Comic
 416 No Show Tonight

502 One Good Turn Deserves Another. Parody on Blue and the Gray
 210 'Raus Mit Him Comic

207 She Knew a Lobster When She Saw One Comic 209 You'll Have to Transfer Comic NICHOLAS SCHOLL, Trombone Solos

91 Killarney
 92 Song of the Turnkey
 93 The Tar's Farewell

71st Regiment Band of New York
 123 Chopin's Funeral March
 FRANK C. STANLEY, Barytone

97 Armorer's Song Robin Hood
 96 Hosannah Sacred
 174 Marching Thro. Georgia Patriotic

95 Nazareth Sacred
 98 One Hundred Fathoms Deep
 453 Sunday Sally

94 Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground
 Patriotic
 (Continued on page 68)

TOYS WANTED

Early toys bought continually.
 High quality cast iron and tin horse drawn carriages, wagons, fire apparatus, trains and comical toys.
 Royal Circus wagons. Arcade's large automobiles and trucks. Animated bell toys, capshooters and bombs.
 Clockwork and electric trains and trolleys. Toy and train catalogs.
 Fire houses. — Lloyd Ralston, 1192
 Youngstown, Warren, Ohio. 44484.

mh38421

MECHANICAL BANKS WANTED
 BUFFALO BUCKING, GIANT IN TOWER, RED RIDING HOOD, NORTH POLE, FOWLER — OTHER RARE BANKS, FINE CAST IRON TOYS.

Reference: Dun &amp; Bradstreet

FRANK LAUGHLIN
 COLLECTOR

1134 East Douglas
 Wichita, Kansas

tfo

MECHANICAL BANKS FOR SALE

PENNY PINEAPPLE cast iron mechanical coin banks, cast iron toys. Picture brochure and prices 15c. — High,
 Dept. H4, 1219 Girard, Wyomissing, Pa.
 19610

s124051

A pair of Oklahoma Indians.

DOLLOLOGY

(Continued from page 40)

come to include a chapter on the Neapolitan figures of the Precepio in their findings on dolls.

Of special interest in the religious grouping was a small church from Spain. Inside the church, the figures that represent the priest, the acolytes, and the musicians, are small peg wooden dolls.

The next grouping featured craft dolls. Literally dozens of different media were used—mostly nature's own products fashioned into dolls by creative, imaginative minds and hands.

Some craft dolls are whimsical, some are even beautiful like the dainty shell figures, and some have sculptured form like the dried apple dolls. All are amusing and answer a challenge to the ingenuity of the maker.

Products of a more sophisticated doll society were the commemorative dolls. Each figure represented an actual person—some are realistic interpretations; others are caricatures.

Queen Victoria was represented, looking every inch the empire-builder she was; and hefty Henry the Eighth shows all the signs of self-indulgence for which he was noted.

There was a roll-call of presidents—Abraham Lincoln, Dwight Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy—of generals, and of other interesting great and near-great.

The antique dolls carried their own particular impact. They were presented in chronological order against backgrounds and themes designed to conform to rare and interesting dolls which ran the gamut from the so-called Queen Anne dolls, to the elegant Parisiennes, and even to battered and torn rag dolls.

There seems to be a fascination about antique dolls for people of all ages, not just for the serious doll collector.

Proceeding around the exhibit area to the next feature, one came upon a wonderful old puppet trunk which Mr. Pryor purchased in Thailand a few years ago. It was full of puppets when he bought it and has remained on permanent display in Greenwich just as it was found in Bangkok.

Puppets are especially interesting for they have a life and personality of their own. They always have held grown-ups and children alike spell-bound by their quite human characteristics.

In the exhibit, there was a group of Indonesian puppets, clad in authentic batiks and oftentimes with grotesque heads; Thailand puppets with multiple wardrobes and heads used in changing their roles; and a pair of Sicilian puppets of notable size—50 inches in height—looking very dramatic against the dark wood wall.

Mr. Pryor is justifiably proud of his American Indian collection. The legacy of the American Indian gradually is receiving its belated recognition and anthropologists now speak in glowing terms of Indian culture. Various Indian tribes were represented in the exhibit: Sioux, Seminole, Navajo. Several Kachinas rounded out this category.

The Japanese collection was quite varied. Included were the more traditional figures such as the Emperor and Empress, Kabuki dancers, Bunraku puppets, No players; other figures representing particular Japanese legends; and Japanese play dolls.

There was a Japanese schoolroom scene. This is always of interest to the school children, who come to visit in Greenwich, as they learn of another way of life.

Next was an exhibit feature which might be termed the world of "once upon a time" where fabled friends from childhood live forever in the form of dolls representing legends.

There was a leprechaun, a troll, and a "Pelsnickle" doll regarded as a servant of St. Nicholas. Pelsnickle visited the children prior to Christmas and, with his birch cane, gave a flogging to the children who had been bad.

The old woman who lived in a shoe was in this fabled group. Her lively brood, in this particular case, consisted of dolls from all lands.

One of the most popular categories of the exhibit was the group of international dolls that represented about 100 countries. These dolls were divided and presented according to continent—dolls in native costumes typical of their nations or countries.

National Geographic's colored photographs of children from the various countries co-ordinated the theme of children and dolls of the world.

Audio-phones were installed in three of the exhibit areas. Anyone viewing these particular exhibits could hear the story of the dolls.

For the benefit of the blind children, half a dozen dolls were selected whose features and clothing were of a texture which, upon being touched, would enable the blind children to relate the story they were hearing on the audiophones to the sense of touch. Several groups of crippled children and blind children were brought to the exhibit.

—O—
* The International Doll Library may be visited by appointment only.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 49)

179 When Dewey Comes Sailing Home Patriotic CAL STEWART ("Uncle Josh Weathersby"),

Comedian

130 Baptism at Hickory Corners Church
378 Meeting of School House Directors
479 Old, But I'm Awfully Tough
480 There Ain't a Word
481 Three Little Owls and the Naughty Little Mice
Comic Song
363 Uncle Josh's Arrival in New York
381 Uncle Josh and the Bunco Steers
129 Uncle Josh at a Game of Baseball
360 Uncle Josh at the Camp Meeting
365 Uncle Josh at Delmonico's
294 Uncle Josh at the Museum
364 Uncle Josh at the Opera
128 Uncle Josh at the Stock Exchange
295 Uncle Josh in a Chinese Laundry
126 Uncle Josh in a Department Store
127 Uncle Josh in a Fifth Avenue Bus
293 Uncle Josh on a Bicycle
296 Uncle Josh on the Daily Paper at Pumpkin Center
362 Uncle Josh on the Pumpkin Center R. R.
379 Uncle Josh at the Circus
400 Uncle Josh's Trip to Coney Island
399 Uncle Josh and the Fire Department
381 Uncle Josh and the Lightning Rod Agent
383 Uncle Josh in a Police Court
398 Uncle Josh and Signs Seen in New York
380 Uncle Josh in Society
401 Uncle Josh on the Spanish Question
382 Uncle Josh in a Street Car

A. L. SWEET, Cornet Solos

312 Arbucklelinian Polka
496 Bugle Calls
40 Cradle Song
43 Commodore Polka
41 Evening Star
42 Gounod's Serenade
447 In Happy Moments From Maritana
446 Prismatic Polka
44 Tilt Willow
45 With All Her Faults I Love Her Still

WILLIAM TUSON, Clarinet Solos

55 Auld Lang Syne
58 Ben Bolt
568 Blue Bells of Scotland
57 Comin' Thro' the Rye
212 Fantasia From Sonnambula
213 Polonaise Brilliant
58 Sylvia Yorke

GEORGE P. WATSON, Yodel

224 Doctor Eisenbein With Yodel
558 Emmett's Baby Song
185 Sleep, Baby Sleep Yodel
184 Snyder, Does Your Mother Know You're Out?
Yodel

LEO ZIMMERMAN, Trombone Solos

406 Blue Bells of Scotland With Orchestra
Accompaniment
392 El Miserere
413 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep
With Orchestra Accompaniment
390 Romanza With Orchestra Accompaniment
405 Sea Shell Waltz With Orchestra Accompaniment
391 Tuberose Polka

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

The English "Supreme Fifteen"

By JIM WALSH

PART I

Some graybeard readers of this department may remember that in May, 1945, I published an article, "Are These The Supreme Fifteen?" In it I tried to decide which pioneer American recording artists were the greatest.

Consideration was restricted to the so-called "popular" singers and players — those whose performances were not of "celebrity" status but ordinarily would appear on Victor Black Label records and others of similar cost.

During the more than 20 years since that study appeared, my opinions have been modified. I some day may write another article to indicate how they have changed. I may say now that I rate Cal Stewart ("Uncle Josh Weathersby") in higher rank than I gave him then.

Recently it occurred to me that an equally interesting article could be prepared by trying to determine the 15 "top" artists who recorded in Great Britain in the years before electrical methods of capturing sound were introduced.

The idea is so intriguing I have decided to undertake it despite the fact that my knowledge of English artists is not as comprehensive as it is of American.

I suspect my list, which will be based largely on volume of recording, record sales, and continued popularity, will bring derisive hoots from some of my English friends, who might be able to prepare a better study than I, on the basis of more inclusive knowledge.

One thing I want to emphasize is that my individual preferences will not intrude I hope, into this study. I shall give high rating to some performers whose recordings lack appeal for me, simply because I feel that on the basis of their popularity and volume of sales they deserve it. But inclusion in this list does not necessarily mean high artistry — at least not in my opinion.

As in the American study, I am including only those men and women whose work was of the predominantly "popular" type. So esteemed an artist as John McCormack is omitted because the great majority of his recordings appeared on what was known as the Red Label abroad, and Red Seal in the States, and he was considered a "celebrity" singer.

My group is restricted chiefly to those who, if they recorded for HMV, were assigned to the Plum Label, the HMV equivalent of Victor's Black.

THE LIST

1. Peter Dawson and Billy Williams. When I first began to ponder my list of the English Supreme Fifteen I had no hesitation in assigning first place to Peter Dawson, the Australian basso whose life story was published in HOBBIES from January through June, 1962. I gave another Australian, Billy Williams, second place. But on further study I decided it would be only fair to make them of equal rank.

Of Dawson's right to stand near the head of the list there can be no doubt. I can think of no other singer who had so long a recording career, and remained so consistently popular.

He began recording in 1904 for Edison Bell, and his career did not entirely close until the late 1950s. His discs and cylinders were sold widely not only in Great Britain but throughout the British Empire, and he made thousands of them.

If a month appeared without a Peter Dawson record in the HMV supplement his admirers wondered what had happened to "good old Pete." He had one of the finest voices of his time and his enunciation was almost perfect.

The only criticism I can make of Dawson's singing is that he occasionally sounded too pompous and heavy.

Billy Williams' story was published in May, 1958, but since then I have obtained more information concerning him which may appear later in HOBBIES.

Leaving out of consideration such latter-day phenomena as The Beatles, it can be said truthfully that England never had any other recording artist who so completely dominated the "popular" scene as Williams did from about 1908 until his tragically early death from overwork in the spring of 1915.

To read advertisements in talking machine trade publications of the 1911-13 period is to gain the impression that there was only one recording artist in England and his name was Billy Williams. (Actually, it was William Banks.) Every company of any consequence strove to obtain his recordings and to issue them faster than its rivals.

Stanley Kirkby, a native of Lancashire, probably made more records than any other free-lance English artist.

Williams was a comedian of great ingenuity, who, as a rule, did not use current popular songs, but relied either on numbers which he had written himself or that had been composed for him. He had one of the most pleasant of voices, without a trace of harshness, allied to an unfailingly genial manner and original style.

The only objectionable feature about his records to me is the tiresome frequency with which he chuckles. But in view of his unparalleled popularity during his seven-year recording period it seems to me Billy Williams deserves to share first place with Dawson.

2. Stanley Kirkby and Harry Lauder. I have reservations on Stanley Kirkby's singing, and though I do like Lauder's vocal style, his kidding isn't interesting to me, so I like his 10-inch Victor records better than his 12-inch as he talks and laughs less. But there is no doubt that these men were among Billy Williams, the phenomenally popular English comedian, left, with Fred Godfrey who wrote many of the songs Williams recorded.

Quentin Riggs, American State Department employee, wearing a gray velvet coat which Billy Williams wore during his 1911 tour of Australia. While working in Sydney, Australia, Riggs became a friend of Williams' widow, Mrs. Amy Jennings, who gave him the coat.

Harry Lauder standing beside a gramophone in a 1906 advertisement of His Master's Voice Company.

the most popular recorded-music entertainers the British Isles ever produced.

Kirkby was the champion free-lance recorder among English singers and in spite of being a baritone might be called the British Henry Burr. He made thousands of records under his own name, and under many others, such as Charles Holland. During the 1920s he did comedy numbers for the Imperial Company under the disguise of George Berry.

His records were not especially well-known in the States. But when the vogue for "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" began, Columbia imported his English Columbia version of the song, made two years before, and for a year or more it was the biggest selling record in the American Columbia catalog.

I consider Kirkby's voice and style too heavy for "popular" work. He lacked flexibility, and his comedy efforts were generally not the kind that appealed to Americans.

Of his great popularity, however, beginning in the early 1900s and continuing into the 1930s, there can be no doubt. He was, by the way, a cousin of the famous contralto, Louise Kirkby-Lunn.

As for Harry Lauder, I have had serious reservations as to whether he should be included in this list, as, like John McCormack, his records usually sold at a higher price than those of ordinary "popular" artists. He even attained Red Seal status in this country after Victor abolished its Blue Label.

But his Edison cylinders were listed at popular prices, and I have decided to include him. Lauder had far greater popularity in the United States than Dawson, Williams, or Kirkby — all of whom were known relatively little over here. There were few homes with a Victrola that did not include Lauder's "Roamin' in the Gloamin'," "I Love a Lassie," and half a dozen other manifestations of his Scotch humor.

Perhaps he shouldn't be in this list. But as long as he is, in view of his world-wide popularity, I can't give him a lower spot than a tie for second place.

3. Ernest Pike. "King Edward's Favorite Tenor," as Ernest Pike long was known, certainly deserves to rank high among British popular recording artists. For a time his popularity as a soloist was even greater than that of Peter Dawson, with whom he sang many duets.

The rather serious-minded Pike, whose father had been one of the King's bakers, was frequently a victim of Dawson's irrepressible pranking. Pike's career faded sooner than the Australian's, and he made fewer records, but until the early 1920s his was a magical name in English collecting circles.

(To be continued)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 36)

matic soprano at the Metropolitan, recorded extensively for Edison, and much of the material she left on discs is serious and quite outstanding. I, for one, would like to see an LP completely devoted to this fine artist whose biography appeared some years ago in these pages.

Only recently I wrote about the sweet-voiced Ruth Miller Chamlee. On this disc, she, again, is her delightful self in Debussy's "La Chevelure."

Here I take the opportunity to express our most sincere condolences to Mme. Ruth Miller Chamlee on her recent loss of her beloved husband, the famous tenor Mario Chamlee. He passed away on November 13, at his home in Los Angeles, Calif., apparently of a stroke.

Mr. Chamlee was pleased with the article about him and his IRCC LP, which appeared in this department in 1964. He wrote to me then:

"You cannot know how great a gratification it is for me to find an article such as your splendid one in the July HOBBIES.

"Years dim the memory of what I was privileged to have as a singer, and the pleasure you and Mr. Seltman have afforded me in this LP record is indeed a most happy experience. Thank you from my heart."

We are fortunate indeed that we were able to bring the celebrated artist happiness.

Not until I heard Florence Macbeth's recording of "Linda di Chamounix" did I fully realize what an exceptional light soprano she was. Her O luce di quest'anima is a model of pure agility and tone, and her whole vocal demeanor is that of a first-class singer.

Macbeth was born in Mankato, Minn., in 1891. She began her career at Darmstadt, Germany, in January 1913, and subsequently sang in Brunswick and Dresden.

A year later, on January 14, 1914, she made her debut with the Chicago Opera as Rosina, and became, for several seasons, one of the Company's

(Continued on page 51)

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954 ap126121

WANTED: Cylinder phonograph reproducers, any parts to reproducers, jeweled needles (stylus). Don't want steel needles. Describe and price wanted. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3614

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS: Rebuilding the Player Piano $6.95. Player Piano Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15. (See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid. — Vestal Press, Vestal, N.Y. 13850. o120652

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3161 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12238

SHEET MUSIC, several thousand old popular songs very low priced, any size order, private party. — McNeill, 1117 South Taylor Ave., Oak Park, Ill. f3253

COLLECTORS ITEM: 30,000 (approx.) sheets from late 1800's to 1930's, cataloged and in excellent condition. Write: Jane Burton, Nob Hill Dr., Colgate, Wis. 53017 mh3863

SHEET MUSIC: 200,000 original copy old popular songs collection A-Z order but no list. Write R. Greenlaw, 307 No. Rampart Blvd., Los Angeles 26, Calif. Room 412. je6046

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ap6276

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

Rare Phonographs: Edison, Columbia, Victors and many others. Records, horns, horn cranes, reproducers, parts and repairs. Send 25c for list. — Thomas Pollard, 3100 Fairway Dr., Soquel, Calif. f3845

FOR SALE: Edison Eclipse coin slot phonograph, complete in very good condition. Send 50c for picture and more information. Wanted to buy: Any outside horn phonographs and parts for same. — Waynes Warren, 24361 Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543. f3295

PHONOGRAPH items galore in our spanking new catalog No. 6. Parts, repairs, needle-heads; you name it. Get your copy today, 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. ap3464

PIANOS AND ROLLS

DUO-ART & Ampico rolls. New custom reproductions. Money-back guarantee. Send for current list.—Harold Powell, 5652 Willowcrest Ave., North Hollywood, Calif. 91601. ap128041

OLD PIANO ROLLS for sale. Free monthly lists. Duo-Art, Ampico, Welte, blues, foreign, rags, 88-note standards. —VI & SI's Antiques, 28 Clifford Heights, Amherst, N.Y. 14226. f3234

WILL GIVE Wurlitzer roll changer piano for information leading to purchase of Seeburg H orchestron piano. — Shannor, 1042 Myrtle, Cumberland, Maryland. f3633

Wanted: Ampico piano rolls. — T. P. Grattelo, 2614 Central Ave., Alameda, Calif. mh3882

WANTED: Welte, Mignon and DeLuxe rolls. Send titles and prices to Harry J. Smith, 3683 Grant St., Hudsonville, Mich. 49426 mh3633

MUSIC BOOKS

FOR SALE: "From Tinfoil to Stereo," 524 pages illustrated. $9.95 prepaid U.S., $11.50 foreign. Large January sales list one quarter or wanted to buy list dime. —Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond, Va. 23231 ap3694

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

The English "Supreme Fifteen"

By JIM WALSH

PART II

As I said in the February issue of HOBBIES, I decided to undertake trying to determine the 15 "top" artists who recorded in Great Britain in the years before electrical methods of capturing sound were introduced. I covered Peter Dawson and Billy Williams; Stanley Kirkby and Harry Lauder; and Ernest Pike in Part I. Now I will take up Billy Whitlock.

THE LIST (continued)

4. Billy Whitlock.

There has been no trouble in choosing names up to now, but the job is about to become increasingly difficult. Probably many readers will question the inclusion of Billy Whitlock, whose real name was Frederick Penna. He took the Whitlock stage name from an American minstrel performer who was popular in the 1840s.

In view, however, of Billy Whitlock's versatility and the thousands of records he made, he is entitled to a high place. His recording career began by 1904, or earlier, and it continued into the 1920s.

One of his specialties was laughing songs—at first solos, then duets with Charles Penrose. He also made uncountable bell and xylophone solos, under his own name and assumed ones, which included Dudley Roy and Madame Paula.

For years a majority of the bell and xylophone records issued in England was made by Billy Whitlock, whether or not they bore his name. In his later years he suffered poverty and became a night watchman.

Then a chance discovery of one of his records, "Scotch Hot," by disc jockeys in this country, resulted in his being called on to record the old number under a new name, "Hop Scotch Polka." The renewed prosperity, which his almost forgotten composition brought him, brightened the year or so of life Billy had left. (See HOBBIES for February, 1950.)

5. Jack Charman.

Charman was a very young man when he began making records between 55 and 60 years ago, and I believe he is still alive. Quentin Riggs told me a few years back he understood Charman still was living in England and working, I believe he said, as a singing waiter.

His records were extremely popular for a few years before World War I and during the war period. Most were solos, but there were duets with his sister, Betty, and a lady known as Ida Hamilton, who perhaps may have been Betty under a different name.

I don't really enjoy Charman's records as his baritone voice seems too heavy for comedy. His efforts to sing American ragtime were not "in the groove" though Charman was known as "The Versatile Comedian."

6. Florrie Forde.

Here we have another Australian, and the only comedienne to "make" our list.

Florrie Forde was making records as early as 1903, and she soon occupied a standing in England corresponding to that of Ada Jones in America.

Her hundreds of discs and cylinders included such hits as the British version of "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" "Antonio," "Anona," "Hold Your Hand Out, Naughty Boy," "Down at the Old Bull and Bush" (an English variant of Harry Von Tilzer's "Under the Anheuser Bush"), and "I've Got Rings On My Fingers."

She had a clear, strong voice, which she retained to the end of her career. After electric recording took over she was called on to remake many of her old favorites.

The late Billy Whitlock as he looked at the age of 75 after his record of "Hop-scotch Polka" had become a best seller.

Florrie Forde had one of the few women's voices that recorded well enough in the early days of recording to entitle her to consideration in this survey.

7. Sergeant Charles Leggett, 8. Olly Oakley, and 9. Alexander Prince.

Now we have a real three-way tie-up. Billy Whitlock, the only recorder of instrumental music so far admitted to this select company, alternated at making laughing songs and descriptive sketches.

Now we have three skilled virtuosos whose popularity was so great, and who made so many records, it seems to me they should obtain entrance into this British Valhalla. They are Sergeant Charles Leggett, the "cornet king"; Olly Oakley, banjoist; and Alexander Prince, concertina wizard.

In England, where his records were issued regularly for many years, Charles Leggett generally was termed "the world's greatest cornet player"—a title this country preferred to bestow, usually, on Herbert L. Clarke, but with some adherents of Bohumir Kryl.

Leggett recorded voluminously for most of the English companies, usually as a soloist, although for a time he had a trio whose other members were his son and daughter.

I believe the son played a 'cello and the daughter the piano. Being without reference materials I hesitate to rely on my memory.

Leggett usually chose a somewhat higher type of music than the average popular artist sang. His place, however, as a highly esteemed recording artist of the pre-electric period, was an important one.

(8). Olly Oakley was considered the English equivalent of Vess L. Ossman or Fred Van Eps. There seemed little or no doubt he was the greatest banjoist in England, and his many records for a wide variety of companies were as popular in "Rule, Britannia" circles as those of his counterparts over here.

(9). The popularity of Alexander Prince might be compared to the successes won by the piano-accordion specialists, Guido and Pietro Deiro, in the States. Prince had a long recording career, interrupted by his death at an early age. His records always were sure of a large sale.

10. Harry Bluff.

Back to the comedians. Harry Bluff was a man of almost unbounded versatility. He seems to have served at times as Edison Bell announcer, recording director, and as a commercial traveler for the firm. In addition he made almost uncountable records under his own name, and an assortment of others.

He recorded Edison Blue Amberol cylinders under the assumed name of Bobby Naish. Bluff was active a long time and still is remembered affectionately by veteran record buyers.

11. Burt Shepard.

This pioneer comedian reminds me in many ways of Harry Bluff. I recently was surprised to learn he was of American birth and had traveled widely with minstrel shows in this country before going to England for a long career.

Shepard became one of the first HMV artists, and his record of George W. Johnson's "Laughing Song" was one of that company's biggest sellers for many years. It was exported to all parts of the world, and travelers reported seeing natives doubled up with mirth in Oriental bazaars and African villages at the sound of it.

The comedian also was popular in the States and for several years he made an annual trip across the Atlantic to record new numbers for Victor. His "Boy and the Cheese," which stayed in the catalog for years, was Victor record number 7.

One of the cherished oddities of my collection is a 10-inch single-faced Canadian Berliner record of "In the Good

Sgt. Charles Leggett was, for many years, England's most popular cornet soloist.

George Baker, veteran English baritone, has had a recording career extending more than 50 years and virtually to the present day.

Old Summer Time." Its label says it is by Burt Shepard, but its sound tells me it was sung by Harry Macdonough.

12. Alan Turner.

If artistic merit were the only criterion, this distinguished baritone would rank far higher. Alan Turner began making records as early as 1906.

In this year he sang an HMV disc in English of the Prolog from "Pagliacci," which old-timers still talk about as something remarkable. I'm sorry to say I never have heard it.

He was a member of the Carl Rosa Opera Company and during the 1920s was manager of the Alan Turner Opera Company of London, which gave operatic performances in English. (I assume that he was the manager of this company and that there were not two Alan Turners engaged separately in operatic activities.)

Some years ago Quentin Riggs wrote to an Alan Turner, who frequently contributed letters to "The Gramophone" magazine, but learned the contributor was not the singer.

Alan Turner was a frequent visitor to America. He made records for most of the American companies while he was a member of the Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company. I have sought vainly to learn whether he is still alive.

13. George Baker.

A baritone, still living, at this writing, whose recording career has lasted far longer than most, is the veteran George Baker.

Baker once wrote in "The Gramophone" that his recording career began when he went with Haydn Draper, a famous clarinet player, to the Pathe studios in London. While Draper was playing, somebody—probably Russell Hunting—suggested that Baker have a try at recording.

He sang "Tommy Lad" and did so well that Pathe was soon using him regularly, both under his own name and the assumed one of Arthur George. That was about 1910.

In the more than half a century since, Baker has sung for many other companies and taken a notable part in HMV's recordings of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. At one time Baker was married to Lillian Bryant, a pianist who also conducted the Pathe house orchestra.

14. Charles Penrose.

And now we are at the last man on the list, an entry I suspect will cause a bit of controversy. I am choosing Charles Penrose, the laughing comedian because, like Billy Whitlock, made so many comic records for so many years under so many names and they were so widely popular.

Perhaps other claimants whom I consider even more worthy of the honor will occur to me—after this article sees print!

15. Lillian Bryant.

Well, that actually puts us over our suggested English "Supreme Fifteen." However, because I was so dubious about including Harry Lauder, thinking he really belonged in a "higher bracket," I shall take the liberty of adding the name of Lillian Bryant.

True, the lady had no widespread popularity and was largely unknown to the general public, but she did so much important work in a quietly effective way behind the scenes for so many companies that I wish to pay her the compliment of including her in the list. I believe, but don't know definitely, that she has been dead for years.

As a devout Dickensian, I wanted to include among the "Supreme Fifteen" the late Bransby Williams, who made so many recordings from Dickens' works, but couldn't argue myself into it.

Having stuck my neck out with this highly speculative list, I shall now prepare to dodge epistolary brickbats from indignant readers. They will want to know why I omitted Harry Dearth, the great basso; Robert Howe, a versatile baritone under his own name, and several others; Harry Fay, the popular comedian; Tom Kinniburgh, another fine basso; and any number of other perhaps better qualified performers than some of those I chose.

To which I reply that in preparing

BINDERS

FOR HOBBIES

Price each $3.00

The wealth of information contained in each issue of HOBBIES is too valuable to be thrown around with consequent danger of loss.

Holds 12 issues.

HOBBIES Magazine

1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605

my list of 15 you have to put only a few persons in and leave a lot of others off. I shall be interested to observe the reaction, especially overseas, to this far-from-expert appraisal.

(The End)

POSTSCRIPT

Several weeks after the foregoing article was submitted, I was chagrined to realize I had completely overlooked any mention of Albert Whelan, "The Australian Entertainer."

Whelan was one of the cleverest and most popular of British recording comedians from shortly after 1900 until well into the electric era. I should like to add him to my list.

—Jim Walsh

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954. ap126121

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS Rebuilding the Player Piano $6.95. Player Piano Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15. (See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid. — Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N.Y. 13850. o120652

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12238

SHEET MUSIC, several thousand old popular songs very low priced, any size order, private party. — McNeill, 1117 South Taylor Ave., Oak Park, Ill. my3253

COLLECTORS ITEM: 30,000 (approx.) sheets from late 1800's to 1930's, cataloged and in excellent condition. Write: Jane Burton, Nob Hill Dr., Colgate, Wis. 53017. mh3863

SHEET MUSIC: 200,000 original copy old popular songs collection A-Z order but no list. Write R. Greenlau, 307 No. Rampart Blvd., Los Angeles 26, Calif. Room 412. je6046

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Keeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ap6276

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

A BOXWOOD CLARINET in (C), made in London, Eng., by H. Oppenheim, circa 1800. It breaks down into 6 joint pcs. The joints have genuine ivory rings on the end. The clarinet has 6 squared brass keys. This instrument is in perfect playing condition. Appraised at $1500. Will negotiate. — Bruce T. Scott, 433 Main St., Ripley, Ohio 45167. my3449

VIOLIN FRAME ONLY — "Francesco Ruggeri dett il per in Cremona l'anno 1616" will be sold to highest bidder. — Moore's Antiques, 619 Comal Ave., New Braunfels, Texas 78130. mh1861

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

PHONOGRAPH items galore in our spanking new catalog No. 6. Parts, repairs, needle-heads; you name it. Get your copy today, 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 340 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. ap3464

OUTSIDE HORN phonograph, all types. Coin phonographs. Send 25c for list. Records, parts, repairs. Old penny arcade machines, 25c for list. Early battery radios. — Wayne Warren, 24361 Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543. my3694

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

The "24 Best (Columbia) Records"

By JIM WALSH

PART I

I. Unique Scrapbooks

Ten years or more ago it occurred to me that by removing the phonograph and record advertising from all the old magazines I could find, beginning with those issued around 1890 and continuing to 1925 or a little later, and binding them into book form I could produce volumes of unique historical value.

I use that much abused word, "unique", because, as far as I knew or know, nobody else had or has undertaken books of the same sort.

After I had two fat volumes on hand, I was visited by an elderly record collector, now dead, who was captivated by the almost inexhaustible amount of rare information presented in those bulging tomes. He liked them so much he wanted to buy them.

"Tell you what I'll do," my visitor said. "I'll give you $10 apiece for them there books — cash on the barrel-head. O' course," he added thoughtfully, "I don't reckon they're really worth that much, but I figger you ought to have a little somethin' for your time an' trouble."

I told the gentleman it had cost me considerably more than $10 each to have the volumes handsomely bound and that the magazine from which the advertising was taken probably had cost me somewhere between $500 and $1,000. Under the circumstances, I couldn't accept his offer.

He pondered a moment. "Well, in that case," he said, "I'll raise my offer to $15 each. I think that's fair because you'll still have the books (magazines) you bought with nothin' missin' but the graphophone advertisin'. You better sell while I'm in the mind to buy."

I again refused with hardly heart-felt thanks. As he left me he said: "Any time you want to take my offer of $15 apiece just write an' let me know and I'll send the money. "Of course," he added cautiously, "I'd expect you to pay the postage because I'd be payin' you more than they was really worth!"

It so happened that I never did get into the mood to sell the "books." They are still in my possession, but destined to find an eventual resting place in the Library of Congress. And I'm now starting work on a third big volume, although it becomes harder as time goes on to find phonograph and record advertising that I don't already have.

However, one delightful "blurb" has just come my way and furnished the inspiration for this article. Recently I obtained a bound volume of the Saturday Evening Post for April through June, 1912, and on pages 48 and 49 of the April 6 issue the old Columbia Phonograph Company really spread itself. The advertisement gives a list of the 24 "best records" — all Columbias, of course, and the text is enlightening.

II. Columbia's "Best" Records

I'm sure I can't find any better way of doing justice to this 53-year-old specimen of masterful paid publicity than by quoting most of page 48. Under a heading of "An Offer of 'the 24 Best Records,'" the advertisement says: — — — — —

"Every few days we discover that we have again produced 'absolutely the one best record ever made.'"

"First we hear from Mr. Henry Russell, director of the Boston Opera and our Consulting Director of Opera, whose opinion is authoritative; then we open a letter from a Columbia dealer, who judges every record issued—everybody's records—by the sales standard."

"Then the boy brings in a telegram from one of our wholesale branch managers, who is fairly sure to know what he likes, and why. Then we receive an enthusiastic message from our own laboratory superintendent, whose enthusiasm is not at all easily aroused. Then come congratulations from our cold-blooded musical critic, whose business is to find faults. And so on."

"Now: We have been quietly filing these testimonials for some time, and we have listed below 24 records that constitute a musical series entirely unique in the opinion of its several sponsors."

"Every record buyer is entitled to his own opinion—and we have noticed that the average buyer would say so, if we didn't. But a series of records with such endorsements to recommend them must have extraordinary interest for you—and we are paying $4,000 for this half of this $8,000 announcement to suggest that you make it a point to have your dealer play them for you, or send them all—or any one of them—to your home on approval, if he operates that way, as many Columbia dealers do."

Notice that this list of Columbia records, like my scrapbooks, is "unique!" The introduction I have quoted is followed by a statement that Columbia Double-Disc Records range in price from 65 cents up to $7.50, and are intended for "Columbia Grafonolas and Graphophones; and for all other disc talking machines."

Columbia emphasized that Columbia records could be played on Victor machines.

Victor refrained from statements that its "platters" could be played on any instruments other than Victors or "the genuine Victor-Victrola." The word "Columbia" never got mentioned in Victor advertising!

Earlier, Columbia had emphasized that its cylinders could be played on Edison machines.

Then followed the text of the once-familiar Columbia "guarantee:"

"We guarantee to every purchaser of Columbia Double-Disc Records that the material used in their composition is of better quality, finer surface and more durable texture than that entering into the manufacture of disc records of any other make, regardless of their cost. We further guarantee that their reproducing qualities are superior to those of any other disc records on the market and that their life is longer than that of any other disc record, under any name, or any price."

Perhaps by coincidence, this guarantee was dropped after Pathe began marketing in this country a hill-and-dale record guaranteed to play 1,000 times without damage, and after Edison produced the Diamond Disc, which was played 6,000 times in laboratory tests with no signs of wear.

Following the "guarantee" came "the list of 12 Ten-Inch Records" (24 Selections) with the statement that "any one of these Records (will be) delivered by your dealer at the price named—or the complete series for $8.65."

First was a 65-cent, double-faced record, 587, "The Herd Girl's Dream," which received an impressive "plug." "This selection has already had the largest sale of any record in the world." It was a violin, flute, and harp trio by George Stehl, Marshall P. Lufsky, and Paul Surth; coupled with "Invincible Eagle March," a banjo solo by Vess L. Ossman.

I wonder about the statement that this had been the world's biggest selling record. Columbia, for one thing, couldn't possibly have had the sales figures of all its competitors at home and abroad.

For another, I don't believe any disc record, which had been on sale only from 1909 to early in 1912, could have equalled the totals of some Edison two-minute cylinders during the cylinders' great days.

I also believe the Columbia catalog contained many other titles, such as "The Preacher and the Bear," "Turkey in the Straw," some of the Uncle Josh sketches, and the Collins and Harlan comic duets, that would have appealed to a much larger proportion of the record buyers of that day than "The Herd Girl's Dream."

Columbia, however, advertised it as the Company's biggest seller and, after all, the maker should know. But huge success or not, it seldom turns up nowadays in second-hand stores.

And it's amusing to notice how good old "Plunks" Ossman managed to latch on to outstanding records. It was his 1902 version of "Tell Me Pretty Maiden" that was pressed (by mistake) on the one billionth Victor record. And here he was, holding down one side of "the biggest selling record in the world."

In second place came another 65-cent record, A835, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and "Nelly Was a Lady," sung by that fine counter-tenor, Frank M. Coombs. On this page 48 were copies of the label of both sides of the Coombs record.

The 10 remaining 10-inch records were listed in the following order: "Juanita" (A903, 75 cents), sung by Archibald Brothers Quartet, and "The Two Roses," also by the Archibalds.

"Hungarian Dance No. 5 (A1095, 65 cent), and "Hungarian Dance No. 6," both by Charles A. Prince's Orchestra.

"Constantly" (A915, 75 cents), and "I'll Lend You Anything I've Got Except My Wife," comic songs by Bert Williams.

"Cooper's Song" from "Boccacio" (A1070, $1), and "Vaquero's Song" from "Natoma," both sung by Cecil Fanning, baritone. I never have found a copy of this record, but I hasten to add that it is not an invaluable rarity!

"The Rosary" (A227, 65 cents), violoncello solo by Victor Solrin; and "Motor March," Vess Ossman again. (These were old recordings which had been in the Columbia catalog for years, so their eminence must have been due to something other than perfect sound production.)

"On the Bank of Allan Water" (A1103, 75 cents), soprano solo by Grace Kerns; and "Irish Lullaby," soprano solo by Beulah Gaylord Young, who, today, is Mrs. Charles Harrison.

"Love's Old Sweet Song" (A968, 75 cents), violin, 'cello, and harp trio by Stehl, Richard and Schuetze; with "Song Without Words," harp solo by Charles Schuetze. (Why did this trio cost 75 cents when "the biggest selling record in the world" by a similar group was only 65 cents?)

"Holy City" (A242, 65 cents), tenor solo by Henry Burr; and "Take the Name of Jesus With You," baritone and tenor duet by James F. Harrison and Harry Anthony. This entry gave me pause and caused me to do some investigating.

I knew that "The Holy City" was one of the first records Burr made for Columbia, and when I looked it up I found it was originally single-faced disc 60, among the earliest issued by Columbia when it began making the flat records in 1902.

By the time this ad appeared, however, Burr had remade the record with master number 19355. Even so, the duet side remained unchanged, as it originally had been made in 1906.

"Beauty's Eyes" (A941, 75 cents), and "Forgotten," tenor solos by Reed Miller.

"Liberty Bell March" (A118, 65 cents), and "Manisot March," played by Columbia Band. These also were among the very earliest Columbia discs, but most of the early band records had been remade by 1912, and I imagine that was true here.

(To be continued in May issue)

— o —

Plum Joined Up

"Perfect Personality." — Many HOBBIES readers say they enjoy Jim Walsh's incidental references to his family of cats as much as they do his articles about Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists.

"Precious Plum"

For their benefit we are printing a likeness of "Plum," the latest addition to Jim's family, who is called "The Perfect Personality" because, Jim says, he has been unable to detect any flaw in him.

Plum "joined up" last October 27 and was named for Jim's friend, P. G. Wodehouse, the famous humorist, who is known to his friends as "Plum."

This picture was taken from an oil painting which Ross (Pat) Fortner, a clever young artist of Jonesville, Va., who is studying with the Famous Artists' School, made from a snapshot Walsh had sent to a HOBBIES enthusiast, Mrs. Lucie Jenkins of Rose Hill, Va.

Mrs. Jenkins liked Plum's looks so much she had the painting made as a surprise gift to Jim — "the most appreciated present," he says, "that I received."

CHICAGO ANTIQUES EXPOSITION & COLLECTORS' FAIR

May 6, 7, 8, 9, 10

at the

Conrad Hilton

Sponsored by HOBBIES

Charles Marston, Show Mgr.

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954. ap126121

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS Rebuilding the Player Piano $6.95. Player Piano Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15. (See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid. — Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N.Y. 13850. o120652

RARE PIANOLA for sale, good condition, best offer. — Louis Kennedy, 70 Cunningham Drive, New Smyrna Beach, Fla. je3882

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3151 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. s12238

SHEET MUSIC, several thousand old popular songs very low priced, any size order, private party. — McNeill, 1117 South Taylor Ave., Oak Park, Ill. my3253

SHEET MUSIC: 200,000 original copy old popular songs collection A-Z order but no list. Write R. Greenlau, 307 No. Rampart Blvd., Los Angeles 28, Calif. Room 412. je6046

MUSIC REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. ap6276

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

A BOXWOOD CLARINET in (C), made in London, Eng., by H. Oppenheim, circa 1800. It breaks down into 6 joint pcs. The joints have genuine ivory rings on the end. The clarinet has 6 squared brass keys. This instrument is in perfect playing condition. Appraised at $1500. Will negotiate. — Bruce T. Scott, 433 Main St., Ripley, Ohio 45167. my3449

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

Wanted: Antique Edison cylinder phonographs any model, complete or incomplete. Also parts, catalogs. State fully what you have and your prices. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond, Va. 23231. ap1232

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

PHONOGRAPH items galore in our spanking new catalog No. 6. Parts, repairs, needle-heads; you name it. Get your copy today, 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. ap3464

OUTSIDE HORN phonograph, all types. Coin phonographs. Send 25c for list. Records, parts, repairs. Old penny arcade machines, 25c for list. Early battery radios. — Wayne Warren, 24361 Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543. my3694

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8. (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

The "24 Best (Columbia) Records"

By JIM WALSH

PART II

As I reported in the April issue of HOBBIES, 10 or more years ago I collected phonograph and record advertising from all available old magazines dating from around 1890 to 1925, or later, and had these advertisements bound into two fat volumes of unique historical value.

Now I am starting work on a third volume.

It is harder to find phonograph and record advertising as time goes on. But in a recently found bound volume April through June of the Saturday Evening Post, 1912, the April 6th issue, pages 48 and 49, had an old Columbia Phonograph Company advertisement which inspired this article.

Here we come to a list of the 12 best 12-inch records, and it contains considerable material that will interest enthusiasts for the admirable department conducted by my co-laborer, Aida Favia Artsay.

It just happens that some years ago I obtained several large posters of Columbia operatic artists, and can use reprints of some of them to illustrate this article. I'm not supposed to trench on opera, but I'm sure that in this instance Aida won't mind!

Here goes.

"Isolde's Liebestod," from "Tristan and Isolde," (Single-Disc 30652, $3), sung by Lillian Nordica in German.

"Liberte!" from "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," and "Il Est Doux, Il Est Bon," from "Herodiade," (Double-Disc A5289, $3), both sung in French by Mary Garden, soprano.

"Dich Theure Halle," from "Tannhauser," and "Elsa's Traum," from "Lohengrin," (A5281, $3), both sung in German by Olive Fremstad, soprano.

"The Last Rose of Summer," and "Home, Sweet Home," (A5283, $3), both sung by Alice Neilsen, soprano.

Alice Neilsen, a native of Nashville, Tenn., was one of the very early recording artists. With her Alice Neilsen Quartet she made Berliner discs in the 1890's.

"Home to Our Mountains," from "Il Trovatore," and "While Yet in Languishment," (what a title!) from "Trovatore," (A5370, $4), duets in Italian by Giovanni Zenatello and his wife, Maria Gay.

"Mary of Argyle," and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," (A5132, $1.50), baritone solos by David Bispham.

"Thou Brilliant Bird," from "Pearl of Brazil," and "O Luce di quest' Anima," from "Linda Di Chamounix," sung in Italian by Bernice de Pasquali, soprano.

"Ever Of Thee," and "Angel's Serenade," (A5244, $1.25), contralto solos by Margaret Keyes.

"Scenes That Are Brightest," (A5159, $1), trio by Stehl, Lufsky, and Scheutze (those boys really made the list!), with the "Intermezzo," from "Cavalleria Rusticana," by Prince's Orchestra.

"O Terra Addio," from "Aida," (A5331, $1.25), by the Columbia Italian Opera Company, with "Selections from 'Aida,' by Prince's Orchestra.

"The Last Hope," and "Gloria from Mozart's Twelfth Mass," (A5355, $1), played by Prince's Band.

"Barcarolle," from "Tales of Hoffman," (A5274, $1.25), duet by Idelle Patterson, soprano, and Margaret Keyes, contralto; and "Schubert's Serenade," duet by Miss Patterson, soprano, and George Clarence Jell, bass-baritone.

(Incidentally, my old friend, Mr. Jell, who was living in Memphis, Tenn., the last time I heard from him a good many years ago, was manager of the Columbia artist and repertoire department.)

People who really wanted to spend money on records were informed they could obtain the complete 12-inch set for $26.25.

And now we have a charming paragraph at the bottom of the page, which I feel it my bounden duty to quote:

"Whether or not there can be such a thing as an authoritative choice of records, certainly no list of similar endorsement has ever been scheduled before. But you will be interested to know that well-informed musical enthusiasts have time and again named to us their one preference among all the records ever made anywhere as the 'Mad Scene,' from 'Lucia Di Lammermoor,' sung by Lydia Lipkowska; the 'Shepherd's Song,' from 'Tannhauser,' sung by Roza Olitzka; 'One Fine Day,' from 'Madame Butterfly,' sung by Carolina White; 'Ave Signor,' from 'Mefistofele,' sung by Jose Mardones; 'Die Beiden Grenadiere,' sung by Alexander Heinemann; 'Prelude in C Sharp Minor,' piano solo by Josef Hoffmann; 'Polish Dance,' piano solo by Xaver Scharwenka; 'Ernani, Fly With Me,'

From left to right, top to bottom:

Alice Neilsen, early recording artist from Nashville, Tenn.

David Bispham, distinguished American baritone, had two renditions of old songs in Columbia's 1912 list of "best recordings."

Florence Constantino's Columbia record of "La Paloma" was highly praised.

Lina Cavalieri, "the most beautiful woman on the operatic stage," was a popular Columbia artist more than 50 years ago.

from 'Ernani,' sung by Celestina Boninsegna; 'Caro Nome,' from 'Rigoletto,' sung by Eugenie Bronskaja; 'Nearer, My God, to Thee,' played by Creator's Band; 'Festival Overture,' played by Russian Symphony Orchestra; Vocal Gems from 'The Mikado,' sung by the Columbia Light Opera Company; 'Saved By Grace,' sung by Gipsy Smith; Liszt's 'Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2,' played by Prince's Band; 'La Paloma,' sung by Florencio Constantino; and 'Maria-Maria,' sung by Lina Cavalieri.

"All these records are listed in the new 200-page book of Columbia Double-Record Records which we will send you free. Write for our 'recommended' list of best records of sacred music, best records of music for the dance, best records of standard ballads, best records of instrumental solos, best comic records and best record novelties."

The page closes with the thrice-familiar assertion that the Columbia Company were "creators of the talking machine industry, pioneers and leaders of the talking machine art, owners of the fundamental patents, and largest manufacturers of talking machines in the world."

Space limitations prevent going into detail about the contents of page 49, which was devoted to an offer to sell the table model Columbia "Favorite" Grafonola and 12 double-disc records for $59 cash or $7 down and $5 a month — "no interest; no extras."

The following appeared in conspicuous type:

"The 24 selections on the 12 double-disc records include the famous 'Rigoletto' Quartet and also the splendid 'Lucia' Sextet, for which two selections alone, many talking machine owners have had to pay $13. Or your own selection of records to the same value will be supplied. (Record album extra, 10-inch, $1.50; 12-inch, $1.75.)"

The reference to the Rigoletto Quartet and the Lucia Sextet of course was a reminder that Victor's price was $6 for the first, and $7 for the second, as sung by Caruso and other notable artists.

The Columbia offerings either were sung in English by regular Columbia staff members or in Italian by performers who did not equal in fame, the Victor delegation!

The End

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 36)

We have located a payment notation for Mrs. Rappold's Orchestra on March 15, 1906. This is the only such notation in a span of time from early 1906 through early 1907.

I believe that all titles were made at the same time and held in order to be released as portions of numerical blocks of 10.

New York. Probably recorded on March 15, 1906:

B 21 Ave Maria (Gounod). Released 8/06.

B 33 Lohengrin: Euch luffen, die mein Klagen. Rel.

11/08.

B 43 Tannhauser: Allmacht'ge Jungfrau. Rel. 2/07.

Four-Minute:

Here, again, we have problems. The contract summarizes that Mr. Hayes kept, state: "Made 8 cylinders in Berlin."

Since Rappold's contract began on April 1, 1910, it is probable that the following are the recordings.

But we only have listings for 5.

We do not, at present, know what the other titles were, nor do we know if cylinder masters still exist for them.

Berlin (?) Probably recorded in 1910 and released later:

30033 II Trovatore: D'amor sull'ali rosee. Rel. 1/11.

30038 Lohengrin: Elsas Traum. Rel. 2/11.

30039 Aida: O ciel azzurri. Rel. 3/11.

30044 Chanson Provencale (dell'Acqua). Rel. 4/11.

30047 Freischütz: Wie nahe mir der Schlummer.

Rel. 5/11.

New York. Date assignments are tentative as for title. It is also possible that some of these may be the missing 3 Berlin titles:

10-19-11 28005 Ave Maria (w. Spalding). Paid $150 for this and a disc? Rel. 2/12.

11-28-11 28006 Last Rose of Summer. Paid $200 for this and a disc? Rel. 2/12.
1-3-12 28008 Agnus Dei. Paid $200 (probably also for a disc or another cylinder) Rel. 3/12.
1-26-12 28013 Sing, Smile, Slumber. Paid $200 for 2 cylinders. Possibly the other was either 28029
or 28210.
4-6-12 28024 Tales of Hoffman: Barcarole (w.
Thomas Chalmers) Paid $100. Rel. 8/12.
8/12.
28029 Robin Hood: Oh, Promise Me. Rel.

With the coming of the Blue Amberol and Royal Purple Amberol celluloid cylinders, many of the above were renumbered if they were retained. The renumberings are as follows:

28024 became 28101
28005 became 28106
30047 became 28117
28029 became 28165
28008 became 28171
28013 became 28175
30038 became 28187
28006 became 28193

The 23210 O Lord, Be Merciful is obviously not a disc dubbing and there is no earlier cylinder listing of this title. It probably is either from the 1/13/12 or the 1/26/12 session.

The remaining cylinder numbers are dubbings from discs although some were not published in disc form.

DISC RECORDINGS

Note that the early discs were called Specials to segregate them from cylinders.

Mr. Hayes' contract summaries provide some problems. Numbers 186 through 274 total 10 recordings but seem to fall in 2 to 3 groups. Possibly London and Paris.

But Mr. Hayes' summary states [Made] "10
Specials in Paris."

Paris, 1910. (Contract commenced 4/1/10):

186 Faust: Air des Bijoux. 12". Takes S1 & S2.

188 Tosca: Vissi d'arte. 12". Takes S1 & S2. The mold exists of S2. There is a test on ED12-59.

189 Tannhauser: Dich, theure Halle. 12". Takes S1,

S2 and S3. The mold exists of S1 & S3.

171 Carmen: Air de Micaela. 12". Takes S1 & S2.

The mold still exists of S2. There is a test on ED12-62.

Paris or London, 1910. (Surrounding numbers seem to be of London origin. See above):

195 Lohengrin: Elsas Traum. 12". Takes S1 & S2.

The waxes never were processed and still exist at the Edison National Historic Site.

198 Aida: O Patria Mia.

204 Tannhauser: Elisabeths Gebet. 12". Takes S1 &

S2. The wax still exists. There is a mold of S2.

205 Aida: Ritorna vincitor. 12". Takes S1 & S2. The wax still exists of S1.

Recorded in (?) 1910:

232 Ave Maria (Gounod) (w. Spalding). 12".

Paris, 1910:

274 Trovatore: D'amor sull'ali rosee.

New York:

598 Otello: Gia nella notte densa-Pt. 2 (w.

Leo Slezak). 10". Takes S1, S2 & S3. Rel. by

Edison. 6/23/14.

4/ 7/11 607 Otello: Gia nella notte densa-Pt.1 (w.

Leo Slezak). 12". Takes S1, S2 & S3. Master

waxes still exist of S1 & S2; a mold exists of

S3. Mrs. Rappold was paid $200. Probably for this and 596 since there is no payment recorded for 596

10/19/11 or

10/30/11 837 Last Rose of Summer. 10". Takes S1

& S2. Mold changed to Rel. by Edison. I cannot be certain since Mrs. Rappold was paid $150 for a cylinder and a disc on 10/19/11 and paid $200 for discs on 10/30/11.

10/30/11 840 Calm As the Night. Takes S1 & S2.

Rel. by Edison in 1914.

11/ 6/11 845 Otello: Ave Maria. Takes S1 & S2.

1/ 3/12 851 Agnus Dei. Probably made this at the same time as the cylinder.

Where I have noted that the original mold exists the molds are currently not usable.

In the mid-1920's it was discovered that many of the molds were suffering damage in handling and so it became the Company's policy to plate them and strip them when needed. Such stripping would be needed today in order to utilize any of the molds.

(To be continued)

MUSIC BOXES FOR SALE

SWISS MUSIC BOX. 6" cylinder. Plays
6 tunes. Walnut inlaid case with hand painted flowers in center. 8x16". Fine condition. $116.—Edna Shapiro Antiques,
37-27 76th St., Jackson Hts., N.Y. 11372
TW 9-3027. my1652

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 1 1/2" $3;
1 5/8" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage.—Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. s6468

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser,
203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954. ap12087

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS. Rebuilding
the Player Piano $6.95. Player Piano
Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15.
(See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid.—Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N.Y. 13850.
o120652

RARE PIANOLA for sale, good condition, best offer. — Louis Kennedy, 70
Cunningham Drive, New Smyrna Beach,
Fla. j83882

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850.
Catalog 20c.—Fore's, 3151 High, Denver,
Colorado. 80205. s12238

USED sheet music, late 1800's to date;
choose from thousands, any size order, reasonable. — McNeill, 1117 S. Taylor
Ave., Oak Park, Ill. my3253

SHEET MUSIC: 200,000 original copy old popular songs collection A-Z order but no list. Write R. Greenlaw, 307 No.
Rampart Blvd., Los Angeles 26, Calif.
Room 412. j66046

OLD SHEET MUSIC. 4 for $1 pp. Complete, good condition, early 1900's, ballads, military, stage music. — Merritt's
Museum of Early Americana, R. D. 2,
Douglassville, Pa. 19518. jly3614

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS FOR SALE

A BOXWOOD CLARINET in (C), made in London, Eng., by H. Oppenheim, circa 1800. It breaks down into 6 joint pcs. The joints have genuine ivory rings on the end. The clarinet has 6 squared brass keys. This instrument is in perfect playing condition. Appraised at $1500. Will negotiate. — Bruce
T. Scott, 433 Main St., Ripley, Ohio
45167. my3449

PHONOGRAPHS WANTED

WANTED: Old horn type Edison and Victor phonographs, other musical instruments. Wanted list one dime. — Nugent, 3804 Charles City Road, Richmond, Va. my1571

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

PHONOGRAPH items galore in our spanking new catalog No. 6. Parts, repairs, needle-heads; you name it. Get your copy today, 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Rd., Santa Barbara, Calif. jly3464

OUTSIDE HORN phonograph, all types. Coin phonographs. Send 25c for list. Records, parts, repairs. Old penny arcade machines, 25c for list. Early battery radios. — Wayne Warren, 24361
Eden Ave., Hayward, Calif. 94543.
my3694

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8.
(Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

"Re-Coupled Victor Records"

By JIM WALSH

PART I

Nearly 59 years ago on October 20, 1908, the Victor Talking Machine Company issued its first list of double-faced Black Label records — 100 10-inch and 25 12-inch.

Victor had a strong objection to changing from the prevailing custom of making disc records that played on only one side. However, the company felt obliged to enter the double-faced field in order to meet the competition of Columbia, which had revised its entire catalog to double-faced status shortly before.

But with the double-faced list went an irascible form letter, telling Victor dealers the new style of record was being issued only to reduce Columbia's sales volume and urging the dealers not to sell double-faced discs except when they couldn't avoid it.

Three years later the double-faced record obviously was sweeping the field and was well on its way to making the single-faced Black Label type obsolete, although some remained in the Victor catalog in gradually diminishing quantities, until 1920. Double-faced Red Seal records were not announced until September, 1923.

By October, 1911, more than 900 10-inch and over 200 12-inch double-faced records were listed in the Victor catalog. But approximately 140 of the 10-inch were in foreign languages and had virtually no interest for the average buyer.

A hurried count indicates that 48 of the off-beat records were Bohemian; 26, Italian; 17, Hebrew; 11, German; 10, Hungarian; 10, Neapolitan; nine, Finnish; two, French, and one, Swedish.

Up to this time Victor apparently did not have a separate numbering system for double-faced "foreign" records. Now one was adopted, and it became rare for records in languages other than English to appear among the regular Black Label issues.

About this time, too, the Company took stock of its double-faced catalog and decided that many of the records had been carelessly or inappropriately coupled and that the popularity of some which should be big sellers was being handicapped by poor matings.

It was decided to do something about this. Consequently, the following appeared in the Voice of The Victor for October, 1911:

"THE NEW COMBINATIONS OF DOUBLE-FACED POPULAR AND FOREIGN RECORDS. On September 26th you were mailed an announcement of 47 popular combinations of Victor Double-Faced Records, and also 50 Double-Faced Foreign Records in French, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Bohemian, Hungarian, and Italian, all to go on sale October 28th.

"We want to again call your attention to these two splendid lists. The list of double-faced popular records is made up of new combinations of some of the most popular numbers we have ever issued, and this re-combining of double-faced records is done with the idea of improving the sale of very many of these good numbers whose sale has been handicapped by the selection on the reverse side.

"You will find that we have endeavored to combine two records of the same character, believing that in so doing each selection will help the sale of the other.

"The records heretofore listed with any of these selections, whether single-faced or double-faced, will eventually be cut out and therefore will in all probability be returnable to us on some future record exchange.

"The same idea is carried out in combining the list of double-faced foreign records, which is made up from single-faced foreign records heretofore listed in special foreign lists."

I cannot recall that I ever have seen one of the special supplements which listed the re-coupled Black Label records in the 16000 series. But these new combinations obviously constitute a grouping in the May, 1912, numerical Victor list.

When it occurred to me that it would be interesting to publish a list of the original couplings, followed by the altered group, I was puzzled at being able to find only 46 re-coupled records instead of the 47 mentioned in the announcement.

Eventually I discovered that in Versatile Performer. For about a decade, beginning in 1898, Harry Macdonough was the most popular tenor ballad singer making records. He was the second tenor of the Hayden, Edison, and Orpheus Quartets. After World War I, he was sales manager and then artist and repertoire department director for the Victor Talking Machine Co. From 1926 until his death in 1931 he was a Columbia recording director. Several of his records were in Victor's 1911 list of re-couplings.

the numerical list, which begins with 16914 and ends with 16960, number 16930 is missing.

That omission presents a puzzle. Presumably 16930 was a part of the special grouping, but it is odd that a record which was popular enough to be given a new coupling was cut out of the catalog a few months later.

Monroe Silver, who recorded hundreds of "Cohen" monologs, is shown here with Frank Banta, pianist, during a tour of the eight famous Victor artists. They are almost dwarfed by the Victor trademark. A record made by Silver in 1911 is in the re-coupled list.

Talented Group. This group of six early recording artists and one of their admirers was photographed in September, 1947, at the Hempstead, N.Y., home of the late John Bieling. From left to right: Walter Van Brunt (Walter Scantlan), Billy Murray, Will Oakland, Eugene C. Rose, Mr. Bieling, John L. Norton, Jr., and Irving Kaufman. Only Van Brunt and Kaufman are still living. Records in which Van Brunt, Murray, Oakland, and Bieling took part were included in Victor's October, 1911, re-coupling.

With most of my reference material being rebound at the Library of Congress, I have been unable to find any trace of 16930. Hence, the list which follows is one record short.

A survey of the originally coupled records, when compared to the re-coupled, reveals some interesting things. One is that Arthur Pryor's Band has a dominant place in the re-couplings.

Another point of interest is that, in order to complete the 47 new doubles, more than a dozen previously single-faced records, which had not previously appeared in double-faced form, were used.

One song which apparently had not previously been issued, "They're All Good American Names," and which recited the names of famous baseball players in the chorus, was used as the coupling for a previously issued Eddie Morton record.

I'd like to get a copy of it, number 16938. I believe "I Love It" also had not been previously issued.

Comparatively few of the older titles were dropped. Most merely were given different pairings. Thus, two xylophone solos by William H. Reitz, which had been on the backs of popular medleys played by Pryor's Band, were reissued together.

Incidentally, it seems odd that Pryor's Popular Medleys 2 and 3 were coupled together, instead of Medleys 1 and 2. Number 1 was combined, on 16376, with Will Oakland singing "When the Autumn Moon Is Creeping Thro' the Woodlands" — surely as inappropriate a double as many that were changed. But it remained unaltered.

Similarly, why were minstrel records numbers 14 and 15 combined, instead of 13 and 14? Buyers of double-faced discs must have been puzzled by the order in which the minstrel series was issued, for 14 came first, followed by 11 and 15. These previously had been single-sided and were picked up rather haphazardly and combined on double-faced.

None of the original Victor couplings reached the incongruousness of many of the early Columbias. As a rule, most, but not quite all, of the new couplings seem more logical than the old.

Especially poor couplings were on 16608, with "That Italian Rag," (Billy Murray), and an old-fashioned sentimental song, "Wait Till the Clouds Roll By," (Will Oakland); 16706, "I Won't Be Back Till August" (Eddie Morton), and "Avenger March" (Pryor's Band); 16768, "It Looks Like a Big Night Tonight" (Murray), and "Christmas Morning at Clancy's" (Steve Porter); 16789, "In the Sunshine Of Your Love" (Harry MacDonough), and "Society Swing" (Pryor's Band); and 16790, "Sweet Italian Love" (Murray), and "Fascinator March" (Pryor's Band).

The two sides of these numbers and several others had no points of resemblance.

It is hard to see why some of the original couplings were dropped. Why should one of Harry Von Tilzer's brightest and catchiest Negro dialect songs, "Oh, Oh, Miss Lucy Ella," sung by Collins and Harlin have hampered the sale of Victor Minstrel 14? And Frank C. Stanley, singing an Ernest Ball ballad, "From Your Dear Heart to Mine," should not have slowed the sale of "Mollie Darling."

Edgar L. Davenport's recitation of "Jim Bludsoe" did not go very well with Bill Hooley's basso profundo "Asleep in the Deep," but it is rather surprising that "Bludsoe," which had

(Continued on page 48)

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage. — Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. s6468

MUSIC WANTED

Old phonographs, music boxes & parts. Any condition. Describe fully. Also 20½" discs for Komet. — S. Leonard, 12 Garden St., Great Neck, N.Y. 11020 my124032

REPAIRS

NEW PEP for your reed organ or melodeon. Reeds cleaned, revoiced and tuned. Replacements. — C. H. Gunzinger, Box 276, Williamsville, Vt. n6276

MISCELLANEOUS MUSIC

ALL CYLINDER and outside horn disc phonographs, parts, reproducers, records, bought, sold, repaired. — Dave Houser, 203 Fifth, Minersville, Pa. 17954. ap120821

PLAYER PIANO BOOKS Rebuilding the Player Piano $6.95. Player Piano Treasury $10. Put Another Nickel In $15. (See review of this, p. 110, Sept. 1966 HOBBIES.) Satisfaction guaranteed. Ask for catalog of other books. Prices postpaid. — Vestal Press, Vestal 2, N.Y. 13850. ol20652

RARE PIANOLA for sale, good condition, best offer. — Louis Kennedy, 70 Cunningham Drive, New Smyrna Beach, Fla. je3882

For Sale: Multiphone cylinder jukebox. 50c for photo, refundable. Copy of Dr. Deakin Blue Amberol Index, $7.50. Want to buy any parts for coin phonos and all horn type phonos. Also all types of horn phonos & cylinder record can possibly pick up. No packing required. Ph.: 213 — 695-0487. — Jesse Jones, 7651 Westman, Whittier, Calif. 90606 au30231

SHEET MUSIC FOR SALE

BACK POPULAR sheet music to 1850. Catalog 20c. — Fore's, 3161 High, Denver, Colorado. 80205. al2238

USED sheet music, late 1800's to date; choose from thousands, any size order, reasonable. — McNeill, 1117 S. Taylor Ave., Oak Park, Ill. au3253

SHEET MUSIC: 200,000 original copy old popular songs collection A-2 order but no list. Write R. Greenau, 807 No. Rampart Blvd., Los Angeles 26, Calif. Room 412. je6046

OLD SHEET MUSIC. 4 for $1 pp. Complete, good condition, early 1900's, ballads, military, stage music. — Merritt's Museum of Early Americana, R. D. 2, Douglassville, Pa. 19518 jly3614

PHONOGRAPHS FOR SALE

PHONOGRAPH parts, accessories & service catalog No. 7 just off the press. Largest anywhere; you name it, we sell it. Solves all phonograph problems. Copy 25c. — Frick Phonographs, 940 Canon Road, Santa Barbara, Calif. au3443

Swiss music box with moving figures.

—Courtesy Mrs. C. R. Kears' Museum,
Egg Harbor City, N.J.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

been a popular single-faced disc, did not get another mating.

"The Swiss Boy," a cornet duet by such great players as Herbert L. Clarke and Emil Keneke, should have survived after being removed as the partner of a John Kimmel accordion solo.

On the other hand, it is understandable that a poorly recorded saxophone version which I have of "Old Folks at Home" by one of the earliest Victor artists, Jean Moeremans (his instrumental quartet had some records in the February, 1902, Victor catalog) hampered a duet version of "The Larboard Watch."

Probably Murray's "It Looks Like a Big Night Tonight" was discontinued because there was a Clarice Vance record of the same song coupled with her popular "Mariar."

Despite the re-couplings, some of the original combinations remained in the catalog for years afterward. There was enough demand for "Steamboat Bill" to cause both the old number, 16867, and the new one, 16937, to sell steadily.

The same thing was true of 16870, which coupled "The Mississippi Dippy Dip" and "Clancy's Wooden Wedding;" and 16936, that combined the "Wooden Wedding" and "Christmas Morning at Clancy's."

One or two other examples might be cited. But next month we will consider the lists.

(To be continued)

MIMI'S DOLLS

915 West Front St., Plainfield, N.J.

ANTIQUÉ & UNUSUAL DOLLS
"TELL ME WHAT YOU WANT"

Mrs. A. L. (Mimi) Franko

Phone 201 - 756-6731 or 201 - 756-1342

Write or phone for appointment.

flp

DOLLS!

A THRILLING
CAREER AWAITS YOU

We teach you at home how to operate a Doll Hospital, repair, dress, make and sell all kinds of dolls and accessories.

Start your own part or full time profitable business

—we show you how. Or, enjoy an enchanting hobby.

Our easy-to-understand lessons with detailed illustrations, guide you step by step. We show you how to create new dolls; appraise, price and restore antique dolls; repair modern dolls—turn your spare time into cash.

Opportunities everywhere. Low monthly payments—we show you how to earn money to pay for your training while you are learning. Certificate awarded.

ACCREDITED MEMBER NATIONAL HOME STUDY COUNCIL.

May we send FREE and without obligation the information on our fascinating home study course? For an exciting future, MAIL COUPON NOW!

Norm & Sue Morris

LIFETIME CAREER SCHOOLS • Dept. D-88

2251 Barry Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. 90064

Please rush information.

Name _____

Address _____

City _____

State _____

ZIP _____

tfo

EDYTHE MITCHELL — Little Travelers Antique Shop

Berlin Tpk. at Middletown Rd., U.S. Rt. 5 & Conn. 15 - Berlin, Conn. 06037

CHOICE OLD DOLLS and BEAUTIFUL OLD MATERIAL

Brocades, Silks, Laces, Ribbons, feathers, trimmings, miniature buttons, everything to dress your dolls in authentic period costumes. Doll accessories, Fine Adult Period costumes. Approvals. Bound volumes Godey & Peterson magazines with color fashion prints, 1839-92. Women's and children's car clothes, centennial costumes. No lists, write your wants, stamp please.

SPECIAL: We continue the wonderful deluxe $10 and $15 boxes of antique materials, laces, buttons, etc. They contain everything dainty and choice sufficient to completely dress several good dolls. Add sufficient postage, excess refunded.

tfc

17" FRENCH FASHION DOLLS — $75 EACH

Quantity Limited — No Layaway

Bisque swivel head on shoulder plate. Paperweight set in eyes. Kid body. Arms. Mohair wig. Dressed. Excellent condition. Parcel post, insurance, handling $1.25 extra.

Dolls arriving monthly from France include such rare dolls as Bru, French Fashion, Farians, Jumeau, F.G., R.D., F.G., French and German Mechanicals, Bebe Chesland, Huret, etc.

Also ½ Century of Professional Doll Restoration

NEW YORK DOLL HOSPITAL

738 Lexington Avenue

New York, N.Y. 10022

nc

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

"Re-Coupled Victor Records"

By JIM WALSH

PART II — THE LIST

In the June issue of HOBBIES Magazine we discussed "Re-Coupled" Victor Records. We promised in this issue (July) to consider the lists.

First we have the original single-faced records that were selected as pairings for the revised double-faced list. After them came the original double-faced pairings. Finally we have the revised, double-faced couplings.

ORIGINAL SINGLE-FACED

- 1445 Valse Bleue (Sousa's Band)
- 2693 Indian Medley (Pryor's Orchestra)
- 4678 Lights Out March (Pryor's Band)
- 5000 Uncle Josh at the Roller Skating Rink (Cal Stewart)
- 5369 Dream Waltz — "A Waltz Dream" (Victor Orchestra)
- 5639 Under the Double Eagle March (Sousa's Band)
- 5657 Glow Worm (Elizabeth Wheeler)
- 5685 Amlna — Sereade (Pryor's Band)
- 5690 Marsovia Waltzes (United States Marine Band)
- 5777 Apache Dance (Black Diamonds Band of London)
- 5791 Mr. Rooster (Pryor's Band)
- 5792 Second Chasseurs March (Garde Republicaine Band)
- 5814 Winter (Hayden Quartet)

ORIGINAL DOUBLE-FACED

- 16022 Morning in Noah's Ark (Pryor's Band)
- 16042 Oh, Oh, Miss Lucy Ella (Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan)/Victor Minstrels 14 (Victor Minstrel Co.)
- 16115 Violette Waltz (Victor Dance Orchestra)/Garden of Dreams (Elise Stevenson and Harry MacDonough)
- 16118 From Your Dear Heart to Mine (Frank C. Stanley)/Mollie Darling (Hayden Quartet)
- 16142 Hard Times (Hayden Quartet)/Artillerist's Oath (Peerless Quartet)
- 16189 Victor Minstrels 11 (Victor Minstrel Co.)/By the Watermelon Vine (MacDonough)

- 16263 Victor Minstrels 15 (Victor Minstrel Co.)/Do You Know Mr. Schneider? (Ada Jones)
- 16285 My Hindoo Man (Xylophone solo by Peter Lewin)/Blondy and Her Johnny (Jones and Spencer)
- 16268 Larboard Watch (MacDonough and William F. Hooley)/Old Folks at Home (Saxophone solo by Jean Moeremans)
- 16358 Ocean Breezes Waltz (Pryor's Band)/Gavotte from Paris and Helena (Victor String Quartet)
- 16400 Jim Bludsoe (Recitation by Edgar L. Davenport)/Asleep in the Deep (Hooley)
- 16421 Swiss Boy (Cornet duel by Herbert L. Clarke and Emil Keneke)/Medley of Popular Reels (Accordion solo by John J. Kimmel)
- 16476 Boccaccio March (Pryor's Band)/Winter Song (Peerless Quartet)
- 16480 Popular Medley 2 (Pryor's Band)/The Charming (Xylophone solo by William H. Reitz)
- 16481 Agnus Dei (Tenor solo in Latin by Leon Boyle)/Stabat Mater — Cujas Animam (Pryor's Band)
- 16485 Popular Medley 3 (Pryor's Band)/Love's Caprice (Reitz)
- 16493 Happy Go Lucky Two-Step (Pryor's Band)/Nalla Intermezzo (Accordion Grand solo by F. Frosini)
- 16527 Macabre — Gobble Duet (Elizabeth Wheeler and MacDonough)/Prince of Pilsen Selection (Pryor's Band)
- 16528 "Red Wing" Medley (Pryor's Band)/Katrina's Valentine (Jones and Spencer)
- 16541 Eternal Father, Strong to Save (Hayden Quartet)/Stabat Mater — Inflammatus (Pryor's Band)
- 16556 Come Be My Sunshine, Dearie (MacDonough)/The Arcadians — Favorite Melodies (Pryor's Band)
- 16559 Anniversary March (Pryor's Band)/Girl With A Brogue (Jones)
- 16561 Robin Hood — Favorite Airs (Pryor's Band)/Andante — Concerto in A Minor (Violin solo by Victor Sorlin)
- 16608 The Italian Rag (Billy Murray)/Walt Till the Clouds Roll By (Will Oakland)
- 16646 Silver Bell (Peerless Quartet)/In the Gloaming (Oakland and American Quartet)
- 16650 If He Comes In I'm Goin' Out (Eddie Morton)/A Coon's Love Song (Pryor's Band)
- 16654 Moonlight in the Forest — Dance of the Nymphs (Pryor's Band)/Old Folks at Home (Marguerite Dunlap)
- 16704 Rest of the Week She's Mine (Billy Murray)/McCarthy's Old Trombone (Recitation by Henry Allan Price)
- 16706 I Won't Be Back Till August (Eddie Morton)/Avenger March (Pryor's Band)
- 16707 Somebody Else (American Quartet)/Watermelon Morals (Price)
- 16708 Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey (Collins and Harlan)/U.S.A. Patrol (Reitz)
- 16710 Lucy-Anna-Lou (Collins and Harlan)/Minstrel Band (Pryor's Band)
- 16714 Last Night (Helen Clark)/Marche Religioso (Pryor's Band)
- 16729 Pretty Black Eyed Susan (Pryor's Band)/Yucatania Man (Collins and Harlan)
- 16768 It Looks Like a Big Night Tonight (Murray)/Christmas Morning at Clancy's (Porter)
- 16776 Iola — Intermezzo (Sousa's Band)/Peter Piper (Cossman)
- 16781 Yankee Land (Cossman)/Uncle Josh and the Fire Department (Stewart)
- 16789 In the Sunshine of Your Love (MacDonough)/Society Swing Two-Step (Pryor's Band)
- 16790 Sweet Italian Love (Murray)/Fascinator March (Pryor's Band)
- 16844 Come, Josephine, In My Flying Machine (Jones and American Quartet)/Through the Hole in the Fence (Hill)
- 16846 Bit of Drama (Hill)/That's Yiddisha Love (Monroe Silver)
- 16852 Emmaline Lee (Peerless Quartet)/Entre Acte Gavotte (Reitz)
- 16861 My Yiddisha Colleen (Walter Van Brunt)/Adventures in A Department Store (Hill)
- 16862 Give Your Smiles to All the Boys But Keep Your Heart for Me (Van Brunt)/Rag Pickings (Banjo solo by Fred Van Eps)
- 16867 Steamboat Bill (Collins)/The Old Jokes (Hill)
- 16870 Mississippi Dippy Dio (Collins and Harlan)/Clancy's Wooden Wedding (Steve Porter)
- REVISÉ DOUBLE-FACED COUPLINGS
- 16914 Victor Minstrels 14 and 15 (Victor Minstrel Co.)
- 16915 Mollie Darling/Hard Times, Come Again No More (both by Hayden Quartet)
- 16916 Popular Medley 2 and 3 (Pryor's Band)
- 16917 The Charming/Love's Caprice (Reitz)
- 16918 Stabat Mater — Cujas Animam/Inflammatus (Pryor's Band)
- 16919 Prince of Pilsen Selection/Robin Hood — Favorite Airs (Pryor's Band)
- 16920 Happy Go Lucky Two-Step/Anniversary March (Pryor's Band)
- 16921 Come Be My Sunshine, Dearie/By the Watermelon Vine (MacDonough)
- 16922 Boccaccio March (Pryor's Band)/Valse Bleue (Sousa's Band)
- 16923 The Arcadians — Favorite Melodies (Pryor's Band)/Dream Waltz — "A Waltz Dream" (Victor Orchestra)
- 16924 "Red Wing" Medley (Pryor's Band)/Indian Medley (Pryor's Orchestra)
- 16925 Victor Minstrels 11 (Victor Minstrel Co.)/The Minstrel Band (Pryor's Band)
- 16926 I Won't Be Back Till August (Morton)/The Rest of the Week She's Mine (Murray)
- 16927 Winter (Hayden Quartet)/Silver Bell (Peerless Quartet)
- 16928 In the Gloaming (Oakland and American Quartet)/Walt Till the Clouds Roll By (Oakland)
- 16929 Thine Eyes So Blue and Tender (Wells)/Last Night (Clark)
- 16931 Uncle Josh and the Fire Department/Uncle Josh at the Roller Skating Rink (Stewart)
- 16932 Garden of Dreams (Stevenson and MacDonough)/Glow-Worm (Wheeler)

Eddie Morton, whose picture appears on this sheet music of a 1905 comic song, was one of the Victor artists whose records were re-coupled. During World War I another song called "I Don't Know Where I'm Goin', But I'm On My Way" was published and became a much bigger hit than its 1905 predecessor.

- 16933 Nalla Intermezzo (Frosini)/Entre Act Gavotta (Reitz)
 16934 U.S.A. Patrol (Reitz)/Rag Pickings (Fred Van Eps)
 16935 Yankee Land/Peter Piper (Ossman)
 16936 Christmas Morning at Clancey's/Clancy's Wooden Wedding (Porter)
 16937 Steamboat Bill (Collins)/Mississippi Dippy Dip (Collins and Harlan) 16938 They're All Good American Names/If He Comes In I'm Goin' Out (Morton)
 16939 Coon's Love Song/Pretty Black Eyed Susan (Pryor's Band)
 16940 Old Folks at Home/Mighty Lak' a Rose (Dunlap)
 16941 Avenger March/Marche Religioso (Pryor's Band)
 16942 Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey (Collins and Harlan)/Give Your Smiles to All the Boys But Keep Your Heart for Me (Van Brunst)
 16943 Lucy Anna Lou/Yucatan Man (Collins & Harlan)
 16944 Bit of Drama/Adventures in a Department Store (Hill)
 16945 That's Yiddish Love (Silver) My Yiddish Colleen (Brunst)
 16946 Moonlight in the Forest—Dance of the Nymphs/Ocean Breezes Waltz (Pryor's Band)
 16947 Do You Know Mr. Schneider? (Jones)/Blondy and Her Johnny (Jones and Spencer)
 16948 My Hindoo Man (Lewin)/Medley of Popular Reels (Kimmel)
 16949 Larboard Watch (Macdonough and Hooley)/Asleep in the Deep (Hooley)
 16950 Andante from A Minor Concerto (Sorlin)/Gavotte from Paris and Helena (Victor String Quartet)
 16951 That Italian Rag/Sweet Italian Love (Murray)
 16952 Society Swing Two-Step/Fascinator March (Pryor's Band)
 16953 I Love It (American Quartet)/Come, Josephine, In My Flying Machine (Jones and American Quartet)
 16954 Bit of Grand Opera/Through the Hole in the Fence (Hill)
 16955 Mr. Rooster/Morning in Noah's Ark (Pryor's Band)
 16956 Somebody Else (American Quartet)/Emmaline Lee (Peerless Quartet)
 16957 Winter Song/Artillerist's Oath (Peerless Quartet)
 16958 Apache Dance (Black Diamonds Band of London)/Second Chausers March (Garde Republicaine Band)
 16959 Marzovla Waltzes (United States Marine Band)/Amina—Serenade (Pryor's Band)
 16950 Under the Double Eagle March (Souza's Band)/Lights Out March (Pryor's Band)
 THE END

HISTORICAL RECORDS

Continued from page 35)

OVA & N.A. BOLSHAKOV Dubrovskiy: French Duet (Napravnik) 4. A.D. VI-AL'TSEVA What a Glorious Night (Vran-gel) 5. N.N. FIGNER Romeo et Juliette: Ah! leve-toi, soleil (Gounod) 6. N. A. SHEVELEV The Demon: I am he to whom you listened (Rubinstein) 7. O.I. KAMIONSKIY Eugene Onegin: Alas, there is no doubt (Tchaikovsky).
 Side II — 1. I.V. YERSHOV Profeta: a) Sopra Berta b) Corriam (Meyerbeer)
 2. V.I. KASTORSKIY Eugene Onegin: Prince Gremin's Aria (Tchaikovsky) 3. M. N. KUZNETSOVA Melodie Tzigane (Tchaikovsky) 4. A.I. MOZZHUKHIN a) The Kiss b) The Fair-Haired Maid-en (Dargomyzhskiy) 5. Ye.I. ZBRUYEVA Unidentified selection 6. A.M. LABIN-SKIY: Snow Maiden: So full of wonders, the mighty nature (Rimski-Korsakov) 7. A.M. DAVYDOV Gayda Troyka (Gyp-sy Song).

To describe this vast conglomeration of admirable talent would require more space than I can afford. I'll just have to postpone giving biographical notes of these artists until some other occasion.

This is a beautiful disc, yet a little better care in its preparation would have added more lustre to its finish. For one thing, the written notes could have been more accurate. For example, some checking would have disclosed that Figner did not create the tenor role in "Eugene Onegin," and neither did Mikhailova create the female role in "Iolanta." Also, Yershov did not "retire to teach in 1916" but kept on singing at the Maryinskiy until 1929.

Then, it is always best to make sure who the singer is and what selection is being sung. As it turned out, the pseudo V. N. Petrova-Zvantseva is, in reality, Ye. I. Zbruyeva; and the piece this artist sings is not the Song of Lehl from the "Snow Maiden" (in fact, it is neither of the 3 songs of Lehl!) but an unidentified operatic excerpt.

The proper pitch, too, should be observed, as, for instance, Shevelev's I am he from "The Demon" is here dropped a semitone. He certainly sang it in the original key of C-sharp Minor.

For my personal taste, opera singers and popular entertainers should not be mixed on the same disc. It is true that Vialtseva tried her hand in opera ("Carmen" and "Samson") and even made a couple of operatic recordings.

But she was primarily an interpreter of Russian and so-called "Russian-Gypsy" songs, and to include her in operatic company just isn't the right thing to do. Incidentally, she was Russian and not a "Gypsy," as it is often stated.

One more personal objection is the selection chosen for Davydov, a first-class opera singer. Admittedly he had a penchant for indulging in "Russian-Gypsy," Neapolitan, and other such popular ditties. But his operatic recordings include pieces of great beauty, and one of these would have been more appropriate in this case.

I hear that soon more such Russian LP's will be released by S.J.G. It will be of interest to know what other Russian celebrities of the past will find their way on this label — celebrities whose recordings are now rare outside of the country where they were made.

— o —

IN THE MAIL

"Dear Mrs. Favia-Artsay:

"I have long been a reader of your fine material in HOBBIES Magazine, for which I am continuously grateful. I'm a young collector, I guess but have about 30,000 records. Not by any means all (Continued on page 68)

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York tfx

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

Successor

HANOVER FOUR CORNERS

P.O. Box 193 — Hanover, Mass.

Telephone TAYlor 6-4434

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 28 years. tfx

Antique

MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1825)

Complete Repair Service - All Types

All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803 tfx

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island tfx

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

mh86p

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Edgar L. Davenport

By JIM WALSH

PART I

For many years I have had a triple-barreled interest in Edgar Loomis Davenport, who was born in Boston, Mass., February 7, 1862, and died there July 25, 1918.

Davenport was (1) a representative American actor of his time; (2) for several years a popular recording artist, specializing in humorous, pathetic, patriotic and melodramatic recitations; and (3) a lineal descendant of "Vincent Crummles," the English provincial theater manager whom Charles Dickens immortalized through his ever delightful show business scenes in "Nicholas Nickleby."

Incidentally, if you have never met Mr. Crummles, "The Infant Phenomenon," Miss Snellicci and the other members of that endlessly diverting troupe, let me urge that you get a copy of "Nickleby" and turn to the theatrical scenes, regardless of whether you go through the remainder of the book. I must have read about Vincent and his thespians at least 50 times, and I laugh as heartily at each fresh meeting with them as I did when I first made their acquaintance at the age of nine.

If you're wondering how Edgar Davenport could be the grandson of an actor called Vincent Crummles, the explanation, of course, is that Dickens used a fictitious name for the character in his book. It is generally accepted among Dickens students that the novelist as a very young man (he was only 26 when he began "Nickleby") met an English tragedian named Thomas Donald Davenport and was so much amused by the actor's genial idiosyncrasies that he incorporated him into the book. It is even pretty widely assumed that before Dickens began to be successful as an author he acted briefly with the Davenport company, which played a circuit including Coventry, Portsmouth (Dickens' birthplace) and several other English towns. That is not certain, but it is generally agreed that Mr. Crummles' small daughter, "The Infant Phenomenon," who had a starring part in the troupe's productions, was based on Davenport's daughter, Jean.

The "Phenomenon" became a well known actress in her own right after she grew up. Jean, who was known during her mature years under her married name of Mrs. Lander, died August 3, 1903, at the reported age of 74. If this age is correct — but it probably isn't — she could have been only about nine at the time grandson of the actor who was the original of Charles Dickens' immortal "Mr. Vincent Crummles," as he appeared in 1901, aged 35.

EDGAR L. DAVENPORT,

young Dickens began writing "Nickleby."

In the book, Dickens had the Crummles family transfer their activities to the United States, and, surely enough, the Davenports did come to the States, as witness this account of their activities in The Dickensian, official organ of the Dickens Fellowship, for December, 1948:

"Among those who had appeared on the stage of this very Theater Royal (in Montreal, Can.) was Jean Davenport, claimed as the original of the Infant Phenomenon in 'Nicholas Nickleby.' She was the daughter of Thomas Donald Davenport. Like many another thespian in those days, Davenport had uprooted himself from Britain to seek fame and fortune in a new land. With his wife and his daughter Jean, he traveled the American continent, finding not unprofitable engagements. The daughter, a child-wonder playing leading Shakespearean parts, proved a considerable attraction in various cities. All went well until it was noticed that the phenomenon was developing rapidly and could no longer pass for an infant. On August 5, 1839, Jean Davenport first appeared at the Theater Royal . . . being seen as Richard III, the role in which she had made her stage debut two years previously in Richmond, Surrey. Naturally, father and mother were in the company supporting her. During the month the phenomenal Jean paraded as Shylock, Sir Peter Teazle, Young Norval in 'Douglas,' Tom in 'The Dumb Man of Manchester' and, incidentally, leading parts in 'Paul Pry in Petticoats' and 'The Child of Nature.' Quite a repertoire for an infant said to be 12 years of age but actually 14. Two years later, in August, 1841, the theater produced a version of 'Nicholas Nickleby' with William Abbott, a one-time Romeo from Covent Garden, in the title role. The Infant Phenomenon of Dickens, or of Davenport, was not in the cast."

If little Miss Jean was 14 in 1839 she was born in 1825 and would have been 78, instead of 74, at her death. This makes it appear more plausible that Dickens could have known of her and incorporated her into his book. However, the article just quoted gives the impression she appeared on the stage for the first time in 1837, only about a year before Dickens began "Nickleby." But enough about Jean. Our chief interest is with Edgar L. Davenport rather than other members of the family.

Which reminds me that John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theater," published in England, lists the births and deaths of a dozen Davenports, but does not include the subject of this article, although his sister, Fanny, who died September 26, 1898, at the age of 48, and his brother, Harry, are mentioned. T. D. Davenport, Edgar's grandfather, was 59, when he died July 6, 1851. His son, Edward Loomis Davenport, died September 1, 1877, aged 60, and he was the father of Edgar L. Davenport, who was 56 when he died about 49 years ago.

II Davenport's Earlier Years

I found a biographical sketch of Edgar L. Davenport in "The Players Blue Book," compiled by A. D. Storms and published in 1901. It is worth quoting, for it "fills us in" on Davenport's career up to the time he was 35 and four years before he began making records:

"Edgar Loomis Davenport, for the past two seasons with Viola Allen's company, is the elder son of Edward L. Davenport and brother of Fanny and Harry Davenport. In speaking of Mr. Davenport, Henry Austin, formerly with The Illustrated American, wrote:

"I remember with keen pleasure his Julian Beauclerc in 'Diplomacy'; his Clement Hale in 'Sweet Lavender'; his Charles Courly in 'London Assurance'; and his Jacob McClosky, in 'The Octoroon,' struck me as an exceedingly clever villain. This, in contrast with his Mr. Toots, in 'Dombey and Son,' evidenced Davenport's variety of range. His Captain Molincau in 'The Shaugraun,' was another notable impersonation. One of his later successes was the first part of Chambers in the late Frank Mayo's original production of 'Puddin' Head Wilson,' at the Herald Square Theater, April 15, 1895. Davenport has the reputation of having played more parts than any other actor of his years, and it is only fair to say that the value of the family name seems to be quite safe in his keeping. His artistic preferences are clearly for character work and light comedy, but the superb schooling he has had has made him such an all-around actor that he possesses at all times what, for lack of a better phrase, one might call the audacity of sagacity."

"Mr. Davenport is 35 years old. He has been on the stage really all his life, having played child parts with his father and mother. In 1887 he entered the Boston Museum Stock Company, entirely unknown professionally, remained five years and became leading man, having played over 55 parts there, 15 of them original in this country. After leaving the Museum his impersonation of Oliver St. Aubuyn, in 'The Crust of Society,' was ranked as a most artistic and finished piece of acting. Although a comparatively young man, he is an excellent example of the old school actor, not one thrust into prominence by some accidental part that just fits him."

I was pleased to find that Davenport had impersonated a Dickens character, "Mr. Toots," which gave him an opportunity to be funny and pathetic by turns. Apparently he bore no grudge against the great novelist if he knew, as he must have, that his paternal grandfather was the original of Mr. Vincent Crummles. But who could object to being the grandson of so genial a gentleman as Vincent! And I wonder why the compiler of the theatrical Who's Who didn't consider him worthy of inclusion with the dozen other Davenport.

III Davenport's First Records

I wish I knew how Edgar Davenport happened to make his first records, but I don't. Did Walter Miller, the Edison recording manager, happen to hear some of his stage work and decide he had a good recording voice or was the approach made by Davenport himself? We can only conjecture.

My research leads me to believe that the first Davenport record for public sale was an Edison two-minute cylinder, "Jim Bludsoe," a recitation of a poem written by John Hay, which appeared in the Edison monthly list for August, 1905. It is described as follows in The New Phonogram.

"Mr. Davenport is another late addition to the talent making Edison records, and his first records will show to the phonograph public that he is a most valuable acquisition. 'Jim Bludsoe' is a descriptive Mississippi poem written by the Hon. John Hay, Secretary of State. (Hay was secretary of state under Presidents McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt and had been assistant private secretary to President Lincoln. —J.W.) It is rendered by Mr. Davenport in a manner that shows he is a finished elocutionist. It has been many months since we put out a record of this character, and we believe that the public will agree with us that we have been most fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Davenport to make it. Mr. Davenport is an actor of wide repute, having played leading parts in many plays during the past few years. His last appearance in the 'legitimate' was in 'The College Widow.' During the summer season he is playing in vaudeville. He opened at the Empire Theater, Boston, on May 29, and has since been a prominent feature of the best vaudeville houses."

In September, 1905, Edison offered the second, and last, of Davenport's two-minute wax cylinders. This time he was represented by an abbreviated version of his most famous number, "Lasca." Edison gave the name of the author of this dramatic poem as F. Desprez, while Victor was later to call him Deprez. However, other companies that made the record also spelled it Desprez, so probably Edison was right. Here is the Phonogram description:

"'Lasca' is a pathetic poem by F. Desprez. It tells of the affection of Lasca for her lover of the plains. She was ever at his side and ever seeking to protect him. She would hunger that he might eat; she would take the bitter and leave him the sweet. One day the herd stampeded on the Rio Grande with Lasca and her lover in the path of the maddened cattle.

"They mounted a mustang and endeavored to escape. The herd gained on them and the only chance left was to shoot the mustang and crouch under his body. This was done. As the pair fell, Lasca protected the body of her lover so that she bore all the blows of the surging cattle. When the steers had passed, Lasca was dead but her lover lived. Those who have heard Mr. Davenport's recitation of 'Jim Bludsoe,' listed last month, will realize how effectively he has made this record of 'Lasca.' Chopin's Funeral March is introduced at the close."

Truly, the situation of Lasca and her lover was romantic as well as perilous, but it couldn't have happened the same way to me, because I shouldn't have been able to bring myself to shoot the mustang! Nevertheless, this record has produced plenty of tears from sentimentally-minded listeners. The first copies didn't give Davenport's name on the cylinder, and I have had several letters from people who had found it, asking me who had recited the poem. I don't have this Edison record, but I imagine his name is revealed in an announcement at the beginning.

I do have the Victor records of "Jim Bludsoe" and "Lasca," which Davenport made after his first Edison engagement. They are recited in a fine, well rounded voice but the style today would be considered old-fashioned and no doubt harks all the way back to Grandfather Davenport whose stage mannerisms gave "Vincent Crummles" to the world.

Other artists — among them Len Spencer, Harry Spencer, George Broderick and William F. Hooley — had already recorded numbers of the type in which Davenport specialized, and after the Bostonian ceased to make discs and cylinders, Harry E. Humphrey continued the tradition on a larger scale. I don't recall that Dickens' "Infant Phenomenon" included Shakespeare in her repertoire, as did the real life Jean Davenport, and there is not much of Shakespeare in Edgar Davenport's records.

For the time being, Davenport's Edison activities ended with that pair of two-minute cylinders. But after the four-minute Amberols were introduced late in 1908, he made three of those longer playing records. A full-length, full-dress version of "Lasca," complete with "Hearts and Flowers" and Chopin's Funeral March, was numbered 296 and came out in November, 1909. Thomas Buchanan Reid's patriotic poem, "Sheridan's Ride," was added in March, 1910, as No. 397, and John Greenleaf Whittier's "Barbara Frietchie" No. 603, completed Davenport's Edison activities in March, 1911. "Lasca" was reissued as Blue Amberol cylinder No. 1868 in 1913 and "Sheridan's Ride" came along a few months later. There was no Blue Amberol representation for poor "Barbara Frietchie."

The pattern of Davenport's recording career now is clear. Although an actor of almost unlimited versatility, his phonograph repertoire was to consist of somewhere between a dozen and a score of recitations, short enough to get onto a two-minute record or a four-minute one at most. There probably were not a great many poems of that type with sufficient popular appeal to justify their being recorded, and so Davenport, as he went from one studio to another, (Continued on page 64)

MUSIC BOXES

Geneva Music Box, hand-carved chalet, 4 tunes, excellent, $450. Picture Album music box, six disc records 5" diam., excellent, $85. Stella music box, with 48 steel disc 14" records, perfect, complete with original stand, $500. All F.O.B. Canton. Polaroids 50c, deductible. — Clines, 876 Pleasant Street, Canton, Mass. 02021. Phone 617 - 828-1679. aul636

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

ALICE HERRMANN, Antiques
52 North Youngs Rd.
Williamsville, N.Y. 14221
Phone: 716 — 634-4608

CUT GLASS

All pieces listed are of top quality of the Brilliant Period. Clear and brilliant, and in proof condition. Photos on request. Photo (A) Cylinder shape vase. 18" tall, 4 1/2" diam. Intaglio cut flowers and leaves in two section, vertical prism cutting between. Signed "Fry" ----- $85.00
(B) Trumpet Vase. 14" tall, 5" top diam. ----- 28.00
(C) Vase 17" tall, largest diam 5 1/2", top 4 1/2". Intaglio cut Mumm like flowers and leaves. Vine-like "V" grooves spiral from bottom to top. A magnificent piece ----- 95.00
(D) Vase 10" tall. A graceful shape and well cut ----- 48.00
(E) Punch Bowl. Two-part, 12" diam. x 12" hl. Large pinwheels. A brilliant piece ----- 160.00
(F) Rare shape Pitcher. 7 1/2" hl. three large stars on side surrounded by fern-like cutting. A very brilliant piece ----- 110.00

(G) An unusual shaped dish or centerpiece. 8 1/2" x 14 1/2" x 4 1/2" hl. Hob stars on sides with fine-cutting around top, scalloped and notched rim ----- 85.00
(H) 9" Bowl of unusual shape and quality. Intaglio cut flowers and leaves on sides, large star on bottom. Not signed, but the floral cutting is like that of Fry or Tutthill. Cut glass not pictured; ----- 50.00
#2858 Cruet. Bulbous shape, Stars and fans. 7" to top of faceted stopper, clover shape spout ----- 15.00
#2841 Cruet, bulbous, Pinwheels, 8" hl. clover spout ----- 14.00
#2831 8" Fernery, on 3 feet. Pinwheel and fans ----- 28.00
#2851 5" handled nappy, small stars and loops ----- 8.00
#2849, #2870 6" handled nappy, Stars, each ----- 10.00
#2818 Relish dish, 5 1/2 x 7 1/2" pointed oval, deeply rounded. Well cut and brill., one tiny nick ----- 10.00
#2911 3 1/2 x 8" oval relish dish, shallow, 3 Hob stars ----- 7.00
#2827 8" Bowl. 7 Hob stars, large star center ----- 24.00
#2876 8" Bowl Signed Hawkes. Brilliant deep Hob star cutting scalloped and notched rim ----- 45.00
#2821 10" dish, 4" hl. An unusual shape with flaring sides. Many Hob stars set in panels of deep Vee grooving ----- 48.00
#2555 7" deeply rounded dish with two tab handles. Hob star design. Fine ----- 22.00
#2568 An unusually fine oval tray or dish. 9 x 14 1/2 x 2 1/2" hl. All-over star cutting. Very fine ----- 90.00
#2916 Ice tub or flowerpot shaped jar. 7 1/2" diam at top 7" hl. straight sides, flat rim. Hob stars in diamond shape panels. A rare form and a very fine piece ----- 98.00
Write your wants in cut glass. Express charges extra.

DELDARE WARE

Hand decorated underglaze china made at The Buffalo Pottery 1908-09.

Photo 1 to 7
(A) 9" Pitcher, sig. and dated 1908. Street Scene: "With a cane - superior Air," opp. side. "This Amazed Me" ----- 145.00
8" Pitcher, same shape as "A" d. 1909, sig. The Fallowfield Hunt. "The Return" ----- 110.00
6" Pitcher, same shape as "A" (rare size) dated 1908. The Fallowfield Hunt ----- 95.00
7" Pitcher, Same shape as "A". The Fallowfield Hunt. "Breaking Cover", da. 1908 ----- 85.00
(B) Mustard Jar (rare) 3" d. x 3 1/4" hl. "Village Life in Ye Olden Days", 1909 ----- 60.00
(C) Vase 7" hl. x 3 1/2" top. Village Street Scene ----- 45.00
(D) Tea Pot diam of body 4 1/2". "Life in Ye Olden Days" 1908 ----- 85.00
(E) Tankard Pitcher. 12 1/2" hl. "The Great Controversy" dated 1908 ----- 150.00 Handled Mug 4 1/2" hl. 1909 "Ye Lion Inn" ----- 55.00
Handled Mug, 4 1/2" hl. 1909 "At the Three Pigeons" ----- 60.00
1 Cup and Saucer 1908. Ye Olden Days ----- 55.00
1 Cup and saucer 1908 "The Fallowfield Hunt" ----- 55.00
4 7 1/4" Plates, 1908. Ye Village Street, each ----- 40.00
1 10" Plate 1909. Fallowfield Hunt. "Breaking Cover" ----- 55.00
2 6 1/4" Plates. At Ye Lion Inn, each ----- 30.00
Tray: 9 1/4 x 12 1/4" 1909. "Dancing Ye Minuet" ----- 125.00
Bowl 9" dl. x 3 1/4" hl. Ye Village Tavern ----- 75.00
7" shallow dish, two closed handles, 1908, Ye Lion Inn ----- 60.00
Dresser Lamm base, 9 1/4" hl. Village scene (not wired) shape similar to candlestick, date mark not distinct ----- 60.00
8" Plate. Marked Buffalo China. Ye Olden Days ----- 30.00
A Rare Find in Deldare. A service for eight. Eight cups and saucers. Ye Olden Days; Eight 6 1/4" plates. At Ye Lion Inn; Eight 9 1/4" Plates, Ye Olden Times. The set ----- 900.00
Write your wants in Deldare. Shipping extra. auc

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 36)

found himself repeating the same old things.

Although the elocutionist's work was completely dissimilar from that of George P. Watson, whose repertoire consisted of German yodel songs, they remind me of each other, because Watson, who made records for almost 30 years prior to his death in 1926, relied on only about 20 songs. These he recorded over and over for one company after another, and there was such a demand for them it was seldom any Watson record was cut out of a catalog.

(To be continued)

LAKE-WILLIAMS

61-25 97th St. Rego Park, N.Y. 11374
Mail order only — Phone 212 — 592-0594

1. AZURE BLUE TUMBLE-UP. 7 1/2" high, ribbed fine quality old glass. Smooth pontil, sparkling blue, mint. $18.
2. STERLING SILVER PLATE on own 1/2" pedestal base. 10" dia. all open lattice work detail, center engraved wreath with initial "G". old. $22.
3. STEUBEN, FLEUR DE LIS VASE, Trumpet shaped GREEN clear glass. 12" high, dia. 6 1/2" at top. Very slight flake at base, unnoticeable, so special at $28.
4. VASE ROSE COLOR, Sterling Silver flower decorations. 12" high, 7" dia. useful old glass vase. $14.
5. COBALT BLUE CASED GLASS VASE, swirled glass, ruffled neck, 8" high, 8" dia. White cased lining, smooth pontil, this is really a beautiful old piece. $29.
6. BLUE SHADING TO OPALESCENCE SAUCE or BON BON DISH. 2 handles, star pressed bottom. 5" dia. 2" high. To busy to check pattern, so, $9.50.
7. PITCHER with LID, COBALT BLUE. 9" high. Self lid and graceful handle, brilliant deep blue for the cobalt collector, old, $32.

Write wants. Postage and Insurance extra, excess refunded. Stamp, please. Satisfaction guaranteed. auc

ANNE SERRA Cuba, N. Y. 14727

Tel.: 716 — 968-2663

Choice Flint:

Superb pair of candlesticks, part blown, part pressed, prob. Pittsburgh. McK pl 191 #2 & Lee pl 180 left, for blown socket and manipulated double knob shaft; Lee pl 180 right, for pressed base. About 9" hl. Rare & mint ----- $125.00 Sandwich Tulip celery vase, Lee pl 201 left, McK pl 201 #40. 9 1/4" hl. Mint ----- 33.00 Sandwich muzzled bear pomade jar, white opaque, 3 3/4" hl. Flake on cheek ----- 25.00 Pair opalescent Sandwich tile-backs, Lee pl 19 top center; 2 1/4" dia. Mint ----- 14.00 Blown-molded dish in G11-16, base Diamond Type unknown with 12 diamonds. Shape, DB; top dia. 5 1/2"; base 2 3/4"; 1 1/2" hl. Unusually thick. Mint ----- 40.00
Rare salt, Neal OG 10, Providence Flint Glass Co. Mint ----- 65.00
Collectors Items:
Bennington Parian trinket box, Barret pl 328P. Mint ----- 22.50
Rockingham mixing pitcher, 4 1/2" hl., 6" dia. shape Barret pl 148B. Mint ----- 18.50
Ironstone Lily of the Valley covers sugar, 7 1/2" hl. to flower final, 6 1/4" wide with handles; Thomas Hughes, Burslem. Small immaterial chip underneath inside rim of lid ----- 14.00
Mettlach covered honey dish with attached tray in ribbed gray stoneware with sprigged on trailing vine touched with silver lustre. Marked with Mettlach medallion seal on bottom, 7" l, 5 1/4" w., 4" h. to final ----- 22.00
Amber Warner's Safe Kidney & Liver Cure bottle. Mint ----- 7.50
Transportation extra. auc

D. W. IRWIN, JR.

12418 So. 33rd Omaha, Nebr. 68123
Phone: 291-7858

1. TEAPOTS: RIDGWAY'S ORIENTAL (Indiv) (Bl&White). $10. ROSEMEDALLION (No Lid) double wire handle 6" h. $24. DELFT (Bl&White) Windmill Shape, Crazing, $15; COBALT BLUE irr. glaze over pottery, dec. with gold & enam. flrs. English, crack in bottom, $5; HALL 5 cup, blue w/gold trim, late but nice $4.
2. MINIATURE ON IVORY: (Framed) bust of man with white powdered wig, blue high collared coat, on back written "Sir John Leslie an eminent natural philosopher, J. Finlay, 1829." 2 1/2 x 3" overall, $70. FINE!
3. TIFFANY: Tiff. Stud Stamp box. Zodiac design, gold bronze, 4x2" No. 802, $25. 4 gold lid. shades ea sgnd LCT $40.
4. PORTRAIT TRINKET BOX: Round, 2" dia. cobalt, gold trim. Bust of lovely lady, powdered wig, plumed hat, etc. Signed "Georges." Porcelain, 3 bl star mks on bottom $25.
5. MT. WASHINGTON: Pr. Salt & Peppers (melon shaped) enameled flowers on opaque wh ground. Inner threading gone on one. Otherwise fine, Only $25.
6. NORTHWOOD CUSTARD: Flared top 4" high vase-spooner. Grape & Leaf pattern. Good nutmeg. $35.
7. IRISH BELLEEK: 6 oval open salts. Black Mrk. Shell pattern. $8 ea. or $45 all. Other Irish Belleek. Write wants.
8. COSMOS: Blue band, 4 pc. table set. Butter dish, cov. sugar, creamer, spooner, $155.
9. CARNIVAL: Water. Set. Pitcher, 8 tumblers, orange, peaches decor, $100. Much other Carnival. Write wants.
10. TOBY MUGS: WINSTON CHURCHILL 8" h., Burgess & Leigh Mrk. MONTGOMERY, 6" high, Royal Doulton. $25 ea. Other Toby's (Min.).
11. LIMOGES CHOCOLATE POT: 9" h., delicate lavender floral dec., most graceful shape. A. Lanternier. $25.

Postage extra. Stamp please. auc

THE ROCHELLE COMPANY

G.P.O. Box 1939 New York, N.Y. 10001

Mid-Summer Specials:

1. Limoges plate, 9 1/4", colorful, duck in water, pierced for hanging ----- $14.00
2. Villeroy & Boch, blue & white plate, 12" ----- 19.50
3. 9" game plate, large bird in center, four birds around border, pierced for hanging, slight wear, Bavarian ----- 10.00
4. 10 1/2" Hunt Plate, man & woman on horseback. Colorful and interesting, pierced for hanging. Germany ----- 14.00
5. 9" Fruit plate, white center, gold border with red apples and blossoms. Austria ----- 5.00
6. Mush set Coalport Indian Tree pattern Bowl, 3" x 6" pitcher 5" high. Beautifully decorated ----- 25.00
7. Ring handled, cut glass napple, Heart & Fan design ----- 15.00
8. Cut & etched tumblers, each ----- 7.00
9. S/F knife rests, also porcelain and crystal - write wants

Postage extra. auc

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Edgar L. Davenport

By JIM WALSH

PART II

I. Victor Records

We told last month of Edgar L. Davenport's making, in 1905, his first records — a pair of two-minute Edison wax cylinders. Now we may proceed to his first appearance on discs.

In June, 1906, Victor announced a single-faced 10-inch record, 4701, on which Davenport recited "Jim Bludsoe," as he had done for Edison. The monthly supplement description said:

"Mr. Davenport is one of the best character actors in America and is now supporting Raymond Hitchcock in 'The Galloper.' He has given us a rendition of this fine poem by the late John Hay which is a master-piece. Every syllable is so distinct that nothing is lost, even in the portions where Mr. Davenport speaks almost in a whisper."

For the benefit of those not familiar with Hay's poem, it may be explained that Jim Bludsoe was a Negro stoker on a steamship, The Prairie Bell, who sacrificed his life to save other persons during an explosion. Though not great poetry, it is an eloquent plea for racial tolerance and understanding.

A month later, two more Davenport records were issued, 4711, a 10-inch version of the patriotic poem, "Sheridan's Ride," and a 12-inch single-faced offering, 31529, of our old friend, "Lasca." The supplement description was accompanied by a good photograph of Davenport, which I have had copied for illustration herein, together with the descriptive matter concerning the record. (See p. 38).

August brought one of Davenport's less successful offerings, which had a short life in the Victor catalog, although he recorded it a few years later for Columbia. It was 4752, John Boyle O'Reilly's verses, "In Bohemia."

The supplement described it as "a clearly-spoken rendition of . . .

O'Reilly's famous description of the enchanting realm of Bohemia, one of the most popular poems in existence." Popular it may have been, but it did not make a hit with Victor record buyers.

Perhaps the least known of all Davenport's records was issued in September, 1906. On 4809, an eight-inch single-faced record — a size that was discontinued when double-faced discs were introduced two years later — he recited, "Wynken, Blynken and Nod," which was also called "Children's Series, No. 3."

This description was given: "Eugene Field's delightful account of the adventures of three little Dutch children; recorded especially for the little ones." In the complete catalogs that followed, this was identified only as a children's record without Davenport's name being mentioned as the artist. Probably very few people today have it.

The actor also was represented in September by a 10-inch disc of another John Hay poem, "Little Breeches," 4808. Supplement Editor Sam Rous commented:

"Those who have admired Mr. Davenport's splendid record of 'Jim Bludsoe' will note with pleasure that he has given us this month another famous poem by the late John Hay. 'Little Breeches' is familiar to everyone, and Mr. Davenport has recited it most effectively."

I wonder how many present-day

Americans are familiar with that pathetic little poem!

In October, on 4834, Davenport brought out one of his standbys, good old "Barbara Frietchie," and Mr. Rous said: "John Greenleaf Whittier's famous poem which is known to every schoolboy. Mr. Davenport has given us a fine rendition of this patriotic number."

When Edgar finally did get around to giving his admirers a bit of Shakespeare, they received extremely short comments. In February, 1907, on a soon-to-be cut out eight-inch record, 4942, Davenport recited "The Seven Ages." I suppose there are copies of it still around, but I have never seen one.

And that, with one exception, completed the list of Davenport's single-faced Victor records. When the 1909 catalog appeared only four of the titles were left: "Lasca," "Sheridan's Ride," "Jim Bludsoe," and "Little Breeches."

The exception, which came out in 1909, is a disc that few people now living have heard. It was listed in the January, 1910, catalog under the heading of "Special Records," and

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

28 East 12th Street
New York, N. Y. 10003

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for more than 28 years.

tfx

Antique
MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS
(Estab. Switzerland 1835)
Complete Repair Service - All Types
All Work Guaranteed
Finest Instruments Bought & Sold
BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.
139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

tfx

ELECTRIFY PLAYER-PIANOS PUMP-ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Leo Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tulunga, Calif.

mh86p

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfx

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPLA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York

tfx

Dramatic Recitations by Edgar L. Davenport
Incidental music by Victor orchestra

Mr. Davenport's distinct rendition of "Jim Bludsoe" has pleased many thousands of Victor owners, who pronounce it the best record of the kind ever made. We therefore take pleasure in announcing two splendid dramatic numbers by this popular actor—Deprez's beautiful poem, "Lasca," in which Mr. Davenport fairly surpasses himself as he describes the cowboy's love for the Mexican beauty, the wild ride for life before the maddened cattle, and the final tragedy as Lasca sacrifices her life for her lover, and the famous "Sheridan's Ride," which is delivered in fine style by Mr. Davenport. The incidental music arranged by Mr. Rogers for both these numbers is most effective, and never becomes obtrusive, as is so often the case in melodramatic records.

Number	Size
4711 Sheridan's Ride	Read 10
31529 Lasca	Deprez 12

This photograph of Edgar L. Davenport and description of two of his records appeared in the Victor supplement for July, 1906.

the following explanation was given:

"On this and the following page are listed a special series of records which are not usually carried in stock by dealers because they are of interest only to certain classes of people — religious communities, societies and persons in certain sections of the country.

"Many novelties will be added to this list in the future. Any of these special records will be promptly ordered by your dealer on request. Every record will be up to the highest standard of Victor quality."

Davenport's "special record" was 5747, "The Power of Habit," which was described as "a temperance recitation," written by John B. Gough:

"A famous dramatic recitation much used in prohibition and temperance work. Mr. Davenport's description of the ultimate end of the drinker, represented by the fatal voyage down the Niagara, is a most thrilling one."

I'd like to hear it!

Meanwhile, with the introduction of double-faced records, "Sheridan's Ride" and "Little Breeches" were combined on 16252. In April, 1909, Davenport was back with a new offering, a "humorous talk" called "Autobiography of a Chicken," issued on double-faced record, 16260.

To me the humor is so forced and falls so flat I have no doubt it materially reduced the sale of an excellent Billy Murray ragtime number, "Jennie," on the B side.

The supplement description of the record, which was cut out by May, 1911, said:

"Mr. Davenport, although best known to the Victor public by his serious numbers, is also a comedian of ability, and his repertoire contains many humorous recitations. Here is the post-mortem history of a familiar domestic bird, which will strike a sympathetic chord in those of us who have been obliged to spend some time in an average boarding-house, where it is frequently necessary to serve Gallus domesticus in as many different forms as possible.

"On the reverse side Mr. Murray gives us an amusing imitation of Eddie Leonard's familiar style of singing, which is something like this: 'Je-heh-heh-heh-heh-ny.' It may not look amusing in cold type, but just listen to Murray sing the song!"

"Jim Bludsoe" was copied on 16400 with William F. Hooley's rousing "Asleep in the Deep," but the Hooley side was re-doubled in October, 1911, with "The Larboard Watch," by Harry Macdonough and Hooley, and "Bludsoe" was dropped from the list. It obviously was considered a handicap to the sale of the Hooley song, but it had been a popular single-faced disc and it is odd that it was not combined with some other Davenport recitation.

"Lasca," always a consistent seller, found its coupling on 35090, with the great cornet virtuoso, Herbert L. Clarke, playing his own "Caprice Brillante." This was a poor combination from the standpoint of suitability, but the record continued to sell and remained in the catalog through virtually the remainder of the acoustic recording period.

Edgar Davenport was to make just one more appearance in the Victor double-faced record catalog. For the November, 1910, supplement, on record 16649, he recited another Eugene Field poem, "Little Boy Blue." The other side was a gospel hymn, "Hiding in Thee," sung by Harry Anthony and James F. Harrison (John Young and Frederick J. Wheeler). Again, this was a poor coupling, but the record sold well for a long time.

The supplement said:

"A rather unusual combination is offered here — on one side a new gospel hymn by those accomplished singers, Anthony and Harrison, and on the other a recital of that most touching of all poems of childhood, Eugene Field's 'Little Boy Blue,' by Edgar L. Davenport, whose 'Lasca' and other recitations are well-known to record buyers."

That was the last Victor record by Edgar L. Davenport. Presumably, he had exhausted his repertoire of "short take" poetry that was considered suitable for recording. But he was not through with making records.

II. Other Recordings

Not much space is required to deal with Davenport's recordings other than Edison and Victor. In 1911 he visited the Columbia studios, and a 10-inch record, A933, was issued, coupling "Jim Bludsoe" and "In Bohemia." A 12-inch, A5218, was devoted to — as might be guessed — "Lasca" and a version of "Sheridan's Ride" that perhaps included more stanzas than the 10-inch Victor.

In 1913 another 10-inch, A1371, combined "Barbara Frietchie" with Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade," which Davenport seems not to have recited for any other company.

Apparently he made no Zonophone discs. The Columbias, of course, were listed under perhaps a score of labels, including Standard, United, Climax, Harmony, Star, and others too many to mention.

Davenport appeared briefly in the Indestructible cylinder lists, which were also called Columbia's cylinders until 1913, and were carried in mail order catalogs under several different names. In September, 1910, he was represented by a two-minute record of "Jim Bludsoe," 1396, and a four-minute, 3119, of "Sheridan's Ride." In October, on four-minute 3143, he resurrected "Lasca."

The comedian-tragedian also made four U.S. Everlasting cylinders. A pair of the two-minute type appeared in late 1908 or early 1909, "The Chicken," 268 and 267, "A Tale of a Postage Stamp."

In 1912 came two of the four-minute type, 1381, "Lasca," and 1382, "Sheridan's Ride." It looks as if almost every American record company felt it must have those rather hackneyed recitations in its catalog.

In the U.S. catalog for October, 1912, "Lasca" is described as:

"The story of a Western pioneer whose emotional sweetheart sacrifices her life to save him, overtaken by a herd of Texas steers. A very fitting orchestral arrangement, which, combined with the wonderful rendition, makes it most attractive."

"Sheridan's Ride" received this write-up:

"One of the most popular recitations known to Americans. The poem will always be popular with our patriotic younger people on account of its own poetic inspiration, and the memory of 'Little Phil,' a hero of the great struggle."

"The Chicken" was briefly dismissed as "a comic recitation by one of the best raconteurs living," and "The Tale of a Postage Stamp" with: "The little 'two-center' tells how it got stuck on a blue envelope and what followed."

III End of Career

As far as I can learn, Edgar L. Davenport made no more records after his last Columbia was issued in 1913. The late John L. Norton Sr., a lifelong resident of Boston, told me the actor began to suffer from impaired hearing and spent his last years working in a Boston music store.

Mr. Norton had the impression Edgar Davenport succumbed to influenza during the 1918 epidemic, but wasn't certain of that. I do not know whether he was married and had children, or what survivors there were other than his brother, Harry.

Harry Davenport, who was four years younger than Edgar, died August 9, 1949, at his home in Hollywood, Calif., aged 83, of a heart attack. Variety described Harry as:

"One of the screen's foremost character actors. He was on the stage and in pictures for 78 years, appearing as a boy on the same bill with Lotta Crabtree. A native of Philadelphia, he appeared at the old Chestnut Street Theater in 'Demon and Pythias' at the age of five. He had just appeared in the Rosalind Russell starrer, 'My Next Husband,' for Columbia.

"Since 1936 he had appeared in 113 films. His father was the well-known tragedian, E. L. Davenport. Survived by a son, Edward L., television producer, and three daughters, Mrs. Dorothy Davenport Reid, Kate, and Ann."

Apparently, Harry Davenport, like his aunt Jean, was an "infant phenomenon!" His daughter Dorothy was married to Wallace Reid, one of the most popular film stars from 45 to 50 years ago, who died tragically from narcotics addiction. For years afterward, Dorothy Davenport Reid carried on a crusade against dangerous drugs. I believe she is still living.

Edgar L. Davenport, within another year, will have been dead a half century. But his voice continues to live on the discs and cylinders of thousands of record collectors.

It's too bad the phonograph hadn't been invented in Dickens' day, to let us hear the voices of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Crummies, "The Infant Phenomenon," Miss Snevellicci, Nicholas Nickleby and the other members of that glorious troupe!

(The End)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 35)

politan was on the matinee of April 12, 1928, as Marina in "Boris Godounov," with Chaliapin in the starring role. Subsequently, a few performances in Europe marked the end of her career in opera.

Gordon's was a beautiful and extensive contralto voice which did full justice to her roles, among them Eboli, Laura, Fricka, Amneris, Carmen, Brangaene, Venus, Dalila, and Margaret in "Le Roi d'Ys."

In the 30's Jeanne Gordon was confined in a private mental institution in Macon, Mo., where she passed away on February 21, 1952.

— o —

Volume 2 of the Canadian Centennial Issue presents the fabled Emma Albani and the superb Pauline Donalda, each in all but one of their recordings — which, again, is a boon to the collecting world.

ALBANI as Desdemona in "Otello"

CANADIAN CENTENNIAL ISSUE - Volume 2, Rococo 5255. Details in foregoing.

Side I — EMMA ALBANI 1. Theodora: Angels ever bright and fair 2. Il Pensieroso: Sweet bird. 3. Serse: Ombra mai fu 4. Le Pre-aux-Clercs: Souvenirs du jeune age 5. L'Ete (Chaminade), 6. Home, Sweet Home (Bishop) 7. Robin Adair (Traditional) 8. Ave Marie (Bach-Gounod).

Side II — PAULINE DONALDA 1. Spoken Introduction by Mme. Donalda. 2. Don Giovanni: Vedrai, carino 3. I Pagliacci: Ballatella 4. Boheme: Mi chiamano Mimi 5. Faust: Air des Bijoux 6. Love's way (Tosti) 7. Who can tell me? (Wynne) 8. Si mes vers avaient des ailes (Hahn).

Emma Albani

The legendary, 24-carat Golden Age representative, Emma Albani (nee Marie Louise Cecile Emylie de La-jeunesse) was born in Chamblly, near Montreal, on November 1, 1847.

She began studying music at the age of five. During her 'teens, after her mother's death, the family moved to Albany, N.Y., where she began singing and occasionally playing the organ in a church.

The young girl's singular talents came to the attention of the Catholic bishop, upon whose initiative funds were raised to send her to Europe to study under Duprez in Paris and, later, Lamperti in Milan.

Albani's debut took place in Messina, Sicily, as Amina in "La Sonnambula," in 1870. Other engagements succeeded in Sicily, Florence, and Malta.

Her London debut came next, at Covent Garden in "La Sonnambula," on April 2, 1872. The following season she sang at the Theatre des Italiens in Paris.

Appearances in Russia followed, and on October 21, 1874, New York first heard her at the Academy of Music, as Amina, apparently a favorite role for her debuts.

On December 23, 1891, she made her initial bow to the Metropolitan audience in "Rigoletto," and then in "Faust," "Otello," "Don Giovanni"

(Continued on page 44)

This is not the Vincent Crummies Troupe. Instead it is an American group which called itself the Superba Miniature Musical Comedy Co. Harry Beane, a St. Petersburg, Fla., HOBBIES reader, found this picture and sent it to Jim Walsh who thought it well suited to illustrate the article about Edgar L. Davenport.

A poster indicated the Troupe was appearing at the Mission Theater in Shelby (state not given) on Monday, January 13. Judging by the costumes, the year was 1913, but January 13 also occurred on Monday in 1907, 1919, and 1925.

Jim is hoping to give some information later about the personnel of the Superbas.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

James Brockman

By JIM WALSH

Many readers, I imagine, will look puzzled when they see the name at the top of this page. "James Brockman?" they will say. "Never heard of him! Who is he?"

It is true that James Brockman does not belong in this department if the title, "Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists," is construed strictly. He was a pioneer recording artist, but, as far as I know, he made only five records — all little heard, of two-minute Edison wax cylinders. Consequently, he cannot be ranked among the favorites.

Nevertheless, I think Brockman is worthy of a biographical sketch for more than one reason. When he died May 22, 1967, in Santa Monica, Cal., he was one of the very few remaining men and women who had made records in the long gone days when the cylinder was the most popular form of phonograph sound production.

And, as a successful song writer, Brockman had a hand in composing some of the greatest popular hits American musical history ever has known.

I'll begin with a brief account of Brockman's life, based on a write-up in the ASCAP Biographical Dictionary of Composers, Authors and Publishers. The sketch says Brockman, who was of Jewish descent, was born December 8, 1886. He consequently was about midway between 80 and 81 when he died.

The impression is given that he was born in Cleveland, Ohio, but this is not explicitly stated. He was educated in the Cleveland public schools and at the Cleveland Conservatory of Music, with private tutors who gave him singing instruction.

Brockman apparently was very young, if the given birth date is correct, when he toured with musical shows and in vaudeville and became a dialect comedian who wrote his own special material. It included such songs as "Wop, Wop, Wop," "Gari-baldi," "Marianna," "That's Yiddisha Love," "Abie, Take an Example From Your Fadder," "Yompin Yiminy Yonson," and "Strumberry, Pich, Happle Pies."

After leaving vaudeville, he became a staff member of popular music publishing houses and a staff writer for Hollywood motion picture studios. He wrote the musical show, "Tempotations of 1936."

Among the songs which he helped write, usually doing the lyrics, were "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," "Golden Gate (Open for Me)," "Feather Your Nest," "I'm Like A Ship Without A Sail," "I Faw Down and Go Boom," "I Know What It Means to be Lonesome," "Down Among the Sheltering Palms," "As Long as the Shamrock Grows Green," and "Let's Grow Old Together."

He was living in the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles when the ASCAP book was published.

Variety's death notice repeats most of this information, but adds that Brockman had been a charter member of ASCAP since 1921. In song writing he collaborated chiefly with James Kendis and Nathaniel Hawthorne (Nat) Vincent. At one time he headed the music publishing firm of Kendis & Brockman. Variety says he was survived by a daughter, but her name is not given.

There will be further consideration of Brockman's songs at the end of this article. New we'll discuss his records.

II. Brockman's Edison Cylinders

Again assuming that the already quoted birth date is correct (and Variety says he was 80 at his death), James Brockman was less than 21 when he began making Edison cylinders. However, the pictures of him, which Edison published in monthly supplements, looked like those of a considerably older man. I would put him down, on the strength of his photographs (one of which I hope to show), as being anywhere from 25 to 30. Probably the pictures do him an injustice or he looked older than his years.

The comedian-composer's first cylinder was listed in the Edison monthly supplement for December, 1907. It was his own Italian dialect composition, "Marianna," and was 9712. The supplement said:

"Our record of this comic Italian dialect song has an added interest because the composer himself sang it for the record."

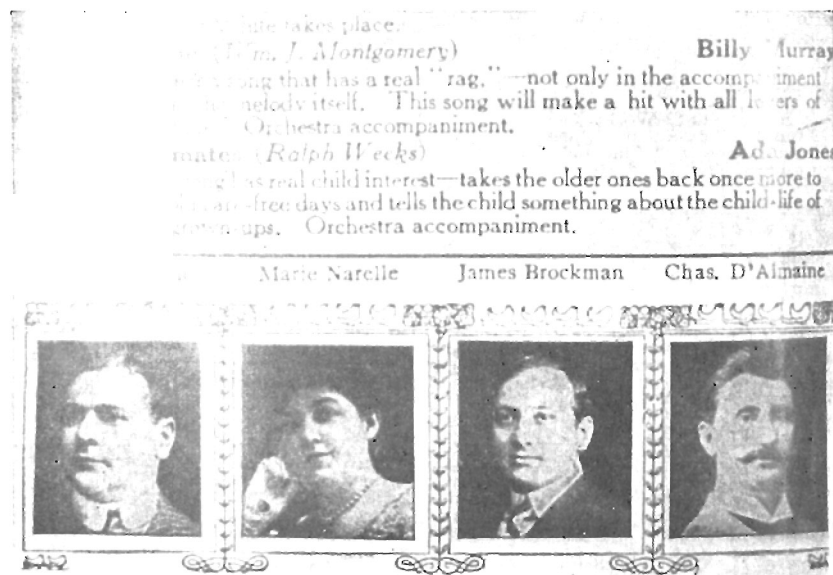

"Marianna" created no great stir, and probably was a poor seller. Record buyers in the small towns and on the farms, where the cylinder was more popular than the disc 60 years ago, did not understand or care for "foreign" dialect such as Italian and Yiddish, and were not likely to buy large quantities of such records.

It is interesting to note that Edison's English affiliate, which refused to import many American comic records on the ground that the humor was unintelligible or offensive to English listeners, accepted only one of Brockman's cylinders. "Marianna" was not among them.

The London house usually turned down such sure-fire sellers in the States as Billy Murray's breathless renditions of George M. Cohan's popular patriotic songs, but nearly always issued the "coon songs" by Arthur Collins and Byron G. Harlan, which the English apparently understood and enjoyed.

Perhaps Brockman recorded several songs at one session, for a month later, in January, 1908, he contributed what was probably his best selling cylinder, "Mariutch," 9730, another comic Italian dialect number, the work of Andrew B. Sterling and Harry Von Tilzer, who were the reigning song-writing team of that day.

This is the only Brockman record I have. It reveals a pleasant, but not distinctive tenor voice, and good Italian dialect, judged by vaudeville standards. The rendition, however, lacks the sparkle and brilliance of Eddie Morton's Victor record of the song, listed under the longer title, "Mariutch Make-a the Hootch-a-Ma-Cooch."

DIALECT SINGER JAMES BROCKMAN is included in this group of recording artists whose photos were shown in the Edison record list for July, 1907. The name of John Kimmel, the accordion player, is misspelled as Kimmble.

"HAPPY HOOLIGAN" MADE HAPPY.
In the days when James Brockman was making Edison wax cylinders, Happy Hooligan was the most popular Sunday "funny paper" character. This drawing of him wearing an Edison cylinder instead of his usual tin can for a hat, was taken from a 1903 issue of the Edison Phonograph Monthly.

I admit being partial to Morton, whom I consider one of the very finest of the pioneer recording comedians.

In February, on 9750, Brockman was heard in "Garibaldi," described as "a very melodious Italian dialect song, of a sentimental nature, sung for our record by the composer." This was the one that Edison's English branch issued, and the following longer description of it was given in the February, 1908, English edition of the Edison Phonograph Monthly:

"A most melodious Italian dialect song, of a sentimental nature, rendered by the composer. It tells of the 'over the sea' wooing of Garibaldi, who makes 'a lot a-money, this country very fine.' He writes to Marie in 'Sunny Italy,' telling of his love, and she answers:

My Garibaldi, good Italian man,
My Garibaldi, love-a you all I can;
Good-a-bye, my Italee,
Fly across the sea,
Just-a you and me.

Viva my Garibaldi, good Italian man."

"Mr. Brockman's method of singing Italian dialect selections makes comment unnecessary."

I'll comment that the words of "Garibaldi" don't make much more sense than if they were some of the things written nowadays. And that it seemed a requirement that the heroine, of almost every song about an Italian girl, had to be named Marie.

Irving Berlin published his first song, "Marie From Sunny Italy," in 1907, about the time Brockman's "Garibaldi" came out. And Berlin later used the same idea in "Stay in Italy," and "I'll Take You Back to Italy," in the latter of which the girl, of course, was Marie.

In March, 1908, Brockman had a cylinder, 9776, of another Italian dialect song, "Moolbarri," written by Junie McCree. The title of this record surely was enough to kill its sale. The description said:

"An Italian dialect song, comic in character and telling of an Italian's affection for Mulberry Street, New York, and why he likes it better than Broadway, the Bowery or Fifth Avenue."

With such a specialized regional appeal, it is easy to see why English Edison did not "pick up" this record.

Brockman dropped out of Edison lists until July, 1909, although, for some reason, a photograph of him was published in the April, 1909, supplement. His last offering was 10165, "Abie, Take an Example from Your Fadder," a Jewish dialect song written by himself which Monroe Silver also recorded for Victor, with Arthur Collins singing one of his favorite "coon" ditties, "Below the Mason-Dixon Line," on the other side, 16841. Silver's record, however, was not issued until April, 1911. The Edison supplement said:

Antique MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1835)

Complete Repair Service - All Types

All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

tf

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lea Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE

write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

mh88p

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tf

"A Hebrew dialect song in which a prosperous Hebrew gives some timely, though humorous, advice to his son. The record will show that Mr. Brockman is quite as good in Hebrew dialect as he is in Italian."

And that was the last of James Brockman's records issued by Edison. I remember, though, that Billy Murray told me Brockman sometimes wrote material in later years for recording artists, and had a part in contriving "Mike" Silver's once enormously popular Victor comic sketch, "Cohen at the Picnic," 18608 issued in November, 1919. Brockman shared in the royalties on the sale of the record, and Billy, who played several small parts in the skit, said he also was "cut in" and his first royalty statement was for $1,400.

III. Brockman as a Popular Song Writer

Aside from the dialect numbers already mentioned, Jim Brockman's first outstanding success as a song writer seems to have come in 1912 when he did the words of "As Long as The Shamrock Grows Green" to music by Nat Osborne. This was an amusing example of the frequent

(Continued on page 44)

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

28 East 12th Street

New York, N. Y. 10003

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus
list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES
for more than 28 years.

tf

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 39)

willingness of Jewish composers to write in praise of the homeland of their traditional antagonists, the Irish.

Then came a really big hit in 1915, "Down Among the Sheltering Palms," for which he wrote the words and Abe Olman the music, and which today is regarded as a "standard."

With the success of "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" in 1918, a series of "hard luck" songs became popular, and Brockman and his associates were among the most skilled writers of these. One, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," was a much bigger hit than "Rainbows." The words of this composition were credited to Jaan Kenbrovin and the music to J. W. Kellelte.

It is a little-known fact that Jaan Kenbrovin was only a composite name for James Kendis, James Brockman, and Nat Vincent. As can be seen "Kenbrovin" contains the first three letters of each of those names. I have never been able to find out whether Kellelte also was an imaginary composite character, or whether somebody by that name really did write the music then disappear forever from the popular music field.

Even Sigmund Spaeth, the late "Tune Detective," apparently did not know the story behind the name of Jaan Kenbrovin, for he did not mention it in his "History of American Popular Music" and misspelled the name as "Jean Kenbrevin."

"I Know What It Means To Be Lonesome," which also came out in 1919, was credited to Kendis, Brockman and Vincent, though another "hard luck" opus, "I Am Climbing Mountains," bore only the names of Kendis and Brockman.

Early in 1920 the same pair did well with "I'm Like a Ship Without a Sail" — still working the "why was I ever born?" theme for all it was worth, and more. They had another popular number in "Golden Gate (Open for Me.)"

One of Brockman's greatest successes was written in 1920 and began to be a reigning hit in 1921. It was "Feather Your Nest," with him and Kendis doing the words and Howard Johnson the music. It seems the combined genius of Kendis and Brockman should have avoided perpetrating such an ungrammatical rhyme as:

"Love birds there must be in the tree-tops high,
And, sweetheart, they bring messages
just for you and I."

On the beautifully sung Victor record by Albert Campbell and Henry Burr (with a saxophone obbligato by Rudy Wiedoeft), the rhyme was changed to: "... high up in each tree ... just for you and me." This was probably done at the insistence of Burr, who was an educated man with no liking for singing something that sounded illiterate.

(Continued on page 68)

DOLL BOOKS WANTED

WANTED: out-of-print doll and toy books: Doll Collectors of America Annuals, Davies; Jumeau Doll Story, Trimpey; Story of Dolls, Jackson; Toys of Other Days, Holmes; Childrens Toys, Early; English Dolls, Puppets, Starr; Doll Book, Canning-Wright; Peep At World's Dolls, Blanchard; Dolls of Many Lands, Craiger; Dolls on Display, Hooper; All doll books, many more. — Stephen McIntyre, 833 Davie St., Vancouver, I. B.C. Canada. o1516

DOLL BOOKS FOR SALE

DOLLS, MAKERS & MARKS, 2nd edition, incl. large addenda with scores of additional marks for the identification of dolls, plus all the material in the popular first edition. Entire books profusely illustrated with marks of makers in business before 1880 and pictures of their dolls. Completely new comprehensive index. Paperbound. $7 postpaid. Check with order please. "The Age of Dolls," $6 ppd. Both books by E. Coleman, 4316 Van Ness St., Washington, D.C. 20016. mh62342

BOOK. "Sew for Schoenhuts", 12 patterns, size 14" to 21". Complete outfits for boys, girls, toddlers and infants, ready to cut or trace, none overlapping. Illustrations and instructions, $3.98 postpaid from author. — Anna McQuilkin, 448 School St., Indiana, Pa. 15701 n3046

WONDERFUL DOLLS OF WAX by Jo Elizabeth Gerken. The only book in any language about wax dolls. Their history. Comprehensive classification. A century and a half of Pierotti. The real Montanari Story. Museums and collections in the United States, Britain, and the Continent. Selected bibliography. Ninety-seven halftones. Clothbound $10 postpaid. Published by Doll Research Associates, Box 6012, College View, Lincoln, Nebr. 68506 f124093

DOLL ACCESSORIES

DOLL HATS. Dress up your doll collection with the addition of attractive doll hats. They're wonderful for gifts for the small fry too. I also do doll repairing, such as rebuilding bodies, feet, fingers, shoulders (on the German jointed dolls that have bisque heads). I can mend kid bodies, if they can be mended, or make a new cloth body. Satisfaction or your money back. — Mary Upshaw, Doll Repairing, 2601 Forbes St., Jacksonville 4, Fla. tfx

DOLL SUPPLIES: Curly mohair, elastic cord, wigs, doll stands. Send 25c in coin or stamp for illustrated, descriptive literature, including 17 or more samples of mohair and elastic. — Bessie Magee, Middlefield 4, Conn. 06455 o68801

DOLL PARTS

GERMAN blown glass doll eyes. Stamp for list. — Lena Swartz, Rt. 5, Box 357, Oregon City, Oregon. je128801

CLASSIFIED AD RATES

8c per word; three months for the price of 2; twelve months for the price of 8. (Except for change in address, no changes permitted on the low three and twelve months rate.)

All advertisers who submit copy for the first time are definitely requested to furnish therewith banking or other satisfactory references.

Porcelain Arms & Legs for China and Bisque Dolls. — Our 23rd Year. Illustrated Catalog 10c. — Wimer's P.O. Box 314-H, Yucaipa, Calif. 92399 mh66501

10,000 Thank you's to my customers for their friendship and patronage. My entire inventory of doll parts now belong to Countryside Doll Hospital, R. 2, Salem, Ind. It has been a pleasure to serve you. — Dorothy J. Rawlings, 44914 3rd St. East, Lancaster, Calif. n122281

FINE porcelain limbs - beautiful reproductions for your antique dolls. Satisfaction guaranteed. Stamped envelope for list. — Jean M. Beeson, 9535 Hayvenhurst, Sepulveda, Calif. 91343. jly126361

12,000 ANTIQUE doll parts, complete ball jointed bodies, reproduction bisque & china limbs. Will try to help you restore or dress your doll. Antique dolls, 10c for lists, 4 miles east of Salem on Rt. 66. — Mrs. Fred Elliot, Countryside Doll Hosp. & Antique Shop, Salem R. 2, Ind. 47167 o68651

DOLLS WANTED

WANTED: Old dolls and heads. — Goldie Schneider, 1047 West Main, Galesburg, Ill. ja6008

WANTED: Rose O'Neill Kewpies and Happy Pats dolls or items in any form. — Mrs. Virginia Rhule, 824 East Capital, Springfield, Ill. 62701 jel28041

AT'S, BRUS, Kewpies, Orsini, small French children, characters, single or whole collection. — Selfridge, 1221 Phillips, Vista, Calif. 92033 o3215

WANTED: A Bru or two, A.T.s, bisque headed character dolls, others. Especially bisque O'Neill Kewpies and related items. Singles or whole collections or just parts. — Rosella Wheeler, 2837 Guajome Lake Rd., Vista, Calif. 92083 o66501

WANTED: Shirley Temple Baby doll (not regular little girl Shirley doll), by Ideal in mint condition with original clothes. Cloth, kapok-stuffed body, composition head with molded hair or wig. — Louis Langille, 201 W. 85th St., New York, N.Y. 10024 d3656

WANTED: Edison talking doll. Arthur A. Gerling baby doll. Georgine Avrielle "Bonny Babe." Large all bisque dolls. Please give price wanted in first letter. — Mrs. O. E. Lynn, 2012 So. 5th, Springfield, Ill. 62703. Tel. 217-622-4666 au86

BUY OLD DOLLS any type and size. Particularly with unusual expressions, also babies marked Grace S. Putnam or Arthur A. Gerling. — B. Lalane, 811 Hollywood Pl., So. Palm Beach, Fla. d3084

BABY DOLLS wanted, preferably china small size particularly Bylos, etc. Collections bought all types. — Daniel Jacoby, 383 Andrews Road, East Williston, N.Y. o6637

WANTED: Dolls, singly or collections. Especially want Schoenhuts, Georgine Averill, Byelo, and character dolls. Also miniatures and doll house furnishings. Phone 562-7130. — Mrs. Dorsey J. Linn, R. 1, Linn Acres, Bucyrus, Ohio 44820 ja64201

DOLL PATTERNS

100 PICTURES of old, or antique doll dresses, made in full sizes. Also patterns for dolls, shoes, coats, undies. Prices from 50c to $2. Please send stamp and 50c in coin for picture, price list, and free pattern. — Doll Pattern House, 100 Summit St., Orange, Mass. 01364 o126182

JUMEAU, Fashions and German patterns with directions. Catalog 25c. — Mrs. Joel Von Blomberg, 2619 Foote Dr., Phoenix, Ariz. 85008. au122511

ANTIQUE ARTS &amp; ENDS

829 E. Jericho Turnpike
Huntington Station, N. Y.
516 - 422-9739 516 - SU 5-3538
MEMBER N.A.D.A.

- CAT PLATES, MINTON, signed 15" diam. on a deliberately crazed creamy background, white cat climbing roof of Swiss Chalet to join dark cat. Other depicts pr. cats "reading" from a book on bookrest, kitten with tin can on tail, pr. kittens near pc. broken china, cat resting beside bowl. All illus. large & in blue. Never again will such an item be available. ea. ----- $35.00
- STEVENSGRAPH Landing of Columbus, Oct. 12, 1492, white mat, gold frame ----- 70.00
- BRISTOL VASES pair, 8 1/4" high, light coffee color, hand painted large white & yellow flower & bud, with small orange flowers among green & autumn leaves. Perfect cond. 35.00
- ROYAL DOUTON, signed vase, 7" h., blue & green leaf border from which hang maroon, blue & white fuchsias ----- 22.00
- GALLE signed cameo triangular bowl, each side 6" long, 1 1/2" h., green & brown leaves floating down on a frost background, with touches of apricot & green, to a brown leafy bed ----- 75.00
- WAVECREST, signed, oval shaped open box, 4" l., 3 1/4" w., 2 1/2" diam. opening, pink w. relief swags, painted blue flowers, delicate & lovely ----- 16.00
- OPEN SALTS, unusual, pairs & singles available ----- write
- PICKARD, signed 8 1/2" tea pot, cr. & s. 4 cups & saucers, 1/2 all over gold decoration, balance blue & gold. Exquisite. Set ----- 95.00
- ROYAL WORCESTER, 1900, cup, saucer, & cake plate, flesh colored with swirled border, ea. painted with different magnificent flowers. Cup handle beautifully molded—Absolutely the finest. 5 settings available. Each set ----- 30.00
- GAME SET marked Carlsbad China, Austria, 8-8 1/2" plates and one 7 1/2" x 13" platter, latter has magnificent multicolored pheasant standing on flower-strewn meadow. 2 plates have pair deer in glade, 3 show pr. birds, 1 pr. ducks; 1 pr. rabbits. All with embossed border & gold trim. Some minor chips & age lines ----- 35.00
- LOWESTOFT bowl, 15 1/2" diam., 5" h. Gold, white & green border from which hang garlands of red roses & purple & red flowers & green leaves. Center has basket with large red & purple leaves surrounded by bunches of flowers which are repeated on outer part of bowl. Some minor stains in porcelain ----- 55.00
- Layaways invited. Postage and insurance extra. Notice the address of our new store. Come visit us when you are in the area. ----- 00

PAPERWEIGHTS

- Paul Jokelson series:
Franklin D. Roosevelt ..... $55.00
Christopher Columbus ..... 55.00
(several still available)
John F. & Jacqueline
Kennedy ..... 59.00
double sulphide
(orders now being taken for Dec. delivery)
- Baccarat sulphides:
Pope Pius regular Pope John regular
John F. Kennedy overlay
Single white on blue base
Double blue & white on red base
Double red and white on blue base.
Pope Pius overlay
White on red star cut base
Priced to sell. Prices on request.
We also specialize in Russian enamel.
Inquiries invited.
Postage & insurance extra.

LEO KAPLAN

3 Chelsea Road

New Rochelle, N. Y. 10805

Tel. 914 - 235-5118

op

Please mention HOBBIES when
replying to advertisements.

FAVORITE PIONEER
RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 44)

"Let's Grow Old Together" was written in the 1920s — one of many songs with that title. My old friend, the late Will Oakland, the famous recording counter-tenor, and Ira Schuster wrote the words, and Brockman the music. Will featured it for years in his radiocasts, using it as his theme song. "I Faw Down and Go Boom," a comic song in "kid" dialect that was popular in 1929, was by Brockman, Leonard Stevens, and B. B. Berman. And that seems to be about all of Brockman's songs that require mention.

IV. Conclusion

I hope enough has been said to indicate that James Brockman was an important figure for many years in the American song-writing world, and consequently the fact that he made five Edison cylinders is worthy of remembering. Without being dogmatic, it seems safe to say his recording experience went back about as far as that of almost anybody now alive.

The late Geoffrey O'Hara, whose life story was told in HOBBIES for February, 1960 had recorded in 1905. He died January 31, 1967, in St. Petersburg, Fla. Elise Stevenson, still living at the age of 89 in San Clemente, Calif., began recording in 1906, and Elizabeth Wheeler, still active in Cleveland, aged 91, began not long after that. Outside of them, I can think at the moment of no one else whose recording experience goes back 60 years.

James Brockman's cylinders undoubtedly are scarce and hard to find in good condition. It didn't take much to break that fragile wax. If you should happen upon any you should acquire them and carefully preserve them in remembrance of a gifted man whose talents played a definite part for two generations in the American entertainment scene, and whose death brings mournful reflections about the inevitable passage of time.

It is hard to realize the boy who was 20 when he made his first records was 80 when he died. But 60 years is a long, long time in our human lives.

DECKER &amp; GREENMAN

8572 1/2 Melrose Ave.

Los Angeles, Calif. 90069

Phone: (213) — 637-3353 or 637-0069

1. Gold Milleflore vase 7" l., signed L.C. Tiffany-Favrile 8412R.
2. Ambrina vase 6" l., see Barret plate #1.
3. Pink Tiffany bowl 7 1/2" dia. signed.
4. Burmese Fairy lamp 5 1/4" tall with pressed Burmese base signed "S. Clark Patent", etc. with clear marked candle holder inside.
5. Unsigned Durand vase, orange-gold with purple green leaf & vine dec. 7 1/4" tall.

Postage &amp; ins. extra. Stamp, please.

BUTTON COLLECTING

(Continued from page 52)

closely resembles the head on a well-known Hard Rubber button.* Although three of the backs bear the legend "T.W. & W. - H M - Paris," I suspect that the buttons may be copies of an earlier set. The other three backmarks consist of an anchor, a flaming grenade, and a circle of dots.

6. Iridescent Pearl, slightly convex, with incised pattern. There were a number of Pearl buttons among those Susan sent me; some carved, and some with metal escutcheons and nail-head shanks. This makes me think that such buttons, which are quite plentiful in American collections, may have come from France originally.

7. Flat, one-piece silver with intaglio design. Notice the beetle: I did not discover it until I started to make the drawing.

Buttons are well-nigh indestructible — more so than their wearers — for buttons can survive catastrophes and changes which are fatal to men and women.

What tales buttons could tell, if only they could speak! But since they are dumb, we only can imagine the adventures they have had; we only can picture in our minds the garments they adorned and the scenes of which they were a part.

For the present, these Flea Market buttons will be mounted by themselves, to form an unique group in my collection. But sooner or later, they will set out again on their travels. For buttons are well-nigh indestructible: they outlast the people who wear them, and the people who collect them.

Susan also found some fine old button moulds at the Market. Later on, I will show two or three of these.

*See "Button Parade," pp. 80 (No. 10) and 136 (No. 6.)

ANTIQUES LTD

2847 N. Campbell Avenue

Tucson, Arizona 85716

Phone 326-2791 - Eve. 793-2271

- Pre-Columbian seated figure 10" high swollen stomach, open mouth, INFERMO ..... $75.00
- 19th century IRON door lock bolt and key action, brass fittings, 4" x 6" ..... 5.00
- E. N. WELSH gothic shelf clock, 8-day, running, orig. pict., case refin. .... 50.00
- Please inc. suff. post. & ins. .... om1

MARGARET SWARTZ

7695 S.W. 141st St. Miami, Fla. 33158

- Demi Tasse set, Rosenthal, $2.
Large cup & saucer all over lots gold, $15.
Deep blue cup, gold raised flower, square handle, Demi Tasse, $3.50.
China Sitting up Bunny, $3.
Covered cheese dish, sprigs of wheat in gold, $15.
Pair of composites, clear base and nude, angle stem holding up a shallow bowl of ruby red, $18.
H.P. signed squatly bulbous pitcher. Holds about 100 ozs., $22.50.
Pottery serving spoon and pie server, $5.
Carnival glass Pitcher, Blackberry's, $12.50.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

FRANK CROXTON was one of four famous recording artists who sang leading parts in Sir Edward Elgar's "Caractacus" in a performance given by the Apollo Musical Club in the Auditorium Theatre, Chicago, March 4, 1912.

The Greatest Quartet Basso

By JIM WALSH

Quentin Riggs is now working for the U.S. State Department in Germany, but hopes to return home to stay in 1968.

The last time Quentin returned to the States on a leave of absence, in the spring of 1965, he visited me, as usual, and we had an interesting discussion concerning the merits of the famous pioneer recording male quartets.

We agreed that the "lead" tenors were the making of most of the ensembles; the American Quartet, for instance, would not have been so popular if anybody but Billy Murray had been second tenor. Nor would the Peerless and Haydn (or Hayden) have been so outstanding without Henry Burr and Harry Macdonough, respectively.

But we also agreed that, next to the star tenor, the bass was the most important man in a good quartet, and we tried to decide who, out of all the honored names that came up for consideration, was entitled to be considered "the greatest quartet basso." Our discussion interested me so much that I believe the subject will be equally attractive to the average record collector.

Consequently, I have decided to list the various well-remembered bassos in alphabetical order, tell briefly the accomplishments of each, and try to decide which of the lot was greatest. I shall leave out of consideration famous bass singers, such as Arthur Middleton and Herbert Witherspoon, who were concerned with a somewhat more serious type of music, and who did not sing regularly, or at all, in male voice groups.

Here then is the procession:

DONALD CHALMERS

This fine artist began making records for Edison in 1912, and I cannot recall that he made solos for any other company. Chalmers was the basso of that prolific recording group, the Criterion Quartet, and became the bass of the American (Premier) Quartet when Bill Hooley died in 1918. Chalmers was also bass in the mixed-voice Harmony Four, whose other members were Gladys Rice, John Young, and George Wilton Ballard, and sometimes sang in the Knickerbocker Quartet on Edison discs and cylinders. Donald Chalmers had a splendid voice, but I am not sure whether he was entitled to be considered a true basso profundo, for the record lists sometimes called him a baritone.

He did have one mannerism that was annoying to me. He frequently pronounced English words in an Italianate manner. Thus, in "Out On the Deep," "fisher" becomes "fee-e-sheer."

FRANK CROXTON

This famous Kentuckian had one of the best voices of any recording basso and certainly possessed one of the soundest musical educations. He could sing any type of song from ragtime to opera and do it well.

Croxton first appeared in record lists around 1912. He was bass of his own Frank Croxton Mixed Quartet on Edison cylinders, and as soloist for Victor and Columbia. Other members of the Quartet were his wife, Nevada Van Der Veer; Agnes Kimball; and Reed Miller. Among other things, the Croxton Quartet recorded the Quartet from Rigoletto.

Later he became bass of the Columbia

THE SHANNON FOUR, 1919. Front, ELLIOTT SHAW; center, LEWIS JAMES and CHARLES HART; rear, WILFRED GLENN.

JOHN H. MEYER, GENIAL BASSO, sang in thousands of records by the Sterling Trio and the Peerless Quartet.

Stellar Quartet. Then when Arthur Collins left the Peerless Quartet, Croxton took over the basso duties in it, and John Meyer, who had been singing bass, switched to baritone.

The Peerless probably was at its balanced best during the years Croxton sang in it and traveled as a member of the Eight Famous Victor Artists. After he left the Peerless he became basso of the American Singers, with Redferne Hollinshead (succeeded by Lambert Murphy), Charles Harrison, and Vernon Archibald as his associates. Croxton, like Chalmers, was sometimes called a baritone by the record companies.

"Big Tom" Daniels was the bass singer of the Columbia Quartet so many years ago, in the early 1900s, that he has faded into obscurity. Not enough is known of him and his work to classify him among the great bassos.

In England, Peter Dawson sang bass in the Zonophone Quartet and some other groups, but was not a regular member of any ensemble of permanent popularity. He was classified as a bass-baritone rather than an out-and-out basso. One critic pointed out that he sounded like a baritone on his HMV discs, while his Edison cylinders, with greater depth and clarity, had "the true basso ring." A great artist, but not one of the great quartet bassos.

Nor can Harry Donaghy, who sang bass in the Harmonizers Quartet from 1920 to about 1924, be recorded among the leaders. Donaghy did his work well, but I don't think he made any solos, and his career was too brief and his experience too limited to place him among the leaders.

WILFRED GLENN

This is the only one of the bassos I am discussing who is still, to my knowledge, alive. He lives in retirement in Charlottesville, Va., but I understand is still active in church singing. Glenn was, and is, a true basso profundo. I don't think any record catalog editor ever called him a baritone.

He became bass of the Shannon Four (later Shannon Quartet) when it was organized in 1917. The other members were Charles Hart; Harvey Hindermeyer, who was succeeded by Lewis James in 1918; and Elliott Shaw.

Glenn remained bass and manager

"BILL" HOOLEY, "THE KING'S" associates in the Edison (Haydn) Quartet considered him the greatest of all quartet bassos.

when it became the Revellers — also known as the Singing Sophomores and the Merry-makers. He likewise sang bass in the Aeolian Mixed Quartet on Vocalion records.

Bill Glenn is a great veteran and one of the real top-notchers among bass singers, to whom all honor is due.

WILLIAM F. HOOLEY

The late S. H. Dudley, who sang for many years with Hooley in the Hayden Quartet, referred to him in letters to me as "the King of Quartet Bassos," and Harry Macdonough, the Quartet's star, called him "good old Bill Hooley," and added: "I have never known his equal as the foundation of a male quartet." John Bieling, the Hayden's first tenor, expressed the same opinion in conversation with me.

Hooley's career extended from around 1895 to his death in 1918, and he probably (Continued on page 55)

Antique

MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1858)

Complete Repair Service - All Types
All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

MUSIC BOX COMPANY

LLOYD G. KELLEY

28 East 12th Street
New York, N. Y. 10003

Send for list of over 200 tunes, plus
list of restored musical boxes.

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES
for more than 28 years.

Homer Rodeheaver

Gus Reed

$1.00
51891 Big Bass Viol (Behamont)
Any Old Port In a Storm (Lamb-Mills)

Bass—Gus Reed
H-12 sets your face when Gus Reed lets his booming bassoon wander in your direction.

$1.00
51889 Back to the Faith of My Childhood
(A. H. & B. D. Ackley)

The Church By the Side of the Road
(Pacle—B. D. Ackley)
Baritone—Homer Rodeheaver and Mixed Chorus

This foreign song through these homes of the hotel around home, written, sung by his famous colleagues of the "Famous Four."

$1.00
51881 I'd Love to Call You My Sweetheart
I Can't Get Over a Girl Like You (Loving a Boy Like Me)—Le-mains' Affairs

Johnny Marvin (The Uncle Ace)
Johnny Marvin will sweep the hearts of every dancer, as he struts and hams his way through these "hits."

$1.00
51875 Mother Dear—Waltz
My Mother's Lullaby—Waltz
Jack Stillman's Orchestra (Vocal Refrain by Arthur Hall)

GUS REED, BASSO PROFUNDO. This photo is copied from the Edison Diamond Disc record supplement for January, 1927.

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE
write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

mh89

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

the

ANTIQUES FOR SALE

SEE MY DISPLAY for color slide rental program to stimulate interest in an antiques show. — Lucille Reals, 7337 So. Shore Dr., Apt. 1127, Chicago, Ill. 60649. tfx

BRASS mortar and pestle 5½" tall. $27.50. Wood Boston State House 8½" plate. $15. Iron apple peeler. $5.50. Old carpet beater. $2.50. A pair intricately woven hair bracelets. ¾" wide, clasp with stone decoration, pr. $35. Woven hair watch chain with gold fob. $18.50. Pink pig in green suitcase bank. $8.50. Tall pink milk glass Aladdin lamp. Drape pattern. $15. Signed Quezal gas shade 21½x6". $22.50. Gold filled stretch bracelet, round emblem plaque front. $16. 7½" A. Koch grape plate. $12.50. White carnival vintage rose bowl. chip on two feet. $28. Delaware vase. clear with cranberry leaves, gold trim. 8" tall. $36.50. 2 Honeycomb goblets, each $2.50. Pressed Leaf goblet. $5.50. Buckle goblet. $7.50. — Ozark Trail Antiques, Henderson, Arkansas. 72544 n1489

Stop and see bottles and other miscellaneous antique items at the Krafts Antiques Shop, downtown, Holyrood, Kansas, Hwy. Old 45, now 156. Showing every Sunday from 1 to 5. jel20002

We are always interested in buying the following items: signed Libbey cut glass and art glass, French carriage clocks, repeating watches, and Parker shotguns. — Custer Antique, 1020 Laskey Rd, Toledo, Ohio 43612 n3867

GENUINE clay pipes with holder $1. 6 miniature fancy frames 50c each. Old engravings $1. Other surplus collector items. — Plum, 5249 Chene, Detroit, Mich. 48211 f4005

OLD BAR and back bar 20 ft. ½" long, approximately 9½ ft. high. Shelf 20" wide. Four large posts, two feet, 7" in circumference, four sets of double doors, four drawers. Lots of fancy scroll work. Large mirror in center and one small mirror in each end. Can be seen at Birdseye Tavern in Birdseye, Ind. Asking $5,000. — Mary Bolden, Birdseye, Ind. 47513. Phone 389-2631. d3007

PAIR mahogany Victorian grape carved slip seat side chairs with needlepoint covering. Pair $40 plus shipping. — Edward J. Weiner, 342 Granada St., Ft. Pierce, Florida 33450. n1802

I am selling my antiques at low prices. Send 15c in coin for large 53-page catalog. — Florence M. Alexander, 606 California St., Newtonville, Mass. d3006

SELLING Chinese cloisonne, porcelains, pewter, jades, also art glass. Send us your wants. — Theodore F. X. Tribovil, P.O. Box 8068, Honolulu, Hawaii. 96815 mh126351

LARGE informative sales list! Bottles, flasks, country store items, early advertising, books about antiques. Send 25c to: The Golden Horseshoe, 27 LaVuelta, Vallejo, Calif. (Weekend shop: Benicia, Calif.) d3844

RARE Old Violin collection. 30 Italian, 100 or more French, English and German. Also lot of good commercial violins at bargain prices, 100 or more bows. Write for appointment or phone 326-0251 or res.: 368-8351. — B. J. Leavy Violin Makers, 328 Government Place, Williamsport, Pa. n3027

COINS, medals, books, weapons, antiquities, curios, antiques from city of Robin Hood. Six bi-monthly 36-page catalogs $1. — Edward Golemski, 95A Whittemoor Road, Basford, Nottingham, England. n32311

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 39)

ably sang in more ensemble records than any other basso. Very early in his career he was the bass in the Original Lyric Trio, whose other members at first were Estella Louise Mann and John Havens, although their places were soon taken by Grace Spencer and Harry Macdonough.

Hooley was the bass in the Hayden Quartet (known on Edison cylinders as the Edison Male Quartet) until it disbanded in 1914. He was also the bass of the ensemble called the American Quartet on Victor and the Premier Quartet on Edison records.

In addition, he was the basso of the Orpheus Quartet. Other members were Lambert Murphy, Harry Macdonough, and Reinold Werrenrath. The Quartet sang on many Victor Red Seal records with such notables as Alma Gluck, Frances Alda, and John McCormack.

Hooley was the bass of the Victor Male Quartet and the Victor Light Opera Company and probably sang in some of the Lyric Quartet records on Victor. He also sang occasionally as bass of Edison's Knickerbocker Quartet. I am sure he sang with other quartets and ensembles whose names escape me at the moment.

During his earlier years Hooley made many solo records and also was heard in duets with Macdonough and other singers. I do not recall any Hooley solos after 1913. And he was a genuine basso profundo, with a voice of superb quality, nobody ever called the 5-foot-7. "Little Man With the Big Voice," a baritone!

Frederic Martin was a most accomplished basso whose voice was of Red Seal caliber and who made some superb solos for Edison. He also sang occasionally in some Edison groups, but was never a regular quartet basso, and therefore cannot come into competition with artists who were.

JOHN H. MEYER

This genial gentleman of many amiable peccadillos became bass of the Peerless Quartet shortly after the Quartet's basso and founder, Frank C. Stanley, died in 1910. For the next 15 years John sang in thousands of Peerless Quartet and Sterling Trio records. Though he was the Quartet's bass after 1911, he took the baritone part after Frank Croxton "joined up."

Vocally, Meyer probably was not among the greatest basses, and when he was feeling expansive under the influence of fermented grape or corn juice, his voice was likely to overpower the tones of his associates in a rather in-artistic manner.

However, he was a skilled arranger, who wrote most of the arrangements for the Eight Famous Victor Artists. He was also an excellent pianist, who often played duets with Frank Banta in the Eight's concert programs.

GUS REED

From the standpoint of fresh, pure, delightful vocal quality, I am not sure but that this basso, whose real name was Harold Nelson and who died in California early in 1966, was the finest of the lot. However, his career as basso (and he was nothing but basso!) of the Knickerbocker Quartet on Edison cylinders was too brief to give him absolutely top honors.

But he had quality, if not quantity, in a superlative degree. And the late Geoffrey O'Hara told me he considered Reed the finest quartet basso he ever had known.

His one Edison Diamond Disc, made in 1926, and combining "Any Old Port in a Storm" and "The Big Bass Viol," is the finest double-faced-bass record I know of. The superior recording and boundless freshness and vigor of his interpretation of "The Big Bass Viol," especially, make Frank Stanley's Victor record of the same show piece come off poorly by comparison.

FRANK C. STANLEY

Had he lived longer, Frank Stanley undoubtedly would have carried off the honors as the basso who sang in more records than any other. Unfortunately, he died in 1910 after he had been making vocal records for only 12 or 13 years. Before that he had played banjo accompaniments for some of Arthur Collins' cylinders under the name of George S. Williams. Thus Stanley's career was cut short.

Even so, from the standpoint of both quality and quantity, Stanley ranks among the greatest. He was the bass of the Columbia Quartet, the Peerless Quartet, the Invincible Four, the Metropolitan Trio, the Lotus Quartet, the Mendelssohn Mixed Quartet, the Lyric Mixed Quartet, and who knows how many other groups. And, as basso, he almost invariably sang the lead, instead of assigning it, as is customary, to the second tenor. He also sang the lead in practically all his duets with such eminent tenors as Harry Macdonough, Byron G. Harlan, and Henry Burr.

Stanley's voice was of gorgeous quality and of truly basso profundo depth when the occasion called for it, although he frequently was referred to as a baritone, and did, in fact, most often sing at a higher than normal bass range.

A truly great artist, he should have lived to be much more than 41 years of age. He soon would be 99 if he were alive today. His 12-inch Victor record of "The Star Spangled Banner" is the finest version I ever have heard.

JAMES STANLEY

It is a coincidence that the Peerless Quartet was founded in 1906 by Frank C. Stanley, and that another Stanley—James Stanley—should have been its basso when it disbanded in 1928. (Frank Stanley's real name, however, was Stanley Grinstead.)

James Stanley was another singer of real basso profundo type, and was the bass and leader of the Stanley Quartet, which made Pathe records before his Peerless association began. Good as he was, however, he did not make enough records to be considered among the top men in the quartet basso field.

His career as a singer ended when he developed cancer of the throat and was unable to speak above a whisper after the growth was removed. I believe he is dead, but never have obtained positive information of his passing.

So there they are: Chalmers, Croxton, Glenn, Hooley, Meyer, Reed, Frank Stanley, and James Stanley.

And although I personally prefer Gus Reed's voice to all the rest, the greatest of these bassos, in my opinion and on the basis of fine voice quality, length of career, and variety of music sung, is William F. Hooley, with Frank Stanley a close second and Frank Croxton and Wilfred Glenn tying for third.

Which is your choice?

(The End)

CHAIR CANING KITS

Now anyone can restore his favorite antique and heirloom chairs easily and inexpensively with a Newell Caning Kit. Tools, natural cane, and "easy-to-follow" instructions, all postpaid for only $2; extra cane $1 chair-lot.

THE NEWELL WORKSHOP

Dept. H, 19 Blaine Ave., Hinsdale, Ill.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

I. Explanatory

The late Fiorella H. LaGuardia is said to have remarked: "When I make a mistake it's a beaut."

New York City's mayor might have made that statement with equal justice concerning Jim Walsh — this writer, that is. When I make a mistake it's also a beaut.

I now have been writing for HOBBIES for 26 years, and always have tried to make my contributions as accurate as possible. It has been impossible to stay free of errors, for in doing research and reporting my findings concerning the early days of the phonograph and sound recording there have been many times when what seemed unquestionable facts have been altered by later information. But I have striven to be accurate and truthful in all statements appearing over my signature.

In spite of which, I now must proclaim that I was guilty of the biggest "beaut" of my entire HOBBIES experience, when I wrote, in the August and September issues, that Edgar L. Davenport, the noted actor and recording artist, was the grandson of Thomas Donald Davenport, an English stage performer whom Charles Dickens is believed to have used as the original of his immortal Vincent Crummles in Nicholas Nickleby.

I made that assertion in complete good faith. But I blush to say there was not a word of truth in it. I have learned on unimpeachable authority that there were two families of theatrical Davenports, one English and the other American, and there was not any known relationship between them. I erred sadly when I said

Edgar L. Davenport

Was Not Related to Dickens' Vincent Crummles

PART III

By JIM WALSH

Edgar Davenport was descended from Vincent Crummles.

The saddest part is that I committed my colossal "bloomer" by relying on something I read when I was a small boy to the effect that Fanny Davenport, the famous American actress, who died in 1898, was the granddaughter of Vincent Crummles. It didn't occur to me to question that statement.

And since an Edison cylinder record catalog referred to Edgar Davenport as Fanny's brother, it seemed clear that if she were a granddaughter of T. D. Davenport he must be a grandson. I am not sure where I read that erroneous statement.

Had it only occurred to me to do my usual thorough job of investigating, instead of relying on my traplike memory of something I had read many years before, I could have found biographies of Edgar's father, Edward Loomis Davenport, in my copies of the Encyclopaedia Britannica and the Columbia Encyclopaedia.

The one reference book I did consult, The Player's Blue Book, issued in 1901, contained a biographical sketch and an excellent photograph of Davenport, but I believe said the subject of my article had the middle name of Loomis, whereas his full name actually was Edgar Longfellow Davenport

Since Edgar Davenport's parents were living in Boston at a time when Henry Wadsworth Longfellow generally was regarded as the leading American poet, there is a possibility they were intimate associates of the author and named Edgar for him as a token of friendship. However, present day members of the Davenport family do not know of any such close relationship.

Now, that I have made a suitable apology, I must confess I am glad in some ways the mistake happened. It has brought me the pleasure of letters from Edgar Davenport's niece, Miss May Davenport Seymour of New York City, and his daughter, Mrs. Margery James, who lives in Florida. Both have been genuinely friendly and understanding.

So has Henry F. Porter of Reading, Mass., who has done extensive research on the Davenport family, and who was the first to tell me my assertion of the Crummles-Davenport relationship was completely wrong.

It was Mr. Porter who directed Mrs. Seymour's attention to my article. She in turn wrote to Mrs. James and asked her to provide me with further information concerning her father.

II. Edward Loomis Davenport

Before resuming our discussion of Edgar Davenport's life and recording career, let's consider some facts concerning his father. The following is taken from the 11th Edition (1910-1911) of The Encyclopaedia Britannica:

"Davenport, Edward Loomis (1816-1877), American actor, born in Boston, made his first appearance on the stage in Providence in support of Junius Brutus Booth. Afterwards he went to England, where he supported Mrs. Anna

REPAIRS

ANTIQUE keyboard instruments: Complete, authentic restoration service. All work guaranteed. Restored antique instruments for sale. — Pro Musica Instrument Company, 46 Maryland Ave., Annapolis, Maryland 21401 au128351

Antique MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1826)

Complete Repair Service - All Types
All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803 ttc

ELECTRIFY PLAYER PIANOS
PUMP ORGANS

YOU CAN QUICKLY END TIRESOME FOOT-PUMPING
With a Compact Low-Cost Lee Silent Suction Unit

EASY TO INSTALL
FULLY GUARANTEED
1000'S IN USE
write to
LEE MUSIC MFG. CO.
Box 595, Tujunga, Calif.

mh88p

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island ttc

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York ttx

Cora Mowatt (Ritchie) . . . Macready, and others.

"In 1834 he was again in the United States, appearing in Shakespearian plays and in dramatizations of Dickens' novels. As Bill Sykes he was especially successful, and his Sir Giles Overreach and Brutus were also greatly admired.

"He died at Canton, Pa., on the 1st of September, 1877. In 1849 he had married Fanny Vining (Mrs. Charles Gill) (died 1891), an English actress also in Mrs. Mowatt's company.

"Their daughter Fanny (Lily Gipsy) Davenport (1850-1898) appeared in America at the age of 12 as the king of Spain in Faint Heart Never Won Fair Lady. Later (1869) she was a member of Daly's company; and afterwards, with a company of her own, acted with especial success in Sardou's Fedora (1883), Cleopatra (1890), and similar plays. Her last appearance was on the 25th of March 1898, shortly before her death."

While typing the foregoing, it occurred to me that I own and have read a book about Anna Cora Mowatt, but do not remember any references in it to E. L. Davenport, though there must be some. It was amusing to note that, although Edward Davenport was not the son of Vincent Crummles, he still starred in adaptations of Dickens' novels, and that Fanny was something of an infant phenomenon at the age of 12 to portray the king of Spain.

Incidentally, the name Sykes should have been spelled Sikes.

Davenport's sketch in the Columbia Encyclopaedia also helped me:

"Davenport, Edward Loomis . . . began his career at Providence, R.I., in 1836, as Parson Willdo, when he supported Junius Brutus Booth in Massinger's New Way to Pay Old Debts. In 1845 he became associated with Anna Mowatt Ritchie, and their tour to England (1848) had great success.

"In 1856 he gave a memorable performance as Hamlet with Fanny Vining (an English actress whom he had married in 1849), as Ophelia. In 1862 he joined James W. Wallack at the Booth Theater and culminated this association in 1876 with his appearance as Brutus in a production of Julius Caesar.

"Davenport had great charm and a versatility that enabled him to play roles from William and Jerrold's Black-eyed Susan to Edgar in Shakespeare's King Lear, in which he made his last appearance (1887). See biography by E. F. Edgett (1901)."

Edward Davenport seems to have been the first member of his family to be interested in theatricals, or to have made a success on the stage.

III. Letters from Edgar Davenport's Niece and Daughter

On August 10, after hearing from Mr. Porter, I received a letter from Miss Seymour, which read in part:

" . . . What you wrote was absolutely delightful, but, unfortunately, you have given Uncle Edgar the wrong family!

"You are correct—his father was the American actor, Edward Loomis Davenport, born in Boston, whose father was Asher Davenport, an innkeeper in this country. Therefore, Uncle Edgar was in no way related to the English actor, T. D. Davenport, nor to his daughter, Jean Davenport (afterwards Mrs. General Lander) . . . Is it too late to correct your continuing article in the September issue of HOBBIES?"

Since the September HOBBIES already was mailed, or about to be, I replied that it was too late, but that I would be glad to correct my error as soon as possible and would be glad to have any authentic information concerning Edgar Davenport. On August 24 Miss Seymour wrote:

DISTINGUISHED ACTOR EDGAR L. DAVENPORT. This photograph was sent to Jim Walsh by the actor's only surviving child, Mrs. Margery James. The inscription on the back says, "To darling Sister May, from Edgar, 1900."

—Photo by Baker's Art Gallery, Columbus, Ohio

"Dear Mr. Walsh:

"Thank you for your most charming letter. I . . . hope that straightening out the Davenport families won't be a chore for you! As there are some questions about Uncle Edgar that I cannot answer, I am writing his daughter Mrs. William R. (Margery) James. I am sure she will get in touch with you. . . .

"It is possible that Uncle Edgar's mother and father knew Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, as they lived at the same time. Perhaps Cousin Margery will know . . . I do not know whether he worked in a Boston music store or whether he was deaf. He did compose songs.

"Uncle Edgar's grandfather was Asher Davenport, June 8, 1772-July 22, 1838. Born in Coventry, Conn., and died in Boston. His grandmother, Denis Loomis, was also born in Coventry on June 8, 1775, and died in Boston in 1858.

"Fanny Davenport was his oldest sister. Harry Davenport his younger brother. My mother, May Davenport (who married William Seymour), was his sister.

"Their mother was Fanny Vining, who was born in England in 1829 and died in this country in 1891."

Mrs. James was away from home for several weeks when Miss Seymour wrote, asking her to communicate with me. But on September 19 she sent me a cordial letter from which I take the following:

"My mother was Lucy Robinson Davis, born August 19, 1865, in Charlestown, Mass. My mother and father were married August 15, 1891, in Boston.

"I don't know how he happened to make his first record. He also made The Lord's Prayer and the 23rd Psalm. But I don't know when or which company. He was in the play, Jack Straw, with John Drew, also the picture, Dorian's Divorce, with Lionel Barrymore. . . .

"One of my sons is named for my father, and his son is named for him. He also has three other children. My daughter has four and my eldest son has two, so you see, as May says, Father's line continues beautifully. . . . I am extremely proud that I am a Davenport. Thank you so very much for what you are doing. . . . I will send you some photos."

IV. More About Davenport's Records

Mrs. James' statement that Edgar Davenport made a record of The Lord's Prayer and 23rd Psalm immediately caught my attention, for I could not remember seeing such a record by him in any catalog.

Now it occurs to me that he probably made Victor record 16362 of these scriptural readings, on which the artist's name was omitted. I have written to RCA-Victor in New York to ask whose name is contained in the company's files as the reader. If a reply comes in time I will add it as a postscript to this article.

V. Information from Catalogs

When my preceding articles were written, I did not have access to the April, 1914, Edison Blue Amberol Record Catalog containing a brief sketch of Edgar Davenport. I now have it and can quote the following:

"Mr. Davenport is the elder son of the late Edward Davenport, and brother of Fanny Davenport, the well-known actress. Although a comparatively young man, he is an excellent example of the old school actor. He has improved his hereditary talent by conscientious study, and has played over a hundred parts since his first appearance on the stage with his father as a child in Pizarro.

"In 1887 he entered the Boston Museum Stock Company, entirely unknown professionally, remained five years, and became leading man, having played over 55 parts there. His impersonation of Oliver St. Aubyn in John Stetson's original Crust of Society company, was ranked as a most artistic and finished piece of acting."

The Columbia record supplement for October, 1913, contains an interesting description of Davenport's record A1371, combining The Charge of the Light Brigade and Barbara Fritchie. It is accompanied by a small photograph of the actor, showing him as middle-aged and with graying hair:

"Mr. Davenport, as one of the best elocutionists in the United States, has established his reputation as a record maker and his records of these two intensely dramatic numbers are such as to attract attention. On one side is Tenyson's magnificent tribute to the greatest feat of arms in the world's history. . . . The other selection is equally as well known . . . commemorating a happening in our own history in its way almost as heroic.

"The tale of the gentle old lady of Fredericktown, who defied Stonewall Jackson and all of his army, that the flag of the nation might fly upon her window-sill, is one that will never grow old while the United States remains a nation."

Also interesting is this comment from the Edison Blue Amberol Supplement of September, 1913, concern-

(Continued on page 55)

ANTIQUES FOR SALE

SEE MY DISPLAY for color slide rental program to stimulate interest in antiques show. — Lucille Reals, 7337 So. Shore Dr., Apt. 1127, Chicago, Ill. 60649. tfx

CHOICE, unusual collectibles in glass, ivory, wood, metals, porcelain. Specific inquiries welcomed. No pressed or carnival glass. — Florence Ackerman, Garthwoods, Scarsdale, N.Y. 10583. ja3483

SUNDERLAND wash bowl $100. Large pitcher $200. 5 1/2" pitcher $50. Powder bowl with cover $110. Blue hobnail sugar $30. Snow Man paperweight $6. Milk glass lamp, Gone Wind type miniature, $25. Brown pottery Penna. cup $15. Bennington pie plate $15. Bennington milk pan $20. Three 2" diameter marbles $8 each. Rectangular walnut bowl $20. Carriage robe polo scene $15. Old straw beehive, fine condition, solid, could be used as waste basket $30. Blue overlay atomizer $30. Iron hog scraper candlesticks $10 each. — Barnes, 207 Stevenson St., Sayre, Pa. 18840. d1407

Stop and see bottles and other miscellaneous antique items at the Krafts Antiques Shop, downtown, Holyrood, Kansas, Hwy. Old 45, now 166. Showing every Sunday from 1 to 5. je120002

OLD FRENCH DOLL, closed mouth, real hair, length 30". Mark on it made from 1720-1750. Mark is #. Mended on neck and shoulder. Also old cornet made by Frank Holton & Co., Patent Oct. 6, 1914, all accessories, good shape. Highest bidder gets them. — Lola Wallace, 62 Fairview Pl., Decatur, Ill. 66522. d1234

GENUINE clay pipes with holder $1. 6 miniature fancy frames 50c each. Old engravings $1. Other surplus collector items. — Plum, 5249 Chene, Detroit, Mich. 48211. f4005

OLD BAR and back bar 20 ft. 1/2" long, approximately 9 1/2" ft. high. Shelf 20" wide. Four large posts, two feet, 7" in circumference, four sets of double doors, four drawers. Lots of fancy scroll work. Large mirror in center and one small mirror in each end. Can be seen at Birdseye Tavern in Birdseye, Ind. Asking $5,000. — Mary Bolden, Birdseye, Ind. 47513. Phone 389-2681. d3007

FOR SALE: Original Belter furniture sofa, four chairs and marble top table in good condition. Sold as set only, for $3,000. Shipping extra. — Interior Arts, Inc., 2385 Ingleside Ave., Macon, Ga. Phone 912-743-4033. f3825

I am selling my antiques at low prices. Send 25c in coin for large 58-page catalog. — Florence M. Alexander, 606 California St., Newtonville, Mass. d3006

SELLING Chinese cloisonne, porcelains, pewter, jades, also art glass. Send us your wants. — Theodore F. X. Tribovil, P.O. Box 8068, Honolulu, Hawaii. 96815 mh126351

LARGE informative sales list! Bottles, flasks, country store items, early advertising, books about antiques. Send 25c to: The Golden Horseshoe, 27 LaVuelta, Vallejo, Calif. (Weekend shop: Benicia, Calif.) d3844

FOR SALE: Butcher stove decorated with cows heads and and corn stalks (in relief). 22-gallon kettle. Perfect condition. Contact Tom Lloyd, 412 W. Pennsylvania, Staunton, Ill. 62088 f3234

STOLEN

STOLEN: Believed sold in Chicago-Wisconsin area, separate group, 5 elephants, one signed Italian artist; parian group, Preparing Bride for Marriage, copies, 16" bulbous cameo vase, Muller signed, 3 colors scenic, 4" English cameo vase, tan, all over metric carved, Reward recovery. — 5850 Fair Oaks Blvd., Carmichael, Calif. 95608 d1483

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

ing Davenport's recitation (1868) of his standby, Lasca:

"A pathetic poem, by F. Desprez, of love and heroism on the plains of the Rio Grande, familiar to every high-school boy and girl in the country, who will find Mr. Davenport's dramatic recitation of it a great help in their study of elocution, because of the excellence of his articulation and inflection."

Speaking of Lasca, HOBBIES' September installment of the Davenport article brought me a letter I was glad to receive, from Miss Cara Hartwell of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, who recalled she had seen a silent movie based on the story of the poem, in which Jane Bernondy took the title role. Miss Hartwell also recalled that the cowboy movie star, William S. Hart, made a Victor Red Seal record, on one side of which he recited Lasca and on the other his own composition, Pinto Ben.

I looked up Lasca in an old edition of the Film Daily Year Book and found a Universal photoplay of that name was issued November 23, 1919. Another Universal picture with a similar title, Lasca of the Rio Grande, had a date of December 13, 1931.

Hart's Victor record 9297 of Pinto Ben and Lasca, with the author of the latter's name spelled as Depres, was issued in March, 1929. It cost $1.50, and its appearance brought this review from the now long-gone Phonograph Monthly Review:

"This record is a puzzler; one has difficulty in surmising what its real raison d'être may be. The famous two-gun man of the early days of the movies delivers his two wild western tales in melodramatic fashion. As examples of Americana this disc is not uninteresting, and possibly an expectant audience awaits it, but one is somewhat surprised to see it appear under a Red Seal label."

And now I have reached the end of the apologetic revision and supplement to my original article about

CHAIR CANING KITS

Now anyone can restore his favorite antique and heirloom chairs easily and inexpensively with a Newell Caning Kit. Tools, natural cane, and "easy-to-follow" instructions, all postpaid for only $2; extra cane $1 chair-lot.

THE NEWELL WORKSHOP

Dept. H, 19 Blaine Ave., Hinsdale, Ill.

Edgar L. Davenport. Mark Twain once said, or is credited with saying, that a lie can go around the world while the truth is putting its pants on.

It does seem that corrections seldom are read by as many people as the original erroneous statements, but I have done my best to get this article into print as soon as possible and shall hope that all who read what I had to say about Edgar Davenport in September and October will also see, digest and profit by what I have set down here.

The End

POSTSCRIPT — Information is still lacking as to the company for which Mr. Davenport made a record of The Lord's Prayer and 23rd Psalm. A. M. Schilt of the RCA Victor Consumer Services Department says Victor Record 16362, containing these scriptural readings, is shown in the company's files to be by E. H. Humphrey.

This must be a slightly erroneous version of the name of Harry E. Humphrey, who made records of patriotic and religious recitations for all the leading companies. It is by a wide margin Humphrey's first appearance as a Victor artist, for his name does not appear in a Victor record supplement until May, 1913, when he recited The Blue and the Gray on record 17310.

Humphrey is one of the pioneer recording artists about whom I plan to write an HOBBIES article eventually.

I wonder if Davenport may have made the original version of this record and it was afterwards remade, because of matrix damage or for some other reason, by Humphrey. Mr. Schilt, however, says the files contain no mention of Davenport in connection with it.

M. DOUGHERTY

233 Cedar Ave. Long Branch, N.J. 07740

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS TO ALL!

A Christmas star, smd. Helsey star-shaped relish dish, 5 sections, rayed, 9 1/2" across, unusual $12.50. Other smd. Helsey: 4 C/S, ribbed, $20 set; 6 stemmed Colonial goblets, $32 set; cov. butter dish, etched flrs & fern lvs., star bottom, knob top; 6" diam., $10; 2 salad plates, etched peacock border, $3 ea. TOBACCO JAR, purple lustre, striped effect, cover & 2 panels & "Micawber introduces David to London", 4" t., 3 1/2" diam., "L & Sons Ltd" shield mark, $8.60. ADM. DEWEY STEIN, 6" t., portrait w/cagle & wreath, red, wh & blue striped top, nice hnd! $10. Ridgways veg. dish, bl & wh, Oriental patt. mint, $12.00. Cut glass tankard pitcher, 9 1/2" t., 6" base, w/4 matching tumbler, heavy, hob stars & Harvard cutting, $85 set. Postage extra, stamped envelope, please. dp

GEORGE O. MEHL

650 Cordova St., Apt. 15 Pasadena, Calif. 91106

12 1/2" light custard vase (See Nov. 66 HOBBIES cover, extreme right). Gorgeous enam. florals, $48. Magnificent art glass acid finish vase, shades pink to pale yellow. Urn shaped, ear handles, 6 1/2" tall, $100. 12 3/4" Dnlsy & Bulfin sapphire blue celery boat $55. Cranberry Hobnail bride's basket in exquisite holder. (See Nov. 66 HOBBIES cover, bottom), $80. Greentown Caramel slag cactus 3" bowl, $32; Matching sauce, $12.50. Cut Glass knife rest, $10. 7" copper lustre pitcher. Diamond panels around bulbous part, enameled flowers, $60. Lyro design Whale oil lamp with matching spillholder, $100. Atterbury Milk glass entwined fish, dated 1889, all intact, red eyes, $73.50. Postage and insurance additional. dp

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

VICTOR BIRTHPLACE — Eldridge R. Johnson began his talking machine career in this ramshackle machine shop in the 1890's by manufacturing motors for Emile Berliner's primitive gram-o-phone. The old structure is seen here, surrounded by modern RCA-Victor factory and buildings at Camden, N.J.

collectors have seen, appears to be sufficient justification for this article.

One of the pictures may be dismissed briefly. It is not really old, as it probably was taken in the late 1940s or early 1950s. It shows the grimy little repair shop in which Eldridge R. Johnson began his talking machine manufacturing business in 1898, three years before he founded the Victor Company.

This ramshackle old building here is seen surrounded by the huge RCA-Victor manufacturing complex at Camden, N.J. Presumably the old building is still standing. It should be preserved as a matter of sentiment and as a tribute to one of the most spectacular growths in all American business history.

I find the second picture more interesting. It depicts four men at the entrance to the Victor Talking Machine Company's office, presumably just after Johnson founded the company in October, 1901. He had registered Victor as a trademark the preceding March. Indications are that the sign which gave the Victor name had been installed only recently, for above it is one saying "Office, Eldridge R. Johnson."

The men appear to be dressed for cool, but not cold, weather. This makes it a reasonable supposition that the picture was made in that same historic month of October. Whatever the month and year, the scene fascinates me. (see p. 39)

I have spent hours staring at that cracked old picture and trying to identify the four gentlemen who dis-

Early Victor Photographs and Catalogs

PART I

By JIM WALSH

Antique
MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS
(Estab. Switzerland 1825)
Complete Repair Service - All Types
All Work Guaranteed
Finest Instruments Bought & Sold
BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.
139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803
tfc

Not long ago I obtained two pictures with an interesting, and rather amusing, bearing on the early days of the legendary old Victor Talking Machine Company, which now, for almost 40 years has lost its separate identity, as a part of the giant Radio Corporation of America.

Still more recently, I have had access to what I believe to be the oldest Victor record lists yet discovered. The combination of pictures and Stone Age recording catalogs, which few

ANTIQUES LTD.
2847 N. Campbell Ave.
Tucson, Ariz. 85719
Phone: 326-2791, Eve. 793-2271

VICTOR Talking Machine Company record collection. Includes Caruso.
List for $1.00 and large stamped envelope, refundable with purchase jax

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue
Valhalla, New York
tfx

LARGE HORN

Edison Columbia phono collection.

First time offered.

Also records.

LOUIS MASCIARELLI
173 Main St. Marlboro, Mass.
mhp

play what the well-dressed man of 1901 was wearing.

Unless this information is available, however, somewhere in RCA-Victor files, positive identification seems impossible. The man seated on the steps might be George Graham, the patent-medicine-vending monologist who made a good many comic talking records for Berliner and Johnson, but was dead by 1908. He looks something like pictures I have seen of Graham, but that is far from a definite identification.

Just behind the seated man are two young fellows who appear hardly more than boys. I am haunted by the feeling that their faces are familiar, but farther than that I cannot go. The one to the left seems to have some resemblance to "S. H. Dudley" (Samuel Holland Rous), the baritone of the Haydn Quartet. But Sam Rous was around his mid-30's in 1901, and this youth couldn't conceivably be that old.

The curly-headed fellow beside him looks a bit like Len Spencer, but Len was 32 when the Victor Company was founded—again obviously too old. I thought of Harry Macdonough, but the Haydn Quartet's second tenor was 30 in 1901. Besides, he was, I believe, considerably shorter than this rather impish looking juvenile.

But if these men were not recording artists, what were they doing in the picture? Could they have been recording technicians? That hardly seems likely, considering their tender years. Is it possible they simply had done the job of erecting the new Victor Company sign and were invited to have their pictures taken beneath it?

As for the fourth man, peering from inside the door, it is a logical deduction that this was Eldridge Reeves Johnson himself. He stands proudly inside his office, and his face, as best it can be seen, bears some resemblance to Johnson's. However, this man may have a mustache—it's hard to be sure in view of the poor lighting—and I have never heard of Johnson wearing one.

But if he was not Victor's founder, who was he and what was he doing in the picture? He surely can't be Emilio De Gogorza, who recorded for Victor from its very earliest days!

Such speculation is fascinating but fruitless. If anybody at RCA-Victor knows who these presumably long-dead gentlemen of 65 years ago were I'd appreciate the information being given to me, to be passed on in turn to readers of HOBBIES.

Another thought! Could any one of the four have been Frank P. Banta, who directed the Metropolitan Orchestra and who died late in 1903?

Now to a consideration of the old record catalogs, the earliest of which are dated February, 1901. And, as always, when I ponder Eldridge Johnson's earliest recording activities, I have a feeling of bafflement.

Although these lists appear to be the earliest that have come to light, they are not the first to be issued, for their front pages say they are "new lists" of Victor Gram-o-phone 7-inch records, Victor Gram-o-phone records (with reference to 7-inch omitted), and Monarch Gram-o-phone 10-inch records.

Never yet have I found a printed listing of the first 10 Victor 7-inch records numbered from A-1 to A-10, and containing, in order, the following titles:

"Eugene Field's Poem, 'Departure'
"The Colored Preacher"
"Fuzzy Wuzzy"
"On the Road to Mandalay"
"Birth of St. Patrick"
"Danny Deever"
"Limburger Cheese," afterwards retitled "The Boy and the Cheese"
"Die Reizente Constanz"
"Strike Up the Band, Here Comes a Sailor"
"King Gilhooley."

Of the first six, "The Colored Preacher" was made by George Graham, who previously had recorded it for Berliner. The other five were recitations by George Broderick, who was from a prominent theatrical family and was an uncle of the famous actress, Helen Broderick.

The German number, which seems to bear witness to Johnson's early belief that he could build up a substantial foreign language record trade, was sung by August Kreuder, baritone. And the two comic songs with which the list ends were by my dear old friend, Dan W. Quinn. "Limburger Cheese" was a monolog by Burt Shepard.

These first 10 Victor records could not have been made earlier than 1900, because "Strike Up the Band" was not published until that year. Yet in the October, 1901, list, only two of the 10 remain—"Limburger Cheese," and the German song. The others had been dropped, although Quinn's "Strike Up the Band" had been replaced by one with a higher number, sung by Arthur Collins.

Here's another puzzle. Johnson was using the name Victor in February, 1901, although he didn't register it for copyright until the following month. But I have a few 7-inch discs recorded as late as October, 1900, of Johnson manufacture, called Improved Records instead of Victor.

The label says they are manufactured by Eldridge R. Johnson, Camden, N.J. But a sticker on the back of one identifies the manufacturer as the Consolidated Talking Machine Company, of Philadelphia.

These old record lists, by the way, give Johnson's business address as the Stephen Girard Building, Philadelphia, and it is a fact that, until 1906, Victor's recording studios were in Philadelphia instead of Camden.

Even earlier, but still apparently in 1900, Johnson was manufacturing records in a small way by making a 7-inch, single-faced Climax disc, issued by what he called the Globe

Jim Walsh's Famous, Fabulous Family of Friendly, Furry Felines

AGAIN WISHES YOU A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR!

1. LUCKY JIM turns to his diary for proof that he has been a good boy during 1967 and deserves a visit from Santa Claus. (Since he delights to "pick on" Plum, he would do well not to call the "Professor" as a character witness.)
2. You may have it hard to find NIPPER. He has seated himself between dolls dressed to represent the pioneer recording artist, Ada Jones and Billy Murray, in the belief that he can watch Santa without being observed.
3. FOSSY, who lived in the basement at 225 N.

- Maple St., Vinton, Va., as a bachelor for several years, took a wife last spring. He hopes Saint Nick will be good to his beautiful little boys, Fossy-Bill and Fossy-Billy.
4. PLUM, better known as "Professor" because he reportedly has a Ph.D. degree, has taken to the high places to keep a lookout for Santa.
5. PETEY has prepared a program of Christmas music to greet Santa from his ancient Victor talking machine.
6. We mourn the loss of Jim Walsh (Jim-Jim)

Jenkins, beloved cat of Mrs. Lucie Jenkins of Rose Hill, Va., who was born in September, 1966 and died April 23, 1967. When this picture was taken three days before his death he was planning a trip by parcel post to visit his Walsh family friends.

Thanks to everybody who sent us Christmas and New Year cards a year ago. We are sorry that "Papa Jim" was ill and unable to reply to most of them. Jax Record Company. To settle a suit brought by Columbia, that alleged patent infringement, he turned the Globe Record Company over to his arch rival, and apparently substituted the Improved Record in its place.

Columbia did not begin issuing discs until early in 1902. And some, if not all, of the first Columbia "platters" were from Johnson's Climax masters.

Columbia retained the Climax name. Later it was reserved for Columbia-made records sold by the American Wholesalers of Baltimore, Md. And some of the early Climaxes had what looks like a brass reinforcement ring around the spindle hole.

More than 20 years ago the late J. L. Norton, Sr., and Jr., who operated the Woodmay Record Store in West Roxbury, Mass., showed me Climax records which had the lettering, "V. T. M. Co.," that obviously stood for Victor Talking Machine Company, in the lower left-hand corner of the label, and, if I remember right, enclosed in a circle.

This would make it appear that Johnson still issued Climax records after adopting the Victor name, but he hardly can have done that. Probably the records were made for Columbia after the change in ownership, and the lettering was used to indicate those which had been pressed from taken-over Victor matrices.

One of my Improved Records is A-510 "Minstrels, No. 5," by the Georgia Minstrels — another name for the Haydn Quartet. It appears in the February, 1901, Victor list under the same number.

My Improved Record A-509 also is a minstrel, but the Victor A-509, though still by the Georgia Minstrels, uses different songs from those on the Improved of the same number. Victor A-508 contains the same songs as the A-509 Improved.

I suspect that the first 10 Victor records I have listed appeared earlier under the Improved label and probably began life as Globes. It is evident that more than 500 titles had been listed under the Improved name before Victor came into use, and that Improved records were still being sold up to within three months of the printing of the February, 1901, Victor list.

And can somebody please tell me why a list of Victor Gram-o-phone Records was issued dated February, 1, 1901? And a much longer group of Victor Gram-o-phone Records, which also were 7-inch, was dated the same day?

I shan't copy the shorter list, because all the records it contains are in the longer compilation. Nor shall I comment extensively on what the latter contains, other than to say that the majority of low-numbered Improved records had been dropped.

And, on a closer check, I see that "Limburger Cheese," and "Die Reizende Constanz" which is described as a "comic German song," do not appear in the February, 1901, list,

WHO ARE THEY? — My story surrounds the identity of this group shown, probably in the autumn of 1901, outside the Victor office. See article for comment.

but were reinstated in October. Perhaps flaws had developed in the crude originals and they had to be remade.

The February list contains five minstrel records; nine Negro specialties by Billy Golden; one comic specialty by Burt Shepard, an American-born comedian who lived in London but came to America periodically to make records for Johnson; cornet solos by Walter B. Rogers; and banjo solos by Vess L. Ossman.

Also there were "Alphabet songs" for children by Harry Macdonough; vocal selections by the Haydn Quartet and several favorite soloists; instrumental offerings by Jean Moereman's Woodwind Quartet; and a fair representation of opera and foreign language records by the almost mythical Rosalia Chalia, including solos and duets with a contralto, Miss Frankel.

A couple of De Gogorza offerings were under the alias of E. Francisco (not yet Carlos Francisco) and some songs were by Senor Antonio Vargas who sang in both Spanish and Italian.

(To be continued)

BINDERS FOR HOBBIES

Price each $3.00

The wealth of information contained in each issue of HOBBIES is too valuable to be thrown around with consequent danger of loss.

Holds 12 issues.

HOBBIES Magazine

1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605

Please mention HOBBIES when replying to advertisements.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

The most wonderful Christmas Gift ever offered for Children. Talks, sings, reproduces the great orchestras, famous bands and story tellers as clearly as many machines costing ten times as much. An inimitable source of pleasure and profit for young and old. The exciting about it is substantial. Nothing to get out of order. A child can operate it. Has a ten inch japanned horn, toy sound box, perfect governor, with speed regulator, nicely polished case board, record with six children's selections, and 100 needles. Uses the regular standard Gram-o-phone record. A wonderful machine at the price. You can't fully appreciate it until you see and hear it. You can't realize how such a machine can be made for the price when you get it. It is the ideal new century gift. To be had of Talking Machine dealers, or sent on receipt of price.

Write for catalogue describing this and other styles of the Gram-o-phone.

CONSOLIDATED TALKING MACHINE CO., Philadelphia, Pa.
ELDRIDGE R. JOHNSON, Manufacturer.

DECEMBER, 1900 When you write, please mention "The Cosmopolitan."

CONSOLIDATED AD — In December, 1900, E. R. Johnson still was advertising as the Consolidated Talking Machine Company. But two months later he was issuing lists of Victor Records. Note that this advertisement refers only to "the regular standard Gram-o-phone record." The word "Victor" does not appear.

Early Victor Photographs and Catalogs

PART II

By JIM WALSH

Antique MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1826)

Complete Repair Service - All Types
All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

Here is the 67 - year - old listing of those 7-inch, single-faced Victor records, which sold for 50 cents each or $5 a dozen:

THE GEORGIA MINSTREL CO. AND CHORUS
Assisted by Messrs. S. H. Dudley; Wm. F. Hooley; Harry Macdonough; Frank P. Banta and The

METROPOLITAN ORCHESTRA

These Records are full of original wit and Negro humor. The Orchestra overture, the jokes of the funny end men, the brilliant chorus and the fine solos make them a veritable carnival of mirth and melody.

- A506 Minstrel Record, No. 1
Introducing "Just One Girl," by Mr. S. H. Dudley
- A507 Minstrel Record No. 2
Introducing "Darktown Is Out Tonight," by Mr. S. H. Dudley
- A508 Minstrel Record, No. 3
Introducing "Old Black Joe," by the entire Company, and "The Old Folks at Home," by Mr. W. F. Hooley
- A509 Minstrel Record, No. 4
Introducing the "Old Log Cabin in the Dell," by the entire Company and "How I Love My Lou," by Mr. S. H. Dudley, the phenomenal Baritone
- A510 Minstrel Record, No. 5
In which Mr. W. F. Hooley, the eminent basso, sings "Massa's in de Cold, Cold, Ground"

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

FAMOUS ORIGINAL NEGRO SONGS AND SHOUTS

By BILLY GOLDEN

- A 65 Turkey in de Straw
- A 68 Bye Bye Ma Honey
- A616 Roll on de Ground
- A617 Crap Shooting
- A618 The Mocking Bird. (Whistling Solo)
- A619 The Wedding O'er the Hill
- A620 Yaller Gal. (Laughing Song)
- A621 Uncle Jefferson
- A622 Rabbit Hash

By BERT SHEPARD

- A1010 Imitation of a Bird Sale in London

Selections By

THE METROPOLITAN ORCHESTRA

- A537 National Guard Grand Parade Two-Step
- A231 A Trip Through Dixie
- A232 Selection from "The Burgomaster"
- A233 Fiddle-Dee-Dee March
- A234 My Blushin' Rosie (Medley March from Weber & Fields "Fiddle-Dee-Dee")
- A295 My Sun Flower Sue. (From "Hodge Podge & Co.")
- A384 The Gay Golf Girl. (From "Hodge, Podge & Co.")
- A385 The Richard Carvel March
- A386 Selection from "The Mikado," No. 1
- A387 Selection from "The Mikado," No. 2
- A388 Selection from "Patience," No. 1
- A389 Selection from "Patience," No. 2
- A390 Selection from "Patience," No. 1
- A391 Selection from "Patience," No. 2
- A392 Selection from "Pinafore," No. 1
- A393 Selection from "Pinafore," No. 2
- A394 Selection from "Pinafore," No. 2
- A395 The Morning Journal's Waltz. (Strauss)
- A396 Tales from Vienna Woods, Waltz (Strauss)
- A255 Twin Star March
- A289 Who Dat Say Chicken?

Cornet Solos by MR. WALTER B. ROGERS
Cornet Soloist of Sousa's Band

- A524 A Soldier's Dream
- A525 Southern Dance
- A529 Concert Polka
- A531 German Sounds
- A532 War Song with Variations
- A532 Yankee Doodle with Variations

Banjo Solos by

MR. VESS L. OSSMAN

- A623 Oriental Intermezzo, "Salome"
- A624 Selection from "Florodora"

Soprano Solos by

MME. ROSALIA CHALIA

- A542 Caro Nome from "Rigoletto," (Verdi)
- A543 O Patria Mia, from "Aida," (Verdi)
- A544 Il Bacio (The Kiss), Italian (Arditi)
- A547 Pieta Signore, Italian. (Stradella)
- A545 Home, Sweet Home. (Payne)
- A552 "Tu" Habanera, Cuban Song. (Sanchez Fuentes)

- A551 Seguidillas Manchegas, Spanish Folk Song

Soprano Solos by

MME. ROSALIA CHALIA

- With Flute Obligato by Mr. Frank V. Badollet
- A541 Thou Brilliant Bird, French. (Felicien David)

(Turn to page 38)

(See our Music Box listing on page 39 — Lloyd G. Kelley)

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

LARGE HORN
Edison Columbia phono collection.
First time offered.

Also records.

LOUIS MASCIARELLI
173 Main St. Marlboro, Mass.

- A548 Angel's Serenade. French. (Braga)
 A549 Gounod's Serenade. French
 A550 Ave Maria. Latin. (Gounod)
 Duets for Soprano and Contralto by
 MME. CHATA and MISS FRANKEL
 A546 Serenata Melisole. Italian. (Bolto)
 A555 Sur La Grande Mer. (Night Hymn at Sea).
 French. (Goring Thomas)
 A554 Quis Est Homo. Latin. (Stabat Mater)
 A556 Recitative and Duet, from "Martha." Italian.
 (Plotow)
 A557 Lakme. French. (Delibes)

- Baritone Solos by
 SIG. E. FRANCISCO
 A625 Romanza. "Lola." Spanish
 A627 Toreador's Song. French. With Orchestra
 Accompaniment

- MR. HARRY MACDONOUGH, Tenor
 A533 I Can't Tell Why I Love You, But I Do
 A492 The Duchess of Central Park
 A605 Where is My Boy To-night? (Organ Accompaniment)
 A609 Side by Side
 A610 My Sweet Queen. (One of Olcott's new songs)
 A611 When the Birds Go North Again
 A612 A Picture Without a Frame
 A613 The Girl I Should Have Married Long Ago
 A614 Here's To The Rose
 A615 Home, Sweet Home
 A636 My Old Kentucky Home
 A637 Love Me Phebe

- ALPHABET SONGS
 By HARRY MACDONOUGH
 A special series for little folks. Bright, catchy melodies, with a dainty little song for each letter of the alphabet.
 A628 Alphabet Songs, A B C
 A629 Alphabet Songs, D E
 A630 Alphabet Songs, F G H I
 A631 Alphabet Songs, J K L M
 A632 Alphabet Songs, N O P
 A633 Alphabet Songs, Q R S T
 A634 Alphabet Songs, U V W
 A635 Alphabet Songs, X Y Z

- Baritone Solos by
 MR. S. H. DUDLEY
 A504 Put Me Off at Buffalo
 A 45 The Village Choir
 A503 Parody on Just One Girl
 A505 Vaudeville Specialty
 A 64 The Tale of a Kangaroo. (From "The Burgomaster")
 A585 Why Don't the Band Play? (Sung by May Irwin, in "The Belle of Bridgeport")
 A586 Tommy Atkins. (With Trumpet Calls)

- MR. S. H. DUDLEY
 Orchestra Accompaniment
 A511 We'll Never Haul the Old Flag Down
 A512 Chi Wouldn't That Jar You!
 A513 Rh-da and Her Pagoda. From "San Toy"
 A514 Chinese Soje Man. From "San Toy"
 A515 When the Moon Comes Up Behind de Hill.
 (Paul Dresser's New Song)
 A516 A Private in the Ranks
 A517 My Blushin' Rosie. (Sung by Fay Templeton, in "Fiddle-Dee-Dee") A518 My Sun Flower Sue. (Sung by Peter Dalley, in "Hodge, Podge")
 A519 When Reuben Comes to Town. (Sung in Rogers Bros. "Central Park")

- Baritone Solos by
 MR. J. J. FISHER
 A564 Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep
 A560 Hosanna
 A561 Charity
 A562 Gounod's Nazareth
 A565 I Heard the Voice of Jesus
 A568 All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name
 A569 Bless Be the Tie That Binds
 A570 Blessed Assurance
 A567 The Sweetest Story Ever Told
 A563 Drinking Song from "The Rose of Persia"
 A566 Anchored

- MR. J. J. FISHER
 With Orchestra Accompaniment
 A571 A Bandit's Life
 A572 Armorer's Song, from "Robin Hood"
 A573 Ashore
 A580 Believe
 A574 Plee as a Bird
 A575 My Queen Irene
 A576 Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep
 A577 Since Thou Art Mine
 A578 Sweet Suzanne
 A579 The Palms

- MOEREMAN'S WOOD WIND QUARTET
 Flute, Clarinet, Saxophone and Bassoon
 A596 Boccherini's Minuet
 A597 Nearer My God To Thee
 A598 Traumeri
 A599 Robin Adair
 A600 Bridal March, from "Lohengrin"
 A602 The Palms
 A603 Annie Laurie
 A604 Gottschalk's Last Hope

- WESTMINSTER CHIMES
 A606 Rock of Ages
 A607 Come, Ye Disconsolate
 A608 Adeste Fideles

- THE HAYDN QUARTET
 A107 Mandy Lec. (Solo and Chorus)
 A 97 Lead Kindly Light
 A520 College Medley
 A521 Onward, Christian Soldiers
 A522 Gottschalk's Last Hope

- Baritone Solos by
 SENOR ANTONIO VARGAS
 In Spanish and Italian
 A587 El Toreador
 A588 Jerusalem. (The Holy City)
 A589 Eternamente. (For all Eternity.) Sung in Italian
 A590 La Verbena de la Paloma
 A591 Te Amo, Danza Mexicana
 A592 Cancion del Ruisenor
 A593 La Serenata de Schubert

- A594 Ave Maria. Italian. From "Cavalleria Rusticana"
 A595 Campanas de Carrion

- MR. ARTHUR COLLINS
 Orchestra Accompaniment
 A538 Every Race Has a Flag But the Coon
 A539 Strike Up the Band

- RECORDS BY GEO. W. JOHNSON
 The Original Whistling Coon
 A581 The Whistling Girl
 A582 The Whistling Coon
 A583 The Laughing Song
 A584 The Laughing Coon

- RECORDS MADE IN MILAN, ITALY
 By SIGNOR CARLO CAFFETO
 A1000 Fravol belle brune, from "Manon"
 A1001 Spirito Gentil, from "Favorita"
 A1004 Morir si pura e bella
 A1006 Un di all'azzurro Spazio
 A1008 Di quella Pira, from "Trovatore"
 A1009 Tombadiglia avi Miel, from "Lucia Lammermoor"

- By SIGNORINA GRIPPA
 A1007 Ernani Involami

- By SIGNOR MOREO
 A1002 O Sommo Carlo, from "Ernani"

- By SIGNOR FRANCHI
 A1003 Serenata, Mephisto, from "Faust"

- Mandolin Solo by
 PROF. PALLIVICINI
 A1005 Le Carnival di Venezia

Next month I'll give the list of 10-inch Monarch records for February, 1901, and the October, 1901, list of both Victors and Monarchs.
 (To be continued)

LINCOLNIANA IN 1967

(Continued from page 33)

siege and battle. This battle was exceedingly important to the Union Forces and most discouraging to the Confederates.

The Battle of Winchester hastened the fall of the Confederacy since the important Shenandoah Valley was captured by General Philip Sheridan and General Early's army practically was destroyed. These victories shut off supplies to the Confederacy from the fertile Shenandoah Valley and helped Grant in his campaign to capture Richmond and destroy Lee's army.

ADDITIONAL CIVIL WAR ARTICLES OF INTEREST IN 1967

"Pickett's Report on Gettysburg," Civil War Times, October, 1967.

The charge of General George Pickett's brigade at Gettysburg has become a famous one. His report of this charge to General Lee was not accepted. He was asked to write another report.

It is not known what was in the first report nor has it been located. Pickett and Lee were not close friends after the war. I assume that the first report was somewhat critical of the strategy employed at Gettysburg.

"A Recollection of Stonewall Jackson," American History Illustrated, June, 1967.

This is a report on Jackson's marriage, his teaching at Virginia Military Institute, and other personal characteristics. During the war, Jackson usually is spoken of as being poorly dressed and not too particular about his appearance.

His picture while at V. M. I. portrays a handsome young man, well dressed, and exhibiting excellent military bearing.

"Jefferson Davis, An Appraisal," by Bill I. Wiley, Civil War Times, April, 1967.

Davis possessed a fine education, was intellectual, and had an excellent background in military and government affairs. He did not seek the Presidency of the Confederacy, but once he was inaugurated he labored hard to insure victory.

His personality and temperament worked to his great disadvantage. His judgment was sometimes excellent, at other times less so. His relations with the Confederate generals left much to be desired. He dictated much of the policy and procedures, and, thereby, it seems alienated some of his best military people.

"Professor Lowe — A Personality Profile," Civil War Times, August, 1967.

Thaddeus C. Lowe was not a professor. He was scarcely an elementary school graduate, as judged by present day standards. According to Carl Sandburg, Lowe was shot at more than any other person during the Civil War. He was a ballonist and his balloon was used to spot enemy troops, artillery emplacements, and other information of value to the Union Army.

OTHER EVENTS

William K. Alderfer, Lansing, Mich., has been appointed Illinois State Historian. He succeeds Clyde C. Walton who is now Director of Libraries, Northern Illinois University, De Kalb, Ill.

Since he was trained at the Universities of Pennsylvania, Rochester, and Wisconsin, Alderfer has the necessary academic preparation for this important post. An additional qualification is that the newly appointed Historian has accumulated valuable experience as a collector for various libraries and historic sites.

Carl Sandburg, 89, died in Flat Rock, N.C. July 22, 1967. On October 1, 1967, his ashes were scattered about the Remembrance Rock in the Carl Sandburg Park adjacent to his birthplace at Galesburg, Ill.

Also scattered about this large rock is dust from Valley Forge; Sweden, Plymouth, Mass., and other noted places. In addition, there is dust from the 13 schools in the United States that are named after the great poet and biographer of Lincoln.

Sandburg wrote a biography of Lincoln that has been the basis for proclaiming Sandburg as the Dean of Lincoln biographers. This work consists of six large volumes — 2 volumes on "The Prairie Years" and 4 volumes on the "War Years of Abraham Lincoln." Sandburg has the title of Poet-Laureate of Illinois.

The Congress of Illinois Historical Societies held its first meeting at Monticello, Ill., May 19, 1967. Historical societies are growing by leaps and bounds. In 1967, the Illinois State Historical Society added 419 new members. Several counties in Illinois organized historical groups.

Civil War Round Tables tend to be organized by cities. Historical Societies, however, appear to be organized by counties.

The Chicago Tribune Magazine of Sunday, January 15, 1967, contains pictures of Beardstown, Ill. Featured is the City Hall when Lincoln defended Duff Armstrong in the famous Almanac Trial in 1858. The story goes that Lincoln used an almanac to discredit the testimony of a witness and thereby secured the verdict of innocent for his client.

In the same issue of the Chicago Tribune Magazine is the picture of Anthony Trollope, a contemporary of Dickens and Thackeray. The English-born author visited the United States during the Civil War. Later on he returned to England and wrote two volumes on North America. Trollope was impressed by Chicago, liked Boston best, but in general, his books were well written and showed a warm regard for American people.

These volumes long have been forgotten but are to be republished in a short version by Penguin Modern Classics. Trollope's comments about the war, Lincoln, and other items, have proved to be almost wholly true, except Trollope predicted that the United States would be divided by the war into two countries, North and South.

The Boy Scout Pilgrimage to Lincoln's Tomb, conducted each year in April, becomes larger each year. In 1967, more than 4,000 Scouts made the Pilgrimage. Dr. Wayne Temple, editor of the Lincoln Herald, was the speaker for the occasion.

The old Capitol Building in Springfield is being reconstructed to resemble the building as Lincoln knew it. In it he made his famous "House Divided" speech. The exterior of the newly constructed building will typify the structure of 1860, but the underground portion will be very large to accommodate a library storage, and the parking of cars. The reconstructed building will be two stories. The same rocks and other materials will be used as much as possible in the restoration. Completion and dedication date is August, 1968.

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Early Victor Photographs and Catalogs

PART III

By JIM WALSH

HIS MASTER'S VOICE.

BURLESQUE. By 1910 Victor's "His Master's Voice" was the most famous trademark in the world. It frequently was adapted for political cartoons and sometimes burlesqued, as in this English post card of uncertain date.

Eldridge R. Johnson began his phenomenally successful career as a purveyor of talking machines and records in the late 1890s when, still in his tiny machine shop, he began manufacturing motors for the primitive Berliner Gram-o-phones.

There is no space to recount here the story of how, after prolonged litigation among the pioneer phonograph manufacturers, Johnson took over the business from Berliner and set up the Victor Talking Machine Company.

LARGE HORN
Edison Columbia phono collection.
First time offered.

Also records.

LOUIS MASCIARELLI
173 Main St. Marlboro, Mass.

It is worth noting, however, that in 1899 an English artist, Francis Barraud, had painted a picture of a little fox terrier, "Nipper," listening to an early model cylinder phonograph.

Barraud tried vainly to sell Nipper's painting to the Edison Bell Company, but its officials were unable to see its advertising value. Instead, they suggested he try his luck with the Gramophone Company, which an American, Barry Owen, had established in London the year before.

The Gramophone management saw at once that the painting could become a valuable trademark and bought it for $500. Barraud painted over the original cylinder machine he had drawn, and substituted a small Gramophone. Traces of the cylinder apparatus still can be detected in the original picture.

The Gramophone Company began using "His Master's Voice" as an advertisement, although the picture did not appear on its record labels until 1909.

Meanwhile, Berliner, through his business association with Gramophone, obtained the right to use the picture in the States and registered it as a trademark in July, 1900.

It is odd that Johnson did not immediately begin using the picture, but Nipper and the gramophone do not appear on any of the 1901 record lists or records issued that year. The pictures are present, however, on the supplement for August, 1902. The oldest magazine advertisement I have been able to find with the trademark is dated September, 1902. The trademark is on the back cover of the Victor Record Catalog for February, 1902.

Yet, within another eight years, Victor's business had grown to such proportions that in 1910 Collier's Weekly termed "His Master's Voice" the most famous trademark in the world, which it certainly was.

Cartoonists, especially those dealing with political controversies, frequently modeled their drawings after it, and it was sometimes burlesqued, as in the accompanying reprint of an English post card, just for the fun of it.

The pictures, taken in 1910 and 1916, illustrate graphically the growth of Johnson's business during those golden years. And the manufacturing plant was steadily added to after 1916.

Even in 1924, when it looked as if the phonograph might be about to receive its death sentence from radio, Johnson, apparently unable to believe that calamity could overtake his enterprises, continued to expand. Perhaps, however, electric recording and the Orthophonic Victrola were already past the planning stage, and the new facilities were added to take care of the demand that developed for the improved products.

A victim of failing health, Johnson sold the Victor business to New York bankers in 1927. They, in turn, sold it a year or so later to RCA.

So, even if Johnson is considered to have begun his talking manufacturing activities in 1898, his direct association with the business lasted less than 30 years. And he was able to retire many times a millionaire.

Probably, being well out of it, he gave a wry grimace when Victor's record business dropped in 1932 to less than it had been in 1901. But, of course, it eventually came back and is now, as RCA-Victor, larger than ever.

We already have looked at the February, 1901, list of 7-inch records. Now let's examine the 10-inch Monarch Gram-o-phone Record List of the same date.

It is not long. Again we find the Georgia Minstrels and the Metropolitan Orchestra. Harry Macdonough has five tenor solos. One "The Holy City," he once remarked to me, "paid

Antique MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1825)

Complete Repair Service - All Types

All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

The Greatest Musical Center in the Whole World

To one of these modern structures of steel and concrete that house the giant industry of the Victor and Victrola, just across the historic Delaware River from the city of Philadelphia, comes a never-ending procession of the very greatest artists in the whole world. To-day it may be Caruso; to-morrow it may be Alda, Amato, Boni, Calvo, Colpe, de Casoria, Destina, Farrar, Gaddi, Gluck, Hempel, Homer, Marinelli, M. Comas, Melba, Ober, Ruffo, Schimanski, Scotti, Sembrich, T. T. razzini, Whitehill or Williams; or it may be several of them assembling to unite in making a masterpiece like the "Sextette from Lucia." Or it may be Paderewski, Elman, Kreisler; or Harry Lauder; and then again it might be Sousa and his Band, or some other organization.

But wherever it is, or whatever the organization, it is certain that within the walls of these buildings is heard day in and day out, year in and year out, a variety of music such as no other place on earth has ever heard.

And unlike music that is heard in any other place, which is only a momentary pleasure ending with its rendition, Victor music lives forever. From its beginning in the Recording Laboratory, it goes through the various processes necessary to its perpetuation, and eventually leaves the Shipping Department to be heard again and again in millions of homes throughout the world.

STILL GROWING. Continued growth of the Mammoth Victor plant is shown in this picture. Taken from the July, 1916, Victor Record Supplement.

my rent for many years." When he sang it over and over on cylinder records it was described as "unquestionably the finest record ever produced."

To Sam Rous (S. H. Dudley), fell the honor of being represented by the first in numerical order 10-inch record, "When Reuben Comes to Town." I am proud to have a good copy. It was 3001, but this was changed the following year to 519, its serial number, which indicated the order in which it had been recorded.

Evidently, Johnson started out to number records according to blocks, with Dudley's running from 3001 to 3009. So it does not follow that 3001 was the first 10-inch disc the Company made.

Vess L. Ossman had 10 banjo solos. Alec Heindl of the Boston Symphony Orchestra played two 'cello numbers. Sig E. Francisco sang eight selections in Italian, French, and Spanish; and Sig. Antonio Vargas intruded on Harry Macdonough's territory by warbling "The Holy City"—in Spanish.

But here is the list:

Selections By THE METROPOLITAN ORCHESTRA

- 3014 The Stars and Stripes Forever! (Sousa)
- 3015 A Southern Reverie
- 3016 Impeccious Davis
- 3032 Selections from "Hurly Burly," introducing "Keep Away from Emmeline," and "Little Old New York is Good Enough for Me."
- 3033 The Blue Danube Waltz. (Strauss)
- 3034 "Fanchette"

A charming "Entre Act," by Theo. Benedix.

By the Tenor MR. HARRY MACDONOUGH

- 3012 The Holy City, with organ accompaniment

This is unquestionably the finest R-record ever produced.

- 3013 The Sabbath Morn
- Chime Bells, Adesle Fidells and one verse of "The Holy City," by Mr. Macdonough.
- 3050 My Dreams (Tosti)
- 3060 My Old Kentucky Home
- 3061 Love Me, Phoebe

By the Baritone MR. S. H. DUDLEY

- 3001 When Reuben Comes to Town. Whistling Chorus and Clogs.
- The hit of Rogers Bros., in "Central Park."
- 3002 The Tale of the Kangaroo. From "The Burgomaster."
- 3003 Listen to My Tale of Woe.
- Hub Smith's story of Johnnie Jones and his sister Sue.
- 3004 Put Me Off at Buffalo
- 3005 The Village Choir
- Imitations of soprano, tenor and bass voices.
- Very funny.
- 3006 Nothing But Nerves
- Stuttering song from "The Greek Slave."
- 3007 Oh! Wouldn't that Jar You! (Comic)
- 3008 Why Don't the Band Play? (Sung by May Irwin, in "The Belle of Bridgeport")
- 3009 Private Tommy Atkins. With Trumpet Calls

By the Banjo King MR. VESS L. OSSMAN

- 3041 The L. A. W. March
- 3042 A Negro Band Contest
- 3043 An Ethiopian Mardi Gras
- 3044 The Man Behind the Gun
- 3045 The Stars and Stripes Forever
- 3046 Hands Across the Sea
- 3047 Selections from "San Toy"
- 3048 Oriental Intermezzo "Salome"
- 3049 Tell Me Pretty Maiden, from "Florodora"
- 3050 A Bunch of Rags An original arrangement of popular "rag time" melodies.

'Cello Solos By

MR. ALEX. HEINDL of the Boston Symphony Orchestra

- 3030 Rubenstein's Melody in F
- 3031 Intermezzo, Cavalleria Rusticana

Baritone Solos By

STG. E. FRANCISCO

- In Italian, French and Spanish
- 3051 Canzone del Fortor. Italian. (Drinking Song from "Martha")
- 3056 Largo al factotum. Italian. (Barber of Seville)
- 3052 La Paloma. Spanish
- 3053 Consejo. Spanish
- 3054 Les Mersillaise. French. With Orchestra Accompaniment.
- 3055 Torreador's Song. French. From the opera of "Carmen," with Orchestra Accompaniment.
- 3057 The Lost Chord. Organ Accompaniment.
- 3058 Les Rameaux. French. Organ Accompaniment.

By SIGNOR ANTONIO VARGAS

- 3010 "Jerusalem." (The Holy City sung in Spanish)

MINSTREL FIRST PART RECORDS

By THE GEORGIA MINSTREL COMPANY AND CHORUS

Messrs. S. H. DUDLEY, WM. F. HOOLEY, HARRY MACDONOUGH, FRANK P. BANTA, and THE METROPOLITAN ORCHESTRA

These Records are full of original wit and Negro humor. The Orchestra overture, the jokes of the funny end men, the brilliant chorus and fine solos make them a veritable carnival of mirth & melody.

3035 Monarch Minstrel, No. 1
Opening Overture, Metropolitan Orchestra. Chorus. "Wake Up, Hannah," by the entire company, jokes by the "end men," solo, "I've Gwine Back to Dixie," by the renowned basso, Mr. W. F. Hooley.

3036 Monarch Minstrel, No. 2
Overture by the Metropolitan Orchestra, "Carry Me Back to Ole Virginie," by the Georgia Minstrel Company; humorous conversation between "Bones" and the Interlocutor, and "My Old Kentucky Home," by the popular baritone, Mr. Samuel Holland Dudley.

3037 Monarch Minstrel, No. 3
Opening Chorus, "Hear Dem Bells." Some more real minstrel jokes. The sweet voiced tenor, Mr. Harry Macdonough, sings "A Picture No Artist Can Paint."

3038 Monarch Minstrel, No. 4
Overture by the Metropolitan Orchestra. The End Men again say something funny and the audience laughs. Mr. Macdonough sings "Mandy Lee."

3039 Monarch Minstrel, No. 5
Opening Chorus by the entire company. "In the Evening by the Moonlight" followed by some more jokes. The announcement that Mr. Macdonough will sing "The Blue and the Gray," is hailed with tumultuous applause.

3040 Monarch Minstrel, No. 6
Opening Overture, Metropolitan Orchestra, "My Old Cabin Home," by the soloists and chorus. "Tambo" has something to say, and Mr. Dudley sings the popular song, "Fly, Fly, Fly," with full chorus and orchestra.

The front cover of this scanty little Monarch Gram-o-phone 10-inch Record List said: "The results are wonderful, even when compared with our regular 7-inch Record, the greatest sound producing record ever made."

(To be continued)

MUSIC BOX CO., INC.

LLOYD D. KELLEY

69 Cornstock Place
South Orange, N.J. 07079All prices F.O.B. So. Orange
Phone A.C. 201 - 762-0441

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for 29 years.

FOR SALE &amp; WANTED

Antique music boxes, old mechanical dolls, toys, etc. Also nickelodeon pianos.

Stamped envelope for details.

Photographs available on music boxes for $1 ea.
Sorry, temporarily out of repair business. tfo

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts.

Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

Antique MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1825)

Complete Repair Service - All Types

All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought &amp; Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803
tfc

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Early Victor Photographs and Catalogs

PART IV

By JIM WALSH

Now we come to consideration of Johnson's Record Catalog, including both 7-inch Victor and 10-inch Monarch Records, all single-faced, of course, for October, 1901. That is the month in which Victor Talking Machine Company came into being.

Many titles in the 7-inch List are duplicated in the 10-inch. Emil Muench, a German tenor whose records were among the foreign language mainstays of the Victor Catalogs for many years, is represented in both sizes by solos and duets with August Kreuder.

I never have known anything about Muench, the man. But his career continued through the first few years of the electric recording era.

A "Vaudeville Specialty," by Charles P. Lowe, xylophonist, who played for all the pioneer record companies and Miss Jottie, whoever she was, sounds intriguing. I'd like to find that record. It includes an xylophone solo, a German folk song, and a drum solo — surely the first drum solo ever recorded.

I know nothing of D. E. Hanlon, who had a couple of recitations. But his "The Ravings of a Maniac" is the same thing as "The Mad Ravings of John McCullough," a famous actor, now dead. The recitation was recorded for various companies by a good-sized scattering of elocutionists. Len Spencer's brother, Harry, was prominent among them.

Frank Seiden was probably the first singer to specialize in Hebrew records. He was represented by 10 of the 7-inch size.

Turning to the 10-inch Monarchs, which were offered at $1 each or $10 a dozen, it is odd that there were nine discs by the American Quartet, but none by the Haydn. I have some of these American Quartet records, however, and Bill Hooley, the bass, announces them as being by the Haydn!

The late Sam Rous wrote me many years ago that he recollected the Quartet as being composed of Albert Campbell, first tenor; W. T. Leahy, second tenor; S. H. Dudley, baritone; and W. F. Hooley, bass. It was a different organization from the American Quartet of John Bieling, Billy Murray, Steve Porter, and Hooley, who began singing for Victor in 1909.

"Miss Spencer," of course, was Grace Spencer (Mrs. W. F. Doolittle) who is remembered affectionately by those who attended the John Bieling Day events of 1948 and 1950. The Soprano's recording career had been so far in the remote past that she was not acquainted with any of the other pioneer artists who were present.

Here is the complete 7- and 10-inch List for October, 1901:

VICTOR 7-INCH RECORDS 50c each, $2.00 per dozen

THE AMERICAN QUARTET

- A910 Medley of Plantation Songs
- A911 Dancing on the Old Barn Floor
- Imitations of various animals.
- A912 Darling Nellie Gray
- A913 Louisiana Lou
- A914 Good Bye Dolly Gray
- With Bangle Calls.
- A915 In Dixie Land
- Sung in unison, giving loud chorus effect.
- A916 The Bridge
- A917 Nationality Medley
- With imitations of different races.

THE HAYDN QUARTET

- A656 Carry Me Back to Ole Virginia
- A657 I've Gwine Back to Dixie
- A658 A Sleighride Party. (Descriptive)

Duet

MISS SPENCER and MR. MACDONOUGH

- A904 When We Are Married

MR. MACDONOUGH

- A907 Absence Makes the Heart Grow Ponder
- A908 The Tale of the Bumble Bee. (King Do, Do)
- A909 I've a Longing in My Heart for You, Louise
- A948 The Honeysuckle and the Bee
- A949 He Laid Away a Suit of Gray to Wear The Union Blue
- A950 My Black Pearl
- A951 The Wedding of the Reuben and the Maid
- From "The Rogers Bros in Washington," a sequel to "When Reuben Comes to Town."
- A952 Good Morning Carrie

MR. DAN W. QUINN

- A918 Whistling Mike
- A919 Go Way Back and Sit Down
- A920 Good Morning, Carrie
- A921 The Way To Kiss a Girl
- A922 When Mr. Shakespeare Come to Town
- A923 Ain't That a Shame
- A924 Simple Little Sister Mary Green
- A925 Mr. Dingy, Don't Be So Slingy
- A926 A Growler On a String
- A927 Marching to the Music of the Band

Comic and Negro Songs

WILL F. DENNY

- A933 I Want Someone To Care For Me
- A934 How the Irish Beat the Band
- A936 Any Old Place I Can Hang My Hat, Is "Home, Sweet Home," to Me
- A937 I'm Looking at You, Liza
- A938 The Tick, Tack, Tocking of the Clocking on her Stocking
- A939 The Shadows on the Door. (Comic Laughing Song)
- A961 At the Pan-I-Marry-Can. (The Buffalo Exposition Song)
- A962 Sarah From Syracuse

German Songs

EMIL MUENCH

- A939 Aus Der Jugendzeit
- A940 Sonnenlicht, Sonnenschein
- A941 Dein Gedenk Ich Margaretha
- A942 Wiegenlied. (Mozart)
- A943 Unter dem Lindenbaum
- A944 Im Tiefen Keller
- A945 In Einem Kühlen Grunde
- A946 Lorelei

German Duet

- EMIL MUENCH and AUGUST KREUDER
- A947 Die Beiden Zelter

Comic German Song

AUGUST KREUDER

- A8 Die Retzende Constanze

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfc

A View of the Victor Factories

AMAZING GROWTH. Eldridge R. Johnson's talking machine and record business, which began in 1898 in a small repair shop, had grown 12 years later to this impressive size. Taken from the July, 1910, Victor Record Supplement.

CHAS. P. LOWE and MISS JOTTIE
A963 Vaudeville Specialty
(Introducing an Xylophone Solo, a German Folk Song and a Drum Solo). Note: In addition to the above, Mr. Lowe has made new records of his Victor list of Xylophone Solos.

Recitations
MR. D. E. HANLON
A 62 The Ravings of a Maniac
A938 All the World's a Stage, from "As You Like It."

Humorous Recitations
MR. BURT SHEPARD of London, England
A7 Limburger Cheese
(The Boy and the Cheese)
A898 Courtship
A899 How I Got To Morrow
A903 Experience as a Dry Goods' Clerk

Hebrew Records
F. SEIDEN
A932 Kol Nidre
A930 Al Tiru Avdi Jankew von Koenig Lear
A928 Rosinkes und Mandlen von Schulames
A929 Das Pastuchil von Bar Kochba
A931 Min Hamelzar von Blimele
A933 Hamavdel von ein groben Jung
A934 Die lustige Chasidem
A935 Ein Gelechter von Kabzensohn
A936 Schmendrik's besingen
A937 Das Polische Jungel

MONARCH 10-INCH RECORDS
$1.00 each, $10.00 per dozen
THE AMERICAN QUARTET
3511 Medley of Plantation Songs
3512 Dancing on the Old Barn Floor
With imitations of different animals.
3513 A Night Trip to Buffalo
The train starts; humorous conversation between two Irishmen, one of them gets to sleep and disturbs the passengers with loud snoring, falls out of his berth in a troubled dream, believing that he is an A.P.A.
3514 A Negro Wedding in Southern Georgia
An original marriage service by the colored parson, with "Hear Dem Belts," and other appropriate hymns by the choir.

3515 Darling Nellie Gray
3516 Louisiana Lou
3518 The Sidewalks of New York
"The East Side," on Saturday Night, the street vendors, the "Hand Organ Man" singing and dancing of the children, the policeman who interrupts the fun and makes them "move on."

3519 The Battle of Santiago
Sunday morning on board the "Oregon." The call to divine service, Cervera's fleet discovered coming out, the battle, the "Star Spangled Banner."
3520 Nationality Medley
Imitations of Negro, Irish, German, Hebrew and Yankee.

Duets
MISS SPENCER and MR. MACDONOUGH
3501 Tell Me, Pretty Maiden, From "Florodora."
3502 Life's Dream Is O'er
3503 Home to Our Mountain, "Il Trovatore."
3504 The Lord Is My Shepherd. (Sacred)
3505 O That We Two Were Maying
3506 I Will Magnify Thee, O God. (Sacred)

MR. MACDONOUGH
3507 Absence Makes the Heart Grow Fonder
3508 The Tale of the Bumble Bee, from "King Do-Do."
3509 In the Shade of the Palm, from "Florodora."
3511 I Can't Tell Why I Love You, But I Do
3512 The Honeysuckle and the Bee
3513 He Laid Away A Suit of Gray To Wear The Union Blue
3514 My Black Pearl
3515 The Wedding of the Reuben and the Maid
The sequel to "When Reuben Comes to Town."

The hit of "The Rogers Bros. in Washington."
3556 Good Morning Carrie
3510 I've A Longing in My Heart for You, Louise

Alphabet Songs
A special series for little folks. Bright, catchy melodies, with a dainty little song for each letter of the alphabet.
3557 A, B, C, D, E, F
3558 G, H, I, J, K, L, M
3559 N, O, P, Q, R, S, T
3560 U, V, W, X, Y, Z

Comic and Negro Songs
WILL F. DENNY
3561 I Want Someone To Care For Me
3562 How the Irish Beat the Band
3564 Any Old Place I Can Hang My Hat Is "Home."
Sweet Home To Me
3565 I'm Looking At You Lize
3566 The Tick Tack Tocking of the Clocking
on Her Stocking
3567 The Shadows on the Door. (Comic Laughing Song)
3568 O, Don't It Tickle You
3569 At the Pan-I-Marry-Can. (The Buffalo Exposition Song)
3570 Sarah from Syracuse

MR. DAN W. QUINN
3521 Go Way Back and Sit Down
3522 Good Morning, Carrie
3523 The Way to Kiss a Girl
3524 When Mr. Shakespeare Comes To Town
3525 Ahn't That a Shame
3526 Simple Little Sister Mary Green
3527 Mr. Dingy Don't Be So Stingy
3528 A Growler on a String
3529 Marching to the Music of the Band
Songs in German

EMIL MUENCH
3541 Aus der Jugendzeit
3542 Sonnenlicht Sonnenschein
3543 Dein Gedenk Ich Margaretha
3544 Wiegenlied. (Mozart)
3545 Unter Dem Lindenbaum
3546 Im tiefen Keller
3547 In einem Kühlen Grunde
3548 Lorelei

German Duets
EMIL MUENCH and AUGUST KREUDER
3549 Die Beiden Zersit
3550 Der Spielmann und sein Kind

Xylophone Solos
MR. CHAS. P. LOWE
3573 A Medley of Scotch Airs
3590 Dancing in the Sunlight
3573 Da, Du With variations
3574 Happy Days in Dixie
3572 Kiss Me, Honey Do, and My Coal Black Lady
3570 Medley of Popular Airs
3575 My Old Kentucky Home
3571 Pickaninny Pokey
3578 The Carnival of Venice
3577 The Mocking Bird
3581 Vaudeville Specialty
Introducing Xylophone solo, German Folk Song by Miss Jottie and Drum Solo.

Recitations
MR. D. E. HANLON
3540 All the World's a Stage, from "As You Like It."
3297 The Ravings of a Maniac

Humorous Recitation
MR. BURT SHEPARD of London, England
3500 A Midsummer Night's Dream

Hebrew Records
F. SEIDEN
3534 Kol Nidre
3532 Al Tiru Avdi Jankew von Koenig Lear
3530 Rosinkes und Mandlen von Schulames
3531 Das Pastuchil von Bar Kochba
3533 Min Hamelzar von Blimele
3535 Hamavdel von ein groben Jung
3536 Die lustige Chasidem

3537 Ein Gelechter von Kabzensohn
3538 Schmendrik's besingen
3539 Das Polische Jungel

Two interesting announcements appear at the end of the October, 1901, Record List. The first:

"We take pleasure in advising our customers that we have just secured very broad Letters Patent on our Concert Sound Box. As we now own and control all patents on the only successful method ever discovered for making sound boxes, we believe that this feature alone will enable us to fully control the disc talking machine business for the next 10 or 15 years.

"We also have about 60 other applications and patents on the disk talking machine.

"Notwithstanding this, however, it has been our aim from the beginning to secure our trade entirely on the merits of our goods, and the most important of all, the satisfactory treatment of our customers."

A foretaste of the coming of Red Seal records is given by the following, headed: "The Great Master Artists of the Old World Play and Sing for You In Your Own Home."

"The most remarkable, unique and costly selection of records ever offered will soon be presented by us owing to an exclusive arrangement just concluded with the Gramophone Company Limited, of London, Cie Francaise Du Gramophone, of Paris, and the Deutsche Gramophon - Actien - Gesellschaft, of Berlin, which Companies practically control the entire talking machine business of Europe. Never before has it been possible to get records by the great artists of the Old World.

"The entire realm of the Old World's masters and famous artists will be at your command: an unfailing source of delightful entertainment the whole year round. There will be gems from England, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, Austria, Switzerland, Russia and even Egypt, India, China and Japan, made by experts who visit these countries expressly for the purpose and at a cost of over $200,000.

"Occasionally some foreign artists are brought to this country at an enormous expense—then, however, they only appear in the largest cities—but you will now be able to listen to them play, sing or recite in your own home and at a very small cost. Send for our Special Foreign Catalog."

Who, today, I wonder, has one of those "special foreign catalogs?"

— o —
(To be continued)

REPAIRS

ANTIQUE keyboard instruments: Complete, authentic restoration service. All work guaranteed. Restored antique instruments for sale. — Pro Musica Instrument Company, 46 Maryland Ave., Annapolis, Maryland 21401 au126351

TAPE RECORDINGS

CLASSICAL vocals, instrumentals, etc. on tape. Stamp for new artist list. Victor Nippers, $3.50 postpaid. —Recordings, 43 Locust Street, Northampton, Mass. 01060 ap3633

REMEMBER RADIO? Send stamped envelope for list of tape recordings available from radio's golden age. —Lee Book, Box 6338, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15212 je3253

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage.—Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. mh6468

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Early Victor Photographs and Catalogs

PART IV

By JIM WALSH

Now we come to a pair of record lists that especially interest me. Prior to my obtaining the 1901 catalogs, which already have been discussed in HOBBIES' January, February, and March 1968 issues, the earliest Victor record catalog I had seen was dated February, 1902. The next in order was August, 1904.

But now we have supplements for August, 1902, and May, 1903. They contain many short-lived records that had been cut out before the August, 1904 catalog, and of which I never before had heard.

The cover of the 1902 supplement says Victor and Monarch records were awarded a gold medal over all others at the Pan-American Exposition. Columbia, however, contended it received the grand prize award, and a grand prize usually takes rank over a gold medal.

However, judges at expositions in those days often were lenient and companies that sometimes seemed to find ways to "make friends and influence people," were likely to get top honors. Thomas A. Edison believed this and refused to compete.

There is also a photograph of the Kilties Band of Belleville, Canada, and a testimonial from William F. Robinson, its conductor, that "The 'Victor' Talking Machines and Records are the finest I have ever heard."

The supplement contains 10 records by Silas Leachman, known in those days as a famous singer of songs about Negroes. The incidental comment was: "Mr. Leachman has just been elected 'Committee-man' of Chicago," evidently some sort of political job, but I'm not sure what.

Burt Shepard (his name is misspelled as Shephard) apparently had come over from London to make some more records, for nine by him are listed, including a re-instatement of 7, now called "The Boy and the Cheese."

It doesn't seem there would have been much demand in 1902 for Polish records, but there are 10. All were offered in both 7-inch and 10-inch sizes.

The records by the Kilties Band and the band's Pipe Sergeant, David Ferguson, are interesting because they were given special Scotch plaid colored labels. I have a couple of them and they make an unusual appearance.

Cal Stewart must have had a field day, or a succession of field days, recording his "Uncle Josh" specialties, for 18 are listed in this one monthly supplement. It seems strange that the companies of those days would make a batch of records by one artist, then dump them all on the public at one time. No wonder most soon were cut out!

But to me the most interesting feature of this 1902 supplement is the issuance of a song—a popular song I suppose, though I have never heard it. Before I saw this list, I had never even heard of it. It is called "I Went to See Them March Away," and required three 10-inch records to complete.

Surely this must be the first example of as many as three records being devoted to one composition, aside, perhaps, from overtures of the "William Tell" variety. I wonder if anybody in the world has all three records of "I Went to See Them March Away."

Here are the records in the August, 1902, supplement:

MR. SILAS LEACHMAN Negro Songs

- 56 I'm the Man That Makes the Money in the Mint. Mr. Leachman has just been elected "Committee-man" of Chicago.
  - 57 I Must Have Been a Dreamin'. He thinks he's King of Spain, and uses castanets.
  - 458 Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home.
  - 459 Johnnie Took the One I Wanted. Even to a dose of castor oil.
  - 460 I Wish They'd Do It Now.
  - 1461 Melancholy Mose.
  - 1462 O. O. Miss Caroline. Try and sing the chorus of this song as Leachman does. You'll have lots of fun.
- New Records of Popular
Leachman Series With Chimes
- 704 Negro Hymn and Sermon.
  - *803 Don't You Hear Dem Bells?
  - *1132 Truculins Brown.

BURT SHEPHARD of London, England

- * 883 Has Anybody Seen Cur Cat?
- * 888 Is There Anything Else You'd Like?
- * 893 I'd Like to go Halves in That.
- * 880 Parody On Home Sweet Home.
- *1503 Fol-the-Rol-Lol.
- * 885 What, Hot She Bumps.
- *1504 Take Your Umbrella With You, John.
- * 887 When the Gentle Breezes Blow.
- * 7 The Boy and the Cheese (Limburger).

POLISH RECORDS By Alexandri N. Pnasiliewicz

- *1499 Walecznych-lyslac opuszcza Warszawe.
- *1494 Krakowianczek. Spliewka salonowa polska.
- *1498 Kozak z Ukrainy. Moniuszko.
- *1501 Na Wawel Na Wawel Krakowiaku.
- *1500 Jeszcze Polska nie zginela.
- *1492 Hej Mazury.
- *1495 Spliew ulanow Polskich.
- *1497 Duszycko ma. Zoperecki-Posel z Krakowa. Zblierzchowskiego.

MUSIC BOX CO., INC.

LLOYD D. KELLEY

69 Comstock Place
South Orange, N.J. 07079

All prices F.O.B. So. Orange
Phone A.C. 201 - 762-0441

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for 29 years.

FOR SALE & WANTED

Antique music boxes, old mechanical dolls, toys, etc. Also nickelodeon pianos.

Stamped envelope for details.

Photographs available on music boxes for $1 ea. Sorry, temporarily out of repair business. tfo

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on
ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- * COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- * VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- * INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- * FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- * "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York
tfx

Antique

MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1825)

Complete Repair Service - All Types

All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

tfo

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfc

Once a collector, always a collector. By April, 1912, when this picture was taken in South Boston, Va., the monthly arrival of new Victor records was an event in thousands of American cities and towns. Shown in front of the J. C. Howlett Piano Company are Mrs. Howlett and a boy, Nat Terry, who was employed in the store after school hours.

Terry still lives in South Boston where he is a watch repairman for a jewelry firm. He is still a record collector, as he was in 1912. Several years after this picture was taken, however, Edison Diamond Discs became his great love.

- *1496 Gdyby ranem sionkiem. Z opery Halka. Moniuszko.
- *1493 Piesn-3-Maja. Mazur.
- * Both Victor 7-inch and Monarch 10-inch.
- V Victor 7-inch only. M-Monarch 10-inch only.

THE KILTIES BAND

Gordon Highlanders, Belleville, Canada
Mr. Wm. F. Robinson, Conductor

- This famous Canadian Band has met with great success on its tour of the United States. The Scotch and characteristic selections they have played for us under Mr. Robinson's personal direction are the only talking machine records they have made.
- *1477 The Bonnie Briar Bush March. (Cud Hume.) Introducing "Annie Laurie" & "Robin Adair."
  - *1478 The Soldiers of the Queen. (Ellis.) With vocal chorus.
  - *1479 Reminiscences of Scotland. (P. Godfrey.) "Scots Wha Hae," "Hillan' Laddie," "The Campbells Are Comin'," "Tullochgorum," "Auld Lang Syne."
  - *1430 Scotland's Pride. (Chas. Godfrey) "Bonnie Dundee," "The Flower of Edinburgh," "Marquis of Huntley's Highland Fling" (Strathspey), "The Wind that Shakes the Barley" (Reel), "Bonnie Charlie's Now Away."
  - *1435 Ye Banks and Braes. (Bonnieau.) Cornet solo by Mr. Voss. "The Garb of Old Gaul," "On Cissnock Banks."
  - *1486 Selection. "Robert Bruce." (Bonnieau.) "There's Nae Luck About the House," "Rob Roy, McGregor, O." "Mcneymusk Strathspey," "Blue Bonnets O'er the Border."
  - *1487 The Maple Leaf. (Alex. Muir.) With vocal chorus. "God Save the King" is added to the Monarch Record.
  - *1488 John Anderson, My Joe. Introducing "Legio O' Buchanan," "Green Grow the Rushes, O.," "The Brae of Auchterader" (Strathspey).

- #### SCOTCH BAG PIPE SOLOS
- Pipe Sergeant David Ferguson of the Kilties Band
- *1473 Caller Herra.
  - *1474 The Cock of The North.
  - * Both Victor 7-inch and Monarch 10-inch.
  - V Victor 7-inch only. M Monarch 10-inch only.

SOUSA'S BAND

- * 319 The Circus Galop. Descriptive.

MR. HERBERT GODDARD

Baritone Solos

- *1502 The Resurrection. Sacred.
- * 779 Always.
- M3399 Love's Sorrow.
- * 781 The Clang of the Forge.

MR. J. W. MYERS

Baritone Solos

- M1463 (a) I Went to See Them March Away.
- M1463 (b) I Went to See Them March Away. 2nd verse.
- M1463 (c) I Went to See Them March Away. 3rd verse.
- V1463 I Went to See Them March Away.
- * 1464 June, My June.
- V1465 In the Golden Field of Grain.

- * 1244 The Bell Bury.
- * 1481 Fire as a Bird. Sacred.
- * 1484 The Treasures of the Sea Are Buried Deep.
- * 1483 In the Valley of Kentucky.

DAN W. QUINN

Comic Songs

- *1466 Mr. Dooley. Sung by Thos. Q. Seabrook in "A Chinese Honeymoon."
- *1467 I'll Be Your Rainbow.
- *1468 I'm Unlucky.
- *1469 And the Smoke Goes Up the Chimney Just the Same.
- *1470 If Aladdin Would Lend Me His Lamp.
- *1471 I Want to be an Actor Lady.
- *1472 Becoming Lize.
- * Both Victor 7-inch and Monarch 10-inch.
- V Victor 7-inch only. M Monarch 10-inch only.

MR. CAL STEWART

Original Yankee Stories

- * 668 A Meeting of the School Directors.
- *1475 Jim Lawson's "Hoss Trade" with Deacon Witherspoon.
- * 659 Laughing Song. "I'm Old, but I'm Awfully Tough."
- * 666 The Daily Paper at Pumpkin Centre.
- * 660 Uncle Josh Weathersby in a Chinese Laundry.
- * 661 Uncle Josh Weathersby in Society.
- * 662 Uncle Josh Weathersby on a Bicycle.
- * 663 Uncle Josh Weathersby's Trip to Boston.
- * 664 Uncle Josh Weathersby's Trip to Coney Island.
- * 665 Uncle Josh Weathersby in a Department Store.
- * 667 Uncle Josh Weathersby and the Lightning Rod Agent.
- * 668 Uncle J-sh Weathersby's Arrival in New York City.
- * 670 Uncle Josh Weathersby at the Circus.
- * 671 Uncle Josh Weathersby at the Opera.
- *1476 A Meeting of the Annapolis Club.
- *1489 Uncle Josh Weathersby's Huskin' Bee Dance. The fiddler plays for the dance and "Uncle Josh" calls the figures.
- *1490 The Last Day of School at Pumpkin Centre. Introducing an Harmonica Solo and German dialect story.
- *1491 Uncle Josh Weathersby at a Camp Meeting. He hears a Sermon on "Trusts."
- * Both Victor 7-inch and Monarch 10-inch.
- V Victor 7-inch only. M Monarch 10-inch only.

Finally, we come to the May, 1903, Victor supplement. Its front cover bears the familiar dog trademark, and this statement: "There can be only one BEST. The Pan-American Exposition decided that that one is the VICTOR."

It may be news to most collectors that there was an organization known as the Victor Symphony Orchestra which recorded in 1903. It was represented by 11 single-faced discs.

These ranged from the Anvil Chorus of "Trovatore" and unfailingly popular "Jolly Coppersmith," to "Dancing on the Housetops," "The Nightingale and the Frog," and "Dancing in the Barn." This symphony orchestra wasn't snooty in its repertoire.

Otherwise, the supplement runs pretty true to routine, although there are five solos by Jules Levy, the great cornetist, whose life was drawing to a close. An Arthur Collins record called "Oh, My!", described as "a harrowing tale of a colored belle, a pig and an apple dumpling," sounds worth investigating, if a copy could be found.

S. H. Dudley, disguised as Frank Kernell, is present with his familiar whistling Negro specialty. And the versatile Len Spencer has a Hebrew dialect comic song and an English coster one.

The latter, "Little Nipper," made famous by Albert Chevalier, did not refer to the Victor dog. Nor does it predict the arrival of my cherished cat of the same name.

Spencer also had five recitations that were standard items in his repertoire. And George Graham, whose brother Charles Graham was the song writer that composed "Two Little Girls in Blue" and other Gay 90's hits, returned with six comic monologs.

Our survey well may end by re-printing the titles in that May, 1903, Victor supplement:

All selections in this Supplement are made in both Victor 7-inch and Monarch 10-inch: except those marked "V", which are in Victor 7-inch only, and those marked "M", which are in Monarchs 10-inch only.

VICTOR and MONARCH RECORDS

VICTOR SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

- 2146 Anvil Chorus. Il Trovatore—Verdi
- M2152 Anvil Polka.
- 2149 Eloise Polka.
- 2151 Jolly Coppersmith. Anvil effect—Peter.
- V2079 Wein Bleibt Wein.
- 2077 La Media Noche.
- M2162 The Sky Lark. Piccolo solo.
- V2078 Dancing on the Housetops.
- V2148 Nightingale and the Frog. Piccolo solo.
- M2161 Selection from "Three Little Maids."
- M2169 Dancing in the Barn.

CORNET SOLOS

- With Piano Accompaniment by Jules Levy
- 1706 Robin Adair—Scotch.
  - M2105 Killarney—Balfe.
  - 2104 Tale of a Bumble Bee. King Dodo—Luders.
  - 2106 Bonnie Sweet Bessie.
  - 1769 Within a Mile of Edinburgh Town.

TENOR SOLOS

- Byron G. Harlan
- M2155 Please Mamma Buy Me a Baby. A touching child song.
  - V2154 Just a Line from Jennie.

(Continued on page 52)

TAPE RECORDINGS

CLASSICAL vocals, instrumentals, etc. on tape. Stamp for new artist list. Victor Nippers, $3.50 postpaid. —Recordings, 43 Locust Street, Northampton, Mass. 01060 jly3253

REMEMBER RADIO? Send stamped envelope for list of tape recordings available from radio's golden age. —Lee Book, Box 6333, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15212 je3253

MUSIC BOX DISCS

Mira Music Box Discs: 18½" $3; 15½" $2.50; 9-5/16" $1. Plus postage.—Squires, 2328 Channing Way, Berkeley, Calif. je3405

An industrial giant, "The Voice of the Victor." Continued growth of the Victor Talking Machine Company facilities is revealed in this 1922 photo of only a part of the plant.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

COMIC DUETS

Collins and Harlan

- 2116 The Dude and the Farmer. "One o' them pesky dudes" wanders into the Deacon's pumpkin patch and the conversation becomes animated. The Willy Boy is finally invited into the house and the Deacon fiddles for him. As "Willy" is departing the farmer's dog takes a hand (or a bite) in the affair.
- 2118 The Cat and the Fly Paper. Ezra Hoskin's wife's cat sits right down on a sheet of sticky fly paper—it naturally makes Ezra laugh—the cat doesn't do any laughing. Mrs. Ezra says he is a brute—the cat and the fly paper finally part company after a high old time—the family friction smoothed out by "Bringing in the Shenaves"—the cuckoo strikes and the family retire.
- 2157 They Were All Doing the Same. Comic hit.
- 2159 Backyard Conversation, Hibernian Repartee.

NEGRO SONGS

Arthur Collins

- 2153 Oh! My! A Harrowing tale of a Colored Belle, a Pig and an Apple Dumpling.
- 660 I've Got a White Man Working for Me.

BARITONE SOLOS

W. H. Thompson

- 2089 Song Bird of Melody Lane. From Mr. Bluebird.
- M2083 The Rosary—Nevin.
- M2093 Meet Me When the Sun Goes Down.
- M2094 If I But Knew.

WHISTLING SONG

Frank Kernell

- 1982 Whistling Coon.

DIALECT SONGS

By Len Spencer

- M2110 Abe Roginsky's Ball. Hebrew dialect.
- 2111 Little Nipper. Coster song.

RECITATIONS

By Len Spencer

- M2115 Ingersoll at the Tomb of Napoleon.
- V2114 Talmadge on Infidelity.
- 2113 Lincoln's Speech at Gettysburg.
- 2109 Twenty-third Psalm and Lord's Prayer.
- 2112 Sermon on the Mount.

HUMOROUS TALKS

By George Graham

- 2119 George Washington. A patriotic soliloquy.
- M2131 A Day's Walk. An eventful stroll.
- M2167 Imitation of a Street Faker.
- M2165 Woman. An awful roast for the sex!
- 2106 Married Life.
- A solemn warning to single men.
- M2108 Funny Bits. Just nonsense.
- The End

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 36)

he gave his first lecture, in 1866, in San Francisco, at which time he related his escapades in the Sandwich Islands. He made his last lecture appearances in 1895-6 on a world tour. At 60 he was a legend in his own lifetime.

The itinerant actors kept depicting Mark Twain in the sere and yellow. Absent-mindedly, he puttered with the scattered notes on the lectern. He cast an owlish look at the audience, while his lower jaw nibbled spasmodically at the wisps of a tobacco-stained, white mustache.

The take-off of old age eccentricities made the readings more amusing, of course.

Another misconception was the white flannel suit. The humorist began to wear it only at 70. "People ask why I wear a white suit," he said, when advocating dress reform to overcome the gloom of old age. "Well, I wear it because a naked person exerts little constructive influence in society."

The impersonators constantly quoted Mark Twain's quip, "I can give up smoking whenever I want to. I've done it a thousand times."

The thespians kept relighting cheroots with sturdy kitchen matches, holding them like small torches. This bit of stage business called for perfect timing. With a furious putt-putt-putt, they paused to think a moment while the match burned on perilously. But it was arrested in time so as not to burn their fingers. This provoked great laughter.

Yet Mark Twain never had smoked on the lecture platform.

Did Mark Twain's voice resemble in any way those who portrayed him as crotchety, with the twang of a banjo?

As a matter of fact, the Missouri-born humorist spoke with a slow, nasal drawl. He had a habit of rambling on, head jutting forward; his half-closed eyes appeared to peer from under bushy eyebrows, with a puzzled gaze and a submerged twinkle.

It should be recalled that Twain was a master of spacing the tagline for an after-thought. "When a pause was right," he wrote, "the effect was sure; when the pause was wrong in length, by the five-millionth of an inch, the laughter was only wild, never a crash."

His humor exploded in three or four bursts. The last topped the others.

About 50 years ago, the purported voice of Mark Twain could be heard on a nickel-in-the-slot machine, if the rubber hearing tubes were adjusted properly. Actually, the spurious cylinder had been made by either

(Continued on page 68)

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Arthur C. Clough, a photograph reprinted from an Edison record booklet.

Arthur C. Clough

By JIM WALSH

I. A Man of Mystery

This will be less a biographical sketch than a plea for help.

I have chosen to write this month about a tenor whose recorded work I have admired since I was a small boy, but concerning whom I know next to nothing. My hope is that the article will come to the attention of someone who has known him and will be willing to share the information with me.

I am not even sure how the tenor's last name should be pronounced, or whether the C. rightly belongs between Arthur and Clough. The initial was used on Edison records, but with Victor and Columbia he was always just Arthur Clough.

As to the pronunciation, I have toyed with the pleasing speculation that my subject may have been of English birth and related to Arthur Hugh Clough, a poet who lived from 1819 to 1861 and is best remembered today for his "Say Not the Struggle Naught Availeth."

As a child, the British Clough was taken to Charleston, S.C., but his family later returned to England. I like to think I trace a touch of Southern accent in the recorded voice of the later Arthur Clough, but that may be imaginary.

The poet, according to Webster's New International Dictionary, pronounced his last name as "Cluff." That is the way I always have pronounced the other Arthur's. George Clarence Jell, who was for years manager of the Columbia artist and repertoire department, wrote me that was the way he remembered the singer's name.

But when I mentioned the tenor to Billy Murray, best loved of all the pioneer recording artists, he looked puzzled a moment and then said: "Oh, you mean Arthur Clow!" and pronounced the surname as if it rhymed with chow. "I remember the Quartet's working with him at Edison," Billy said, "but I really don't know anything about the man himself."

By "the Quartet" Billy, of course, meant the group that was known as the American Quartet on Victor records, and as the Premier on Edison. On the other hand, the late John Bieling, who sang in both the American/Premier and the Hayden Quartets, flatly denied to me that he ever had known Clough or even heard of him, although Clough sang with him on Edison cylinders by the Premier, and on one 12-inch Victor disc with the Hayden.

But then, John, whose memory in his late years was not what it had been, also disavowed that he knew anything about Harry Tally, with whom the Hayden also had sung.

Several years ago, in my eagerness to find out something about Arthur Clough, I published a letter in Variety, asking if any reader could tell me anything about him, including whether he was still alive. I received an unsigned note from Milwaukee,

ANITA BOTKIN

3278 Bertha Drive Baldwin Harbor, N.Y. 11510
Phone: (516) — BA 3-8978

Satisfaction. Shipping ex. Lay-aways. Polaroids $1.

MUSIC BOXES

1. Rare Regina casket music box, accordion top, 6, 27" diameter discs. Oak case, everything in beautiful cond. $950.
2. Mira Music Box, 8, 9 1/2" discs, has mandolin effect, 11 1/2"x12 1/2"x8 1/2". $225.
3. Britannia music box with 12, 9 1/2" discs, 11"x17 1/2"x7 1/2". $225.
4. Fratelli Hurdy Gurdy, medium size, 5 bells, plays 10 times, beautiful cond. $900.
5. Stella disc music box with 6, 9 1/2" discs, 17 1/2"x15"x10". $250.

MUSIC BOX CO., INC.

LLOYD D. KELLEY

69 Comstock Place
South Orange, N.J. 07079

All prices F.O.B. So. Orange
Phone A.C. 201 - 762-0441

A constant advertiser in HOBBIES for 29 years.

FOR SALE & WANTED

Antique music boxes, old mechanical dolls, toys, etc. Also nickelodeon pianos.

Stamped envelope for details.

Photographs available on music boxes for $1 ea.
Sorry, temporarily out of repair business. tfo

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla,

New York

tfx

Antique

MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1825)

Complete Repair Service - All Types

All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

tfo

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

tfo

Missouri song writer Percy Wenrich. Arthur Clough's Columbia record helped to make popular "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," composed by Percy Wenrich, a native son of Joplin, Mo. The inscription on the photograph, not clearly visible, says: "To Ulysses Walsh, from a friend and admirer, Percy Wenrich."

giving me a Los Angeles, Calif., address, which was supposed to be Clough's and I immediately wrote the tenor a letter, which went by air mail, special delivery. There was no reply.

Not a great while afterward, when Quentin Riggs was in Los Angeles, he found an Arthur Clough listed in the telephone directory, and eagerly dialed the number. That Clough proved to be a gentleman of German descent who was much amused at being taken for the singer, but made it clear he wasn't. So I'm still wondering if Arthur Clough, the tenor, is yet alive and in Los Angeles.

I never have read of his death, but if he still adorns this planet he is an old man. His first record I have any trace of was issued by Victor in September, 1908, and the small photo printed with it looks to me like that of a man of 25 or probably more — perhaps as much as 30. It soon will be 60 years since that record came out. A little simple mental arithmetic will indicate that Clough, if he still lives, is in the mid-80's or perhaps as much as 90.

II. The Little That Is Known

Now let's take the little that is known about the tenor. Mr. Jell told me he sang in vaudeville and was the lead tenor of the Brunswick Quartet, which made a few Columbia records. The other members were Audrey Hackett, first tenor; Harry Wieting, baritone, and A. Duncan Cornwall, bass — all names that mean nothing to record collectors.

Clough also seems to have appeared in musical comedy. A good many years ago a good friend of mine told me he long before had searched through back files of the Richmond Times-Dispatch for an account of something that had happened in 1914 or 1915. He was inclined to think it was the latter year. He came across an advertisement of a forthcoming presentation of a musical comedy—he had forgotten the name—in which Arthur Clough was mentioned as one of the stars.

From curiosity, he looked up the review of the play and found the paper's critic had "roasted" it mercilessly. This was certainly strange where Clough was concerned.

In the years when, as a youngster, I played at operating the imaginary Walsh Talking Machine Company, I was impressed so much by the range and beauty of Clough's voice that I nearly always assigned him exacting tenor operatic arias to be sung in English. He recorded no opera for any other company!

When I asked my dear friend, the late Frank Dorian, for many years a Columbia official both in the States and abroad, if he recalled Arthur Clough, he replied:

"I remember Arthur Clough very well indeed, because he made his first record for the Columbia Company at the time I was in charge of the recording department, in 1909. In fact, it was due to the admiration and appreciation of his voice and singing style on the part of Vic Emerson and myself that he became a Columbia artist. I am trying to get some further information about him and the make-up of the Brunswick Quartet, and if I succeed will give it to you in a later letter."

Mr. Dorian afterwards sent me the names of the Quartet personnel and said he understood Clough at that time (the 1930s) was doing considerable radio singing.

Shortly afterward, Mr. Jell wrote:

"Arthur Clough, as I recall, pronounced his name Kluff. He was very good in his line, but did not last long, his voice and style not being adapted for the strictly popular type of song and the people at that time not in a receptive mood for standard things done by unknown people."

And now that I have revealed how much I don't know about Arthur Clough let's consider his records.

But, first, I'd like to say that I am eager to obtain information about Carroll C. Clark, a Negro baritone who made a number of big-selling Columbia records of old plantation songs. I have been told he is still alive and living in Denver. If any Denver reader can confirm this and give me Mr. Clark's address, I'd greatly appreciate it.

III. Clough's Victor Records

Never, throughout his seven-year recording career, was Arthur Clough a prolific maker of discs and cylinders. I attribute this to the fact he was on the road much of the time in vaudeville and musical comedy. His records usually were spaced rather far apart, and it is odd that no company ever issued a double-faced disc on which he sang both sides.

Although he had the assistance of male quartets and a mixed chorus in some of his offerings, he was never a duet partner of anybody in his issued records.

As already said, the tenor's first Victor record was issued in September, 1908. It was single-faced Black Label 5527, and the supplement description said:

"This new Victor singer has chosen for his debut Gardenier and Helf's newest ballad, a very pretty little love song indeed. It is given by Mr. Clough with great clearness in a mellow tenor quite pleasant to hear."

The title was "Somebody That I Know and You Know, Too." That "quite pleasant to hear" strikes me as faint praise. It would have been stronger to say: "It is given by Mr. Clough in a pleasant, mellow tenor," leaving out the "quite." Neither in this brief mention nor any other reference to Clough's records is any information given about the man himself.

The following month, Victor double-faced records were introduced, and the Clough ballad was paired on 16161, issued early in 1909, with "Would You Care?" a Charles K. Harris song which Byron G. Harlan had recorded as a single-faced disc for the September, 1905, list.

Clough's next Victor appearance was in June, 1909, when he sang a Teddy Morse ballad, "When the Meadow Larks Are Calling, Annie Laurie," on the B side of 16301. Ada Jones held down the A side with "Whistle and I'll Wait for You."

The supplement said of this combination:

"A pretty little song with whistling calls which is being much sung in vaudeville, combined with a charming Morse ballad, sung by that sweet voiced tenor, Mr. Clough. . ."

The tenor was present again in December, 1909, on 12-inch record 35085. He had the help of the Haydn (Hayden) Quartet in singing "The Red, Red Rose." The B side was given over to a song the popularity of which bids fair to last forever, "My Wild Irish Rose," by Harry Macdonough and the Haydn:

"Two splendid records of two charming 'rose' songs—the new ballad by Will Marion Cook, sung by Mr. Clough, whose pleasant tenor has been much admired; and a new record of the perennial favorite, Chauncey Olcott's melodious 'Wild Irish Rose,' by Mr. Macdonough. Both numbers are given with pleasing quartet refrains by that sterling organization, the Haydn Quartet."

After that the name of Arthur Clough was seen no more in Victor supplements until January, 1912, when record 17017 was announced. It contained a sugary type of pop song, "A Girlie Was Just Made to Love," sung by Walter Van Brunt. This was combined with a more dignified ballad, "The Hour That Gave Me You," by Clough. With the announcement was published the largest photograph of Clough that Victor yet had used, al-

(Continued on page 68)

HISTORICAL RECORDS

(Continued from page 51)

his greatest success in "I Pagliacci." Since there are no bassos in Leoncavallo's pride-and-joy, apparently Delmas also took on dramatic baritone roles.

His vast repertoire included a variety of operas, from the standard to the less common such as Reyer's "Salammbô," Saint-Saens' "Les Barbares," d'Indy's "L'Etranger," Dukas' "Ariane et Barbe-Bleue," Fevrier's "Monna Vanna," etc.

Jean-Francois Delmas died at St. Alban de Montbel September 27, 1933.

At a time when baritones were good and plentiful, Mario Ancona earned for himself a prominent and well-deserved place in the operatic Social Register.

His was a true "Italian" voice — velvet-lined, free-flowing, well-protected. And in Sei vendicata—one of the most winning arias for baritone — his exemplary vocal attributes come advantageously to the fore.

Born in Livorno February 28, 1860, Mario Ancona—studied—singing with the famous baritone Giuseppe Cima (teacher of two other renowned baritones, Camera and Fumagalli) in Milan. Ancona made his operatic debut in 1890, at Trieste, as Scindia in "Le Roi de Lahore."

Ancona's big chance came when he was entrusted with the part of Silvio in the momentous world-premiere of "I Pagliacci" at the dal Verme in Milan, May 21, 1892. Stehle, Giraud, Maurel, and Daddi completed the distinguished cast.

Besides acquiring fame in Italy, he was a favorite in England, Portugal, Spain, Russia, Poland, and South America. In the United States, he sang successfully at the Metropolitan from 1893 to 1897, and also appeared with the Chicago and Boston Opera Companies.

Mario Ancona died in Florence February 23, 1931.

A rather neglected Spanish soprano of old is here deservedly given prominence. The reason for this more or less lackadaisical attitude toward Giuseppina Huguët, I believe, is the frequency with which pressings of some of her Milan recordings turn up on the black Victor label.

By all accounts, Huguët was an outstanding artist. Born in Barcelona September 22, 1871, she studied in the Conservatory of her home city and made her debut there in 1889.

After starting her career in Spain, Huguët went on to win the approval of the Italian audiences, and it wasn't long before she was at La Scala in Milan and the Costanzi of Rome.

In the course of her career, she was applauded in England, France, and Portugal. Similarly, in her own country, her appearances always drew the highest admiration.

At the close of her artistic activities, Giuseppina Huguët taught singing in Barcelona, where she died in 1951.

Another Spanish artist from Barcelona on this LP is Francisco Vignas. Much sought on his Fonotopia's, and positively a rarity on G&T's, he displays enviable vocal endowment in Sopra Berta, probably his most heroic record.

Born in 1863, he attended the Barcelona Conservatory and made his debut in that city in 1888, with appearances succeeding in other Spanish opera houses.

Italy followed, and his popularity, in due course, took him to England and France. He became a great favorite in both countries, also, of course, in Spain. There he added Madrid to his previous conquests.

At the Metropolitan, where he was engaged during the 1893-94 season, Vignas' debut had the extra attraction of coinciding with that of Emma Calve, in "Cavalleria Rusticana" November 29, 1893.

Francisco Vignas, considered one of the superlative tenors of his time, died July 13, 1933, in Moya, Spain.

Whoops, I just realized that my space is running short. Selfishly, I first picked out for comment the singers whose recordings on this LP attracted me most.

However, as I recall, some of the remaining esteemed artists already were dealt with on these pages more or less extensively—Hempel, Matzenauer, Clement, Journet.

For the others, I guess I'll have to beg off until some other time.

— o —

FAVORITE PIONEER
RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 38)

though the same one, in thumbnail size, had appeared in September, 1908 and December, 1909. See picture.

Another long silence followed, and then in October, 1913, came what was undoubtedly the best selling Victor record by Clough, 17412, "When I Dream of Old Erin." However, its large sale no doubt should be attributed to the other side, with Charles W. Harrison singing the immortal "Peg O' My Heart."

In the same month, Clough was heard on 17399 in a delightful Neil Moret ballad, "The Beautiful Dawn of Love." Walter Van Brunt had, with it, another sugary affair called "You're My Girl." The combination was a poor seller and stayed in the catalog only a couple of years.

By this time Victor had stopped giving individual descriptions of its popular song records, probably on the theory that the demand was so strong they would sell themselves. Consequently, nothing was said about Clough's November, 1913, record, "A Little Bunch of Shamrocks," which would have made an ideal coupling for "When I Dream of Old Erin." As it was, it drew a weak companion, "My Boy," by the Lyric Quartet.

Clough again went into silence until December, 1914, when his final Victor record appeared, 17641. On this he sang "Come Back to Me." On the other side, Edna Brown and James F. Harrison were heard in "When June-Time Brings the Roses."

(To be continued)

KAY MCCORMICK ANTIQUES

S. 1224 Grand Blvd.

Spokane, Wash. 99202 Ph. 509-747-2523

Across from the Cathedral

One of the Northwest's finest shops.

Dealers welcome. Collection of Chinese bronze and jade of museum quality.

Beautiful French fan, very old, cream colored silk, with 4 hand painted children in pastel colors, flowers, etc., and gold, scrolls. Ivory sticks, also dec. with gold. Framed in a gold shadow box with beaded borders, glass front. 22 1/2" x 14 1/2". $135.

Nazi Eastern front medal 1941, Nazi Iron Cross 1939, with ribbons, $15 each. American, 1895, 26th Triennial Conclave at Boston, $5.50. Gettysburg 75th Ann. medal $3.50. British 1st W.W. Geo. V. no ribbon. $4.50. Victory medal, PDR $2.50. Dinner with Ike 1960, $6.

Vaseline glass jelly compote with opaque opal, ruffled edge. Strawberry & grape dec. 5 1/2" x 6" across top, $16.

Custard glass: Creamer & sugar, footed 4", tiny flake off foot of creamer. Band of leaves & berries, signed McKee, $18. Toothpick holder, souvenir Seattle, nice pattern, mint, $12. Salt & pepper, souvenir Detroit, red roses, $13. Bowl, crimped top, berry dec. 3 1/2" x 5" x 2 1/2" base, $12.50.

4 Royal Suhl 8" plates, Germany, look like R.S. Prussia. Painted part is shaded and extends over rim into petals, between are gold flowers on white. Centers dec. with lovely flowers, petals green on 2. lavender on 2. $6.50 ea.

Ridgways Plate 8", Kirk Bradden, Old Church. Brown, green & gold, $12.50.

Peking glass: Bowl, 2 1/2" x 4", Imperial yellow, deep floral carving, footed tank stand, $250. Light blue opaque glass cup, very fine "Cameo" cut bird and flowers, with stand, $47.50.

Lion carved from King ebony, ivory eyes, teeth & claws. Not very old, but very well done, made in Ceylon, 8 1/4" x 2 1/4". Tail comes apart for shipping. 2 claws missing, $65.

Miniature oil painting of DuBarry, oval 2" x 1 1/2", carved brass border, set in ivory frame 4 1/4" x 3 1/4", $40.00.

Book of sepia engravings by American artists, 1856, 14 1/2" x 11". 9 pictures, one by Winslow Homer, $35.00.

Bohemian vase, ruby cut to clear, flower design, 7 1/4", old & lovely, $17.50.

Signed Kelya hinged jewel box, green with lovely flowers in shades of lavender & white. 8" across base, 7" top, 3 1/4" high. Mint, some wear on lining, $85.

Japanese Netsuke, ivory with silver face carved with dragons. Heavy brass chains hold brocade bag, which has silver carved dragon on front, $35.

Cut glass lie down perfume, brass hinged top, with green set, inner stopper, 3 1/2" long, $7.50.

Black amethyst bowl with silver deposit floral design & rim 8" square x 3" $12.50.

Baccarat paperweight, old & beautiful, 2 1/2" x 1 3/4", 4 rows of flowers around center flower, all made of colored & white canes, $135.

Hepplewhite sideboard, mahogany, inlay bands. Bow front, one drawer, wine bins on each side.

oval inlays on these. Ca 1780, fine condition, all original, $850.

French clock, over 200 years old, signed Pichon-Thermet, grid brass, perfect running condition. 11" x 13" x 4", young girl with skirt full of flowers on top, rest has scrolls & cut out foliage, etc. Back plate over works missing, a minor detail. A very rare and beautiful clock, $115.

Everything old & proof unless otherwise stated. Postage & insurance extra, excess refunded. Colored pictures available. Joe

HILLWAY HOUSE ANTIQUES

1128 Oakmont Road
Charleston, W.Va. 25314

Phone: 384 — 346-7710

Large very old HESSEY WATER PITCHER, a smocking type pattern. Marked. $25.

VERRE de SOIE 5" vase, $15.

STERLING handled wooden salad bowl FORK AND SPOON, $7.

Miniature brass mortar & pestle, $5.

Daisy & Button CARNUCOPIA HAND VASE, clear, $7.50.

Large NIPPON pedestal bowl or compote, gold open handles, stylized flowers with blues. A distinguished quality piece, $14.50.

Boudoir POWDER BOX DOLL, exceptional quality and condition, $10.

Flat base FLUTING IRON, $7.50.

White BRISTOL WATER BOTTLE, no tumbler.

Inset, butterfly, flower decor, deep rough pontil, $18.00.

Lensed CARAMEL SLAG single bulb light fixture. Very nice, $25.

Postage extra. Satisfaction guaranteed. Joe

FRENCH CAMEO GLASS

and Pate de Verre

For Sale: Several choice cabinet size pieces from private collection. For photos and prices write:

WILLIAM C. KOBIN - Room 908

88 Broad St. Boston, Mass. 02110

aup

Favorite Pioneer Recording Artists

Conducted by JIM WALSH

Arthur C. Clough

(Continued from the June Issue)

By JIM WALSH

IV. Clough's Columbia Records

Arthur Clough was not heard on Columbia records until February, 1909, when he made an auspicious beginning with a ballad of homey sentiment that seems certain to endure as long as, say, Beethoven's Fifth Symphony. It was "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," with words by Alfred Bryan and music by Percy Wenrich, a native son of Joplin, Mo.

Wenrich, one of the greatest American song writers, has composed as many numbers of permanent appeal, perhaps more, as Stephen Foster. Besides the "Bonnet" ballad, "Rainbow," "Silver Bell," "Snow Deer," "Kentucky Days," "When It's Moonlight in Mayo," "Moonlight Bay," "The Smiler Rag," "Red Rose Rag," "Sweet Cider Time," and "How Are You Goin' to Wet Your Whistle?" are Wenrich compositions that come readily to mind.

Undoubtedly, Clough's record of "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet" helped to give the song a popularity it will never lose, but it probably would have sold still better if it had not been coupled with another number that had already been a big seller on a single-faced Columbia, "The Moon Has His Eyes On You," sung by Corinne Morgan and Frank C. Stanley.

The record was A778, and the supplement said:

"Here introduced is a new record-making artist of superlative merit, Mr. Arthur Clough, whose magnificent tenor voice will figure conspicuously in Columbia recording in the future. Mr. Clough's voice is said to be better suited to recording work than that of almost any other tenor now before the public, and his first Columbia record seems to bear out this opinion.

"The song Mr. Clough has chosen is the latest hit by the author of 'Rainbow,' and it is more than possible that it will rival that selection in popularity. As a combination of graceful and pleasing melody with words of appealing sentiment, it has seldom been equalled in popular music, giving as it does a tender picture of a golden wedding day."

Clough had a gift for selecting songs of lasting appeal. In the following list he had "Daisies Won't Tell," on A792, coupled with Harlan singing "I'd Like to be a Soldier."

But after this auspicious beginning occurred another of those long absences. He was not present again as a soloist until February, 1911, when, on 952, he sang "The Vale of Dreams," with Harvey Hindermeyer's "When a Boy From Old New Hampshire Loves a Girl From Tennessee," as its companion.

A few months later the tenor again showed his knack of selecting "immortals" by recording, on A1047, "Down By the Old Mill Stream," with the help of the Brunswick Quartet, which sang "Sally" on the reverse side.

And then there were no more Columbia solos by Clough until February, 1915, when his final appearance was made on A1665: He sang a forgotten song, "By the Side of the Girl You Love." A vaudeville favorite, Henry Santrey, was heard in the better remembered "Tip Top Tipperary Mary," its "platter mate."

Concerning this record the supplement said:

"Perhaps eventually the biggest hit of the month will be 'Tip Top Tipperary Mary' . . . There is a swing about this number that forcibly reminds one of another 'Tipperary' song that has had such sensational success. On the reverse is a new ballad by Arthur Clough, whose voice, after a long absence from our list, sounds just as good as ever."

The Brunswick Quartet made the following Columbia records, besides the one already mentioned:

A798, "Sing Me a Song of the South" / reverse: "The Artillerist's Oath," Columbia Quartet.

A895, "My Wild Irish Rose" / reverse: "When the Bloom is On the Heather," Columbia Quartet.

A921, "Seeing Nellie Home," Frank M. Coombs and Brunswick Quartet / reverse: "Mollie Darling," Coombs.

A1000, "I'm Looking for a Nice Young Fellow," Ada Jones & Brunswick Quartet / reverse: "Alamo Rag," Columbia Male Quartet.

A1052, "Hard Times Come Again (Continued on page 40)

MUSIC BOXES

NICKELODEONS!

CIRCUS ORGANS!

You'll find collecting old-time music boxes, colorful nickelodeons with art glass fronts, gay circus organs and other automatic musical instruments to be an enjoyable and profitable hobby!

We are suppliers to collectors, dealers and museums all over the world.

Our large illustrated catalog offers outstanding values in all conditions and price ranges. Also music box books and recordings. Send $1 today and our fascinating catalog will be rushed to you!

HATHAWAY & BOWERS, INC.
Dept. 9; 11975 E. Florence Avenue
Santa Fe Springs, Calif. 90670

MUSIC BOXES

Antique Swiss Music Boxes restored like new. All wheels, worm gears and pinions made right in my shop on NEW SPECIALLY DESIGNED MACHINERY. NO WORK "FARMED OUT" hence you are money in pocket when you get my low prices for guaranteed work.

Hundreds of Music Boxes of every conceivable type right in stock. Just ask for any specific item and I'm sure I will have it. Every item offered rebuilt like new, as to those that know, all machines need plenty of work on them to be in flawless condition.

Music Box and bird cage bellows restored and birds refeathered.

Barrington - GEORGE A. BIDDEN - Rhode Island

WANTED FOR PRIVATE COLLECTION RECORDS

of GREAT SINGERS on

ALL LABELS

Particularly the following:

- ★ COLUMBIA GRAND OPERA RECORD ten-inch, single-faced, with red and gold and black and silver labels.
- ★ VICTOR, red seal, single - faced, with MONARCH and DE LUXE labels.
- ★ INTERNATIONAL ZONOPHONE CO., Disco Zonofono, Disque Zonophone.
- ★ FOREIGN LABELS such as ODEON, FONOTIPIA, G.&T., etc.
- ★ "OFF THE AIR," "OFF THE STAGE" and "PRIVATE" recordings by great singers, including complete opera broadcasts. Also old record catalogs.

AIDA FAVIA-ARTSAY

50 Prospect Avenue

Valhalla, New York

Antique MUSIC BOX SPECIALISTS

(Estab. Switzerland 1825)

Complete Repair Service - All Types

All Work Guaranteed

Finest Instruments Bought & Sold

BORNAND MUSIC BOX CO.

139 4th Ave., Pelham, N.Y. 10803

IF YOU'RE MOVING LET US KNOW

★ So that there will be no interruption in your subscription, please give us 6 weeks advance notice.

★ Please state OLD and NEW address, and date you will be at new address. Please be sure to include old and new Zip Codes.

★ Send your notice to:
Circulation Department

HOBBIES MAGAZINE
1006 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60605

Please mention HOBBIES when replying to advertisements.

VICTOR RECORDS FOR JANUARY—1912

17015 { Southern Melodies Xylophone
"Kemo, Kimo" Ring, Ring de Banjo "Carry de News" Old Folks at Home "Nigger Never Die" Dixie } 10
Fascination Waltz Whistling Guido Gialdini

Here is a most attractive instrumental combination consisting of a lively medley of southern songs by Reitz, and a charming waltz by that most celebrated of whistlers, Gialdini.

17017 { A Girlie Was Just Made to Love
Goodwin-Meyer Van Brunt } 10
The Hour That Gave Me You
Dempsey-Schmid Arthur Clough

Two pretty ballads by two favorite tenors, both of whom are favorably known for their sweet voices and distinct enunciation.

17016 { On the Neva March (Auf der Neva)
Victor Military Band } 10
Birthday Serenade (Lincke)
Victor Orchestra

A rousing march and a delightful serenade, both of which came to us from Germany, are the pleasing items in this fine instrumental double.

17006 { Alexander's Ragtime Band (Berlin)
Slippery Place Rag (Hacker) } 10
Victor Military Band

It seems impossible for the Victor Company to furnish enough records of this great popular success to supply the demand, and therefore, to supplement the Collins and Hadan and Snyder Medley records, there is offered here a spirited band version, and it may be described as a "corker"!

On the reverse is a new "rag" which would almost make a stone statue come to life!

17007 { For Killarney and You (Walsh-Teasdale)
If This Rose Told You All it Knows (Mahoney-Morse) } 10
Reed Miller
Raymond Dixon

Mr. Miller, for his January contribution, sings in fine style a splendid Irish song just issued by Witmark; while on the opposite side the Victor's new tenor, Mr. Dixon, gives us a charming Morse ballad which has been quite popular during the past year.

17008 { Knock Wood (Sterling-H. Von Tilzer)
They Always Pick on Me (Murphy-H. Von Tilzer) } 10
Jones-Murray
Ada Jones

The latest of the songs which takes their theme from the slang expressions of the day, cleverly sung by these popular entertainers, is combined with a novel "kid" song by Miss Jones.

Reitz

Clough

Play your records with Victor Needles

The Victor record supplement for January, 1912, listed an Arthur Clough record and a photograph of him.

FAVORITE PIONEER RECORDING ARTISTS

(Continued from page 37)

No More," Frank M. Coombs and Brunswick Quartet/reverse: "Chiming Bells of Long Ago," Coombs.

It is interesting to observe that Clough made no Columbia wax cylinders. "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet" came out just too late to be offered as a cylinder. The disc was issued just one month after the last monthly list of cylinders had been published in January, 1909.

V. Edison Cylinders and Discs

